Farmer's Tie With Exports Not Exaggerated

For many years farmers have been aware of the importance of exports to agriculture, but always it has been difficult to relate foreign sales to the individual farm. When a farmer delivers his wheat to the local elevator, he can't possibly know whether it will end up at a flour mill in Kansas City or in Timbuktu.

It might be said he could care less, but the fact is U.S. agriculture would be in terrible shape without the export outlets and this is becoming more true year after year. In response to this situation, the Department of Agriculture has made a special study, followed by a report, on what the export trade actually means to producers of any grain crop and to their state.

In agricultural exports Kansas stands sixth. Kansas, as might be expected, exports more wheat than any other state in the nation.

Some rather startling statistics come from the USDA study.

The United States is the world's largest exporter of farm products. Of all the farm products moving from one nation to another, the United States supplies about one-sixth.

In the 1969-70 fiscal year which ended June 30, the United States shipped 90 per cent of all the soybeans that were exported. It exported two-fifths of all the wheat and feed grain moving into world trade; over a third of all the tobacco and cotton; and about one-fifth of all the rice moving into international trade channels.

Altogether U.S. exports in the last year required nearly 60 million tons of cargo space, enough to fill 1.1 million freight cars or more than 4,000 cargo ships. To move these exports, an average of 12 ships departed daily from the United States.

For these exports, the crops obviously had to be produced on farms. But also all 60 million tons of cargo required financing, inland transportation, storage and ocean transportation. It was a tremendous business.

The value on agricultural exports the last fiscal year was 6.6 billion dollars, 16 per cent over the previous year and the third highest in history. Since exports the first quarter of the new fiscal year were at a record pace, it appears probable the total for this year also will set a new record.

Nearly nine-tenths of the agricultural exports were for dollars — this means 5.7 billion dollars out of the 6.6 billion. In recent years, exports for dollars have been on the increase while those under government programs have been declining.

In the last fiscal year, commodities exported took the harvest from 61 million acres, or the output from one out of every five crop acres in this country.

Exports provided an outlet (above domestic needs) for four-fifths of the production of dry edible peas; over three-fifths of the rice; half the soybeans; two-fifths of the wheat; two-fifths of the cattle hides; over a third of the tallow and tobacco; over a fourth of the cotton, raisins, hops and prunes; one-sixth of the lard; one-sixth of the milo; one seventh of the corn and one-tenth of the variety meats.

USDA economists explain that in their efforts to attribute to each state its share of the exports they took into account each state's production of a commodity. Thus with Kansas producing more wheat than any other state, it could be assumed Kansas exported more of the bread grain. It is explained that regardless of which state produces the actual commodities moving into the export market, all states benefit from the foreign purchases. However, the economists went much further than just taking production figures from the individual states. They also studied trade patterns, actual sales, checked with exporters and transportation officials and others to get what they conclude are far more comprehensive estimates on each states contributions to the foreign sales than production figures alone would give.

No. 1 in farm exports is Illinois, which in the last fiscal year accounted for 560 million dollars of the foreign trade, or nearly a 10th of the national total. Illinois is the leading state in the export of soybeans, protein meal and soybean oil and feed grains. It also is important in wheat, lard, tallow, meats, hides and skins.

The No. 2 state is California which gets into an entirely different category of products. California's exports had a value of 556 million dollars and they included 57 per cent of the nation's foreign sales of fruits, 28 per cent of the vegetables, 23 per cent of the rice, 13 per cent of the cotton and 89 per cent of the nuts.

Iowa is third in exports, Texas fourth, North Carolina fifth and then comes Kansas.

Kansas, as stated, leads in wheat sales and flour. It also is one of the major exporters of feed grains and soybeans.

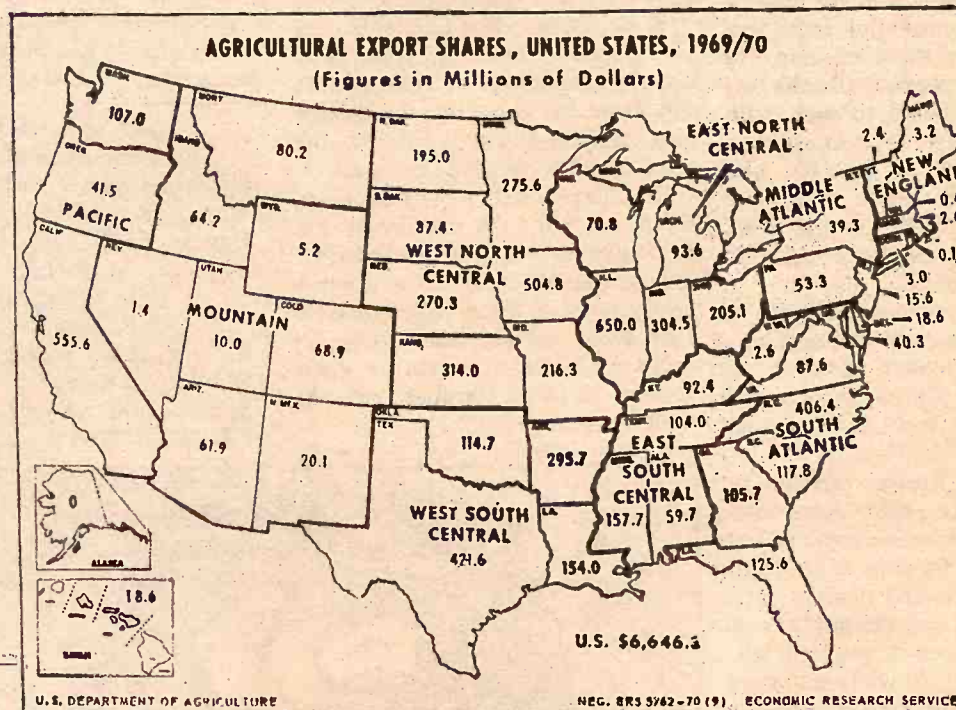

Missouri while not in the top ten, is an important supplier of wheat and flour, feed grains, soybeans, soybean oil and protein meal, meat, lard, tallow and cotton.

Following Kansas in the top ten

GRASS & GRAIN

16th Year No. 45

are Indiana, seventh; Arkansas, eighth; Minnesota, ninth and Nebraska, tenth. The 10 states accounted for three-fifths of all the nation's farm exports in 1969-70.

Nebraska is the second largest supplier of feed grains while North Dakota is second on wheat and flour. Minnesota leads on dairy products.

Despite the fact California is the second leading state in farm exports because of its specialty crops, 63 per cent of the nation's total comes from Middle America, from North Dakota, Minnesota and Wisconsin on the north through Texas and Louisiana on the south. Kansas City is almost the center of this area.

The leading commodity in export value is soybeans followed by all feed grains and then wheat and flour, all grown in this area.

Within the United States, about 60 per cent of all farm cash receipts come from livestock and livestock products, but foreign sales of these items account for only 12 per cent of the nation's farm exports. On the other hand, crops contribute 40 per cent to the cash receipts domestically, yet account for 88 per cent of the exports.

