THE MATTER WITH THE CLOCK.

A youth sat on a sofa wide
Within a parlor dim;
The maid who lingered by his side
Was all the word to him.

What brought that glad light to his eye-That cadence to his tone? Why burn the lamp of love so high, Though midnight's hour has flown?

The clock above the glowing grate
Has stopped at half past ten;
And long as that young man may wait
It will not strike again.

The artful maiden knows full well What makes the clock act so,

And why no earthly power can tell

The time for him to go.

The winter will be decidedly severe in Cincinnati section and westward, with abundant snow-falls, commencing early. "A cool and wet summer" is generally followed by a severe winter, but we have even stronger grounds than this for our predictions for the coming than that officers who wear trousers are generally slow to do. A femining friend was persuaded to marry a fellow who afterward proved to be already more married than the law allows. A male officer would have said "Poor thing!" and then gone on talking polities; but not so this Indiana woman. She found that the bigamist had taken his vicin to Kansas, so, obtaining a special commission and a requisition from the governor of Indiana, she went West, caught the rogue, brought him back to the locality where his offence was committed and lodged him in jail. Home Work.

Those who have learned the value of method in household management, know that it is of moment in matters of mind and character. A system by which the servant of toff may become master, secure in the dignity arising from the prompt and efficient performance of the duty at hand.

The simplest work may oftimes tell the grandest story, as the sweetest life came through the lowliest doorway. The humble housewife who puts heart and spirit into her work, uses her head to save her hands, may well season her labor with cheerfulness, for she daily achieves triumps which a queen might envy. She has a place for everything and everything in its place. Every duty has its day and season, and nothing is deterred until tomorow which should be done to-day. Her lamps are always trimmed and her house in order. A guest "unexpected" never puts her to the blush, neither do her own children, for ther training as well as her management in material matters, was a part of the religion of home, upon whose altar her best energies are daily offered as to a shrine whose incense permeates heaven. Hence whether it be in the kitchen, the store-room, the garden, the poultry-yard, or the suck-room, the garden, the poultry-yard, or the suck-room, the master mother-hand forgets not its prowess; and humanity is all the brighter and better for her knowledge and faithfulness, accruing to the world at large.

A FATAL MISTAKE.

How a Blundering Judgment May be Responsible for the Most Serious Results.

Mr. Edwin Booth said recently that he supposed his lungs were effected, having a persistent cough until he saw Dr. McKinzie, of London, who found that this symptom arose from a disturbance of the liver.—N. Y. Her-

The above item, which has been going the rounds of the press, is of no special significane other than to the personal friends of Mr. Booth, except that it brings to light a truth of the greatest importance to the world. Few people pass through life without the affliction most cases this is considered the result of a cold or the beginning or consumption, and thousands have become terrified at this revelation and have sought by a change of air and the use of cough medicines to avert the impending disaster. It may safely be said that more than half the coughs which are afflicting the world to-day do not have their origin in lungs but the result of more serious troubles in other organs of the body. "Liver coughs" in other organs of the body. "Liver coughs" are exceedingly common and yet are almost wholly misunderstood. Arising from a disordered state of the liver they show their result by congesting the lungs. In fact the efforts of the liver to throw off the disease, produce coughing even when the lungs themselves are in a healthy state.

But it is a mistake to suppose that such delicate tissues as the lungs can long remain in a healthy condition when they are being constantly agitated by coughing. Such a theory would be absurd. Consumption, which was feared at first, is certain to take place unless something is done to check the cause. This must be plain to every thoughtful mind. It stands to reason, therefore that the only way in which "liver cough" can be removed is by restoring the liver to health.

In this connection another fact of great importance becomes known which, can best be explained by the relation of an actual event. Mr. W—, a wealthy cattle dealer of Colorado, became greatly reduced in health and came east to Chicago for the purpose of being cured. He censulted Dr. J—, one of the leading physicians of the country on pulmonic subjects and began treatment for the cure of his lungs. But his cough increased while his strength decreased. Finally he determined to consult another physician and applied to Dr. B—, After a careful examination he was informed that his lungs was perfectly sound, while his kidneys were in a most terrible condition. He had all the apparant symptone of consumption but he was suffering from the terrible Bright's disearse. The symptoms of consumption are of the sure indications of Bright's disease.

of consumption are of the sure indications of Bright's disease.

The above truths regarding coughs have been known by the leading physicians for several years but the public have never been informed of them. They are serious facts however, and should be understood by all, so that dangers which might otherwise prove fatal may be avoided, they clearly prove one great truth which is, that that the kidneys and liver are such vital organs that their health should constantly guarded; the distressing, backing cough, which is often dreaded as the forerunner of consumption and the wasting strength which accompanies it, in all paobability may arise from weakened or diseased kidneys or liver, to restore which would cause returning health. How this most desirable end may be liver, to restore which would cause returning health. How this most desirable end may be attained has long been a problem; but few people of intelligence at the present day have longer any doubts that the popular remedy known as Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure has done more to correct, relieve and restore those organs than any other preparations ever before known. There are hundreds of instances which have occured within the past three months where individuals have believed themselves the victims of consumption, when, in reality it was deranged kidneys and liver, which this remarkable medicine has completly cured, as witness the following statement: cured, as witness the following

There are thousands of people in America to-day who believe they are victims of consumption and destined to an early grave and who are trying to save themselves by the use of consumption cures but are growing worse each hour. Let all such persons stop and calmly consider whether they are not seeking to check a disease in the lungs when it is located in the kidneys and liver. Let them then treat the disease in its original stronghold and by the remedy which has been proven to be the most effective and then look for the return of health and happiness which such treatment is sure to bring. ment is sure to bring.

B. J. KENDALL & CO.. GENTS:—In justice to you and to myself, I think I ought to let you know that I have removed two bone spavins with Kendall's Spavin Cure, one very large one, don't know how long the spavin had been there. I have owned the horse eight months, It took me four months to take the large one off and two for the small one. I have used ten bottles. The horse is entirely well, not at all stiff, and no bunch to be seen or felt. This is a wonderful medicine. It is a new thing here, but if it does for all what it has done for me, its sale will be very great.

Respectfully yours,

Dr. B. J. Kendall & Co., Gents:—In reply to your letter I will say that my experience with 'Kendal's Spavin Cure' has been very satisfactory indeed. Three or four years ago I procured a bottle of your agent, and with it, cured a horse of lameness caused by a spavin. Last season my horse became very lame and I turned him out for a few weeks, when he became better, but when I puthim on the road he grew worse, when I discovered that a ringbone was forming, I procured a bottle of Kendall's Spavin Cure and with less than a bottle cured him so that he is not lame, neither can the bunch be found.

B. J. Kendall & Co., Gents:—Having got a horse book of you by mail a year ago, the contents of which persuaded me to try Kendall's Spavin Cure on the hind leg of one of my horses which was badly swollen and could not be be reduced by any other remedy. I got two bottles of Kendall's Spavin Cure of Preston & Ludduth, Druggists of Waseca, which completely cured my horse. About five years ago I had a three-year-old colt sweenied very badly I used your remedy as given in your book without roweling, and I must say to your credit that the colt is entirely cured, which is a surprise not only to myself but also to my neighbors. You sent me the book for the trifling sum of 25 cents, and it I couldenot get another like it I would not take twenty-five dollars for it.

B. J. Kendall & Co.—Gents: I have tried your Spavin Cure on a chronic case of bone spavin, which has been treated by two of the best doctors in the land. The case was fired twice, and I can safely say that Kendall's Spavin Cure did more good than anything which I ever tried. I believe to be a good remedy for a great many difficulties. To Whom It May Concern:—In the year 1875 1 treated with 'Kendall's Spavin Cure.' a bone spavin of several months' growth, nearly half as large as a hen's egg, and completely stopped the lameness and removed the enlargement. I have worked the horse ever since very hard, and he never has been very lame, nor could I ever see any difference in the size of the hook joints since I treated him with Kendall's Spavin cure.

Dr. B. J. Kendall & Co., Gents:—I think it.my duty to render you my thanks for benefits and profits which I have derived from your invaluable and far famed Spavin Cure. My cousin and I had a valuable stallion, worth $4,600, which had a very bad spavin and was pronounaed by four eminent veterinary surgeons beyond any cure, and that the horse was done for ever. As a last resort I advised my cousin to try a bottle of Kendall's Spavin Cure. It had a magical effect, the third bottle cured it, and the horse is as well as ever. KENDAL'S SPAVIN CURE.

ON HUMAN FLESH it has been ascertained by repeated trials to be the very best liniment ever used for any deep seated pain of long standing, or of short duration. Also for Corns, Bunious, Frost-bites, or any bruise, cut or lameness. Some are afraid to use it on human flesh simply because it is a horse medicine, but you should remember that what is good for Beast is good for Man, and we know from experience that "KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE" can be used on a child I year old with perfect safety. Its effects are wonderful on human flesh, and it does not blister or make a sore. Try it and be convinced.

WHAT IS GOOD FOR BEAST IS GOOD FOR MAN.

B. J. Kendall, M. D.—Dear Sir: 'The particular case on which I used your, 'Kendall's Spavin Cure,' was a malignant ankle sprain of sixteen months standing, I had tried many things, but in vam. Your 'Kendall's Spavin Cure', put the foot to the ground again, and, for the first time since hurt, in a natural position. For a family liniment it excells anything we ever used.

B. J. Kendall & Co.—Gents: I wish to add my testimony in favor of your invaluable liniment, "Kendall's Spavin Cure." In the spring of 1872 I slipped on the ice and sprained my right limb at the knee joint. I was very lame, and at times suffered the most excruciating pain. I wore a bandage on it for over a year, and tried most everything in my reach, but could find nothing that would give me permanent relief. When I overworked, it would pain me very much. In April, 1878, I began to think I should be a cripple for life, but having some of "Kendall's Spavin Cure" thought I would try it. I used one-third of a bottle and experienced relief at once. The pain left me and has not troubled me since. I feel very grateful to you, and would recommend "Kendall's Spavin Cure" to all who suffer with sprains or rheumatism.

Yours truly, MRS. J. BOUTELL.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE.

Kendall's Spavin Cure is sure in its effects, mild in its action as it does not blister, yet it is penetrating and powerful to reach any deep-seated pain, or to remove any bony growth or any other enlargement if used for several days, such as spavins, splints, curbs, callous, sprains, swellings, any lameness and all enlargements of the joints or limbs, or rheumatism in man, and for any purpose for which a liniment is used for man orbeast. It is now known to be the best iniment for man ever used, acting mild and yet certain in its effects. It is used full strength with perfect safety at all seasons of the year.

