Chilly Weather, Rain

Slows G&G Area Harvest

With the first frost of the season recorded and rain moving through the Grass & Grain area late last week, corn and milo harvest was slowed to a standstill.

For Bill Stevens, St. Marys, "Harvest has hardly started." Clad in coveralls, Stevens figured he had around 400 acres of corn to cut. "The thing that slowed me down this year was getting the wheat planted." He sowed about 300 acres.

This corn was testing around 15.5 per cent moisture and Stevens estimated the yield on this field would be about 150 bushels per acre. Stevens has the help of his son, Gary, and Clayton Seyfert, St. Marys, on this harvest. If weather permits, some of this corn will wind up in a few of the 1,000 feeder pigs he handles each year.

Kansas Laying Groundwork For Water Pricing

Kansas is working to establish a pricing plan for water purchased from reservoirs by municipalities and industry.

Progress reports were presented at the Arkansas-White-Red Basins Inter-Agency Committee meeting in Wichita. Officials from federal and state agencies concerned with development of water and related land resources in Kansas, Oklahoma, Colorado, Arkansas, Missouri, Texas, New Mexico and Louisiana are attending the conference.

Keith S. Krause, executive director of Kansas Water Resource Board, said in an interview the 1958 Water Supply Act made it possible to incorporate in reservoirs water for future use by municipalities and industry.

In 1961 the legislature told the Corps of Engineers there would be a need for such water in five reservoirs — Milford, John Redmond, Perry, Council Grove and Elk City — and that it would be paid for, Krause said.

Otherwise, he said, as flood control projects they would have been dry, "except when the floods came."

The Kansas official said the water resources board has the authority to contract and sell water to municipalities and industry and is in the process of developing a pricing plan. He added the board will make a recommendation to the Legislature for its consideration next session.

Forrest Nelson, executive director of Oklahoma Water Resources Board, said water and related land resources are being inventoried to learn where the water surplus is and where the need for water is.

Reservoirs in the eastern part of the state, where the surplus water is, and an open ditch canal with pumping stations on it to move the water to west and west central parts of the state — where the need is — are being considered in the water resource plan for the next 50 years.

Nelson said he believes the water would be cheap enough for municipalities and utilities to purchase, but thought it would be too expensive for irrigators. Because a whole community benefits when productivity is increased, he said, the board may recommend the water for irrigation purposes subsidized.

The next step will be to decide where reservoirs are needed, location of the canal and construction priorities, Nelson said. The plan is to be completed and recommendations ready in two years.

Kansas Apple Production Drops

The Kansas apple crop this year, in common with that over all the United States, is down. The latest estimate of the crop made Oct. 1 by the Kansas Crop Reporting Service, was a production of 9 million pounds.

Production last year was 15 million pounds. Late freezes in Sedgwick and Reno counties and a continued decline of orchard acreages in Doniphan County are blamed for this year's drop in apple production.

Leading varieties of apples produced in Kansas are Jonathan, Red and Golden Delicious and Winesap.

The price this year is better than in the past two years, top quality fruit bringing $4 per bushel. Most of the production is sold through cooperatives and brokers. Last year the state's apple crop was valued at $675,000.

Kansas-grown apples are well accepted by the market and can compete quality-wise with any. However, low prices are forcing a growing number of orchards out of existence in northeastern Kansas.

Robert Boeh, a Wathena grower, sees little chance of a comeback for orchards that are being converted into grain farms. Apple-growing is a long-range business, he points out. It is 10 years from the time it is planted until an apple tree begins producing. Then, properly cared for, it will produce for 30 years.

National Apple Week has been designated for the period from Oct. 26 through Nov. 4.

Wheat State Delegates Not Willing To Brush Grain Deal Under The Carpet

Delegates to a five-state workshop, called to obtain facts on losses sustained by farmers in the U. S. wheat sale to Russia, have urged a U. S. Senate investigation of the transaction.

The delegates also asked the Justice Department to accelerate action requested in Congress for a federal grand jury probe of former federal employees now in executive positions in private companies.

And they urged that a method be found to repay farm producers who lost out in international wheat dealings benefiting international grain trading companies.

One delegate, Texas Agriculture Commissioner John White, said farmers "worked within the system and got taken while international grain companies got profits."

The fact that advance information on the wheat sale got out, he said, was "either a case of the most colossal mismanagement in the history of the United States Department of Agriculture or a serious breach of ethics."

White suggested reimbursing the farmers or forbidding Agriculture Department officials from going to work for companies selling to the government.

"Down in Texas, when we have a scandal, we have a grand jury investigation," White said. He encouraged wheat growers to support Texas Sen. Lloyd Bengsten Jr., who has recommended a jury probe.

Participants from Oklahoma, Colorado, Texas, Kansas and Nebraska took part in the five-state conference at the State Capitol.

Gov. David Hall, of Oklahoma, called the meeting. A Democrat, Hall has joined other critics of the sale in contending insiders and grain speculators made a big profit while farmers were kept uninformed.

Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz was invited to attend, but he turned the invitation down and charged Gov. Hall was merely playing politics by calling the conference.

Hall said the Russian purchase of 400 million bushels of wheat nearly equals the 1972 production of Kansas and Oklahoma farmers combined.

"Russia bought our wheat at $1.62 per bushel, which was in line with the now-defunct world market price, but did they buy because they needed a shot in the arm or was it another move to conquer the U.S. without firing a shot?" Hall asked.

Hall said it is common knowledge that two top Agriculture officials who helped negotiate the wheat sale have retired from their government jobs.

"Former assistant Secretary of Agriculture Clarence Palmby now works for Continental Grain Co. and lives in a newly acquired $100,000 apartment in New York City," Hall said.

He said Clifford Pulvermacher, former head of the export market services, remained in Washington as an employee of Bunge Corporation.

The governor acknowledged there was no evidence the two men did wrong, but said the circumstances look suspicious.

"Did they assist their new bosses in making undue profits at the expense of winter wheat farmers?" he asked.

Wheat, Range Report Shows Better Conditions

Wheat pasture feed supplies in the western two-thirds of Kansas on October 1 were much better than last year. Approximately 26 percent of the 1972 harvested wheat acreage in the western two-thirds of Kansas had sufficient volunteer growth to provide wheat pasture on October 1, more than twice that available last year.

About 6 percent of the available volunteer wheat acreage was being pastured on October 1. Approximately 3 percent of this fall's seeded wheat acreage had sufficient growth to be pastured on October 1, but less than 0.5 percent seeded wheat was being pastured that date.

On October 1 about 4 percent of fall seeded wheat in the three-state region of Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas had sufficient forage to support grazing.

The percent of seeded wheat actually being pastured on October 1 in the three-state area was less than 1 percent, compared with 1 1/2 percent on October 1 last year. Grazing prospects in the three-state area are generally good.

PASTURE RANGE CONDITION. Pasture and range conditions in Kansas on October 1 were reported as 89 percent of normal, best since 1965. This is substantially better than last year's 73 percent on October 1 and the 1961-70 average of 80 percent.

Fall rains have encouraged growth of pasture and range over most of the State. Only areas in south central and north central districts to 92 percent the north central and north districts.

Reported pasture and range condition for the 48 States on October 1, 1972 was 80 percent normal, the same as the years. This is 1 percentage below last month but 1 point above the 1961-70 average for the 48 States.

Reported pasture condition in West North Central States above last year and average only Missouri and Kansas were last month. Reported pasture condition in the East North Central States was good to excellent.

The South Central States reported condition below a year and most below last month. Reported condition of pasture range feed in the Western States ranged from 86 percent in Wyoming to 48 percent in California.

Explosion Rips Grain Elevator Doniphan Co.

WHITE CLOUD — More than 1,000 bushels of grain spilled from the White Cloud Grain Co. elevator Doniphan County last Tuesday as an "explosion" ripped through four grain storage tanks.

Roger Wolfe, general manager of the elevator, said that "we're calling an explosion until someone who can determine what it was that happened."

One employee was getting ready to go off duty at 11 p.m. in another part of the elevator and his wife was waiting in a car nearby when the accident occurred.

"Neither were injured," Wolfe said. "It could have been caused by Kansas reported fair to poor moisture conditions. September moisture should help promote grass growth during the weeks for winter pasture ranges."

By areas, reported pasture range feed condition ranged from 86 percent in the northwest to 92 percent in the north central and north districts.

Reported pasture and range condition for the 48 States on October 1, 1972 was 80 percent normal, the same as the years. This is 1 percentage below last month but 1 point above the 1961-70 average for the 48 States.

You'll get a lot more you'll like... first...in a Case Agri King.

Think big—as big as you want to be up to 165 turbo'd horses! We'll match your ambitions with a capacity-boosting brand of power, comfort and protection. And with features you won't find in any other tractor.

Big-muscled engines. For the ability to handle heavy field loads FAST, there's no substitute for the KO punch of big displacement Case engines. No compromises here... in every power class, we size our engines to the job.

Power Shift... in YOUR size tractor up to 165 pto hp. Super-smooth! 8 of 12 speeds in the primary tillage range. Keeps you moving fast at full capacity, non-stop.

Comfort and quiet... you get 'em in ALL Agri Kings. We introduced the rubber-mounted platform to cushion you from transmission noise, heat and vibration. We build our own cabs to give you more downright comfort. We built in 4-corner roll protection to resist front crushing or overhead collapse. And we made every Case Agri King quieter to give you a more peaceful, relaxed ride.

Think ahead to tomorrow. Ever had to take the cab or platform off of a tractor or tilt it to get at the transmission?

You need never remove the cab or platform of a Case 1270 or 1370. A new closed top transmission provides access to all parts from the sides and bottom. Say you need still more hydraulic capacity for some future application. With a 1270 or 1370 Agri King, you remove a transmission side plate and slip in a second 20 gpm pump... with up to 4 remote circuits and flow control for orbit motor speed. You're ready for tomorrow's most advanced multi-purpose implements with Case. An industry "first."

Explosion Rips ain Elevator Doniphan Co.

Grass & Grain

October 24, 1972

WHITE CLOUD — More than 100 bushels of grain spilled from White Cloud Grain Co. elevator in Doniphan County last Tuesday as an explosion ripped through four storage tanks.

Wolfe, general manager of the elevator, said that "we're calling an explosion until someone who can tell us about these things can tell us what it was that happened."

The employee was getting ready to go off duty at 11 p.m. in another part of the elevator and his wife was in a car nearby when the explosion occurred.

Neither were injured," Wolfe said. "It could have been caused by a spark within the storage area but would have caused the spark to be off the 'explosion' is unknown at this time."

