THE SPIRIT OF KARSAS.

The Prohibition Printing Company. Topeka, - - Kansas. Sixty Cents a Year in Advance.

Or Two copies One Dollar,

The SPIRIT of KANSASaims to be a first class amily Journal, devoted to farm and home affairs, and to all industrial, social and moral interests that go to, make un the greater part of our Western Life. It will be found useful to those engaged, in any of the departments of rural labor. Its infacellany, original and selected, will be such as will interest and instruct. Its editorial page will treat of matters relating to our could, industrial, and political life, wherever and whenever the interests of the great working masses appear involved, and always from a broad, comprehensive, and independent standpoint. We shall endeavor to make a paper representing the great west. great west.

Our regular subscription price, for single subscribers will be 60 cents, or two copies $1.00. Clubs of five or more 50 cents each.

Kansas an Objective Point in Politi cal History

BY J. C. HEBBARD

NO. 6.

The Kansas State Temperance Union, which was incorporated October, 30, 1879, holds its annual meeting for 1885, at Topeka, on October 13th and 14th. Its Secretary hopes and confidently expects that it will be the largest temperance convention ever held in Kansas. It will be in close juxtaposition to the Ohio election, and the result of that contest may be known ere this corporate body adjourns.

THINGS PAST, THINGS PRESENT, AND THINGS TO COME.

At a meeting of the Union held at Topeka, on January 10, 1883, the following preamble and resolution was

WHEREAS Governor John P. St. John has been for six years President of the Kansas State Temperance Union and now to our regret, at his own earnest request, retires from that po-sition, to enter upon a wider field, RESOLVED him wherewer he may go to plead our cause, and while we regret the necessity which takes him from us as our President, we believe that the cause of temperance throughout the United States needs the services of our gal-lant leader and we consent for this reason only to his retirement from the chief office of our organization.

Five months before this meeting the Republican State Convention of Kansas had given Governor St. John 287 votes out of 365 for another nomination to the office for Governor, and the Republican party then adopted the following resolution:

RESOLVED. That we declare our selves unqualifiedly in favor of the prohibition of the manufacture and of the sale of intoxicating liquors as a beverage, and pledge ourselves to such additional legislation as shall secure the rigid enforcement of the constitutional provision upon this subject in all parts of the state.

The January, 1883, meeting of the "Union" adopted these among their resolutions:

RESOLVED, That we hereby pledge ourselves to vote for no man or party favoring licensed dramshops.

RESOLVED, That we are in favor of an amendment to the Constitution of the United States forever prohibiting the manufacturing, importation and sale of intoxicating drink as a bever-age and that our Senators and Representatives in Congress be earnestly requested to favor such an amend-

It appears that in 1882 or in 1883. the "Union," National Prohibition and Governor St. John were a harmonious trinity, yet on November 19, 1884, when the Governor "came to his own, his own received him not," for the "Union" in all their malice, rage and pride, sought to betray, forsake and deny him.

THE NATIONAL WOMEN'S CHRISTION TEM-

the liquor traffic for drink use, seek- to become one of the most morally Blaine-Gail Hamilton-in he essay ing by every available means to mould maligant and historically untruthful public opinion, they have faithfully female writers of this period. obeyed the divine injunction: "Come out from them and be ye separate." Whatever value the late candidate, James G. Blaine, may have experienced from the thrilling address of his personal, political and religions friend, as he emphatically pronounced the alliterative words: "We are opposed to the park of Rum, Roman-and to the park of Rum, Roman-and to the park of Rum, Roman-and to the park of the probability of the park of Rum, Roman-and to the park of the James G. Blaine, may have experiposed to the party of Rum, Romanism, and Rebellion," by reason of this utterance, Blaine and Burchard will for a long period stand prominent as happy reminiscences of the campaign of 1884.

But, as the N. W. C. T. U. have not the privilege of the elective franchise they have earnest words, sincere prayers, and intelligent action to mark their steadfast, watchful and progressive course. Under the alliterative watch-words: "Home, Humanity, Happiness and Heaven," they have gone forth, armed not with carnal weapons, but as partisans in the interest of patriotism and righteousness. They practically believe that, whatever touches politics, touches men, women and children; touches the finances and the morals of their homes, and affects the everlasting harvests, whether of bliss or woe!

Therefore, at their Ninth National Convention held at Louisville, Kentucky, in 1882, they solemnly pledged themselves, through a resolution framed and presented by Mrs. Judith Ellen Foster, the lawyer-religionist of Iowa, that they would aid and endorse that political party, by whatever name called that should give the best embodiment to prohibition politics.

At their Annual Convention Detroit, in 1883, without dissent, the traffic. same resolution was reaffirmed, and, at this time, Mrs. Foster as superintendent of Legislative work, in her report, said this.

"Every Woman ought to oppose by voice and influence the action of any party which ignores or refuses to submit this question to the vote of the people. She ought also to support the action of any party which commands its representatives thus to aid the people in the expression of their the people in the expression of their will. In some instances this will lead women contrary to their otherwise political preferences; but since we believe the prohibition of the liquor traffic to be of paramount importance, we are justified in so doing. Do not be afraid of the charge of partizanship. A grand manifesto for princi-ple will be of no avail, unless the livple will be of no avail, unless the living personality of human effort makes it effective. The grand chorus of matter on must go,' shall possess no coercive force, unless that unison merged into legislative, judicial and executive harmony, and guided by the baton of a political party, shall take up the strain, and still sing on, the saloon must go; the saloon shall go, and by our hand its power is broken. God forbid that any temperance woman should with doubt or discord weaken the strain, or cause the time to drag. the strain, or cause the time to drag.

12, 1883, in forecasting the Presidennow know which national party gives tial Campaign of 1884, she spoke substantially as follows:

and cannot be, and will not be nominated. He is the author of a public for national prohibition and home letter advocating that the national revenue from whiskey shall be divided among the States as a 'permanent revenue.' His name is James G. Blaine. His nomination cannot be

The national women's christion temperance union.

This organization, which was not formed for a mutual admiration society, nor yet for the mutual benefits of its memberhood, but for the laudable purpose of the absolute extirpation of the Month of the M

In her North American Review article, "Prohibition in Politics," Gail

She also enthusiastically says: "Mrs. Foster has done more for the cause of temperance than Miss Willard and all her partisans together."

It was mainly through the influence following thrilling message: of the N. W.C. T. U. that the Na-gave it no favor, for it most solemnly declared, "The Republicans of the United States in National Convention assembled renew their allegiance to the principles upon which they triumphed in six successive Presidentia electons," which, of course, em-bodied the "Raster resolution" of 1872, which declared positively against at restrictive legislation on the liquor

The N. W. C. T. U. at their eleventh annual convention at St. Louis, in October, 1884, following in their line of action of previous years, pledged declaration, reading like a gospel of peace, is as follows:

We refer to the history of ten years of moral suasion work as fully estab-lishing our claim to be called a nonpolitical society, but one which stead-ily follows the white banner of Pronibition wherever it may be displayed. We have, however, as individuals, al-ways allied ourselves in local and At Danbury, Conn., on December, ly protect our homes. And, as we tantially as follows:

There is one man who must not be, and cannot be and will not be nominated as a superstantially as follows:

principles for which our ten years' of labor has been expended, we will continue to aid the political organifor national prohibition and home protection

The Kansas National Prohibitionists thus endorse these workers:

We recognise the Woman's Chris-Blaine. His nomination cannot be brought about, for it is known by the politicians that he would be antagonized by the women and friends of the home.

We recognise the formula in Temperance Union—both state and national—as our true and natural allies in this grand movement for the protection of the homes of our the protection of the homes of our Vividly throwing her power of sar- country from the curse and blight of casm into the words "a permanent the dram shop and the liquor traffic. We feel that in their sympathies, prayers and efforts, we have a reserve power which, with God's blessing, energy of despair, for this grand mod-so replete with mis-statements, referring to these morally aggressive toilers, says:

Instead of setting down after elec-tion to that manifest destiny of quiet routine work which was prophesied, they are obliged to defend themselves against ihe charges of indignand Pro-hibitionists who did not wish tobe led over to the Democracy by any saint of the Old Testament or the New, MISS FRANCES E. WILLARD FAITHFUL TO

HER TRUST. The President of the N. W.C. T. U. from her home at Evanston, Illinois, on November 12, 1884, dispatched the

We have no denunciation for the tional Prohibition Convention called for May, was postponed to July, 23, 1884, for the organization vainly hoped that this dear "grand old party" in their National Convention in June hoped that this dear "grand old party" in their National Convention in June would recommend that a National Constitutional Amendment be submitted as follows:

Resolved, That this convention recommend the submission by Congress to the Legislatures of the States of a joint resolution proposing an amendment to the Constitution of the United States, providing for the providing for the prohibition of the traffic in alcoholic beverages, that the same may be adopted or rejected, according to the will of the people.

But the Republican Convention with Rindness, and all our difficulties and dangers with prayer. The Champion chief organ of the liquor traffic in the west declares in this week's editorial, that the one hundred and fifty thousand votes for St. John are the Sumter gun of a war that will conquer the liquor trade, unless it arouse itself for the tremendous struggle. Clearly, we have made a great advance, our enemus go straight on, maintain Prohibition clubs, the State and National mane may be adopted or rejected, according to the will of the people.

But the Republican Convention gave it no favor, for it most solemnly declared, "The Republicans of the United States in National Convention Might will be the substitute raise.

Mighty will be the pulpit's voice and that of the temperance press. Gail and Judith are indignant, but no "Prohibitionists" are, because the party polled some 150,000 votes.

TO BE CONTINUED.

FOR A GOOD MAN.

WANTED

To Lease, Rent, or Sell

21 Town Lots in Topeka, Kansas, on-the side track of the A. T. & S. F. R. R. A part of these lots front on Eighth Avenue, east. All have a front to the side track in good locality for manufacturing purposes of all kinds, or for storage. I will rent or lease one lot or all of them as the party may desire. Cr. 341 the same way. Better call and see me at 241 Kansas Avenue, Topeka, Kansas

Iwill also rent lease or so . . . y part or All of 320 Acres of Land situated thirteen miles from Topeka, and one fourth of a mile from the U. P. depot at Kingsville, and two and a half miles west of Silver Lake. This farm is all under cultivation, with good buildings and well watered. Will be sold in 5 or 10 acre tots for gardening purposes, and part on time.

