Must All Milk Be Grade A?

By Roger H. Wilkowske
Kansas State Economist

Milk is nature's most nearly perfect food. It's one of the four basic food groups necessary for balanced nutrition. It's particularly important in building strong bones and muscles for growing children.

Thus, it's vitally important that milk be pure and wholesome. Milk is often consumed as a fluid beverage without being cooked. If contaminated or unsanitary, it could cause illness or disease.

There's a long history of measures and regulations to assure pure and safe milk. But it's still possible to buy uninspected and unpasteurized milk in Kansas.

Many Kansas cities and counties have ordinances that require pasteurization, and farm and factory inspection. But there are still some communities that do not.

In the past, production, processing, and distribution of fluid milk was a local business and thus a local concern. Cities and counties adopted the health ordinances they felt were necessary to assure safe and wholesome milk. There was wide variation in the stringency and enforcement of local milk ordinances.

Recent years have seen dramatic changes in the dairy industry. Milk is assembled from wide production areas, processed in large plants, and packaged in single service containers.

It's distributed through stores and routes over wide consumption areas. There's no way of knowing where the milk from a specific dairy farm will eventually be sold or where the milk sold in any community originated.

The system of local option on milk inspection and ordinances was not well adapted for the large scale assembly, processing and distribution practices. It resulted in overlapping and duplication which increased costs for farmers, processors, and consumers.

A free flow bill was enacted in Kansas to permit free movement of Grade A milk within the state without subsequent complete reinspection. This helped reduce duplication. But increased use of authorized inspection fees have prevented substantial reduction in inspection costs.

A twofold question will face Kansans in the near future. First, should we consolidate milk inspection into a single agency? Secondly, should we require all fluid milk sold in the state to be Grade A quality and pasteurized.

The dairy industry and associated agencies are currently studying these questions. It is anticipated that they will make recommendations soon.

Kansans have a vital interest in these questions because the issues affect public health as well as the cost of milk. Any proposed modification of our milk inspection system and requirements deserves thoughtful consideration.

Proposed changes should be examined closely to determine their effectiveness. Would they assure a pure, wholesome, safe milk supply? Are they adapted to the present dairy industry? Is this the best way to do the job at the lowest cost?

Any proposal which can accomplish all these things deserves the support of all Kansans. Anything less would short change us and our children.

Foldaway Spare Tire Into Use

B. F. Goodrich Co's Space-saver spare tire will be introduced to motorists as standard equipment on Pontiac's new Firebird sports car.

Goodrich and the General Motors Corp. unit confirmed that the tire, announced by Goodrich last October, will be a feature of the Firebird, slated for unveiling next month.

The tire folds up on its wheel when uninflated and stored in the auto trunk, adding about three cubic feet of luggage space, or enough to accommodate an average size suitcase. Inflated with the freon gas which comes with the tire, it can be mounted conventionally on the car and driven for several hundred miles. The tire, made of a flexible material that allows the tire to be folded while in the trunk, is meant only for emergency use.

A Goodrich spokesman said it hasn't been determined when the tire will be introduced in the replacement market.

Wrangle Over World Food Programs

The role of food aid as an instrument of United States foreign policy is given new emphasis in a draft executive order creating a War on Hunger policy committee that would be headed by the secretary of state. The order is awaiting President Johnson's signature.

Designed to end a "leadership gap" that began with the transfer of the office of Food for Peace from the White House to the State Department in October 1965, the order attempts to define areas of responsibility of the secretaries of state and agriculture and provides a mechanism for resolving any differences that may arise.

It is also intended to end the bureaucratic jockeying for control of the new $7.4-billion Food for Peace program — called "Food for Freedom" program in the pending order — that became effective Jan. 1. This replaced for two years the old Public Law 480 first passed in 1954 and called the "surplus disposal" program.

Under the October 1965 transfer the Food for Peace director, Richard W. Reuter, was made special assistant to the secretary of state. But he had no authority over the program which was conducted on a project basis by an interagency group below the division chief level.

As part of the reshuffling, President Johnson directed that new food commitments must have his personal approval and Reuter resigned. In addition to the secretary of state, as chairman, the order signifies as members of the policy committee the secretary of agriculture, the budget director and the administrator of the Agency for International Development.

The committee's purpose would be to review and coordinate all War on Hunger policies including those set forth in the new law as well as those involving capital and technical assistance, research related to food production and distribution, voluntary population control programs in developing countries and agriculture self-help activities in such countries.

