TWe believe the best citizens of Topeka have no hesitation in condemning the Sunday afternoon meetings that have lately been held in the city park. They are not calculated to heal any of the difficulties from which the people suffer, if they are suffering from any abnormal condition of things. On the other hand they are well calculated to aggravate any ills, real or imaginary, that appear to exist.

The wild and lawless harangues that were made there a few weeks ago were so much in harmony with those made by riotous leaders in Chicago, now under indictment for murder and conspiracy, that a strong reaction has set in. If so called laboring men mean social disorder, and riot and plunder, by the demand for labor reform, it is pretty certain the people are not ready for it. Last Sunday's attendance at the Park was quite insignificant. A "Committee of Safety" was organized whatever that may be. Its power was delegated to an executive committee, of which Clemens, the avowed socialist, or anarchist perhaps, was made chairman.

what unjust laws? Possibly the violation of law may be encouraged in order to test the question. Whatever it may mean, it is certain that the people are less favorably inclined to this.

The Regular Monthly Meeting Held Saturday at Lincoln Hall.—School Notes.

Political Wickedness.

John M. Brown, a colored man of this city, has been and still is, a candidate for State Auditor. Recently, another colored man, named Smith, made serious charges against Brown. Whether these charges are founded in truth is not known. Brown denies them, and declares that he is the victum of a black mailing scheme. Others say it is a trick of present Auditor McCabe to defeat Brown. We know nothing as to the real facts, but it is not difficult to predict that the result will be the defeat of both Brown and Whether guilty or not the party will not care to take up a man still resting under specific charges, hence Mr. Brown may at once consider him self shelved.

There is also strong opposition to McCabe's renomination. In fact, there are indications of a studied plan to prevent it, and the most will certainly be made of this circumstance to accomplish it. Brown and McCabe may as well understand this tactics first as last. Those who enter the pool of politics must content themselves to be victims of political schemes if they cannot become winners.

Another Fizzle.

The present management of the Prohibition Party has made another failure, just as we predicted it would a few weeks ago, when it was announced that another Third Party Campmeeting would be held at Bismarck, July 23.

The failure comes sooner than we ex-The failure comes sooner than we expected. There is no call for third party prohibition campmeetings in Kansas. What strength there was in the movement has been frittered away, and if ever regained, must be through reorganization and more practical management.

It is not likely it will be regained. The convention and camp meeting announced for Bismarck has been cancelled, and Emporia selected as the place for holding a state convention, in form, to nominate candidates.

Saturday afternoon June 5. There were present about forty-five teachers.

Mr. J. Miller read a paper on "How to Give Moral Instruction in the School Room." He said this was the most important part of education. Pupils must be taught the love of truth, justice, purity, and the teacher himself must be an example of his teachings.

Mr. MacDonald said morality was more important than arthmetic, orthography or penmanship, and systematic instruction in it should be given. He hoped the coming institute would prepare a course of lessons on that subject.

Mr. Larimer thought the object could

With a little organized effort on the part of our business such further impetus might readily be given, as would bring new activities into play. We suggest that a local effort at organization he made by those integrated in the zation be made by those interested in the development of tee North Side. Let a pub-lic meeting be called and the question of local interests be discussed, and such steps be taken as may be suggested to set a boom in motion. What say ye?

An exciting runaway took place Mon-day morning. A mineral water team took fright on second street, and turning down fright on second street, and turning down the Avenue, made for the bridge. The driver had been thrown, but Officer Watts checked the team enough to enable a young man to mount the wagon, but finding himself unable to sieze the lines he hastened off. On the bridge a street car was attacked, severely injuring a mule. Then the wheel of a sand wagon was demolished. At the north end of the bridge was a milk wagon, and the chances looked favorable for turning the Kaw into a stream of milk. But the dairyman siezed a brick and shying it at the runaways knocked one of them senseless. It was an exciting affair and drew a large crowd.

HITERARY NOTICES

There is no part of the Capital City that has brighter prospects than the first ward, or that part lying north of the Kansas river, known as North Topeka. Already it has some of the most important business houses, manufactories and residences. Unlike the south side, the ground is level with sandy subsoil, making grading easy and drainage perfect. There is less mud, less dirt and less dust, and in winter less frost. There is endless room for expansion without hills to cut away or ravines to fill up on the north are found the most productive farms, and the best cultivated lands.

