State Beef Tour This Week In Northwest

Kansas, the fourth largest beef producing state in the nation and ranking sixth in comparison with other states in numbers of cattle on grain feed for slaughter, will focus attention on the cattle feeding industry, August 29, when northwest Kansas will be the scene of the Fourth Annual Governor's Beef Tour.

Sponsored by the Kansas Livestock Association, the tour will be in the Hays and Oakley areas and will begin at 8:45 a.m. at the Hays Land and Cattle Company, north of Hays, and will include stops during the day at commercial feedlots, farmer-feeder operations, a backgrounding operation and a progressive livestock sales market. Morning events will include a portion of the Panorama at the Fort Hays Experiment Station concerning recent beef cattle tests. Other scheduled stops on the tour will be the Hays Livestock Commission Company, Hays, and the following feedlot operations located in the Missouri Flats area, southwest of Quinter; John Sutcliffe, Quinter; Glenn Coberly, Gove; Roscoe Coberly, Gove; Jim Evans, Gove; and the Pioneer Feed Yards, Inc., Oakley.

The tour and all events are open to the public — local, area and state wide, and invited to join Governor Docking and other state officials to attend the tour which will show the tremendous potential of this industry.

The Governor's Beef Luncheon will be served at 12:00 noon at the Livestock Arena at the Fort Hays Experiment Station following the Beef Cattle Panorama and remarks by Governor Robert B. Docking and Robert Schmidt, Hays, President of the Kansas State Chamber of Commerce.

The final event of the tour will be a Steak Fry at Annie Oakley Park, Oakley, and presentations by Robert Pohlman, Mayor of Oakley; Raymond Roemer, Grainfield, President of the Kansas Livestock Association; Governor Robert B. Docking, and an address by Corwin Spencer, attorney-at-law of Oakley.

Cooperating with the Kansas Livestock Association are the Chambers of Commerce of the Hays and Oakley area and business firms and individuals in northwest Kansas.

See Larger Feed Gain Stores

Surpluses of livestock feed grains are expected to be larger this fall than they were a year earlier or expected to be a few months ago, an Agriculture department report has indicated. Carryover stocks of corn, sorghum grain, oats and barley were estimated at 48,500,000 tons by October 1.

When the last report was issued in May, the department predicted a carryover of 44 million tons this fall, a decrease from the 48, 300,000 stockpiled a year earlier.

Most of the expected increase was for corn, an estimated carryover on October 1 of 1.05 billion bushels compared with 950 million predicted last May.

Sorghum grain carryover was estimated at 300 million, unchanged from the May estimate; oats, 370 million compared with 350 million in May; and barley 198 million bushels compared with 175 million earlier.

Officials said total feed grain use during the 1969-70 marketing year was expected to "equal and perhaps exceed" the 168 million tons forecast earlier this month, officials said.

This would be slightly more than the new crop estimate of 167 million tons forecast earlier this month, officials said.

Civil Rights Stamp On Clubs?

A public hearing has been set for August 28 in Kansas City, Kans., on a recommendation by the Kansas Commission on Civil Rights that its jurisdiction be expanded to include nonprofit private clubs and all class "B" profit-making clubs.

The proposals would be sub-

The proposals would exempt class "A" club if it met these requirements:

- It is organized in good faith for social or fraternal purposes.
- Initiation fees or dues are required for membership.
- There is a means of government set forth in a constitution or by-laws.
- There is a means by which the membership can admit or expel members.
- It is not operated, directly or indirectly, for profit of any individual or group.

Total Tax Takes 37c Out Of A Dollar

Federal, state and local taxes take 37 cents out of every dollar of national income — almost 10 cents more than during the early 1940s when American taxpayers were paying for World War II.

Federal taxes during the years since the 1939 pre-war tax take level of 19.5 cents on the dollar have jumped to 9 cents to 26 cents per dollar.

The figures were published in the current issue of U. S. News & World Report, which said the taxes are causing a taxpayers' revolt among American taxpayers.

New Record Pike Catch

COUNCIL GROVE — A northern pike topping the previous state record for the species has been caught at Council Grove Reservoir.

The fish — weighing 18 lbs. 5 oz. and measuring 42 inches in length and 17 inches in girth — was caught by Tobie S. Davison of Kearney, Mo., in the Richey Cove area of the reservoir.

The catch will be submitted to the Kansas Forestry, Fish and Game Commission for verification as a state record.

The previous record for northern pike was 17 lbs. 15 oz. for a fish caught at the reservoir here March 4, 1963, by Clarence Nelson of Wilsey.

Some Hope Regained For Wheat Exports

Agriculture Department officials are optimistic that this season's wheat exports will top last year's volume.

They have set the goal at 550 million to 600 million bushels. This would be up from 542 million bushels shipped in the season ended last June 30.

Grain exporters who as recently as two weeks ago said the export outlook was dim, are a little more optimistic now. They have come around to sharing the Government's view for exports larger than last year's total, whereas a short while ago they were thinking in terms of about 500 million bushels.

The grain men quickly add, however, that the road ahead is "a tough one." It will be one of "severe competition," a leading shipper said. Canada, Australia and France will be in there pitching to sell some of their large surplus stocks.

Argentina, normally a large exporter in the world market, at present is out of the export picture because the crop harvested last December and January was a poor one. Another crop is coming up, however, and prospects look promising for the South American country as a competitor.

Since the season started July 1, U. S. wheat exports totaled 55 million bushels, or 10 million less than were shipped in the year-earlier period. The lag in shipments was primarily due to "hard feelings" in Japan and Brazil, because the U. S. Government didn't offer the two importers the same cut-rate prices extended to Western European buyers July 18.

Last week, however, the Agriculture Department adjusted selling prices to South American and Far Eastern buyers. This immediately resulted in wheat sales. Japan bought close to 5 million bushels of wheat, of which U. S. exporters sold 2.6 million. The balance was bought from Canada, Australia and France.

Buyers in Brazil also re-entered the world market for wheat. While offers to sell were made by all the large sellers, U. S. exporters came up with an order for 3.7 million bushels. No other wheat was bought.

Shipments of the wheat bought by Japan and Brazil will start this month and finish in September.

Both nations, after the orders were placed last week, notified wheat sellers they will again be in the market this week for additional supplies.

India is another "bright hope" in the export market for the U. S. India's home crop production has improved and this had led to speculation that India, which in recent years bought more than 200 million bushels of wheat annually from the U. S., may not have to buy wheat this season. Last week, however, grain sources heard a mission from India was talking to U. S. officials about another wheat agreement.

India for a number of years has obtained U. S. farm products under the P.L. program and paid for them in rupees.

The latest pact, involving 84.5 million bushels of wheat, was signed with India on Dec. 23, 1968 and expired June 30.

Traders heard the current talks are aimed at trying to arrange another P.L. 480 accord for close to 94 million bushels.