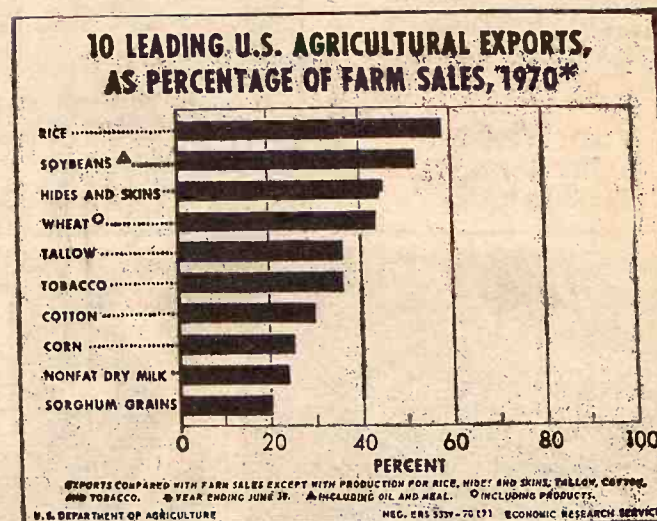

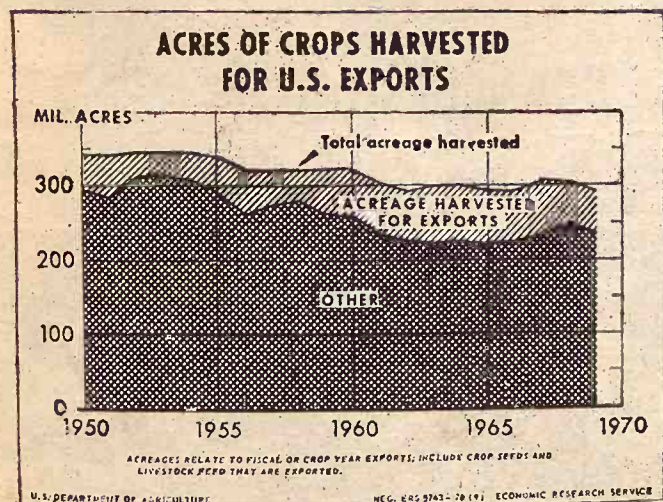

The value of livestock products exported last year was only about 3 per cent of the total cash receipts from these products. In contrast, the crop exports accounted for 31 per cent of the cash receipts from these products. Altogether, the exports had a value of 14 per cent of all cash receipts.

Nearly three-fourths of all U.S. farm exports last year went to 15 countries. The first five were Japan, West Germany, Canada, the United Kingdom and the Netherlands. These were all dollar markets. India was sixth in rank, but most of the shipments from the U.S. were under the Food for Peace program. Others in the top 15 included Italy, Republic of Korea, Spain, South Vietnam, France, Mexico, Belgium-Luxembourg, Indonesia and the Republic of China.

The United States is an importer, too, taking products valued at 5,481 million dollars last year. Just ahead of the U.S. as agricultural importers were West Germany and Great Britain. Japan was fourth. Many of the products imported are also produced in the United States, such as beef, wool, dairy items and sugar. But this country also is a huge importer of "complementary commodities" such as coffee, crude rubber, cocoa, bananas, tea, spices and carpet wool which are not produced here.

The total value of U.S. farm exports in 1951 was 3.4 billion dollars, which compares with 6.6 billion in the last year. While there have been a few ups and downs, the upward trend has been rather gradual and consistent. One reason for the increases has been U.S. promotional effort. About sixty trade associations and more than 100 foreign trade groups work in cooperation with the U.S. Department of Agriculture in sales development programs. These programs are in operation in more than 70 countries.

ACP Now Has 'Environment' Tag

The 1971 agricultural appropriations bill signed by President Richard Nixon may mean $6 million in federal funds for cost sharing with Kansas farmers in pollution control efforts prior to July 1.

Funding would come from the Rural Environmental Assistance Program (REAP), new name for the traditional Agricultural Conservation Program (ACP), for which farmers and their organizations have been awaiting funds since last summer.

Although the name was changed, spokesmen believe the emphasis will be essentially the same as under the ACP program.

President Nixon has directed the secretary of agriculture and director of the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) go forward with expending the $195.5 million appropriation but to lean more heavily on environmental practices.

A joint report of both chambers of Congress recommended using all practices from the ACP programs. The OMB had advocated leaving the full amount out of appropriations. Scientists say the biggest contributor to pollution of surface waters in the United States is eroding land. An estimated four billion tons of earth is moved by water from one place to another annually. Some one billion tons of this amount goes into the rivers and streams of the nation.

Since about 80 per cent of the land in the United States is crop, range and forested land, pollution abatement at that level is necessary, officials said.

Kansas is considered one of the leading states in erosion control through terracing, grassed waterways and other erosion-control activities. A 1968 survey, however, shows Kansas has 11,084,450 acres of land which still is badly in need of conservation practices.

Kansas has a total land area of 52,425,275 acres after large lakes and rivers have been deducted. Another 529,080 acres is in federal non-cropland; 1,998,201 acres in urban and built-up areas, and 482,987 acres in small streams and ponds.

There are 29,623,793 acres of cropland in the state. Only 36 per cent of this amount has been treated adequately for conservation and erosion control.

Of the 18 million acres of rangeland in the state, only 41 per cent has received adequate erosion control.

Soil loss in the form of sediment from erosion from untreated farmland alone in Kansas ranges from 10 to 25 tons to the acre.

James Moorfield, Soil Conservation Service, unit conservationist for Sedgwick County, estimated 15 tons to the acre as an average. With this figure, Kansas is depositing about 165 million tons of silt into rivers and streams and lakes each year.

In addition to water erosion, wind erosion plays a large part in Kansas each year.

Neil Woodruff, USDA Agricultural Research Service employee for Kansas, said of the 4.8 million acres of Great Plains land that blows away in dust each year, Kansas has an average wind erosion problem on about one million acres.

Public Health Service investigations show about 30 million tons of soil are airborne each year. Kansas measurements during the drought of 1954-56 showed up to 1,500 tons of earth airborne for each cubic mile of air when dust storms cut visibility to 250 feet.

Woodruff said one dust storm of several days could move as much as 28-30 tons of soil from a single acre. With dry top soil in northwest Kansas, that area could experience some wind erosion damage this spring, he believes.

Kansas Agricultural Conservation and Stabilization Service (ASCS) officials in Manhattan said they will not know how much money has been allotted to the state until new programs are adopted.

However, last year's allotment made in August was $6,037,000, about $300,000 less than the 1969 fiscal year allotment.

Grass & Grain

Kansas has the second largest amount of farmland among the states of the nation.

Double Rebate For Oversold Flights

If an airline has oversold the flight on which you hold a ticket and can't somehow get you to your destination within two hours of your original schedule, you're entitled to more than "We're sorry."

You're entitled to double your money back.

Holiday rush periods account for many of the 134,000 passengers the airlines report walk up to check-in counters every year to find the flight has been oversold.

Last year, 44,000 persons cashed in on the double-your-money-back penalty set by government regulation. The airlines apparently arranged to get the other passengers to their destinations without penalty.

How many persons were not reported by airlines and were not advised of their right to the double payment isn't known, although federal officials say the number probably runs in the thousands. Four airlines have been cited for violations of the denied boarding regulations.

Federal regulations state that any passenger bumped despite holding "confirmed reserve space" is entitled to a refund plus an equal penalty payment — but there are exceptions.

For example, government requisition of space relieves airlines of paying the penalty. Mechanical problems requiring the substitution of a smaller plane also frees the airline from paying anyone bumped because of the switch.

The penalty is waived, too, if the airline gets the passenger on another flight arriving at the original destination within two hours of the original domestic flight or within four hours of a foreign flight.

Although a passenger cannot refuse another commercial flight and still receive the penalty payment, he can refuse to switch to an air taxi or ground transportation.

SCHOOL DISTRICT SEES STRICT SALARY LINE

At least one school district in the G&G area is talking about holding a tight line on teachers salaries next year. The Ell-Saline district of eastern Ellsworth and western Saline counties says it won't consider salary increases for 1971-72 other than the ones built into present salary schedules. The board said it must wait to see if the legislature eases limits on school budgets.

Tamara Baldock, age 14, Delphos: "My mother and I enjoy trying the G&G recipes. This recipe for yeast rolls is very good as I won a purple ribbon at the Hutchinson State Fair this year. These can be made ahead and frozen."