But these are incidentals. Along the river banks properly belong the great manufacturing interests that are yet; to be developed. Here belongs the wholesale trade of the future. Here the depots and warehouses of trade and commerce. With the expansion of our railroad system these things must all come. The construction of the Rock Island, and the Kansas and Dakota roads we shall feel the strong pulsations of renewed life. The bulk of Topeka's railroad interests will be north of the river, and even the low territory between the river and Second Street will be more closely connected with than the south side.

The Southern Bivouac for June begins the new volume of this successful Southern marazine. It opens with an excellent article on the "Sugar Fields of Louisiana".

Dr. Felix L. Oswald concludes articles on "Our Last Hunting grounds" with a paper devoted to the Rocky Mountains.

Mr. Edward Atkinson contributes a timely article on "Postal or Local Savings Banks," in which is described the system established in Massachusetts and the objections against the proposed national system clearly stated. Richard H. Musser continues his story of "The War in Missouri;" Judge Richards gives the second installment of the sketch of General Turner Asbby.

The article entitled "The Destruction of Louisville" describes, after the plan of the author of the "Battle of Dorking," the outbreak which followed the growing discontent among the laboring classes, and the evils which followed the nacendency of the anarchists and socialists. The narrative is graphic, somewhat blood-curding, but points a plain moral.

The miscellaneous articles complete a number which shows that there is no sbatement in energy with which this magazine is conducted, and which gives every assurance of continued success.

One hardly appreciates the vast amount of valuable and entertaining matter which is contained in The Library Magazine, if he sees it in weekly form only; when it's several issues are brought together in monthly parts it presents an array of valuable and timely articles that is fairly astonishing. The part for June contains a score of important papers selected from the best current literature, British and American, besides which there are the departments of "Books and their Authors" and "Literary Notes and Comments," which contain well-nigh two hundred notices and notes. It is doubtful if any other magazine, in Europe or America, furnishes so much valuable and interesting reading, even at five times its cost, which is only $1.50 a year. John B. Mr. Commissioner Sparks, as usual, seems to have been a little premature in ordering a suspension of the preemption and timber culture laws. It is not every subordinate office who can, at will, suspend the operation of United States laws.

The strikers in the breweries of Chicago, recently, demanded among other things, free beer. A compromise was effected and they were allowed each fifteen glasses a day. It might be instructive to know how much each would want if it was free.

It is not probable that Mr. Blaine will again be prominent in American politics, especially not as a candidate for president. A report that he is member of the Knights of Labor has been started, which is probably false, but even if true it would not help him n the least.

It is very interesting to know that President Cleveland and his wife took an evening walk down by therailroad station, looked at an incoming handcar, peered into the windows of the waiting room, and passed on around the building, just like other married folks. > A movement is on foot to reorgan ize the Anti-Monopoly party and to put a state ticket into the field. This will include the old greenback party, and labor reformers and other dissatisfied elements so far as they can be brought in. An attempt was made by the prohibitionists to capture the anti-monopolists, but slow and incompetent management of that party led to a complete failure.

Republican papers are making very interesting comments upon their political opponents who have been mentioned as possible candidates for office. For example, Mr. Geo. Inness. perhaps the leading merchant of Lawrence, has been mentioned for Governer. Wherefore the Tribune enlarges upon the many manly qualities of Mr. Inness, and thinks it a great pity he lives when his party is in such minority. Then some other one has named Angell Mathewson, a banker and business man of Parsons, of high character, and the republican papers, including the Commonwealth, proceed to bestow their liberal compliments. Now, these men really deserve all the good things that are said of them, if they are democrats, but would their good qualities be admitted by their political opponents if there was the remotest possibility of their election? We fear not. In politics there is not a good thing in a political enemy, if he is a candidate with half a fighting chance. Why is it that politicians cannot always be just and fear not?

The Question of the Hour.

The country is in a state of unrest. Not only capital is prevented from performing its usual functions, but labor itself is demoralized. Industries of all kinds are paralyzed, and production and the creation of wealth that might go on, is greatly embarrassed. The evils that cause this unfortunate, not to say criminal state of affairs are both real and imaginary.

Labor has its grievances, but it is not more oppressed than usual. Things are not going from bad to worse so far as the welfare of the From our own personal knowledge dition of the laborer in this country On the contrary, it is better, and is growing better. Any just comparison shows that the condition of our laboring classes is better today than it was fifty years ago. The same labor provides for much more luxury and comif millionaires have multiplied, so have the comforts of life been equally extended among the common people. We do not agree that we have no great treatening evils before us. no wrongs that need to be righted, that labor is to be still more elevated and mere adequately remunerated. In this age every move in civilization is for the betterment of the great masses of the people, and vast strides are yet to be taken.