Commenting on the expected "extreme competition" that lies ahead, another grain man called attention to the price cutting that has been going on since early this year.

France sold soft wheat last February to the Far East at less than $1 a bushel, or far below the minimum of $1.50 a bushel called for in the International Grains Agreement. Subsequently, Australia made sales at the stipulated minimum price, but it was claimed that lower ocean freight rates, were made available for shipment of the grain, which in effect cut the actual sales prices of the wheat.

The U. S. retaliated by cutting export prices to some areas by 12 cents a bushel in its first move. This was followed by Canada. Further price reductions were made by all leading exporters and at present the question remains is the end of price cut ting is now at hand. Grain merchants hesitate to speculate on this matter although some wouldn't be surprised to see further price reductions.

Lighting Fire Most Dangerous Part Of Barbecuing

If any part of grilling were to be branded as particularly dangerous, it's lighting the fire. Many tragedies and near tragedies are caused every year by carelessness in lighting charcoal, according to the National Safety Council.

Gasoline, because of its explosive nature, should be avoided along with any flammable material not expressly designed for barbecuing. Electric charcoal lighters should be handled with care; their elements, if stored in dampness, may short out when used.

Follow the directions on the lighter fluid container which always say to let the liquid soak into the charcoal before lighting to reduce the hazard of a flash flame. Do not under any circumstances add lighter fluid once the grill is going.

For handling food on the grill it's a good idea to have handled too's, preferably tongs that are sturdy with fireproof grips. A pair of heavy gloves will keep hands safe when necessary to handle some hot item.

WHY NOT FEED MY BABY PURINA CREEP CHOW?

Good question, mama!

Most cows can't produce enough milk to satisfy their calf's energy, protein and nutrient requirements. Calves dropped in the fall cannot eat enough hay, nor can spring calves eat enough grass to fill these needs. It takes more than mother's milk plus hay or grass to bring top dollar on today's calf market.

Creep feeding can solve this problem for the cow-calf operator who is after maximum returns from his brood cow herd. Purina Creep Chow provides a palatable and properly balanced ration for the growing calf.

Come in and visit with us about the many advantages of creep feeding your beef calves. We have everything you will need—from highly-fortified, growth-stimulating Chows to free building plans for a practical low-cost feeder.

Louver doors are lending a high-fashion life in modern homes.

Long considered "standard" for Colonial houses, wood louver doors have bridged the generation gap to become equally popular for contemporary styling. They are used extensively, in new homes and remodeling, as closet doors, connecting doors, room dividers and privacy screens. The slim lines and open-slat design of louvers were a natural entry to modern decor which stresses the "textured" look.

In addition to their visual appeal, louver doors have the advantage of versatility. They're suitable for informal kitchens, formal dining rooms, or as connecting doors between the two. As screens, the louvers let in air, but screen out light, hide clutter and permit privacy. As closet doors and in high-humidity areas, such as the kitchen, bath and laundry room, ventilation provided by louvers combats odors, staleness and mildew.

Louver doors of ponderosa pine are also available as folding and sliding units, with special tracks and hardware for easy operation. Sliding units require no floor clearance. Folding doors, which open and close in accordion fashion, need minimal clearance. Both styles free wall space for flexible furniture arrangement. They are especially practical for foyers and halls, where floor space is limited.

All ponderosa pine louver doors come in stock sizes at local lumber dealers and building supply stores. The doors are available with full or partial louvers (slats in the top half, a closed wood panel in the bottom). They can be painted any color, or simply stained or varnished.

Use Bulgur For More Food Value

Slip an extra bit of food value into salads, desserts, breads, casseroles, stuffings and other dishes you prepare for your family.

Bulgur is red or white hard winter wheat which has a nut-like flavor. It's tender but firm. It more than doubles in volume when you cook or soak it.

An excellent accompaniment to meat, fish and poultry, bulgur is a good extender in casseroles. While adding a few more servings to a main dish, bulgur adds protein, riboflavin, niacin and thiamine to the dish.

Become An "Artist" With New Powdered Eye Shadows

Expressly designed for a galaxy of fun and fashion is a whole new galaxy of powdered eye shadow colors in the smallest compact ever.

Each of the eight color-coordinated fashion shades comes in distinctively different assortments keyed to eye color for Big Browns, for Baby Blues and for Envy Greens.

This new color adventure in high fashion eye fashion enables all teens to become "artists" in the creation of fascinating new eye effects.

There are pastels and soft colors for daytime, exquisite and dramatic shades for evening that will light up the eyes in a whirl of bewitching color. There are also frosted colors and color for highlights and shadows. There are shades for natural effects, shades for special effects and they're all designed to make most beautiful eyes in years.

Each kit features a carefully selected combination of brush-on eye shadow shades color-schemed to a teen's eyes. As fashion's newest tones, all are extremely flattering colors that brush-on as softly or dramatically as the individual desires. The eight shades in each compact also complement and enhance the latest fashion colors in clothing and accessories to provide the most bedazzling eyelighting ever.

The new compact contains everything needed for perfectly shadowed eyes, including a carefully worked out combination of shadows, shadings and shiners. Shadows, in medium light or pastel tones, emphasize and enhance the eyes with color that is either matched to actual eye color or to special fashion ensembles for greater excitement and contrast. Shaders, the darker tones to subdue or recede areas, primarily are used for contouring the hollow or concave crease above the eyelid. Shiners, the lighter highlighting and accenting tones, are most often applied to the bony curve under the eyebrow.

Food Costs Up? Not Really

Families are expected to spend about 16.5 cents of their take-home dollar on food this year, compared with the 1968 record low of 16.8 cents, says the Agriculture Department.

This has occurred because incomes have risen generally more rapidly than food costs, despite their record-high levels, say the experts. Last year retail food prices jumped about 3.5 per cent and are expected to gain around 4 per cent in 1969.

Department officials say the United States is not unique in the food-price spiral, that many countries last year experienced even sharper gains in costs and required much larger shares of the family dollar. Food price increases last year ranged from 7 to 13 per cent in Denmark, Finland, Yugoslavia, Ghana, Cambodia, Taiwan, Ceylon and Japan, a new department report said.

Only West Germany and the Philippines out of 50 countries studied had food price decreases in 1968, the report said. The largest gain in food prices last year — 34 per cent — was reported for South Vietnam. Other large gains were reported for Chile, 26 per cent; Brazil, 21 per cent; Argentina, 16 per cent, and Peru, 18 per cent.

Food expenditures related to family take-home for the foreign consumer were not available for 1968, but the report said that in 1966 when U. S. families spent 19.7 cents of their spending dollar for food expenditures it included: West Germany, 34 cents; United Kingdom, 25.1; Yugoslavia, 44.1; Poland, 47.6; Bulgaria, 56.2; Taiwan, 47.4; Japan, 37.8; Korea, 52; Thailand, 46.2; South Vietnam (1965), 51; Panama, 39.4; Italy, 37.9; Denmark, 22.2; and France, 29.

