Hint Of Re-deal On Milk Price?

Are dairymen about to get a re-deal from federal milk marketing orders on the price they get for milk?

A report from USDA, written in customary veiled language from the federal agency, says that a committee studying milk pricing sees a trend to more grade A production by dairymen will "necessitate changes in the pricing of milk and price support programs."

Milk supports presently are "blend prices," based on a percentage used for manufacturing milk such as ice cream, cheese and the like, and part used for drinking milk, now called fluid-grade milk by USDA.

The latter milk, produced under Grade A conditions, often ends up as cheaper manufacturing milk, and the USDA study seems to suggest that blend prices may show to a greater degree the amount of milk that ends up as cheese, ice cream, and milk solids.

A second part of the report seems to be an attempt to curtsy to both consumer interests and milk-producer cooperatives.

The reports says it USDA is studying the "economics" of federal programs related to milk prices but also acknowledges producer co-ops for a "continuously adequate supply of milk." The report noted the need for a price structure which would guarantee that supply.

"Say, Fred, can farmers deduct medical expenses incurred because of a nervous condition brought on by excessive taxation?"

Commercial Tax Preparers Caught By IRS Agents

Internal Revenue Service agents are checking commercial tax preparers for law violations by posing as taxpayers seeking help.

IRS Commissioner Johnnie M. Walters said in an interview that the agents have found many violations resulting in prosecution. Some preparers were caught after suggesting to the undercover agents that they claim more exemptions or more deductions than they were entitled to.

Walters said the undercover work is not a form of entrapment.

"They have not attempted to do this by stealth," he said. "They've just presented themselves as ordinary taxpayers with the information to make a return."

Actually, the IRS is shopping around commercial tax-preparing businesses in the same way many consumers do. Many taxpayers have found that preparers give them widely varying answers on what their tax liabilities are.

"Where we have had indications of unscrupulous performances by commercial return preparers, in order to do something about it in behalf of the American taxpayer we have sent some agents with advice as to what they're entitled to claim on their returns," Walters said.

"They've had returns prepared. Some have been prepared incorrectly, intentionally, and we are prosecuting some of them."

All this is part of the IRS crack-down on unscrupulous tax preparers. And the results so far, Walters said, "are discouraging. We've found that too many of them are not behaving properly. They are gouging the taxpayer and doing great damage to our tax system."

IRS says most of the difficulty caused by inexperienced small tax preparing firms that set up shop only during the tax season.

But, despite the abuses, Walters said the IRS is not going to recommend legislation that would call for licensing of tax preparers. "We have our hands full already," he said. "We do not have the manpower or even the know-how to license and administer a licensing program."

Air Force In Limited Return To Salina

The Air Force is returning to Salina after a five-year absence. The Air Force has decided to "reopen" Schilling Air Force Base by the spring of next year, Col. Thomas R. Grissom, director of plans, policy and programs for the Strategic Air Command at Omaha, Neb., says. The reactivation of the base will be on a limited scale, however, Grissom said. He said the Salina location would be used as a SAC satellite base. The ground alert operation will employ four large aircraft and between 110 and 150 men, he said. The Salina location was selected some time ago, Grissom said. But final arrangements between the Air Force and Salina Airport Authority, governing agency of the old air base, have not been completed. Mike Scanlan, executive vice president of the airport authority, said his agency was "all for the Air Force returning." "We meet all the qualifications," Scanlan said, referring to size and construction of existing runways. "Being a former Air Force base it was naturally designed for Air Force use and to meet Air Force specifications." When the Air Force officially closed Schilling in 1967, the land was deeded without cost to the city of Salina. The airport authority was set up to manage operations of the field and its adjoining buildings. Scanlan said in addition to the public airport the site has been used for industrial development. Some facilities also have been used by the Kansas Highway Patrol as a division headquarters and training center, he said. One of the buildings that the Air Force wants to use is the Highway Patrol facility. Grissom said it would be up to the airport authority to make arrangements with the patrol so that the Air Force could use the building. "We cannot deal with the Highway Patrol, the state or anyone except the airport authority," Grissom said. The Highway Patrol in Topeka said nothing has been decided on the facilities. Before using Schilling as a training center the patrol had an agreement with the University of Kansas, the spokesman said. "But other than what we have at Schilling we have no other training facility as such," he said. Grissom believes the community is in favor of the move. "We've always had great support from the people of Salina," he said.

"We feel this, too, will be a successful operation." Bill Harris, director of administration for the city of Salina, said, "we've always had a good relationship with the Air Force. We were all disappointed when they closed Schilling. Now we're glad to have them coming back." Harris said he had heard no adverse comments in the community about the Air Force plan. Some legal questions have arisen about whether the Air Force will have to pay for space they use since it deeded the land without cost to the city. Grissom believes the Air Force would have to pay rent on buildings it operates. Scanlan said no commercial or public flights would be curtailed as the result of Air Force occupation. He said the facility would be open to airlines to use as a training base. TWA has used the airstrip to "shoot landings" with its big jets. Scanlan said the satellite base will be manned by personnel already trained and will not follow a flight training schedule. Schilling was a training base for B-17 bombers in 1942. The base was deactivated in 1949, but returned to active status in 1952 during the Korean War. It was the nation's first training base for B-29s, the bombers which carried the world's first nuclear bombs to Japan. Named in honor of Col. David Schilling, a Kansas-born fighter pilot who died in a car crash in England, the base lost its designation as an Air Force unit April 3, 1967.

'Hail Alley' Cloud Seeding Includes Rocket Firings

Not all the rockets fired this summer in the United States will be aimed at outer space.

A self-destructing rocket that fights hailstorms is in the government plan to eliminate a problem that costs the nation up to $390 million a year in crop and property damage.

Scientists said small rockets carrying silver iodide will be fired from planes into thunderstorms suspected to be potential hail-producers to see if such seeding can cut hail formation.

The plans were disclosed by officials of the National Science Foundation in Washington and scientists of the National Center for Atmospheric Research at Boulder, Colo., in a telephone interview.

The tests are to be carried out this summer at the juncture of Colorado, Nebraska and Wyoming, the scientists said. The test site is in the heart of "Hail Alley" — which extends north into South Dakota and south into Kansas — so called because it has the most hail in the country.

The researchers said the concept behind silver-iodide seeding is to try to disrupt hail growth in a thunderhead so most of the moisture will fall as rain or small ice pellets rather than growing into large, dangerous hailstones.

The scientists said they don't expect to significantly cut hail development in the coming tests because the rockets will only carry a small amount of the seeding material.

But they said that if the tests show even a small suppression of hail growth they could lead to developing large-scale methods to cut down big hailstorms.

The tests also are designed to get more information on the little-known mechanisms of hailstorms.

The scientists said the tests will include using armor-clad aircraft to fly into hailstorms and measure their wind patterns and other factors in hopes man someday will be able to predict hailstorms.

The use of rockets this summer was made possible because of development of a special type which will consume itself during hail-fighting flights, the scientists said.

They said that earlier the Federal Aviation Administration would not approve using rockets to get to the heart of storms for fear the rockets would fall to earth and cause damage.

Virtually every area of the country is vulnerable to hail. Hailstorms can do more damage to crops and property than do tornadoes. In some years hail damage has been almost as great as hurricane damage.

Hailstones range in size from that of a pea to that of a grapefruit and hail ranging from walnut to baseball size is not uncommon in the Great Plains region.

Shift From Grain To Meat

The world agricultural system is shifting from a grain to a livestock economy, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Clarence Palmby told delegates at the annual meeting of the Minnesota Livestock Breeders Association.

Noting that this shift had long since been accomplished in the U.S., he said the trend would have a profound implication for U.S. agriculture which is a great producer of feed grain and protein meal, and a breeder of fine animals.

The assistant secretary stressed the fact that continued export expansion is a major policy goal of the administration. Palmby said he considers nothing more important than this expansion, in terms of future farm income and progress of U.S. agriculture.

Last fiscal year, the U.S. exported a record $7.8 billion worth of farm products — including $900 million in animal and animal products. "This fiscal year," he said, "we expect our farm exports to approach last year's record, despite the damage done to us by the dock strikes."

In the assessment of the world agricultural situation the increasing demand on animal protein meat, milk, eggs, poultry, and particularly beef, stands out. This is due to rising income and improving standard of living in most parts of the world. But most of the world still has a long way to go to catch up with the U.S. consumption of 117 pounds per person, in 1970, he said. Japan consumed only 6 pounds of meat per person in that year. Hungary 19 pounds, Yugoslavia 26 pounds, Poland 35 pounds, Russia 47 pounds and the European Community 54 pounds.

This situation puts the world's cattle industry in a strong position for the future and any increase in animal production will be reflected in more use of feed grain and protein meal, Palmby said.

No Secrets Kept By Insurance Co. Refusing Renewal

Kansas now has a law requiring insurance companies refusing to renew automobile liability insurance policies to inform the insured why the policy was not renewed.

Such an explanation would be required after a request was submitted by the insured.

The bill also sets out the reasons allowed for non-renewal of liability policies.

In addition, it would require companies canceling a policy or declining to renew it to notify the insured of the possibility of coverage under the Kansas Automobile Insurance Plan.

Beef Prices Lead Jump, Somebody Is To Blame

Everybody is up in the air about rising beef prices. Especially after the Bureau of Labor Statistics report for February showed meat leading the largest jump in retail food prices recorded in 14 years.