But there are dangers impending that must be met, and they should be met boldly. This danger threatens the very substratum of our civil, political and even our religious liberty. It is found in the lawlessness that respects no property rights; that tends to the overthrow of law and constitution and the growth of agrarianism, communism, socialism, anarchy, or any other name one may choose to term it, that would turn our nation in the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of Penn-

THE LATEST,

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., June 1 .-- The Times this morning says: We very much lislike to predict disaster or give alarm. People are very much inclined to magnify what is said about storms or crop failures. Close readers of the Times will have observed that we have intimated several times a fear of dry weather in the latter part of on, and for th urged a very early plant or a very late one, believing that if July is too dry the drouth will be broken in the latter part of that Without predicting a drouth, or any other great disaster, we want to remind tao farmers that this is a poor time to sell corn. Don't sell till the crop is assured. The western part of this State is full of new-comers, and the chances are that they will need to buy corn. Last winter's blizzards and the destruction of thousands of cattle in Western Kansas will cause cattlemen to make better preparations for the coming winter, and this, too, will make a demand

We believe that the long business depression is about at an end, and that a great boom is near at hand which will require every product of the farm to supply the de-mand. If we are right in this, just now is the wrong time to sell corn.

Considering all the circumstances, including the coming weather, we do not hesitate to say, keep your corn till the present crop WILKESBARRE, Pa., June 1.-Yesterday

The Great Tammany Leader Finally Passe

Beyond the River, NEW YORK, June 2.—Hon. John Kelly, the great Tan many Sachem and Democra tic leader, died vesterday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. Mr. Kelly had been ill for seven months. During the last few weeks he seemed to feel comparatively well, but on Sunday last at eight p. m. he was taken with an attack of fainting and became weaker afterward. Monday he was worse but yesterday morning an improvement was apparent. At noon, however, the sick man began to sink and the approach of the end was realized. His death was painless although he was conscious to the last. Only Mrs. Kelly and her two children were present when the patient passed away. Mrs. Kelly was pros-trated by the blow and is too ill to see any body. It was not until several hours after Mr. Kelly's death that the fact was generally known throughout the city. In fact, prominent leaders of Tammany Hall were not aware of it until they were informed of it by reporters. At 8:30 p. m. Police Justice Gorman, treasurer of Tammany Hall, and one of Mr. Kelly's oldest and closest personal and political friends, who lives only two blocks from the late chieftain's residence, did not know that Mr. Kelly was dead. When the news spread throughout the city it was too late for Tammany Hall or any of the district associations, except that of the Fourth ward, to meet and pass resolutions of regret.

Dr. Edward T. Keys, who attended Mr. Kelly through his illness, said last night that his patient had been in falling health for two years. The nerve forces were impaired and all the functions were deranged in consequence. He made strong efforts to grant he health but they wave all. (title was generally known throughout the city.

in consequence. He made strong efforts to regain his health, but they were all futile. He finally acknowledged that it was useless to hope for recovery, and for six or eight months past he had confessed he was dying.

At times Mr. Kelly was much depressed in spirits but at no time was his intellect impaired. He retained that throughout and at all times had full control of his senses. His physical deterioration was great. His hair and beard became perfectly white.

"On Monday," continued Dr. Keys, "I told him he was dying. He was perfectly conscious and possessed all his faculties. He seemed to show no regret, but appeared to be willing to let go his grip on life. For the first time he showed a noticeable rise in temperature and became feverish. Murderers Getting Fat—Assassination Intelligence.

MATAMORAS, Mex., June 1.—The case of the Black murderers is still in the courts, and they are comfortably growing fat in prison. The Sixteenth infantry, now on the way here from Saltillo, will relieve the Fourth, which goes to San Luis Potosi. It is a somewhat significant fact that the Colonel of the Fourth, Sebastian Villareal, has proved a strong political opponent of Roof the Fifth Cavalry, also Cuellar's enemy; and warns the latter that assassination is a game two can play at. MASON, Mich., June 1.—Last Wednesday Gideon Broun, a colored farmer living near here, brutally murdered his wife and fled to the woods. He was captured by a Sheriff's posse and lodged in the county jail here. It was Mason's first murder, and the little place and neighboring farmers were little place and neighboring farmers were terribly wrought up. Lynching is freely threatened. A day or two ago the Sheriff went to Jackson with another prisoner and was taken very sick there. He is now under treatment at Jackson, and being a brave man bound to do his duty, the enraged people took advantage of his absence-last night to organize a lynching party. The under sheriff is captain of the local military company and he called out the troops to help him protect his prisoner. Upon learning what had been done the would-be lynchers dispersed after reaching the jail.