Except for Greece, Italy and Malta, the report said, most European consumers spent from 25 to 30 cents of their take-home dollar for food last year.

Pork Promotions Combine Into One 'Congress'

Des Moines — Preliminary details of a plan to combine several major pork industry conferences and annual meetings into a single, big affair to be called "The American Pork Congress" have been worked out. The dates are March 3, 4 and 5 and it will be in the Veterans Auditorium here. Attendance may hit 3500 people, it is guessed.

Included will be what were formerly the National Pork Industry Conference, annual meetings of the National Pork Producers Council and the National Porkettes, and the state annual meeting of Pork Producers Council. In addition, there'll be a Pork Industry Trade Show, with space for about 150 commercial displays and exhibits.

Poorer By Definition

The poor have become numerous because of a change in definition, although a long-term trend continues downward.

Originally, the Commerce Department unit classified million Americans "living low the poverty level" in 1960. But now it has raised that total 1.6 million.

The formula, which includes such criteria as family size, rural or urban location, has changed in two ways. Annual increases in poverty-income levels are being based now on the Labor Department's consumer price index, instead of the Agriculture Department's "food-budget" concept, and farm families are being ranked as poor if their income is as much as 85% of a city dweller's poverty-income level, instead of 70%.

First figures for 1968, report added, show that progress against poverty is coming despite the revised criteria. The total fell to 25.4 million individuals last year, it said, from 36.4 million five years before and 39.5 million in 1959.

How 500 Acres Dwindled To 333

Announcement of wheat allotments — a 12 per cent cut from last year — has brought considerable reaction from farm and commodity groups at the national level.

The National Farmers Union called immediately for an export certificate to the farmers for wheat, calling such a move "imperative as a result of the movement of the United States into the international wheat war."

They also asked President Richard Nixon to call a meeting of the International Grains Arrangement member nations and other wheat-exporting nations to resolve price differences, avoid dumping wheat in world trade and prevail on exporting nations to make a cutback in wheat production comparable to that being made in the U. S.

"Only through the immediate action of the United States to take leadership in solving world wheat surplus over the conference table can the wheat farmers of the world be saved from financial disaster," the NFU Executive Committee said in a statement.

Wheat farmers were a little frightened by the international attitude toward wheat buying after the USDA announcement by Agriculture Secretary Clifford Hardin July 19 when the U. S. cut prices for wheat below the IGA level for the first time.

No wheat moved. This came primarily because the U. S. price to South America and the Orient remained the same.

Price cuts matching the first ones, however, came and immediately Brazil and Japan offered to buy U. S. wheat.

There were considerable facts to supply material for the farmers' worries. A compilation of figures from the National Association of Wheat Growers (NAWG) shows a man who had 500 acres of wheat allotted him in 1967, would get only 333.45 acres allotted under the 1970 acreage set by the USDA.

On an income basis, gross of $28,050 for the 1967 crop, would be only $20,006 for the 1970 allotment. This would be slightly more than a 25 per cent cut in gross income, not taking into account the climbing costs which would eat into the net profit one could expect from that amount of gross income.

The figures presented by NAWG included the domestic certificate.

A man with 500 acres in 1967 had 435 in 1968, 378.45 in 1969, and the new decrease would allow him only the 333.45 acres.

Costs of raising wheat are inclined to differ with management, area considered, quality of the land and many other facets of operation — but one study done by the University of Nebraska showed wheat in their western areas costing from $1.43 to $1.83 per bushel, depending on the size farm involved.

Kansas' input for wheat is likely to be in that range too, maybe in some spots much higher. Wheat prices this year with a 31.5 bushel average in Kansas, means on this cost basis an acre of wheat would yield net income of from $1.20 to $12.00 an acre. The median might be about $6 an acre.

Based on that figure a man with a 100-acre wheat allotment would get only $600 for his year's work. He'd have to farm 1,000 acres of wheat — meaning a land of about 4,000 acres — in order to have a net income of $6,000.

Most farmers — as well as most laborers or anyone else — declare this is pretty poor income for a year's work involving management of land and machinery that is worth $750,000 to $1 million.

This is why western Kans. farmers — who in some areas are tied to the one-crop economy — are upset by further cuts in their income through production control at decreasing prices for their production.

In most cases they believe they are being curbed on price to satisfy the U. S. desire to feed the world at cut-rate prices. Many are making efforts to get into other cropping practices and hope to "hang on" until things get better one way or another.

Soil Too Rich For Native Grass

Modern farming practices have come a long way from days when farmers were frequently criticized for depleting soil fertility.

Contrary to that old criticism, National Park Service personnel are complaining that the soil on the 400-acre Fort Larned National Historic Site is too rich.

"Our problem is that the ground is too rich from modern farming practices and alfalfa to grow native grasses," said Thomas A. Munson, National Park Service superintendent of Ft. Larned.

National Park Service experts have had little success in attempts to replace modern crops on the land with native grasses which were prevalent a century ago when Ft. Larned was an active military post, he said.

Restoration on the post of six varieties of native grasses is one project at the site. He said 150 acres had been reseeded, with success on only about 50 acres. Park Service horticultural experts believe the land must be cleared of all legumes and allowed to deplete much of its rich nitrogen content before old native grasses can be re-established.

National Park Service hopes to re-establish stands of buffalo grass, big bluestem, Indian grass and side oats gramma on land surrounding the old fort, Munson said.

Elaborate Checks On Cheating Anglers

Fishing contests are getting more common in the G&G area, but so far promoters aren't admitting to some of the problems that beset some of the big national fishing extravaganzas.

Take the recent Salmon Derby at Vancouver, B. C. That contest attracts 12,000 anglers, and promoters have to spend as much energy to certifying the winner as they do to advertising the event.

The big problem is to make sure the winning fish were caught during the derby.

Anglers submitting fish had to sign affidavits in the presence of a Canadian Mounted Policeman, telling where and in what kind of weather and water they had made their catch. Captains of 19 patrol boats that policed the area during the derby can help decide whether the stories are likely.

The fish submitted for prizes are checked for signs of decay. Biologists study the skins of the fish to make sure that parasites they carry are the ones native to the area.

Then came the real test. The fish are sliced open to see if their stomach contents match the diet of your average Vancouver salmon. The dissection also will uncover any unsporting angler who might have filled his fish with sand or lead shot to boost its weight.

Before the tournament, promoters had two unmarked patrol boats criss-crossing the waters outside the harbor day and night. Airplanes surveyed the area. And commercial fishermen and beachcombers were alerted to keep an eye out for suspicious activity.

The snoopers were looking mainly for sneaky fishermen up to the trick of force-feeding captive to fatten them up for tourney.

Several years ago the winning fish in a salmon derby sponsored by the Vancouver Sun turned out to be one purchased from a commercial fishery. The natives didn't take that lightly. The winner not only had to turn back his prize — a 17-foot boat — but was tried, convicted and sentenced to a jail term.