Why do the horses come always at noon,
To be shod at the blacksmith's shop?
At noon time, when the stin is still,
When the blacksmith is forced against his will
To rest, and his work to stop?

Just at noon from his house on the hill, A girl with a pail come thence; Smiles comes on her lips, on her cheeks aglow As she sees the horest ided in a row, Along by the blacksmith's fence.

Th, but the blacksmith's daughter is fair? And the horses all look at each other,
As much as to say, "Now isn't she sweet?
We know why our masters say that our feet
Are giving them so much bother."

The bell rings one, and the blacksmith cries, "Now then, for work right away!"
But most of them say it is growing late,
And they really think they had better wait,
And come on some other day.

Oh blacksmith's daughter, your mother too,
Was fair when your father sought her!
Your going in the way that she has trod,
You'll be a wife ere those horses are shod—
O, blacksmith's pretty daughter!

A CLOSE SHAVE.

BY HENRY GEORGE MURRAY.

IN THREE PARTS-PART I. A winding country road, shut in by flower flecked hedges from fields of waving corn, arched over by a vault of deepest blue. The lark, a dim and wavering speck in the upper air, shook out incessant thrills of melody, and the brook warbled a tuneful answer to hisgained, at the moment we behold it, the completing touch which artists call 'a human interest,' without which few scenes are worth a painter's while to copy, or a story-teller's while to write about. Round a corner of the lane came two figures-a well-set-up, handsome youth of five-and-twenty, and a girl of seventeen or so. The girl, as became the heroine of a love story, was pretty, and borrowed an additional charm from the chastened smile of humor which lurked in the eyes which shot an occasional glance at her companion, who seemed perturbed in spirit, and plucked at his moustache with a nervous hand.

'I thought you had something to say,' said the young lady demurely.

'So I have,' answered the young man. 'I'm going away.'

'For long !' 'I den't know yet. It may be only a day or two, it may be a month, or even more. The smile faded from the girls eyes, and left them grave, and her lips quivered a little. By some keen feminine instinct, incomprehensible to us of the other sex, she knew that her companion's glance was turned on her, although her own had dropped to the dusty road.

'It's too bad, Mr. Eyton,' she said petulant ly. 'When you had promised for the 24th, and the rehearsals were going on so nicely

It will spoil everything.' 'You don't suppose I want to go?' asked the young man. 'You are going,' said the girl. 'It's too bad. Who is to play the Marquis, if you aren't back

'There are plenty of fellows to pick from,' answered her companion. 'Try Tom Courtenay,' he suggested, with the air of one who launches a conversational shot of unusual point. 'Why are you going?' inquired the young lady with a sudden asumption of ease.

The young man's face, which had brightened a little, clouded again.

'I got a letter this morning from West, my uncle's lawyer.' He took the letter from his of their own minds when I was young. But pocket as he spoke, but restored it again unopened. 'My uncle is very ill; so ill, West has gone out of fashion. A decorous attachsays, that he can't last much longer; so ill that he could not write himself. He wants me to go and see him.'

'I am very sorry,' said the girl. 'Of course you must go.'

'Yes,' he answered. 'I must go.'

'It was very thoughtful of you to remember the theatricals at all, at such a time, and to give me warning. I'm sorry I was so-so cross about it. It must be very sad to lose anyone you love.'

'I'm afraid I'm not so sorry for that as I ought to be, answered the young fellow. 'West says' ---, he made a motion of his hand towards his pocket, but withdrew it again. 'West says that the will is in my favor. You

He stopped short, at the sudden look of pained amazement on the girl's face.

'No, I didn't mean that!' he broke out. 'Nelly, don't go away. Stay! You can't think me such a cad as to be glad of a man's death because it brings me money? Hang the money! Can't you guess why I'm glad?'

The girl's eyes dropped again, and she stood trembling. Mr. Eyton bit his lip with vexation, and made two distinct attempts to speak, with no comprehensible result. The girl was the first to recover herself.

'Will you kindly explain?' she asked, a trifle icily, though her cheeks were burning, Good-by, George. Set your mind at rest. Is and her eyes less steady than she wished to

'I don't know where to begin,' said the young man.

'Begin,' responded the young lady lucidly, 'at the beginning.'

'I will,' he said with an aspect of desperate determination. 'I love you. I should never have had the cheek to tell you so if I hadn't got this letter. But now I can offer you such the control of the c a life as you have a right to expect. I couldn't Farmer. go away in uncertainty. The girl's iciness melted before this sudden warmth, and face and neck and ears were rosy red.

There is a certain school of philosophers which declares that the female sex is void of humor. If that doctrine be true of woman in general, Miss Helen Boswell must be taken as an exception.

'Then I think I had better say No! she said in answer to the young man's remarkable Young men in love are notoriously stupid. but even Mr. Eyton, who was as much in love as any young man in the British Islands, penetrated the meaning of this utterance.

'Say "Yes," ' he answered, boldly possessing himself of her passive hand. She made a feeble motion to withdraw it, whereat he passed his arm around her waist and took the other. She raised her eyes in one swift glance at his face, and dropped them again. The pressure of the arm about her tightened, as he renewed his bidding, and her lips moved "do to be saved," replied, "i should take 'Yes,' although no sound was audible, even to syrup and alum." pressure of the arm about her tightened, as her lover's ears. Whereat, his boldness overran all restraint, and, overcoming the slightest possible resistance, he drew the lips to his, and kissed them.

'Why do men fall in love?' inquired Miss Boswell some half an hour later, with an air of philosophical research.

'Judging from my own case,' answered Mr Eyton, 'because they can't help it.'

'Now, see what you have brought on yourself,' continued the young lady. 'You'll have to tell Aunt Eliza, and then she's sure to tell wordless song. The scene, lovely in itself, had you the history of her own courtship, which you must have heard fifty times already.'

'I don't mind. I'm rather fond of Ancient History.'

'Don't interrupt, and don't laugh at Aunt Eliza, if you please. Then you'll have to face papa, and tell him all about it when he comes home. And then,' she paused to give full weight to this announcement—'then you'll have to marry me.'

Mr. Eyton boldly announced himself untouched by the terrors of this programme.

'Ah,' said Nelly, 'you don't know me yet.' 'What kind of a man is the general?' asked her companion.

'I havn't seen him for twelve years,' answered Nelly. 'I was only five when he took me on board the ship at Madras, and he's never been to England since. He was always very kind, and I cried awful when I left him. And he writes me such nice letters, and sends me things by pretty nearly every ship that comes home. And Aunt Eliza says he's the best man she ever knew. I don't think you need be very much afraid of him.'

'With such an ally,' answered her lover, ' should not be afraid of a dozen generals.' 'Do be quiet, George,' said Nelly. 'There's aunt Eliza on the lawn.' 'Asleep, as usual,' said George. 'Let us wake her up, and ask for some tea. And then I must run away and catch the 4:20. 'I am awake, young people,' said Aunt Eliza. 'Good afternoon, Mr. Eyton. Nelly, what are you looking so guilty about?" 'Nelly and I, Mrs. Tresham,' said George,

George entered into particulars. 'I couldn't go away in uncertainty, Mrs. Tresham,' he concluded; so I asked Nelly this afternoon.'

'Uncertainty, indeed!' said Mrs. Tresham. 'As if there was any uncertainty! But young men are stupid, nowadays. Nelly has been in love with you this month past.'

'And you will help us with the general?' asked George. 'Valiant young man!' laughed the old lady.

Wny didn't you ask me to make love for you to Nelly?' 'I preferred taking that department myself,' answered George. 'Be off with you,' said Mrs. Tresham, in high good-humor. 'It's 4 o'clock. You'll just have time to catch the train. What is it, Kitty ?

A servant appeared, carrying a buff-enveloped missive on a salvar. Mrs. Tresham opened and read it.

'From the general, my dear. He is at Southampton, and will be home to-morrow that all you have to give your accepted lover, Nelly, going away for we don't know how long? I'm not looking, child.' [To be continued.]

PETERSON'S MAGAZINE for November is on our table, ahead, as usual, of all others. How the publisher can afford, not only to maintain its merit, but to keep improving it as he does, is a standing wonder. The present number, for example, has a beautiful steelplate, "Little Red Riding Hood;" a doublesized colored stee! fashion plate; another exquisite engraving, "The Falling Leaves;" a spirited illustration of a poem, "Nearing Home," a ship in a storm on Thanksgiving Eve; and about fifty wood-cuts, in addition; to new dresses, bonnets, embroidery patterns, etc. Then there is a beautifully colored pattern, "Cherries and Leaves," for a sideboardcloth-one of those costly and recherche affairs only to be found in "Peterson." The stories only to be found in "Leterson." The stories are even better than usual, which is saying a great deal: for thirty years they have been the best in any lady's book. THE LAST OF THE GANG.

On Friday of last week Frank James the notorious outlaw of Missouri accompained by Colonel (?) Edwards of Sedalia presented themselves to Governor Crittenden, at Jefferson City, and James surrendered, tragically presenting his pistols to the governor with the remark "yours are the first hands that have touched those pistols except my own in more than twenty years." He was then escorted to one of the finest hotels of the state capital and given a reception, being called upon by many of the prominent citizens of the place and shaken by the hand. He has since been lodged in the Jackson county jail at Independence, and the "Cracker Neckers" have been calling upon him and doing him honor ever since.

What a comparison is this to a reception our own state of Kansas would give to one who, like he, had lived an outlaw and a deadly enemy to every honest man of the whole country? To our mind he is a villian of the worst kind who, ever since the tragic death of his brother Jesse, has lived in fear and trembling instinctively dreading a like fate to that meted out to his brother, the particulars of which are so well known to every reading person, who, we repeat, in fear and trembling seeks the protection and amnesty of the state in which he has committed the greater part of his pillage and murder.

And what does he offer in return for all he asks of this commonwealth? He simply promises to live the life of an honest and upright citizen. Simply his promise—the promise of a life-long outlaw, one who has constantly lived is the promise of such a man? The answer is appended by every right-mind-THE Patrons of California met in ed citizen. We know not what dispourday to nominate an independent criminals of his ilk-the more noted and worst of criminals are so royally received-will do with him. We only know that the governor has promised the "Cracker Neckers" of Jackson county that should any requisition be presented from any state for the outlaw that it will not be honored so long as the slightest charge remains on the dockets of Missouri against him, A DEMENTED Frenchman, a pianist, which substantially means that he will

Farm Products at the St. Louis Fair.