KANSAS STATE NEWS.

Must Run Trains. THE citizens of Oskaloosa and the Leaven-worth Board of Trade having filed complaint with the Railroad Commissioners that passenger trains were not run on the Leavenworth, Topeka & Southwestern rail road, and the manager of the road responding that the company could not afford to run such trains because the passenger traffic did not pay only about oue-third o the cost of service, the Commissioners have rendered a decision that the lack of depot facilities at Leavenworth and the inconven ient location of its terminus together with its low rate of speed has not made it an attractive route for travel, and the city of having aided in its construction, and while the board does not hold to the rule that train service should be maintained upon all routes that do not pay, yet in view of the importance of the connections of this road the board recommends that passenger train service on the Leavenworth, Topeks & Southwestern be restored. The Commis sioners say: "It must be borne in mind that railroads are not exclusively financial institutions. The privileges granted to corporations to build and operate them were principally for the public acco dation, and unless they reasonably afford this they so far fail of their purpose. If they prove a poor investment this is a misfortune, which, while it may lead to great er caution about future projects, will hardly justify the partial frustration of the main purpose of the charter."

MISSING MILLIONS.

How Near a California Judge Came to Mak

"Judge," said a reporter to a wellknown representative of the legal prolession in San Francisco, "I have been told that you and some of your friends came near buying Alaska from the Russian Government before the United States made the purchase. Is it true, and will you tell me the story?"

"Well," said the judge, "we were not going to buy the whole of Russian America. We had our arrangements made to buy the best part of it, though. If you would like to know how I missed being a millionaire I will tell tell you.

tell you.
"I think it was in 1860 that a Jew named Goldstone, who had been up to Alaska, came here. He gave a glowing account of the great fortunes made in the fur trade in the north. He wanted me to furnish money to start a trading post up there. In the course of the conversation he mentioned inci-dentally that all the trading posts, arms and ammunition, stores, forts and vessels in the trade had belonged to a Russian fur company, which had leased them to the Hudson Bay Combe glad to sell the whole thing out to a good American company. Russia and the United States were on particularly good terms at that time. I talked the matter over with some of my friends, and we arranged to get up a good company.

I then went to Senator Cole and asked him to inquire through Russian Minister Stokel if there would be any to make the purchase. proposition was favorably received, and we organized a company, with General John A. Miller as president and Eugene Sullivan as vice president. The other members of the board of directors were William Ralston, Alvinza Hayward, Senator Cole, Sam Brannon and Alexander Badlam. Senator Cole then formally opened negotiations with the Russian Government through Cassius M. Clay, who was our Minister at that time in St. Petersburg, and Stokal at Washington

Stokel, at Washington.
"The Russian Government then sent out an agent, with full power and authority to fix the price and terms of payment and to sign the papers and agreements on the part of Russia.

"We met the agent at the Occidental Hotel, and spent a day and night in making a trade with him. Our arrangement, as finally made, was that every thing was to be turned over to us, forts, ships, arms, ammunition, utensils and furs on hand, for a price a little over one hundred and fifty thousand dollars, with the exclusive privilege of taking and trading for furs. The company made a better trade than the Government did afterward, I think. The agreement not signed, but the company appointed Henry E. Baker agent, with full power to execute all papers if the schedule of property was found to be correct. The furs alone reported on hand would furs alone reported on hand would have paid the purchase price twice

"Colonel Baker went on board the cluded in the property to be purchased, expecting to sail the next morning. Late in the afternoon of the day he went on board Eugenæ Sullivan went down to the dock. He was vice president of our company and told president of our company, and told Baker and the Russian agent that the company had finally decided to back out of the trade. Baker came ashore, and an agent of the present Alaska Commercial Company went on board. The Alaska company had been trying to negotiate for some time before, but the instructions of the Russian agent were peremptory to trade with us if we would trade. Our declining gave them a chance, which they availed them-selves of. General Miller and one or two others were smart enough to get into the new company, and have made fortunes out of it.