Fin Anthony, who runs the Vancouver tournament, is worried more about force-fed salmon than about fish obtained in other times or places and then saved up for the tournament.

He claims that some contestants try to catch a hefty salmon and keep it submerged in a trap until derby day. Meantime, they stuff it full of herring, a salmon's typical meal. In two months, Anthony says, he can take a 30-pound salmon and balloon it up to 55 pounds. Sportsmen don't seem to be by the distrust evident in Anthony's stiff security.

But what really exasperates oldtimers, says Anthony, is being trounced by a green man. Last year, two of the 10 winners were teenagers. The grand prize went to a 24-old painter.

HOT AND COLD RUNNING WATER

Hoping to get a little national publicity a few years ago, the utilities commissioner in Pratt had "hot" and "cold" painted on twin water towers in his town. Then he waited for an enterprising reporter or photographer to give some attention to his small joke. It's been four years since and not much attention. Said one waterworks employee, "Some people take it seriously. They really think we have one storage tank for hot water and one for cold."

Montgomery, Frizzell Agree On Road Law

TOPEKA — John D. Montgomery, Kansas highway director, said the favorable ruling by the attorney general's office relaxing some provisions of the freeways construction act of 1969 would return the major policy-making decisions to the highway commission and would speed road construction.

Kent Frizzell, attorney general, had ruled that a section of the act setting up a list of nine rigid points that had to be met to establish a priority rating for a section of freeways was inoperative and had no application to the general terms of the new highway act.

"The highway commission is quite happy with the attorney general's opinion, which liberalizes the interpretation of the legislation and returns authority for highway planning to the professional staff of the commission," Montgomery said.

"The guidelines of the original legislation were so inflexible and confusing that, if followed by strict interpretation, the bulk of construction for the next several years would have been centered in only two counties."

Those counties are Johnson and Sedgwick, he said. Priority requirements leaned heavily on population density and heavy traffic flow.

Montgomery said construction still will be pushed in those counties, but the requirement that segments of a road be built in consecutive order would have meant that one major highway could have been tied up for years because of construction.

"This would have been an unnecessary burden to the citizens and disruptive and damaging to business in the areas," Montgomery said.

Only Johnson and Sedgwick Counties could have met the priorities set out in that section of the bill, he added.

"With the attorney general's more liberal interpretation, we can make plans to provide free-ways for the entire state, based on real need instead of on the basis of hastily-devised criteria conceived by men inexperienced in highway planning," Montgomery said.

The act carried with it a 2-cent gasoline tax increase and provided that half of the available construction funds be used for free-way construction in nine general traffic corridors.

$3.6 Million From Pacts To Collect Sales Tax

The State Dept. of Revenue reported in its August bulletin collections from reciprocal sales and use tax agreements with four surrounding states during fiscal year 1969 totaled $3.63 million.

It was the first full fiscal year of operation for the reciprocal tax agreements, under which Missouri, Oklahoma, Nebraska and Colorado collect Kansas sales tax on goods they sell their states to residents of Kansas. The collections are then remitted to Kansas.

The revenue dept. bulletin said Missouri collections were reduced considerably during the fourth quarter (April, May, June) of fiscal 1969 because the construction trades strike in Kansas City.

Revenues from the reciprocal agreements are taxes that were not being collected previously by merchants along the Kansas border.

Following is a breakdown of the collections received by Kansas from its reciprocal sales and use tax agreements with bordering states last fiscal year:

— Missouri —	$3,138,965.
— Oklahoma —	$229,396.
— Nebraska —	$173,009.
— Colorado —	$91,343.

MECHANICAL HORSE CAUSES K.C. SHUTDOWN

Here's one of the scooters which were given as a reason for the shutdown of the Kansas City Stockyards last week. About 140 union members walked off the job there when the mechanical horses were put into operation on a trial basis. Two of the 3-wheeled, motor driven scooters were put into use by the stockyards, which is considering using in place of horses. About a dozen horses are used by union members to move along the live-stock pens.

The shutdown of the Kansas City yards was said to be only the second in history, the other being in July 1951 when a major flood hit the area.

Kansas Ranks 9th In Number Of Cooperatives

Kansas ranked ninth among the 50 states for the number of cooperatives with headquarters in the state, as of June 30, 1968, reports David W. Angevine, administrator of farmer cooperative service in the United States Department of Agriculture.

Kansas had 299 such organizations. Angevine supervised the annual survey covering the fiscal year

July 1, 1967, to June 30, 1968.

Kansas dropped one rank, however, in the listing of memberships in the cooperatives in the state reporting 212,795 members, which gave it a tenth ranking among the 50 states.

The state also ranked tenth in business volume excluding inter-cooperative business dealings.

Kansas cooperatives did approximately $538.8 million worth of business in the fiscal year covered by the survey.

The 50 states had a total of 7,940 cooperatives, a decline of two per cent from the previous period. Still, it was the smallest decline in four years.

Minnesota, Wisconsin and Texas ranked in that order in number of cooperatives with headquarters in the state.

Memberships totaled 6.4 million for the nation, 1 per cent fewer than the previous year. Minnesota, Iowa and Indiana led in memberships in that order.

The survey showed an annual business volume exceeding $17 billion for the 50 states for marketing, purchasing and related-service cooperatives.

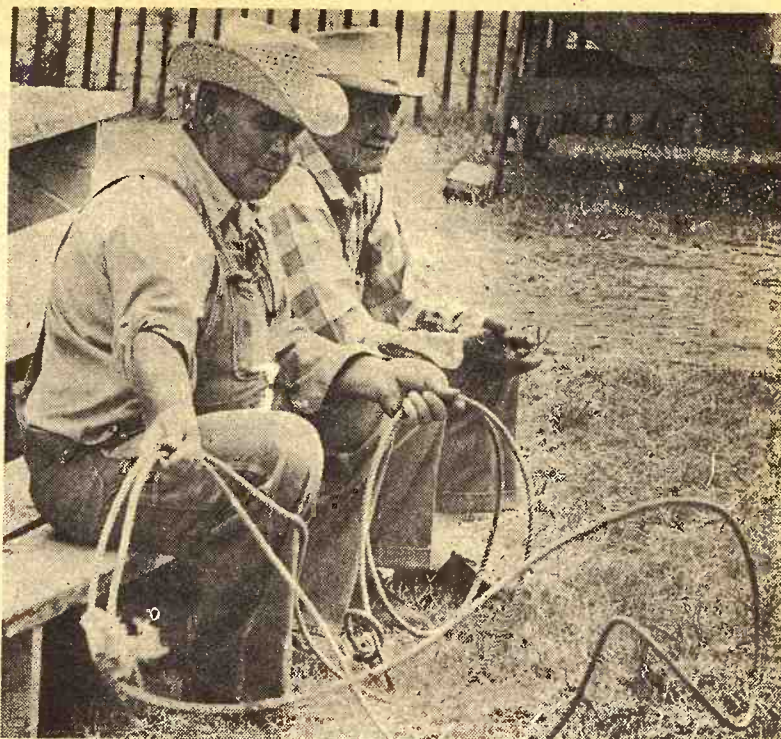

California, Minnesota and Iowa ranked in that order in total dollar volume of business.