The over-all objective of the group would be to help maintain a comprehensive and balanced program of promoting food availability.

While recognizing the broad grant of authority to the secretary of agriculture in the new program such as planning food production and determining what food commodities were available for local currency or dollar credit sales, the order states that all such functions shall be subject to the responsibilities of the secretary of state with respect to the foreign policy of the U.S.

$14,200 FOR INTEREST IN DETTKE-RIFFEL BULL

Two G&G area Hereford breeders have sold one-half interest in a bull they jointly own for $14,200. Gerhardt Dettke and Son, Marysville, and Jesse Riffel and Sons, Enterprise, sold the half interest to Brownell Combs, Lexington, Kentucky. The bull, Deluxe Mixer Third, was bred and raised by the Dettkes.

Cheaper Color TV Slated

If you've been telling the family that you'll be interested in color TV when the price goes down, 1967 may be the year when you lose your excuse.

By spring or early summer, makers of color television sets figure they'll have out more less-costly models.

Some indications of things to come:

• RCA in March will introduce a 15-inch rectangular tube color receiver to be priced below $350. Currently the company's lowest priced set is a 19-inch one at $399.

• Sylvania will introduce the industry's first 22-inch rectangular color sets with suggested prices beginning at $430.

• Muntz will introduce a series of 21-inch round tube sets, starting as low as $299.

• Admiral is introducing 18 models that can be marketed under $500; previously the company had only six models below $500.

The switch to lower-priced models doesn't mean any great technical breakthrough or even price cutting on current models. It just means there is a new emphasis on low-priced sets.

Interest in the lower priced models has sprung from strong sales of these models while sales of higher priced color television during Fall and Christmas buying seasons were generally thought to be disappointing.

General Electric, the only American manufacturer with a portable color television set, says sales of its 11-inch color receivers, which have suggested list prices of $269.95, have been gratifying and expects a greater increase on them in 1967. Imports of lower priced Japanese color sets are also on the increase. In Chicago, Sears Roebuck has been offering a 16-inch Japanese-made color set for $268.

While Zenith and others have experimented with laser beams to reproduce color TV pictures, such a method—which would do away with picture tubes entirely—is years away from full development. No other basic changes in the design of color tubes is in sight, manufacturers say, so lower prices will come from manufacturing simplifications, economies in purchases, and lower margins.

When sales of black-and-white tv leaped in the early 1950s, about 100 companies leaped into competition, which presently became overproduced, leading to price-cutting and blood-letting among the competitors. About 25 companies survived.

The companies remaining do not think a similar situation will build up in the fight for color television sales.

Professional Feeds, formerly a well sold commercial feed in the G&G area, has sold its formula feed plants to International Milling Co.

The transaction includes plants in Kansas City, East St. Louis, and Evansville, Ind., as well as an egg farm and processing plant at Joplin, Mo.

The sale was made by Textron, Inc., which bought Professional Feeds from Spencer-Kellog and Sons in 1961.

International's facilities include the Supersweet mill at Salina.

Despite Oil Slump, State Mine Output

1947-1956. The value for the 1957-1966 decade is nearly 40 percent of the 13.6 billion dollars which is the total value of Kansas mineral production since the first year of record in 1861.

A review of the mineral industry during the past 20 years reveals rather startling and persistent growth during the first part of the period culminating with a record high in 1957, followed by a general leveling off period to 1961. The petroleum industry, contributing 80 percent or more of the total value in mineral production from 1947-1956, is the key to this phenomenal increase, for it was during this period that production, not only of crude oil, but also of natural gas, natural gasoline and LPG, experienced remarkably steady growth, reaching a climax in 1957. Crude oil production then slack-ed off for 6 years, effecting a decline or leveling off in mineral values.

During the 1958-1960 period, which total values fluctuated, the non-fuels, principally cement, stone, sand and gravel, gypsum and salt, continued to gain strength. Thus, in 1958 when helium experienced a tremendous surge as a result of the government conservation program, the value of all mineral products started a new climb that was climaxed in 1965 and 1966 with natural gasoline and LPG ducts making strong gains even crude oil holding steady. The increase the total value of mineral products to record highs for each of the last years.