President Nixon said it is a mistake and "totally unfair to make the farmer the scapegoat" for high meat prices at supermarkets and pledged action if middlemen do not ease up.

The Agriculture Department plans to publish this week a report expected to put more light on rising beef prices and show how middlemen as well as cattle producers have benefited.

It will be published by the Economic Research Service and is a monthly analysis of where the food dollar goes, from farm to retail shelves, for a list of "market basket" food items.

A spokesman said the report will show a further rise in retail beef prices from the record high average of $1.11½ per pound, with most of the increase occurring in middleman margins.

But high cattle prices also have caused upward pressure. The concern by the White House, however, is over the increase in spread between the time an animal leaves the feedlot and when it is cut up and wrapped for sale in meat counters.

The January average retail price of $1.11½ per pound was a national average for all cuts of beef, a composite figure for meat from the entire carcass, hamburger and roasts as well as the finest steaks.

The department's marketbasket breakdown for January showed that of the $1.11½ per pound for beef in retail stores, the "farm value" of that amount was 74.1 cents. That is not the price farmers get for live cattle but is their share of the $1.11½ housewives spent for a pound of beef last January.

In other words, it took 74.1 cents worth of live steer to make up one pound of beef for consumers at the supermarket. Producers may have received 35 cents a pound or less for the live steer, but less than half the animal actually winds up on store shelves.

The report now being prepared for food price spreads in February reportedly will show retail beef up again, to about $1.16 per pound. Most of the gain, according to preliminary indications, will be at the retail level.

Nearly everyone in Washington is getting into the beef-price act. The Price Commission said it will begin a hearing next month to look into profit margins of wholesale and retail people. Treasury Secretary

John B. Connally said "a little consideration" is needed from big food chains.

Meantime, Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz continued to speak out on behalf of producers, telling a Republican women's meeting in Atlanta on Friday the price of steak "is just right."

"If it was any higher we could not afford it, and if it was any lower there wouldn't be enough to go around," Butz said.

Another development causing reaction are advertising campaigns by some large supermarket chains, including a couple in the Washington area, suggesting consumers can buy cheaper substitutes for steak and the higher-priced roasts.

Some farm leaders, including Tony Dechant, president of the National Farmers Unions, are upset at such moves by the supermarkets.

Dechant, as an example, called last week on the administration and Congress to "investigate the profit margin of chain stores and other middlemen" involved in setting retail food prices.

"I still want to take a European tour."

Farm Export Elimination Unrealistic Possibility

By Rod Turnbull
Kansas City Board of Trade

At almost any farm meeting in recent months in the Kansas City trade area, there has been at least one man (although usually not more than the one) who argued against the export trade as beneficial to the farmer.

These men, distinctly in the minority and apparently without guidance from any major farm organization, have contended that the U.S. farmer should not be expected to produce at world market prices.

They resented what they called the ballyhoo for increasing farm exports as part of a campaign to induce the farmer to subsidize trade to help the United States in its balance of payments program.

And when asked what would happen to U.S. agriculture if it lost its export business, they have replied in general that the solution was simple — the government should pay farmers to idle enough acres to bring production down to domestic demand and domestic prices should be set high enough to give the farmer a living.

Apparently, enough of this philosophy reached Washington to get attention, because a few days ago Clarence D. Palmby, assistant secretary of Agriculture devoted an entire speech to the subject. He said at the beginning of his address that he was answering farmers who were asking "why they should be expected to produce for export at prices prevailing in the world."

In discussing this subject, it needs to be emphasized that the policy of the current administration is to encourage farm exports as much as possible. The previous administration had the same policy and so did the one before that. The major commodity organizations representing wheat, corn, milo, soybeans and other crops have worked diligently around the world for years seeking to boost sales to foreign countries.

Yet there are the few farmers who are not convinced.

In the last few years, this country has been exporting half or more of its wheat crop, its soybeans and rice, and a substantial portion of its feed grains, cotton, animal products, fruit and other commodities.

Also in the last several years under various government programs, between 50 and 60 million acres of land have been idled. This year under the set-aside program, the government plans to remove around 60 million acres from production, a substantial increase over the set-aside last year, in a rather expensive effort to bring supplies in line with demand and thereby help farm prices.

"Without exports," Palmby said, "this adjustment problem would be almost doubled — to well over 100 million acres."

Palmby contended that American agriculture is made up of the world's most efficient producers. But part of that efficiency is achieved because U.S. farms are of sufficient scale to make good use of today's equipment and techniques.

"Generally speaking," he observed, "the United States is the only nation with the technology, the institutions, and the natural resources to support a broad and diverse type of agriculture on such a scale. But to do so, our system must permit farmers to make adequate use of these resources, so that they do not have to reduce plantings every time yields increase. Thus our efficiency, our productivity, is tied to markets that are growing, not shrinking.

"You can imagine," Palmby continued, "what it would do to our production-resource balance if we had to cut back soybean acreages by one-half, if we had to reduce wheat acreages by 40 per cent, cotton planting by one-third, and tobacco acreages (and income) by one-third. One of two things would have to happen: (1) Each producer of these commodities would have to cut back radically under some kind of stringent government control, or (2) A great many farmers would be forced out of business and their land somehow removed from production."

Grain men at the Kansas City board of Trade regard the idea of surrendering the U.S. farm exports as totally unrealistic.

Feedlots Utilizing Wheat Through Futures Market

By Rod Turnbull
Kansas City Board of Trade

Big cattle feedlots, principally in Arizona and California, will be feeding hundreds of thousands of bushels of 1972 crop wheat purchased on the futures market of the Kansas City Board of Trade. This is a relatively new development with the big feedlots and is a classic example of how the futures market may be used in forward purchases.

It is estimated by the U.S. Department of Agriculture that 240 million bushels of wheat will be fed to livestock in the wheat marketing year ending next June 30. Some members of the grain trade believe this figure is low. The 240-million figure represents, at any rate, the largest utilization of wheat as feed in any peacetime year in history.

What is the system under which the feedlots have bought this new crop wheat?

They have asked the grain firms at what price could they buy hard red winter wheat (the kind covered in futures trading in Kansas City) for delivery next August, September and October.

The grain firms have given them quotations based on the September futures price adjusted for actual delivery.

Know What It Will Cost

The feedlots then made their purchases and they know now exactly what the feed wheat will cost as it is delivered to them.

The grain firms do not own this wheat. In fact, it has not even been harvested. They, therefore, have gone into the futures market and bought wheat for future delivery. In trade parlance, they have gone "long" on the amounts of wheat needed to cover their sales to the feedlots.

The grain firms have wheat sold on one hand and bought on the other. This is called "hedging" or price protection. When the harvest starts rolling, they will buy the grain for cash at local elevators.

As they buy the wheat, they will "lift" or sell their futures contracts. If, as an example, the price of wheat should rise 10 cents a bushel between now and the harvest, it would cost the grain companies 10 cents a bushel more to buy the grain they will deliver to the feedlots than the prices they quoted in February and March. But futures prices also would rise by approximately the same amount. Thus the grain firms, in selling their futures contracts, would make a profit approximately equivalent to the loss they took in buying the cash wheat to fulfill their commitments.

Can Set Their Charges

The grain firms, in their dealings with the feedlots, have learned that one advantage for the lots in the forward purchases is that once they have definitely fixed their feed costs, they can also with confidence establish their custom feeding charges.

In selling feed to the feedlots, grain firms are acquiring new knowledge about the cattle business.

They are seeing that the California and Arizona feedlots are buying wheat for the August-October period, but not as yet for the later months. This is because they will want to see how the milo harvest comes out in the Southwest.

Texas and Kansas feedlots are not buying as far ahead as those in Arizona and California, because Texas and Kansas are in the heart of the wheat production area. They also are the two leading milo states. Thus the feedlots attempt to fulfill their needs close to home.

The feedlots started using wheat in large quantities when milo and corn prices were relatively high. As Kansas City grainmen hear, the lots have come to varying conclusions on the wheat as feed. Many definitely like wheat and feed wheat in amounts as much as 70 per cent of the grain ration.

Many Like a Blend

Many others like to blend grains in their rations, wheat with milo or with corn, or all three together. They contend they get better carcasses with blend. A few lots insist on all corn and because of irrigation in Kansas and Texas, they are able to get some supplies locally. Otherwise, freight costs add to the corn expense in the Southwest.

The feedlots want good wheat — not damaged goods. In the contracts made this winter with the Kansas City firms, they have insisted on wheat testing 58 pounds or better to the bushel. They have not set a protein requirement. However, some of the Texas and Kansas feedlots with longer experience in feeding wheat are paying a premium for high protein content.

Early Bloom For Redbud Tour

April 4, 1972

CEDAR VALE — Chautaugua County's annual Redbud Tour is set for April 1 and 2, the earliest dates in the 11 year history of the event.

Herb Bath, Sedan, tour chairman, said the redbuds are blooming earlier this year, as are plum trees and white flowers.

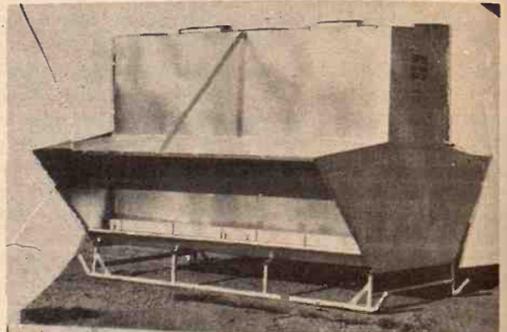

The Soil Conservation Service is marking the tour routes, which are the same as last year.