YEAST ROLLS

1 cup milk, scalded
3 tablespoons sugar
3 tablespoons shortening
1 teaspoon salt
1 package of yeast dissolved in ¼ cup lukewarm water
3 to 4 cups flour (sifted)
Scald milk in double boiler. Soften yeast in ¼ cup lukewarm water. Put sugar, salt and shortening in mixing bowl, add scalded milk. Stir well to dissolve. Cool to 37-40 degrees C. Add 1 cup flour and stir well, add yeast mixture and stir. Add 2 cups more of flour and mix with spoon until dough leaves sides of bowl. Turn dough onto floured board and allow to stand five to ten minutes. Knead until dough is light, elastic, and smooth, (eight to ten minutes.) It should not stick to the palm of the hand when held against it for 30 seconds. Place dough in a clean bowl which has been lightly oiled, turn dough upside down in oiled bowl to oil the top. Cover with a towel. Place bowl in unheated oven. Fill a flat pan with very hot water and place this on rack below the bowl of dough. Let rise 20 to 30 minutes. Shape into rolls. Brush the tops with melted shortening. Let raise until double in size (covered and out of draft). Bake at 375 degrees F. for 20 to 25 minutes. Brush tops with melted butter as soon as removed from oven. Using 2-inch muffin tins this will make 18 rolls. This dough can also be used for cinnamon rolls. You can add an extra package of yeast to speed up the rising and it won't taste yeasty.

January 5, 1971

Experts Offer Advice On Home Storage Of Beef

With all her modern appliances and convenience foods, today's homemaker still is concerned about the storage of meats, particularly beef.

Experts in the fields of meat and home economics have a number of suggestions and recommendations, as well as answers to questions concerning beef storage.

Pre-packaged beef need not be unwrapped if it will be kept in the refrigerator only a short time, such as one or two days. For longer storage, unwrap and cover loosely.

When planning to store your meats in the refrigerator, it is important to take into consideration the storage temperature at the market, the freshness of the meat when purchased, the care and time between market and refrigeration at home, temperature of the home unit and the meat packaging.

Loosely covered beef, depending on the cut, can be stored at 36 to 40 degrees for several days. In particular, standing rib roast will store for five to eight days; steaks, three to five days; pot roasts, five to six days; stew meats, two days; ground beef, one to two days; liver, one to two days, and heart, one to two days.

Properly covered beef will store in the freezer from six to 12 months at a temperature of zero degrees or colder.

Although refreezing thawed meat is not recommended because of quality and flavor loss, it is possible to refreeze it. But if the beef is above refrigerator temperature, do not refreeze it. If the meat has not reached refrigerator temperature, it can be stored as fresh meat and will keep as long as unfrozen meats.

To thaw a large roast, allow four to seven hours for each pound. If you use the oven method of thawing, allow one to one-and-one-half hours for each pound. Small roasts need slightly less time (three to five hours for each pound) when thawed in the refrigerator. A one-inch steak will thaw in 12 to 14 hours in the refrigerator.

Freeze cooked beef as quickly as possible. Remove the gravy or broth and freeze separately. Make certain you use a high-quality freezer wrap to prevent loss of moisture. Do not try to home-freeze meat unless your freezer or freezer compartment has a temperature of zero degrees or colder.

Use Imagination To Create Cozy Corner In Room

A corner of a room can become a cherished spot with a little imagination and a personal touch. You can make it an inviting retreat by centering favorite hobbies there. Television, stereo, games and books will attract family and friends alike.

Color is the key that can unify the corner area. Choose a printed fabric you love and splash it in colorful abandon. One of the most dramatic ways of introducing color is in fabrics enriched with mohair. The rich luster and affinity for dyes in mohair reproduce colors at their purest and truest with a lasting glow.

Fabric colors can pickup wall colors, hues from a favorite painting or shades from a rug. Color can be splashed lavishly in draperies and upholstery to accentuate a feeling of snug surroundings.

One way to make the most of your corner space is by way of a built-in sofa, which can provide storage space in its base for games, toys, sports equipment or other paraphernalia. When decorating as symmetrically as with a built-in, it could be wise to choose a fabric not only beautiful but also for durability. One of the most dramatic decorating ideas is in the use of fabric for walls. Fabric-covered walls can be colorful and add dimension to your corner or room at the same time. The possibilities for color and contrast are limitless.

Girls Guiltier Of Poor Dining Etiquette

Dining out demands the best manners a girl can display. A recent poll of gourmets revealed that girls were more guilty than boys of faulty dining etiquette. A fellow may occasionally mumble his order, but it's the female who most often changes her mind or turns the table into a makeup vanity. Try to remember that others are noting your manners as carefully as you study the menu and, with a little conscientious awareness, you can correct those less desirable habits you may have.

Treat Stains With Cold Water

Sponge and clean chili sauce stains with cold, clear water before washing the fabric.

Towns Dispute Over Catfish Title

Claims that Kingman is the "Catfish Capital of Kansas" drew quick replies from two eastern Kansas cities which have had a friendly rivalry over the title for several years.

Bill Batdorf, editor of the Burlington Daily Republican, on the upper Neosho River, and Bob Crowell, editor of the Chetopa Advance on the banks of the same river near the Oklahoma border, said they weren't going to give up or even share the title.

Kingman's claim, advanced in a Hutchinson News article, is based on the H & H Processors plant which opened west of Kingman last February. Catfish are raised and processed there for sale to groceries, restaurants and private clubs.

These fish range from eight ounces to four pounds, the article said.

All very well, Batdorf and Crowell say, but their cities' claim to the Catfish Capital title is based on much bigger fish and on the opportunities for a sportsman to catch his own dinner.

Burlington first became known as the Catfish Capital, Batdorf said, in the 1930s or 1940s when Gov. Payne Ratner and another man caught a 70-pounder nearby.

The Burlington editor admitted that fishing in the area was not as good this year as in the past, but maintained, "It's coming back." He said fish get groggy in the great depths of Redmond Reservoir and this caused the poor fishing.

Crowell said fishing still is as good as ever in his area. He said the big ones come upstream from Grand Lake in Oklahoma and are caught at Chetopa.

Crowell said Chetopa has a Catfish Derby each year, from May 1 to July 4, with a baitshop weighing the big ones and a prize given for the largest. The biggest last year was 51 pounds, and they sometimes get into the 60-pound class.

The biggest catfish ever caught in the state was at St. Paul, on the Neosho, not too far from Chetopa, Crowell claimed.

Drouth, Hog Drop Cut Central Kansas Income

Net farm income for 1970 may drop 25 per cent from 1969 in an 11-county area of central and south central Kansas, year-end estimates indicated.

Bill D. Collins, Farm Management

January 5, 1971

Association field man, reported the drop.

Principal cause was an 88-day summer drought that resulted in a smaller milo crop which he said would average 20 bushels compared to 50 bushels last year.

A drastic drop of $10 to $12 in hog prices in September contributed to a reduction in 1970 farm income.

A large supply of hogs — 25 to 30 per cent more — marketed at heavier weights to a buying public plagued with unemployment or reduced incomes caused deflation in prices, Collins said.

The drop in pork prices also put pressure on beef cattle prices which tumbled from a June 1969 high of $35 per hundred weight to the current level of $26 to $27 he said.

Farmers are in a cost-price squeeze caused by inflation and the loss of a 7 per cent income tax investment credit on the purchase of machinery, he said.

Figures have not been completed in the 11-county area, Collins said, but early estimates from profit and loss totals show about a 25 per cent setback.

Counties surveyed were Sumner, Sedgwick, Harvey, Reno, Kingman, Harper, Pratt, Stafford, McPherson, Rice and Barton.

FOR EFFICIENT COMPOSTING

Making compost of leaves, grass clippings, garden refuse and other materials is hastened with the dual bins shown here. While one is removing ready-to-use from one bin, fresh materials are tossed into the other bin. As one bin is emptied, material from the other bin can be forked into the empty bin, thus stirring and aerating the compost for quicker action. Removable slats on the front side facilitate removal of material. The crossbar aids in making the front section sturdy.

Law, Lack Of Subsidy Makes Car Bids Too High

The state must reject the bids it received on 100 new sedans unless the 1971 Legislature raises the maximum Kansas can pay for the cars it buys.

The State Purchasing Dept. said the lowest bid it received on 100 new state cars was $2,848.34 per vehicle. The maximum it is allowed to pay is $2,000 per standard passenger sedan.