The petroleum industry contributed $485 million or 81 percent of the total 1966 value of $584.2 million, about the

The chances are 9 to 1 that cattle coming into your feedlot have roundworms. Even the healthiest looking animals are probably infested. And blood-drinking roundworms do a lot of damage yearly. About 250 million dollars worth.

Just how much could it be costing you to feed roundworms?

Let's say you have a hundred head of cattle. Say that they're only lightly infested with roundworms—300 eggs per gram of feces. That's up to 6,000 roundworms per animal.

In 105 days, roundworms could gobble up more than 6½ gallons of blood per head! And here's about what it would cost you:

52.8 lbs. of concentrate worth	$ 2.11
528 lbs. of hay worth	6.60
264 lbs. of grain worth	6.60
	$15.31 per head

It's costing you about $15.31 to feed the worms in just one head of beef over 105 days. Or $1531.00 for 100 head.

Just one feeding of the new CO-OP Cattle Wormer will take care of roundworms. Thiabendazole does the job, and it costs you about a dollar per head for yearlings. This excellent wormer comes three different ways—As cubes, pellets or crumbles.

Your Co-op has the facts on safe, sure worming. Stop in or call your Co-op feed man soon.

Tough Week For Solomon Folks

SOLOMON — It was a hard luck weekend for the Charles Martin family.

First a bull had to be killed and then the barn burned down.

Several hundred bales of hay and two sows with a litter of pigs each were lost in a barn fire at the Martin farm five miles south of Solomon.

The fire was evidently started by a defective heat lamp.

The Kipp rural fire department answered the alarm but it was too late to save the barn.

The day before, J. C. Martin, father of Charles, had to destroy a 2-year old Angus bull after it broke its leg in a fight.

effecting ratio as in the past several years. It should be stated, however, that none of these values include processed or refined products. The effect of the "raw" petroleum products on the economy of the State is minor as compared to the value of the refineries and petrochemical plants and their products — gasoline, lubricating oils, coke, asphalt, chemicals and plastics. Crude oil production remained approximately the same level as in 1965 despite increased allowances and incentives for increased production. A price increase, however, increased the value of the produced crude oil a little more than 6 percent.

In contrast to crude oil, other raw products of the petroleum gains. Natural gas gained nearly 7 percent with consequent um industry experienced strong gains of 7.3 percent in helium, and 9.7 percent in natural gasoline and LPG products. Total value of natural gas production increased as a result of greater production and greater unit price at the well-head, both factors being in part a reflection of increased energy demand from industry.

Helium extraction has been steadily increasing during the past three years as a result of the government conservation program and increasing demand from the private sector of industry. The increase in helium extraction can be attributed to four relatively new plants, one of which, Kansas Refined Helium Company's plant at Otis, went on stream in 1966. The Bureau of Mines plant at Otis for many years had been the only helium producer in Kansas. Phillips Petroleum Company's new Alamo plant near Elkhart is nearing completion and will probably go on stream in 1967.

Coal production was down somewhat in 1966, although the outlook appears to be brighter with costs for power generation from coal becoming more and more competitive with natural gas and with the advent of mine-mouth power plants to further improve the competitive position in favorable localities.

Gains in the non-metallics, and particularly in those mineral commodities vital to the construction industry — stone, sand and gravel, cement, gypsum, and volcanic ash — have through the last 20 or more years been significant though gradual. The long range characteristic of these raw materials is stability, but their importance to the general economic well-being of the industry cannot be over-emphasized.