The "explosion" was not followed by a fire and a structural engineer will determine today if the rest of the elevator is safe, Wolfe said.

The 15-bin elevator sits on the Missouri River bank and uses barges to transport the grain.

"We haven't entered the area at all today nor have we started clean-up operations yet. A barge was scheduled to load up the wheat stored in those tanks today," Wolfe said.

The grain was not scattered over a wide area fortunately, Wolfe said. "A high bank of dirt on the one side of the elevator has trapped most of the spilled wheat and soybeans."

The elevator company has operations in Reserve, Kan., and Fortescue, Mo., both about 15 miles from White Cloud.

"Those elevators are operating," Wolfe said.

Farm Accident Survey Shows Saturday Afternoon Dangerous Time

A wise farmer, anxious to maintain his health, would do well to stay off his tractor on summer Saturdays around 2 p.m., according to a new study of farm accidents made by the National Safety Council.

The farm accident survey, believed to be the first of its kind using a uniform reporting system for several states, practically paints a portrait of daily farm life and pinpoints potentially dangerous situations for the nation's 9.7 million farm residents, many of whom live dozens of miles from any medical assistance.

The survey, which was based on a 5 percent random sampling of farms in representative agricultural counties, covered an area of 2.5 million people on 676,000 farms in eight states—New York, Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Nebraska and Louisiana.

From its findings the council estimated that 134,000 farm persons were injured annually in those eight states. Of these injuries, perhaps 1,100 were fatal.

Thirty-two percent of the accidents involved falls of some kind, 28 percent involved victims being struck against or by an object, 5 percent were collisions, 3 percent burns, 2 percent from lifting objects, 1 percent and inhaling harmful fumes and 15 percent were from miscellaneous causes such as firearms.

About 62 percent of the accidents were work-related while 38 percent occurred in leisure time.

The council hopes, with the addition of new accident data from other states such as Illinois, West Virginia, Oregon and Missouri, to design a yardstick for measuring future improvement or declines in national farm safety. Such a comparison is now impossible because of the state's varying methods of reporting accidents.

The national council also hopes to develop more effective safety countermeasures the council estimates, annually cost the eight states already surveyed 1.53 million lost work-days, $15 million in medical expenses, $5.5 million in property damages and $2.3 million in lost wages.

For survey purposes an accident was defined as an injury that required professional medical care or cause at least a half-day's loss of normal activity.

"We have to complete all of our analyses," William Hanford, the council's agricultural safety engineer, said in an interview. "But we're beginning to think that agriculture is not quite as dangerous as some people have been led to believe. Still there is much room for improvement, especially for those injured."

About 90 percent of the injuries involved farm family members while 5 percent involved hired help. The rest were to salesmen or other visitors.

Those between the ages of five and 14 seemed to be the most accident prone, sustaining 27 percent of the injuries. But they were followed closely by their parents and other elders aged 45 to 64 (23 percent) and those aged 25 to 44 (22 percent).

Children under age 5 and adults over 64 suffered 5 percent of the injuries apiece while young adults, aged 15 to 24, had 18 percent.

June was the most dangerous month, with about one sixth of the reported accidents.

About two-thirds of the accidents occurred between 7 a.m. and 6 p.m., a typical farm work day. Mishaps reached peaks at 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. and Saturday was the most dangerous day of the week.

"By 10 a.m.," Hanford, a former farm boy himself, explained "a farmer has been at work for several hours and he may be somewhat fatigued and relax his attention a bit."

"At 2 p.m. he's had a big meal and may be a little drowsy. On Saturdays he is trying to wrap up a whole week's work, so he may be rushing or thinking about Saturday night's social events and his one day off."

Procedure Outlined On Winter Storage Of Lawn Mowers

After mowing the yard for the last time this fall, prepare the lawn mower for winter storage.

First, clean the mower. Remove the hood or blower housing from over the fly wheel. Remove dirt and trash from the cooling fins and on other mower parts, suggests Elwyn S. Holmes, Extension agricultural engineer at Kansas State University.

Clean dirt and oil from the engine and housing by using a grease removing chemical, kerosene or hot soapy water. Don't use gasoline for cleaning. Don't get water or cleaning agents inside the engine.

Next, change the crankcase oil. Drain the old oil through the drain plug or through the oil filler plug. When tilting the mower, keep the carburetor on the high side.

Also, if the mower has an oil bath air cleaner, remove it before tilting.

After draining, refill the crankcase with fresh oil of the type recommended in the operators' manual. This type is usually 30 weight detergent oil.

Some mowers use a petcock to drain the oil. If so, open the petcock and allow the oil to drain into a container. Squeeze out excess oil. Remove the petcock.

Remove the spark plug and add a small quantity of oil to the cylinder walls and piston. Replace the spark plug and plug wire off for safety.

Store in a dry enclosure. Be ready to go next spring.

Drain gasoline by removing the fuel line between the carburetor and the tank. Connect the gas tank to the engine and let it run until the tank is empty.

USDA To Release DES Test Results

The Agriculture Department, in a sudden switch, says it plans to release preliminary details of feedlot tests on the livestock growth hormone, DES, soon after it reports its findings to the Food and Drug Administration.

The chemical has been found to cause cancer in laboratory animals when fed in large doses.

Dr. E. R. Goode Jr., a veterinarian with the Agricultural Research Service of USDA, said he considers public disclosure of the tests unfortunate at this time.

Earlier, Goode told a reporter that the department did not plan to make public DES test results until all have been completed and reviewed, probably in January.

DES, or diethylstilbestrol, has been used by producers for nearly 30 years as an effective growth booster for livestock, particularly cattle being fattened for the consumer market.

Residues of DES have been showing up in cattle and sheep, prompting FDA to order a ban on use of the chemical in feedstuffs effective next Jan. 1.

USDA To Release DES Test Results

The Agriculture Department, in a hidden switch, says it plans to lease preliminary details of ediot tests on the livestock growth
rmone, DES, soon after it reports findings to the Food and Drug Administration.

The chemical has been found to use cancer in laboratory animals en fed in large doses.

Dr. E. R. Goode Jr., a terinarian with the Agricultural search Service of USDA, said he nsiders public disclosure of the ats unfortunate at this time.

Earlier, Goode told a reporter the partment did not plan to make blic DES test results until all had en completed and reviewed,
obably in January.

DES, or diethylstilbestrol, has en used by producers for nearly 20
ars as an effective growth booster livestock, particularly cattle
ing fattened for the consumer arket.

Residues of DES have been owing up in cattle and sheep ers, prompting FDA to order a n on use of the chemical in feed ions effective next Jan. 1.

The question of pellets implanted in animals, however, has been left open pending tests to determine whether DES used in that manner results in residues.

Goode said the tests, being conducted at USDA feedlots in Beltsville, Md., and Fargo, N. D., are expected to provide a full story on DES when all are completed.

Goode said a decision had been made in the department to report test results to FDA as soon as they are completed on the first two cattle slaughtered and then release the information to the public.

Goode declined to say whether outside pressures had forced USDA to alter its original plan.

A bill calling for a complete ban of DES, depending on implant tests, has passed the Senate and is in a House Commerce subcommittee.

American National Cattlemen's Association favored delaying announcement of the DES testing until it was completed.

If allowed to stand, the FDA order barring the chemical from feed rations could mean producers will turn more to implants, providing that method is declared safe.

The implant method is believed by some to be less efficient than including DES in feed. Small pellets of DES are implanted in the ears of animals which then absorb the chemical as they grow.

Heavy Corn Sales Will Help Push Current Prices Up

Heavy corn sales to Russia will help keep farmers' prices in the coming harvest season higher than predicted earlier, Agriculture Department specialists say.

One expert added that a new tentative assessment of Soviet corn purchases means the total Russian orders for U.S. wheat, corn and soybeans—previously put at slightly over $1 billion—now can be estimated as possibly reaching between $1.2 billion and $1.3 billion.

Most of the record-breaking Soviet purchases for delivery during the year beginning last month consisted of wheat. But sizable quantities of corn were also involved, and a new special "outlook" analysis by Agriculture Department economists said the corn sales now are "reported up to seven million metric tons." Department officials previously had been publicly estimating the corn sales at four to five million metric tons although there had been some trade hints they might be higher.

The special report said increased demand for corn had become apparent in both domestic and export markets in recent weeks, producing "unusually strong" pre-harvest prices. As a result, surplus stocks to be carried over into the 1972-73
marketing year beginning Oct. 1
now are smaller than predicted earlier, and economists have brightened the forecast of harvest-season corn prices which was published in their regular August feed grain outlook report.

The August report had said farm prices for corn might be "a few cents above" the $1.05 per bushel support price. The new special outlook report said both corn and grain sorghum prices this fall would be "considerably above" last year.

The new report said carryover stocks of corn at the opening of the 1972-73 season Oct. 1 may be 1.100 billion bushels in contrast to the 1.150 billion bushels estimated by the August report.

TOTALLY TESTED

The best long-haul truck we've ever built. That's what we wanted this all-new Transtar conventional to be. And as more new designs and features were being incorporated into it, we felt our creation had become the most totally desirable truck of its type.

But we had to know how others felt—the people who count. So we asked them, lots of them. In fact, we made the entire first run of Transtar conventionals part of the largest "pre-sale" customer test in history!

These Transtar 4200 and 4300 series trucks have been tested and proven in the lab, on the road, in every climate, with every type load, under every conceivable driving condition. And operated by every type of driver.

The response was overwhelming. From the big fleets to the owner-operators, drivers put their unqualified stamp of approval on this new Transtar series. Here is a truck that has been totally tested

Farmers Redeeming Wheat Loans At Higher Prices

An official of the state Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service here estimates three-fourths of the Kansas wheat farmers who took loans on their 1972 wheat with the Commodity Credit Corp. are redeeming those loans this fall to take advantage of higher wheat prices.

However, only about 10 per cent of Kansas' wheat farmers took CCC loans on their 1972 wheat, leaving 90 per cent of them unable to take advantage of the government-sponsored loan program to reclaim their wheat and sell it at the higher rate.

"I'd say many counties will have 75 to 80 per cent liquidation of those loans," said Kenneth L. Booz, ASCS handles the CCC loan program through its county offices.

"I'd definitely call those who took loans fortunate," Booz said in an interview. "That's the purpose of the loan program — to let them hold their grain, retain ownership and take advantage of increased prices."

U. S. grain sales to Russia and China have pushed the price of wheat past the $2-per-bushel level, yet many farmers sold their wheat before the price soared to that height.

Some farmers have expressed discontent that they could not take advantage of the higher prices, yet in Kansas there has been no evidence of any massive groundswell of resentment.