Information booths will be set up in downtown Cedar Vale and Sedan where 800 redbud seedlings will be given away to the first 800 visitors. Tour maps will be available at the information booths, service stations and cafes.

On April 3, a 20-mile Project Concern Walk for Mankind will follow the same route as the Redbud Tour.

Allow More Meat Imports

A 7 per cent increase over 1971 levels will be allowed in imports of meat subject to the 1964 meat import law, the U.S. Department of Agriculture has revealed.

The restraint program in effect under the law will continue, but the totals allowed the participating countries will be liberalized for 1972, Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz said. Butz negotiated with the governments of the principal supplying nations to set actual levels.

While the clamor against higher beef prices by consumers has undoubtedly been a factor in the decision to liberalize the import total, government food economists believe the increase will not have much effect on retail meat prices. Most of the imported beef subject to the import quota law is low-grade beef used primarily for hamburger and other processed foods.

In figures, the restraint levels have been set at 1,240 million pounds, compared with actual import of 1,112 million in 1971, when dock strikes interfered with meat importations to some extent.

Voluntary restraint levels for various countries for 1972 meat imports to the U.S. are as follows (in millions of pounds): Australia, 600.4; New Zealand, 250.9; Mexico, 78.2; Ireland, 74.7; Nicaragua, 44.8; Costa Rica, 39.8; Guatemala, 25.3; Honduras, 16.7; Dominican Republic, 12.5; Panama, 6.1; Haiti, 2.6; El Salvador, 3.0; Canada, 80.0, and United Kingdom, 5.0.

These levels apply to chilled and frozen beef, veal, mutton and goat under the 1964 meat import law.

Commenting on the announcement, American National Cattlemen's Association President John Trotman said, "We feel that the negotiations leading up to the 1972 quota level have set a bad precedent. First, the U.S. meat importers and foreign countries have used the threat of more imports as a price control curb. "The second bad precedent," Trotman continued, "is that there is a build-up of cattle numbers in other nations. This potential beef supply probably could be attracted to the U.S. market in years to come when our cattle price situation may not be as favorable."

April 4, 1972

Joint Angus Sale Grosses $42,515

FREEPORT — The Holder-Schmidt-Steffen joint production Angus sale grossed $42,515 on 98 lots with an average of $433. 36 bulls averaged $505 and 62 females averaged $393.

The sale-topper was a bull sold to George Birkenbaugh, Kingman, at $975. A cow-calf pair topped the female sale at $620 and went to Coleman Angus, Braman, Okla.

Escarole

A green that deserves wider use is delicious escarole. It has a slightly bitter flavor, and crisps, broad, flat leaves with a rather frilly edge. Excellent served for itself, it makes a fine salad with a simple French dressing. It is also very good in a mixed green salad since its taste and texture are different from crisphead lettuce, the most popular salad green. Escarole is actually a straight-leaved endive.

Curly endive is another green that merits more attention. It looks like a handsome, curly fern and tastes very crisp and green. These crunchy-fresh greens are high in vitamin "A" and low in calories. A whole pound of endive, for instance, has only 90 calories, so you can imagine that a single salad won't set you back much as far as your diet is concerned.

Windows Play Important Role In Home

Windows play an important part in appearance, comfort, convenience, heating costs and maintenance of your home. Therefore, when you are building, buying or remodeling a house, look into the window styles thoroughly. Window styles should suit the architecture of the house and each window should be appropriate for the area in which it is used. Complete window units made of wood are a good choice because they are a natural insulating material, keep a house warm in the winter and heating bills low. There are many types of windows from which to choose. For example, casement windows are favored in the South, because their rotary sashes are easy to operate at an angle. Bay and bow windows add light, a generous view and lots of apparent space to a room. High windows offer privacy and wall space for furniture.

Select your windows carefully, keeping in mind the room in which they will be and their use.

Double-hung windows have two sashes, one above the other, that move up and down. Casement windows have a sash that's hinged at the side to swing out. They are opened and closed by rotary operators.

In a gliding window the sash slides in tracks. Awning windows are hinged at the top to open out, providing a shield from rain even when open. Sometimes they are stacked one above the other or below a fixed window.

The hopper window is similar to the awning type except the hinge is at the bottom so the window opens in. They are often used in basements. Fixed windows are glazed sashes that do not move. They provide light and a view.

Take Your Time When Donning Pantyhose

The most common cause of tears, snaps and runs in pantyhose is haste in putting on the hose.

Though jumping into your pantyhose may seem like the quickest way to get them on, it puts an unreasonable strain on the pantyhose fabric. Even if you're late for an important appointment, it will pay to sit down and try to relax before you even touch your hose.

Then settle one foot at a time comfortably into the pantyhose; pull both up to knee height, slowly and gently. Remove chunky rings before you start or slip on a pair of gloves.

Then, stand up and ease pantyhose over your hips and up to the waist. If they seem short, don't tug — sit down and start again from the feet up. If you still don't make the waist, they are probably the wrong size. And when removing the hose, resist the impulse to yank.

As soon as you have them off, dunk them in mild suds and lukewarm water. If your hands are rough, wear gloves to launder the pantyhose.

After rinsing, don't wring them but press them between bath towels to absorb the moisture. Hang them on something smooth and away from heat.

For storage, keep pantyhose in your bureau drawer or suitcase in plastic bags.

Be careful about brushing them against furniture as you wear them. Remember that dropping such things as lipstick or keys on stored hose can damage the fibers and invite runs.

Don't try to save time putting on, taking off or caring for your pantyhose. Take your time and you'll find you can save your nerves and your money and you will look your

Members Load Wheat To End Fee

National Farm organization members in Ellis county are loading their grain into cars to eliminate the 7 cent bushel handling charge by elevators.

According to the county NFO president, Francis Polifka, the local farmers plan to load approximately 30,000 bushels of wheat and ship the grain to the American Grain Company, Plainview, Tex.

The group includes Tom Walters, vice president of the county organization; Francis and Frank Polifka, Gene Staab, Wilfric Karlin, Orville Haselhorst and Benno Karlin.

"When we were ready to move our wheat, we checked about loading with local elevators," Polifka said, "and all but one elevator was going to charge us 7 cents per bushel to load the grain."

"The other elevator would have charged us 5 cents a bushel, but a state grain inspector said he would revoke the operator's license if the wheat was loaded at that price," Polifka said.

We didn't want to get the elevator in trouble so we are loading the wheat ourselves.

"We just can't afford to have an elevator load our grain for 7 cents per bushel when we can buy an auger and load the wheat for half that price."

"The elevators feel that we are trying to compete with them," Polifka pointed out, "but we aren't. We are just trying to better ourselves and establish some independence."

Two railroad cars were loaded this week and Polifka expects 4 more

Marysville Arson Suspects Arrested

Marysville — The arrest of two arson suspects has lifted the curfew in this town of 4,800. Four cases of arson and harassment of fire alarms led to the Marysville curfew.

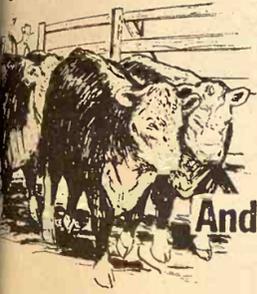

Leroy Conrad, fire chief, said 24 false alarms have been received in the north-central Kansas community in the last two weeks, all at night, in addition to many grass fires occurring daily.

Then four fires were set deliberately in different sections, Conrad said.

One blaze, started in a garage at the Ronald L. Bergren home, causing an estimated $20,000 damage, including a new $5,000 car, and considerable smoke and water damage was caused to the Keith Lindgren home next door.

Another fire destroyed an abandoned house and barn; a blaze was touched off in a pile of rubbish near the city auditorium without doing damage, and a grass fire was started south of town.

Taking Entries On Next Bull Test

Cattlemen who plan to enter bulls for the Kansas Bull Test Station's spring test must submit entries by May 1.

Dr. Keith Zoellner, Extension beef specialist at Kansas State University, explained calves born from August 1 through October 31, 1971, will be accepted for the spring test. Each entry must be accompanied by a $25 entry fee.

The station is sponsored jointly by the Kansas Livestock Association and Cooperative Extension Service at K-State. The test will be conducted at the Solomon Valley Feed Yard in Beloit.

Zoellner said calves must be delivered for the spring test on June 1 between 8 a.m. and 3 p.m. They must have a minimum weight per day of age of two pounds per day on arrival.

Each bull must be accompanied by an official health certificate, with one copy on file in the state livestock health office for bulls originating in Kansas. Bulls originating out of state must conform to interstate health regulations.

In addition to the health certificate, bulls must meet all brucellosis, tuberculosis and other health regulations, details of which can be acquired from Zoellner at Weber Hall, KSU, Manhattan.

Objectives of the test station are to compare gainability and conformation of bulls and their sires, to encourage herd improvement, and to encourage the use of records as a tool in beef production.

To be eligible for the sale at the test a bull must be in the approximate upper two-thirds of an

Oliver... wings up or down.

You're looking at farm-oriented engineering from the company restructured to serve your needs well for years to come—the Oliver Farm Equipment Division.

Let your Oliver/MM dealer show you the benefits of this new 263 box-beam disk harrow.

With wings up, it takes on your hardest soil, applying up to 118 lbs. per blade, as much as twice the cutting power of most disks.