Topeka, Kansas. C. DUNN.

ZIMMERMAN FRUIT & VEGETABLE Made of Galvanized Iron, 5 SIZES, 16,000 SOLD, Economical, Dura-ble and Fire Proof. Will pay for itself in 30 days use, out of sale of its own products. REE! Our Illustrated Cata-logue and Treatise. Address ZIMMERMAN M'F'G CO., BURLINGTON, IOWA AGENTS WANTED.

325 Gold - Silver Watches Will absolutely be Glven Away, without money or without price, to 325 actual subscribers of The Mirror of American Sparts.

THE CENTRAL MILL

North Topeka, Kas.

The Central Mill has been recently thoroughly remodeled by J. B. Billard, and is now prepared to supply straight grade Burr Flour, Patent Roller Plour, Meal Graham and Rye Flour of the best quality. All kinds of grain bought and sold.

CUSTOM WORK DONE

And satisfaction guaranteed. A new Corn Dump.

J. B. BILLARD

Kaufman & Thompson,

FANCY GRCERIES.

Flour and Produce;

No. 128 Kansas. Avenne,

TOPEKA, KANSAS.

Gregory's 10ct. Emporium

Corner of Sixth and Jackson Streets.

We keep constantly on hand a line of good that cannot be surpassed in quality at the Big Drive price of TEN CENTS EACH.

BUSINESS CARDS.

Ed. Buechner,

City Meat Market

meats, poultry, game, fish, etc. North Topeks. Dealer in choicest fresh 406 Kansas Avenue, Parker's Bakery Bread, pies, cakes, confectionery, and best place in town for a good lunch.

North Topeka

J. D. Pattison. Dealer in hardware, tinware, stoves, ranges, edge tools, etc.

North Topeka.

W. H. Moody, Shampooing and hair-cutting in first class style, North Top Barber,

JNO. SEMPRES. Blacksmith

Plows, Listers, Cultivators, Machinery and Emery Polishing.
North Topoka GEO DOWNING.

Photographer.

Gold, Reveled Edge Cabinet Photographs for $2,50 per doz. until further notice.
The German Language spoken.
197 Kansas Avenue, Over Barnums.

J C BLACK, House & Sign Painting Graining on all kinds of wood. Kalsomining and paper hanging. Glass setting a specialty 75 East Sixth Street

VSH BRAND

G. F. KIMBALL. EDITOR.

Entered in the Post Office in Topeka, for Cowardly, Crawfishing Capital. The Topeka Capital not only consents to favor the Ohio policy of regulation and taxation, but now it comes out as an apologist for those who neglect their official duty, by refusing to see that the saloons are closed.

The Capital and all the Republican prohibitionists of the state roundly abused Gov. Glick for two years because he did not close the saloons.

When Col. Martin was nominated he promisd to enforce the law.

When asked to declare in favor of prohibition he steadily refused, but he and his friends solemnly averred from a thousand platforms that he would enforce the law. From a thousand school houses this promise was made. It was even thundered from pulpits, and ministers of God grew petulant when some of us asked for

That the law should be enforced was the keynote of the whole cam-paign. The Capital led off with thit Gov. Glick had neglected to enforce the law. Gov. Martin would not neg lect to do it. Such was the burden of the whole argument why the Republican party should be successful.

Now the Capital comes out with long editorial in response to a letter from a Dodge City clergyman, complaining that the saloons of that city are allowed to run unmolested. If this article could be reproduced changing the name of Martin to Glick, there would not be found a word to indicate that it was not from the State Journal, in defence of Gov Glick, in reply to some Republican who demanded the enforcement of the Prohibitory law.

Here, then, is all the difference w can find between the Whiskey Democracy of Kansas in 1884, and Prohibition Republicanism of 1885, as represented in their official organs.

Does the Capital affirm that it is not going back on Prohibition? It lies if it does. It supports the Ohio platform, which Murat Halstead says is Anti-Prohibition

It applauds Martin for doing just what it condemned in Glick.

The Capital is a great temperanc fraud. It is a political crawfish. The Governor has no power to enforce the law and close the saloons of Dodge City without a specified complaint from the citizens of that place says the Capital. So it seems that what was sauce for the Democratic goose is not sauce for the Republican gander. Did not the Capital, and Griffin, and Jetmore, and all the rest, unce Gov. Glick because he did not enforce the law and close up the saloons? Could Glick do what Martin has no power to do? Did not the Capital and Col. Martin too, assure the Prohibitionists of Kansas, las year, that if they would elect Martin he would enforce the law? Why the only thing they really did promise was that the law should be enforced, in order, as they said with a flourish, that the full effects of prohibition may be realized. Now they are trying to crawfish out of it. We said then, and we repeat now, that John A. Martin's sympathy for prohibition is an arrant sham.

It would not help prohibition to elect the Republican party, because, as a party, it opposes prohibition, but it would lead to taxation and regulation and this is what is obtainable in We call upon Republicans to follow the flag and sustain it.-Cincinnati Commercial Gazette. Ju-

Honest temperance men need not go into spasms of fear because a few fence-riding papers try to endorse the present Ohio Republican platform.— McPherson Kansas Republican. Ju-

How many Republican papers in Kansas, oppose the action of the Ohio Republicans or of the Pennsylvania and Virginia Republicans? The To peka Capital endorses all of these.

Several members of the New Jersey legislature, members of the Republi can party, unite in declaring with the New York Tribune, Cincinnatti Gazette, &, that Prohibition shall not be made a part of Republican faith. How many grand Republicans are waiting to see this official declaration before uniting with the Prohibition party.

The "Issue" is a new Prohibition paper, just started in Nashville, Tennes The waters are stirred to their very depths. Almost every brings new evidence of this kind.

Who Will Help Us?

"Silver and gold have I none; but such as I have give I thee. Acts. 3:6." Having seen the article of A. M. Richardson, "Our State Organizer," under the heading of, Who Will Help us?" I thought perhaps a few lines from a very unpromising and discouring field might be acceptable to many

I hope I will not be misunderstood in these lines; I do not mean therefore no effort need be made; but I firmly believe that by proper effort there are many localities where considerable help may be secured in the way of funds; yet there are other localities where for the present at least, little or nothing can be expected; but or four Congressional districts. the point I would like to make, is, But the Committee are satisfied that that by continued and persistent effort, a great deal may be accomplished for our glorious cause in any locali your attention to our feeble efforts in

Last October we succeeded in organizing a club of only five members, and this little band have kept up their meetings-sometimes rather irregularly—until the present time, and our list of names has gradually increased up to thirty-seven-twentyseven of whom are voters, and we think it is not saying too much to say that it is a good working club now.

At our last meeting we appointed a committee of five to consider the propriety of putting a ticket into the field this fall, and to take steps looking toward the organization of clubs in other parts of the county; we have also during our existence as a club, succeeded in increasing the subscription to our party papers from only about four or five, to some twenty-

Now it is true that it was necess ry to put forth a considerable effort to bring this about, yet we have had no public speaking or demonstration of any kind, we have simply talked friendly to our neighbors, have loaned them our papers to read, and occasionally brought in a visitor to our meetings, and in this way our cause is growing in this vicinity and it will continue to grow until our cause is victorious.

Now, dear reader, whatever your position in life may be, you can help us along in our glorious work. True, you may not feel able to do much in a financial way; you may not feel capable of writing for our papers; you may think you cannot speak in public, you may not see your way clear to organize a club; you may not know of a single subscriber you could get to any of our papers; in a word, you may think you have absolutely no influence. and yet you may be able to help us a great deal-you can read, you can think, and you can talk; you have some acquaintance with whom you can talk and reason, it matters not whether it is a person of influence or not, it matters not whether it is a voter or not, or whether a lady or gentlemen, for all sincere persons are worth enlisting in a good cause, so get somebody to reading and thinking, and this in its train will enable you to get a new subscriber to some of our papers and prepare the way for speakers, clubs and conventions

Remember this is the very work that helps support our party papers, prepares the way for the support of our party speakers and organizers, and thus you can help to eventually lead our glorious young party to final victory. Please do not forget that our party papers and organizers will succeed just in porportion to the support we give them. Then let us all do the best we can for the cause we have espoused. It is well worthy any effort we may be able to put forth, so let us do all we can to elevate our glorious principles -for God, and Home, and Native

Land. Yours for victory, D. M. GILLESPIE, M. D. Salina, Kansas

Gov. St. John, who has been spendng a few days at his home in Olathe. fore October

Will the Capital please tell us why it is that Gov. Martin has no power to enforce the law, when for two years law is enforced, and that too with diit scolded like a fishwife because Gov. Glick did not do it Didn't John A. Martin declare a hundred times during the campaign that he would enforce the law? The Capital will answer.

Honest Prohibition will surely abolish the liquor traffic and eliminate the evil.

Who Will Help Us. We want to organize Kansas on Prohibition basis. We need not only a Prohibition Platform, but a thoroughly organized Party to stand on it, and work out its principles. We have the Platform, and the nucleus of a Party organization, but we have no adequate means for getting our principles before the people, and enlisting their active co-operation. We have no money to print and circulate that no funds can be raised, and that Prohibition documents, or to pay lecturers and organizers. We have labored hard, for six months, to enlist volunteer effort for this work. Something has been accomplished—clubs have been organized and conventions held in several counties, and in three the work can never be thoroughly and systemetically done, unless we can put speakers in the field, who ty and to prove this allow me to call shall make a regular canvass for this purpose.

At a meeting held in Topeka, May 20, the State Central Committee directed the Executive Committee to engage two or three Lecturers and Organizers, and put them in the field under the direction of the State Organizer, to raise funds, and push the work of organising Prohibition Clubs throughout the state.

Each county was asked to contribute as many dollars as it cast votes for St. John last fall, as a campaign fund. A list of the names of all persons contributing one dollar, or more, will be fowarded, with their address, to the State Organiser, and kept by him for the purpose of sending such documents and notices to them, as may be printed. All funds collected, will be placed in the hands of S. L. North, Esq., of Leavenworth Treasurer, to be disbursed under the direction of the Executive Committee.

We are having frequent calls for Prohibition Documents, our Platform of Principles, Plan of Organization &c, but we cannot print and mail them without funds. We must prove the depth and sincerity of our attachment to the Prohibition Cause and Party, by our willingness to give for its support.