Globe Democrat, October 6, 1882 None of the exhibits at the St. Louis Fair are perhaps attracting so much attention as the collections of agricul-tural productions from the Northwest and from the state of Kausas, the latter being exhibited by the land department of the Kausas division of the Union Pacific Railway company, and the rormer by the Northern Pacific Railway company. Great crowds daily throng the building in which these dis-plays appear, to witness the marvelous collections of grasses, cereals, fruit and vegetables—specially those from Kan-sas. A few weeks ago the Union Pa cific Railway company made a display of Kausas products at the State Fair of Minnesota, in competition against three strong corporations in the Northwest, and carried off to Kansas the blue ribbon and medal, and this fact makes the competition now at St. Louis very interesting. The defeat of their own territory was too much for the Northern Pacific people to bear, and chafing under it they appeared at St. Louis determined if possible to regain what they had lost, but the gentlemen who led the army of retaliation did not seem to comprehend the strength and number of their enemy's resources, else they would not have risked another engage ment. But out of the contest the people who are in search of cheap farms in the West can learn a valuable lesson. The greater variety and the superiority in general of the Kansas products in comparison with those of the colder climate and protracted winters secured for the Kansas display, the second time within a few weeks, the first premium, and as there were at St. Louis but two competitors, the second premium—a silver medal—as a consequence went to display No. 2. That Kansas is a wonderful state, all people bust admit; that in both disparagement and in praise, more has been said of her han of any other state; but when her prizes are recounted the summing up presents a most favorable summing up presents a d question, result, and proves beyon has no result, and proves beyon. has no that as an agricultural state she superior and but very few, if a y, equals. Beginning with the Centers mial, her exhibit there was the best. Then in 1878, at the Cincinnati Industrial Exposition, she took the first prize, and at the St. Louis Fair, the following year, the first premium was awarded her. In 1881 she was first at the Illinois State Fair, and at the At-lanta Cotton Exposition, in the same year, she was declared the victor, and during the present year she has taken three first premiums, and has not yet met with a single defeat, although strong efforts have been made to beat her. Some people may think that it was fool-hardiness for the Union Pacific to go up into Minnesota with Kansas products and contend against three strong rivals, and also against patriotism and prejudice and expect to gain any glory by the effort. Upon reflection every person who has a knowledge of the climate of the two regions, must see at once the great natural advantage possessed by the great central state.

To a casual observer, an array of large bunches or sheaves of wheat and oats, all nearly of the same variety, may appear as attractive as the display of a great variety of smaller, but superior samples. This is what constitutes the difference in the two displays now at our fair. Of useful wild grasses Kansas presents seventy-five varieties while the Northwest has not one-fourth of that number. In wheat, oats, rye, barley and some other cereals, Kansas shows over 200 different kinds, while her rival has comparatively but a few. In corn the variety and quality from Kansas are so superior that it is useless to attempt a comparison, and the same also applies to fruit. The Kansas dis-play embraces over 300 named varieties of apples, pears and peaches, some of which are of unusual size and quality; also, thirty-five varieties of grapes. There are stalks of corn eighteen feet high, and of broom corn twenty feet: also rice-corn, sorghum and hemp, of great growth; one pumpkin of 180 pounds, and a great variety of vegeta-bles. There are forty kinds of Irish and sweet potatoes.

The cultivated grasses are an attractthe millet in about six varieties, some of which is nearly eight feet high. There are some flue specimens of timothy, Hungarian and white and red clover, also aifalfa, which frequently yields three crops in one summer and makes fine fodder. There is also a fine collection of coal, stone and marble, of wood. Kausas people must certainly feel proud of her fine record, for in agricultural displays she stands to-day without a peer. The millers of the Northwest are buying large quantities of Kansas No. 1 hard winter wheat; they find it to be the best for export THOS. GRANGER.

Sunday-School Convention.

This body has been holding a very instructive and very interesting session in this city for a few days at the Plymouth Congregational church, commencing on Tuesday evening and closing on Thursday evening of the same week. Eminent Sunday-school workers have been present from different parts of the country, and the attendance by the general public has been excellent. Rev. Mr. Hurlburt, of Staten Island, New York, delivered an excellent address on Wednesday evening on "The Minutes and How to Use Them." Much was done by the association to further the interest of the Sunday-school work in Kansas, and each one feels a beneficial effect from having had the opportunity of meeting and conferring together.

Yearly Meeting,

The yearly meeting of Friends has been in ession in this city for the past week, and is pronounced by the participators one of unusual interest. The meeting has had the largest attendance this year of any similar gathering here since the beginning. A number of prominent ministers from other yearly meetings has been present and contributed largely to the interest manifested throughout. The meeting began Thursday of last week and lasted till Thursday of this week, although some of the ministers who have been present will probably remain several days longer The society is reported in a prosperous condition and growing considerably in membership in Kansas.

The Sorgo Interest. M. Day, Jr., in Colman's Rural.

At X. K. Stout's of Troy, Kansas, I found business boiling. E. M. Rugg was superintending his works. His machinery consisted of a 20-horse power boiler and engine; a Louislana No. 1 cane mill, rolls 16x24, Buffalo make; two Smouse evaporators, 25 feet long originally, but as they failed to keep up with the mill, he added eight feet to one of them. The fellewing are some of his figures: With an even feed the mill ground four tons per hour, yield-ing seventy-live gallons of juice per ton. During the day their habit was to grind about thirty-five to forty tons, consuming one-third of a cord of wood to drive the engine. The evaporators were run night and day with bagasse only as fuel. This saved five cords of more dear the cover to wood, or $20 per day. The cover to the Smouse pan was thought an im-provement as far as it went, but skimming is found necessary in all parts of the pan, because different impurities are thrown to the surface at different degrees of heat, and as the cover is only applied at the front when the heat is low, all the scum is not caught by it. Cane costs him $2 per ton unstripped. Mr. Rugg is turning out first-class work, and Mr. Stout sells by car load at 50 cents per gallon, or 75 cents retail. He gave one man $62 for a lot of cane, and in 24 hours it was made up and sold for $350. One lot of 20 acres yielded 283 tons-14 1-7 tons per acre.

Mr. Rugg says Stout's seed will pay the expenses of raising, manufacturing and barreling. It is carefully saved, spread to dry, and when the boiling season is over, will be put through a threshing machine. Glucose works are trying to buy up seed at 75 cents per bushel, but Rugg says it is worth $1.50 to any farmer, and will be for a year to come. Mr. Stout does not rate the seed so high, but summed up general results as follows: "I am making 500 gallons per day with a net profit of $125 per day."

Mr. Stout's neighbor, Mr. James E. Dryden, has duplicated Stout's machinery-the Buffalo mill, Louisiana No. 1, two Smouse evaporators, and a portable engine and boiler, 10-horse power.

His cane was excellent, running six and seven gallons of juice to one of syrup. Eight hours run of the mill, supplied juice for 300 gallons of syrup. His Orange cane yielded 200 gallons per acre—twelve and sixteen gallons per ton. His amber, 150 gallons per acre. He is getting 25 bushels of seed per acre, which he sells to the glucose works at 75 cents per bushel. His syrup was excellent, and his works the cleanest I ever saw on a farm-not a particle of seam or syrup was allowed to drop on the ground anywhere around the evaporators, it was clean, pounds of butter in one year, but good enough to sell for $100.

At Hiawatha I found Babbitt & Beatty in full tide. They have the Louisiana No. 1, one Smouse evaporator, one steam coil (old style) for defecator and a Buffalo steam coil for finisher. They had all they could do-had an excellent sugar-master in Mr. Martin, and were making fine syrup and hope to show good results in sugar. They were emphatic in praise of mill and Buffalo coil, but did not like either the old coil or the evaporator.

Best Age to Plant Fruit Trees. From a pretty long experience in planting fruit trees we have come to the conclusion—and this is not the first time we have printed it in these columns-that two year old fruit trees are more certain to grow, to assume a tured without much injury. Blossom-good form, to become vigorous and long-lived than trees twice as old. Indeed, we have seldom succeeded with trees more than two years old.

Some years ago we sent to a nursery for some two dozen of pear and cherthe order, not being able to go after the trees personally, nothing is said about the age of the trees. We only said "Send good trees well branched." We never saw a more perfect lot of trees, but they were at least four years old and some of them nine feet high. They were planted carefully and cut back severely, but only moderately at first to save them. The spring could not have been more favorable for transplanting, and when the dry weather set in they were frequently watered, which doubtless saved the majority. Five of the lot died. We don't remember losing a single small tree. We repeat our conviction, therefore, that one and two year old trees are better in the end than those older; and though we may have to wait sometimes (not always) longer to get fruit, the trees are far healthier and more more productive and give more satisfaction.

We may add that several of these pear trees were pruned within from six to ten inches of the main stock, resembling when done a half-closed up-turned hand, and it not only saved them but they are at this time in perfect health, growing finely. All fruit trees, to afferd the best satisfaction, should be of the age here indicated, and if properly planted and cared for, will be more hardy, and vigorous and long-lived than trees of older stock. The desire some people have of getting fruit as quickly as possible is not always realized by planting older trees and from the very fact that they may bear earlier, will be at the expense of the health and growth of the whole tree.—Germantown Telegraph.

Hill or Flat Cultivation for Vines.

This year a part of my vines, cucum bers, squash, pumpkin, watermelon, cit ron, muskmelon were planted in hills, and a part with flat cultivation, and so far, I am in favor of planting with the level cultivation.

First, while we had plenty of wet weather, the vines in the hill seemed the best, grew the fastest, and I began to believe they would prove the mest profitable. But a few days of hot dry weather soon nettled the matter. The vines in the hills began very soon to dry up, while those that were planted dry up, while those that were planted on the level kept on growing right along, never seeming to mind the hot scorching sun at all. In ten days the difference was very marked, and without rain or hand watering, in a short time, the vines is hills would be obliged to succurab, as each day seemed to show its effect. As this season has been what we would call a weak one, I am decidedly of the opinion that flat I am decidedly of the opinion that flat cultivation is preferable, though I am inclined to think from this year's experience, that in a wet season seed planted in level ground is far more liable to rot than if planted in hills.—N. J. S., in Prairie Farmer.

Profit in Cows.