"It was the one chance in a life-time that a man has to make a fortune, and I missed it. The company made a trade, I don't know the particulars of it, but just about that time it seemed to occur to the Russian Government that the American company might not take proper care of Russian subjects and afford them the protection that had been given by their own Govern-ment. The discussion of this subject led to a proposal to sell the whole country to the American Government, which finally resulted in a purchase, the details of which every one is familiar with."—San Francisco Call.

STAINED GLASS.

A New Craze Which Costs Money and Gives Artists Steady Employment.

"Through the increased demand for stained glass windows in the city as well as in the suburbs," said the foreman of a large jewelry establishment on Broadway to a reporter a few days ago, "this firm has been compelled to go into the business, and to-day there is scarcely one of our richest customers whose dwelling is not adorned with stained glass windows. For centuries past stained glass was used only in churches and cathedrals and bore the imprints of holy persons. This is no longer the case, and a country residence without its artistically stained glass windows is considered out of place. Within a year or two the number of artists engaged in this profession or business has increased at least about twenty-fold, and yet our ability to fill our orders is sometimes overtaxed. Do stores have stained glass windows? No. What you see in restaurant and salcon windows is nothing but colored paper glossed over with varnish, and a very poor imitation at best. The first of the leading merchants in this new departure was the late Horace B. Claffin. He got us to decorate his summer residence at Fordham. The vestibule doors and the rear hall entrance are brilliantly decorated. The dome surmounting this plattal residence is also artistically glazed with stained glass of many hues and colors."

"What are the favorite colors?"

"What are the favorite colors?"

"They differ and vary as much as so whose dwelling is not adorned with stained glass windows. For centuries the fashions. Just at present the colors most sought after are old gold, ruby and an infinite variety of shades of green. There is also a large and increasing demand for what is known as jeweled work. These jewels are composed of small pieces of translucent glass of various colors. The faces of these pieces of glass, which are either round or oblong, are cut, in the style or round or oblong, are cut in the style or shape of diamonds, or are left plain."

"Are these jewels manufactured in this country and how are they made?"

"Most of them are. They are made by pouring molten glass into moulds, and when cold the diamond is cut on the glass."

"Have the general public begun to understand this artistic business?" "No, for in the first instance they think the work is very expensive. It is true that cortain designs are beyond the reach of the middle classes, but they could have handsome decoration for one-half the price they believe i would cost them. It is amusing to see many customers come in here and give their orders, without having the faintest idea of what they require. Their neighbors have stained glass windows, and they must have the same.

"How do you meet the difficulty?"
"For the accommodation of such leased them to the Hudson Bay Company. The lease as well as the privileges of the Russian company had run out, and every thing now belonged to the Russian Government. He thought that the Russian Government would have to make special drawings for them. Let me give you an instance.

A prominent bank president, who recently built himself a mansion on Long Island Sound, called here, went through every design in the place, but said that none suited him. What he desired most of all was something new for a large stair window that over-looked the Sound. There was good boating and fishing in the vicinity, he added, and he wanted something ap-propriate. We made a design on papropriate. We made a design on paper. It represented a sportsman on one knee, gun in hand, at the shore of a lake, aiming at a string of ducks just taking flight from the water, having been disturbed by a water spaniel. This suited the gentleman in every particular, and he paid handsomely for the window and was well satisfied. To cut figures, or rather put them together with pieces of different colored. gether with pieces of different colored glass requires time and the greatest care. There is another class of customers who come here with prepared designs on paper, and there is still another who leave the whole matter to us. For this class of customers we have special artists employed, whom we send to their residences, and who having studied the surroundings carefully, either in town or suburb, submit designs that are suitable. It is astonishing how much of this latter work is done without a single complaint or alteration in the artist's design."-N. Y. Mail and Express.

An Interesting Discovery Made by a French Scientist.

HORNED CATTLE.

The Horns and Teeth as an Index of Their Age.