With wings down, the 263 handles normal disking with widths up to 21 ft.—enough to make full use of big tractor power and to slice your largest fields down to size.

Wings lock down automatically and solidly, held firmly in place by wide gang hinges—providing uniform, full-width tillage. Or they latch up firmly for transport or for heavy-weight disking.

The 263 is simple, strong and neat with rigid 4-inch tubular frame.

Widths from 10 to 21 ft.; wing models above 16 ft.

Behind your Oliver/MM dealer is intensified support in parts distribution and strengthened training for the men in his shop. He will serve both Oliver and MM owners with efficiency, now and for years to come.

Egg Production Down, But More Chicks Hatched

Poultry flocks in Kansas produced 60 million eggs in February, down 7 million from February 1971 and the lowest for the month in records dating back through 1925, according to the Kansas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service.

The rate of lay during February averaged 18.44 eggs per layer, a record high for the month and compares with 17.72 a year earlier.

There were 3,252,000 hens and pullets of laying age on Kansas farms in February, 14 percent below February 1971.

The Nation's laying flock produced 5,848 million eggs during February, up 5 percent from February 1971. The extra day in February this year accounted for 3.6 percent of the increase.

Layers on hand during February averaged 325.3 million compared with 326.7 million a year earlier.

Rate of lay during February averaged 17.98 eggs per layer, up slightly from the 17.03 eggs in February last year.

Commercial hatcheries in Kansas hatched 830,000 chicks during February, almost twice the number hatched a year ago. The hatch was the largest for February since 1961.

The egg-type chicks hatched during February totaled 730,000 compared with 370,000 in February 1971. Broiler-type chicks hatched during February totaled 100,000 compared with 60,000 a year ago.

Prices received for chicks on February 1 by commercial hatcheries were $49.50 per 100 for hybrid egg-type pullet chicks, $32.50 per 100 for egg-type pure and cross breed pullets and $19.50 per 100 for broiler-type, straight-run chicks.

Oscar Mayer Speaker For KLA District

Denis Gaydon, Manager of Long Range Planning for the Oscar Mayer Company will be the featured speaker at a livestock meeting at the KSU Student Union on Wednesday, April 5.

Earl Moyer, Manhattan, director of the Kansas Livestock Association, the sponsor of the meeting, said all farmers and ranchers and their wives from Washington, Marshall, Nemaha, Clay, Riley and Pottawatomie Counties are invited to attend this meeting. He especially urged livestock producers and feeders that depend on the livestock business for their livelihood to attend.

Moyer stated that the meeting will start at 6:30 p.m. with a beef dinner at the Student Union. He said that Gaydon's talk will be very timely due to Oscar Mayer's plans to build a new pork slaughtering facility in the Manhattan area.

Along with Gaydon, Pat Koons, Topeka, Kansas Cattle-Fax analyst will be on hand to discuss current and future market trends. John Meetz, Topeka, KLA executive vice president will briefly report on the past legislative session.

Membership in KLA is not necessary to attend, but reservations are requested. Moyer said reservations could be made by calling him at 913-776-5943; Lee Walters at 913-539-1024; or the KLA office in Topeka at 913-232-9358.

Two hundred farmers and ranchers and their wives are expected for the meeting. Moyer encouraged stockmen to attend and learn about issues and industry developments that are on the forefront, state and national, that will affect their business.

List Showman Honors At KSU's Little Royal

Grand champion showmen in the 44th annual Little American Royal at Kansas State University, were Mike Croucher, senior in animal science from Westphalia, and Keith Call, freshman in agricultural engineering from Cedar Vale.

Croucher was the champion swine showman and went on to win top honors in the Block and Bridle Division with his Yorkshire gilt, while Call was the top showman in the Dairy Club Division.

The Little American Royal is a fitting and showing contest in which more than 150 KSU students participate annually. Students are judged on how well they prepare their University-owned animals for the show ring, and on their skill as showmen.

Ron Gatz, Newton, champion

sheep showman, was the Reserve Grand Champion for the Block and Bridle Division, while Neil Hammerschmidt, Hays, was the Reserve Grand Champion Dairy Showman. Other divisional champions included Dee Smith, 3300 West 99, Leawood, top horse showman; and Daye Sims, Raymore, Mo., top beef showman.

Three $100 scholarships were presented as a highlight of the Little American Royal. These went to Dee Likes, Route 3, Salina; Dale Nottingham, Lawrence; and Leon Dedonder, Reading.

Locate All Of Mercury-Treated Wheat From Dump

COURTLAND — An embargo has been placed on several farm animals fed poisonous mercury-treated wheat, Republic County Sheriff Robert Blecha says.

About 800 bushels of the wheat had been left last week at the city dump here by an elevator operator.

Blecha said Russell Thurber, 70, who had hauled several hundred bushels of the poisonous grain to his farm, fed some of it to "what he calls his menagerie" — chickens, rabbits, ducks, a pig and a goat.

"There's now an embargo against Thurber selling or giving away any of the animals or the eggs from the chickens and we've strongly advised him not to use any of the produce himself," the sheriff said.

He said Thurber was "most cooperative," and there was public danger from the situation although "it's hard on Thurber. He and his wife live on the farm and are pretty self-sufficient, mostly raising the things they need themselves."

Another farmer who had hauled away some of the grain still had it in storage.

All the grain not fed to Thurber's animals has now been buried at the dump, at Courtland, the sheriff said.

Ford Banned From Making Own Spark Plugs

The Supreme Court has ordered the Ford Motor Co. to stop manufacturing spark plugs for at least 10 years.

By a 7-0 vote, the high court ruled that Ford violated antitrust law in 1961 when it took over most of the Electric Autolite, Co., maker of Autolite spark plugs.

The ruling requires Ford, the second-largest automaker, to sell its spark plug factory in Fostoria, Ohio.

Ford acquired Autolite largely to get a share of the market in replacing spark plugs. At the time, Autolite had 15 per cent of the market, General Motors had 30 per cent and Champion 50 per cent.

Justice William O. Douglas, speaking for the court, said the acquisition set up virtually insurmountable barriers to the entry of new companies in the market of replacing spark plugs.

While Ford is prohibited from manufacturing spark plugs, it plans to continue marketing sparkplugs made by others under the "Motorcraft" name.

Ford must stay out of the spark plug business for 10 years, must purchase half of its spark plugs from the Ohio plant under the Autolite name for the next five years, and must not use its own trade names on plugs for five years.

Hog Carcass Winners From Mankato Show

The top swine carcasses of the N.C.K. Swine Association barrow show and carcass contest were announced at a meeting in Mankato on March 28th.

The exhibitors of the five highest placing carcasses were 1st — Vern Hardenburger of Narka; 2nd — Harvey Herrs, Linn; 3rd — Mike Hardenburger, Narka; 4th — John Beam, Eston; and 5th — Lorelei Dohl of Sylvan Grove.

The purpose of the carcass contest was to focus on the type of hog that is most desirable to the swine industry. Measurements of the animal's meatiness were taken at Cudahy Packing Company, Wichita.

The 230 lb. barrow exhibited by Vern Hardenburger had a Loin Eye area of 6.01 square inches, on 18.22 per cent Ham and a total Ham Loin index of 142.3. This barrow was also the champion live hog.

The reserve champion carcass barrow of Harvey Herrs weighed 240 lbs., had a 6.51 square inch Loin Eye, had a 17.67 percent Ham and indexed 141.8.

Judges for the live and carcass shows, Dr. Bill Able and Dr. Dave Schafer, respectively, showed slides and discussed many of the barrows exhibited at the 1972 show. Exhibitors placing in the top five the senior division included Mrs. Thaine Larson of Atchison and in the junior division; 2nd place—Rod Rose of Cawker City; 3rd place—James Thummel Esbon; 4th place was a tie between Diana Berry, Minneapolis, and David Crosson of Delphos.

April 4, 1972

Schools On Pesticide Use

A series of two-day training sessions for pesticide applicators and dealers will be held in Beloit, Mo., starting April 17. Extension specialist and coordinator of the Extension Chemical Task Force, James Thum, will conduct the training sessions. The sessions are for commercial applicators in preparation for examinations they must pass to qualify for a license to operate in 1973. A requirement under the Pesticide Use Law and regulations is that applicators be trained starting January 1, 1973. The sessions are also aimed at dealers and other pesticide users and other information they'll need to know to operate in 1973. Locations of the sessions are:

- April 17-18: Topeka
 - April 18-19: Eureka
 - April 19-20: Wichita
 - April 20-21: Concordia
 - April 25-26: Oakley
 - April 26-27: Garden City
- The first day of each conference will start with registration at 9 a.m., with adjournment set for 3:30 p.m. each day.
- Discussions will include federal and state regulations; pesticide safety; recommended herbicides and their nature; the pesticide container label; pesticide storage; proper use of herbicides, defoliants, desiccants, and plant growth regulators; recommended insecticides and their nature; recommended fungicides and nematicides and their nature; equipment and application; rodent control; insect identification and proper control; and disease identification and proper use of fungicides.
- KSU Extension specialists presenting the material will include Bieberly, Frank Morrison, Erick Nilson, Dell Gates, Leroy Brooks, Claude King, Bill Willis, Elwyn Holmes, and Robert Henderson. Bieberly urged all pesticide applicators to attend one of the conferences and to notify their county agent one week prior to the meeting if possible.

Post Office Backs Off From Intended Rate Increases

Postmaster General E. T. Klassen now plans to cancel the $450 million rate increase scheduled for next January.

