4-Meals-A-Day Experiment Ends

SALINA — Year ago St. John's hospital, Salina, started serving four meals a day to its patients. The plan was designed to provide relief from that "full stomach" feeling and allow flexibility for patient appetites. It was also to be more economical and easier to plan meals.

But these plans have fallen victim to the hearty Mid-West appetite.

Saline County physicians have recommended to St. John the abandonment of current food service plans.

The hospital will return to the traditional breakfast at 7:30 o'clock, luncheon at noon and dinner at 5 o'clock.

The "early bird" breakfast was the fly in the ointment of the 4-meal plan. The "continental" breakfast at 7:30 o'clock consisted of dry cereal, doughnuts, coffee, juices and toast.

"Many patients objected to the light snack in the morning and wanted a heavier meal," said Nelson Tilden, assistant hospital administrator.

"In this part of the country, people are used to a heavy breakfast, unlike some urban areas."

Under the 4-meal plan, brunch was at 10:30 a.m. and consisted of a choice of meats, potatoes, eggs, fruits, juices, toast and dessert.

The second "heavy" meal was at 3:45 o'clock and consisted of a menu similar to the traditional "supper." The last daily meal, the "sleeper," was a bed-time snack of sandwiches, ice cream, fruit, cookies, cheese and crackers and various beverages. It was served at 7:45 at night.

Employees are happier too. They'll go back on an 8-hour shift.

The 4-meal plan was the idea of St. John's former food director, Frank Serrao, who left recently for another hospital post.

of the National Labor Relations Board.

Officials said a separate body can be set up — if farm labor legislation is imminent — tailored to "meet the needs of farmers and farm workers."

This alternate plan should include specific prohibition of secondary and product boycotts and strikes "which would result in loss of perishable products" turned out by farmers, the resolution said.

It also should protect the "right of each individual worker" to join or remain out of a union; permit secret balloting by workers, and authorize legal redress of grievances in connection with violations of the law.

Reject Exemption

Farm Bureau delegates turned down a provision in the labor resolution which would have sought exemption from such legislation for farmers marketing less than $100,000 worth of goods annually or employing less than an average of eight workers a year.

JUNCTION CITY CO-OPS QUILTS RETAIL STORE
JUNCTION City — The Farmer-Stockman Co-op here will close out its merchandising operations here. Sale of the supplies and automotive items and other hardware items no longer be sold. The Junction City co-op built a new building five years ago to house its merchandising operations. It will be sold or leased.

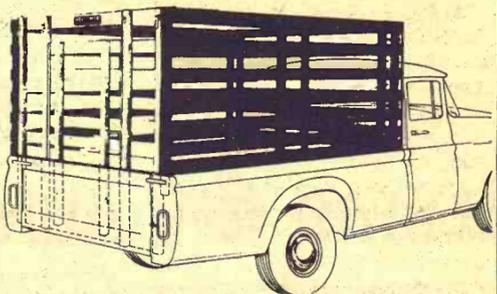

GENERAL FOODS HOLDS LAWRENCE SITE
LAWRENCE — General Foods has taken options on a 76-acre tract in northwest Lawrence as a possible plant site. General Foods, one of the largest food processors in the country, is reportedly looking at other sites in Kansas.

AFB To Fight Farm Union

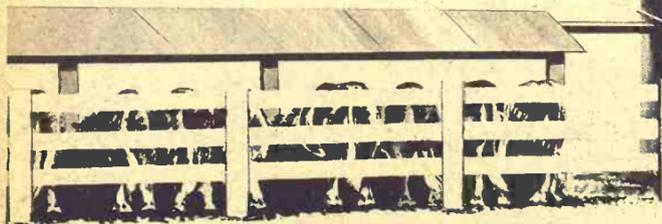

The American Farm Bureau Federation plans to fight the unionization of farm labor next year with a proposal of its own if Congress shows any inclination to broaden federal labor laws into agriculture.

The legislative strategy was outlined in a policy resolution passed by Farm Bureau delegates at the end of their 50th annual convention.

The Farm Bureau is firmly opposed to any extension of union bargaining laws into agriculture, but indicated that if Congress considers a bill next year the organization will favor a plan removing farm labor bargaining from the jurisdiction when you need it, it doesn't need you!