Value of all farm products marketed cooperatively totaled $13.3 billion, up 3 per cent over the previous year despite a 1 per cent decrease in farmers' cash receipts for all commodities.

Dairy, grain and livestock led in product value, in that order, with grain volume about $2.9 billion being slightly under a year ago.

TONNAGE, PROFITS UP FOR COOPER FEEDS

HUMBOLDT, NEBR. — The O. A. Cooper Company, feed manufacturers in the northern part of the G&G area, report feed tonnage up 26% for the first half of 1969 and net earnings up 56%. Board chairman Guy Cooper said, "Though the feed industry is not in itself a strong growth segment of our economy, there are continuing fine opportunities for the well-seasoned, well-financed and strongly-staffed smaller feed company that does well what it best knows how to do."

To Supplement Good Pastures — Or Not?

Should grass be supplemented with grain or protein in late summer?

Kansas pastures normally provide an excellent diet for beef animals. Most nutrient needs — energy, protein, vitamins and minerals — are provided by good pasture.

In most cases, the only additional nutrients needed are salt and fresh water, supplied free choice.

Dr. Keith Zoellner, Kansas State University Extension beef specialist, says a producer who feels he should be feeding additional supplement on pasture should consider several factors.

Additional supplementation of protein and/or energy may be desirable for steers on native pastures after mid-season, probably in August.

Steers on native short grass at the Fort Hays Branch Experiment Station responded to protein supplementation in years of high rainfall during July and August.

In years of average or below average precipitation, gain was increased when sorghum grain was fed to supplement grass.

These results indicate that during years of high rainfall and high forage production, forage quality is lower and cattle respond to additional protein toward the end of the grazing season.

Zoellner points out that when grass production is limited by lack of moisture, forage quality is high but additional energy may be needed.

Yearling steers on native blue-stem at the KSU experimental range unit at Manhattan increased their gain when supplemental grain or protein was fed during late summer.

In a three-year study, 141 pounds of protein supplement produced 28 pounds of additional gain, and 141 pounds of corn increased gains by 15 pounds.

Under present prices, other economic factors must be favorable before it would be profitable to supplement grass with either protein or grain, Zoellner said.

"Consider factors such as the quality of the cattle, the price margin, and the economics of getting more flesh on animals," he concluded.

Building Blocks From Garbage

Koto Environment Sanitation Facilities association has installed at Kami village, in Central Japan, a refuse plant that compresses garbage into hard blocks that can be used for construction and other purposes.

The garbage disposal system was developed by Tezuka Kosan company of Tokyo. The Kami facility is the third such Tezuka refuse plant to be installed in Japan. The others are at Kofu, Central Japan, and Yokosuka, south of Tokyo.

The Kami plant is capable of processing 150 tons of garbage in 24 hours. It cost about $560,000, Tezuka said. Blocks from the plant are to be used for a housing construction project in Kami area and for a farm development venture.

The Tezuka garbage disposal system uses a hydraulic press that creates pressure so intense that it almost completely dehydrates garbage. The pressure so eliminates oxygen from garbage, killing, as a result, bacteria, Tezuka said. The product, the company said, is a sanitary, durable block used in asphalt and chicken

The company said it has received inquiries about the system from many foreign countries. But so far it hasn't expanded a plant employing the system.

Doctors Get Blame For High Medicaid Costs

Robert H. Finch, secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, has given the nation's medical profession a large measure of the blame for skyrocketing costs of Medicare.

Finch noted in a letter to Sen. Abraham A. Ribicoff (D-Conn.) that "the need for genuine physician participation in controlling costs is self-evident."

Congressional concern over Medicaid costs — which have tripled in three years from federal contributions of 800 million dollars to 2.4 billion dollars annually — has focused on trimming medical services to those on welfare.

But Finch apparently agrees with Ribicoff's assertion, in a June 13 letter to the secretary, that "local program cuts would make people the victims of austerity instead of inefficiencies and waste that we know exist in Medicaid."

An August 15 response by Finch, made available by congressional sources, is being interpreted as support for Ribicoff's view that the doctors are largely responsible for soaring costs.

"I am coming to believe," Finch wrote, "that a major factor is the degree to which physicians are involved in the program. Not simply as purveyors of medical care but also as watchdogs of costs and guardians of quality."

The Medicaid program operates in 44 states or territories. Policing against fraud is left largely to the states and recent inquiries have determined that 2,700 doctors collected $25,000 or more each in Medicaid fees last year.

Angus Assn. Show Rules On Get-of-Sire

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. A change in how classification rules for Angus get of sire classes has been voted by directors of the American Angus Assn., Lloyd D. Miller, secretary, reports.

The rule, effective immediately, eliminates the need for an exhibitor to have bred the animals in the get of sire and junior get of sire classes. Animals exhibited in both classes must be owned solely or in part by the exhibitor. As in the past, they must also represent both sexes, and in the case of the junior get class have been exhibited in the specified classes of the open show.

Transfers of purchased animals must have been received by the American Angus Assn. for processing prior to July 1 of the year beginning the current show season. Animals transferred after July 1 of this year will not be eligible to show in the get of sire classes until after July 1, 1970.

TRY 2% CHLORDANE OR 5% DIELDRIN

The invasions of crickets in the G&G area have gotten smaller, but favorable August conditions for hatching means the unusual flights of the crickets to lighted areas isn't over yet.

Here, Don McPhail of Salina peers at cricket horde around a window at the Marshall Motor Co.

The entomological swarms have not been limited to crickets. Pilots of small planes near St. Joseph last week reported large swarms of grasshoppers flying at altitudes of 9000 feet. The Weather Bureau, which received the reports, couldn't refrain from looking at the problem professionally. It added to the report that the "precipitation probability for the area is 20%, which does not include tobacco juice falling from the heavens."

IH Profits Off

Earnings for International Harvester were off sharply during the company's third quarter, ended July 31. Net profits for the period were down 29% to $12 million on sales of $688 million. For the first nine months of the fiscal year profits of $42 million were earned on sales of $1.91 billion. A year ago, for the same period, profits were $46 million on sales of $1.85 billion.

Company officials said high demand for trucks contributed substantially to higher sales but farm equipment for the first nine months were off 8.3%. Company board chairman Harry Bercher said the decline in sales of farm equipment "has bottomed out" but added: "We don't expect any sizable improvement during the fourth quarter. We do anticipate continued good demand for lawn and garden tractors."