"We must learn to live within our income," Klassen told a meeting of the U.S. Postal Service management.

"This means that without impairing service, costs must be substantially reduced in order to enable us to eliminate the need for a $450 million rate increase next January."

Klassen directed that there be no hiring in the Postal Service for 90 days.

The Postal budget for the 1973 fiscal year was $11.7 billion. Revenue for the postal service had been expected to increase by $818 million for the 1973 fiscal year with about one-half of that increase anticipated to come from postal rate hikes.

A postal service aide said the exact breakdown of the postal rate increase had not been determined when it was announced several months ago. But the postmaster general said in his speech that his new actions for saving money would seek to avoid the over-all postal increase.

The freeze on hiring was one of four immediate steps which Klassen called for to improve mail service and to reduce postal costs. The other steps included:

- Renewed emphasis on a service and customer courtesy.
- Broadly increased authority to regional postmasters general enabling them to transfer consenting employees among post offices in order to fill critical personnel needs without adding employees.
- Elimination by July 1 of the use of temporary employees, outside contractors or expert consultants to augment day-to-day work forces.

During the 90-day freeze Klassen said clerical vacancies are said to be filled by the promotion, transfer or reassignment of career postal employees.

"The public is not ready to absorb another postal rate increase in the immediate future unless we can clearly demonstrate that we have improved our service in a significant and consistent manner and that our costs have been dramatically reduced," said Klassen.

April 19, at the Mitchell County Fairgrounds in Beloit.

The bulls have been on test officially since Nov. 23-24, 1971, at the Solomon Valley Feed Yards in Beloit.

Dr. Keith Zoellner, Extension beef specialist at Kansas State University who assists in evaluating the bulls' performance, said the animals averaged 2.67 pounds gain per day when weighed on the 112th day of test.

Breeds and crosses on the present 140-day test include Hereford, Polled Hereford, Santa Gertrudis, Angus, Charolais, Shorthorn, Polled Shorthorn, and Simmental and Limousin percentages.

Zoellner said only the top two-thirds indexing bulls will be sold.

All information about each bull offered for sale — rate of gain, weight per day of age, final index, backfat thickness, ribeye area and semen evaluation results — will be available to prospective buyers.

Cattlemen wanting a copy of the 112-day weighing report or other information on the sale should contact Zoellner or Herman Westmeyer at Weber Hall, KSU, Manhattan.

The Kansas Bull Test Station is jointly sponsored by the Cooperative Extension Service at K-State and the Kansas Livestock Association. The first test and sale were completed last fall.

Emporia Takes Iowa Beef Plant Into City Taxes

The sprawling Iowa Beef Packers plant at Emporia has been annexed into the city limits, and the company figures that the change may cost them about $50,000 in property taxes.

The annexation, made by the city commissioners last week, was made over resistance from the company, though the opposition was termed "gentle" by the Emporia Gazette.

The total mill levy in Emporia is presently 108 mills, 29 more than the rate Iowa Beef is presently paying outside the city. The plant is assessed at slightly under $2 million. The difference in the rates would pretend an increase of more than $50,000 per year in Iowa Beef's local taxes.

Device To Measure Milo Need For Water

MANHATTAN — A discovery by Kansas Agricultural Experiment Station scientists at Kansas State University, Manhattan, should result in more efficient use of irrigation water, increased crop yields, and holding the line on meat, egg, and dairy product prices, Dr. Floyd W. Smith, director of the station, announced today.

The discovery is that measurements at mid-day of the underside of the last fully expanded leaf of a sorghum plant most accurately indicates plants stressed from lack of moisture.

The outer epidermis of leaves, like the outer skin of human beings, has small pores that release gases and water vapor and admit carbon dioxide for growth. As plants start to be stressed by lack of moisture, the pores of the leaves begin to close — stopping moisture and gases from escaping and carbon dioxide from entering. That lets the plants wait much longer for moisture without dying (because they stop growing) than they could with open pores.

Grass & Grain

April 4, 1972

Dr. E. T. Kanemasu designed a special porometer to measure water vapor escaping from a leaf. It is now available commercially so any irrigator farmer can use one to help him keep crops growing efficiently. Kanemasu and other members of the research team that made the discovery (An-Jen Chen, W. L. Powers, and I. D. Teare) measured moisture vapor escaping from sorghum plants more than 5,000 times during the 1971 growing season, and discovered that plant growth (photosynthesis) and water vapor escaping declined together.

A porometer is easily carried, easy to operate, available for $250, and its readings are highly superior to soil-moisture tests or other tests researchers have been able to make with scientific apparatus. For example, on August 14 last year escape of water vapor dropped 500 percent but leaf water potential (another scientific measurement) dropped only 15 percent.

The discovery, made studying sorghum, will apply equally well with corn, soybeans, and other irrigated crops.

How will that help hold the line on prices consumers pay for meat, eggs, and dairy products?

That's what all agricultural research is about, Dr. Smith said. Final beneficiaries of all such research are consumers. They are the reason for all agricultural research. Such discoveries make it possible to produce feeds for poultry and livestock cheaper. It is agricultural research that accounts for the United States spending a smaller percentage of its money and a small percentage of its labor force than other countries do in producing food.

Irrigated acreages are relatively small, so this discovery won't make a big difference in food prices but it will help, Smith explained, and it certainly will help Kansas remain competitive with other U.S. regions in food production.

LOOKING IT OVER

Merrill Pogue of Minneapolis looks over some of the displays in one of the buildings. There were displays in three buildings as well as a large out-door area at Kenwood Park at Salina's Farm Show.

Tested Boar Sale Averages $185

Fifty six performance tested boars averaged $185 during a Kansas Boar Test Station sale at Kansas State University. Information on the tested boars available to buyers included rate of gain, feed efficiency, back thickness, loin eye area, and age at 220 pounds. Data were also available on a littermate barrow. The rate of gain and carcass measurements were collected on barrows fed at the station at K-State and slaughtered in the Animal Science and Industry meats laboratory. The top selling boar was a Yorkshire, purchased from Lauer Farms of Hope by Jon R. Howe of Manhattan for $420. It was the high indexing pig in the sale. Two boars tied for second place. Another Yorkshire from Lauer Farms was sold to Cecil Phillips of Valley Falls for $360, the same price that Larry Nichols of Alton paid for a Duroc owned by Cletus Young of Manhattan. Selling for $330, good for a fourth place tie, were a Hampshire owned by John Weir of Geuda Springs and purchased by Guy McDiffitt of Alma, and a Chesterwhite owned by Floyd Meyer of Palmer and bought by Tom Hull of Asherville. A Hampshire slaughter pig owned by Steve Zumbrunn of Junction City had the best ham-join index, for which the owner won a rotating trophy. A trophy also went to the owner of the high indexing boar. Another group of boars goes on test in April for an August sale. The boar testing project is sponsored by the Kansas Pork Producers Council and K-State.

SALE EVERY

Thursday

Our run of cattle last Thursday, March 30th, was much larger than we expected. There were a lot of cattle that came in that no one knew anything about, and they found a real good market, with all classes of cattle selling at sharply higher prices. The exception was of heavier feeder cattle and cattle that were showing too much feed. This kind of cattle was harder to move.

Please take note of our cow and bull market. Following is a partial listing of our sale last week:

Nebr. Beef Higher In '52'

At Hastings, Nebraska, the price of beef at retail stores is just about double what it was back in 1952.

At markets serving the Hastings area, however, farmers are now getting a little less for their cattle than they did back when hamburger was 49 cents a pound and sirloin steak was selling at 85 cents a pound.

Senator Carl Curtis of Nebraska recently put in the Congressional Record a comparison he made of cattle and retail beef prices in Jan. 1952 and Feb. 1972 which had been gleaned from the Hastings, Nebr. newspaper.

Here's what he found, comparing nearby cattle prices to Hastings retail prices:

Cattle and Retail Beef Prices In Hastings, Nebraska	Jan. 9, 1952	Feb. 16, 1972
Prime Cattle	$39.00 cwt	$38.00 cwt.
Most Choice to Prime	$33.50-$38.00	$34.00 to $37.00
Swiss Steak	$0.85 lb.	$1.69 lb.
Round Steak	.98	$1.38
Hamburger	.49	.98
Sirloin Steak	.85	$1.63
Beef Roast	.65	$1.19
Prime Ribs	.69	$1.29

Musk Thistle Emerging Early

McPherson County Weed Supervisor Curtis Walline warns area farmers and ranchers to be on the lookout for the emergence of musk thistles.

"It appears this year that the thistles are starting to come up about a month earlier and they should either be dug up or sprayed before they have a chance to bloom," Walline said.

The musk thistle, a noxious weed, will probably start blooming in early May and according to Walline, each bloom releases 25,000 to 30,000 seeds.

"The county will start spraying in about a week so that we can try to get the thistles under control," he said.

Walline said the county crews sprayed about 2,000 acres of area land which last year was infested with the thistles.

If the plants are allowed to bloom, they can travel as much as 25 miles per year, he said. "The thing to do is watch for them and get them before they get a very big start," Walline continued.

He also noted certain precautions in digging up and burning the plants. "The roots should be cut at least 4 inches below the surface of the ground and the plants should be burned in some form of enclosed container to keep the seeds from filtering out."

Highway Patrol Recruiting

The superintendent of the Kansas Highway Patrol says that, beginning April 10 continuing through May 5, three members of the Patrol will be at various locations throughout the state for the purpose of recruiting qualified young men for the twenty-five new trooper positions which were requested by Governor Docking and approved by the 1972 Legislature.