The fact, well known, is that the wrinkles of the horns are annular rings. Both males and females of the bovine race have rings formed annually-the first at two years of age and showing plainly at three years. Thereafter a ring is formed annually, and if two years are added to the number of rings may be definitely determined the age may be definitely determined up to the age of eight years, and sometimes longer. After this time, with the age, the rings run into each other, often making it difficult to determine the age. But even this is not an exact means of determining the age of horned eattle. Quite often the second ring does not appear until the animal is five years old. Thereafter the rings are years old. Thereafter the rings are contant. As a rule the rings are annular after the animal is three years old, and hence the determination of age is more certain by the horn than by the teeth, since close or gritty pastures often wear the teeth far more than flush pastures, or in the case of cattle fed on food requiring little exertion in gath-

Up to the time when the animal arrives at full maturity the teeth are a sure index of age, whatever the pasture. That is to say, at the age of two weeks the calf will have four front teeth on the under jaw, two only being out at birth. At three weeks it will have six teeth, and at a month old the incisor teeth will be complete—that is, eight. At eight months the incisors will begin to wear, and the two central teeth will be shrunk. This process will gradually proceed, successively, until at the age of eighteen months the two central incisors will have dropped out, to be succeeded by the two central permanent incisors. At two years old past there will be four central permanent incisors. past there will be four central permanent incisors, at three years six and at four years eight incisors, the full number, will be shown. From this on the incisors gradually shrink apart again, so that at the age of ten years the relative appearance of the incisors will be analogous to that of the calf of twelve months of age. This appearance will be measurably constant, but, as stated before, the actual wear of the cutting surfaces will be governed by the na-ture of the pasturage and other food.— Chicago Tribune.

ROUND HATS.

Pretty Styles for Ladies, Misses, Girls and Children. Massing the trimming back of the crown is the marked feature of new round hats; this was introduced last autumn, but did not find favor here as it did in Paris. The fancy here has been for English turbans and toques trimmed in front with cords and military pompons as high as those of a drum-major. The new French hats reverse all this, and have the fronts of the high crowns quite bare, or merely a band or twist around them, Terance V. Powderly, head of the Knights of Labor, is also head of the Executive Committee of the organization. By virtue of holding these of the crown and extend to the fices, for which nature and his attainments abundantly qualify him, he is one of the most powerful men in this Republic.

He Forgot the Combination.

A wealthy citizen of a neighboring It city had been out until the small hours, with convivial companions. It was not exactly a "dry locality" that he had visited, and he arrived home slightly exhilarated. He managed, by describing several erratic rather than geometrical lines, to get to his bedroom and into a chair. Then he called to his wife in a stage whisper:
"I can't get my boots off."

"Opium or death." This brief sentence was fairly hissed into the ear of a prominent druggist on Vine street by a person, who a few years ago well off is today a hopeless

One can scarcely realize the sufferings of an opium victim. De Quincy has vividly portrayed it. But who can fitly describe the joy of the rescued victim?

H. C. Wilson, of Loveland, O., formerly with March, Harwood & Co., manufacturing chemists of St. Louis, and of the well-known firm of H. C. Wilson & Co., chemists, formerly of this city, gave our reporter yesterday a bit of thrilling personal experience in this line. in this line.
"I have crawled over red hot bars of iron and coals of fire," he said, "in my agony during an opium frenzy. The very thought of my sufferings freezes my blood and chills my bones. I was then eating over 30 grains of opium daily.

"How did you contract the habit?" "Excessive business cares broke me down, and my doctor prescribed opium! That is the way nine-tenths of cases commence. When I determined to stop, however, I found I could NOT do it. "You may be surprised to know." he said, "that two-fifths of the slaves of morphine and opium are physicians. Many of these I met. We studied our cases carefully. We found out what the organs were in which the appetite was developed and sustained; that no THE DEGREE OF VIGOR WHICH COULD BE IM-PARTED TO THEM. I have seen patients, while undergoing treatment, compelled to resort to opium again to deaden the horrible pain in those or gans. I marvel how I ever escaped."

"Do you mean to say, Mr. Wilson. that you have conquered the habit?" 'Indeed I have.'

"Do you object to telling me how?"
"No, sir. Studying the matter with several opium-eating physicians, we became satisfied that the appetite for opium was located in the kidneys and liver. Our next object was to find a specific for restoring those organs to health. The physicians, much against their code, addressed their attention to a certain remedy and became thoroughly convinced on its scientific merits alone that it was the only one that could be relied upon in every case of disordered kidneys and liver. I thereupon began using it and, supplementing it with my own special treatment, finally got fully over the habit. I may say that the most important part of the treatment is to get those organs first into good work ing condition, for in them the appetite originates and is sustained, and in them over ninety per cent of all other human ailments originate."