Let there be a generous and prompt response on the part of all who mean to show their faith in Prohibition principles, by their works.

Do not wait for the personal solicitation of an agent, or lecturer, but let it be a spontaneous, free-will offering Your action will decide the question whether we shall push the work of organizing our State and carrying our principles to the polls. Let every one do something, give what you can, and We "mean business!" do it now! Do you?

In behalf of the State Committee. A. M. RICHARDSON. State Organizer. LAWRENCE, KANSAS.

Pomeroy wrote that he understood that St. John had written to the President in favor of his oppointment District Commissioner in view of the fact he had helped St. John, which made Cleveland's election possible But this was a mistake. St. John did no such thing. It was Gov. Martin, Judge Horton and the Kansas Republicans who did it.

Ellis H. Roberts, of the Utics Her ald, and former member of Congress from New York, declares the policy of of the Republican party must be that of regulation and license of the whiskey traffic, and recognizes this issue as the one to be met, and further recognizes the Prohibition party as a coming political power.

If Pomeroy helped St. John, and St. John helped Cleveland, it was all right for Judge John Martin a Democrat, to recomend Pomeroy's appoint ment. But for Gov. John A Martin. and other leading Republicans to do so was not consistent with the burning of St. John in effigy by Topeka Republicans.

Gov. St. John did not write a letter gave one day to the capital city, last to the President in favor of Pomerov week. He reports the enthusiasm all for District Commissioner, but Gov. over country as unabated. He left Martin and other Republican state of this week for the east, giving one ad- ficers did. Why don't the Capital dress in Illinois, and then going to howl? Pomeroy was the American New York and Ohio, not to return be nominee for President and declined in favor of St. John.

Did not Gov. Martin, in his message say it was his place to see that the rect reference to the prohibitory law. Will the Capital answer, and then then explain why it says it is not the Governor's place to do it?

At its present rate of crawfishing the Topeka Capital will be an open advocate of the whiskey traffic inside of ninety days. The Capital is Gov. Martin's Prohibition organ. GLEANINGS.

The total of sales of Louisa M. Al cott's works has passed 500,000. Robert Toombs is so nearly blind that he no longer writes his own let-

It is said that Bernhardt's two ambi tions are to grow fat and write good poetry. A ton of gum arabic is used weekly at the government envelope factory a

The assessed value of real estate and personal property of Pennsylvania is $1,683,468,016.

There has been an increase in unen There has been an increase in unemployed capital in New York City during the past year of $78,000,000. The individual deposits are $50,000,000 greater than they were a year ago. Springfield, Mass., will be 250 years old on May 25, 1886, according to the first recorded meeting of William Pynchon and his little band of settlers on the banks of the Connecticut River. The new stone which has lately become popular for jewelry purposes, and called the eye, or "spatmotic," proves to be merely petrified wood. It has a peculiar dull fire and shades very curiously. The mean of life varies in different countries from forty to forty-five. A generation from father to son is about thirty years; of men in general five-sixths die before seventy, and fifteen-sixteenths before eighty. After eighty it is rather endurance than enjoyment

Georges Ohnet, the playwriter, is only 37 years old. He was first a lawyer, then a journalist, finally a dramatist. When he had finished "Le Maitre de Forges" he was dissatisfied with it and threw the manuscript into the fire; but his wife, who acts as his secretary, rescued it. He is satisfied with it now

It is a singular historical fact that the elegant soft hat of the Spaniard has remained the same from the earliest period to the present day, while among all other civilized nations a transfor-mation in that article has taken place. Comfort in the wear seems to have given place at all times to fancy and the demands of fashion.

Dr. Alice B. Stockton writes in the People's Health Journal that unless a woman has tried loose clothing she can not conceive how much she gains for health and strength by a dress that gives perfect freedom to breathe. "Six-teen thicknesses of cloth," she says, "is no unusual number to be found tightly fastened about a lady's waist. Concerning this matter she once heard a Chinese woman exclaim: "Christian woman squeeze God's life."

Labouchere thinks that, on the whole the advantages of newspapers outweigh their disadvantages. Nevertheless, he says, the amount of trash which finds its way into them is depressing. It must always, however, be remembered that they are commerical undertakings and that they can no more pay without sensational news and sensational comments than a railroad engine can progress without fuel and a stoker to stoke it.

The ancients have left as souvenirs of their skill some wonderfully beautiful engraved sapphires. One represents a woman's figure enveloped in drapery. The stone is one of two tints, and the artist skillfully used the dark tint for the woman and the light for the drapery. This gem is among the crown jewels of Russia. The Strozzi cabinet at Rome contains an intaglio representing the profile of a young Hercules by Cweins, and in the Cabinet of France is an intaglio profile of the Emperor's

An amusing scene was witnessed last week in a picture gallery in Berlin. The Crown Prince and Princess were among the visitors, and the officials, in trying to make way for the royal party, pushed back a Pomeranian peasant, who was accompanied by his wife. The Crown Prince, noticing the couple beckoned them to approach, and familiarly clapped the husband on the back, saying: "How do you do, old fellow!" The peasant was so delighted at the salutation that he actually embraced his Highness before all the crowd. The Crown Prince was much amused at the incident, and talked with the old man good-naturedly for some time. Paper slippers are the latest form in which paper is introduced in new in-ventions. An Englishman has patentventions. An Englishman has patent ed a system of manufacturing slippers, sandals, and other covering for the feet out of paper. Paper pulp, or papier mache, is employed for the upper, which is molded to the desired form and size, and a sole is provided, made of paper or pasteboard, leatherboard, or other suitable paper material, which is united to the upper by means of ce-ment, glue or other adhesive material. The upper is creased, embossed or per-forated at the instep and sides, which renders them somewhat pliable, and prevents their cracking while in use. Senator Edmunds' new house on Massachusetts avenue is to be a manmassachusetts avenue is to be a man-sion after my own heart, writes Subrosa in the Washington Capital. It is a house wholly above ground. The first story contains little except the stairway, hall, kitchen, and household offices. The entrance from the street is through a low round central arch, and all the living rooms are above. There is a magnificent double bay window like a pavilion in the southwest corner. be a charming residence. The senator paid $2 a foot for the land, which he bought from Mr. Frelinghuysen, who paid only $1.50 for it a few weeks before.

"Ouida" calls attention to the horricruelty to animals practiced in ples. "Old horses," she says, oung kids and lambs; all dogs, cats, "young kids and lambs; all dogs, cats, and rats are all skinned alive, because the skin when removed from the living creature is considered more supple and sells for a somewhat higher price. Dogs are seized by legalized municipal dogstealers twice a day; are thrust pellmell into a court; kept two days without food, and then half stunned with a stick, and while living flayed from head to tail. Horses in the knackers yards there are allowed to drop from hunger as being less trouble than killing them, and when utterly exhausted are nailed on planks and flayed." creature is considered more supple and

Daniel W. Voorhees says that he ap peared once in a lawsuit in which one of the chief witnesses on the other side was the mother of Senator Booth, of California. In his free and easy way the Tall Sycamore asked harrassing questions, but not the slightest attention came from the woman. He became input tient and sanny. Finelly, he deimpatient and snappy. Finally he demanded, in his oratorical way, whether or not he was going to be answered at all. Then, with a smile she turned to the lawyer of her friends and asked with seeming innocence: "Must I real ly say anything to a man who looks like that?" She pointed to Voorhees and shuddered. The counsel advised her to be brave and answer the ques-tions of his Wabash friend. "Then I'll do it with my eyes shut," she said and 'the ques-

A wonderful fish is becoming numer-ous in Goose Lake. It is called by some the greenback fish, for it certainly is an inflationist. It has the power to fill much like a ball. Of evenings about sundown they may be seen praying on the surface of the water. They will swell up by taking in the air, and the wind will blow them over the lake. They reflect all the colors of the rainbow, and when sporting over the lake are a grand sight. A hunter several weeks ago saw a crane swallow one of these fish when in its normal condition, but before the crane had got more than fifty feet up above the lake the fish had taken in enough air to explode the crane, which, at the sound of a report like that of a gun, flew all to atoms and the fish came lightly down on the water, no worse off for the short ride in the air. The fish is a great curiosity, never having been found, I believe, in other waters .- an Francisco Exam

HOW A CIRCUS IS RUN. Each circus has its general. Talk to him of any city or town in the country. and the thought immediately occurs to him: "Ah, yes; a town of $2,000 ($5,000, $10,000 or $12,000, as the case may be) profit." He knows almost to a unit the population and how much can be made out of it. He knows also the character of the inhabitants, and he is acquainted with the railroad and other facilities for getting into the place. He maps out the route at the beginning of the season, of course, changing it as much as possible every year. There are twenty-four advance agents, who follow each other in regular rotation. They look after the ad vertising, the provender for the animals, the lodgings, and contracts of various kinds. These agents are provided with checks. They check on the show for the amount contracted for. The treasurer takes up and pays the checks so that when the show ar rives it has no trouble in any direction It has happened a few times that the firm has been swindled, but it never refuses to honor a check, "to keep up the credit of the circus." Not one of the great exchanges in New York is better posted as to the monetary condition of any town or city than the managers of the circus. The circus managers well know it is useless going into a place where there is much com-mercial depression. The characteristics of a town are studied before going into it. For instance, it is known when the miners of Pittsburg are paid off, and right on top of the event, comes the "show." It very rarely happens that a miscalculation is made, but if money is lost anywhere, that place is given a wide berth next sea-

The weather, too, is watched almost as carefully as it is by the signal-service bureau. The great aim of the circus is to strike fair weather every-When it is extremely cold the North, the circus is enjoying the warmth of the South and the dollars of the genial Southerners. When it becomes too hot in the South then it wends its way in the opposite direction. Moreover, it never attempts to compete with a cheaper entertainment. If Barnum is billed for Maryville, Miss., and a twenty-five cent show ahead of it the big circus passes on. The general knows, too, how long it is profitable to stay in a town.