Henry Knouft, state purchasing director, said his department will hold onto the bids to see whether the Legislature wants to raise the maximum next session. If the ceiling is not hiked, Knouft said, the state will have to reject the bids.

Kansas has been buying its cars for less than the $2,000 statutory maximum largely as a result of a subsidy provided by auto manufacturers to dealers on cars sold to governmental units.

The subsidy was about $750 per car. That, coupled with the state's exemption from paying excise taxes on new cars it buys, enabled Kansas to buy passenger cars for less than the maximum.

The state has a maximum of $2,400 on station wagons and on Kansas Highway Patrol cars it buys.

Last spring, the manufacturers began a policy of withholding the subsidy, and it has boosted the price of new cars out of the state's pay range.

"It comes as no surprise," Knouft said of the bids, which were the first solicited since the auto manufacturers decided to withdraw their subsidies.

Other state officials were alerted to the possibility that Kansas would no longer be able to buy new cars for less than $2,000. Budget Director James W. Bibb deleted all requests for money to buy new cars from the state agency budget requests for next fiscal year.

The state replaces a car on the average of every three years. Several agency directors complained during budget hearings that vehicles assigned their agencies would be "over the hill" if they had to retain present vehicles another year.

Dale E. Foose, a buyer in the Purchasing Dept. who handles most of the state car purchases, said Kansas has about 1,000 passenger cars, but that station wagons and Highway Patrol vehicles increase the total size of the state's motor car fleet to 1,661 vehicles.

Foose said the second lowest bid received on the 100 vehicles was $2,917 per car the third lowest bid was $2,931.

"If the Legislature doesn't authorize an increase in the maximum we can pay," Knouft said, "it will leave us unable to purchase new cars."

January 5, 1971

Sorghum (milo), according to Everett B. Harris, CME president

"Since plans to list a grain sorghum contract were first announced in early October," Harris said, "our work with grain industry people has progressed to where we now have specifications to present to the Commodity Exchange Authority (CEA) for final approval. This is the first step into an international traded grain commodity," Harris continued, "and we feel that timing is optimal in terms of current feed grains livestock market."

Major contract specifications to be approved by the CEA are:

1. Trading Unit: 200,000 pounds (3636.5 Bushels).

2. Price Increments: Minimum price fluctuations shall be multiples of $.0025 per 100-pounds.

3. Daily Price Limits: There shall be no trading at a price more than $.15 per 100-pounds above or below the previous day's settling price.

Harris noted that grain sorghum acreage has grown rapidly in recent years and generally is contracted feedlots on a monthly or annual basis, most often annual. "Because cattle feeding operations have become so large, competitive and highly integrated in the southwest, our proposed contract has drawn unusual interest from both PCA officials in addition to exporters and cattle feeders," CME president said.

your worm feed bill

The chances are 9 to 1 that cattle coming into your feedlot have roundworms. Even the healthiest looking animals are probably infested. And blood-drinking roundworms do a lot of damage yearly. About 250 millions dollars worth.

Just how much could it be costing you to feed roundworms?

Let's say you have a hundred head of cattle. Say that they're only lightly infested with roundworms - 300 eggs per gram of feces. That's up to 6,000 roundworms per animal.

Over 105 days feedlot time roundworms could gobble up more than 6½ gallons of blood per head! And here's about what it would cost you to maintain the blood level of your stock:

52.8 lbs. of concentrate worth	$2.11
528 lbs. of hay worth	6.60
264 lbs. of grain worth	6.60
$15.31 per head

It's costing you about $15.31 to feed the worms in one head of beef over 105 days. Or $1531.00 for 100 head.

Just one feeding of the new CO-OP Cattle Wormers will take care of roundworms. Thiabendazole does the job, and it costs you about a dollar per head for yearlings. This excellent wormer comes three different ways - As cubes, pellets or crumbles.

We have the facts on safe, sure worming. Stop in or give us a call.

Delay Farm Truck Safety Rules

The Department of Transportation has postponed its proposed new regulations under which farmers would no longer be exempt from its highway safety regulations from the effective date of January 1 to an effective date of July 1.

Under present regulations, farmers hauling their own produce and live stock in their own farm trucks with a gross weight under 10,000 pounds are exempt. The Department of Transportation promised to use the six months to study possible amendments to the proposed regulations, according to the announcement by Rep. William L. Hungate (D-Mo.).

GOVERNMENT LOAN ACTIVITY

This chart shows what government loans on grains will be extended in 1971 and those that will be called. The figures are bushels. The shaded areas indicate grain on which loans will be extended (that is, the grain may be resealed). All others will be called. The figure for 1968 farm-stored corn has been circled because the government has not fully decided whether it will call these loans.

Still Turmoil Around School At Glen Elder

GLEN ELDER — Closing of Glen Elder high school here at the end of the current school year has been proposed by the Waconda Unified District (No. 272) in a centralization plan presented to residents of the former Glen Elder rural school district.

Students in grades 9-12 from Glen Elder and Cawker City, Kas., would attend Cawker City high school and students in grades 7-8 would attend Glen Elder elementary school. A 12-year school at Downs, and an elementary school at Tipton, Kas., would not be affected by the changes.

Patrons of the former Glen Elder rural district must approve closing of the high school by a petition to the school board or in an election called by the board. Martin Boye, superintendent of schools, said board hopes a petition will be presented.

Patrons protect blocked an earlier plan which would have centralized district attendance this fall in a year senior high at Downs, 3-year junior highs at Glen Elder and Cawker City and K-8 at those three centers and at Tipton.

The amended plan was recommended by a State Department of Education survey team which named after patrons voted November 3 against disorganizing the unified district.

Last April a bond issue was defeated. The funds would have been used to construct a new 4-year high school at Downs, renovate Cawker City high school for centralized grades, construct a new Tipton elementary school and update the other three grade schools.

The unified district includes parts of Mitchell, Osborne and Smith Counties.

Barb-Wire Collections Spreading

If there is one thing Kansas has an abundance of, it's barbed wire. Clenton Owensby, assistant professor of agronomy at Kansas State University, will attest to that.

Owensby, who collects rare strands of the stuff, has stumped over much of the state searching for sections of "Dodge Star" or "Judson Ribbon," two types of rare barbed wire.

A barbed wire collector for two and a half years, Owensby has a collection valued at more than $2,000. The more than 750 wires in the collection vary in value from 25 cents to more than $100 per strand, or an 18 inch length of wire.

Owensby, a New Mexico native, became fascinated with other people's collections and began to collect himself. He searches for the barbed gold whenever his work takes him out of the city.

"When I first began collecting wire, I would search about every afternoon and on the weekends," he noted. "Now I might get out one day a month to look for wire."

However, Owensby has other sources. "Students bring in an awful lot of wire they have found. And whenever I talk to farmers I ask them if they have any unusual strands of wire on their land," he said. Whenever he finds a strand he wants for his collection, Owensby asks permission of the landowner to take the wire, and then he replaces it with a new strand. "I always carry wire in my car so I can replace wire I take from farmers," he added.

Owensby professes having the best luck around reservoirs and old homesteads. The most valuable wire he has ever found was a quarter mile of "Scutz Double Clip," which is valued as high as $60 per strand. "I was offered a sizeable amount for it," the collector noted, "but I didn't sell it."

Owensby never has bought or sold wire and probably never will. "When money is involved, wire collecting becomes a business and that takes all the fun out of it," he asserted.

He did note however, that he will either have to put money into new strands or his collection won't grow. "I've reached an impasse. The wires in my collection aren't valuable enough to trade for very rare strands. If I get anymore, I'm afraid I'll have to buy them," he said.

Collecting rare wire is not unusual. Owensby indicated that about 50,000 Americans were professed collectors and that several associations existed for wire collectors.

One problem many collectors face is that of "faking." Other collectors will change a wire to appear as a more valuable strand and sell or trade it for far more than it is worth. According to Owensby a "fake" wire isn't too difficult to determine by an expert. "The patina, or rust coating on a wire usually shows alteration," he explained.