The grain sales have become a political issue in some quarters. Democratic presidential candidate George McGovern has charged that six giant grain companies appear to have been given advance information on the impending foreign grain sales and have been able to reap huge profits.

Yet, statewide Democratic candidates in Kansas have not thus far made much of an issue of the grain deals.

It does not appear enough Kansas wheat was placed under government loan for that to be a major factor in farmers seemingly not being overly disturbed by the grain sales.

Booz said, "There has been some dissatisfaction among farmers, but in Kansas, as a whole, I haven't heard a lot of complaints."

"My dad's a farmer and it's just part of the game. That's his attitude. You know farming is just about the biggest gamble there is."

While a new report, based on figures as of Sept. 30, will be forthcoming soon, Booz said the Aug. 31 report by the ASCS indicates a decided trend among Kansas wheat farmers who took CCC loans on their wheat to redeem those loans, reclaim their wheat and sell it at the higher prices.

Booz said 39.2 million bushels of Kansas' 309 million bushels of 1972 wheat was put under CCC loan by 12,900 state farmers, compared with 62.6 million bushels from Kansas' record 1971 wheat crop.

As of Aug. 31, Booz said, 17.5 million bushels had been redeemed by Kansas wheat farmers, and he estimated that the next report will show at least three-quarters of the wheat has been reclaimed for sale on the open market.

"There are a lot of redemptions being made," he said.

Booz believes a slightly better harvest-time price for wheat this year led more farmers to go ahead and sell their wheat than in 1971.

"The price at harvest time this year was a little higher than last year. That had a lot to do with it," he said.

The Commodity Credit Corp. loan price at harvest time this year averaged about $1.19 per bushel in Kansas, Booz said, while the cash price at that time was between $1.20 and $1.25 per bushel.

Then, on July 20, the cash price went above $1.30 a bushel. "If they hadn't sold their wheat by that time," Booz said, "probably a lot of it was sold then."

After July 20, the price continued to rise.

In order to obtain CCC loans on their wheat, farmers must have signed up for the federal wheat setaside program.

Those eligible for price support loans can take the loans on all or part of their crop — at the going price support level. They can store their grain on their own farms or in elevators. The CCC pays the farmer himself if the grain is stored on his farm, or pays the elevator storage cost.

The loans reach maturity on April 30 of the following year, then go into a resale or extension program if the farmer does not reclaim the wheat.

If, after the close of the year's extension, the farmer hasn't redeemed and the storage is not extended, the wheat becomes the government's property.

Of the 1971 Kansas wheat crop placed under government loans, Booz said, 5.3 million bushels remains stored today on farms and 10.7 million bushels is stored in elevators.

From the 1970 wheat crop in Kansas, there still are three million bushels stored on farms and 5.8

8

Grass & Grain

October 24, 1972

million bushels in warehouses. In addition, farm-stored still include 3.4 million bushels from the 1969 crop and 2.6 million from the 1968 crop. The crops have now been liquidated.

1972 Corn Crop Off Pace Slightly

The Agriculture Department for the U. S. corn crop to be 10 per cent higher than was forecast a month but still 5 per cent below year's record harvest.

The department's latest report, based on Oct. 1 counts, puts the corn harvest at 5.2 billion bushels, compared with 5.34 billion in 1971.

Average corn yields are expected to reach a record 92.2 bushels per acre, up from 86.8 in 1971 and 1970. The department said continued favorable moisture resulted in heavier-than-expected ears.

The cotton crop is projected a million bales, up 1 per cent from month's forecast and 31 per cent above the year-earlier 10.5 million bales. The estimated yield per acre was also up substantially, average 498 pounds from 438 in 1971.

The forecast is for 13.6 million bales of upland cotton and 1.6 million bales of American pima. Cottonseed production is estimated at 5.6 million tons, 32 per cent above last year.

The department said hot weather in the South caused bolls to open rapidly.

The latest wheat estimate total U. S. production at 1.56 billion bushels, down slightly from month's forecast and 5 per cent below 1971's record 1.64 billion bushels, up 2 per cent from Sept. 1 estimate and 13 per cent above 1971's 1.17 billion bushels.

all their wheat than in 1971. The price at harvest time this year was a little higher than last year. That had a lot to do with it," he said.

Commodity Credit Corp. loan at harvest time this year was about $1.19 per bushel in 1971, Booz said, while the cash price at that time was between $1.20 and $1.25 per bushel.

On July 20, the cash price was above $1.30 a bushel. "If they sold their wheat by that time," Booz said, "probably a lot of it would have been sold then."

By July 20, the price continued to rise.

Under the CCC loan program, wheat farmers must have a plan for the federal wheat program.

Eligible for price support can take the loans on all or part of their crop — at the going support level. They can store grain on their own farms or in elevators. The CCC pays the farmer if the grain is stored on his farm or pays the elevator storage fee.

Loans reach maturity on April 1 of the following year, then go into a revolving fund. If the farmer does not reclaim the wheat after the close of the year's crop, the farmer hasn't needed and the storage is not needed, the wheat becomes the government's property.

The 1971 Kansas wheat crop under government loans, said, 5.3 million bushels are stored today on farms and 11 million bushels is stored in elevators.

In the 1970 wheat crop in Kansas, there still are three million bushels stored on farms and 5.8 million bushels in elevators.

Mrs. William Clark Of Marysville Wins Prize

The winning recipe was sent by Mrs. William J. Clark, Marysville: CINNAMON-NUT BUNDT CAKE

- 1 package yellow cake mix
- 1 package vanilla instant pudding
- ¾ cup oil
- ¾ cup water
- 1 teaspoon butter extract
- 4 eggs
- 1 teaspoon vanilla

Combine: 2 tablespoons cinnamon, ¼ cup sugar, ½ cup nuts. Set aside. Using bundt pan, grease and flour well. Sprinkle some of the nut mixture in bottom of pan. Combine cake mix, pudding mix and oil. Next add water and mix well. Then add butter extract; mix. Next add each egg, one at a time, mixing them well. Then beat for six minutes at high speed. Add vanilla last, mixing in. Put cake batter into prepared bundt pan. Sprinkle nut mixture carefully around in a circle on top of batter—OR—layer the batter with cinnamon and nut mixture, starting with the batter and ending with the batter. Bake at 350 degrees for 50-55 minutes. Remove cake from oven when tested to doneness. Let cake cool in pan then turn out. Glaze while still warm.

GLAZE

- 3 tablespoons warm milk
- 1 tablespoon butter
- ½ teaspoon vanilla
- 1 cup powdered sugar

The following recipe is from Mrs. Bernell Philippi, Hanover, who writes, "Chickens are cheap and this is very good."

CHICKEN SUPREME

1 hen or 2 fryers cooked. Pick meat off bones then dice. Grind skin and keep separate.

6 cups toasted bread crumbs

(allow 2 slices bread per cup)

- 1 cup diced celery
- 1½ cups chicken broth
- 1 small onion, diced
- 1 can mushroom soup
- 2 eggs, slightly beaten
- 1½ cups milk
- 1½ teaspoons baking powder

Season with sage, approximately 1½ to 2 teaspoons (I use 1½), salt and pepper to taste. Put diced chicken in bottom of large baking dish (9x13-inch). Mix all ingredients except ground skin and chicken broth. Then place dressing on top of chicken, top with ground skin and then pour broth over all. Bake at 350 degrees for one hour. Can be made day before. I freeze part of it.

Skin Care Should Be Taught Early

It's never too early to begin good skin care. Training youngsters to wash properly, carefully and often is well worth any mother's effort. Cleanliness and basic grooming habits help prevent skin problems later.

Frequently when children begin to do their own washing, cleanliness standards go down. Foreheads under bangs are neglected, the neck and throat area may not come in contact with soap and too often soap stops short of the ears. It takes constant reminding to make children understand the importance of cleanliness habits. To encourage them, mothers should make sure adequate "tools" are available. Each family member should have his own washcloth and set of grooming aids.

Uneven Cakes

Cakes that rise higher on one side than on the other do so because the pans are set too close to the sides of the oven or because the batter was not spread evenly over the pans.

Get Close To Subject When Taking Pictures

Have you ever noticed, when watching people take pictures, how often the photographer is standing as far as ten or fifteen feet from his subject, sometimes farther? This is fine if he is taking a picture of a large object or a group of people. If he wants a closeup of his baby, he will lose them at distance.

If you are plagued by a problem, experiment with a camera. Check the manual to find the distance and then measure with a string or a stick to that length, measuring your distance in series of pictures. When you get used to estimating distance, measuring should be unnecessary.

Once you have in mind the size of a person's head and shoulders, you can get from three or four feet to a distance where the subject should be able to judge when you are close enough.

Having discovered the snapshots that reveal the subject will probably never go back to distant views with distinguishable faces. Seen in new proximity, the faces pictures will reveal a wide and variety of emotions.

Wrinkle-Remover Spray Boon To Travelers

Ideal to use on draperies at home or clothing when you travel, a wrinkle remover in an aerosol spray is available to help consumers keep apparel and draperies wrinkle-free.

The spray can make it an ideal portable "valet" for travelers, permitting them to freshen clothing that has been packed in suitcases. The compact size fits neatly into the glove compartment of a car or in a desk drawer at the office.

The spray removes wrinkles by temporarily softening the finish of the fabric so that drapery pleats may be shaped as desired. It helps to sharpen trouser creases and makes fabrics more manageable to give clothing a crisp and fresh-looking appearance after the spray has dried.

The spray is available at notions counters and in fashion-fabric and drapery-trimming departments.

Canvas Gloves Good For Dusting

Canvas gloves are excellent for dusting. They keep hands clean, get into corners and are easily washed.

Anti-Moth Tape

Make some mothproofing tape that will help keep the moths away from clothing hanging in the closet. Dust moth crystals onto the sticky side of cellophane tape and then hang these strips in the clothes closet.

Works On Scorch

Hydrogen peroxide helps remove scorch stains from garments. Apply immediately. It works especially well on woolens.

Good Year For Great Pumpkin

How many pies can be made from a 141 1/2-pound pumpkin?

Persons viewing the giant fall squash on display at Waters Hall on the campus at Kansas State University, Manhattan, probably try to guess while marvelling at its size.

The squash, which is round and orange, looks like a giant pumpkin. Its circumference is 81 inches, too large for a tape measure to go around it.

Dr. Charles V. Hall, professor of horticulture and forestry at KSU, said this squash is commonly called a pumpkin but technically is a Big Max fall squash.

The jack-o-lantern-type pumpkins having the species name of "pepo" are smaller than this fall squash, having the species name of "maxima." Both species have the genus name, Cucurbita, Hall said.