A Darlington, Wis., paper publishes the following statement made by the proprietor of a creamery of that place:

The total income of twenty-eght patrons was $55,936 from 211 average cows equal to $26.30 per month for the average time, five months and twelve days. All farmers know that with proper handling a cow will give a flow of milk eight months in a year, we have as the butter product, $38.96. Every calf dropped is worth $5, the skim milk is worth at least $3. Here we have the average cow producing nearly $47 a year. Is it any wonder that dairy farmers in New York, Pennsylvania and Northern Ohio live in fine houses and have big barns? What our farmers want to do is to get rid of their poor cows, quit sowing flax and wheat, seed down, club together and buy a few Jersey bulls, and in five years Lafay-

An exchange advises the feeding of sour apples to milch cows, but states mittees or otherwise-could be made that they should be perfectly ripe and to publicly disclose their wisdom, all fed in small quantities at first and the quantity gradually increased.

A Dublin cotemporary advises that a full feed of hay be consumed by horses before they be fed more concentrated food such as corn, as it is claimed the bulky hay crowds the concentrated food from the stomach of the animal before it is thoroughly digested when fed following the concentrated food. The logic is good.

An Ohioan in attendance at a picnic of the farmers adjacent in Ohio, Pennsylvania and New York, saw for the first time some of the Rice wheat in bundles and immediately purchased all he could find at $2.50 per bushel. Is there any of our readers who have tried this wheat on Kansas soil that will favor our readers with an account of their experience?

George B. Loring, commissioner of agriculture, reported to an eastern interviewer last week that he never saw young people could sing, the balladist a more luxuriant growth or better or clown—all could find an audience filled ears of corn than I did on my simply to amuse is absurd, and those recent trip through Kansas. Further east he says the crop was thin and human nature are not fit leaders for so BELOW the average. He was especially struck at the immensity of the business of making prairie hay all over our fertile prairies. The trip was a good one for Loring and the state.

One of the greatest mistakes of farmers, is the quite common one of ceasing almost, if not entirely to produce an article that does not yield a profit and to that with enthusiasm which pays.

To a certain extent this is wise, but not to the extent that it is too frequently carried. A steady market is far betfarmer, and in fact for the dealer and and reduce the large paunch which usconsumer. Then we know about what an article will bring in the market we know hetter how to shape our product know better how to shape our productmer. tion, and the consumer how to regulate his supplies economically. We have noticed this tendency as severely affecting the fluctuations of the markets and consequently farmers steady income. If whaet, potatoes or buckwheat are scarce and high this year, there is a rush to put in all the wheat, potatoes and buckwheat possible even if seed has to be bought at fabulous prices. Consequently, on this increased supply, prices drop the next year, and scarcely enough is real-

But the effect is not injurious in annuals, and cereals, as in the production of stock, now noticeable in the beef and pork market. It takes longer to bring up the necessary supply of beef by the rapidity of his growth when on the farm we have seen stock hogs and small pigs exceedingly scarce twice in our neighborhood. Stock hogs for fattening sold for six or seven cents a pound and small pigs as high as twenty. IT is assumed that people, farmers especially, go to a fair for the purpose of gaining information, and it is farther assumed that there are persons in at-tendance whose knowledge in some breeding, is above that of the majority. heir knowledge especially fits them. The blue card attached to articles, pen or stall, is the stamp of authority, de-termining which is best among many entries. This stamp is criticised by grades of mind as to its appropriate-ness. In most cases the decision is correct. There are points which to the Now is the time to build sheds, if uary glance are unwritten. Now, if the experts-members of commight become benefitted. There should be a public stand where committees should repair after making their awards, to illustrate their reasons for awarding first premiums to one article or animal, and second to others. This would stimulate discussion, which could but result in a general understanding of facts in their bearing upon the point in question. It would harmonize views, and bring general knowledge up to a better standard. Committee men would be more likely to confine their discussions to facts that would bear the strain of controversy. Grievances born of personal pride would fade away under the strong force of public opinion. Idlers would become interested, and the American penchant for talking would here find vent for its pent-up powers. The program would be arranged so that no two classes should conflict. Sheep men, horse men, cattle men, and hog men could here arbitrate their differ-ences before the public and advertise their interests. Agents of implements could harangue the crowd in favor of their superior tool. On this central stand the band could play, groups of who cater only to that side of weak large a class who only learn by imitation.—Grange Visitor.

Look Well to the Calves

Calves that are weaned and have been made to depend upon grass, or mainly so, should not be forced to continue on this food during the remainder of the grass season. Much of the success in wintering will depend upon the fitting for winter. This can only be done properly by bringing them under shelter at night during the cold nights of October, and feeding them concentrated food-meal, oats, corn and oats or oil cake. The latter should by al means enter into the ration, as it will ter than a fluctuating one for the more speedily bring up the condition

The next year they were more scarce but the general farmer was content if he had enough to fatten for his own use. Last year brood sows were high, and this year hardly purchaseable at any price in some localities, there is a general call for them. It will not be very strange if another plethoric cycle succeeds the present scarcity and when every farmer has stock hogs to sell the price will be extremly low. The best way to avoid these fluctuations is to raise every year more than is needed for farm purposes, but not enough to be obliged to sell. Always have some to spare without being overstocked.

This without any reference to mark sting or to mere appearance sake, but simply for the same reason that hay making is attended to while the conditendance whose knowledge in some tions are right for it, for the gain of a special line of product, invention, or beast ends when winter is established; at least under the conditions with Such persons are usually chosen as which they are generally surrounded, judges in the department for which It is well understood that stok will gain more rapidly on a variety of food that when confined to a meager assortment, and such as are in thin condition should have the special attention of the feeder nuring the coming few week .-Live Stock Journal..

Water for Sheep

How many farmers totally neglect providing water for their flocks, except in very hot summers, when grass and everything besides is burnt up? But there can scarcely be a doubt that pure fresh water ought to be always within access to a flock of sbeep, whether they are thought to want it or not. The most experienced and observant of shepherds cannot always tell when this ought to be furnished, for some animals may be in a condition to require it and others not. The only safe rule to follow, therfore, is to never to allow the deprivation to be experienced by providing water, so as to be within ready access at all times. This is what Mr. Robert Russell, the successful breeder in Kent, does. One invariable rule which he follows, both in summer and winter, being never to allow any animal on his farm to go a single day throughout the year without having ready access to two things -pure fresh water and salt ..

Wheat Growing Maxime.

Somebody has been at the trouble of condensing a great deal of information about wheat growing, as follows, into very small compass. and somebody else has set it afloat without giving credit to the author:

2. Wheat likes a good, deep, soft bed. Clover turned under makes such a

4. The best seed is oily, heavy, plump and clean.

5. About two inches is the best depth for sowing the seed.

6. The drill puts in the seed better and cheaper than any broadcasting. 7. From the middle of September to the last of October is the best time for sowing

8. Drilled, one bushel of seed per acre; if sown broadcast, two busbels per scre. 9. One heavy rolling after sowing does much good. 10. For flour, cut when the grain begins to harden; for seed, not until it has hardened.

We can not but help noticing the liberal offer made to all invalids and sufferers by Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption. We must consider this the fairest offer yet. You are not requested to buy here the sufference of the means enter into the ration, as it will more speedily bring up the condition and reduce the large paunch which usually comes to the calf by the first of October, if made to depend upon grass during the larger portion of the summer.

Young Folks' Department.

Schoolgirl Complains Correspondent to the Young Folks' Department After reading about cramming knowledge into the brains of the children who attend public schools I thought I would write and tell you how I spend a day. I have just been promoted into the highest class of our schools. My studies are arithmetic, algebra, geography, astronomy, grammar, United States history, general history, etymology, spelling and composition; then drawing, reading and singing by note. Every little while I am obliged to have an account of some celebrated person or place learned

I do not dislike study, but object to being obliged to work until 12 o'clock every night. That hour might be the best time for astronomy, out in the open air with a telescope but certainly not in a room. After spending a long wearisome day in a close school room, trembling every minute for fear I shall forget some date in history or rule in algebra, I walk home. The only exercise I have except at lunch time with a short recess in the forenoon in a crowded school yard. As soon as I arrive at home I sit down to work out my number of algebra problems, which I would not mind if I wasn't so nervous and tired. After then comes my spelling, twenty review words of former grades and twenty historical, geographical or astronomi-cal names, which take quite a long time to hunt up in their respective text books. Then next in the order of exercises is a long history lesson, with such lists of names and dates that it makes my head swim to look at them I study the civil war together with the explorations and early settlements. By the time I lay down my book to have supper my head feels as if it would burst. I hastily swallow my food, thinking all the time of how much more I must jam in somehow before I can rest. I hurry to two chapters of geography, and while studying think, "O dear! I don't half know that history yet!" and I've got astronomy and an account of Solomon to find in an encyclopaedia, history or elsewhere, besides preparing the definitions of a reading lesson, with the notes about the author, 1 study and search in histories and text books until I am about worn out. At last my little clock strikes 11. How I long for sleep and rest! but I have not finished yet. How those lists of dates run through my mind while I am trying in vain to learn my astronomy! Oh, at what a cost am I getting my education! After an hour more of Committee of the society of the Army fruitless endeavor to retain ideas and words I crawl into my bed more dead than alive, thinking that I will rest is charged with the general organiza-now and get up early in the morning tion. An Art and Industrial Exhibition in the Capitol, at Washington.

FOR THE BENEFIT OF THE GARFIELD MONUMENT FUND.

A National Bazaar, Art and Industrial Exposition will be held in the rotunda and adjacent halls of the National Capitol, at Washington, D. C., November 25th to December 3d (inclusive), 1882, as authorized by joint resolution of the Senate and House of Representatives, August 7, 1882. The object of this undertaking is to raise funds with which to erect a statue in Washington to the memory of General James A. Garfield, late president of the United States, which work is in the hands of a committee of the society of the Army of the Cumberland, who have already collected for this purpose some twenty thousand dollars, and expect, with the results of the exposition, to have a sufficient sum with which to erect a work befitting the great name it is proposed to commemorate.

Senseless Saloon Keepers.

Atchison, Kas., Oct. 8 .- Maysville, Kas., is seriously disturbed over a piece of modern barbarism which has just come to light. W. A. Calderhead, an able lawyer and esteemed citizen of that place, is the attorney for the temperance league, and as such prosecutes without fear or favor. Going home last night to his consternaing home last night to his consterna-tion, he found on his door-step a prop-er-sized and highly upholstered and magnificiently finished coffin with this inscription: "Calderhead, keep on and you will fill this." An indignant meeting of the citizens was held at once, who passed resolutions condemn-ing this and offering a reward of $100 for the corpetrators, or any informafor the perpetrators, or any informa-tion leading thereto. The supposition is that saloon keepers and prosecuted liquor dealers, use this as a means of intimidation.