Owensby indicated that he got a "fake" wire on a trade and is looking for the culprit to re-trade. "Traders usually guarantee their wire when they trade. If a trader gets the reputation of a 'faker,' he is washed up. No one will trade with him or buy his wires," Owensby explained.

Some of the rarest and most sought after wires include "Page," "Armstrong Dolittle," "Judson Ribbon," and "Dodge Star." The age of the wire, according to Owensby, has little to do with the value of it. "The oldest wires are sometimes the least valuable," he indicated. "Wire value is assessed according to the amount of wire manufactured and its scarcity."

Strands of rare barbed wire can be worth as much as $100 for an 18-inch length of wire. Here Clenton Owensby, assistant professor of agronomy at Kansas State University, is shown with a board containing the most valuable pieces of his $2,000 collection.

INTERNATIONAL 400 SERIES

There's absolutely nothing ordinary about this big conventional rig! It's different. Better. Bigger. BBC variety. All at one and the same time. BIG power in all BBC's—in the super-short 92-inch, the easy-to-service 104-inch and the regular 114-inch. Better in construction. Husky frames, aluminum components, even a tough-but-light fiberglass hood-and-fender unit for greater payloads, less dead weight. Plus typical International care and concern throughout, even to the attention to detail for fast and thorough maintenance.

The entire cab interior is restyled, built for the driver and built to be driven. It's the best riding conventional in the industry today. A fleet operator's investment in his driver is as great or greater than in his truck. So extra care was taken to reduce fatigue during a long day's haul, to keep a driver rested for fast reactions, greater vehicle control.

A way was provided to bring some of the most popular and economical long-in-line six cylinder diesel engines into the 92" BBC models. Greater-length trailers within legal limits, extra maneuverability. And there's more. Mechanical and structural innovations are standard in the 400. Not optional. Flexible hoses with reusable fittings are standard throughout, and there are new screw-type junction boxes for positive shakeproof connections.

Big diesel features recently introduced in the 400 have been retained and improved; the thousand square-inch radiator now has a new ultra-efficient shroud, and seats are upholstered in long-wearing Naugahyde. The drop-front design cradles the biggest diesel engines at an ideal height for optimum angles and easy maintenance. Rails are now a full 9 7/8-inches deep by 3 1/16-inches wide for maximum twist-and-bend resistance—and optional lightweight aluminum rails are available for even greater permissible payloads! Truck for truck, 400 Series are designed to be the best that can be built. Real money-saving, profit-making haulers.

Sure, 400 Series are conventional trucks. But they're far from ordinary!

Conservation Funds Still Hinge On State Budget

Concerned about one of the deepest proposed cuts in the Kansas state budget, Wesley Bittel, Ellis, is keeping his fingers crossed over the governor's budget request.

"There is no point in glossing it over. If Bibb's recommendation holds, it could have a disastrous effect on conservation work in Kansas," said Bittel, chairman of the State Soil Conservation Committee.

Bittel was referring to the recommendation of James Bibb, state budget director, that state appropriations for the state soil conservation committee, local county board of soil supervisors offices, and watershed planning work to be held to $48,000, compared with last year's appropriation of $440,000.

"I know the governor has requested that we all hold the line on requests for money," said Bittel, "but a 90 per cent reduction could cripple our work."

Bittel said the state committee knew the present state office staff was overworked with only three employees, so a request was made for two more employees, one for office work in planning and engineering and the other a fieldman.

Since this amounted to an increase of $20,000 in expenses, the amount requested for watershed planning was reduced by that amount to keep the financial request at last year's level.

"We even hated to do this since the federal government has released some of their funds and watershed activity is picking up, but we thought we had to make a cut somewhere to stay in balance," Bittel said.

The legislature appropriated $120,000 last year for watershed planning. There are nine watershed districts in the state with planning in progress and 11 with top priority for planning. In addition, Kansas has 10 watershed projects completed, 14 under construction, and 6 in preconstruction organization stages.

Along with the watershed planning funds, Bibb eliminated entirely state matching funds for county board secretaries.

The state has matched county funds up to $3,000 to hire a secretary for each county board of supervisors of the local soil conservation districts.

This averaged out to a cost of about $2,400 a county in 1970 since a few of the counties didn't have a secretary and other counties don't pay the maximum allowed under this section.

"Much of the paperwork and organization work of the county SCDs are handled by the secretaries, and if the state doesn't end up helping pay them the cost will be borne by the counties or else we will have to do without these valuable workers," Bittel said.

"We have won the fight for release of ACP funds which have been frozen by Congress. Now we have to get state help so that these federal funds can be used effectively," he said.

Bittel's term as chairman of the state committee will end in January and he said he was hopeful that it wouldn't end on such a note of frustration.

He pointed out these cuts came at a time when outside pressures were causing an increase in work for soil conservation districts.

"We have all this pressure about ecology and environment, about saving our resources and cleaning up our water, all of which are part of the soil conservation program in Kansas," Bittel said.

USDA Likes Farm Law Anyway

The Agriculture Act of 1970 "was the climax of the two Nixon administration years" in farm affairs, the Agriculture Department says in a year-end summary. It also cites a far-ranging list of other programs it considers beneficiaries of GOP leadership.

Administration farm officials and the report both express confidence that the new farm law's emphasis on more flexibility and freedom of choice for farmers will serve as a major vehicle for accomplishing some of the long-range goals and reforms they feel are needed in rural America.

As the report puts it: "American agriculture is moving into a healthier era, toward freer, market-oriented production, new directions or humanitarian and environmental endeavors ... already producing benefits for farmers and the entire economy."

Part of the reason, the report said, is the Nixon administration's emphasis on "new federalism" of what was described as the decentralization of government and more reliance on "encouraging states to take on more responsibility, greater grass roots participation."

The new farm act, the report said, is an "imaginative far-sighted application of the new federalism" starting with this year's new crop programs.

Thus, it appears, the administration is counting heavily on the new farm law as a demonstration ground for "new federalism" in hopes that a cooperative spirit will be kindled and fed and that rural development will fall into place naturally with as little federal dominance as possible.

Like the report, Secretary of Agriculture Clifford M. Hardin referred to the other programs in a recent news conference at which he focused mainly on the expansion since early 1969 of government food programs for needy people.

But there are many other valuable programs in USDA, Hardin said, that do not attract national headlines.

One of these is "rural development," a nebulous term for dozens of federal-state programs aimed over the years at improving the lot of rural America.

A stated objective of the Nixon administration is somehow to alter future population growth so that more people live and work in the nation's small cities and towns. However, no clearly defined rural development program has emerged.

IRS Revising Form Labels

WICHITA—The Internal Revenue Service has announced a change in its mailing label procedures.

The label showing the taxpayer's name and address which is used to mail out the tax packages will be placed directly on the cover of the 1970 package, said Harry F. Scribner, district director of Internal Revenue for Kansas.

Taxpayers receiving their 1970 tax packages in the mail should peel the label off the cover and place it in the address portion of the Form 1040 they file. Use of the label identifies the taxpayer and thereby removes a major cause of processing and refund delays, Scribner said.

A million and a quarter tax returns were delayed in processing last year because the social security number as it appears in the IRS files, this error can be eliminated by using the label.

If the label is mutilated, the taxpayer should print or type name, address and social security number in the space at the top of the form, Scribner emphasized. For joint returns the name, address and social security number of husband and wife are required.

Start wheat growing again fast...top-dress NOW!

Wheat needs nitrogen to resume growth as soon as the young plants awaken from winter dormancy. This is the crucial stage at which Gulf Mr. N* full 33.5% nitrogen is converted into extra bushel building power.

Wheat responds more profitably to fertilizer than virtually any other crop, according to leading agronomists. That's why it's important to apply Gulf Mr. N early for a fast spring come-back and a nitrogen growth-boost that lasts clear through to harvest. Topdressing 120 lbs. per acre of Gulf Mr. N now will pay off in a bonus yield that can easily average 10 extra bushels per acre.

May Insist On Octane Rating On Gas Pump

The Federal Trade Commission (FTC) is reported ready with a sort of "truth in gas" measure — the posting of octane ratings on service station gas pumps.