Your Mix-Mill® feed processing system stores, measures, mixes and grinds your concentrate, grains and other ingredients, and delivers fresh feed to the feeders automatically . . . electrically. It will deliver feed for two hours out of 24, 10 hours out of 24, or 24 hours out of 24 . . . regardless of where you are or what you're doing.

There are dozens of other advantages which add up to this. A Mix-Mill® system will feed all of the hogs, beef cattle, dairy animals, or poultry you have on your farm . . . or plan to have . . . at less cost and with less labor involved than any other method available.

The nicest thing you could do would be to make us prove it. We'll be glad to. Just fill in the coupon, and get it in the mail today.

Industry Eyes Country Plants If Rural U.S. Is Ready

High wages and high taxes in the city are forcing industry's eyes to look at small Midwest communities as desirable plant locations.

That's a reason for 86 industries being newly located in Kansas towns of less than 5000 population this year, said Jack Lacy, director of Kansas Department of Economic Development on the K-State campus.

Lacy was speaking at a forum on rural development problems sponsored by Senator James Pearson. He told more than 300 Kansas civic and farm leaders a new era was approaching for rural Kansas because of the growing discouragement of metropolitan industrial leaders with large city conditions.

He said Kansas communities were earning a new lease on life thru increased job opportunities made available by these new developments in the national economic pattern.

"Small rural communities are making themselves attractive to industry thru active commercial development associations," Lacy said, "and by enlisting the services of state and federal government.

"The revolution in transportation has opened the way for a new breed of commuter. The scarcity of skilled labor in some more remote areas of the state is being overcome by the emergence of the moonlighting farmer and by the industrial worker who wants to live and raise his family in a rural environment."

Willard Carmody, Denver, regional director of the Office of Development Company Assistance for the Small Business Administration, said simple facts of land utilization were beginning to force industrial decentralization which would help small communities.

"Statistics show that we currently have more than 70% of the United States living in 2% of the land area," Carmody said. "I think this illustrates the opportunities available to you as a result of the problems growing out of this kind of overcrowding."

Carmody said the SBA had funds available to help rural communities attract and develop industry and said statistical studies had shown that each 100 new jobs in an area generated about $330,000 in new sales annually.

Another speaker, John Ferstrom of Washington, D.C., director of plant location services, a branch of USDA, said his staff already was informing industrial leaders about the availability of plant sites and labor pools in rural areas.

Willis Sloan, Washington, also in rural development for USDA, pointed out there were various federal grants available for rural areas for manpower training to provide labor pools for new industries.

Federal funds for development of nonprofit associations to provide recreation facilities in rural areas were explained by Jackson George, director of the Farm Home Administration for Kansas.

George said such funds already were being utilized in Kansas for construction of swimming pools and golf courses to help make rural areas more attractive for industry and that funds were available for similar types of development.

Colleges Building Faster Than They Can Plan

This seems the season for Kansans to dream big dreams about spending the taxpayers' money.

A few days ago, the Capitol Area Planning Commission was told $50 million needs to be spent for more state office buildings at Topeka. The Legislature is to be asked for planning money.

Now the Board of Regents wants authority to issue $100 million in revenue bonds to finance more buildings at the six state college campuses. The revenue would come from the students who already pay one-fourth of the cost of instruction.

Neither of the proposals for capital spending takes into account increased tax costs for operation and maintenance. Ignored is the truism that all available space promptly will be filled by new employes and agencies, whether needed or not.

A "crash" building program is an old chestnut for the Board of Regents. It comes up as regularly as the Christmas chocolates given to the mini-skirted

As a matter of fact, present sources of funds erect all the buildings the colleges can assimilate. If they were built any faster they couldn't be planned, equipped, staffed or put into the program.

Visit the campuses yourself and see all the structures recently completed, now underway, or authorized and funded.

The argument that to build for the future is to beat rising costs is an illusion. Colleges always are changing their programs and building use. Substantial sums are spent annually on remodeling sound structures for new purposes. The "crash" buildings would no more than be put up than they would have to be re-done. You can't anticipate the professorial mind.