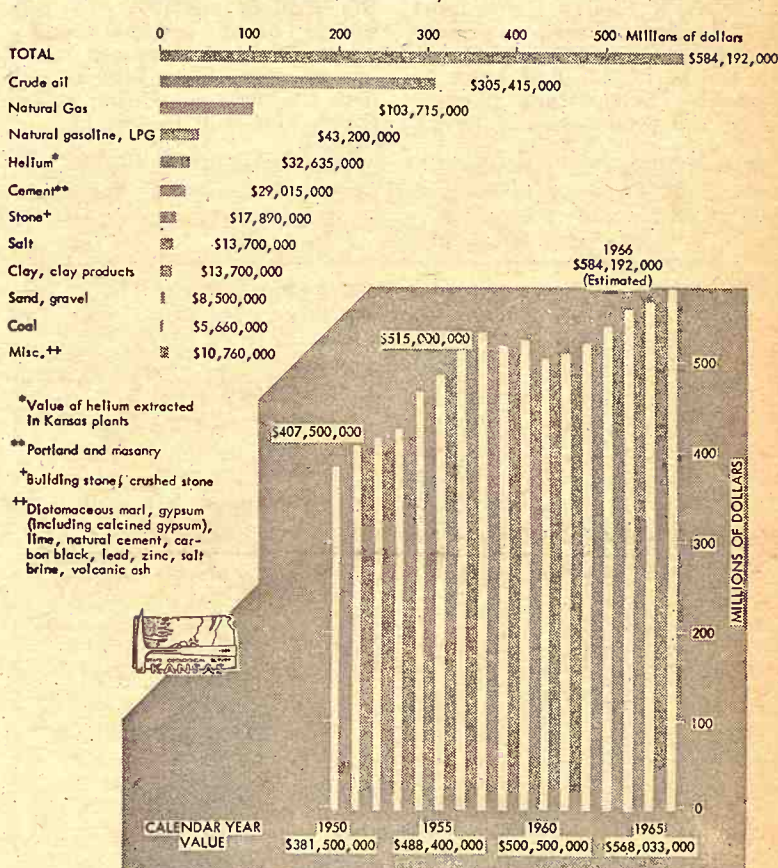

Important gains in 1966 were posted by clay and shale products, up nearly 20 percent from 1965, by salt with a 10.7 percent increase, and by cement with a 3.5 percent increase.

Considering the cutbacks in certain sectors of the construction industry in the last half of 1966 and to higher interest rates and tight money, it is significant that over-all production in the mineral industry continued to gain — indicating a definite measure of strength.

In summary, Dr. Frank C. Foley, State Geologist and Director of the Survey states: "The rather sizable increase in value of raw minerals in 1966, despite weaknesses in certain sectors of the economy, is good reason for optimism in the industry. The import of the mineral industry to the total economy cannot be overemphasized. It is supplying a continually greater part of the raw materials that clothe us, that help produce more food to feed us, that house us, and that even transport us. Thus, as we consider the dependency of the economic well-being of our community on the mineral industry, we become even more aware of the geological Survey's responsibilities in directing research to realize the greatest value from each unit of every mineral commodity and at the same time conserve a portion for future generations."

CORNFLAKE MACAROONS

2 egg whites
1 cup sugar
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
1/4 teaspoon almond extract
2 cups cornflakes
1/2 cup walnuts (black walnuts make it that much better)
Beat egg whites until stiff. Add sugar and salt gradually beating until meringue is stiff. Add extracts. Crush cornflakes lightly into cup; fold cornflakes and nuts into meringue. Place on well-greased cookie sheet. Bake in 325-degree oven until light brown and crisp, about 25 minutes. Watch closely because they burn quickly when about done.

The next recipe was sent by Mrs. John R. Nelson, R 2, Delphos:

Beat the egg. Add milk, sugar, salt and melted butter. Sift flour and baking powder together and add gradually. Fill muffin tins half full and bake in 350-degree oven. Make these ahead and then re-heat.

Mrs. William J. Peterson, Haddam: "We enjoy this dessert so much and it is quite simple to make. May substitute other flavors of pie filling for the cherry. It's delicious with raspberry, blueberry or strawberry."

Potatoes Top Frozen Vegetables

In the past ten years, frozen potato products have become the most important frozen vegetable item.

Use of potatoes in canned products has risen fifty percent and has doubled in the making of potato chips and shoestring potatoes.

Housewives have discovered many new potato products on supermarket shelves, ranging from potato puffs and flakes to French fries and pre-cooked baked potatoes ready for the oven in metal foil with butter added.

About one-third of the potato crop grown for food now goes to processors, compared to only fifteen percent ten years ago.

Pleasant Surprise On Wintry Day: Cherry Upside-down Cake

Surprise and please the family with a freshly baked dessert on a cold wintry day, or serve it in the late afternoon as a treat after outdoor play or chores. Cornstarch gives the extra special texture to the cake and to the sauce.