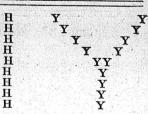

THE Indians are again threatening trouble near Tucson, A. T., owing to the crookedness of an agent who preferred selling their rations to traders to giving to them.

A gross outrage was perpetrated in East Council Grove, Wednesday evening. While a little boy, a son of Mr. J. J. Smith, was riding over to town about five o'clock, a man stepped out from behind the fence near Spencer's livery stable, and threw a stone with great force at the boy. Luckily it struck the wooden stIrrup, but with such violence it was crushed, the heavy stirrup strap broken off at the buckle, the brass tip of the boy's boot torn off, and the sole of the boot torn from the upper.

A Jewell county farmer says that chinch bugs thrive where the prairie grass is burned. He concludes that in moist localities where the grass is never burned and where it so mulches the ground that it is always moist; there are no bugs; but where the grass is short and where it is burned off every year, the bugs can always be found in countless numbers. He argues that if the grass was never burned that in a few years the whole country would be mulched and kept moist; that drouths would cease, and chinch bugs disappear.

The Unusual Experience of a Prominent Man Made Public.

The following article from the Democrat and Chronicle, of Rochester, N. Y., is of so striking a nature, and emanates from so reliable a source, that it is herewith re-published entire. In addition to the valuable matter it contains, it will be found exceedingly interesting:

It steals into the system like a thief, manifests its presence by the commonest symptoms, and fastens itself upon the constitution before the victim is aware. It is nearly as hereditary as consumption, quite as common and fully as fatal. Entire families enheriting it from their ancestors, have died, and yet none of the number knew or realized the mysterious power which was removing them. Instead of common symptoms it often shows none whatever, but brings death suddenly, and as such is such is usually supposed to be heart disease. As such is one who has suffered, and knows by bitter experience what he says, I implore every one who reads these words not to neglect the slightest symptoms of kidney difficulty. FROM COL. L. T. FOSTER.

'Youngstown, Ohio, May, 10th, 1880.'
DR. B. J. KENDALL & Co., GENTS:—I had a very valuable Hambletonian colt which I prized very highly, he had a large bone spavin on one joint and a smaller one on the other which made him very lame; I had him under the charge of two Veterinary Surgeons who failed to cure him. I was one day reading the advertisement of Kendall's Spavin Cure in the Cicago Express, I letermined at once to try it, and got our druggists here to snnd for it. They ordered three bottles; I took them all and thought I would give it athorough trial. I used it according to directions, and by the fourth day the colt ceased to be lame, and the lumps had entirely disappeared. I used but one bottle and the colts limbs are as free from lumps and as smooth as any horse in the state. He is entirely cured. The cure was so remarkable that I let two of my neighbors have the remaining two bottles, who are now using it.

Very Respectfully,

GENTS:—In justice to you and to myself, I think I ought to let you know that I have removed two bone spavins with Kendall's Spavin Cure, one very large one, don't know how long the spavin had been there. I have owned the horse eight months, It took me four months to take the large one off and two forthe small one. I have used ten bottles. The horse is entirely well, not at all stiff, and no bunch to be seen or felt. This is a wonderful medicine. It is a new thing here, but if it does for all what it has done for me, its sale will be very great.

Dr. B. J. Kendall & Co., Gents:—In reply to your letter I will say that my experience with Kendall's Spayin Cure' has been very satisfactory indeed. Three or four years ago I procured a bottle of your agent, and with it, cured a horse of lameness caused by a spayin. Last season my horse became very lame and I turned him out for a few weeks, when he became better, but when I puthim on the road he grew worse, when I discovered that a ringbone was forming, I procured a bottle of Kendall's Spayin Cure and with less than a bottle cured him so that he is not lame, neither can the bunch be found.

Kendall & Co., Gents:—Having got a horse book of you by mail a year ago, the contents of which persuaded me to try Kendall's Spavin Cure on the hind leg of one of my horses which was badly swollen and could not be be reduced by any other remedy. I got two bottles of Kendall's Spavin Cure of Preston & Ludduth, Druggists of Wascca, which completely cured my horse. About five years ago I had a three-year-old colt sweenied very badly I used your remedy as given in your book without roweling, and I must say to your credit that the colt is entirely cured, which is a surprise not only to my-self but also to my neighbors. KENDAL'S SPAVIN CURE.

ON HUMAN FLESH it has been ascertained by repeated trials to be the very best liniment ever used for any deep seated pain of long standing, or of short duration. Also for Corns, Bunions, Frost-bites, or any bruise, cut or lameness. Some are afraid to use it on human flesh simply because it is a horse medicine, but you should remember that what is good for Beast is good for Man, and we know from experience that "KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE" can be used on a child I year old with perfect safety. Its effects are wonderful on human flesh, and it does not blister or make a sore. Try it and be convinced.

B. J. Kendall & Co.—Gents: I wish to add my testimony in favor of your invaluable liniment, "Kendall's Spavin Cure." In the spring of 1872 I slipped on the ice and sprained my right limb at the knee joint. I was very lame, and at times suffered the most exeruciating pain. I wore a bandage on it for over a year, and tried most everything in my reach, but could find nothing that would give me permanent relief. When I overworked, it would pain me very much. In April, 1878, I began to think I should be a cripple for life, but having some of "Kendall's Spavin Cure" thought I would try it. I used one-third of a bottle and experienced relief at once. The pain left me and has not troubled me since. I feel very grateful to you, and would recommend "Kendall's Spavin Cure" to all who suffer with sprains or rheumatism.

HARVEST AND VINTAGE.

I dreamed of a marvelous harvest,
I dreamed of a threshing-floor,
Where men, like grain, by angels twain,
Were garnered in measureless store—
All bound in sheaves, like corn in the leaves,
And flailed from husk to core.
And the angels sang, with voices sweet,
"Out of the grain the dross we beat,
Out of the chaff we winnow the wheat—
True souls are the wheat of a nation!"

I dreamed of a wonderful vintage I dreamed of a wine-press red, Where men, like grapes, by angel-shapes, Were trodden with wrathful tread; As grapes ye work, to must and to murk,
And crush them shred by shred.
And the angels sang, with tongues divine,
"Out of the murk the must we find—

Out of the grapes we mellow the wine— Brave hearts are the wine of a nation?" I would that my dreams were real—
That angels this land might beat,
And scourge our sod with the fialls of God,
And scatter the chaff from the wheat,
And mightily tread, in our wine-press red,
All dross beneath their feet!

That our souls might sing, in joyous strain, "Out of the chaff the wheat we gain,
Out of the murk the wine we drain— The wheat and the wine of our nation!"

'DEAR MR. EYTON.—I have heard of you and shall be very glad to see you it you can take time to visit ne to-morrow, between 10 and 3. Yours very truly, 'MAXIMUS BOSWELL.
'GEORGE EYTON, ESQ.'

It is hardly to be wondered at it George Eyton, who had no pretentions to the gift of prophecy, looked forward to the interview to which this brief note invited him with fellings shed a furtive tear myself, and as for laughing of unmixed joy. The events of the next five minutes are as derk to us as unprescient mortals as those of a century hence. So George having read and re-read the letter, and executed a fantastic pas de joie round the limits of his sitting-room, went out to dine in a high state of self congratulation and good fellow-ship with the world in general.

He dined at his favorite club, 'The Owls,' Which has since disappeared and left no progeny. You may seek in vain for its like nowadays, though the events I chronicle are barely five years old. There had been a time when to belogng to 'The Owls' was in itseli a some what coveted distinction. Most of its members were men of decent standing in the literary and artistic world. There is, I believe, a standing order of the House of Commons (not so well kept as it might be) to the effect that no member shall speak ill of another. The unwritten law of the Association of Owls was that each of its members should hold and disseminate the best possible possible opinion of every other member, and to be an Owl meant to have great things prophisied of you by your brother-birds of night. Future poets laureate and presidents of the Royal Academy were to be fournd in the smoke dimmed precincts of the club-house, and the aurecle of futurefame gilded the successful of it habitutes.

It was in a mild and not altogether a unagreeable spirit of sadness that George Eyton took his seat at his favorite table. His visits to the old place were numbered and many pleas- which assisted at the gathering, could be called ant memories were enshrined within its wall. Already dowered with the affection of the old drawn from one class; small shop-keepers of club waiter, the dinner he ordered on this oc. the neighborhood accompanied by their famicasion was such as to deepen the tender interest felt by that venerable servitor in his derly and intelligent, though here and there young client, and past and future look'd doubly were seen faces of a lower cast, and a few fair, viewed through the medium of a bottle were evidently votaries of the conquered deof choice Burgundy. Presently entered to ity represented on the banner. George, who him Mr. Thomas Courtnay, a brother Owl, to never assisted at any such affair before, watched whom a causual and sarcastic reference had the proceedings with considerable interest. been made on that eventful afternoon, a month In ten minutes after the arrival of the friends ago. Mr. Courtney aspired to be a journilist. the hall was filled to its utmost capacity, He was a young man of considerable talent, though crowds still besieged the entrance. It but of an eratic temperament, which somewhat militated against his success.

'Hillo, Eyton, where have you been hiding for the past month?'

'I have been to Shropshire, attending on my uncle.

'Peace to his manes.' said Mr. Courtnay, and took a gulp from a soda water glass, filled with a liquor of faint golden tinge. 'I, alas!'am uncleless.' 'By the way,' he continued-'I suppose I may ask .- I hear you are engaged to Miss Boswell, is that so?' 'I am provisionally. I am to see the general to-morrow.'

'Success attend you! Fear nothing from me. I retire.'

'That's very good of you,' said Eyton gravely.

'Not at all,' responded Mr. Courtnay with equal gravity. 'Don't mention it. And 1 wish you the best of luck with the general, my boy, and all happiness.'

'Thank you,' answered George, cordially grasping the hand extended to him. 'What kind of a man is the general?' asked

'Well?'

'It was rejected, sir, I got back by return of post, with a note from the editor expressing his sorrow at his inability to use it as the 'Œcumenical' was not a comic paper.'

'What are you going to do to-night?' asked Courtney, half an hour later, as they sat in the smoke-room over the digestive cigar. 'Have you any engagement?'