"From the standpoint of the housewife this 141-pound squash can make excellent pumpkin pie," Hall said. "It has finer texture than the jack-o-lantern-type pumpkin." He explained the fibers are stringy in the jack-o-lantern-type pumpkin.

The common canned pumpkin comes from the fall squash group, Hall explained. The greatest demand for the jack-o-lantern-type pumpkin, which is from the summer squash group, is for Halloween decorations, he added.

"If properly cured and handled the fall squash will keep all winter," Hall said. "This is why it was one of the favorite foods of the Indians. If one slices a piece off the fruit and if one stores it in a dry place at a fairly warm (above freezing) temperature, it will keep." The jack-o-lantern-type spoils quickly, he added.

This particular squash was exhibited at the Mid-America Fair in Topeka and the Kansas State Fair in Hutchinson. Hall was a judge at the Hutchinson fair, where he found the giant squash grown by Bill Caldwell of DeSoto.

"The squash was given to us after the fair for display and general interest because of its size," Hall said.

The squash is larger than average squashes of that species, Hall pointed out.

"This was not the largest displayed," Hall said. "He (Caldwell) exhibited fruit of a different variety that weighed 184 pounds, but it was not as attractive. It was a gray color — not orange as the 141-pound squash is."

Dr. Hall explained how fruits of a squash or pumpkin vine grow large: "Within any variety, the fewer fruits there are left on a vine the larger they are," Hall explained. "More water, more fertilizer, and favorable environmental conditions will give you large fruit."

Caldwell said he did three things to make his pumpkins grow to their enormous size.

"One of the main things I did was plant the seeds 25 feet apart crosswise and 10 - 12 feet apart lengthwise," he said. "It is important to space them apart because the vines grow to be 40 feet long."

"I side dressed them with a lot of fertilizer four times until I couldn't walk through the rows."

He also irrigated when the ground became dry. Caldwell did not cut fruits from the vines because they "seem to prune themselves," in his opinion.

"The pumpkins were larger this year than usual," Caldwell said. He usually has several pumpkins weighing more than 100 pounds. "I've never had so many large ones," he said.

"I've got one squash that weighs over 200 pounds. It's about all two guys can do to lift it."

Caldwell said he sells his "trophy size" pumpkins by the pound.

"Many persons buy our pumpkins as novelty items to set out in the front yard. Very few end up as pumpkin pie."

THE GREAT PUMPKIN

Too big around for the tape measure, finds Sharon Etzel, Kansas State University senior in journalism from Topeka (2510 Alexander Drive). This giant fall squash, which weighs 141 1/2 pounds and has a circumference of 81 inches, has been on display in Waters Hall on the KSU campus. The trophy squash was grown by Bill Caldwell of DeSoto and Exhibited by Caldwell at both the Mid-America Fair in Topeka and at the Kansas State Fair in Hutchinson.

Grain Sorghum Moisture Content Important Factor

Most Kansas grain sorghum being harvested this fall appears dry enough for safe storage, but some corn may be coming in pretty wet.

Elwyn S. Holmes, Extension agricultural engineer at Kansas State University, says grain sorghum with slightly more than 12 percent moisture content probably will need aeration only.

(Aeration is movement of a small volume of air through the grain at the rate of 1-10th cubic feet per minute per bushel.)

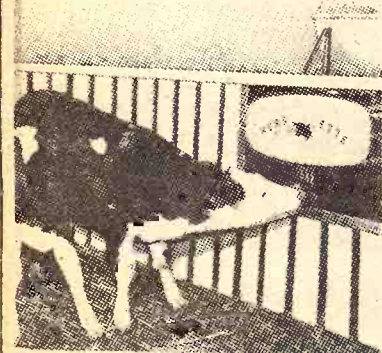

Holmes says elevators generally accept grain sorghum with 14 percent moisture content and corn with 15 percent moisture content without dockage. He points out this isn't an iron-clad rule.

If the moisture content of grain sorghum is as high as 15 or 16 percent, the grain will need drying for safe storage in addition to aeration.

If Kansas has an unusual amount of wet corn this year, drying and storage problems could arise because elevators might not be able to handle the whole crop.

More Kansas grain producers are going to on-farm drying facilities, says Holmes. Of course, those who haven't will have to rely on commercial elevators.

Accelerated Lambing To Profitable Sheep

Sheepmen must produce lamb crops in shorter time periods to remain profitable in the present economy, according to a sheep research scientist.

Dr. Larry A. Arehart, Livestock Project Leader at the Agricultural Experiment Station, Colby, said increasing production can be done in several ways: (1) increasing ovulation rate, (2) increasing weight of lambs without decreasing value, and (3) increasing frequency of lambing. Arehart said accomplishing these three in a program of accelerated lambing would help to increase the potential lamb produced on a schedule throughout the year.

A basic problem in the sheep industry has been a spasmodic lamb production. As a result, consumers are not able to purchase lamb readily at all times. Producers under an accelerated lambing program could help solve the problem by evening out the slaughter lambs available.

Accelerated lambing term means to maintain an even work load for the sheep operator, so labor cost is spread on an annual basis for operations of 1,000 head or more. An accelerated program would justify investments in building automated equipment, and facilities would be used continuously. Arehart said accelerated lambing should increase net income per head.

Accelerated Lambing Key to Profitable Sheep Business

Sheepmen must produce larger lamb crops in shorter time periods to remain profitable in the present economy, according to a leading sheep research scientist.

Dr. Larry A. Arehart, Livestock Project Leader at the Kansas Agricultural Experiment Station, Topeka, said increasing lamb production can be done in several ways. (1) increasing ovulations per ewe per year, (2) increasing the weight of lambs without decreasing value, and (3) increasing the frequency of lambing. Arehart said at accomplishing these three goals a program of accelerated lambing could help to increase the pounds of lamb produced on a scheduled basis throughout the year.

A basic problem in the sheep industry has been a spasmodic supply of lamb products. As a result, consumers are not able to purchase lamb readily at all times. Producing lambs under an accelerated program could help solve the problem by evening out the supply of lighter lambs available.

Accelerated lambing tends to maintain an even work load for the sheep operator, so labor could be scheduled on an annual basis for large operations of 1,000 head or more. An accelerated program would also justify investments in buildings and automated equipment, as the facilities would be used continually. Arehart said accelerated lambing could increase net income per ewe per year. In an economic comparison of once-a-year fall lambing ewes and ewes under an accelerated program, the profit per ewe per year rose over 58 per cent in a six year period for the accelerated group. Depreciation on ewes and equipment and interest on capital also favored the accelerated program.

Arehart noted that a review of accelerated lambing projects indicated increased lamb production of 25 to 40 per cent over once-a-year lambing.

Arehart emphasized that accelerated lambing involves superior management in breeding, nutrition and decision making. He suggested the following management practices for accelerated lambing programs.

Length of anestrus period should be considered. Dorsets, Ramboulllets, or crosses of the two have proven most successful in accelerated lambing but this varies with the area of the country and the breed of sheep. Attention should be given to using available feed sources (pasture, wheat pasture, stover, etc.) to the maximum, and to having lambs ready for market when prices are high. Here are suggestions to help reach these goals.

1. Divide flock in two groups and breed every 4 months. This schedule provides for lambing periods every 4 months.

2. Breeding period should last 32-34 days. Ewes that do not breed in given group should be moved to the following breeding group.

3. Cull ewes that miss two breeding periods.

4. Treat with exogenous hormones to increase the number of lambs born. (For information on hormone treatment, write to the Kansas Agricultural Experiment Station.)

Ewes should be fed to maintain condition during location. After breeding, maintenance rations are acceptable.

1. Ewes nursing twins should be separated from those nursing singles and fed 125 per cent of NRC recommendations for energy.

2. Wean lambs at 42 days of age; dry up ewes and rebreed.

3. Remove energy source from ewes the last three to seven days before weaning. Remove water for 24 hours the day of weaning.

A high concentrate ration (75 per cent concentrate — 25 per cent roughage) containing 17 per cent crude protein should be available to lambs in creep at all times. Ewes should be removed from lambs at weaning to reduce the stress on the lambs.

Grass & Grain

BULK DEHY

Dehydrated Alfalfa in Pellets With 15% Protein for All Livestock and Poultry —

BEEF CATTLE

A couple of cents worth of Dehy per day will give a nickel's worth of extra gain per day in fattening cattle rations. Even small amounts of Dehy in a ration resulted in increased gain and feed efficiency.

DAIRY CATTLE

Adding Dehy to your usual dairy mix helps keep production levels up longer, resulting in more milk and a healthier herd. Your cows will maintain their "calving condition" longer, too.

HOGS

Dehy supplies protein, vitamins and minerals needed by breeding animals. It will increase the vigor, health and livability of newborn pigs and increase the percentage of pigs weaned.

SHEEP

Feeding Dehy before and during the breeding season will improve breeding conditions, increase lamb growth, stimulate milk production, produce healthier and thriftier lambs.

To feed modern dehydrated alfalfa... put it where livestock can get it like any other feed. You'll reap all the benefits, the low price will insure profits from the start. Come or call — haul yours away today.

International Assessment Of Wheat Deal

Grass & Grain
October 24, 1972

October 24, 1972

Rod Turnbull
Kansas City Board of Trade
A global assessment of the world wheat situation is contained in a report from the International Wheat Council in London. The council is the administrative agency of the International Wheat Agreement.

Jean-Henri Parotte, executive secretary of the council, visited Kansas City a few weeks ago. It was his first visit here.

The council's review of wheat market conditions is similar to a U.S. Department of Agriculture Situation Report, except that its emphasis is not on the United States alone, but on countries around the world, both exporters and importers.

The report from London starts off with the comment that the massive purchases by the Union of Soviet Socialistic Republics constitute perhaps the most dramatic event in the world wheat market since the second World War.

"They represent," the report records, "much the largest quantity (about 18 million metric tons) ever purchased by any country in one year."

Eighteen million tons is about 661 million bushels, which is a lot more wheat than this country has sold to Russia. But, as the Council Report explains, the Russian purchases included about 11 million tons (over 400 million bushels) from the United States, 5 million tons from Australia, 500,000 tons from France, and 150,000 tons from Sweden.

Of the total of 18 million tons, the report indicates, 14 to 15 million will be consumed in Russia and the remainder is expected to be re-exported to cover the Soviet Union's commitments to Eastern European countries and Cuba.

The report refers to the seven main exporting countries as the United States, Canada, Argentine, Australia, European Economic Community, Spain and Sweden.