The army of employes is divided into five divisions—the performers, the ring attendants, the stable and menagerie attendants, the trainmen, (in circus parlance "razor-backs"), and the canvasmen. The canvasmen number two hundred out of seven hundred -a large number, but not too many to cope with the huge tent which is put up in the country. On the trains there is a special place for everything and everybody. Indeed the trainmen could load the train almost blindfolded, the arrangements are so precise and have been so long in smooth-work ing order. The canvasmen are the first to be packed off. They touch nothing until the teamsters have arrived on the ground with the canvas, and then, when the tent is up, they sit down and just watch the others 'do-ing their bit.' So it is with the trainmen when they have loaded or unloaded the cars they will not put a hand to anything else, and perhaps if they did they would only be in the way. Every employe has a special duty to perform and does not consider himself engaged for anything outside of that. One of the heaviest items in the ex-huge colored posters seen everywhere in the vicinity of the show are costly. The advertising bill in the season averages daily, $2,700. Yet the expenditure results in a good retarn. The salaries vary all the way from $10 to $500 a week. What a circus performant the income and the first income. er with an income equal to five times that of the secretary of state? "Ah, but recollect," says the circus man, "that this does not last all the year round. Recollect, too, the risks that are run. If a limb is broken then the occupation of the performer is gone, and if he or she has not saved enough for a rainy day, poverty is the result. These high priced performers also have to engage others to assist them, and sometimes the engagement of quite a family. The stars provide their own costumes and apparatus."—Tid Bits.

The telescopic stars, unseen by the The telescopic stars, discountry unaided eye on account of their remot ness, are classified as high as the four teenth magnitude, and their number reckoned as high as 20,000,000.

The Youth Who Knew It All.

The youth had been patronizing the young ladies by vouchsafing choice bits of superior wisdom, according to the statement of the Boston Transcript. tatement of the Boston Transcript. You remember what Cæsar said when he was about to cross the Rubicon?" said the old gentleman. "Certainly," replied the youth, with a careless glance of pity at the young ladies, who, of course, could not be expected to know everything that a man knows. "And of course you are equally familiar with the life of Peter the Hermit?" continthe life of Peter the Hermitr' continued the old gentleman. "I should say that I was," replied the young man, quickly, but not without a slightly troubled look in his face. "And Semiramide," the old gentleman went on. "you recall his famous saying?" "Yes," gasped the youth, wishing that the old gentleman might be struck with apo-plexy as soon as convenient. "I am glad you remember it," said the old gentleman, with animation, "for clean forgotten it. Now, if you'll kind enough, and no doubt the ladies would be glad to hear it also." The youth by this time wished that the old gentleman had died in infancy, and as for the young ladies, he couldn't help thinking how much better'it would have been had they never been born. "By the way," pursued the old gentleman, seeing the youth hesitate, "who was Semiramide? He had something to do with the last Franco-Prussian war hadn't he?" "Yes, oh yes," replied the youth, catching at the bait with eageryouth, catching at the balt with eagerness, while something like a giggle was passed around among the young ladies, as if it were a paper of caramels. "And Peter the Hermit was instrumental in bringing about a peace at the close of that struggle?" "Yes." The youth said this very faintly. "Cæsar held out, and marched his shattered force into the Wallachian principality?" "That's the way I remember it." re-"That's the way I remember it." plied the youth, with a desperation born of despair. Then the old gentle-man looked at the young ladies, who were engaged in stuffing their mouths full of pocket-handkerchief, and then he looked at the youth and exclaimed: "Ah, sir, how I envy you your store of knowledge! What a comfort you must be to your parents!" Then the youth got up and went out into the cheerless night, and cursed the old gentleman behind his back. And the young ladies laughed in unison, but the noise of their laughter was overborne by the merry peals of the old gentleman

A Manitoba Monster.

One day recently, while fishing from the bank of the river, John Bryan observed a very strange monster swimming in the river some distance below him. Mr. Bryan's attention was first attracted to the point where the mon-ster was disporting himself by a sound which resembled escaping steam, and he expected to see a steamboat coming up the river. Imagine his surprise however, to see swimming about what he at first thought was a cow, but which on closer inspection proved to be a large monster, the like of which he had never seen or heard of before. The beast swam from one side of the river to the other at a terrific rate, throwing up the water like a steamboat. Then it swam down stream a short distance, then up again, and then disappeared beneath the surface of the water, leaving a vortex of water hehind like a whirlpool. Bryan says the animal looked to be larger than a horse, and had a head something like a hip-popotamus. It was of a pale yellowish color under the neck and dark brown on the back, and showed considerable of its body above the water.—Emerson's International.

Experiments made in the Paris hospitals show that sulphide of carbon is the best agent to restore the normal action of the bowels in cases of cholera It has restored to consciousness in insensible to even the were previously pricking of needles.

Didn't Like a Kicking Seat.

"Do you see that shaft?" said a deckhand on board a Fort Lee steamer recently. "You notice it is only eighteen inches above the deck, and passengers easily step over it when they want to get abaft or forward of it. On Sunday a fellow came aboard at Fort Lee, after trying hard to induce a friend who was with him to stay there all night. He seemed to be awfully tired, and when the boat was well under way for New York he saw the shaft, and did not seem to notice that it was revolving. "Here, Jim," he said. "let us sit down," and he sat down on the shaft, with his pipe in his mouth and his face toward the stern. Of course the shaft carried him over, landed him on his back on the deck. and began sawing away at the tail of his jacket. He was greatly surprised, his jacket. He was greatly surprised, and, getting on his feet, he looked steadily at the shaft for a minute, and then said to his friend: "I got up on the wrong cide; didn't I, Jim?" Then he tried to sit down with his face toward the bow; but the shaft wouldn't let him. It butted him off and threw him forward. At last be turned sto me very angrily: "Tarnation, mate," said he, "haven't you got a seat aboard that won't kick?"—N. Y. Sun.

-Ine acquaintance of the female mind with the mysteries of commerce and finance is extensive and paralyzing. said a well-to-do young who had just received a dry-"Why," woman, goods bill, "why do you keep on sending me this? I know well enough I got the things last summer, so what's the use of reminding me?"—Philadelphia

.—A wood stove is not made of wood.

—Boston Post. Nor is a coal stove made of coal. Funny, isn't it.—Detroit Free Press. And a snow-plaw is not made of Press. And a snow-plow is not made of snow. Awfully funny, isn't it?—Bangor Commercial. Neither is a sponge-cake made of sponges. Te he!—Boston Journal of Commerce. Nor a head-dress of heads. Ah, ha!—Salem Sunbeam. Nor a chicken-salad of chicken. They make it of yeal, usually.—Oil City Der-

A man at St. Albans, Vi., was heard to remark that he would give twenty cents for a cat. The next morning twenty-two boys were on hand, each to go away twenty co

TO ADVERTISE and meet with success of the value of newspapers, and a correctly displayed advt To secure such information JUDI GIOUSLY GONSULT LORD THOMAS NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING, CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

THIS PAPER may be found on file at Geo. P. vertising Bureau (10 Spruce St.), where revertising contracts may be made for it IN NEW YORK.

John Wand, Prescription Druggist Windsor Drug Store.

H. J. Canniff, Notary Public, 295 Railroad St. North, Topeka.

Millinery at your own price at Mrs. Metcalf's. Over 500 hats to be sold out regardless of cost.

We are prepared to do the neatest kind of commercial and small job printing and can discount any office in the state in press.

Will you go to work and get up a club for the Spirit? We depend upon Prohibitionists in every part of the state to give it a wide circulation.

Scribners Lumber and Log Book, and Fisher's Grain Tables, for 50 cents.

Either one of these books will be mailed post-paid for 30 cents, or the two for 50 cents. Send money to the office of the Spirit.

See advertisement these books on last page of this paper.

All kinds of Summer Millinery a half price at Mrs. Metcalfs. 239 Kan sas Avenue.

We are making pricen to close out seasonable goods.

E. A. TAFT & Co.

State Convention, Aug. 25.

The next State Prohibition Conven tion will be held in Ottawa, August, 25, in connection with the National Prohibition Camp Meeting that will then be in session in Forest Park.

There should be a grand turnout on that occasion. Every county in the state should be represented, and all should go with some well digested plans in view. There must be thorough reorganization and some means devised to set active forces at work in every township in the state.

The disintegration of the old parties is going on. We must pick up and save the pieces. To do it we need a more compact organization. Some plans to effect this will doubtless be presented for consideration.

We may look with regret upon the persistent failure of the late dominant party to fairly consider the prohibiton question, but no one can fail to see that its every step is backward. Witness the Ohio Republican platform and the more open declarations of the New York Tribune, Cincinnati Gazette, Globe Democrat, Chicago, Tribune, Kansas City Journal and the Topeka Capital.

Against the tendency of the party represented by these journals there is an earnest, rebellious protest from the very best element of the party.

Thousands who voted for Blaine pelled to leave the party since then.

tion that is stirring up the minds of what he eats and drinks, and from the the people. They begin more fully exercise which he takes to encourage to realize that the Rum Power, as of his friends by urging them to become arbitrary and wicked as it is, constitutes but one element in that Autocracy of Power that took the place of slavery when its malign influence was transferred from the plantation to Wall street, from the Democratic to the Republican party, under whose protection it has grown up, an aristocratic power, no less subversive of popular rights than the old slave system. Let there be a protesting cry sent up by the people of Kansas at the Ottawa Convention of the 25th, and reader, if possible, may you be there to help.

The Capital avows the absurd doctrine that the Governor has no power to enforce the law. Will that very unreliable sheet read Gov. Martin's address to the legislature and note number contains a very suggestive discussion of "Genius and Insanity," by James Sully. Our most distinguished man of letters recently U. S. Minister to England, James Russell Lowister to Eng cussed in an article from Blackwood's. Other articles of serious interest are "The Muse of History," by Augustus Birrell; "The Ottoman Turks in Europe," and a sketch of "Victor Hugo," by W. H. Henley, several readable poems, stories and essays in the issue, will interest those less bent on grave topics. The literary character of this long-established magazine is kept up to the high standard which it has always occupied. To those who wish to keep up with the best foreign periodical literature, such a monthly visitor is of the greatest value.

GENERAL GRANT.