LIST NEW HEREFORD ASSOCIATION MEMBERS

A new member of the American Hereford Association from the G&G area is B. L. Jones of Chapman. A new junior member is Patrick Novak of Belleville.

$3.5 Billion To Bring Missouri River Water To Great Plains

COLBY — A plan for diversion of a portion of the Missouri River for irrigation on the High Plains could be accomplished for a cost of $3.5 billion.

Jack Lacy, director of the Kansas Department of Economic Development, told a combined meeting of the Kansas Irrigation and Reclamation association and the Four State Irrigation Council while on a 2-day tour of Western Kansas irrigation operations.

He said the plan's cost would be less than one-sixth the cost of sending a man to Mars.

"There is no adequate source of surface water near the Great Plains; therefore a supplemental supply will have to be transported over a distance," Lacy said.

A plan advanced in 1967 by R. W. Beck and Associates, Denver, would divert a portion of the Missouri River across northern Nebraska, south through western Nebraska, eastern Colorado and western Kansas, and into the Oklahoma and Texas panhandles, terminating at Hobbs, N. M.

The project would reach approximately 53 million acres of land suitable for irrigation.

Lacy called for a new regional planning for the best interests of the Great Plains.

Milk Price Up In Some Towns

The price of milk has increased two cents a half gallon at several towns in the G&G area in the past week. Costs vary from town to town from 50 cents to 58 or 59 cents in less competitive areas.

Kansas - Nebraska Road Links

A 20-year highway program recently approved by Nebraska's bicameral Legislature eventually would hook up with a similar program underway in Kansas.

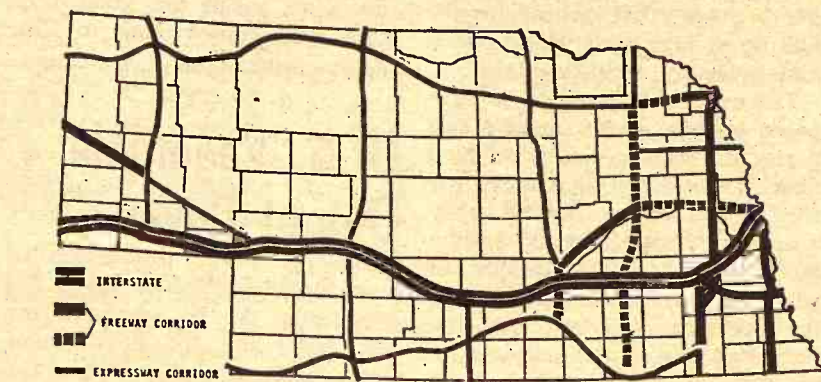

The Nebraska lawmakers, currently in session, have passed 15 bills setting up ways of financing a proposed 2,209-mile system of freeways and expressways, costing an estimated $614.4 million over the next 20 years.

Of particular interest to Kansas is the planned improvement of US75, US77 and US81. Under Nebraska's program they would become four-lane thoroughfares south, nearly to the Kansas border.

At the same time, Kansas' highway program calls for similar improvements of US81 north as far as Belleville, US36 from that point east to the Missouri border (crossing US77), and US75 north to the Nebraska border.

The Nebraska legislation, which had been pending for some time, was made possible when the Nebraska constitution was amended by popular vote in 1968, to allow issuing highway revenue bonds.

The new legislation created a Highway Bond Commission, empowered to issue such bonds. Separate bills also provide for additional financing, including a one-cent gasoline tax hike and diversion of all motor vehicle sales tax revenue to the highway program.

Kansas Highway Commission officials, however, say the Nebraska action will have little if any immediate effect on Kansas' program.

John D. McNeal, state highway engineer, said Nebraska has not contacted Kansas in the matter, and it is unlikely there will be any dramatic change in Kansas' plans.

"Everything depends on where they put their priorities," he pointed out. Even if Nebraska gave a top-priority rating to the highways in question, he said, it would be difficult to say what the effect would be, if any.

Such a priority isn't likely, in any event, since traffic counts show the daily volume at the three border points "not particularly high," Neal said.

Also, articles in Nebraska newspapers have indicated that highest priority probably would be given highways around Omaha and Lincoln, the state's two largest cities.

Kansas' priorities are unclear now because of a recent opinion of Atty. Gen. Kent Frizzell, stating that the section of the 1969 Highway Act which deals with establishment of such priorities is invalid.

Fall Forage Field Day Is Sept. 3

MANHATTAN — A program tailor-made for persons interested in new forage hybrids, up-to-date research findings and modern harvesting equipment has been arranged for the annual Fall Forage field day at Kansas State University. The date for the popular event is September 3.

Frank G. Bieberly, Extension Crops and Soils Specialist and chairman of the event, estimated more than 600 persons will attend the day-long activities beginning at 9:30 a.m., at the Agronomy Farm Headquarters just north of the KSU Football Stadium.

Visitors will be taken on an eight-stop field tour so they can learn more about forage crops, soybean maturity groups, range management, soybean weed control, musk thistle control, pearl millet, nitrate in forage, sorghum-sudan hybrids, and evapotranspiration.

Following lunch, a panel of experts from KSU will field questions from the audience. Then guests will be taken to the field again to view several makes and models of silage harvesting equipment operating in a field of tall, rugged forage.

Several manufacturers have been invited to show their equipment in action, Bieberly said.

A hydraulic dump box which holds and dumps a truck load of forage will also be demonstrated. This equipment is also used for grain and sugar beet harvesting.

A special program has been arranged for ladies who accompany their husbands to the field day. They'll make their own table decorations during a morning workshop and following lunch, they'll develop color decorations for their own interior design. Ladies will meet in the Research Center Building at the Agronomy Farm Headquarters.

72-Year Old Refinery To Close At Neodesha

The American Oil company announced it will halt operations at its 72-year-old Neodesha refinery, a producer of gasoline and distillate fuels.

W. S. Peeler, vice-president of manufacturing and transportation for American, said the refinery is not profitable enough.

It appears "that the operation must be discontinued and we would expect this to take place on or about April 1, 1970," Peeler said.

Peeler blamed the refinery's small size, lack of modern crude distillation facilities, a dwindling supply of crude oil in the area and the distance from major markets as the key factors in the decision to close the refinery.

W. A. Burns, manager of the refinery, said the company plans to maintain the major part of refinery tankage as a terminal.

A statement by the company said process units now in operation include distillation facilities capable of processing 30,400 barrels a day, a 9,000-barrel-a-day catalytic cracking unit, a 7,200-barrel-a-day ultraformer and a

FRONTIER LOSS AT $4.1 MILLION

Frontier Airlines had a net loss of $4.1 million for the first six months of 1969. Income for the first half of the year was $37.6 million, up 9% from a year ago, when the loss was $2.4 million, after deduction of $1.3 million tax credit. Frontier is the primary supplier of air service in the G&G area.