'No. I was thinking of turning into one of the theatres later on.

'Come with me instead, and I'll show you something.'

'What is It?'

'Did you ever hear of Elijah Short?' 'Never. What is he?'

'He is a temperance orator. And he is an orator, too, the only one I every heard who really deserves the name. I'm going to hear him to-night. Come with me you won't regret it. I heard him two years ago, when I was doing that series on the East End—the series that was to make my fortune and never came out. He's one of the most wonderful men alive. He hasn't an "h" in his composition, his grammar is worse than a lady novelist's, his accent is a thing to marvel at, and I've seen him make a crowd of two thousand people laugh and cry for three hours at a stretch. He told the story of his own life, and Dickens never did anything finer, for humor and pathos. It was down by Rotherhite, and the place was full of those hulking 'longhshore blackguards,' and I saw dozens of 'em crying like women. I'm not so sure that I didn't -my ribs were sore for a week after. Come and hear him. There's nothing like him at any of the theatres.'

'He must be good' said Eyton, laughing. He has posstively made Tom Courtenay enthusiastic.'

'Come and hear him,' repeated Courtenay, he'll do the same for you.'

'Where is this paragon to be seen?' 'In the Brooklyn Hall, Taylor street. It' only two minutes' walk. You may come away if you don't care for it. Though, if you wait till Short begins, you won't leave till he has finished, I promise you. And you can mention casually, in your interview with the general to-morrow, that you spent last evening at a temperance meeting. Give him a good idea of your general moral tone.'. 'All right,' said Eyton, laughing, 'I'm ready.

They left the club arm in arm, and took their way to Taylor street. Coming to the hall, they found it besieged by a throng of people, who filtered slowly through the doors, to swell the audience already seated. It was a vast, bare room, walls and ceilings in whitewashed plaster; the spacious platform, the wide gallery and all the seats and fittings constructed of wood. The place was destitute of any attempt at ornamentation, unless a banner, representing the Angel of Temperance trampling under foot the Demon of Drink, flanked by the lesser insignia of the various teetotal lodges by such a name. The audience was mostly was summer weather, and the place soon grew suffocatingly, hot, although the skimp-framed windows were opened; and the buzz of conversation was deafening. In a while the audi ence grew clamorous at the sight of the still deserted platform, and summoned the tardy orators of the night with rounds of Kentish fire. They came at last, and were received with a burst of applause compared with which that of Drury Lane was a whisper.

'That's Short,' said Courtenay to his companion; 'the big man with the white beard, talking to the chairman.'

' Who's the chairman?' 'Haven't a notion ; military-looking party. A gentleman, conspicuous in the white tie and long coat of the Established Church, came forward, and, having commanded silence by a motion of the hand, delivered a short extemporaneous prayer, to which the vast audience uttered a sonorous 'Amen.' Then a second gentleman, in dubiously tinted linen, and looking generally like a caricature of his confrere, gave out a hymn, two lines at a time, which was sung with a somewhat rude but genuine tervor. The chairman then announced that Mrs. 'I never met him. He has been in India Rachel Pounder would address the meeting. think it will be all right. Mrs. Thresham vanced to the hand-rail, with the aspect of a feminine policeman bent on taking her whole 'Charming old lady, Mrs. Thresham!' said audience into instant custody. George had never dreamed of anything like her, even in a Eyton assented. And what have you been night-mare, and listened to her comminatory periods, delivered in a voice like a steamwhistle, with a short-lived interest which speedily degenerated into boredom. Mrs. Pounder, having a few ideas, hid poverty of elty is what is wanted now adays, I wrote an thought under fluency of language. The chairman said that, before requesting Mr. Short to address the meeting, he would avail himself of a hint which he owed to that gentleman, by inviting such as were present, and felt the spirit move them, to encourage their neighbors in the path of temperance by quoting such short passages from the Scriptures or the poets in which the beauties of that virtue were praised. The invitation was accepted. 'Look not upon the wine when it is red.' 'At the last it stingeth like an adder and biteth like a serpent.' 'Wine is a mocker, strong drink is raging,' and kindred texts were repeated in succession from different parts of the building, in every variety of voice and key. One young man in the near neighbor-

Then, moved, doubtless, by the instigation of the devil, arose Mr. George Eyton. His dress and appearance so completely different from those of the rest of the audience, attracted great attention, which grew as he slowly adjusted his coat and fitted his eye-glasses. They waited, the more enthusiastic of them drawing a deep breath, the better to applaud the sentiment he had risen to utter. It came

'Take a little for the stomach's sake !' There was a moment's dead silence, and then tumult, wild and indescrbable, and Mr. Eyton, borne upon the crest of a human wave, found himself in the deserted street, with no very clear idea of how he got there. His hat was gone, his light dust overcoat hung about him in ribbons. He leaned against a convenient lamp-post and laughed until the street re echoed. Presently, wiping the tears from his eyes, he beheld Mr. Courtenay, partner in his expulsion and his merriment.

'It was too bad, George,' said Courtenay gasping.

'I couldn't have helped it, if I'd been hung for it,' answered Eyton. 'Confound it all, the chairman asked for texts. I gave one, didn't I? I say, Courtenay, old man, I can't walk home in this state. Fetch a cab for me, there's good fellow, while I have my laugh out.'

Courtenay moved away to fulfill his friend' ehest, but suddenly stood stone still.

'I say-! Eyton! Look here!' 'What's the matter?'

Courtenay's sole answer was to point to a fiaming poster on the wall. George followed the direction of his friend's forefinger, and read, with a drooping jaw-

JOHN A. COCKERILL, managing ed itor of the Post-Dispatch, St. Louis, last Friday shot A. W. Slaybank, a prominent lawyer of that city. The quarrel arose from Slaybank making hard charges against the Post-Dispatch at a political meeting, which that sheet refuted in its next issue, and in addition reproduced a card published a year ago by another well known lawyer charging Slaybank with cowardice. The statements of the witnesses disagree, but it is generally believed that Slaybank made the assault and that Cockerill shot him in self-defence. At the inquest it was satisfactorily proven that Slaybank had with him a revolver and the weapon was produced by the defence and identified as the one a pawn-broker sold to Slaybank, having his private trade-mark upon it. The lawyers of St. Louis held Mr. Slaybank in ligh esteem and have passed resolutions of condolence at his taking-off.

A DESERVED COMPLIMET.

The New York Herald pays the Western farmers a high compliment and at the same time makes a few acknowledgements never allowed by any Eastern Journal. When such papers as the Herald makes such statements it appears to us that a proper recognition of the Western farmer is inevitable. The Herald says:

It will be news to many readers that Wester farmers are holding the great-er part of their grain for higher prices. Generally the farmer has been compelled to sell his grain at whatever price he could get for it, and if any one held it for a rise it would be the speculator at Chicago, Milwaukee or elsewhere. but the farmer, in spite of what people say about him, is a progressive individual. He reads the papers and he sares money, so, when there is a possibility of gaining much by waiting a little while as some of the observers of European affairs say there is now, the farmer astonishes the public and disgusts the speculators by organizing a 'corner' of his own grain. It is good for him and every one else that the farmer is forehanded enough to be able to hold back his wheat and corn for higher prices. If any money is to be made on the products of his industry the people would rather see it made by the farmer than by the speculator.

Simplicity Preferred.

How astonished some fair American brides, preparing their trousseaux, must read that the new Duchess of be to read that the new Duchess of Westminster, wife of one of the richest men in Europe, was married in a dress of white foulard, a short dress, of walk-ing length. The Hon. Katharine Cav-endish, for that was the young lady's name, had not the column of description before her imagination in which her CHICAGO dressed beef sells readily wedding dress would be read by an admiring world, or, if she had, she preferred that the account, as well as the bill, should be a short one. "Jennie June," in a letter from Saratoga, would seem to show that the only way to be distinguished at this monstrous social exchange is to be governed by a similar taste. She describes an overdressed young woman, who has put on all her "jewelry," an expensive silk, and a loaded bonnet, wishing with all her heart that she could change places with the "belle," who is charming in a pale blue chambray gingham, trimmed with Hamburg edging, and a coarse white straw hat. The white foulard of the Duchess of Westminster probably cost 75 cents a yard, and the blue gingham of the admired American 25 cents. Gradually our people are learning that it is not the material, but the way it is worn, that shows the lady. And the shopkeepers, to their credit, are doing their best to make the idea an easy one to carry out. The present generation will never see the old-fashioned 'levy,' and yet some of the prettiest goods in cotton foulards are being shown now marked with the (disappeared) coin, value 12½ cents. Any woman can be as well dressed in these as in silk attire, if she chooses. Indeed, between the cotton and the silk it would be hard to say which has the most lustrous surface or promises the longest wear.

> A young farmer who had been reading a book which stated that "woman is the Sunday of man," thought he would compliment and please his wife by shouting to her one morning: "Dais sy, you are my Sunday!" Oh, My Back!

That's a common expression and has a world of meaning. How much suffering is summed up in it.

The singular thing about it is, that pain in the back is occasioned by so many things. May be caused by kidney disease, liver complaint, consumption, cold, rheumatism, dyspepsia, overwork, nervous debility, &c.

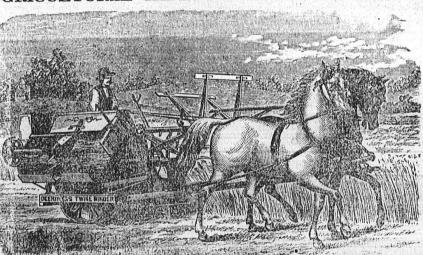

Whatever the cause, don't neglect it. Something is wrong and needs prompt attention. No medicine has yet been discovered that will so quickly and surely cure such diseases as Brown's Iron Bitters, and it does this by commencing at the foundation, and making the blood pure and rich.

> Wm. P. Marshall, of Logansport, Indiana, writes: "My wife has for many years been troubled from pain in her back and general debility incident to her sex. Leading physicians and clergymen use and recommend Brown's Iron Bit-TERS. It has cured others suffering as you are, and it will cure you.

ATTEMPEMPTED INFANTICIDE.

A Lawrence Lady in a Fit of Insan-ty Attempts to Cut the Throat of Her Two-Year Old Daughter.