Following is an account of young

Grant's appointment to West Point: "My father received a letter from the Hon. Thomas Morris, the United States Senator from Ohio. When he read it he said to me: 'Ulysses, I believe you are going to receive the appointment." What appointment? I inquired.
"To West Point. I have applied

"But I won't go,' I said. He said he thought I would, and I thought so too, if he did. I really had no objection to going to West Point, except that I had a very exalted idea of the requirements necessary to get through. I did not believe I possessed them, and could not bear the idea of failing. There had been four boys from our village, or its immediate neighborhood, who had immediate neighborhood, who had graduated, and never a failure of any one appointed from Georgetown, except in the case of one whose place I s to take. He was a son of Dr. was to take. He was a son of Dr. Bailey, our nearest and most intimate neighbor. Young Bailey had heen appointed in 1837. Finding before the January examination following that he could not pass, he resigned and went to private school and remained there until the following year, when he was reappointed. But before the next examination he was dismissed. Dr. Bailey was a proud and sensitive man, and felt the failure of his son so keenly that he forbade his return home. During my first year's encampment During my first year's encampment General Scott visited West Point and reviewed the cadets. With his com-manding figure, his quite colossal manding figure, his quite colossal size and showy uniform, I thought him the finest specimen of manhood I ever beheld, and the most to be envied. I could never resemble him in appearance, but I believe I did have a presentiment for a moment that some day I should occupy his place on review, although I had no intention then of remaining in the

"The next summer, Martin Van Buren, then President of the United States, visited West Point and reviewed the cadets. But he did not impress me with the awe that Scott inspired. In fact, I regarded General Scott and Cap-tain C. A. Smith, the Commandant of Cadets, as the two men most to be envied by the Nation. I was impatient to get on my uniform and see how it looked, besides probably wanting my old schoolmates, and particularly the girls, to see me in it. But the conceit was knocked out of me by two little circumstances that happened soon after the arrival of the clothes, and which gave me a distaste for military uniform that I never recovered from.

"Soon after the arrival of the suit I "Soon after the arrival or the suit I donned it and put off for Cincinnati on horseback. While I was riding along a street of that city, imagining that everyone was looking at me with a feeling akin to mine when I first saw General Scott, a little urchin, bareheaded, barefooted, with dirty and ragged pants, held up a single 'gallows'—that's what suspenders were called then-and a shirt that had not seen a washtup for weeks, turned to me and cried out: Soldier, will you work? No, sir-ee, I'll sell my shirt first."—
From General Grant's Personal Memoirs.

THE HEALTH CRANK.

Chap Who is Afflicted with Theories Regarding the Proper Way to Promote

Longevity The health crank is a man who is sorely afflicted with chronic theories regarding the proper way to promote is the improper or insufficient proteclongevity. He lives, eats, works and tions, or too tight boots. But few men and Logan last fall, have felt im- sleeps, and bores people according to would dare to brave the rigors of wincertain rules that he has adopted for let wearing as thin boots as are generally worn by females, particularly the lis simply the Prohibition question that is stirring up the minds of letter wearing as thin boots as are generally worn by females, particularly the six half his days from the effects of fashionable. The thickest worn by his health, while he shortens the lives

He is never free from some infirmity, and if he could acquire two infirmities at once, his dream of Heaven is almost realized. As soon as he gets one weak part of his system renovated, some other part breaks down, and he has to go to work at that. It may be men-tioned incidentally that he never does anything for his head, which is the weakest part about him. His blood troubles him much. He drinks acidulous beverages to make him thin, and lies on his back, with his head toward the north, to make it circulate properly. When he imagines that his liver is acting in a reprehensible manner, he stimulates it, or props it up, with a horseback ride before breakfast; and if his stomach does not perform its func-tions with accuracy and dispatch, he floods it with cold water before going to bed, or irrigates it with a seidlitz powder the moment he gets up in the morning. He is always doing or taking some-thing to head off some infirmity.

Anticipated ills trouble him most. His favorite maxim is that about the that he there declares that very thing to be his express duty.

The August Eclectic is an excellent number contains a very succession of prevention and the pound and a half of cure. When he is not engaged in fortifying his system with Graham bread or oat meal, he is developing some weak muscle with dumb bells or trying to create an appetite bells or trying to create an appetite by sawing half a cord of wood before the dew is off the grass. He wears cork soles in his shoes, claiming that they act as rheumatism insulators. He friends nervous and sick by telling them of the dreadful things that golden syrup and butter and beer are made of, and of the gloomy effect that hard boiled eggs have on the digestive organs of the idiot who eats them. He keeps himself sick trying to get well, wretched in efforts to attain ease, and goes down into an acres of them the wretched in-efforts to attain ease, and goes down into an early grave from the effects of trying to lengthen his days.

To sum all up, he is a crank and a concentrated nuisance, with the redeeming feature, however, that he punishes himself more than he does anybody else.—Texas Siftings.

TIGHT LACING. How He Came to be Appointed to the West Some of the Evils Brought on by External Compression.

Tight lacing has been condemned for many centuries by writers dating as far back as the reign of William Rufus; and in France a moralist of the fifteenth century says that dresses were "so tight in the waist that they can hardly respire in them, and often suffer much pain by it." Here, be it observed, however, that corsets, although the most convenient, are not the only means of tightening in the waist Dresses worn without corsets may be laced so tightly that the unfortunate wearer can hardly breathe, and bands fastened firmly round the waist so as to serve the same purpose.

Perhaps that inner striving after higher life, which is thought to be the especial prerogative of men, is the cause of the notable fact that universsally human beings are dissatisfied with their own natural characteristics. They wish to make nature hurry up to their ideal of what ought to be, and they therefore try to improve upon her. More than one nation compresses the skulls of its infants to make them long broad or flat, as it chances to think best. Some tribes consider it vulgar to have white even teeth like those of a dog, so they file them down, color them and subject them to various other kinds of treatment with a view to fitting them for their dignified position in the mouth of a man. Other nations, with much pain, tattoo themselves in elegant patterns, raise knobs of flesh on their faces, and stick large bones and shells through the lobes of their ears and the cartilages of their noses. It is not so very long since all Europe considered it impossible for children to grow straight without being swaddled. How could nature be expected to do her work unaided?

If we were to take a girl the natural size of whose waist was twenty-four inches, put on her a small pair of stays and draw those stays in till the waist measured sixteen inches only, that girl would faint almost immediately, and, unless the stays were opened, would probably die from failure of the heart's probably die from faiture of the neart's action owing to mechanical pressure on the heart—one of the evils brought about by the external compression. But if we were to take a girl of the same age and height, whose shoulders and hips measured the same, but who from childhood had been gradually accustomed to tight laging, we should accustomed to tight lacing, we find that, with a waist of only sixteen inches, the vital functions were still being performed, although, as might be expected, health was feeble, for not one organ of her body on which the pressure had been exerted would be in its right place. The deformity caused by tight stays is unfortunately generally effected so gradually during the years of growth that the sufferer is uncencious of any harm. Moreover, just as the Chinook infant will cry when its head bandages are removed, so the woman whose body has been crushed out of all semblance to its natural form by the gradual application of pressure by stays, each successive pair of which is tighter than the last, will exclaim if her corsets are taken away: "I rould not exist without their support. My back aches without them, and I feel as if I were falling to pieces."-N. Y. Herald.

COLD FEET.

The Cause and Some Remedial Suggestions.

The most prominent cause of coldness of the feet, at least with females, is not strange, therefore, that the feet are cold, almost to freezing. (I will not say that this is the cause of the coldness of your feet.)

Again, the fashionable boot is only about two-thirds of the real width of the foot, and about one size shorter. It is utterly impossible for the blood to circulate freely to the extremities when so small a boot is worn, and as impos sible for the feet to be warm, since the warm blood from the heart is the principle source of animal heat. Again, any cause which drives the blood from the feet, or in any way interferes with a good circulation of the blood, may produce coldness of the feet, such as a derangement of the stomach, dim-inished power of the heart, tight bands around the limbs, brain exercises, etc. Unusual labor of the brain withdrawing a disproportionate sup-ply of blood to itself, just to that ex-tent diminishing the relative supply to other parts, particularly the extremi-ties, not as easily reached, naturally reduces the warmth of the feet. This is much aggravated by the fact that most close students take but little physical exercise, from which fact the blood is not drawn to the muscles, thus equalizing the circulation. A brisk walk, for example, when the brain i overcharged with blood, will tend to invite this fluid to the muscles, since action, attended by a waste of tissues, —Pumpkin loaf: For two loaves take two cupfuls of buttermilk, three cupfuls each of wheat flour and corn meal, one cupful stewed pumpkin, one cupful molasses, half cupful butter, two eggs, one teaspoonful soda. Steam one and a half hours, then bake half an hour.—The Household.

—Pickies or vinegar will not keep in a jar that has ever had any kind of crease in it.—It ledo Blade.

TRIMMING SHOW WINDOWS.

Branch of Advertising Which Furnisher The trimming of shop windows has become a great feature in advertising. Each large establishment seeks to outshine its neighbors in the display and artistic arrangement of goods in its windows. "The system of window decoration has grown up almost altogether within the past ten years in the dry goods line and within three or four years in the clothing houses," said a leading mer-chant. "It is increasing constantly, and heaven only knows where is will end. Every establishment of any protensions now employs a man especially to trim windows. Some smaller house secure the services of an individual who is not connected with it in any other capacity than that of window-trimmer and who does the work for three or sour different stores. Others have a salesman who is an artist in the business. His artistic capabilities demand a far higher salary than he could expect as a mere salesman. Very large shops hire professional trimmers who do nothing else but decorate the win dows. They must be constantly studying and endeavoring to devise something new startling and attractive to draw the attention of the public. Certain forms of arrangement have be come fixed and are known by various names. There, for instance," pointing to one window where several shades of wash materials were drawn into a shape, small at the bottom and spreadshape, small at the bottom and spreading out at the top like a fan, "is what is known as the 'rising sun' style of decoration. This manner of folding," indicating a piece of embossed velvet drawn out in a long fold, "is called the 'double loop.' But the trimming of windows must be novel or it new arrangement which is due alone to the ingenuity of the trimmer." ner and successor at Frankfort. second, Solomon, born 1774, d

"How long does it take a man to trim a window?" to its elaboration. I have known, too, when windows were to be trimmed for some special occasion or season, of two or three men being occupied in one window for a couple of days. One trim. "Are many goods damaged by being exposed in windows?"