The council says that on the basis of information available early this fall, total world trade in wheat in the crop year 1972-73 likely will be between 62 million and 64 million tons, excluding European Economic Community (Common Market) intratrade. Even at the 62-million figure, world trade would be the highest in history, exceeding by half a million tons the previous record set in 1965-66 when India and Pakistan were having massive food problems. Sixty-two million tons would be about 3,290,000,000 bushels.

The closing stocks (carry-over) at the end of the respective 1972-73 crop years of the seven exporting countries tentatively are forecast at approximately 34 million tons. This would be the lowest level in the last 20 years.

When the size of the Soviet Union's purchases became apparent, the council report states, other importing countries entered the market in order to cover their requirements. This additional buying pressure strengthened the upward movement. One result has been the highest export prices in several years.

Wheat production this year, the council estimates, although it explains it is too early to make an accurate appraisal, may be in the neighborhood of 296 million tons, which would compare with 320 million tons last year. These figures do not include Mainland China. The Soviet Union accounts for nearly 20 million tons (740 million bushels) of the reduction in the world's total crop.

The council estimates Soviet production last year was 99.7 million tons, or about the same as it was the previous year. That would be about 3,600 million bushels. An 80-million ton crop this year would be around 2,900 million bushels. The Council's figures on Soviet production are much larger than those used by the U.S. Department of Agriculture. The USDA has been putting Soviet production peaks at about 2,900 million bushels a year. No explanation is given as to the difference in the USDA and the London estimates on the Russian production.

Normally, Russia produces far more wheat than any other country in the world. But it grows only moderate amounts of corn. The United States exceeds in total grain production. Wheat is used both for food and feed in Russia.

The International Wheat Council's report devotes considerable space of ocean freight rates, which is something seldom seen in the routing USDA situation analyses.

The council notes that ocean freight rates, until the Soviet Union embarked on its chartering program toward the end of July, actually tended to decline; rates from various origins to Antwerp, Rotterdam and Amsterdam were

But when the Soviet Union chartered ships to haul wheat and other grains for which contracted, freight prices rose. Ocean freight rates, incidentally, are not at fixed rates as are rail rates in the U.S. fluctuate with supply and demand.

U.S. Gulf rates to Antwerp, Rotterdam and Amsterdam, Council reports, had been 12 metric ton at the beginning of September. They dropped to $2.55, and when the Russian chartering developed, rose steadily to $3.19 by September 19.

The weakening in freight early in July, followed by the increases, indicates that the transportation industry also was by surprise by the scope of the Russian business.

Winter Storage Plan For Irrigation Equipment Listed

Winter storage of irrigation equipment is one of those chores that is easy to put off.

Yet, it's really not that difficult if carried out properly, say Extension irrigation engineers at Kansas State University.

Following this bit of advice will help preserve the operating condition of the equipment for the next season:

- Collect and assemble aluminum pipelines in a neat stack, protected by side posts.
 - Tie down the pipe so wind can't move it.
 - Check all gaskets, latches, gates, sprinkler heads, couplers, and pipe sections for damage and make note of needed repairs.
 - Maintain an air space between the soil surface and the first layer of pipe.
 - Remove and store gaskets in a bin or other container inside a dry area so they can't be damaged by rodents. Don't hang them on nails because they may lose their shape.
- Power units and pumps need to be winterized, point out the KSU engineers. Change oil, drain fuel from the tanks and engines, and drain all water that might freeze.
- Most underground pipelines will not freeze. If the irrigator has any doubt, he may want to drain the water.

Insurance Coverage For Senior Citizens Called Misleading

Fletcher Bell, state Commissioner of Insurance, is urging senior citizens to exercise caution in their purchase of health insurance coverage.

"The inquiries and complaints

recently received by my office indicate that some of our senior citizens have been misinformed or do not understand the terms and conditions of their health insurance contracts," Bell said. "While I have taken a number of steps designed to eliminate the use of misleading insurance advertisements and even though the accident and health insurance policies I have approved for use in this state will afford the insurance protection for which they are designed, some misinformation and misunderstandings still appear to be existent and Kansas consumers need to exercise the same degree of careful selectivity in buying health insurance that they use in making any major purchase.

Some people have been influenced by the use of envelopes in advertising campaigns which give the appearance of an Official U.S. Government mailing relating specifically to medicare, social security or similar governmental agencies," Bell continued, "and we are currently investigating instances where a few persons soliciting insurance have allegedly implied that they are representatives of the social security administration. Such misleading and deceptive practices are prohibited by Kansas law.

U.S. Spending Schedule Hits $176.1 Billion

The last scheduled appropriation bill of the year was sent to the House floor boosted to $176.1 billion the total money requests considered during the current session.

It would provide $3.56 billion in new appropriations for the current fiscal year for miscellaneous activities not financed in 16 previous bills.

The total is $8.9 million less than President Nixon requested.

Major allotments recommended by the Appropriations Committee include:

- $856.4 million for manpower training programs of the Labor Department.
- $893.4 million for the Social and Rehabilitation Service of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, and $408 million for the Office of Child Development in the same agency.
- $760.2 million for the Office of Economic Opportunity.
- $266.5 million to expedite recovery from damage caused by tropical storm Agnes and floods in South Dakota.
- $114.8 million for drug abuse treatment, prevention and law enforcement activities.
- $26.3 million to acquire four large aircraft for scientific programs in Antarctica.
- $12 million to repay a government guaranteed loan to the Erie-Lackawanna Railway which was defaulted last June.

The appropriations panel estimated that by the time Congress is finished with money bills, the total will be about $5 billion under White House requests. Since not all money provided in any year is for expenditure during that year, the net reduction in actual outlays was estimated at $1.5 billion.

However, the committee pointed out, other congressional action on non-appropriation measures, coupled with the money bills, will probably result in increased spending of about $6 billion.

Research Team Shows Migration Of Kansas Youth

Despite an overall gain in population during the 1960s, Kansas in that decade was drained of much of its wealth and talent through a large out-migration of its youth.

That revelation, along with the consequences of such a migration pattern for the future of Kansas, was discussed by Dr. Cornelia Flora and Dr. Jan Flora of the department of sociology and anthropology at Kansas State University.

The Floras, a husband-wife team doing research on community development and change in Kansas, with emphasis on population, called the out-migration of the state's productive-age youth—both male and female—a monumental movement, especially in the rural counties. To support that contention, they used Kansas population figures for various age groups during the 1960s.

They found, for example, that 18 Kansas counties in 1960 lost more than half of their males between ages 15 and 19 through out-migration and that during the decade only eight counties had a net in-migration of males between those ages. They said that counties having any in-migration for males or females in the productive-age groups were limited to the southwestern part of the state and to counties around metropolitan Wichita, Topeka, and Kansas City.

Interestingly, their research indicated that counties having a large proportion of students and military—Riley, Lyon, Douglas, Crawford, and Ellis—had an in-migration of people, all ages considered, but that in 1960 those counties had an out-migration of males aged 20 to 24 (those becoming 30 to 34 during the decade). Hence, the growth of those counties could not be called "real" growth.

In addition, according to the Floras, the Kansas young tend to stay in the state until they are educated. Then they leave. The two population experts pointed out that such movement not only results in a definite drain on the state's resources but is a bad omen for the survival of the state's educational institutions.

This is Kansas today, as the Floras see it: a preponderance of old people—a much higher proportion than for the United States as a whole or even for the north-central region. Also the school-age young outnumber the groups of productive age. With a pattern of out-migration for the productive-age young, the producers left in the state have an increased burden in supporting two age groups, the old and the young.

"Unless the trend of out-migration of Kansas educated, productive-age youth is reversed soon, the state is in trouble," the Floras said.

Subject: MONEY

Happy money... Pin money... Mad money... whatever you call it, most of us like to have a little extra source of income, something to stretch the budget or buy gifts with, or spend on special want's, plants, books, movies, or shoes. Everyone likes some extra money.

Perhaps you crochet a clever child's purse, make quilts, aprons, doll clothes, stuffed toys. Or decorate wreaths, dried flower arrangements, candles, wooden toys. Maybe sun-bonnets, knitted sweaters, cloth casserole caddys, pillowcases, tablecloths, jewelry, nut-shell animals, chair mats, wall hangings, braided rugs.

Why not... give your handcrafted creations a chance to appeal to more people. The day of the craftsman is coming back. People crave the individual touch... the mark of the human hand... the well-made lasting things. If there is something you make well and enjoy making, why not create 1 or 2, even 10 of whatever it is... and watch the happy money add up.

Customers look for exceptional quality of craftsmanship and appreciate it, and pay willingly for it when they find it. Some handmade quilts are exquisite, selling from $100 to $200. They are worth the money and they are bought.

If there's something you make well and enjoy making, why not try marketing it with US.

Let us market your "Homemade Specialties". Bring them in, we'll give you a numbered receipt naming the articles and showing prices, date, and your name. When the article is sold, you receive the money, minus a small commission.

We make this offer to individuals, groups, organizations, and even children. If you handcraft an item or several different creations, please telephone 537-7301 or come in and see us for more details, at Manhattan's newest and most unusual store.

Small Butcher Operation Closed By Federal Law

BIRD CITY—Jim Anderson said he plans to seek an injunction against the Meat and Poultry Inspection division of the Kansas State Board of Agriculture's enforcement of what he considers an overly-strict interpretation of the law, after the closing of his slaughter house.

Anderson plans to argue that federal regulations are not uniformly enforced from state to state. He says federal inspectors in Nebraska do not attempt to apply to small custom slaughtering operation laws aimed at giant packing plants while Kansas state inspectors do.

Anderson has been slaughtering and processing meat for 35 years but was ordered to stop early in October until he makes expensive improvements at his slaughter house.

"It would cost about $100,000 to meet their specifications," he said. "The money is available from the federal government, it's easy to get, but then you have to live with the debt."

Custom slaughtering operations in Goodland, Atwood, St. Francis and Norton have also been closed rather than comply with state-enforced regulations.

Kansas butchers are treated unfairly, Anderson said, because of the "equal to" doctrine used by Kansas inspectors. Under the doctrine, federal regulation of meat processing is kept to a minimum if state inspectors maintain a program "equal to" the federal government's.

Anderson suspects state officials are overzealous in their enforcement of regulations in an effort to keep federal inspectors out of the action.

The Nebraska inspection program is run by federal officials, who Anderson feels "have used more common sense" in treating small operators.

"The same law applies to me as applies to Cudahay and Swift," he said. "If we were selling the meat I'd agree I should be under the same regulations as Swift and Armour, but this is just a custom operation."

The farmers bring the animals to me, I kill and process them and the meat either goes into a rented locker or into a home freezer."