Wednesday morning Mrs. Laura Montgom ery, living on South Vermont street, who it will be remembered attempted to gain a name fame and opulence a few months since by announcing in flaming posters, the invention by herself of an infallible cure-all on which appeared a verse of poetry informing the pub-A FULL line of gents' boots, from $2.00 to lie they must buy this concoction the perusal which, at the time, caused many believe she was of unsound mind. As we started to say Wednesday morning this community was pained and startled by the announcement that Mrs. Montgomery had cut her two-year-old daughter's throat and the child was seen to run screaming from the house with blood gushing from the wound. By some means the girl escaped before her mother succeeded in doing any serious injury and it is believed she will recover without much trouble. Mrs. Montgomery has been adjudged insane and will soon be placed beyound danger to others than herself.

A Plucky Little Lady.

The following account of the recent victory of a persevering little woman, taken from the Capital, of Topeka, bears such a striking resemblance to the famous Hillman case of this vicinity, that we give it entire:

vicinity, that we give it entire:

The remarkable case of Mrs. Walburga Wackerle's fight at St. Louis for her rights has been exciting the attention of the whole country, and that she should have come out victorious at last is one of the most wonderful things the newspapers have had to record for a long time. Mrs. Wackerle brought suit against the Mutual Life Insarance company to recover $4,000, the amount of a policy upon her husband's life. She was married to him in 1858, and in 1872 he was killed in a railread accident in Louisiana. She went down to that state and secured the evidence of her husband's death, then working her way to Harttord, Conn., she presented the policy for payment. The company had heard, however, that there was some doubt about his death, and refused to pay the policy, She then went back to the was some doubt about his death, and refused to pay the policy. She then went back to the South and roamed up and down the country collecting further proofs of her husband's death, but as the coroner and most of the jury which sat on the case were dead of the yellow fever, and the section gang with which he worked was all scattered, she had a hard time but flashly got together enough evidence to complete her case. She found where the body was buried and by describing it accuraty further fastened the chain of evidence. She then brought suit against the insurance company for $3.000 at Shreveport, La., and won her case, which was at once appealed to the Supreme court of the state.

Here the conspiracy began. One Joseph

Here the conspiracy began. One Joseph Weinman, an attorney at law and insurance agent at Carver, Minn., notified the Mutual and Ætina companies that he could for a consideration deteat the claim of Mrs. Wackerle. Sherman at the Opera House, Bowersock's Opera House was filled to overflowing last Tuesday night by the ladles and gentlemen of Lawrence anxious to hear Senator John Sherman, of Ohio, on the political questions of the day. Long before the appearance of Mr. Sherman every seat in the house was taken and many were obliged to return home. Probably no larger audience ever greeted one man in this city before, and Mr. in this city where she has resided, and the Serman shortly demonstrated that the compliment was in nowise undeserved. He held the closest attention of the vast audience for nearly two hours contrasting the two great politcal parties and the work each had done interspersed at short intervals by enthusiastic applause. Even members of the opposing parties declared the effort a most able one and well worthy of attention and thought. Mr. Sherman left Wednesday for the West but will not speak again during his present visit.

A Highwayman's Crime.

Michael Divine, of this county, from near Eudora, last Sunday started in company with a colored man, to walk to the house of a friend up the Santa Fe track at the mouth of the Wakarusa. By some means the colored man imagined his companion had some money on his person and feloniously struck him over the head with a club, knocking him senseless, he then robbed the prostrate man of $9.00—all he had with him and left him in this insensible condition on the track, where trains were liable to crush him at any moment, but fortunately, Mr. Divine recovered before any train passed and hastened to crawl from his perilous paper will certainly be stopped when your position. As the colored man's name was unknown to Divine no clue has as yet been

IMITATING THE JAMES BOYS.

Frnak A. Meade, Formerly a Lawrence Boy Leads a Cang of Cow Boys in an Attempt to Capture a Santa Fe Train.

Express train No. 6 to which was attached special car with Assistant General Superintendent Mellen and a party of friends on board arrived at Lakin, Kas., Wednesday morning, where it was attacked by a party of fifteen cow boys headed by Frank Meade, a hardened young wretch who learned telegraphing in this city, but who was subsequently placed on the 'black list' of operators for neglect of duty drunkeness and other failures to come up to the demand of the telegraph companies Meade, finding he could not obtain employmert, undoubtedly got drunk with this party of cow boys and this wild scheme originated in his head from the perusal of dime-novel literature i n his younger days, aided, perhaps, by the recent account of the surrender of Frank James.

Be that as it may, this party of train robber commenced shooting promiscously in each of the car windows-breaking thirty in all, but failing to hit any of the passengers, who saved themselves by lying flat upon the floors of the cars. Not having even the bravery of the James' it seems they did not enter the cars, but allowed the train to proceed, having ac complished nothing.

The sheriff of Ford county, Kas., in company with a posse of citizens from Dodge City was sent to Lakin on a special train and succeeded in capturing Meade and two of the cow boys and are now in pursuit of others and it is thought will effect their capture.

It seems terrible to us that a young manboy, we might say-Meade being not more than twenty years of age, reared in the quiet, peaceable city of Lawrence, where he was entirely apart from that rougher class of humanity which infests larger cities, should, in so short a time after leaving the shadows of our church spires, develop into the very worst of fiends-shooting broadcast (or attempting) to, inofensive citizens simply for the sake of obtaining ill-gotten gains. We can only attrib-ute this terrible crime and the ruining of t his boy to a love of intoxicating liquor.

Married

At the residence of the groom in this city Mr. J. B. Stevens to Miss May Turner, both of this city at 8 o'clock Thursday evening, October 19th.

The above paragraph will be of especial inferest to our readers wien we inform them that the groom, Mr. J. B. Stevens, for more than seven years was connected with THE SPIRIT in almost every department, but most of the time as foreman and proof reader and to his judicious and thorough care was due the neat and correct appearance of this paper which gave it the reputation of being the handsomest and most correct, typegraphically, of any paper in the state. It being a much commented upon fact that scarcely ever could an error be found in its columns. Mr. Stevens has now entirely quit the newspaper business but his thoroughness and correctness still stand him in good stead in his present position as book-keeper in the First National Bank of this city. We make these extended comments on Mr. Stevens because we feel sure his care in making THE SPIRIT so readable for so many years could not fail to make all the old readers look upon him as a personal friend although perhaps not one in a hundred them ever met him.

Miss May Turner is well known in this city as a most estimable young lady.

The newly married couple immediately sensi. bly settle down to housekeeping in their own house on North Ohio street, which Mr. Stevens had previously furnished. We feel sure all the hundreds of old readers of THE SPIRIT will unite with us in wishing Mr. and Mrs. Stevens a happy and prosperous life.

BOWERSOCK OPERA HOUSE. Friday Night-Grace Cartland as Camille.

The lovers of the truly beautiful in the dramatic art were most magnificently entertained at the opera house last, evening by the Cartland-Murray Combination in the rendition of Alex. Dumas' celebrated work, "Camille." Miss Grace Cartland appeared in the title role, and it may be truthfully said that in this character she has reached the highest point of her excellence. She is the best representative of this character ever seen upon a Janesville stage, and we feel justified in saying that no one was disappointed. The costumes were elegant and were greatly admired. The balance of the support sustained well their parts.—Janesville Recorder. -Janesville Recorder.

HORTICULTURAL NOTES.

The Venango Seedling is becoming quite popular as of excellent quality in Western Kansas.

Now examine your peach trees for borers, you may thereby get better returns next year.

Fruit of all kinds is improved by a fertilizer of potash. Try it, you will be surprised at the result.

Eastern farmers have succeeded in raising pine trees from the seed where a pine forest appear in Kansas. We should like to see one.

A market gardener near Providence, R. I., paid a fire engine $50 a trip to come and water his crop during last summer's drouth. If this outlay paid him, it surely ought to be profitable to be able to irrigate by some means in this country.

Put this down in your scrap book for next year: Two ounces of saltpetre dissolved in a gallon of water and applied with a sprinkler, is a sure banishment to the European cabbage worm and will prove an excellent fertilizer to the plant.

Plant peach stones or pits this fall, any time before the ground freezes hard, and the trees will come up in the spring. Plant them sufficiently far apart to admit of a year's growth, after which they can be transplanted and budded if desired.

BARK SPLITTING.

Whatever may be the cause of bark splitting on one side near the collar of young apple trees in rich soil, the remedy advised by Dr. Hoskins is the true one—to wrap the parts so as to keep the bark from detaching, drying, curling off and exposing the cambium. If this is done early in October it suffices. If the wood is exposed, a plaster of grafting wax should be applied under the wrap to prevent drying.—Iowa Homestead.

The Big Bob Strawberry.

Mr. Nigh, of Piqua, Ohio, the originator of the Big Bob strawberry, takes exceptions to Mr Cowings remark in the Farmer a few weeks ago. Mr. C. spoke of this berry as I cking vigor, as it appeared to him on a short trial.

Mr. Nigh writes us in reply and we quote from his letter:

'While Big Bob may seem to lack vigor, upon acquaintance of three or four months, under adverse circumstances perhaps I want to give Brother Browning this assurance to quiet his misapprehension. It has been the peculiar habit of Big Bob all its life, of eight years, never to make a luxuriant growth of foliage at this season of the year, but to make a vigorous and strong growth of root, and sparse growth of leaves. The foliage in the fruiting season is not so profuse as Monarch of the West or even Sharpless but is so sufficiently ample to protect the fruit as that I have not in eight years seen a sunburnt berry. I have never regarded it fatal to any fruit-not never regarded it fatal to any fruit—not even considered it a serious objection if it made more fruit than leaves; its fruit we sell in Ohio—there is no market for leaves. The Monarch is more prolific of leaves than any variety I know. It is certainly the berry for those who want to grow vigorous leaves. I will grow Big Bob and get fruit, in greater abundance, more unifruit, in greater abundance, more uniform, finer appearance, richer color, larger average, and vastly superior quality to Sharpless, which I believe to be accepted as the standard among big berries.—Indiana Farmer.

Cherry Slugs.

The leaves of cherry trees at this season in some localities, presents a very bad appearance, being eaten in patches on the upper surface, and thus made to turn brown and wither. The author of this mischief is a little blackish, slimy creature, larger at one end (the head end), and if examined carefully will be found to have seven pairs of legs along the abdomen, besides the usual three pairs near the head. The slugs bury themselves in the ground to transform and appear in spring as small, glassy black saw-flies. Packard states that there are two broods, the slugs of the first brood appearing in June, and of the second in September.