CHERRY UPSIDE-DOWN CAKE

¼ cup margarine
2 tablespoons sugar
1 1-pound can sour cherries drained with ¼ cup juice

reserved for sauce
1 cup minus 2 tablespoons sifted flour
2 tablespoons cornstarch
1 teaspoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ cup margarine
½ cup sugar
1 egg, well beaten
¼ teaspoon vanilla
¼ teaspoon almond extract
¼ cup milk
2 tablespoons sugar
1½ tablespoons cornstarch reserved cherry juice

Melt ¼ cup margarine in small saucepan. Add 2 tablespoons sugar, bring to boil, stirring until sugar is dissolved. Spread in bottom of one 8x2x2-inch baking pan. Cover with drained cherries. Set aside. Sift flour, 2 tablespoons cornstarch, baking powder and salt together. Blend margarine and sugar in mixing bowl. Add egg, blending until smooth. Add vanilla and almond extract. Stir in sifted flour mixture alternately with milk, beginning and ending with flour and mixing just until smooth after each addition. Pour into pan over cherries. Spread to cover evenly. Bake in 350-degree oven until cake tests done, about 40 minutes. Cool 15 minutes, then remove from pan. Mix 2 tablespoons sugar and 1½ tablespoons cornstarch in small saucepan. Gradually blend in reserved ¼ cup cherry juice. Stirring constantly, bring to boil and boil one minute. Pour over cake immediately. Serve warm or cool. Makes 6-8 servings.

Longer Wear From Brooms, Mops

You can get more wear out of your brooms and mops if you keep them off the floor by hanging them up. To do so, drill a hole in the top of the handles and insert metal shower curtain rings in the holes. Then the equipment can be hung on a nail or wall hook.

Attractive Hardboard Siding Requires Little Maintenance

Is your house worn and tired-looking? Is the exterior dull and outdated? Is it plagued with cracked boards and peeling paint?

The diagnosis may be poor siding.

Poor quality or improperly installed siding can do more than detract from the appearance of your house. It can cause heat loss in winter, force your air conditioner to overwork in summer and result in a number of maintenance problems.

Re-siding is a practical solution. With a modern building material like hardboard siding, the job is neither difficult nor expensive and will add to the good looks as well as the life of your house.

The advantage of exterior hardboard is that it is specially manufactured for outdoor use and will stand up to year-around weather without cracking, splitting or denting. Installation is easy because the siding is lightweight as well as hardy and can be worked with ordinary carpentry tools.

In most instances, hardboard siding can be installed right over the old siding. This provides extra insulation and saves the trouble and expense of removing old boards.

Wrap a child's modeling clay in aluminum foil and the clay will stay moist and smooth.

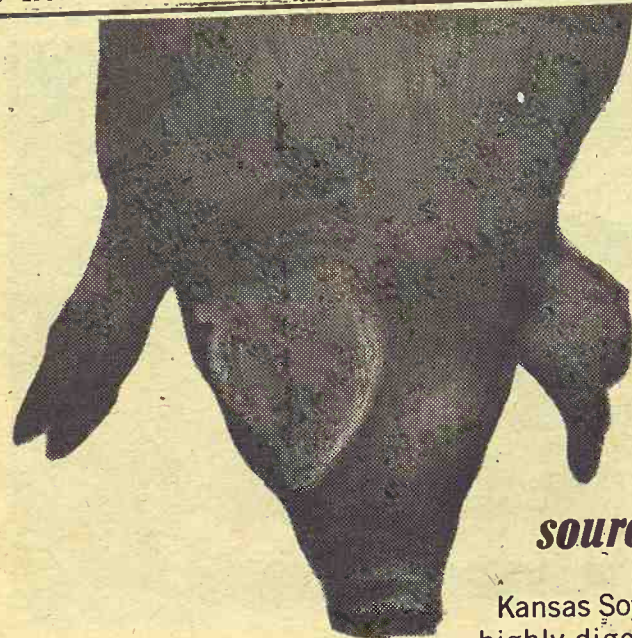

To Repair Coat

Should your little girl wear holes in the elbows of her coat, buy a small length of fabric in a contrasting color.

Sew a strip of the fabric wide enough to cover the holes around both sleeves. Then make her a tam to match.

Another asset of hardboard is its low-maintenance quality. Since it is an engineered wood product, the surface is free of knots or rough grain and takes paint or stain easily. It can be kept fresh and new-looking with an occasional hosing down. A wide choice of sidings makes it so easy to select the right one for your house, no matter what the architectural style.

Coyote Hunt

The catch of a coyote hunt near Marion recently produced only three coyotes. A shepherd dog belonging to Walt Hayen looks over the kill. Over 120 people went thru the lunch line in Hayen's implement shed during the hunt, which was held in heavy falling snow.