"No, for the reason that but small quantities are displayed. We have dummies so made that a small piece of cloth can be wrapped around or folded about them and represent an entire the place.

deformity caused by tight stays bolt. Then we do not exhibit our very ortunately generally effected so finest lines in the windows. A trimmer has to use the greatest care in getting up a window. He must be able to up a window. He must be able to judge of the effect it will have from the outside, not how it appears to him where he stands. He must be skillful in his blending of tints, and have an eye as to the weather, for some things the most attractive in one kind of the things the most attractive in one kind of the things the most attractive in one kind of the things the same of the sam weather will not draw a glance in another, and above all possess originality. By the way, the trimmers are called artists now. There are very few American trimmers. The majority are Englishmen or Irishmen. Irishmen are the most tasteful dry goods men in the

"Are women ever employed as trimmers? "I've never known of any who were It is a field of occupation that I think women have never invaded; but with the quick feminine eye for color and effects, there is no reason why they should not be eminently successful in it."-Chicago News.

er. It How the Old Law, "While You're a Gittin' scamp who was arraigned at the last term of the Court of Oyer and Terminer upon the charge of bigamy. Having no defense, the fellow pleaded guilty, and in response to the query of the Court as to what he had to say in the Court as to what he had to say in mitigation of his offense, replied:

"I want a good, liberal, easy sentence. I pleaded guilty and saved the county the expense of a trial, and ought to be let down easy."
"How many wives did you say he had married?" the Judge inquired, turning to Herrick.

turning to Herrick. " replied that gentleman.

"Four," replied that gentleman.
"Goodness gracious!" exclaimed the Judge, I should think he had been punished well enough already."
"Yes, indeed," replied Herrick with the air of a man who knew whereof he spoke, and which carried conviction with it; "he has been pretty well punished."

"That being the case," responded the Judge, "we will deal leniently with him. Prisoner, you are sentenced to the Albany Penitentiary for the term of one year." "Thanks, your honor. The sentence meets with my approval and suits me to a tee, and it ought to," he remarked invite this fluid to the muscles, since action, attended by a waste of tissues, with a demand for more nourishment ("the blood is the life"), will cause the blood to flow where it is most needed. Such a walk, several times a day, will do much to reliev a vour head, narriers.

-Burlington (Vt.) Free Press.

angenders the manners which have caused the extinction of the game in Cuba. The passions of the crowd upon the tropical island far exceed the power of law and order, and unlike an American crowd, which simply hurls insults at the umpire, the Cuban crowd endangers life. It is not safe to plays at the Government envelope factory at Hartford, Conn.

ROTHSCHILD.

How the House of the Red Shield Was This famous firm of Hebrew bankers and capitalists which is known throughout the world, originated in the city of Frankfort, Germany. In the Judengasse, or Jews alley, a short distance from the chief thoroughfare, one hundred and forty-two years ago, lived a dealer in old clothes who had a red shield for a sign, which in German reads roth schild. It was in 1743 that a son was born to this Israelite. The name given to the boy was Anselm Meyer, who also became a clothes dealer and a pawn-broker, succeeding to the business of his father. By degrees he extended his business, lending money at high rates of interest during the wars of the last century, managing his affairs with such skill that Prince William the Landgrave made him his banker. When Napoleon came across the Rhine in 1806 this clothes dealer was directed to take care of the Prince amount. of the treasures of the Prince, amountof the treasures of the Prince, amounting to twelve million dollars, which he invested so judiciously that it brought large increase to the owner and especially to the manager.

This banker died in 1812, leaving an estate estimated at five million dollars not a very large sum these days—but -not a very large sum these days—but he left an injunction upon his five sons, which was made binding by an oath given by the sons around his death-bed, which has had and still has a powerful influence upon the world. The sons bound themselves by an oath to follow their father's business together, holding his property in partnership, extending the business, that the world might know but one house of the red shield (Rothschild.)

The sons were true to their oath is nothing. Consequently every shop shows two or three times a week some who died in 1835, was his father's partsecond, Solomon, born 1774, died in 1855, was established as the representaim a window?" tive of the house at Vienna. The third.

"From four to ten hours, according Nathan Meyer, born 1774, and died 1836, settled at London and was the leading member and ablest financier of the firm. The fourth, Charles, born 1788, died 1855, went to Naples, and James, born 1793, died 1869, to Paris. clothing house in the city showed a window during the holiday time that inancial centers, and were geographically located in excellent positions to use their financial power and skill to the best advantage. Nathan, in London, amassed money with great rapid-ity, and the same may be said of all the others, the wars of Napoleon being favorable to the business of the house Nathan went to the Continent to wit ness the operations of Wellington in ness the operations of weinington in his last campaign against Napoleon, prepared to act with the utmost en-ergy, let the result be as it might. He witnessed the battle of Waterloo, and when assured of Napoleon's defeat, rode all night, with relays of horses, to Ostend; went across the channel in a fishing-smack—for it was before the days of steam—reached London in addays vance of all other messengers, and spread the rumor that Wellington and Blucher were defeated. The 20th of June in that memorable year was a dismal day in London. The battle was fought on the 18th; Nathan Meyer, of the house of the red shield, by hard of the allies was lost, that Napoleon had swept all before him. England had been the leading spirit in the strug-gle against Napoleon. The treasury had supplied funds to nearly all of the allied powers.

If their cause was lost what hope was there for the future? Bankers HE WANTED THE EARTH.

How the Old Law, "While You're a-Gittin' Gita Plenty," was Illustrated.

Cady Herrick tells a good one of a camp who was arraigned at the last example the Court of Over and Terminists.

Can't have the Court of Over and Terminists.

Was there for the future? Bankers flew from door to door in eager haste to sell their stock. Funds of every destroyed the first of shody enables a poor man to procure a good looking and service—able suit for a very small amount of the had no desire to buy. He, too, had stocks for sale. What would they give? The court of Over and Terminists.

The was there for the future? Bankers flew from door to door in eager haste to sell their stock. Funds of every destroyed and the introduce to sell their stock. Funds of every destroyed and the introduce to sell their stock. Funds of every destroyed and the introduce to sell their stock. Funds of every destroyed and the introduce to sell their stock. Funds of every destroyed and the introduce to sell their stock. Funds of every destroyed and the introduce to sell their stock. Funds of every destroyed and the introduce to sell their stock. Funds of every destroyed and the introduce to sell their stock. Funds of every destroyed and the introduce to sell their stock. Funds of every destroyed and the introduce to sell their stock. Funds of every destroyed and the introduce to sell their stock. Funds of every destroyed and the introduce to sell their stock. Funds of every destroyed and the introduce to sell their stock. Funds of every destroyed and the introduce to sell their stock. Funds of every destroyed and the introduce to sell their stock. Funds of every destroyed and the introduce to sell their stock. Funds of every destroyed and the introduce to sell their stock. Funds of every destroyed and every destroyed and the introduce to sell their stock. Funds of every destroyed and every dest But meanwhile he had scores of agents purchasing. Twenty-four hours later Wellington's messenger arrived in London; the truth was known. The nation gave vent to its joy; up went the funds with rapidity, the general ad-vance pouring, it is said, $5,000,000 into the coffers of this one branch of the gle against Napoleon. The treasury of Great Britain, it will be remembered, house of the red shield! The house of the red shield is the greatest banking house of the world— the mightiest of all times, and has made its policy felt the world over—in the Tuileries of Paris, in the ministerial chamber of Berlin, the Imperial palace at St. Petersburg, the Vatican at Rome, in the Bank of England, in Wall street, State street and by every New England fireside. The house of the red shield, by the exercise of its financial power, can make a difference in the yearly account of every man who reads these words of mine Though Anselm Meyer has been half a Though Anseim Meyer has been han a century dead—though several of his sons have gone down to the grave—the house is the same. The grand-children have the spirit of the children. The children of the brothers have intermarried, and it is one family, loyal to each other, carrying out the desire of the founder of the firm and animated by a common purpose, that the world shall know only one red shield.—Boston Commercial-Gazette.

Science in New Mexico.

If this great country of ours were fully ripened in an educational way more respect would be paid to science, especially in New Mexico. At Watrous, in the Territory mentioned, lately a phrenological lecturer examined the phrenological lecturer examined the head of a man named Fosdic. There were some very bad bumps on Mr. Fosdic's head, and the lecturer said so. Did Mr. Fosdic accept the information humbly and resolve to reform and bring those bad bumps down? Not much! He pulled out his revolver, began blazing away at the lecturer and broke up the gathering in a minute and a half

GOOD WORDS FOR SHODDY.

A Manufacturer's Views of Woolen Rags "Shoddy," said a well-known manufacturer, "is made of everything in the shape of woolen rags and woolen yarn waste. We get rags from the big readymade clothing houses, from merchant tailors and from all kind of millsjacket, cassimere, shirt, etc.,—that make woolen goods or yarns. Woolen goods make waste in nearly all departments, and much of it is converted into shoddy. This waste is converted into coarse, fine, medium, etc., and also as to color, and whether all wool or free from cotton. It is necessary to do a great deal of dyeing to obtain the requisite amount of certain colors. After grading, etc., it is run through what we call shoddy pickers and then through woolen cards. It is graded, by the way year much more clesely by the way, very much more closely than wool, so that each lot will run all through an even grade. After it is carded, it is packed in bags like wool—in fact is wool of many colors. A shoddy made from a certain quality of yarn will not be as long. yarn will not be as long staple as the wool the yarn was originally made from, but will be quite as long staple and very much finer than wools that would cost twice as much. A manufacturer can therefore, use coarse wool for the body of a material, and fine shoddy for the face. It may be likened, in some respects, to an old-fashioned piece of furniture, made of pine and covered with a thin veneer of some more valuable wood. It has a nice appearance, and the customer gets what he pays for. So it is with shoddy. It enables a manufacturer to get up goods that have a fine face and wear well at such prices that a poor man can afford

'How about the wear of goods containing shoddy?"