Anderson runs a food locker and a grocery store, but the operations are entirely separate, as required by law.

Anderson said farmers came as far as 60 and 70 miles to have animals slaughtered and now "they have to go 60 or 70 miles the other way." He said it was illegal for him or any other butcher to go to a farm to help a farmer cut meat.

Anderson says he suspects some grocery stores in the area are helping farmers illegally by processing both farm and game animals. "The grocery stores get

Western Co-op To Buy Great Western Sugar Co.

Western Producers Cooperative has announced signing of an agreement to purchase Great Western Sugar Co., the nation's largest processor of beet sugar, at a cost of about $90 million.

The cooperative, an organization of sugar beet growers, reached agreement Saturday with Great Western United Corp., owner of Great Western Sugar Co., at a meeting.

The sale, to take place in December, must be approved by members of the cooperative and stockholders of Great Western United.

The growers cooperative was formed in September 1971 and is headed by Robert R. Owen, former president of the sugar company. It has about 6,000 sugar beet grower members in Colorado, Kansas, Nebraska, Wyoming, Montana, Ohio and Michigan.

Exact amount to be paid will depend on closing date of the sale, but will be about $90 million, the cooperative and company said in a joint announcement.

The cooperative said it would finance the purchase by investments from growers and issuance of first mortgage notes, debentures and capital notes.

About $51.5 million will be paid by the cooperative to retire outstanding debt to Prudential Insurance, the growers said.

The remaining $51.5 million will include $36.5 million in cash and $15 million in capital notes.

Demonstration Set To Analyze Farm Harvest Losses

Kansans who attend the 1972 state cornhusking contest at Oakley Saturday (October 21) will get an extra treat beginning at 1:30 p.m. that day.

Three Extension agricultural engineers from Kansas State University will analyze (1) corn losses prior to combining, (2) losses from the cutter head, (3) losses through the shelling cylinder, and (4) tailing losses.

The demonstration will be conducted under optimum and off-optimum operating conditions.

Ross Nelson, Logan county Extension agricultural agent, says Oakley will turn back the pages of history in a revival of the cornhusking contest, which was a major event in the 1930s. Sponsoring the contest is the Oakley Chamber of Commerce. The public is invited to the day-long event.

Tests Show Hog Tattoo System Will Work

How do you tell one hog carcass from another? Tatoo it, according to the Agriculture Department.

The USDA reported its field trials indicate that a tatoo identification system for hogs will work. Officials have been seeking a way to identify hogs that are found to be diseased so that they can be traced to the farm of origin and steps taken to eliminate the disease.

In USDA trials, more than 52,000 hogs from four terminal markets — Kansas City, East St. Louis, St. Paul and Sioux Falls — were tattooed. The system uses six characters — three letters identifying the market and three numbers identifying the lot or consignment. The tatoo marker was applied to an ink pad and then slapped on the hog's shoulder. The tattoo remained clearly legible throughout the scalding and dehairing processes.

The tattoo identification was entered on the docket ticket, scale ticket, invoice or other documents retained by the marketing agency and recorded as the carcass went into the cooler. If inspection turned up tuberculosis lesions or if blood samples tested positive for brucellosis, as examples, the diseased hog could be traced to the farm of origin.

Officials stressed because of the rapid movement of animals through commercial marketing channels it is essential to locate and eradicate sources of infection as quickly as possible.

The tattoo system costs less than two cents a head.

FmHA Has Made 12,000 Loans In 26 Years

12,000 farm operation loans have been made in Kansas since Nov. 1, 1946, the date Farmers Home Administration was created by Congress, Morgan Williams, state director, announced.

Speaking to a Kansas Bankers Assn. meeting, attended by over 500 bank employees, Williams said, "Over $96 million has been loaned in the last 26 years for farming operations and less than 1.3 per cent, or approximately $1.2 million, has been written off as a loss to the federal government." He added.

Addressing bankers from 15 western Kansas Counties, Williams said FmHA is not a welfare agency. "We lend money and expect it to be repaid. Kansas farmers have an excellent repayment record and do not want a handout from the federal government," Williams said.

Kansas Beef Wins In Oklahoma, Texas State Fairs

The man who knows Kansas ...
Kansans
know.

A circuit breaker law is needed to break the property tax overload. A property tax circuit breaker is similar in principle to the circuit breaker that prevents electrical overloads in homes. When the property tax is excessive, a circuit breaker acts as a built in safety mechanism to protect the taxpayer from a tax overload. It would work this way:

The legislature would determine the maximum per cent of income a taxpayer could afford to pay on property taxes on his home. With a property tax circuit breaker, the taxpayer would pay the taxes only to that point of overload. Property taxes owed above that per cent of the taxpayer's income would be refunded by the state. A property tax circuit breaker will not increase any property taxes, but it will reduce property tax overloads for tens of thousands of homeowners.

The property tax circuit breaker has been recommended by President Nixon's Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations. Other states have pioneered the circuit breaker.

A property tax circuit breaker law — together with the property tax lid — would help prevent state and local governments from imposing extraordinary property tax burdens on homeowners. The time has come for a tax break for homeowners.

Dr. Bill Roy

"Hardest working Congressman we've ever had!"

Dr. Bill Roy Authored More Successful Legislation Than Any First-Term Congressman in the Nation!

Bills which Dr. Roy Co-Authored that became law include The National Cancer Act...Health Manpower Training Act...Nurse Training Act...Sickle Cell
Anemia Act...National Heart and Lung Act of '72...National Institute for the Aging...And Special Action Office for Drug Abuse Prevention. Bills which Dr.

Roy co-sponsored that have become law include The 18-Year-Old Vote...
Social Security Increase...Railroad
Retirement Benefit Increase...and Improvement of Access Roads for Perry Reservoir and Tuttle Creek Reservoir.

Dr. Roy's House Sub-Committee Held More Hours Of Hearings Than Any Other In Congress!

As a key member of the House Sub-Committee on Health and Environment,
Dr. Roy played a major role in nationwide hearings into needed legislation in health manpower training and drug abuse. (Chairman Paul Rogers called Dr. Roy's Health Maintenance Organization bill "a thorough and carefully drafted work providing the most comprehensive approach to health care before Congress," and he recognized Dr.

Roy's special role by holding Committee hearings in Topeka.

Dr. Roy's Office Handled More Than 40,000 Requests For Help In His District!

Even his opponent has commented favorably on Dr. Roy's service to the district. He cuts through the red tape of federal bureaucracy to get action. He fights for this district: for Amtrac jobs, to maintain weather radar, to get new roads for Tuttle Creek and Perry Reservoirs, to build a new federal office building, to obtain public housing, to bring medical personnel to this district.

Dr. Roy's Attendance Record Is In The Top 25% Of All Congressmen!

With a voting attendance record of more than 90%, Dr. Roy has maintained the traditionally high voting attendance record of the entire Kansas delegation (one of the best records in the nation).
In an effort to mislead voters, Dr. Roy's opponent accused him of failing to vote on the house bill for Drug Abuse Prevention. The fact is Dr. Roy not only voted for the bill, but CO-AUTHORED THE BILL! (The vote his opponent seized upon was a minor amendment).

Dr. Roy Has Worked Hardest To Keep In Touch With His District!

Bill Roy believes too many Congressmen go to Washington and forget the home folks. That is why he has been home 81 of 90 weekends...why he has worked to keep the voters of this district informed of his actions in Congress

...and why he has sought our opinions on national policies.

Hog Prices Currently Higher But Production Costs Rise Too

Although hogs are currently selling $7 to $8 above 1971 levels, the cost of raising 100 pounds of pork is up nearly $2 over last year's figures, with bulk of the rise coming from increased feed costs. Thus, profits to the pork producer are being parred somewhat, but returns in the hog feeding business are still very favorable.

Emmett Stevermer, extension swine specialist at Iowa State University, reports that it is costing $18.40 to $24.80 to raise 100 pounds of pork this year. This compares to last year's figures of $16.40 to $22.80 for raising the same quantity of pork. And, according to Stevermer, feed costs make up 55-65 percent of the 1972 total.

In 1972, it is taking $12-14 worth of feed to produce 100 pounds of pork, a rise of $2 from a year ago. It takes about 400 pounds of feed to produce 100 pounds of pork when you include all feed fed including that fed to the breeding stock.

With corn at $1.12 per bushel and soybean meal at $6 per hundredweight, feed ingredients costs range from 2.8 to 3.2 cents per pound. These costs are increased by additional costs of grinding, mixing, and feed handling equipment. Including these additional expenses, the average cost of a complete ground and mixed ration is about 3.5 cents per pound.

Facilities, depreciation, insurances, interest and taxes account for the second largest chunk of swine producing costs. They make up 10-16 percent of costs for producing 100 pounds of pork. Facilities require a high initial investment and annual depreciation, taxes interest and insurances contribute to a large total use cost.

It is not uncommon to encounter facility costs of $40 to $60 for each pig produced a year, or $400-800 per sow in the breeding herd. Labor costs compose 10-13 percent of production costs. Availability and cost of labor in the swine industry varies greatly, but costs average between $2-3 for raising 100 pounds of pork.

Sows in the breeding herd produce about 1.6 litters per sow a year. The average number if pigs marketed per litter will fall between 7.5 and 8.3. Veterinarian supplies and health service can be expected to run between $1-2 per pig. Power, fuel and electricity account for approximately $1 of the costs per hog. Miscellaneous costs run approximately $2 per hog. Included in this category are auto, truck, telephone and marketing costs.

Stevermer listed the following seven areas as those that cause modern pork producers the most difficulty: 1-Lactation failure and complications at farrowing. 2-Scours in baby pigs, nursery and finishing pigs. 3-Reduced conception rates and breeding problems. 4-Availability of well-trained personnel. 5-Availability of healthy breeding stock. 6-Transfer of ownership. 7-Control of odors and manure disposal.

A report prepared by a team of Agriculture Department specialists, and released recently by Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz, stated that consumers might buy more pork, and hog producers might make more money, if the industry adopted a federal grading system to identify highgrade pork cuts with labels like "prime" and "choice."

The report also said hog producers—about 900,000 in business today compared with about twice that many a decade ago—could make more money if they got together to control production. It conceded that most farmers currently do not want controls, but the marketing experts tentatively suggest a study by producers. To level and down in marketing produce wide swings in price, report said farmers might consider self-imposed plans.

Other proposals in the report included suggesting to eliminate trichinosis and diseases; to improve sales by steps including use of regional or national electronic negotiating equipment for slaughter hogs; and to auction selling by teletype.