They should be sprinkled with a solution of London Purple, a teaspoonful of the poison to a pail of water, or they may be dusted with powdered Hellebore. The eggs are said to be destroyed by a minute parasite.—Herbert Osborn.

which repeat. Alternate thus three or four times. Remember that in all diseases or troubles of this kind there will be more or less fever, and attention should be paid to the general health of the patient, even when no particular symptoms of illness are dis-

ONE of the best dairymen in Vermont says: "I have come to the conclusion, after seven years' experience in the feeding of meal every day to such of my cows as were giving milk, that in the future I would feed more meal instead of less. I believe that raising pine trees from the seed where when the cows have been properly sethey could not transplant. How would lected, and are of a breed that are liable as pine forest appear in Kansas. We ble as to butter qualities, it amounts to a certainty that all we feed them above what is required to sustain their bodies will be returned to us in butter, with a large profit on the investment. At the same time care should be exercised not to over-feed. Gilt-edge butter cannot be made from cows thin in fiesh or poorly fed."

Stiffe Lameness in Horses.

For stifle lameness bathe frequently with Mitchell's liniment, made as follows: Gum camphor, two ounces; origanum, wormwood, and sassafras oils, each one-half an qunce; spirits turpentine, two ounces; alcohol, one pint. Mix. A bottle of this should always be kept on hand for use in cases of strains, bruises, and lameness of any kind where a good liniment is required.

Do not ruin your face by using washes, or any outward application, to remove blotches, pimples, etc., but take Leis' Dandelion Tonic, which not only removes these blemishes, but improves your health and strength also.

A Query or Two.

A Texas fruit grower declares that he can produce any variety of seedling peach simply by planting the whole peach, instead of the pit alone. Has any reader ever tried this method? Can any one tell how the Indian peach was propagated before the whites took posession of their country? The Indians certainly knew nothing of budding or grafting.

To secure fine tomatoes for next year thoughtful gardeners select smooth, evenly shaped fruit this season for seed The requisites are medium size, thick, solid flesh, few seeds, rich bright red color, and a perfect outline entirely free or protuberances. Lay them in the sun until decomposion sets in, then wash out the seeds and dry perfectly.

Bees will live in any climate that man can live and flourish in, raising his own subsistence, as both have to seek their living from the products of the earth.

'Not entirely, but am better than I was, and will tell you why I indulged in the exclamation which started our conversation. You see we are right in the midst of the lovely flow, and I am anxious to harvest a good crop of honey; well, a weak swarm of bees never make any surplus honey; and every time a swarm is cast it makes the parent colony weaker than it was before; and after the first swarm (which ought to be cast in the latter part of May or June, in this latitude), each swarm is smaller than the preceding one. In view of this fact I aim to keep my bees from casting more than one swarm each, any one season. I want to keep them strong—very strong—and then if there are plenty of flowers, and the weather is good I will get may be left in the latter is but a small residue at heat. lot of surplus honey for the mar ket and my table. Corn Fodder as Cattle Food.

In estimating the value of corn fod-der, it is not always duly considered that it bears the same relation to the corn crop that wheat straw does to wheat. Keeping this fact in mind, we see the corn stalk and its leaf only as a means of transmittal between storehouse of nutriment below and the so largely of woody fibre that its proportion of nutritious matter is very small indeed. The leaf of the stalk is more valuable. When cattle are turned into stalk fields they smell out the nubbius and moderate-sized cars left by the careless husker. The herd comes up at night apparently full, having through this a satisfied look, but if they gain in flesh it may be relied upon that they get quite a bite of corn along with the filling.

We have rented stalk pasture by the acre, and generally had reason to beall eastern markets while "scrubs" will lieve shat the corn left in the field compensated well for the money paid, and that the stalks were furnished without cost. Any one who will look carefully A farmer in England has invented a at the droppings of cattle after their at the droppings of cattle after their night's rest, will see the evidences; and it they had believed the field to be well stripped of corn by the huskers, will be lowed to slightly ferment and sprinkle not a little supprised at the liberal The screw worm has become exceedight troublesome to stockraisers in having digestive organs of less capacity than cattle, require less rough or coarse fodder; hence the latter flud the fodder referred to most excellent as filling, while it is not devoid of nutritious properties.

Being impressed with the same idea that many others have, that the more sleuder portions of the corn stalk is requires patience for they will almost excellent food for cattle, and quite nutritious, we topped a large field before frost, having this bound into snug bundles, carefully cured in the field by standing the dundles on end; hauled to the barn yard and stacked in the best manner, with the intention of reservthat were to be winter milch cows. ready as helpless as a kitten. This of favoritism, and would eye the cured fodder with longing. But we very soon discovered that when the milch cows had the choice of bright prairie was, that the fodder lingered upon the premises, and before winter was over were quite willing to have it consumed by whatever animals would eat it. In fact, it was necessary to keep the prarie hay out of the reach of the stock to secure the consumption of the fod

The stalks, though light, were an intolerable nuisance in the manure pile, as the cattle would consume little besides the leaves and tips. If the mineral paint. stalks had been worked up with a cutter, mixed with ground feed and moistened, the result, of course, would have been different, though in that case the fodder would mainly have answered as filling only; so it is well not to lose eight of the fact, that the utility of the corn-stalk consists mainly in the fact that it is built up to sustain the ear above ground, and as an avenue of transmission to this from the storeouse in the soil. The laws of vegetable growth and maturing of the grain point to the latter as the final destiny of pretty much all the nutriresidue at best

Regarding corn-fodder grown as such, by seed drilling or broadcast sowing, while there is no grain formed, still the conditions are not favorable to implanting a store of nutriment within the stalk. The broad leaf of the corn shifts out the applicable to the corn shifts out the corn shift the stalk. The broad leaf of the corn shuts out the stalk. The broad leaf of the corn shuts out the sun-light, and, as is the business pretty well. Bishop Clark on Incorrect English. Though the schoolmaster holds his receptions in almost every nook and corner of the land, there is a great deal of incorrect talking even among educated people. Bishop Clark gives a few specimens of these popular errors of speech in the form of a dialogue be-tween a careless talker and his critical friend:

"Good afternoon, John, how long have you been 'setting' here?"

"I have been 'sitting' here for about an hour watching to see these men 'set, the stones in my wall.'

A Pointed Joke.

A certain Oregon professor was a very fatherly sort of a man, particularly toward his young lady pupils. When ever a young lady would ask a question he would place his hand lovingly on her head, and make considerable more fuss than was necessary. Of course the girls got tired of this, and conspired to break him of his fatherly proclivities. One of them hit upon a plan. She fixed up a nice little pincushion, had the pins inserted so that they would stand on their heads, points upward, and then adjusted the infernal machine on top of her head covering it with just enough of her hair to hide it from view. This done, she left her seat during the session, walked demurely up to the pro-fessor's desk, stood a moment in his august presence, and then, in a meek and plaintive tone of voice, she asked him for the information as to whether Washington crossed the Delaware on the ice or on horseback when he left Trenton. He raised his hand over her head and soothingly replied,— "Why, my dear child—" We'll have to end his sentence there, for the balance of the exclamation was a sort of half hewl, half whoop, which we can neither write nor print. Just as we can neither write nor print. Just as he said "child," he lowered his hand caressingly, but forcibly, upon the crown of the girl's head, and the whole surface of his extended palm felt the ticking and exhilarating sensation of a couple dozen of pin points.

This immense, continuous, defensive
This immense, continuous, defensive structure was built 200 years before Christ. It stretches over a vast country 1,300 miles. In its construction no atfention was paid to hill or dale. Its height is eighteen feet and the top is fifteen feet in breadth, broad enough for four horsemen to ride at breast. A tower twenty-four feet square and twenty to twenty-five feet high was erected at every 300 yards. Some reader please figure it out and see how many towers there were and then tell the Young Folks. Every foot of the foundation is solid granite, and the rest of the structure is solid masonry. Small streams were arched over, but on the larger ones the wall runs up to the water's edge and a tower was constructed on each side. On the top of the wall are defenses or breastworks facing in and out. This great piece of masoury was built under the dynasty of Emperor Chingwang, to secure them from the incursions made by the Tartars. And now, reader, think of the vast amount of skill, labor, number of employes and expenses necessary for the building of such a structure. This is all beyond human calculation. It is both a fence and defense of its kind which has no equal, and indeed is not likely to have. Now, come, stir up, let's hear from every young SPIRIT reader in the country. Right off.

FRAUDS ON THE FARMERS.

Ohio farmers are getting caught by the lightning rod trick As there are many unprincipled lightning rod men in this state we publish the method that no reader may be caught. A couple of slick tongued fellows come along and stop wherever they see a house or barn without a rod and offer to put up one for the entire building for $5 or even less. This low price of course persuades the farmer to sign a contract for the rods and the men depart. Next comes the other gang to do the work and they inform the farmer it will cost him 65 cents per foot. The farmer of course says that is not the contract and the man with the rods says 'very well, I will leave the rods here and put up the rods at your neighbors and get them on the return.' Right here the farmer should order the men to take their rods and leave the place, but usually they say 'well, put them on,' and the result is the building is covered and the farmer has a big bill to pay, while any tinner of your neighboring town will put on only the necessary amount for 10 cents per foot. Iowa farmers are being victimized by tree peddlers claiming to have scions of the Russian apple, claiming the extreme difficulty of getting them and the scarcity causing the exorbitant price, and stating that they are especially adapted for that region, and stating the Iowa Horticultural society endorses them, while the truth is that a few years ago the society and no one else did import a few, but as yet had not been able to recommend them.

A man calling himself Dr. Lewis has secured the notes of many farmers in Illinois by making a contract to cure their diseases for $50. Almost immedistely the paper turned up in the hands of third parties, and it will have to be paid.

WE DO NOT KEEP SHODDY GOODS!

=DRESS GOODS.=

We keep everything from a five cent plaid to a $3.00 silk. Come and see us. If you never traded with us give us a trial purchase, then you can see whether these things are so or not.

GEORGE INNES

KING CLOTHIER! MADE

His assortment is the largest.

BECAUSE BECAUSE

He makes good goods a specialty.

BECAUSE He is the leader of fashions. BECAUSE He sells at a low uniform price. BECAUSE

He treats rich and poor alike.

BECAUSE

He sells a child as low as a man.

BECAUSE

His efforts are appreciated and the people trade there.

BECAUSE

His motto is strictly square dealing.
BECAUSE He is copied by many and equalled by none.

KIND FRIENDS—Printer's ink is cheap, don't believe this, but look for yourselves; comison solicited.

Yours truly,

STEINBERG, the King Clothier.