"Well, they certainly wear as long as they should for their cost. Another point in favor of them, they utiline an immense amount of material that would otherwise go to waste. Manufacturers buy largely of the color they want to use, and to save the expense of dying. It sells for from five to forty cents per pound, but principally at from twelve to twenty-five cents. It is a business of itself, and the amount of it used is immense. "Shoddy," said a large satinet man-ufacturer, "is used the same as wool. mixed with wool, and sometimes with cotton. Nearly all nice goods have some shoddy in them, particularly if they are backed. It does not necessarily follow because goods are shoddy that they are not strong and service able. Low grades of woolens—wha we call satinets-are printed, and look as nice as fancy cassimeres. I will show you some," producing a number of attractive patterns. "Now, this is a low grade of goods. Quite stylish, aren't they? We have to be more partial. ticular even than the manufacturers cassimeres in getting up the styles for them. Very attractive patterns and novelties are what we are after. The printing is done the same as calico printing is done the same as cance printing—with copper rollers. Before printing the satinet is all colors and shades, and worth from twelve and one-half to fifty cents per yard. The one-half to fifty cents per yard. The printing costs five cents per yard."

"What proportion of shoddy is there riding, reached London at midnight on the 19th. On the morning of the 20th the news was over town that the cause the news was over town that the cause the there is as a superficient of the Wendley was next remember that there is as you must remember that there is as much difference in the quality of shoddy as there is in the quality of wool. If you want to buy goods at twelve and one-half cents per yard to make pantaloons of you can not expect it to contain much wool, or even a very fine quality of shoddy. Personally, I question if there is any economy in obliged to go in rags if they waited until they could afford one that cost fifty dollars. About two dollars and a half will purchase enough satinet to make a good, serviceable suit. All woolen goods, to make a suit that would last no longer would cost three would last no longer, would cost three times as much. Now, here are some goods that were made by the first mangoods that were made by the first mark ufacturer that ever used shoddy in this country. This material was at first sent down South for the negroes. It is just as strong as cloth can be made, I do not care who makes it. It is made rather better now than it was at first, and is sold very largely to public in stitutions, It contains about seventy-five per cent. of shoddy, and will wash and come out new every time. People look at shoddy very differently now from what they did in war times." Boston Globe.

Wire Worm.

This pest is a very provoking one, and excites many inquiries. We have two or three inquiries now in regard to it. It preys upon almost every crop that is grown. They do not trouble beans, peas and buckwheat, but we do not now think of any other crop that they sometimes do not injure. They resemble a worm and resemble wire, and hence their name is very approresemble a worm and resemble wire, and hence their name is very appropriate. Remedies, so called, are to a large degree unsatisfactory. Fall plowing is in the direction of a remedy, and so is frequent harrowing. This gives the birds in the fall and spring a chance at them. In England they practice burying potatoes early, and marking the place. The grubs collect on them to feed, and can thus be captured and destroyed. Both gas lime and salt are used to advantage in Europe, being placed with the seed at time of planting. Some advise the sowing of buckwheat the second year after the plowing under sod, should the wire worm be very abundant. The first year, one expenienced farmer and gardener says, they seem to prefer the decaying grass roots, and buckwheat seems distasteful or poisonous to them. The same is but little less true, the same writer says, of beans and peas.—Western Rural.

The salary of a lady in waiting to Queen Victoria is two facusand five hundred dollars per annum.

Grace Lilburne's Secret.

TWO CHRISTMAS DAYS.

CHAPTER I.

Heap on the wood! the wind sabrill. Well keep our Chestims herry still. "Yelkeep our Chestims herry still. "Kate, do you believe that Roland really loves you?"

The girl thus addressed flushed roor red, then he reptied with a shade of myelf to the control of the control of

A very hardsome man is Mr. Lilburne, of Silverton, though he is old to have two daughters so young and so fair as Kate and Grace.

There had been some romance about his early life, and he was quite a middle-aged man when he married Kate's mother, a wealthy heiress, whom he had loved from his youth.

His happiness, however, was of short duration. He had scarcely been married a year when his wife presented him with a daughter; then closed her eyes in the long endless sleep that knows no waking.

waking.

The motherless infant was left to be nursed by the wife of the head gardener, who had just lost her own baby, and Mr. Lilburne went abroad and tried to forget his grief and his short-lived happi-get his grief and his short-lived happiness.

He succeeded so well in his efforts that when his wife had been dead little more than a year he married a pretty girl young enough to be his own daughter, and brought her home to Silverton.

But the girl-bride soon wearied of her old husband and of her magnificent surroundings. The quiet life she led with her stately husband soon became intolerable to her, and this faeling was augmented by his too evident disappointment at the sex of her hifant, who, like the child of his first wife, was a girl.

She filled the house with guests of whom he disapproved and finally she eloped with a young officer, leaving her child behind.

The indignant husband did not attempt of collegent his skithled wifes the child behind.

The Indignant husband did not attempt to follow his faithless wife; he simply ignored her existence, and he took no notice of her letters when she wrote long afterwards professing repentance and asking forgiveness.

She is dead now, but the outraged husband often remembers her when he looks on the face of his youngest daughter, and this may be none of the causes why Grace is not his favorite child.

But the party of nearly forty guests have seated themselves at the long dining-table in the banqueting-hall, and the servants are bringing in huge joints of beef, in addition to geese and turkeys, hares and fowls, as though they were intent upon feeding a hungry army.

"I always admire this fine hall" said ter, and this may be none of the causes why Grace is not his favorite child.

But the party of nearly forty guests have seated themselves at the long dining-table in the banqueting-hall, and the servants are bringing in huge joints of beef, in addition to geess and turkeys, hares and fowls, as though they were intent upon feeding a hungry army.

"I always admire this fine hall," said Roland Ayre to Grace Libburne, who sat by his side, she having managed that he should take her in to dinner. "I almost wonder your father does not use it more often than he does."

"Yea," assented the girl, "It is a de-" "It is," he replied, pressing her arm "It is, "It is," he replied, pressing her arm "It is, "It is," he replied, pressing her arm "It is, "It is," he replied, pressing her arm "It is, "It is," he replied, pressing her arm "It is, "It is," he replied, pressing her arm "It is, "It is," he replied, pressing her arm "It is, "It is," he replied, pressing her arm "It is, "It is," he replied, pressing her arm "It is, "It is," he replied, pressing her arm "It is, "It is," he replied, pressing her arm "It is, "It is," he replied, pressing her arm "It is, "It lightful place for a large party such as we have to-day, or for a dance, but you have no idea how desolate papa and Kate and I feel if we happen to dine here by ourselves. We tried it once or twice, but it gave us the horrors, so we went back to our ordinary dining-room, and only use the hall two or three times a year. Do you admire my ancestress who is looking down from the wall there upon us, Mr. Ayre?"

"Yes, she is very like your sister; I have remarked the strong resemblance before to-day."

Then, seeing that her sister barred her way, she suddenly drew up her slight form with queenly dignity, and said:

"Don't forget yourself, Grace, and don't make me angry. This is not the way in which we should spend Christmas Day. Let me pass."

Grace looked for a moment at her lovely sister, and a sullen scowl came over her own pretty face, but she uttered no word of justification, and turning, sullenly left the room.

No one could have suspected the demon of rage and jealousy that lurked in her breast when some time later she came down to join her father and sister and the guests who had arrived.

For Grace looked so sweet, and innocent, and childlike, that people who did not know her well could very easily believe that she was somewhat oppressed and no gleeted by her half-sister and her father, with the latter of whom she was evidently no favorite.

A very handsome man is Mr. Lilburne, of Sliverton, though he is old to have two daughters so young and so fair as Kate and Grace.

There had been soms romance about his early life, and he was quite a middle-aged man when he married Kate's mother, a wealthy heires, whom he had loved from his peries.

Atte's good deeds were done silently whenever it was possible, and their mest of the head loved from his peries.

kind of trouble.

Kate's good deeds were done allently whenever it was possible, and their number was too great to be counted; but Grace had never been known to sacrifice her own convenience for the welfare of any living creature.

But the evil spirits that always strive to make humanity their prey have full possession of the baron's youngest child to-night, and as she wanders away from her father's guests through this most ancient part of the castle, a plot, as diabolical in its wickedness as it is cruel in its conception, frames itself in her in its conception, frames itself in her mind, and she prepares for its executo his side as he feit she gave a little shiver; "but the snow is falling slowly, and I dare say it will last a long time; fortunately you have not to go out tonight."

CHAPTER II

LOVE AND TREACHERY.

"Nor you either," she replied with a smile. "I heard papa say that you would remain with us over to-morrow."

He made no reply, but led the way to a small drawing-room which the sisters used more than anyone in the house.

used more than anyone in the house.

It was deserted now, though a bright fire burned in the grate, and Roland led the timid girl into the apartment, then paused, and looking earnestly into her deep dark eyes, he exclaimed passionately:

ately:

"Kate, I love you. Look at me, dearest, tell me, will you be my wife?"

She did look at him.

The love written on his face was too

arnest, too overpowering to be mistaken, or to admit of any coquetry on her part; and she now answered as any village maiden would have done:

"Yes, Roland." There was a bough of mistletoe hang-

There was a bough of mistletoe hanging above them, but they did not need this as an excuse for the long kiss of love in which their lips first met; and Roland had led Kate close to the fireplace, and they were both watching the logs burning brightly upon the hearth, and he was telling her how dearly and truly he loved her, while his arm clasped her graceful form, and her head rested trustfully upon his shoulder, when the door of the room was softly and noiselessly opened.

So absorbed were they in their own happiness that they did not observe it, neither did they see the child-like countenance of Grace, with a murder-ous light in her blue eyes, looking at them.

ous fight in her blue eyes, looking at them.

She went away, however, without making her presence known.

But as she left the room in which her sister and Roland were talking of their love, her heart seemed to take fire, and her brain became active for evil as that of a flend.

her brain became active for evil as that of a fiend.

All the pent-up malignity in her nature now asserted itself, and she was ready to commit any crime so that she might gratify her hatred and win for herself some of the great advantages now possessed by her rival.

Love misplaced, and affection slighted are sometimes pleaded as excuses for deeds of passionate revenge; but, though the plea is a bad one, Grace Lilburne could not shield herself behind even that filmsy pretext.

It is true that she coveted the admiration and devotion of Roland Ayre; but this was rather because it was given to Kate than because the set any very great store upon it for itself.

Indeed she was incapable of the strong, passionate, self-denying devotion that is a quality of even the most selfish love, and thus, though she would gladly enough have committed any crime to win her sister's lover, she would very readily accept a substitute if she failed.

Therefore, it was not solely on account of Roland Ayre that she pow

If she failed.

Therefore, it was not solely on account of Boland Ayre that she now gave herself up heart and soul to work evil, but envy of Kate's beauty, of her wealth, and even of her virtues made this wicked creature determine upon her helf-aister's destruction.

this wicked creature determine upon her half-sister's destruction.