Effective Rainmaking An Aim By 1972

A vastly increased federal program aimed at achieving practical means by 1972 for pulling more rain from the atmosphere has been proposed by Secretary of the Interior Stewart L. Udall.

Udall made public a departmental report outlining recommendations for stepped-up research and development programs with a goal of increasing controlled yields of water from the atmosphere to help meet existing and anticipated future needs in water-short areas throughout the nation.

The report does not give a total dollar cost estimate and a spokesman said none is available. The outline of plans, however, indicates the cost could be well in excess of $100 million by 1975. Congress approved $3.75 million for the department's weather-modification program for the year ending next June 30.

In the outline, some 50 experimental projects are proposed by 1975. The annual cost would be expected to average about $350,000 each, with the first cost of $300,000. There would also be

January 17, 1967
10 Grass & Grain

some 20 pilot projects, with initial costs averaging $2 million each and continuing costs of $1.66 million a year.

Also, with no dollar-cost estimate, the outline proposes studies aimed at solving the many problems in integrating increased rainfall into environmental and natural needs, and studies of the legal questions which may arise.

"The report sets forth a program which would develop and refine techniques to advance precipitation modification efforts from experimental and pilot project stages to practical, operational levels — at least in some areas of the nation — by the year 1972," Udall said.

Accolade

A longtime Kansas cattleman, J. A. (Andy) Schoen of Lenora has been cited by a Denver livestock publication, The Record Stockman, as its "man of the year in livestock." Schoen has been a Hereford breeder for 50 years.

Only The Look Of This Window Expensive

It is the touch of lustrous brass hardware high above that makes this window so elegant, so exclusive, so exciting. But how nice that only the look is expensive — the price of such decorator-designed hardware is downright practical. And because anyone can afford these lavish-looking window accents, they've found a place in almost every type home.

For the formality above, the brass-finished anodized aluminum rod is echoed by sculptured rosette holdbacks. Something informal and Early American? The same rod used with plumes that seem to be antiqued brass. True romantics may prefer their accents beside a graceful swag and moderns can turn traverse treatments simply spectacular by side-scooping them into heavy gold-finished chains.

Youngsters Will Enjoy Wieners A La Fireplace

What youngster doesn't enjoy a hot dog feast? Most remember wieners cooked on sticks at the lake, but they can be grilled just as well in the fireplace as a wintertime treat. Small fry on school holidays will rate you "top dog" if you serve charcoal grilled wieners. Use one of the small grills designed for fireplace cooking. There are many with short legs and cooking rack tops. A fire of wood charcoal briquets provides safe and steady heat.

Each child should take turns barbecuing franks on skewers or long-handled forks. Hot dog rolls can be toasted over the coals or kept warm in foil. You'll want a tray of fixings—relish, mustard, catsup.

As accompaniments, provide crisp celery and carrot sticks. If French fries are called for, frozen ones tossed into a foil envelope will become crisp and crunchy over charcoal heat.

The hot dog roast is a fine idea, too, for a winter birthday party or for a scout meeting.

INDEPENDENT HYDRAULIC CONTROL of hitch and tail wheel

Now you can be assured of fast, positive penetration regardless of soil conditions. You get straight headlands and constant, even-depth plowing from fence-row to fence-row. Here's how McCormick International semi-mounted plows make this possible.
Lower front of plow. The front of the plow is lowered first with Fast-Hitch control. This pitches plow bottoms down so points bite in fast for quick, positive penetration.
Lower rear of plow. With independent hydraulic control on the tail wheel you simply flip a lever to lower rear of plow. This delayed action assures fast penetration and levels plow, fore-and-aft, at the proper working depth... gives straight headlands too!

YOU WON'T BE PLOWING TODAY
BUT NOW'S A GOOD TIME TO PLAN FOR IT

No Decision On Fair Premiums

Suggestions that the Kansas State Fair discontinue payment of fair premiums did not get past the talking stage as the State Board of Agriculture met as the Kansas State Fair Board last week.

The Fair Board reelected Robert Rawlins of Holton as its president with Andrew Olson, Dwight, vice president; and E. R. Patton, Scott City, treasurer.

Above are the new officers of the Kansas State Board of Agriculture: Paul Buchele, Sr., Cedar Vale, treasurer and next in line for vice president; A. T. Sanger, Morland, vice president; Robert Teagarden, LaCygne, president; and Roy Freeland, Topeka, reelected secretary.