A greater lug on students would penalize those parents who already are most heavily burdened by the costs of college.

And as a footnote, if students are to pay the bills, what about more student power to say where the money goes?

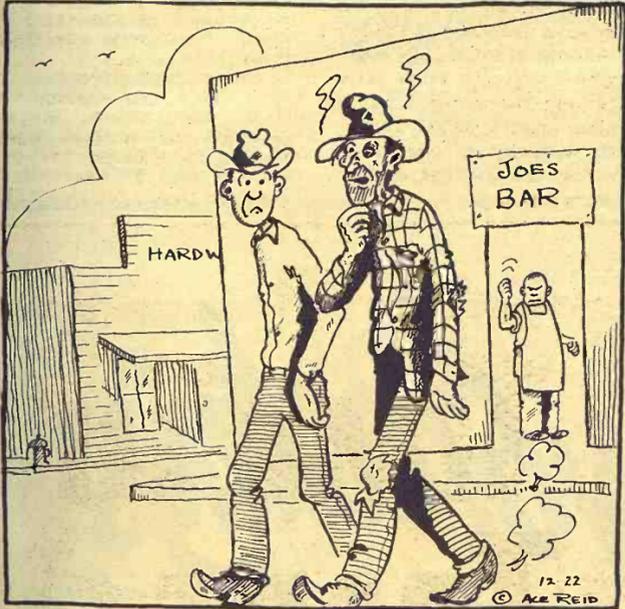

The Regents better spend their energies re-structuring the Kansas system of higher education so that it benefits the entire state and its youth rather than parochial empires and so that it is efficient, effective, economical, and fair.

The purpose should come before the plan and the plan before the housing. It is the purposes of their institutions that the Regents have yet to consider seriously. They would rather worry about the color of the auditorium seating.

Winner's Spotlight On Mrs. Mervin Arnett, Clay Center

Winner of the Eighth Annual Bonus Recipe Contest is Mrs. Mervin Arnett, 1027 Crawford Street, Clay Center. Her pie recipe is an unusual combination of dates with banana cream filling topped with a meringue that can practically carry a guarantee against weeping or shrinking and could be used to great advantage on any cream pie that calls for a meringue topping.

Mrs. Arnett is employed at Engel's Office Supply in Clay Center and Mr. Arnett divides his time between two occupations, driving a school bus and working for Bumstead's Wholesale.

The Arnetts are the parents of a daughter and two sons: Mrs. Leonard Eudaley, Topeka, who has two children; Gary Arnett, Huntsville, Ala., who also has two children, and Gail Arnett, a student in senior high school.

"Cooking can be called my hobby," said Mrs. Arnett, "for I really enjoy it." Actually, the winner can be classed as a professional for she was a cook at the Broughton School before it went out of existence.

Mrs. Arnett has a special talent for altering recipes she receives in some way to give them a touch of originality.

1/2 cup sugar
1 cup coarsely chopped pecans
Melt butter in small skillet. Stir in sugar, add pecans, cook over moderate heat, stirring constantly, until sugar mixture turns golden, about three minutes. Remove from heat; turn out onto piece of foil. Cool. Crumble into small pieces. Makes 1 1/2 cups.

Contest Holds Surprise For Woman's Page Ed.

The long arm of coincidence reached out to provide a surprise for your Woman's Page editor when informed by this year's Bonus Contest winner, Mrs. Mervin Arnett, that she and last year's top contestant, Mrs. Dorothy Gibbs, are sisters.

Hundreds of recipes were checked out from all parts of Kansas, as well as Missouri and Nebraska. The odds against two sisters winning in consecutive years seem very nearly impossible.

Good cooking must run in the family — may we extend our heartiest congratulations to both of you.

Ed. Extends Thanks To Contestants

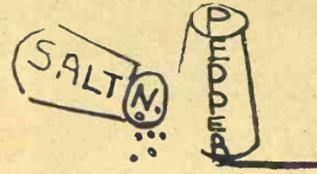

We wish to thank all contestants who participated in the Eighth Annual Bonus Recipe Contest.