The Patrol is interested in securing applications from young men, twenty-two to thirty-five years of age, who can pass the physical exam and educational requirements and are interested in a professional police career. They have never been short of applicants but, through the years, the number of applications has substantially decreased, especially in the minority groups. It is hoped that men of all races who meet the qualifications and who are interested in a police career will take advantage of this opportunity and submit their applications for a trooper position.

The three-member teams will consist of troopers representing Mexican, Black and White Americans and they will be able to answer any and all questions about the Kansas Highway Patrol, including duties, salary and retirement.

Sale Barn At Eskridge Sold

ESKRIDGE — The Flint Hills Livestock Auction has been sold by Leo Bohn to Jurl Doerschlag, who will operate the sale on the same sale day, each Wednesday. The new owner is from Topeka. The barn last year sold something over 4000 head cattle and 11,000 head of hogs.

JIMMIE DEAN LEAVES HUTCHINSON FAR-MAR-CO

Far-Mar-Co, a giant Hutchinson based grain marketing cooperative, is losing the man most responsible for its formation. James H. (Jimmie) Dean vice president and general manager has announced his retirement Sept. 1. He will be succeeded as manager by George Voth, manager of Garden City Cooperative Equity Exchange.

Coming on with Hot Orange Power!

1st at 14,000 lbs.—Al Arnold, Martinsville, Indiana—two years in a row with his A-C 220. "Credit my winning to that A-C 426 cu. in. engine. It's a producer!"

1st at 12,000 lbs.—Don Kolb, Evansville, Indiana, an Allis-Chalmers 220. "If you don't have it in the engine, you can't get it to the ground. And that A-C power train is first across the finish line, too!"

1st at 9,000 lbs.—Ed Miller, Rockport, Illinois, an Allis-Chalmers D-21. "Sure, my A-C engine is best on the pull. It's built to go all the way... from block to battery!"

These drivers and their Allis-Chalmers tractors sweep the big power classes at Louisville!

What they do on the track, they do in the field. When these orange giants buck their way out of the starting gate, they make every Allis-Chalmers owner stand a little taller. Because these winning pullers tell everyone why you bought orange... for power, endurance, total performance.

And they showed a crowd of 16,000 at Louisville* how these things make a tractor great.

With...engine performance. The ability of a turbo-charged goer to produce peak power over the full course. To keep it over the long, hard pulls... producing, lugging, until every pore in the block turns beet-red and screams in agony.

With...response to tough sudden loads that pit engine, clutch, gears and shafts against the drag of 45,000 lbs. With stamina that takes it without a whimper... stands up to the pressures and pain of giving every ounce of surge these full-ribbed blocks can stand.

We say...track performance carries over to field performance. That Allis-Chalmers engines with wet sleeves, seven bearing crankshafts, opposed manifolds and crankshaft driven oil pumps make it perform big pulling a plow, harrow or planter. That Allis-Chalmers power trains have all the size and strength to walk off with most any "sled" you hook up.

So, if you demand peak power all day, shouldn't you have proven orange power?

See your Allis-Chalmers dealer...he can turn track orange into practical, profit-making field orange for you.

We can help you grow.

Every day a few more farmers learn...Allis-Chalmers is big in big tractors.

Now There Are 2...

We've got another truck, this second one a new tandem, and OI' Ev wants you to know that you can buy two tractors and have both delivered at the same time. Could sell 'em a little cheaper that way, too. We've also taken on an all electric, battery driven riding mower for those who like to be really uptown. Also, there will be some well drillers in the area this week. If you've got anything in mind that involves moving water from here to there, be sure to call OI' Ev.

Feed Milling Short Course Set May 22 - June 9

Kansas State University's department of grain science and industry, in cooperation with the American Feed Manufacturer's Association, Inc., will sponsor a Feed Manufacturing Technology Short Course, May 22 to June 9.

Dr. Harry Pfost, professor of grain science and industry, said this course is intended for people with at least a high school education and several years' experience on the job. Students attending the course will have a better idea of the basic theories and concepts of feed manufacturing and industry practices.

The instructional staff will include faculty of the KSU department of grain science and industry, along with members from the various departments of the College of Agriculture. As an added bonus, lectures will be given by leaders in the industry. The department's pilot feed mill will be used for instruction and demonstration along with the department's other facilities.

A wide variety of topics will be covered by the course. A few of these include feed ingredients and formulations, feed manufacturing processes, mill design and layout, quality control, sanitation, personnel and plant safety, personnel relations, management, and mill operation.

Students for the course will be housed in the Ramada Inn near the campus. A fee of $575 will be charged to defray costs of conducting the course. This fee will also include room and board. All other supplies will be furnished, except personal items.

Pfost said that no more than 48 students will be accepted for the course. More than 30 applications already have been accepted for the course. Those wanting more information about the course should contact Dr. Robert Schoeff, department of grain science and industry, Kansas State University, Manhattan.

Little State Attention To Highway Safety?

Claud R. McCammett, Kansas highway safety director, said Kansas is not paying enough attention to highway safety or there would be a greater effort to stop the death and injury on state roads. "What kind of civilization are we living in that we really don't seem to care?" asked McCammett, who released a report on highway accidents, deaths and injuries for 1971. "Why do many of us die by and assume this crippling carelessness will take care of themselves?"

"Is it that we are numb to our responsibilities to increase our efforts in traffic law enforcement? Don't we care? Why don't all of us as citizens take action?"

McCammett's report showed that 678 persons died on Kansas highways in 1971 and 25,837 more were injured in a total of 54,114 traffic accidents reported.

The death list included 63 in Sedgwick County, 39 each in Shawnee and Wyandotte Counties, 29 in Johnson, 25 in Leavenworth, 19 in Cowley, 16 in Douglas and Neosho.

Wyandotte County led in the number of traffic accident injuries, with 4,107, while Johnson County had 2,943, Shawnee, 2,359, Douglas 1,084, Sedgwick 1,011, Reno 859, Saline 595, Butler 525 and Riley 514.

McCammett's report and a cover letter went out to all police departments, sheriff's, educators and members of the news media.

The safety director said that if some disease killed and maimed so many people "you and I would raise our voices to the sky and pray for a solution and rave for attention to the problem."

McCammett said in 10 years Kansas has killed 6,547 and injured 285,794 on its roads and highways, with a total cost of $1.5 billion.

"I urge you to study this last year's report of horror of Kansas wrecks and make a real effort to stem this tide of carelessness behind the wheel," McCammett wrote, urging stricter enforcement of driving laws and tougher penalties for those convicted.

18 Years Now Age Of Majority Except For Booze

A bill lowering the age of majority in Kansas from 21 to 18 for everything but buying and drinking liquor has been signed into law by Gov. Robert Docking.

The age-of-majority bill had gone to a conference committee to resolve a clash between the House and the Senate over what should be the legal age for drinking. The House stand to keep the drinking age at 21 prevailed, and the Senate accepted it.

Young people, beginning July 1 this year, will therefore be considered adults for all legal purposes in Kansas except the purchase or consumption of alcoholic beverages.

Members of the Legislature who are attorneys—even those in the Senate who advocated lowering the drinking age to 18—said there is little likelihood that court challenge of the 21-year drinking age could be successful because there are many court decisions which have ruled that the arbitrary setting of a legal drinking age is within the police powers of a state.

More Statistical Detail On '71 Wheat Crop

Summer fallowed cropland in Kansas in 1971 totaled 6,020,000 acres, about 1 percent less than a year earlier, according to the Kansas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service.

The acreage summer fallowed in 1971 was the sixth largest for the State in a quarter century. In the fall of 1971, wheat was seeded on 5,387,000 acres of summer fallowed land. This accounted for 89 percent of the State's total summer fallowed land, compared with 85 percent a year earlier.

Wheat seeded on summer fallowed land in the fall of 1971 represented 53 percent of the State's total seeded to wheat and compares with 54 percent a year earlier. Some 2 percent of the State's wheat acreage was seeded on irrigated land and 45 percent on continuously cropped dryland.

In the western one-third of Kansas, 4,036,000 acres were summer fallowed in 1971, about the same as a year earlier. Wheat seeded on summer fallowed land during the fall of 1971 in the western third totaled 3,572,000 acres. This was 87 percent of the total wheat seeded in the area and 89 percent of the fallow acreage.

Summer fallowed acreage in the central third of Kansas was 1,984,000 acres, or 3 percent less than a year earlier. Wheat seeded on fallowed land in the central districts in the fall of 1971 totaled 1,815,000 acres, 37 percent of all wheat seeded and 91 percent of the total fallowed land.

Virtually no land is in cultivated summer fallow in the eastern one-third of Kansas. In this report wheat seeded on land which was both summer fallowed and irrigated is considered as planted on irrigated land.

About 55 percent of the State's total 1971 wheat crop was produced on summer fallowed land, 42 percent was produced on continuously cropped land and 3 percent on irrigated land. In the western third of the State 88 percent of the area's 1971 wheat production was on summer fallowed land, and in the central third 42 percent.

In the western third of the State abandonment of wheat seeded on summer fallowed acreage was 4 percent, compared with 22 percent of that sown on continuously cropped dryland. In the central third, 3 percent of the summer fallowed seedings were abandoned, compared with 7 percent of the wheat sown on continuously cropped dryland.