Fair secretary Wallace White told the board that a plan is being studied which could lead to the establishment of a model feed lot on the fairgrounds. He said the feedlot would be used for dealer display of related equipment and feeds.

Irrigation Honor To John Ayers

A G&G farmer, John E. Ayers of Courtland, Republic county, was honored last week by the Four States Irrigation Council at Denver.

John Ayers

Ayers, president of the newly formed Kansas Irrigation and Reclamation Assn., received the council's Headgate Award for his work in the promotion and operation of the Kansas Bostwick Irrigation District.

Ayers has been a director of the Kansas Bostwick District since March 1956. He was president of the Kansas Irrigators Assn., and was elected president of the new irrigation-reclamation organization when the two groups merged last year.

Ayers, his wife Martha, and a son Bruce, own and operate a 760-acre grain and livestock farm in Jewell and Republic counties in North Central Kansas and carry on a hog and beef feeding operation.

The Ayers have another son, Dr. Rodney Ayers, a veterinarian.

FPC Says It Can't Regulate Electric Co-ops

The Federal Power Commission made its peace with rural electric cooperatives by deciding it doesn't have authority to regulate them after all.

The action ended a controversial test case involving three co-ops that dated back to 1963. All five commissioners generally concurred in the basic finding, but the opinion of the three-member majority specifically concluded that Congress never intended the commission to regulate cooperatives under the Federal Power Act.

"This... is reflected in the legislative history of the Federal Power Act, is confirmed by the legislative history of the Rural Electrification Act, is strengthened by the subsequent expressions of Congress and is ratified by this commission's legislative interpretation," the majority opinion stated.

The FPC action leaves the Agriculture Department's Rural Electrification Administration as the sole government agency supervising electric co-ops, which account for about 1% of the nation's generating capacity.

Had the commission reached an opposite conclusion, presumably it could have led to the FPC setting higher or lower rates for co-op power sales across state lines. Higher rates would benefit competing private utilities, which long have complained of what they termed an unfair competitive advantage enjoyed by co-ops and their ability to obtain federal loans at an interest rate of only 2% annually. The private-utility industry, however, chose not to intervene in the case.

The commission did agree unanimously that FPC jurisdiction over multistate generating and transmission cooperatives "would be in the public interest." It noted that its policies and those of the REA administrator might lead to "incipient conflicts," but that "these could be resolved by the Congress in the most appropriate manner." In a statement issued later, Chairman Lee C. White said the commission hopes to "develop some constructive recommendation" to Congress for specific legislation aimed at giving the FPC authority over cooperatives.

A spokesman for the National Rural Electric Cooperatives Association said he doubted that any FPC Congressional move would win much backing. The spokesman noted that a bill with the opposite intention — to exempt co-ops from FPC jurisdiction — passed the Senate in 1965. That measure was defeated in the House.

End For Allis?

The Allis Hotel in Wichita, the state's newest major city hotel for many years, may be in its last days. The Allis has been sold by the Boss Hotel Co., to Equitable Life Assurance of New York, effective this week. Equitable's intentions are not known, although there is some possibility the insurance company will remodel the structure with the intention of re-selling it. The Allis was built in 1930, boasting such modern conveniences as "radio, ceiling fans, circulating ice water, tub and shower bath."

Hogs To Vietnam

A shipment of hogs is destined for Vietnam from the George Burkholder farm northeast of Abilene. Burkholder and his son Gary made the donation. Inspecting the porkers are Don Harzman and Dan Vander Giesen of Downs, Burkholder and Oscar Latzke of Junction City.

The Burkholder hogs will be part of 100 pigs from Kansas to Vietnam as part of a project aimed at helping backward agricultural countries by giving farmers quality breeding stock.

On the Vietnam end of the project is Rev. Ben Finley, former Methodist pastor at several churches in the G&G area. Finley, a former ranch foreman and feed mill operator around Miltonvale, will distribute the pigs to farmers in Vietnam. Each farm must then return a pig from its first litter so that the project will keep going in that country.

Six to 10 boars will also be sent, and two pedigreed boars and two pedigreed sows, which will be used as the beginning of a breeding station in the Vietnamese province where Finley works.

The pigs are being brought at 100-pound size and being fed on the VanderGiesen farm near Downs until they reach 200 pounds. The gilts will be vaccinated and bred just before shipment by air, probably sometime in March.