As was announced earlier, each recipe received was checked through and was considered in both the weekly and annual contests. Space limitations made it impossible to print all recipes. If any names were missed in the lists of contestants, please accept our apologies, as every effort was made to include each C&G cook who took part.

Once again our contest was a success and all of us have many good recipes to add to our files.

Again, thanks to all of you and we will be looking forward to a repeat performance in 1969. —ed.

Did pretty well in the recipe-testing department until I was putting the last one together. Knocked the sugar off the counter and had to wade around in the stuff until I finished up.

It's amazing what we women can do when it's necessary. With all the extra activities in which I was involved, I still managed to get all the Christmas shopping done and the packages wrapped with a few days to spare. I'm still wondering how.

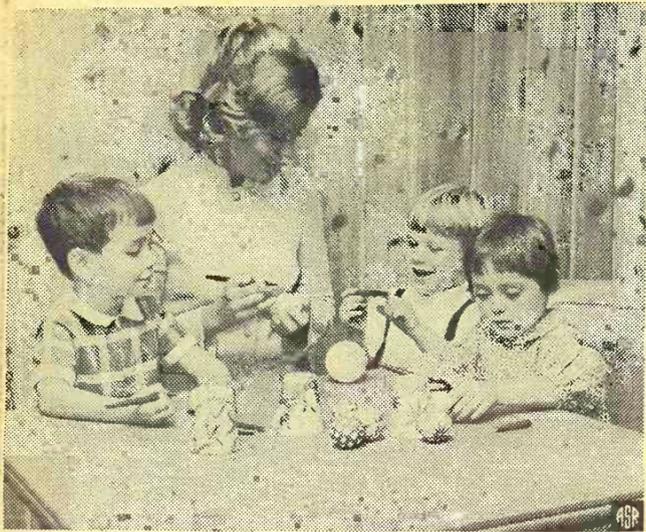

Color these next words red and green and add a sprig of holly: "MAY YOU AND YOURS HAVE THE VERY, VERY BEST OF HOLIDAYS."

Hand Crafted Ornaments Will Make Christmas Tree Lovelier

If you've a flair for Christmas ornaments, you can have a lovelier Christmas tree, one that's more meaningful since the ornaments are hand crafted by you and your children.

Birds and other ornaments are easily fashioned with styrofoam balls and hot drink cups of versatile styrofoam. Thin wallpaper paste, paper toweling and nylon tip pens of red, green, blue and black are the "ingredients" you'll need for the interesting Christmas project.

Here's how to make the clever ornaments. Cover styrofoam balls with papier mache of paper toweling cut into 1-inch squares. Dipping your fingers into the thin wallpaper paste, cover the squares of paper toweling, one at a time, pasting them onto the styrofoam. Remember to overlap the squares to be sure that the entire surface is covered. Now let the "ornament" dry.

Ready to create? Designs on the papier mache may be whatever you wish — stars, bells, stripes, dots and holly. Write names on a few to make yours a personalized Christmas tree. Using the nylon tip pen, write a fine line by pressing gently or make a bold stripe with a great deal of pressure. Red and green carry out the Christmas colors, while blue and black are good for accent colors.

All that's left to do is to insert hooks or bent paper clips into the ornaments and hang them prettily upon your tree.

CHALLENGE LANDFILL NEAR RURAL HOMES

HUTCHINSON — Sixteen rural Reno county families have a lawsuit filed against the City of Hutchinson to block a landfill near their homes. They allege the landfill would lower their property value. The land is three miles west of Hutchinson and was recently annexed by the City for landfill use. The suit will challenge a state annexation statute and will likely be appealed to the Kansas Supreme Court, regardless of which side wins on the district court level.

Help Poor, Free Producers Part Of Hardin Aim

Clifford M. Hardin has won a local reputation for getting things done in his 14 years as University of Nebraska chancellor. And he apparently intends to keep that reputation as Agriculture Secretary in the Nixon Cabinet.

It's likely he'll move boldly toward:

—Increasing effectiveness of Federal efforts to help marginal farmers break out of the agricultural poverty cycle.

—Reducing support to big, efficient producers, thus cutting Government crop-program outlays and restoring greater economic freedom to commodity markets.