Such a ruling, first suggested to the FTC in 1968 by Sen. William Proxmire, would be issued and enforced over protests from the oil industry.

Industry contends the octane rating is only one important component of motor fuel. However, according to Capitol Hill sources, the FTC requirement is intended as a first step to help drivers figure the best kind of gas for their car.

Basically, the octane rating is the measure of the gasoline for burning smoothly without knocking. Knocking wastes power and fuel, causes noise, may result in extra doses of exhaust pollution, and engine damage.

Different engines have different octane requirements.

"Consumers may be paying too much for gasoline, buying too low an octane gasoline, or contributing unnecessarily to our already critical pollution problem," Proxmire told a 1969 FTC hearing.

"I realize there are other important qualities to gasoline," the Wisconsin Democrat said, "but it is the single most important criterion in the quality and price of gasoline."

A number of consumer groups joined Proxmire in asking for the requirement.

Oil Company representatives at the same hearing generally opposed the requirement, saying an octane rating gives no inkling as to other characteristics of gas — quick starting, good pickup, mileage, anti-knocking. Also, they say, the rating does not take into account the brand, model and age of a car.

Knocking in an engine takes place when some of the gas fails to burn smoothly, igniting in a series of small, premature explosions. Gasoline with a high octane rating is less likely to burn or ignite prematurely.

Feedlot, City Dispute Settled

Kansas Corporation Commission officials say a dispute between two feedlot owners and the city of Herington over alleged insufficient electrical service had been settled by the two parties without commission action.

Lyle Keith Nelson and his son, Steve Nelson, had filed a complaint against the city of Herington alleging it failed to provide the feedlot they operate with sufficient electrical power.

Dale E. Saffels, chairman of the KCC, said he opened the docket on the case but then recessed the hearing after urging the parties to try to settle the matter between themselves.

Saffels said the city agreed to furnish the Nelsons with enough electrical power to operate machinery and heating apparatuses their feedlot by Feb. 1, 1971.

Saffels said the docket will remain open until the KCC can determine the agreement was satisfactorily implemented. He said construction of new electric lines would be involved.

USDA Props Egg Prices With Purchase Plan

The Agriculture department announced a stepped up egg purchase program aimed at strengthening prices this winter.

The plan involves purchases of unspecified quality of scrambled egg mix for donation to needy families. The buying will be done with funds earmarked for price support activities.

Egg buying for donations began an annual program early in 1968 until now has been confined to larger production periods in spring and early summer.

From April to June the department bought 16.6 million pounds of egg mix at a cost of almost 1 million dollars. This was equivalent to about 846,000 cases of shell eggs.

Purchases of farm commodities for donation are carried out frequently to help boost prices of farmers during times of low production.

What New Oil Markings Mean

While lubricating oils are important to the operation of an engine, the motoring public understands little about them.

That's the opinion of Rodney S. Horn, Extension agricultural engineer at Kansas State University. "And when we pull into a service station and ask for a quart of 30 weight oil, few of us really understand what we are buying," says Horn.

Viscosity, oil types, operating conditions and engine types are important considerations in motor oil selection.

Viscosity describes the ease with which oil flows. Low viscosity oils flow easily and are usually called "light." Higher viscosity oils are thicker, more resistant to flow and are referred to as "heavy."

SAE 10W, SAE 20, SAE 20W, SAE 30...where do you see these designations? On motor oil cans, of course. But what do they mean?

Well, the larger the number, the higher the viscosity. If a W follows the viscosity numbers, the oil has been manufactured for winter use.

Horn explained that multi-viscosity or multi-grade oils such as SAE 10W-30 are not readily affected by temperature and can be used year-round.

When selecting oil types, operating conditions and the type of engine — a diesel (compression ignition) or gasoline (spark ignition) — have to be considered.

Until this fall American Petroleum Institute service classifications were simply MM and MS for gasoline engines and DG, DM and DS for diesel motors. The API recently changed this system and came up with eight new designations for motor oils — SA, SB, SC and SD for gasoline engines, and CA, CB, CC, and CD for diesels (with few exceptions).

Here's a brief description of uses and conditions for each new classification:

SA—for utility gasoline and diesel engine service; for engines operated under ideal conditions (no engine used by general public would operate under this condition).

SB—for minimum duty gasoline engine service; could be used in an engine which now requires MM oil; suitable for light-duty tractor operation such as pulling light wagons, mowing, raking hay.

SC—for 1964 gasoline engine warranty service; service typical of 1964-67 models of passenger cars and trucks; could be used in gasoline engines manufactured before 1967 and in which MS oil is being used.

SD—for 1968 gasoline engine warranty service; service typical of gasoline engines in passenger cars and trucks beginning with 1968 models; to be used in engines now requiring MS oils; suitable for gasoline tractors under most operating conditions.

CA—for light duty diesel engine service; could be used where owner is now using a DG service oil.

CB—for moderate duty diesel engine service; could be used in place of DG and DM oils; typical of diesel engines operated under mild and light duty service where the engine operates under continuous light loads, such as mowing or raking.

CC—for moderate to severe duty diesel and gasoline engine service; typical of lightly supercharged diesel engines operated in moderate to severe service duty and may include some special applications of heavy duty gasoline engine service; recommended for use in farm tractors and industrial construction vehicles now using DS service oils.

CD—for severe duty diesel engines; specially designed to meet the needs of higher speed, supercharged diesel motors.

He pointed out that motorists who don't understand the new classification system should rely on their service station or garage attendant for suggestions on the type of oil to use. And always follow recommendations of the manufacturers.

"I haven't seen motor oil with the new classifications on the market in Kansas yet," says Horn. "But it is coming. Each petroleum marketing company will decide for itself when to begin using the new designations."

A Cow Really Up The Creek

McPHERSON — Any agricultural agent will say that liquid manure is a source of farm wealth — and Annabelle fell into a fortune.

For Annabelle, a 1200-pound Holstein, to do this was no easy matter. She had to squeeze through a two-foot by five-foot opening which inadvertently had been left uncovered in the slotted floor that covers the 10-foot by 40-foot manure pit on the farm of dairyman James L. Stucky near McPherson.

But, if Annabelle had to work to get in that fix, Stucky had to work a lot harder to get her out.

A pump was started immediately to drop the manure level since the eight-foot depth of the filth was higher than the traditional elephant's eye, to say nothing being higher than a heifer's horns.

Help was summoned and Stucky's brother, father, brother-in-law and father-in-law appeared on the scene.

The five men succeeded in getting a chain around the mired milk giver, and the besmirched bovina was hauled to the surface with a frontloader providing the Holstein hosting heft.

"It was really a lot of work, and there wasn't even any wind so we could get up-wind of the cow," said Stucky.

"We never could have saved her without help," he explained, describing the work crew as "a lot of men working and a lot of women standing around."

After being hauled to safety, Annabelle was scrubbed, fed, and took her place in the Stuckys' 70-cow herd.

Stucky said he was lucky that neither the rescue crew nor Annabelle gave out during the ordeal, the only question being — will she still give down?

whole new world of creative perception and aesthetic enjoyment has opened up to many Kansans through these classes," he added. Persons interested in obtaining further information about these classes are invited to attend the organizational meeting nearest them.

Williamson, assistant director of the Division of Continuing Education at Kansas State University, Manhattan.

Classes will be offered in Abilene, Ashland, Augusta, Belle Plaine, Beloit, Carlton, Clay Center, Courtland, Goodland, Halstead, Harper, Jetmore, Leoti, Lyons, Marysville, McPherson, Meade, Minneapolis, Mulvane, Newton, Wamego, Washington, Wellington, White City and Winfield. "Arrangements are being made to offer classes in several other communities," Williamson said. "Local announcements will be made when arrangements are completed."

Courses to be offered are Drawing Fundamentals I, Drawing Fundamentals II, Sketching Techniques, Painting Fundamentals I, Painting Fundamentals II, and Exploration of Media. Only two of the drawing courses and two of the painting courses are offered at any one place. Each course carries two hours undergraduate credit for a semester's work consisting of one three-hour evening meeting a week for 14 weeks. A course may also be taken on a non-credit basis. The enrollment fee is $28, exclusive of supplies.