TAX LEVY DOWN AGAIN AT WICHITA

Taxpayers in Wichita will get their second straight decrease in property tax levies. The new total levy for the coming tax collection period is 106.87 mills down a half-mill from the past year and 2.6 mills from two years ago. Officials cited a $15 million increase in valuations within Wichita as a cause of the decline.

Wheatfarmers Study New Allotments — and Future

Kansas farmers are clamoring to get their wheat acreage allotments, according to word from the state Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation service office in Manhattan.

They want to know, of course, just exactly how many acres they can harvest next year and still stay within the government limits under the price support program.

The national allotment for the 1970 crop was cut 12 per cent under the 1969 total — from 51.6 million acres to 45.5 million. Because of indecision on just what size the allotment should be, the government was late this year in making the announcement.

In Western Kansas, farmers will be planting wheat in a couple of weeks. They have been plowing since this year's crop was harvested.

Wendell Becraft, manager of the state ASCS office in Manhattan, said county offices already have received their allotment figures and they should be able to start sending individual farm figures out this week.

However, the assumption is that most farmers already know just about what their acreage will be — if they subtract 12 per cent from the 1969 allotment, that's about it. There will be a few exceptions. Becraft said, where a farmer has "lost history" by not planting his full allotment in recent years.

The wheat program itself is virtually unchanged from this year and last. In fact, farmers have been operating under government programs so long that they're experienced hands. Still, they'd like to have the official figures before they start their drills.

Under the wheat program for 1970, the national average price-support loan level will remain at $1.25 a bushel. This means that any farmer who signs up in the government program and stays within his allotment, will be entitled at harvest time next year to get a loan on his total yield at the loan rate. The loan rate varies a little from county to county, but, as stated, the national average is $1.25. In effect, the farmer can "sell" his wheat to the government at the loan price. However, if the market price should rise before the next harvest, he could redeem his loan and take advantage of the price increase.

In addition to the $1.25 loan the farmer joining in the program will get a direct payment from the government of the difference between the loan rate and parity on 48 per cent of his projected yield. The projected yield is a figure that is computed for each farm and indicates what would be about a normal yield for the farm. It can be more or less than the actual yield.

This direct payment comes through a certificate — that is, the farmer gets a certificate covering the grain on which he is to get the payment.

The value of the certificate changes from year to year, in line with the farm parity index, and so does the percentage on which the farmer is paid. The parity index is a complicated computation showing the relationship between prices on things farmers sell and those that they buy. As prices on everything else go up, the parity value of wheat also rises.

This year, the certificates were worth $1.52 a bushel; last year they were worth $1.38. No one knows for sure what they'll be worth next year, but the figure will be based on the parity value of wheat as of July 1. It's a good guess that wheat parity will be as high next year as now and probably a little higher.

The certificate program is supposed to give wheat farmers full parity on that part of their crop which is used in this country for food. Food usage doesn't vary much and runs about 500 million bushels a year. The amount of wheat on which the farmer gets the certificate varies with the estimated size of the nation's total crop.

Kansas' allotment for the 1970 crop is 8,526,307 acres, and, as Becraft contends, the harvest next year probably will be on about that many acres.

The Kansas crop this year has been placed at 304 million bushels, second only to the record established in 1952 of 307 million. The acreage allotment for 1969 was 9,670,690. In 1952, the harvest was from 14,649,000 acres.

In 1937, Kansas farmers seeded 17 million acres to wheat, but harvested only 13 million. In 1935, they seeded 13,456,000, but harvested only 6,888,000. However, prior to 1918, it was common to harvest less than 5 or 6 million acres. In 1957, a drought year, the harvest was from only 5,269,000 acres. That year the yield was only barely over 100 million bushels, just a third of the 1969 harvest.

The statistics are proof of a wide variation in seeded acreages and in wheat yields in Kansas. But when yields are good, no state even comes close to Kansas in production.

U. S. Vegetable Output Down

Sharply lower production of most major vegetables grown for processing is the prospect for this year, and the government also expects a smaller output for the fresh market.

The Agriculture department estimates 1969 total production of 8,301,460 tons of snap bean, cabbage for kraut, sweet corn, green peas, early spinach and tomatoes. This would be a 24 per cent drop from last year and 6 per cent under the 1967 harvest.

Only kraut cabbage indicates any increase this year — 1 per cent, to 202,920 tons — largely due to a slight rise in expected acres to be harvested. Despite the likelihood of fractional higher yields, the snap bean crop is expected to drop 6 per cent below last year's, to 589,080 tons.

The estimate for sweet corn is a little over 2 million tons, down 19 per cent from last year and 4 per cent below 1967 output. A similar percentage drop, to 104,750 tons, is forecast for

ach. Estimated green pea production of 560,360 tons would mean 56 per cent below last year's harvest, but the outlook for tomatoes shows an overall decline of 31 per cent down to 4,834,550 tons.

California, which accounts for nearly three-fourths of the country's tomatoes for processing, is likely to wind up with only two-thirds of last year's crop.

Acreage cuts are largely responsible for lower production estimates for most vegetables grown for the commercial market. Excluding melons, output of major seasonal vegetables is expected to be 6 per cent below last year's.

The largest decrease is expected for celery. The early crop in California is estimated at 13 million hundredweight, down 28 per cent from 1968. And summer crops in other states are forecast at 1.7 million hundredweight, 17 per cent below last year's.

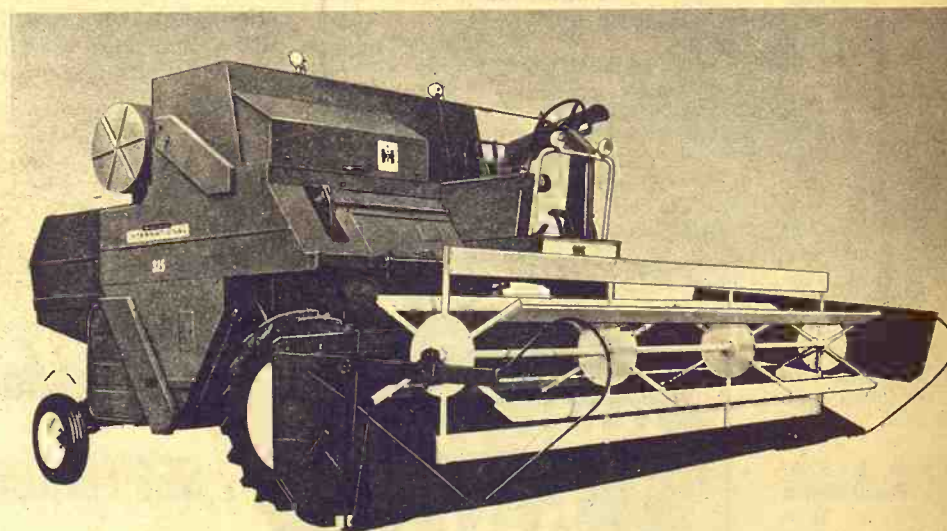

Early summer tomato production is put at 5,200,000 hundredweight, down 6 per cent and later estimates of 2,500,000 hundredweight would be 9 per cent below 1968 production.