Money for purchase and shipping is being contributed. VanderGiesen said he would like to send a list of 500 names along with the shipment showing the interest of Kansans in Finley's project.

Wheatgrowers To Return To Kansas

The National Association of Wheat Growers chose Kansas—probably Wichita—as site for the 1966 convention of the group and reelected officers to complete the 17th annual convention at Seattle last week.

Under the threat that some move is likely toward change of the Food and Agriculture Act of 1965 wheat men passed a resolution asking Congress to maintain the act in its same form through the 90th Congress.

The wheat growers Thursday passed resolutions calling for:

- Continuation of the certificate plan now in effect which assesses millers and processors 75 cents a bushel on all wheat for domestic consumption.
- Parity of $1.75 a bushel on last year's domestically consumed wheat.
- Action to be taken toward expanding Soviet bloc trade for U.S. wheat and flour.
- Repeal of the requirement that U.S. flag shipping be used.
- Extension of "fully competitive credit arrangements."

HOGS START 12 Noon

We had a very good, active sale last Saturday, with a higher market on both cattle and hogs. All classes were higher with the exception of cows which were generally down some. There were more consignors than we had previously had before which goes to prove that the Junction City Barn is growing to meet more competitive demands. There was lots of competition at the sale, and a very good sale is taking shape for this Saturday.

Close Gates On Milford Lake

JUNCTION CITY—Gates of Milford Dam on the nearby Republican River were to have been officially closed Monday for permanent impoundment of water, the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers announced last week.

The Corps has been conducting temporary storage of water since December. There was about 13 feet of water in the reservoir.

Conservation pool level will be 1,144.4 feet. It is hoped the level will be reached by July 4, tentative date for dedication ceremonies.

The level last Tuesday was 1,092.75 feet.

Heavy spring rains normally would fill the reservoir to conservation level. If further snow develops, the level could be reached with the spring thaw.

Hogs And Cattle

Hogs sell at 11:00 a.m. followed by cattle, which will sell as they are unloaded.

THURSDAY
Cattle Only

Selling starts at 11:00 a.m. will sell in the order they are loaded on the books.

We had two real good sales this week, selling 530 hogs and 2838 cattle. Our hog top was $20.80 Monday with most of these good hogs bringing $20.60 to $20.70. It was our biggest hog sale yet. The cattle market was 50¢ to $1.00 higher on Thursday than the previous week. We had a lot of good, big feeder cattle and these were a lot easier to sell, even at the higher prices.

The Cooperative Marketing association (CMA) is in a group of regional cooperatives which are constructing a $20 million export elevator near
New Orleans.
Construction has started on the new facility, which will have a capacity of 5 million buels. It will be located on the east bank of the Mississippi river about 10 miles north of
New Orleans.
CMA president Lud Strnad,
Lawrence, Mo., said the facility will be the newest and most efficient of its kind in the Gulf area, which is the fastest growing port for international export of wheat, soybeans, and other grains.
The elevator will be completed in about 18 months. Plans call for it to be able to handle the largest sea-going ships for loading and to off-load river barges in two-at-a-time lots.
Truck and truck facilities also are to be installed.
The move will put farm co-ops on the Missouri and Mississippi rivers directly in the main exporting business, operating as the Farmers Export Company, incorporated in Kansas about a year ago, includes, besides CMA, regional marketing associations based in Yuma, Colo.; Venango, Nebr.;
Columbia, Mo.; St. Paul, Minn.; Des Moines, Ia.; Chicago; and Jackson, Miss.
The company does not yet have a resident office. Kansas City is in contention for the headquarters, as are St. Louis and New Orleans.
The associations had been selling wheat and feed grains to other exporters but have lacked facilities to handle the trade directly.
With more than half of the U.S. wheat produced now being sold abroad and a fast-growing export trade in feed grains and soybeans, it became clear that to become bigger in the business meant actively engaging in the overseas trade, company officials explained.
Heavy movement of grain by barge on the Missouri and Mississippi rivers also was a contributing reason for forming an export company and building the terminal elevator to service ocean-going vessels.
The eight regional grain marketing associations already own 20 river barge loading stations and expect to own or lease a total of 24 by 1968. The Cooperative Marketing Association's Fairfax elevator and the Kansas City Terminal elevator owned by the Missouri Farmers Association and the Equity Union Grain Co. are examples.