But how was it to be accomplished? It is easy to wish an enemy dead, and only a little more difficult to some natures to resolve to make the wish a reality, if an opportunity to do so can be found; but it is not always easy to make the opportunity and to carry out the vile intention in such a manner that no enspicion shall attach itself to the perpetrator.

perpetrator.
"She shall die," hissed Grace, as she clenched her little hands till her nails dug themselves into the pink pains, yes, she shall die this very night, even if I risk my own life by putting an end to hers. But how—how am I to do it?"

into the darkness beyond:

A river ran near the base of this tower—a deep silent river, that would not readily betray her if she gave it a viotim; but how could Kate be consigned to the dark water in such a manner that help would not be forthcoming?

She mused on this scheme so long that she at last bethought her of a way in which to entrap Kate down to the river-side.

If Kate received a note purporting to come from Frank Fairfield, the son of her foster-mother, and whose mad infatuation for her sister had banished him from the castle, Kate might perhaps yield to the appeal and go out to meet him, and then under cover of the dark night the rest would be easy.

But would Kate keep the appointment, or would she not be more likely to hand the note to her father and ask him to deal with the imprudent writer? Here was the difficulty.

Grace knew that she would herself be an easy dupe for such a plot, but Kate was so uncomfortably straightforward, and had such a high appreciation of what was due to her own honor and dignity, that she might regard the most impassioned appeal as an insult, and resent it accordingly.

And then again, Frank would not dare to ask Kate to meet him, and she would know this, and for this reason, if for no other, would not go to the rendez-vous.

"Next to Kate I detest him," Grace

Boland Ayre has been growing desperate during the last half-hour.

He has not danced since Kate left him, and he has not spoken to anybody since he has managed to get away from Grace; but he has watched Kate anxiously, and more than once he had gone some little distance along or across the room to speak to her, but has failed to reach her side before she has been carried off for another dance.

Algernon Colebrook seemed to be as much on the watch to attach himself to the fair heiress as he was himself, and Roland felt that he had no time to lose in securing the prize that so many were evidently anxious to make their own.

Fortune favored him at last.

Kate with her last partner passed near the door just as the music ceased.

"Will you oblige me by asking Miss Walmer to take some refreshment," and known this, and for this reason, if for no other, would not go to the rendezvous.

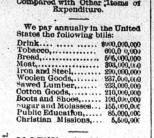

"Next to Kate I detest him," Grace muttered vindictively; "but there has been no love lost between us all our lives; he was the terror of my childhood, and yet, for all that, I played him some elever tricks, and often got him punished when he would otherwise have escaped. Ah, that reminds me; in this very tower is the secret well that he tricatened to throw me into; it will answer my present purpose if I can once get Kate to its edge. That will be a grand revenge indeed upon both of them"

[To be Continued]

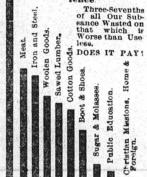

John Bach McMaster, the historian, thus describes the American beau of 1800: "The pantaloons of a beau went up to his armpits; to get into them was up to his armpits; to get into them was a morning's work, and, when in, to sit down was impossible. His hat was too small to contain his handkerchief, and was not expected to stay on his head. His hair was brushed from the crown of his head toward his forehead, and looked as a satirist of that der and looked, as a satirist of that day truly said, as if he had been fighting an old-fashioned hurricane back-ward. About his neck was a spotted linen handkerchief; the skirts of his green coat were cut away to a mathe-matical point behind."

Car brink and Topace Bill Compared with Other Items of Expenditure.

11.2 Billion for Liquor and 2 Billions for Necessities Education and Benevo-lence.

It does no good for a wan to sneer at the situation in regard to the liquor traffic. The situation in regard to the liquor traffic aside from all its moral the religious aspects, the question considered purely as one of dollars and cents. In its effects upon the National prosperity and wealth, is one of the most important that can be named.

Directly and indirectly, this country spendent the liquor traffic every year, a sum exceeding half the National debt. The cost of that rimfic to the country, direct and indirect, is greater than the profits of all its capital not invested in real estate. It costs every year more than our whole Civil Service, our Army, our Navy, our Congress, including the River and Harbor and Persion bills, our wasteful locations, besides all the schools in the country. In fact, this Nation pays more for liquor than for every function of every kind of government. How is a question of that size to be put with a sneer?

There is certainly spont for drink in this country more than $500,000.00 and the entire sum raised by taxes of all kinds, National, state, county, cliy, town and school district, is stated on authority of the Census Bureau to be not more than about $700,000,000.

But the cost of the liquor drunk is not by any means the whole cost of the liquor traffic. An official report, prepared with much short, by the Bureau of Stetistics of Massachusetts, under authority from the Legislature, states that 54 per cent of all the Crime and criminal expenses in that state comes directly from the abuse of liquor. There is at least one in twenty of the able-bodied men in this country who is rendered idle by his babits, or incapaditated for work. These persons, at the cridinary wages of workingmen, would sarn, if industrious and fairly employed, over $20,000,000,000 yearly. The proportion of persons in hospitals

BUTTER and CHEESE making apparatus and supplies of every de scription. D. H. ROE & Co. 259 and 255 Kin zie Street, Chicago, Illinois.

Mew Style, Embossed Hidden Name and Chromo Visiting Cards no 2 allhe, name on, 10c., 18 packs & L. Warranted best cold. Sample Book, &c. L. FORES & OQ., Massau, N. Y. Every Farmer and Miller Should Have Contains 192 pages of useful tables for casting grain, produce, hay, cost of pork, interest wages, tables, and more miscellaneous matter and useful tables for farmers and others, than any similar book ever published. Ask your bookselleo for it. Sent postpaid for 30 cents, G. W. FISHER, Box 288, Hochester, N. Y.

560 AND JONES he pays the freight-for free Price List mention this paper and address JONES OF BINDHAMTON, Binghamton, N. Z. A PRIZE Send six cents for postage, and receive has, a contly box of goods which will help you to more money right sway than anything else in this world. All, of either sex, succeed from first hour. The broad road to fortune opens badors the workers, absolutely euro. At once address, TRUE & CO., Augusts, Maine-

Scribner's Lumber AND Log Book

SQLD. Most complete book of its kind ever published. Gives measurements of Lutuber, Logs, Scantiling; cubical contents of square and cound Timber; shits to lumber dealers, wood measure; speed of circular saws; care of saws; ord wood tables; felling trees; growth of trees; land measure; wages, rent, board, increal, stave an heading bolts, etc. Standard book throghout the United States and Canada. New illustrated edition, 1882. Ask your bookseller for it. Sent postpaid for 85 cents. THE BEST BOOK OF THE KIND

A Book for Every Owner of Live Stock.

The Cheapest and the Best. $3.00. $2.50.

The Best Book of the kind. Live Stock Journal, London.

The Diseases of Live Stock,

Their Most Efficient Remedies;

INCLUDIN-Horses, Cattle, Cows, Sheep, Swige, Poultry & Dogs. BY W. B. E. MILLER, D. V. S., Chief veterinary Surgeon of the New Jersev state Board of Health: President of the Uni-ted States veterinary Association, and

LLOYD V. TELLOR, M. D. with a special article on the profitable man-agement of cows, by WILLIS P. HAZARD, Editor of the "Guernsey Cow Breeder," etc.

One volume, 8vo. 521 ppges, with numerous full page colored illustrations. hauhomely bound. Price, Cloth, $2,50; Full Sheep, $3,00.

This is, without doubt, the most thor oughly useful work of the kind before the public, as well as the Cheapest. The directions it gives are plain and brief, and have met the approval of the best authorities in England and this country. It has been recommended by the officers of the U.S. Army, and by the Department of Agriculture in Washington.

READ THESE OPINIONS! Col. James Moore, Quartermaster U.S.A.

"I have no hesitation in pronouncing it the very best work on the subject that has come under my observation."

Gen WG Leduc, late U S Com of Agriculture "To every one engaged in raising or handling stock this work will be of great value."

Col A F Rockwel, Ass't Quartermaster U S A "This book appears to me to be exhaustive and thorough" and thorough "

Prof Finlay Dun, of the Edinburgh, voterina ry College.
"This volume contains a great amount of useful, practical information, expressed in terse and readable language."

Turf Field and Farm.
"One of the best books of the kird." Live Stock Journal, London.
"It is the best book of the kind we have yet seen, from either the English or American press."

Live Agents wanted in every town and county. Liberal terms and exclusive territory given. Circulars free. Single copies sent by mail, postpaid, on receipt of retail price.

Agents Wanted in every County in Kansas.

Sent Postpaid on receipt of Price. G. F. KIMBALL, State Agent, Topeka. - -Kansas,

The Farmer's Record Account Book

THE ONLY COMPLETE WORK PUBLISHED.

Every Farmer can double his Profits!!!

This work must not be compared with anything eits ever published for the puppose. It is large in ties, 0 1°C by 13 inches, vary handromely beend and made of the very heaviest extra double Trench folio cap peper, roled in blue and red, and has printed headings for every item and transaction, so that by merely putting down a few figures each day, the farmer, howeve cancily who drops pay him best, and where he can make changes to advantage. It worth at least $3.1.0.0.0.000 years years to any average farmer. It does not require anything but a legible hand writing to keep it, reknowledge wintsewer of book-keeping being necessary. It has been endorsed by all leading agricultural papers, and very highly recommended by the Grange and its officers. The condensed table of contents below will, shown complete it is. There are a number of binalt papers for constructs, receipting, etc., also 154 tables of ready reference and reckening, many of which gives information worth ten times the cost of the book, and can only be obtained by purchasing expensive works on these special subjects. It tells all about fertilizers and their value, remelies for accidents, recipes for making solders and coments, paints, etc., but to lay out surfaces, computation of interest, business laws, weather tables, weights and measures, etc., etc., etc., this information alone being valuable beyond computation. The portion for keeping the accounts is very full, but for want of space we can only specify as follows: keeping the accounts is very full, but for want of space we can only specify as follows:

Price per copy, postpaid, in English Silk Cloth, - - $3.00 Agents Wall-ou-for $2,00. Address G. F. KIMBALL, General Agent. Topeka, Kansas. Agents Wanted. Sample Copies, mailed free