Bull Test Session Nears Completion Auction Nov. 1

After 112 days of a 140-day test session, the Kansas Bull Test Station, the 175 animals have shown a combined average daily weight gain of 3.55 pounds. The high gainer was a Simmental bull, weighing 5.09 pounds per day gain. Dr. Keith Zoellner and Dr. Westmeyer, KSU Extension livestock specialists, are administrators of the central testing program.

They point out that the purpose of the testing is not to compare one breed with another, but to identify the high gainers in each breed.

"We want to help breeders to select their best bulls for sale," says Zoellner. "This has a direct effect on the beef industry in Kansas in that the cowman can purchase a proven high gainer for introduction into his herd."
Westmeyer indicates that the test station is an educational program aimed at increasing interest in bull testing in Kansas.
"We try to involve as many breeders as possible in the program," he says, "and we hope some of them may even do a little on-farm testing."

There have been 113 different herds represented in the three test sessions initiated since the station opened in early 1971. Breeders have come from more than half of Kansas' 105 counties, plus Missouri, Nebraska, Oklahoma, and Texas.

Lost Money Near Lawrence Still Looking For Owner

Law enforcement officers don't believe that ownership of the $15,000 to $20,000 cash found on a farm southwest of Lawrence recently has been clearly established.
Howard Docker, assistant director of the Kansas Bureau of Investigation, said several persons have claimed the money, but would have to press their claims in court.

Docker said the money apparently was not part of a payroll stolen recently from a Kansas City concrete company's truck in that city.
He said the Internal Revenue Service is expected to place a lien on the money.

Understanding Cow Important Step In Profitable Dairy Operation

A profitable Dairy operation begins with understanding the cow. Gentle treatment and calm surroundings are necessary for the important steps to be carried out.

Begin with observation of milking procedures. Washing and massaging the udder causes a stimulation of the nerve endings, which releases a hormone called oxytocin from the pituitary gland.

In the udder, oxytocin causes a contraction of the muscle tissue, thus expelling milk into larger ducts and cisterns. Response to oxytocin will begin 50 seconds after washing and massaging the udder and will last two to 10 minutes, depending on the quantity released.

Stimulation should begin a minute or two before the milking machine is attached. This is an extremely important interval.

If stimulation is performed five or ten minutes before the machine is attached, much of the effect of oxytocin will be lost.

Kansas State University research shows that a milking delay of eight minutes after stimulation decreases milk yield five per cent and increases machine time 14 per cent.

A milking machine should not be placed on a cow until her teats are plump and fully distended from the pressure of the milk.

Check your machines closely — you may find that changes are necessary to bring older installations to present day standards. Regular equipment checks and prompt repairs is a must in today's farm milking business.

Lactation treatment, dry period treatment, and dipping of teats after milking also are important factors in Mastitis control.

Since genetics set the ceiling for herd production, dairymen should use bulls with a high predicted difference of at least 400 pounds of milk.

If young bulls are used breed to many well selected young sires and use on only 20 per cent of the herd.

Every dairyman should keep a complete breeding record on all females in the herd from 13 months of age until they leave the herd.

A set of herd breeding records is essential for the efficient management of a dairy herd, regardless of size. Most decisions made by the dairyman and veterinarian will be based on daily records.

A cow which has not shown a heat by 30 to 35 days needs to be checked by a veterinarian, fed more grain and plenty of phosphorus and Vitamin D. All heat dates should be recorded by the cows' herd number on the barn breeding calendar or other sheets.

A normal heat cycle occurs every 17-23 days. The veterinarian and dairyman should be particularly interested in heat dates longer than 23 days and shorter than 16 days.

As a dairy herd grows larger, one person should be given the responsibility of seeing that all open cows in the herd are detected when in heat. A lot of breeding problems can be prevented with good management practices. Cornell University traced 75 per cent of the problems in a breeding herd to management faults. Work at Kansas State University backs this up.

Idaho University work indicates that checking cows for heat twice daily won't get the job done, 27 per cent of the cows will be missed.

Louisiana State research shows that two-thirds of missed heats can be caught and the cows bred on time by checking four times a day.

Kansas State University recommends that the person assigned the job of heat detection should be trained because his job is one of the most important single responsibilities on the dairy farm.

Training is necessary because heat detection is difficult when cows are eating, such as at a hay or silage feeder.

Construction has started on a 100 square foot building for the John Deere dealer for the area. The building would have a shop 100 feet and the front display would be 50 by 60 feet in size.

Florida Citrus Growers To Utilize Space Satellite

Florida citrus growers are planning a massive replanting program aided by space satellites to overcome a blight that some experts could wipe out half of Florida's million citrus trees in a decade. Some 25,000 acres of orange and grapefruit groves now stand barren as a result of the blight that experts say is getting worse every year.

We need to have a real citrus program," said Tom Osborne, Florida Citrus Mutual general manager, who called for a campaign to replace 90 percent of the strictures. He said spy-in-the-satellites would be used as an early warning system for fruit farmers. The disease, sometimes called "citrus greening," causes a decline in tree health, afflicts trees in all citrus producing areas of the state. Planting new trees without warning and without care, he said, is not even a way to fight the disease. "By the time you notice it, it's too late," said Osborne. "It's so obvious that you can't do anything about it."

official of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration will travel to the state next month to meet with growers' co-operative leaders. They will try to determine if the type satellites can best detect symptoms in young trees. They could use an infrared satellite already orbiting earth by instructing it to look for signals reflecting the presence of thinning leaves or symptoms, or they might use some future satellite technology. Florida will lose half its citrus production if the disease continues.

BIG FRAMED STEER

This Charolais steer won reserve champion honors for Brant Laue, Hanover, at the National Junior Livestock Show in Wichita.

Two Farm Cooperatives Plan Merger

Two organizations representing farmer owned cooperatives plan to merge on Jan. 1 in an effort to build more muscle for farm people in national affairs, spokesmen for the groups said.

The merger will involve the National Council of Farmer Cooperatives and the National Federation of Grain Cooperatives. The council currently represents 97 regional farm marketing and supply co-ops, and 32 state associations. The federation represents 19 regional grain marketing co-ops.

Under the arrangement, the council will include the grain federation as a division of its organization.

Prices Farmers Pay For Equipment Indicate More Shopping In Order

Agriculture Department figures "average" prices farmers pay for equipment indicate that a little shopping around might be in order. For example, a four-tined pitchfork in 1971 cost $6.88, as a national average, according to the Statistical Reporting Service in USDA. But the same fork actually is priced from an average high of in Nevada and California to an average low of $5.86 in Wisconsin. The Economic Research Service, using the statistical reports, has put together a list of typical farm production items to illustrate that reported average prices can vary greatly from state to state. Researchers used Kansas, in the center of the country, as a reference comparing prices. The list was based on price averages for June 1971, with the exception of a disk harrow theoretically bought in September last year. The Kansas prices, compared with the U.S. averages, included: a medium-sized combine 13½ ft. header $12,000 and $13,270 nationally; and a 70-79 horsepower tractor $8,300 to $8,040. The economists, reporting in the October issue of "Farm Index," have added a farm wagon—less box and tires—a pickup hay baler and an 8 ft. Tandem disk. In addition, the Kansas shopper bought 30 gallons of all-weather oil and five 35-lb pails of grease. Altogether, the items cost an average of $23,902 in Kansas last summer. Nationally, the shopping list would have been $24,820 or $918 more than in Kansas. A four-tined pitchfork, incidentally, cost $6.79 in Kansas or nine cents less than the national average. But suppose a Kansas farmer had unlimited time and travel expenses to shop around. He would have found the combine costing an average of $11,000 in Oklahoma and Michigan, and the tractor $7,100 in Oklahoma. The best buys also would have included: the disk, also in Oklahoma; the pickup baler, Wisconsin and South Dakota; the oil, North Dakota; and the grease, Kansas. On that basis, the entire list would have cost $21,000 or $2,842 less than the total Kansas prices and $3,760 less than the U.S. averages, according to the study. The point of the exercise is that when the USDA reports averages for anything on a national basis, you can expect widely ranging exceptions among states, and even from store to store. Or, as an old story among economists goes: If a farmer stands with one foot in a bucket of boiling water and the other in ice, on the average he is lukewarm. Most important to farmers is the steady increase in costs of production items, up for all of 1971 by 15 percent from 1967, a year used for comparisons. Further, those costs have continued to rise this year and by mid-September were 24 percent higher than the 1967 base, according to USDA. As a footnote, however, the department says prices farmers pay for machinery, feed and all other production items have risen less rapidly than some other important costs. Compared with the 15 percent rise from 1967 last year in prices of production items, the 1971 index for all commodities, services, interest taxes and labor states were up 20 percent. Broken down further, family living expenses for farmers—reflecting higher prices for all consumers—were up 19 percent last year from 1967.

Creative Carnival at Fort Riley
The Officers' Wives Club of Fort Riley will hold a creative carnival on Sunday, November 7, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. There will be handicrafts, white elephants, Christmas decorations, toys and games for children, a French Coffee House, General Store, baked goods, hot food and much more. You are all invited to spend a fun day at Fort Riley. The Carnival will be held at Marshall Army Air Field. Admission free.
Sunday, Nov. 5

Tax rates, however, showed the sharpest gains among the categories. Based on taxes paid per acre, the rates last year were 44 percent higher than in 1967. Interest rates on borrowed money also have risen. Translated into a per-acre basis, interest averaged 38 percent higher in 1971 than four years earlier.

Survey Shows Complaints By Mobil Home Owners

Trailer park dwellers, pinched by a serious space shortage created by the booming market in mobile homes, are complaining of rent gouging, dictatorial living regulations and exorbitant fees for moving into or out of a park.

About seven million people lived in mobile homes last year, and the industry expects 1.5 million more to join them by the end of this year.

The rapid growth, coupled with bans or restrictions on trailers in many parts of the country, has created a seller's market for parking space.

As a result, owners of mobile homes complain, rules have become so strict that many trailer parks now resemble what one described as "police states," with regulations prohibiting children, visitors and pets and requiring that radios and television sets be turned off by 10 p.m.

Other mobile-home dwellers have discovered that they cannot sell their homes and space in a trailer park without paying a large commission to the park operator.

Some park operators try to make the tenant pay up to $1,000 in "exit fees" when he tries to move his trailer to some other site. The operators say "exit fees" are necessary because of the cost of preparing trailer sites and of getting new tenants settled.

New tenants have complained, however, of being charged large "entrance fees" and rents of up to $100 a month for a tenth acre of space, $40 a month for electricity and $20 a month for water.

A series of interviews in all sections of the country showed a rising number of complaints from owners of mobile homes.