In the western third of Kansas yield per acre on summer fallowed land averaged 33.0 bushels per harvested acre, compared with 19.4 bushels per acre for continuously cropped dryland and 45.9 bushels for irrigated land.

In the central third of the State wheat yields on summer fallow averaged 37.0 bushels, on continuously cropped dryland 33.4 bushels, and on irrigated land 45.3 bushels.

Individual county gains in yield per acre for fallowing as compared with continuous cropping were larger in the lighter rainfall western portions of the area.

Wheat production on Kansas farms in 1971 totaled 312,605,000 bushels, the largest wheat crop in the State's history. This year's crop was 2 percent larger than the previous record high output of 1952. Wheat was seeded on 9,593,000 acres, 1 percent less than a year earlier. The harvested wheat acreage of 9,061,000 acres was equal to that of the previous year.

The State's average yield per harvested acre of 34.5 bushels was the highest of record, exceeding the previous record yield of 1970 by 1.5 bushels. Wheat planting during the fall of 1970 lagged a little behind usual, but most seeding was completed during September and October in the western two-thirds of the State and a little later in the eastern districts.

The crop came through the winter quite well with relatively little damage from blowing or winter kill. General rains in May aided the crop's development and cool, damp weather late in the month and early in June helped the grain fill well. Harvest started about normal time along the southern border and after some delay by intermittent rains moved ahead to a rather rapid completion by mid-July.

April 4, 1972

Dates On Buy Ewes Program

Kansas Quality Sheep Committee recently announced their 1972 Ewe Buying Program, announced John Meetz, Vice President of the Kansas Livestock Association. Meetz stated that George Ahlschwede, sheep extension specialist at Kansas State University will go to the ewes and arrange for the purchase.

According to Ahlschwede there is a good supply of Southwest yearling ewes in Texas and the winter conditions have been good. He says they weigh about 90-95 pounds, be open faced and will have been shorn in early April. Ewes this year are expected to cost $27 to $29 a head f.o.b. Texas.

Meetz encouraged any sheepmen interested in obtaining top quality yearling ewes to contact George Ahlschwede, Weber Hall, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kansas 66502.

He needs to receive orders by April 15. His Texas address will be Box 611, Del Rio, Texas 78840. Ahlschwede may also be contacted in Manhattan in the evenings at 913-539-1429 until April 16, and in Del Rio, Texas 512-775-3977 after the 15th.

Meetz said the Kansas Quality Sheep Committee has been in operation for several years, assisting sheepmen to obtain top quality replacements. In addition to this function the main purpose of the committee is the promotion of the commercial sheep raising industry in Kansas. This year's chairman of the committee is Fred Gnad from Alma.

Members of the committee include representatives from the following organizations: Kansas Purebred Sheep Breeders Association, Kansas Sheep and Wool Association, Kansas State University, Kansas Farm Bureau Federation, Sheep Producers in Kansas, Midwest Wool Marketing Co-op, St. Joseph Livestock Market, Kansas City Livestock Market, Wichita Livestock Market and Kansas Livestock Association.

from the University of Kansas apparently will not materialize. Francis Heller, vice chancellor for academic affairs at KU, acknowledged that the turnover at KU will not be any more than normal. When James Koevenig, a prominent faculty member left KU last winter with a public statement that Kansas was not adequately supporting higher education, there were rumblings from the faculty that more of them would be looking for jobs elsewhere, Koevenig, now in the Florida university system, told the Lawrence Journal-World that Florida was "not my cup of tea."

Eastern Kansas Now Dominates Milo Scene

While southwestern Kansas irrigators have been stealing the thunder of the traditional corn-producing counties in northeast Kansas in the last couple of years, an even greater reversal is occurring in milo production.

For several years now, a tier of counties along the Nebraska border have been producing milo in as large quantities as the former western Kansas stronghold. Last year the shift in production came around about full circle.

Not only was Marshall county the state's leading milo producer but eight of the top 10 producers were east of Interstate 35W. Not only was the 8 out of 10 ratio true of total output but also the line in yield and acreage harvested.

Marshall county (Marysville) had a total output, by Crop Reporting Service estimate, of 6.75 million bushels. Stevens county (Hugoton) was second with 6.1 million.

In all 15 counties produced more than four million bushels each.

Butler, Marion and Osage counties finished 3-4-5 behind Marshall and Stevens. Rounding out the top 10 were Nemaha, Washington, Finney, Brown and Republic counties.

The state's 1971 sorghum grain production was 233.5 million bushels, the largest on record. The output was 60 percent greater than the 1970 crop and 28 percent more than the previous record, set in 1969.

About 18 percent of the 1971 crop was produced on irrigated land, mostly in western Kansas. Finney county with 3.9 million bushels was the leading county in irrigated milo production. Even with irrigation, however, western Kansas counties produced no better yields than did the eastern part of the state. Eight of the top 10 counties in yield were from east of I35W. Top yielding counties averaged better than 80 bushels per acre.

The state's average yield was 54 bushels per acre, a couple of bushels less than the 1969 record. Irrigated fields averaged over 86 bushels per acre.

Stevens county had the most

Good Morning, Feeders . . . and Hi, Mom

Hey congratulations to the Cowmen of the USA!! Under attack and pressure from consumer and governmental groups, their leaders of Cattle Organizations, Bureaus, and Associations did not break their normal pace as they purposefully and smilingly proceed on their quest for greater memberships, increased insurance sales, and additional commissions.

A few leaders took time to fire a telegram to Washington and a newsletter to their members. Unfortunately, who else saw the message?

What am I talking about? Mom, last week the American cattlemen, were overmatched from many directions. It started with LBJ's ex-Consumer Guide, Mrs. Esther Peterson, who surely uses Eleanor Roosevelt for her beautification guidelines with a 1932 hairdo that does her great justice. Esther, now a chain executive with Giant Foods of Washington, had inserted full page advertisements and appeared on national TV urging consumers not to buy beef!

But Cowmen sat blissfully by. They hid when the USDA raised the Import Quotas; when the USDA Grading Service set up a new standard for "Bulls—not a Bullocks," when the USDA erred on the Pig Crop by 6 percent and missed the cattle slaughter by 21,000 head on Washington's "Union" birthday; and erred by 8000 head the third week in March. All events were psychological depressants and sent finished cattle and beef prices down $40 a head from mid February through March 29th. Not one disclaimer.

It was past time to attack. To be heard. It was time to rock the nation, to boycott Giant. Time for Cowbells and Cowmen to go to Washington — to camp on Giant Foods parking lot and hand out "dog biscuit" sandwiches — Free — to Giant customers who were being told of the cattlemen's greed. Time to whip up a cattlemen's frenzy. Time to put fear of future repercussions in the minds and hearts of all these saint-like, fork-tongued Consumer Guides.

We needed a Sir Galahad, a Lancelot, even a Prince Valiant on national TV. We needed a dynamic, howling force. Unfortunately, we got a whisper — a whimper from the handsome Bill McMillen, debonair lobbyist, who claimed high costs and proclaimed something about 16 minutes and 32½ seconds of labor would buy a pound of beef. Mrs. Peterson laughed him aside.

Mom, millions of dollars are collected by various associations. Is there not one fund that meets emergencies forcefully and quickly? Must problems be met too late, until ultra-conservative directors meet and table suggestions for further study?

On last Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday the Terminal yard fat cattle were 25-50 higher, (36.40 at Sioux City, 37.25 at Joliet on the first advance in four weeks). Then came calamity in the personage of Secretary John Connally. In a business that if two competition stores get their heads together the market suffers, Mr. Connally called together the leaders of the nation's twelve largest chains!

The Yellow Sheet on steer beef sat $1.50 below the August 14 Phase I price freeze. But the ill-informed Mr. Connally by persuasion and suggestion set in force indirect price controls. Direct results: another $2 drop in carlot beef!! Mr. Connally who had originally left no Phase I guidelines, made strictly a political move, but will become the consumer's White Knight! Guilty chain stores will evolve chaste and the protectors against the plotting cattlemen. Cattlemen will end up culprits.

But Mom, whenever a concerned group goes to Washington filled with fire and anxious to destroy the Walls of Jericho, guess where they end up? Oh, posing for pictures with their inept, braggadocious Senator or Representative who paternally reads them a mimeographed page from one of his speeches and tells them of the hopelessness of combatting the consumer plurality.

Mom, if that argument is true and we have 200 million telephones but only one phone combine, then how come the consumer can not politically overwhelm there, too? Or is that where the campaign money lies?

I must say on dues collecting, on checkoffs, at bars during conventions, our Cattle Executives are great. On small issues, they are unexcelled.

But any emergency with expenses to three figures, or on any lobbying issue beyond coyote protection or the hand shaking stage, we'd be better off to hire a bartender from the BPOE or a hustler at the pool hall.

Cherokee Co. Tops Soybean Yield For Tenth Year

Cherokee County on the southeastern tip of Kansas produced 1,000,500 bushels of soybeans in 1971 to make it the highest soybean producing county in Kansas for the tenth consecutive year, according to the Kansas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service.

Anderson, Crawford and Allen counties were second, third and fourth in that order, each with a production of over one million bushels.

The remaining top ten soybean producing counties were Coffey, Franklin, Neosho, Brown, Osage and Labette, each with over 600,000 bushels.

In major soybean growing counties, Douglas County was highest yield per acre with an average of 30 bushels, followed by Leavenworth, Doniphan, Johnson and Shawnee, all above 25 bushels. There were also yields per acre above 25 bushels in a number of counties in the western part of Kansas where small acreages of soybeans were grown under irrigation.