"This program of art classes, after a small beginning over 15 years ago, has recently attracted national attention as an example of a self-supporting educationally-sound program providing the opportunity for cultural activities for smaller communities," Williamson said. "Instruction is designed for both the beginning and the more advanced student on the adult level. In addition to learning the fundamental skills of drawing and painting, a

You May Have A Gas Bill Refund Coming

The Kansas Corporation Commission (KCC) said today 431,000 customers of nine natural gas companies will receive refunds on their gas bills totaling $15.5 million. The average refund to residential and small commercial customers will be about $23.

Dale E. Saffels of Garden City, KCC chairman, said the companies will have the option of making the refunds by check or, under certain circumstances, by crediting the customers' account.

Saffels said the refund results from the settlement of Cities Service Gas Co.'s rate cases before the Federal Power Commission. In those cases the FPC ordered refunds to be made to these companies in Kansas:

The Gas Service Co., Kansas Power & Light Co., Greeley Gas Co., Union Gas Systems Inc., Arkansas-Louisiana Gas Co., Southeastern Co. Inc., Commercial Pipeline Co. Inc., Tri-City Gas Co. and Haucke Pipeline Co.

The KCC ordered each of the companies to pass their refund on to their customers.

A spokesman for the KCC said customers could expect the refunds about Feb. 1.

Saffels said about $10 million will be refunded to firm customers and about $5.5 million to interruptable customers of the companies.

Another Jump In Medicare Payments

The aged must pay 6 per cent more for supplemental Medicare benefits next July 1 largely because of rising doctor charges, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare has announced.

The current $5.30 a month premium will increase of $5.60 a month for the 19.5 million medicare subscribers. This is far less than the $1.30, or 32 per cent, increase announced last December for the current fiscal year.

Most of the latest increase was attributed to the expected 6.7 per cent jump in the amount of doctors' fees covered by Medicare and to an estimated 2 per cent rise in the use of physicians' services.

HEW said an estimated 15 per cent increase in the cost and utilization of such institutional services as hospital outpatient clinics will account for the remainder of the premium rise.

Supplemental Medicare meets parts of the elderly's nonhospital medical expenses. The government, which matches individual contributions, will pay out an additional $70 million from general revenues next year because of the premium increase.

Physicians' charges have risen 7.1 per cent since last December compared to a 4.8 per cent increase in the overall cost of living, the Bureau of Labor Statistics said.

The Medicare supplemental premium began at $3 a month in 1966, rising to $4 in 1968 and $5.30 last July.

FEEDLOT THREATS MAIN TOPIC AT CONVENTION

These people are among the principals at the annual convention of the Kansas Livestock Assn. at Wichita this week, Wednesday thru Friday. The threat to the industry by the closedown of commercial feeding lots by stringent anti-pollution regulations will be an issue before the 1000 livestockmen who will attend.

"Closing some of the feedlots could be a real economic loss to Kansas. It will certainly be a prime topic of conversation," Fred Germann, Dwight, president-elect of the association, said.

HUB MARTS, FEED MILL MANAGER, IS DEAD

JUNCTION CITY — Hub Marts, manager of Allied Mills here, is dead of a heart attack at the age of 47. Marts was a native of Junction City. He had been in failing health for a year. He leaves his wife, Kay, a married daughter Karen, and two sons, Mike and James.

compared with the $148 monthly top received by those already retired.

The Kansas Retired Teachers Association wants the present scale for retired teachers of $3.50 per month they taught up to a maximum of 35 years raised to $7.

The association estimates cost of its proposal at $6.5 million in the first year, but points out that the expenditure would be a decreasing one as retired teachers die.

A report to the association said there currently are 6,740 former Kansas teachers receiving pensions under the Kansas School Retirement Fund and about half of them receive $70 a month or less.

"None of these people is saving for a rainy day," said Hazen Richardson of Ottawa, president of the association. "That rainy day has already arrived."

"If the 6 million sounds like a huge sum to you, remember that the welfare department is asking for $167 million."

they collect.

Another new rule will allow food stamps to be used for bottle or other container deposits on eligible items. Previously, a cusomter could buy a bottle of milk with stamps but had to pay cash for the deposit.

Department officials said the rule changes were requested by food stamp users — totaling 9 million persons — and by retail grocers. They are aimed at speeding up food stamp transactions, the department said.

Food stamps are sold to eligible low-income people and include bonus coupons so that their buying power at grocery stores is increased.

Nationally, the average food stamp recipient spends about $4 on stamps which buy $19 worth of groceries.

NO WHEAT PASTURE TILL SPRING

Most western Kansas farmers indicated there would be no wheat pasture until spring. Some reported wind erosion could be a problem because of little top growth.

Retired Teachers Want Pensions Doubled

Gov. Robert Docking and the 1971 Kansas Legislature will be asked to double the pension for Kansas teachers who have retired.

The legislative committee of the Kansas Retired Teachers Association, said its request would put those teachers already retired on a par with teachers who retire after June.

The 1970 Legislature merged the Kansas School Retirement System, providing teachers who retire next year with $268 per month pension

Get Loose Change From Food Stamp

Congress has insisted all along that the nation's food stamp program prevents recipients from spending the coupons on such goods as liquor, cigarettes, soap and toilet paper.

Now, under a new Agriculture Department policy, if a stamp user moves briskly enough he might be able to collect enough cash in change from food stamps to pay for a cup of New Year's cheer.

Or possibly a bar of soap.

Effective Jan. 1, the department said, grocers will be permitted to pay up to 49 cents as change from food stamp sales. This rule will apply to each coupon transaction.

Until now, change for stamps amounting to less than 50 cents had to be in the form of credit slips issued the customer by the store. These could be traded later only at the same store and for approved items on the stamp list.

But now, with customers able to get up to 49 cents cash each time they spend food stamps, there are no restrictions on spending the change

DEFOLIATION IN VIETNAM

Here are some results of controversial defoliation programs in Vietnam. A mangrove stand along a stream near Saigon, before, left, and right, the same area wiped out by chemical herbicides, after. The U.S. says it is phasing out the use of herbicides in Vietnam.

Broiler Prices Advancing Slowly Say Producers

After recently hitting their lowest levels in three years, broiler chicken prices are headed up again.

But further advances probably will be limited, so broilers will remain a delight to budget-conscious housewives and a liability to profit-squeezed producers for at least several months.

Even given the current upswing in prices, much of the industry won't be operating at profitable levels, producers complain.

U.S. Grade A broilers last week sold for about 27 cents a pound in the Chicago wholesale market, up nearly three cents from the week before. Earlier, the average Chicago price fell to about 22 cents a pound, the lowest since November 1967.

In the first three weeks of December, quotations for broilers in Georgia a big producer, declined more than 10 cents a pound, the sharpest drop in such a short period that market veterans can remember.

Heavy production is the main reason for the price skid, of course. Broiler production for 1970 is estimated at a record of nearly three billion birds, up from 2.8 billion last year and the paltry 34 million in 1934, when records were first kept.

Demand has risen, too; per-capita consumption of broilers is projected at 37.8 pounds this year, up from 35.1 pounds last year.

But demand hasn't kept up with supplies, particularly in recent weeks when broiler consumption was at the lowest level of the year.

The situation is aggravated this year by the biggest pig crop in 27 years; pork is chicken's main competitor for housewives' food dollars.

January 5, 1971

Because big shipments of hogs continue to come to market, many broiler industry observers figure that broiler prices will be able to advance only slightly.

For the first eight months of 1970, hatching of chicks intended for broiler production topped year-earlier months, but the gains tapered from 14 per cent in January to 5 per cent in August. Beginning in September, hatchings have been below a year earlier.

Because it takes about eight weeks for a baby chick to mature into a market-size broiler, the September hatchings reduction of 4 per cent under a year earlier wasn't felt until November, when prices rose as much as eight cents a pound. The October hatchings also dropped 4 per cent below a year before, and these are the chickens currently coming to market.