"For the last seven years this position has been taken by the proprietors of that remedy and finally it is becoming an acknowledged scientific truth among the medical profession; many of them, however, do not openly acknowledge it, and yet, knowing they have no other scientific specific their code not allowing them to use everything and as the result of my studies and investigation, I can say I know nothing can accomplish this result but Warner's safe cure."

"Have others tried your treatment?" "Yes sir, many; and all who have followed it fully have recovered. Several of them who did not first treat their kidneys and liver for six or eight weeks, as I advised them, completely failed. This form of treat-cal endorsement and, after persistent study, it is admitted by scientists that there is nothing in materia medica for the restoration of those great organs that equals it in power. We take pleasure in publishing the above statements coming from so reliable a source as Mr. Wilson and confirming by personal experience what we have time and again published in our columns. We also extend to the proprietors our hearty congratulations on the results wrought.

TURTLE'S EGGS

When little Gertie and Ruth were at their grandma's in the country last summer, they saw something that they never saw before. What do you think it was? I don't suppose you could guess if you tried a week, so I will tell you. One day their Uncle Peter came in with a lot of small, round, white oggs, a little larger than the marbles you have to play with. He had them in his hat, and called to the little girls to come and see them. They droptle girls to come and see them. They dropped their tins—for they were making mud pies—and started for their uncle. They looked at the small white eggs, and wondered what kind of eggs they were. "These are turtles' eggs," said Uncle Peter.

"These are turtles' eggs," said Uncle Peter.

"Was the old turtle on the nest when you found them?" asked the children.

At this question he was very much amused, and you ought to see how astonished they looked, when he told them that his hired man had plowed them out of the soft earth back of the creek.

Uncle Peter byte over the corresponded.

Uncle Peter broke one of the erges, and in it was a little turtle, perfect even to the "house on its back." There were 56 in all. Only think, if the eggs had not been disturbed what a band of little turtles would have found their way to the creek. The mother turtle scone; out with her The mother turtle scoops out with her hind feet a hollow in the sand or dry earth, in which she lays her eggs, and the heat of the sand or earth hatches them. She never gives hatches them. She never gives herself any trouble about her children, and they take care of themselves as soon as they come out of the sand. The children's uncle told them of the different varieties of twelves and they can be said. varieties of turtles, and that some of them vere used for food.

They listened with the closest attention, and when he had finished they scampered off, Gertie to finish their baking, and Ruth to "get the turtle soup going for dinner,"—Zion's Herald.

Girls and the Pledge.

"I don't see what's the use of girls was developed and sustained; that no victim was free from a demoralized condition of those organs; THAT THE perance societies and such things," said pretty Minnie Proctor the other day, as she tossed back her head and seated herself at the piano. "Girls never drink anyway; it's only men and rough boys."

"Guess your education's been neglected in that direction, Min," said her brother Harry. "Girls ought to sign the pledge if for nothing else than to help them keep from offering wine to callers on New Year's day! Lots of 'em either drink, or help to make men drink, and I guess they need a pledge as much as men and boys do."
"Oh, well, I suppose some of the rich ones do, where they have wine in the house all the time," returned do I want to sign a pledge for?"

"The time may come when you'll need it as much as Harry ever will, said Uncle Fred, looking up from his paper. "I am not sure but that women are in almost as much danger now-a-days as men. I've just been reading something to the point in the morning paper. Listen:

"Yesterday morning, about two o'clock, a drunken woman was found half-dead in the refuse race near the gas works. From what could be learned at the time, she was under the influence of liquor, and had fallen into the ditch while walking about looking for more of the stuff."

"Even though you may never be tempted to drink or to put the lips of another," continued Uncle Fred, "you another," continued Uncle Fred, "you ought to put your name to the pledge. It might influence some one else to do the same thing, who would otherwise yield some day to temptation and get as low as this drunken wo-

"But Id' rather have a Bible than go to see General Washington," the boy said.

One of the gentlemen seemed much pleased with this, and told him he hoped he would always be as fond of the Bible.

The next day the little boy received a beautiful Bible, and on the fly-leaf was written, "From George Washington."

Mr. Wilson stands very high wherever known. His experience is only another proof of the wonderful and conceded power of Warner's safe cure over all diseases of the kidneys, liver and blood, and the diseases caused by derangements of those organs. We may say that it is very flattering to the proprietors of Warner's safe cure that it has received the highest medical endorsement and, after persistent study, it is admitted by scientists that