Details of what the 53-year-old educator is planning for the overgrown department, and the programs it oversees, may not begin emerging until weeks after the new Administration takes office Jan. 20. But close associates on the Lincoln, Nebr. campus believe Hardin disclosed the broad outlines of his — and the Nixon Administration's — farm policies there just before flying to Washington for his television appearance with fellow Cabinet appointees.

The new secretary plans to plunge into legislative matters as quickly as possible in order to assure a wheat program when the current one expires Dec. 31, 1970.

Well acquainted with crop-planning needs, Hardin knows winter wheat growers must make their 1971 crop decisions in the spring of the preceding year — a timetable that leaves the Nixon team scarcely a year to forge new wheat legislation that undoubtedly would be packaged with other major crop programs. Getting proposals to Capitol Hill early would only be prudent in light of many lawmakers' obvious disenchantment with present farm programs.

The Nixon Administration's farm proposals promise to be more than a mere reworking of the direct crop subsidies and "supply management" techniques that have marked the Johnson period, although these features are likely to be retained for some time. It's likely the new proposals will mark an important turning point in the relationship between Government and agricultural producers that has existed since New Deal days.

In Hardin's view, the problem of low farm prices and inadequate return on investment and labor faced by perhaps one million "commercial" farmers must be dealt with separately from the problem of merely scratching a scant living from the land faced by an equal number of poor farmers.

Present crop supports and payments are inadequate for marginal and subsistence farm families, he believes, and only encourage them to remain in the rural poverty cycle.

Marginal farm families could continue to live in rural areas, he suggests, but the Government should aid their transition to new livelihoods by paying to retire their land in massive amounts. Hardin believes the Eisenhower-era soil-bank plan — under which land is withdrawn from production for periods up to 10 years in return for Federal payments scaled to crop value — could be revived for this purpose.

But he also believes the "soil bank" must be improved to assure that whole counties aren't threatened with depopulation and to assure that poor farmers are the beneficiaries. Encouraging industrial development in rural areas and more programs to prepare farm youngsters for jobs in the new factories would be a major part of the effort.

Government aid for the major crops — cotton, feed grains, soybeans and wheat — should continue, in Hardin's view. But increasingly such aid should be offered with the "commercial" farmer in mind, the new secretary believes. This means lower direct subsidies than at present and support prices structured to insure against rampant price breaks, yet allowing the freest possible market movement.

Theoretically, market prices then would displace Government program adjustments as the main production regulator.

At present, it's only clear that Congress wants to cut the hefty Federal payments that many better-off farmers, particularly cotton producers, now enjoy.

Any Nixon-Hardin farm proposals will only be among the many for Congress to consider. For this reason, it could prove important that the American Farm Bureau Federation, the nation's largest farm-oriented organization, seems to be exchanging its all-out opposition to any Government intervention in the commodity marketplace for a stance closer to Hardin's middle ground.

Survival In Switch From Grain To Cowherds

An Iowa farmer and seed producer advised Kansas cash grain farmers to change to beef production for greater profits in a speech before the annual Kansas Fertilizer and Chemical conference at Topeka.

Farmers lose money raising average corn and sorghum yields, David Garst of Coon Rapids, Iowa, said, and get paid nothing for management even when they raise very good corn crops.

"More farmers should feed a lot more cattle and raise a few more hogs and market more of the crop through livestock," Garst said.

"This will not be easy to do. The years have brought a big change in the demand and production of meat. Considering the relative demand for beef over pork, it appears we must feed more of our crop to cattle," he said.

Garst admitted that the cornbelt no longer has a monopoly on cattle feeding, that the numbers of fat cattle marketed from Kansas and Nebraska and states to the west have risen rapidly in the past decade. The west is no longer a source of feeder cattle for the cornbelt.

"Surplus feeder cattle from the southwest will completely dry up within the next few years," he predicted.

Garst believes that the best chance for farmer survival in the Midwest lies in the production of calves and yearlings. Farmers, he said, must adjust to meet this change through a number of practices, foremost of which is seeding poorest land to permanent pasture and using more fertilizer on these uncultivated acres.

The Iowan said the Garst farms have found it pays to use as much fertilizer on pasture as it does on corn. "There is a lot of poor pastureland in Kansas as well as Iowa," he said.