But prices dropped this month because of the stiff competition from ample, low-priced supplies of pork, and because consumers traditionally favor turkey, beef and pork over broilers at this time of year.

Another Industry Boon At Ellsworth

ELLSWORTH — The Parkton corporation is the second major industry to pick Ellsworth for a new location within two years. The Parkton Satellite, a lawnmower, trimmer, edger and sweeper, will be manufactured in a new 12,000-square-foot plant.

A federal Small Business administration loan will assist in plant construction. City officials are contemplating a $110,000 industrial revenue bond issue, Paul Aylward of the Citizens State bank said.

James Parker, Chicago, Ill., said his firm should be able to start production within a few months with 19 employees. He expects to hire 200 to 300 men within a 2-year span. He has been working on an experimental model for the last year and is ready for actual production.

Rides Off Into Marlboro Sunset

WESTMORELAND — Kansas' most seen but least known television star faded into a Marlboro Country sunset on New Year's Day.

Wayne Dunafon, a Westmoreland rancher — like the guy who would rather fight than switch and the couple strolling through a Salem spring-time — will be blipped off the tube with the rest of cigaret advertising Jan. 1.

Dunafon's Marlboro Country — play-off game.

It's not so much that he likes to see himself on TV, but Dunafon laments the ban on cigaret advertising.

"It's gonna cut my income, of course," he says. "That's a disappointment. I get paid each time one of the commercials is on TV. It's on a scale since I belong to the Screen Actors Guild."

Until six years ago, Dunafon limited his cowboy heroics to his ads have been highly rated by the professional people. The authenticity is the great thing.

"They use real cowboys and do it on real ranches. The other day up in Oregon they had 2,300 head of cattle. We were mounted right along with the other cowboys who were actually moving the herd."

One of his favorites features a white colt tangled in some brush on a remoted corner of a ranch. Dunafon rescues the colt.

"It was a very popular commercial with the public," he said of the spot made in Texas with a colt borrowed from a Wamego man.

Dunafon says the advertising agency gives him about a week's notice when they needed his services. In not-so-cowboy-like manner he heads west in an airplane.

If smoking can be hazardous, so can making TV commercials. Dunafon fell with a horse at Jackson Hole, Wyo., last June and spent eight days in a hospital with a serious shoulder injury.

Asked about the ban on cigaret ads and the outcry about the harmful effects of smoking, Dunafon says:

"I don't know. I'm not really qualified to say anything about that. I don't think it will change the amount of smokers we have. That's the sad part of it all. For that reason, I wish they'd continue with the ad."

Mr. and Mrs. Dunafon have two children.

"They love to watch me on TV," Wayne says. "They get a big kick out of it."

His neighbors will miss their favorite TV character, too.

"They sympathize with me on losing it," he says. "They're like I am. They don't think it'll change the smoking."

But the folks around Westmoreland will still be able to see Dunafon. He's appearing in Chevrolet commercials that were taped at Jackson Hole, Wyo.

His role is a little less romantic, however.

"I just walk out of the house and drive it around the ranch," Dunafon says.

Nearly As Much Soda Pop As Milk

Americans are now putting away nearly as much soda pop as they do milk.

The current figures are 1.8 glasses (standard 8-ounce glass) of fluid milk and cream for every man, woman and child in the U.S. The soft drink consumption averages 1.3 glasses daily of either canned or bottled pop.

Even beer consumption is up to 1.13 glasses a day.

In contrast, taking of hard liquor and wine seems mild enough. The average is about one ounce a day of each. That's the equivalent of a glass every 16 days.

That average — a glass in 16 days — is also near the average consumption of tea in the country.

The figures are distorted considerably because they are "per capita" figures, allowing equal weight to baby and adult.

Milk consumption has been on the downgrade since 1950, when the average American drank 600 glasses of milk a year. There has been some increase in recent years in low-fat milk, but the assumption is that the rich milk will continue to decline against fat intake.

Soft drink manufacturers say that 84 per cent of all Americans over 12 years of age are customers. Sales currently are over 4 billion cases a year, although there has been a drop in low-calorie soft drinks.

Even that old standby, coffee, is on the decline. The U.S. does nearly half of the world's coffee-drinking, but consumption now averages for adults only about 2.6 cups a day. In the early 1960s the figure was nearly 3 cups a day.

Kansas swine producers will have an opportunity in January to supply their industry when the Kansas Swine Improvement Association meets in Topeka. The association is a major membership drive. For example, Fontana, KS, reports only 400 of several thousand hog producers in the state are paid up members of the association but that even this small group is making significant contributions to the swine industry of the state and nation. The group encourages membership.

A tremendous crowd of buyers, exhibitors and welcomed visitors made last Friday, New Year's Day, the first day of 1971, one of the best sales we ever had. A very big run of cattle sold at prices that looked $1.00 to $2.00 higher on cows. $1.00 to $1.50 higher on stocker and feeder cattle. Grain fed cattle $1.00 to $1.50 higher.

Swine Assn. In Major Membership Drive

Kansas swine producers will have an opportunity in January to support their industry when the Kansas Swine Improvement Association (KSIA) launches a major membership drive.

Roy Stroup, Fontana, KSIA president, reports only 400 of several thousand hog producers in the state are paid up members of the association but that even this small group "is making significant contributions to the swine industry in the state and nation."

Stroup encourages membership in KSIA "because members benefit from many educational and promotional things the association sponsors. Even the $2 annual membership dues stay in each KSIA district to finance local programs."

KSIA urges its members to participate in the nickel per head check-off program. In the program swine producers have their marketing agency deduct 5 cents per head from each marketed hog.

This money is sent to the National Pork Producers Council. From each nickel one cent goes to the National Livestock and Meat Board and 1.6 cents goes to the National Pork Producers Council for pork promotional studies. The remaining 2.4 cents are returned to KSIA for state programs.

In Kansas the nickel is checked off for 30,000 hogs per month, bringing slightly more than $700 monthly into the KSIA.

Stroup hopes the number of check-off hogs can be raised to 45,000 per month in 1971. This number would bring more than $1000 per month to KSIA and allow for hiring a field secretary to aid the Kansas swine industry.

John Balthrop, Peabody, is chairman of the KSIA membership drive. He, Stroup, and these six district chairmen will accept new memberships: Joe Bellerive, Stockton; Merritt Atwell, Utica; Jim Henry, Longford; Jack Baird, Arkansas City; Shannon Nickelson, Sabetha; and Gene Reinhardt, Chanute.

Swine producers desiring to join KSIA should contact the district chairman nearest them.

Kansas House Redistricting To Delay Until 1972

The chairman of the House Committee on Congressional and Legislative Reapportionment says he believes the 1971 legislature will reapportion the state's five Congressional districts in the coming session but will wait until 1972 to reapportion the Kansas House.

Rep. William Bunten, Topeka Republican, said he has met with House Speaker Calvin Strowig of Abilene, Speaker pro tem Jess Taylor of Tribune and House majority floor leader Morris Kay of Lawrence.

Bunten said the group generally was in agreement on recommendations Bunten presented.

The legislature is under federal court order to reapportion the Congressional districts — last apportioned in 1965 — based on Kansas' 1970 census of 2,265,046 — an average of about 453,000 for each district. The present districts range from about 4,00,000 in the 1st District of Western Kansas to about 495,000 in the 3rd district of East-Central Kansas.

The Kansas Senate also is under court order to reapportion.

Bunten said he has asked the Legislative Council Research Department to draft a Congressional reapportionment proposal.

Bunten said he thinks the House should wait to reapportion itself since a detailed breakdown of the 1960 census figures is not expected until next summer after the legislature adjourns.

DAIRY LEADER HOBART MCVAY DIES IN HUTCHINSON

He was secretary of the Kansas Chapter and a national director in the Holstein Friesian Association. McVay was born in Newton, moved to Hutchinson from Nickerson in 1963. A memorial with the American Cancer Society has been established.