In states with a large concentration of mobile homes, only

Florida and Arizona seem to have made headway in providing regulations to protect tenants in trailer parks and in preventing overcrowding of trailer parks.

Attorney General Robert M. Quinn of Massachusetts, said that owners of mobile homes in his state were "often the most victimized residents of the commonwealth." The consumer protection division of his office has received an "avalanche" of complaints about treatment of mobile-home owners by trailer park operators.

Similar complaints were reported in New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania and California.

The situations have arisen because more mobile homes are being sold than there are places to park them. Despite their names, mobile homes as a rule are not very mobile and moving them is costly.

In most instances, it costs at least $200 to move a mobile home from one side of town to another, and the charge on haul 1,000 miles or more can be up to $1,600.

Last year, according to a spokesman for the Mobile Home Manufacturers Association, 496,570 of the prefabricated houses were manufactured and shipped to dealers. This year, the industry expects to produce more than 600,000.

"There are about three million mobile homes in use as dwellings now," the spokesman for the association said. "Last year, 43 per cent of the new housing in this country was of the mobile home type."

However, sites where the mobile homes could be connected to water, sewers and electricity have generally not kept pace with the demand in most parts of the country. Zoning restrictions against new trailer parks in many cities have given the existing parks virtual monopolies.

Near Detroit, one trailer park charged owners of mobile homes a $1,000 "exit fee." The right to be challenged in court, and to intervene if necessary to practice.

It has been common practice for park owners to require tenants use the same milkman, the laundry man and so on.

John Fletcher, 27, an employee who lives in the Trailer Park at Philadelphia, he is charged $25 a month for electricity, "nearly double what it should be." He added that tenants pay $40 more for Many trailer park operators not let owners of mobile homes into their park if there are already there.

Some of the three million of mobile homes in the United States are beginning to create associations to negotiate with park owners necessary, to demonstrate their

The Michigan Mobile Home Owners Association with members picketed a mobile-home dealer this year because he was not giving service on the home he had sold.

"After the picketing, the straightened up," said Myers, an automobile worker and president of the association.

Many of the tenants Bayview Mobile Home Estate in Anchorville, Mich., went on strike in July to try to force the operator to provide the improvements that had been promised — a swimming pool, sodded fences and playgrounds.

The swimming pool was built.

But the park operators refused. They sent eviction notices to striking tenants, and the issue is in court.

Indemnity Offered For Calves With Brucellosis Infected Mothers

The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) has changed its brucellosis regulations to permit the payment of indemnities for calves under 6 months of age when tests show the mothers to be infected with brucellosis.

Officials of USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (APHIS) indicate the change will permit a more equitable means of indemnifying owners of cows with calves when both are destroyed because of brucellosis.

APHIS officials noted also that calves under 6 months of age which are nursing on infected mothers can represent a potential source of further infection if left with the herd.

Brucellosis causes millions of dollars in losses annually for the Nation's livestock industry. In addition, human can contract brucellosis (undulant fever) from infected animals.

Dr. G. J. Fichtner, in charge of brucellosis eradication for APHIS, said, "Removal of these calves along with infected dams is part of the stepped-up drive to wipe out brucellosis from livestock by the end of 1975—a goal shared by participating state as well as the livestock industry."

The amendment to program regulations becomes effective immediately and is scheduled for publication in the Federal Register. Copies of the amendment (Part 51, Title 9, Code of Federal Regulations) can be obtained by writing to Veterinary Services, APHIS, USDA, Hyattsville, Md. 20782.

FARMERS UNION MEETING SET FOR NOVEMBER 14

A buffet supper has been scheduled for all members of the Clay County Farmers Union on Tuesday, November 14, at 8:00 p.m. The meeting will be held at the Jiffy Inn Cafe in Clay Center.

The 65th District Needs A Full-Time Representative To Work For:

- A shift to fairer taxes

Property taxes should not carry so much of the load of financing schools and services. The Governor's "circuit-breaker" plan to relieve property tax payers deserves support.
- Consumer Protection

We need stronger laws to protect us from unscrupulous advertisers and fly-by-night merchants.
- Quality Education

Good education is our best investment.

All this for $110,000 with $6000 earnest payment, then $20,000 Jan. 3, after that $4000 per year plus 7% interest. THIS IS ONE OF THOSE PLACES THAT YOU HEAR ABOUT ONCE IN A WHILE BUT NEVER GET A CHANCE TO BUY.

Improved 240 with rather new 2 bedroom modern home, full basement, a home that you will be proud of. Good substantial farm buildings, 140 cultivated, balance pasture, at $72,000 cash or contract. Will try to accommodate buyer.

FOR RENT

Three bedroom modern home on farm 1 1/2 miles from town on good road at $25 per month.

COLORADO

Level rural half section SE of Arriba, Colorado, all cultivated, a real good one. An investment that you will never regret. Only $24,000 to settle an estate of absentee owner. Very good tenant farms it.
2080 acres north of Arriba, Colorado, well improved, good cattle feeding setup, 760 cultivated, all under irrigation, two good wells, 2 additional wells approved, irrigation equipment goes with sale. At least 1500 acres tillable, lots of good creek bottom, 640 acres school lease grass. This is a beautiful set-up for a big operator. Price $435,000
We have several other good offerings. Improved 120 at $24,000, unimproved 80 at $14,000, improved 240 at $42,000, unimproved 160 at $20,000, and others.

Late milo harvest will give you a couple more weeks to look at property. We may not be able to leave until early part of November. So far in October we sold 160A east of Manhattan, 800 acres in eastern Colorado, 222 acres east of Randolph, 240 acres north of Belleville.

We need some help. We pray every day for the sun to shine so that the farmers can save this wonderful milo crop. You good people pray too, and maybe the farmers can get some help from the Lord. He put a good crop in our fields. Let's not forget to ask Him to help us get it out.

THIS IS A CLASSIFIED MACHINERY AD, OCT.

Probably won't arrive in may still be good a week on the 31st Oct. 900 Case tractor, fair to good condition. $995. Oswald silage loader on 6 cylinder Ford tractor real good unit $1775. 60' Gleaner Allis 14' combine over to your door, $1235. Would appear Vietnam is main issue of the big presidential election. Too bad this to be. Looks like by now we became committed to one's bad war, we should it and get out. I have been taught, when you bad deal you sell out & back new stock.

Should be pretty well knowledge that Watergate true affair. Even Martha John will agree to this. us farmers should know, we were sold out in the stream in Mr. Nixon's wheat deal accumulated by and his rich friends. McGovern is the best choice. At least he isn't vet corner by the rich do-gooders.

No Danger Losing Hog Cholera-Free Status In Kansas

MANHATTAN—With the threat of a hog cholera epidemic subsiding, state and federal authorities have reduced the quarantine area in north central Kansas to a small section of northern Osborne County.

They said Kansas is in no danger of losing its hog cholera-free status, which it obtained two years ago.

Dr. David O. Manley, veterinarian in charge of federal programs in Kansas, and Dr. Gerald Gurs, Kansas livestock commissioner, said the smaller quarantine area includes only a 10x12-mile section, bounded on the north by the Osborne-Smith county line, on the west by a county road seven miles west of Osborne, on the south 24 west of Osborne and a county road five miles east of Osborne, and on the north county road five miles west of Osborne.

The original quarantine included all of Osborne County, a portion of Smith County.

The disease was diagnosed and officials immediately moved swine within or out of the quarantine. Manley said the disease didn't spread beyond the farms.

Dr. Homer Caley, veterinarian at Kansas State University, said producers move swine within or out of the designated area except to slaughter, and then only by a permit from federal or state officials.

Feedlot Reports Indicate Fewer Cattle To Slaughter

A quarterly inventory of operations in 23 states points to fewer cattle moving to slaughter in winter than Agriculture Department officials had estimated.

The inventory and another report on livestock and meat situation also indicate prices of live at the farm and beef in markets may not drop much from current levels.

Oct. 1, the department said, and calves in feedlots totaled 1.8 million head, 10 percent less than a year earlier. However, it said, producers placed 2 fewer animals in fattening last summer than they did the July-September quarter.

High sales of cattle for export this fall—October through December—are expected to be up 7 percent from a year ago, the supply after Jan. 1 may taper off to about year-earlier levels, according to officials.

The inventory report on Oct. 1 feedlot numbers and the placement of new cattle on feed during the July-September quarter was based on more recent USDA information than economists earlier had used in writing a more general livestock and meat outlook report.

Officials earlier concluded that new feedlot placements would continue running ahead of year-earlier marks during the summer and early fall. Thus, they said, marketings of fed cattle would "moderately exceed" the year-earlier volume during the first half of 1973.

Commenting on an expected marketing bulge this fall, economists noted that last July 1 inventories showed feedlots included 18 percent more heavy cattle, animals which are usually sold before fall.

"But since summer marketings were not up nearly this much, a large number of the heavy cattle on feed July 1 apparently were kept on feed through the summer this year and will add to fall marketings," the report said.

Russians Catch On Quick

President Nixon said that the Soviet Union's Communist leaders "acted like capitalists" in negotiating a billion-dollar grain deal with the United States. He recounted a conversation with Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko.

When he told Gromyko of charges that "we got snookered by the Russians," Gromyko asked for a translation. "I said, 'Well, you acted like capitalists ... because you didn't tell us that your grain failure was as great as it was.'"

Gromyko's response was "Well,

October 24, 1972

what would you have done? We knew we had to buy a lot of wheat and we didn't want to push the price up as fast."

Champion Ram At Fair Out Of Moundridge Flock

Champion ram of the Hampshire breed in the outstanding sheep show of the Kansas State Fair is a selection from the Gillmore & Wedel flock of Moundridge. Seventeen breeders, all but two from Kansas, competed in the Hampshire classes.

LeRoy McCosh, Abilene, showed the champion ewe. Glen Armentrout, Norborne, Mo., had the reserve champion ram, while the reserve champion ewe was an entry of Richard Gillmore, Moundridge. McCosh was the big winner among the Hampshire exhibitors. In the open classes he took first in spring ram lambs, yearling ewes, fall ewe lambs, pen of three ram lambs, get-of-sire, and breeder's flock. McCosh also had three first places in special classes for Kansas breeders.

Richard Gillmore had best spring ewe lamb and best pen of three yearling ewes. Armentrout showed best pen of three ewes. Dan Jackson, Valley Center, had the best pair of lambs.

KSU AND COUNCIL GROVE BREEDERS WIN AT ROYAL

In the competition on a pen of three bulls Kansas State University and GN Ranch, Council Grove, won grand champion on a joint entry at the American Royal Livestock Show in Kansas City.