In Iowa it requires three acres of land used inefficiently to pasture a cow but through the use of domestic grasses and fertilization, the Garst farm is now approaching the pasturing of three cows on every two acres.

"It appears to me that cows and calves are more profitable than corn, even on $500 per acre land," Garst said. "It is easier and cheaper to raise a $150 calf or $200 yearling per acre than it is to raise 150 to 200-bushel corn.

"It seems to me that raising a cow is a far more sensible investment than buying the neighbor's farm, in the hope that it will appreciate in value."

Most people, the speaker said, fail to recognize how fast times have changed. In the last 10 years corn and sorghum yields have increased 35 bushels per acre. The cost of production has gone up, too. The price of land has doubled. The cost of machinery is up substantially. Insecticides and herbicides unknown 10 years ago are now in widespread use. The cost of seed is up.

"Only the price of grain remains low," he said. "With present prices, it's no longer possible for the cash grain farmer to make much profit.

"Our best chance for survival is in a new crop — production of calves and yearlings. We can team up with the large commercial feeders. They need the very things we can produce the best — feed grains and feeder cattle.

"The reason more farmers do not have cowherds is because they are afraid of the labor that is associated with them. This does not have to be. For the most part, cows are on pasture or foraging corn stalks, diverted acres or sorghum stubble. Feeding a little silage on short grass or in the height of winter takes very little time from crops or other livestock."

Extend Power Lines In Area

The Kansas Power & Light Co. has started construction on the final 60 miles of a 240-mile, high-voltage transmission line in Central Kansas.

The 60 miles of line is being built between Council Grove and Salina, and will provide additional power to communities along the route.

It will complete a new transmission facility stretching 240 miles from the company's Tecumseh generating station near Topeka to its generating station at Hutchinson.

The new line will cost in excess of 5 million dollars and would be operated at 115,000 volts capacity upon completion next year. Later, the capacity will be increased to 230,000 volts.

New Favor For "No Fault" Insurance

You're involved in an auto accident. You're hospitalized. Your wages stop. Meantime, the insurance companies can't decide who's at fault. The matter winds up in court and drags on for years, with neither side collecting damages.

This situation would be changed if a growing minority in the insurance industry gets its way. It's advocating a new type of coverage, known as "no-fault" insurance. Regardless of who eventually was blamed for the accident, your insurance company would pay your costs, the other driver's company would pay his.

One big drawback, however, could be the fact that the reckless driver might be treated the same as the careful one.

Campaign On

With insurance rates continuing to rise and court dockets growing more crowded proponents of no-fault insurance are mounting a campaign to get state legislatures and Congress to bring about a switch. Some would even call it reform.

A variation of the no-fault proposal has been introduced in Massachusetts and Rhode Island. Although it failed in both states, supporters of the idea hail the introductions as evidence of interest and say the matter is likely to be debated by several other states next year.

Meanwhile, Congress last spring authorized $2 million for a study of auto insurance, out of which could come a recommendation for the new type of coverage.

Cut Premiums

Supporters of the no-fault idea say it would cut premiums 45 per cent, or some $3 billion a year. Basically, they say, it would cut much of the "gravy" out of the system — parts of the premium dollar that support lawyers pressing injury suits and insurance agents pressing for top dollar in behalf of their clients.

Critics of the no-fault plan, equally vocal, doubt it would result in lower premiums. Some insist it would raise premiums. They also point out that there is something curiously unjust about an idea which would, in effect, allow a guilty driver to escape without paying. It would put hot-rodders and drunk drivers in the same category as responsible drivers, they say.

Supporting no fault insurance is the American Insurance Assn. (AIA), a trade group of casualty insurers handling about 38 per cent of the nation's auto coverage. Two other major associations — the National Assn. of Independent Insurers and the American Mutual Insurance Alliance — are against the idea.

Proposed System

Some of the provisions of the no-fault idea, as backed by the AIA:

1 — The program would be compulsory. The motorist would have to take out liability insurance to operate a vehicle.

2 — Your insurance company would pay you — presumably, posthaste — for "economic losses" sustained in an accident, regardless of fault. The company insuring the other driver, or drivers, would pay off their customers.