Cherokee County was first among counties in acres harvested with 89,100 acres followed by Anderson with 62,000 acres, Crawford with 55,000, Coffey with 44,600, Labette with 44,100 and Allen with 43,600.

Kansas soybean production in 1971 totaled 17,856,000 bushels, 18 percent above 1970. It was the sixth largest soybean crop on record, but was exceeded in five of the previous six years.

The state averaged 20.5 bushels per acre. This was 5.5 bushels above 1970, but otherwise lowest since 1964. Acres of soybeans planted totaled 880,000 acres of which 871,000 were harvested as beans.

Planting of the 1971 crop lagged in late May and early June because of muddy fields. Dry weather in August reduced soybean yields in many areas. Harvest proceeded normally from mid-September through October but was delayed by wet fields in November.

Kansas Quick On Rights Amendment For Women

Kansas has become one of the first seven states to ratify the equal rights for women amendment to the U.S. Constitution. The House voted 86-37 to accept the amendment which had been adopted by Congress the week before and the Senate followed suit with a 34-5 vote.

The amendment, which will be the 27th to the U.S. Constitution if ratified by three-fourths of the state legislatures, provides merely that "equality of rights under the law shall not be denied nor abridged by the United States or by any state on account of sex." It will become effective two years after ratification.

The only two female representatives in the House, Mrs. Josephine Younkin, D-Junction City, and Mrs. Glee Jones, R-Hamlin, voted against it.

For Sale Don Gronau Hog Ranch

120 ACRES

Located 1 Mile Northeast of Bethel College, Newton, Kansas

Farrowing units — Consists of an 18- by 56-foot controlled environment house built over a 70- by 120-foot lagoon. It has 22 crates and slatted floors. The insulated structure is ventilated with air-flow fans and magnetical, controlled windows. Heat lamps are used for baby pigs. Sows remain in the crates, where feeders and waterers are mounted on the floor to allow for easy access.

Nursery unit — This 18- by 36-foot structure sits over a lagoon. It has an aluminum floor, and waste is handled through the lagoon system. The nursery is divided into four pens equipped with a feeder and two waterers.

"We refer to the nursery unit as a miracle house," says Gronau. "Our pigs, which are kept here until they reach 70 to 80 pounds, really seem to do well in this building."

Finishing unit — This unit consists of two buildings, one that is 30- by 120-feet over a 100- by 150-foot lagoon and another that is 34- by 80-feet.

The larger building has 10 concrete pens, each with a 12-door Smedley feeder and continuous flow watering system. The pens have a 6-foot slatted floor area over the lagoon.

The smaller building has eight pens similar to those in the larger house. Outside 64-foot long dirt pens can be opened up during dry periods for exercise. This unit is used primarily for breeding stock.

Sow housing units — These six structures, each with 24-head capacity, are arranged wagon-wheel fashion into individual sow feeding stalls. The sows are fed individually in a central feeding area, although each pen is easily accessible and maximum use is made of the feeding floor for both feeding, sorting and working.

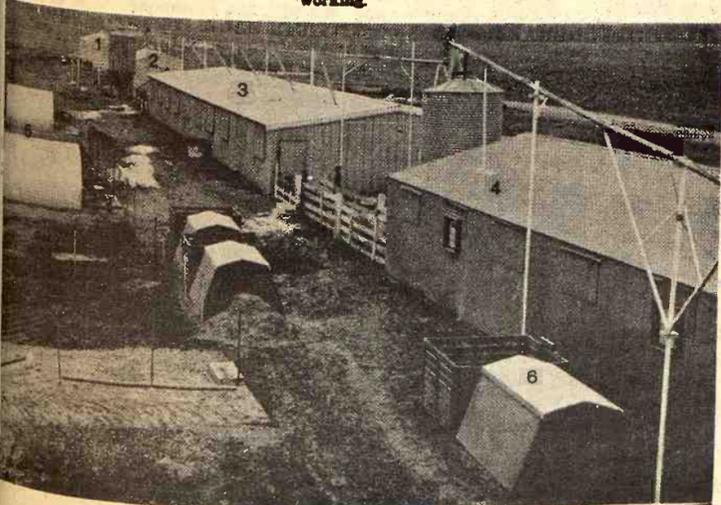

Boar housing units — Gronau's herd boars are kept in individual 32- by 48-foot pens. Two boars share each 12- by 12-foot house, which is divided by a panel wire embedded in the concrete. The boar units are next to the sow units to help in heat detection.

Feed milling and multi-purpose building — "We finally decided we could justify the cost of our own feed processing unit," says Gronau, "so we designed a system that would be labor-saving, efficient and serviceable." Two 15,000-bushel hopper bottomed bins were constructed with service augers to the mill.

The mill is housed at one end of the building with an overhead auger system that will deliver feed 60 feet. The system has feed drops to any pen and feeder in any of the buildings.

Three bedroom all electric home, new in 1968.

Most of Gronau's hog facilities can be seen in this view from on top of the mill building. 1. The farrowing house. 2. The nursery. 3. The finishing unit. 4. The breeding stock unit. 5. Boar housing. 6. Individual portable farrowing house with a slide porch. Note the overhead delivery system which carries feed to all of the buildings and to any feeder within the buildings.

we are to provide better telephone service without unnecessary increased expense."

Brandt said in the memorandum the Dept. of Administration would begin its study of long distance line usage starting April 3. "During the study, it will be necessary for our operators to request the number being called as well as the calling station number.

"This will provide us with much needed data to improve the availability of the long distance lines," Brandt said in the memo to agency heads.

WATS is the telephone company
abbreviation for Wide Area Telephone Service. It is a program under which a client, in this case the state, pays a flat monthly fee for long distance service without regard to the number of calls made by the client during the period.

The state has several WATS lines for use by its agencies and pays a sizable monthly fee for the service.
Any state employe can dial the State Office Building operator during the day and request a WATS line. There usually is a waiting line for WATS, and the apparent delay is believed to be what prompted Brandt to issue the memo and initiate the study.

Brandt, who could not be reached for comment on the WATS line memorandum because of the Easter holiday schedules, said in the memo,
"Each agency head is requested to remind his employes that personal use of the state's long distance lines is strictly prohibited."

Missouri Price War On Beer

A beer war has erupted on the Missouri side of the Kansas City area that has seen the price of a major brand six-pack that normally sells for $1.35 drop to 95 cents.

"I guess in the sense of comparing it to a gas war, you could say it's a beer war," said William H. Oberbeck, director of liquors for Milgram Food Stores, Inc. Milgram has 24 stores on the Missouri side of the metropolitan area.

Besides making beer drinkers happy, the competition has put the pressure on the single store retailers, said John F. Balestrere,

State Workers Abusing Phones?

Excessive use of WATS telephone circuits by state employes for personal calls has prompted the Dept. of Administration to initiate a study of WATS line usage.

Robert F. Brandt, executive director of the Administration Dept.
said in a memo to all state agency heads, "The increase in personal use of these lines is making it practically impossible to place business calls.
"Your cooperation is essential if owner of a liquor store.

He said the store had to sell 1,650 cases of beer to equal the profit made on 200 cases before a 40-cent discount allowed by some distributors.
Balestrere said the beer war involves most of the chain and discount stores and since the price war does not include Kansas stores, many residents west of the state line purchase their brew in Missouri.

Flu Vaccine Whether Works Or Not

Professional investigators say 32 effective vaccines were allowed to remain on the market for at least years while drug regulators exchanged memos. Furthermore, for three years the Division of Biologics Standards allowed flu vaccines even when its showed potency to be as low as 1 per cent of standards, says the General Accounting Office.

In releasing the GAO report Thursday, Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., said: "The DBS control official for influenza vaccine has stated that, in his opinion, if manufacturers could get away with it, they would sell water as vaccine. "The GAO report indicates that, between 1966 and 1968, with respect to influenza vaccines, manufacturers were being allowed to do very nearly that."

DBS is a division of the Health, Education and Welfare Department's National Institutes of Health. Ribicoff, HEW secretary under President John F. Kennedy, said he is urging HEW Secretary Elliot L. Richardson to review the question of flu vaccine effectiveness even when used at full strength.

Spokesman for NIH and drug makers had no immediate comment.

In urging action to remove ineffective biological products from interstate commerce, GAO said it found 75 of the 263 biologic products licensed by DBS "generally were not recognized — according to the director of DBS — as being effective by most of the medical profession."

DBS said its failure to move against ineffective vaccines was caused by a belief that HEW did not have legal power to require that vaccines be effective in use, while HEW's general counsel believed authority had existed since the 1962 drug law amendments, Ribicoff said in a Senate speech.

county have been using misleading sales information.

Emery Goad, a representative of the consumer protection division of the attorney general's office, said that some of these people have stated they are taking a readership survey, or allege they have books to be placed in the home free, and all that the subscriber has to do is pay for an annual supplement at low cost.

"This supplement turns out to be a payment of $49.50 a year, on a 10-year contract," he said.

Subscribers are reminded that they are entitled to a three-day cooling off period under the truth-in-lending law.

"If they were victims of a scheme where the salesmen used words like taking a survey or placing books, or offering encyclopedias free, it is a violation of the Kansas buyers' protection act."

"They should write to the attorney general's office in Topeka for two reasons, one of which is to help them if they no longer want the books. They also can be helpful in a pending case filed by the attorney general's office in Wichita."