Lettuce is one of the few summer vegetables showing a slightly larger crop this summer. California, the biggest producer, supplying three-fourths of year's expected total of 12 million hundredweight.

Start Grub Treatment Yet This Month

Kansas livestock producers are urged to launch their grub treatment program before the end of August.

That's the recommendation of Dr. Homer Caley, Kansas State University Extension veterinarian.

"Rapid movement and importation of cattle into Kansas added confusion to the calendar dates of recommended treatment," Caley said.

"The schedule lists Kansas as the area requiring treatment before August 31. However, treatment as soon after the heel fly season as possible is ideal."

It has been estimated that Kansas livestock producers have an annual loss of more than $2 million from grubs. Some people closely associated with the livestock industry in Kansas feel the loss figure is much higher.

"Hide and carcass damage may account for an actual loss of $8 to $15 per head," Caley remarked. "Trimming of affected areas and down-grading of the entire carcass accounts for a major portion of the loss. However, perforated hides have little value."

Losses of trimming, down-grading and perforated hides can be calculated with some degree of accuracy, Caley said, but it is difficult to project the estimated loss due to irritation caused by the heel fly.

Research in California indicates that cattle may spend up to 1 1/2 hours daily attempting to evade the heel fly. The distances traveled varied from 2,524 to 4,037 feet. Evasion (gadding) will result in decreased milk production, lower weight gains and increased injuries.

"Improved grubicides are effective and reasonable in cost and should be used as recommended," Caley suggested.

No Welfare Shift As Feared

When the Supreme Court struck down state residence requirements for persons receiving welfare, there was apprehension in capitols of states that are most generous to their poor.

Some officials plainly feared they would be engulfed by waves of out-of-staters coming to where the welfare was greener. But so far there is little evidence this is happening.

There is a major difference across the land in the payments for the 10 million persons receiving some form of assistance.

New Jersey pays an average $65.30 a month a person in its aid to families with dependent children. Mississippi pays $9.70. A family of four receiving welfare in New Jersey averages $263 a month. The same family would get $38.75 in Mississippi.

Those are the extremes. The rest of the 50 states fall in between.

Nearly three months after the Supreme Court's ruling became effective it appears the fears of mass migration of people on the whole were largely groundless. A wire service survey found that states barely felt a change.

"We expected something to happen," said George Miller, administrator of the Nevada Welfare division, "but we have had practically no change. We have not had numbers go up. We have not had a great exodus."

In its 6-3 decision April 21, the Supreme Court ruled it unconstitutional for a state to require a waiting period for welfare grants for "the purpose of inhibiting migration by needy persons into the state." Such a requirement, the court said, inhibited a citizen's freedom to travel and made an invidious distinction between needy persons who had lived in a state for a year and those who had not.

Delaware, Guam, Hawaii, Kentucky, Maine, New York, Puerto Rico, Vermont, the Virgin Islands and Massachusetts had no residency requirements in any welfare program. Alaska, Georgia and New Jersey had no requirements in aid to families with dependent children, commonly called AFDC, but had some in other aid programs.

Seven states and the District of Columbia had residence requirements but had not enforced them for more than a year because the rules were being challenged in court. The states are California, Connecticut, Illinois, Louisiana, Maryland, Pennsylvania and Wisconsin.

A state legislator in Pennsylvania, Republican Eugene R. Geesey, attempted to ease possible effects of the Supreme Court ruling by introducing legislation that would have given a newcomer only the benefits of his home state. Geesey's move failed.

"We need a national standard of payments," Geesey said, "but until every state fulfills its responsibility we have the right to protect Pennsylvania taxpayers."

Pennsylvania, where one of the three welfare cases originated that caused the Supreme Court ruling, had not enforced residency requirements for 16 years. In that time, the total state fare load jumped from 424,000 more than 500,000.

McPherson Lands Another Industry

McPHERSON — Amax Aluminum Mill Products, Inc., Riverside, Calif., has agreed to a 15-year lease on a 5-acre site here in the industrial park on W. First.

The firm notified the McPherson city commission that the site will be used for construction of a new plant to manufacture aluminum fabrications to serve the mobile home industry.

H. M. Simeon, comptroller of Amax, a division of American Metal Climax Company, Inc., says the main manufacturing building will contain another 1500 square feet.

The project will include a railroad siding, hard-surface parking lot and fencing around the entire site.

Estimated cost of the project is $300,000 to be paid from industrial revenue bonds issued by the city.

Simeon also said the metal buildings are expected to be completed and manufacturing started by Nov. 1.

HOGS START AT 11:00 A.M. CATTLE AT 1:00 P.M. SPECIAL CALF & YEARLING SALE SAT., AUGUST 30

This will be in conjunction with our regular sale, and we have quite a few out-of-state buyers to bid on these cattle. Here is a list of early consignments:

275 strictly choice whiteface and black whiteface heifers from the Ay Ranch south of Manhattan. These cattle will weigh from 675-700, and will be sorted in load lots to suit buyers.

40 whiteface steers 800-850.

59 black feeder steers 800-850.

50 whiteface steer and heifer calves 500-525.

64 whiteface steer and heifer calves 475-500.

40 whiteface and black whiteface steer and heifer calves 475-525.

If you have some cattle you plan to sell, give us a call and we'll come out and look them over. We have plenty of buyers, both local and out-of-state that are looking for these animals.

We had a good active market at the sale last Saturday, with an increasing number of consignments. The cattle market seemed steady to strong all the way, but the hog market, while active, reflected the terminal market strike, and was somewhat off.

'Can't Have It Both Ways'

EDITORIAL FROM
SALINA JOURNAL

Consider the sad plight of a congressman, our own Keith Sebelius, to be precise.

In his newsletter to the folks of the Big First, he writes: "Prior to the House taking action on the tax reform bill, my office received almost 200 letters suggesting, insisting and pleading for tax reform. When the tentative decisions became known, however, the tide changed. I received over 400 letters from many interest groups . . . in opposition to tax reform!"

"During the debate on the surtax and the related obvious need to cut federal spending, my office received close to 100 letters, some quite irate, stating we must restore common sense to our federal spending. One month later, almost the same amount of mail came in support of an increase of $1 billion for funds for the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

"Obviously we can't have it both ways."

Well, Keith, this is life: hell if you do and hell if you don't. But remember that a weathervane only spins. Letter counting tells little; some do but most don't; and those that do write often are professionally stimulated.

That saw about wanting it both ways also applies to congressmen. Their conscience tells them to enact the best possible laws but their innards tell them to get re-elected, and the two don't always jibe. As the old hymn says, "take it to the Lord in prayer."