3 — Thus, you couldn't sue the other driver and he couldn't sue you. You could, however, sue your insurance company, if you thought the settlement inadequate.

4 — Although there would be no limit to the insurance company's total liability, the settlement would cover only economic losses — medical and hospital bills, loss of income — AIA suggests a $750-a-month maximum — and loss of service such as the cost of a housekeeper if a housewife is injured.

5 — For disfigurement or permanent impairment, there would be special compensation, although it would be limited. The AIA has suggested that this compensation be held to a payment of 50 per cent above all hospital and medical bills involved.

6 — There would be no payments for "pain and suffering." This cannot be measured in economic terms, the AIA says, although under the present system lawyers have been known to talk juries into awarding considerable sums for "pain and suffering."

Shift To Bulgar At Abilene Mill

ABILENE — A plant producing 500,000 pounds of bulgar a day will be built at Abilene by the Archer Daniels Midland Co.

Jon Huffman, ADM manager, announced the expansion of his firm's flour mill here at a Rotary Club luncheon while delivering a progress report.

The new facility probably will increase ADM employment here by 20 persons, he said. Production capacity will be doubled.

Bulgar, a cooked and dried wheat product, is used principally as a rice substitute in the Far East and in Asia. The only other bulgar mill in Kansas is at Hutchinson.

The market for bulgar in the United States is limited, Huffman said, so nearly all the production will be sold for export.

ADM purchased the former Abilene Flour Mills Co. earlier this year. Since then, flour production has been increased 15 percent, Huffman said.

50th ANNIVERSARY FOR ED VISSERS

RILEY — Mr. and Mrs. Ed Visser will be honored by their children with a 50th wedding anniversary open house here, at the Methodist church, Sunday, December 29. The Vissers, who farmed south of Riley until their retirement in 1962, have eight children, several who farm in the G&G area — George of Riley, Kenneth and Virgil of Wakefield, Mrs. Evelyn Smith of Great Bend, Eugene of Goff, and Albion of Marysville. Two other sons live out of state — Leroy of Davenport, Iowa, and Harold of Warrensburg, Mo.

NFO Dropping Secrets, Gaining Confidence

News men who covered the convention of the National Farmers Organization at St. Louis early this month seemed agreed that the NFO has lost some of its rough edges and is showing new confidence as it starts its second decade. Most noticed by news men was a more open atmosphere and removal of wraps from what had previously been an organization closely guarding its secrets.

President Oren Lee Staley, leader for 10 years, admitted that the NFO was able to open up because it had gotten more confident. In prior years, secrecy was maintained because the group was weak enough to be extremely vulnerable, Staley said.

In the past the NFO has pointedly refused to discuss the membership size of the organization and was secretive about progress in lining up collectively bargained markets.

But at the St. Louis convention commodity department heads detailed the steps by which contracts were signed with beef, pork, soybean, wheat and milo marketers.

Early contracts entered into by NFO were oral agreements, Staley said in St. Louis. Now, the agreements are reduced to writing and are unbreakable.

An earlier tactic of the opposition was to agree to a given method of marketing, then in a few weeks quietly go back to the old way of doing things, leaving NFO members and their neighbors to take a marketplace beating.

Now, however, in the areas where NFO is strong and has blocked up production of its members, the bargaining shoe is on the other foot. If the plants do not meet some of the NFO requests, the production is trucked to another area, leaving the processor without his raw materials.

The commodity men explained how these shifts of produce were arranged, how rapidly they could be manipulated and how effective this had been in bringing about orderly marketing contracts with producers.

They pointed to the prices their contracts have obtained as gain in collective bargaining. The real breakthru has come with written contracts carrying a set of negotiated basics from which prices are set.

For instance, price of pork is based not only on what is being offered in a local stockyard, or by a local packing plant — the price is determined not by only local price, but regional and national price as determined by a nationwide provisioner bulletin used as a yardstick by packing interests throughout the nation.

In this way, the NFO men can be assured that the price they receive has not been pared at a collection point or at a local area, and hiked in another area where supply is not available.

The NFO production is not only plentiful, it is mobile. So that if prices go down locally, and raise a few miles away, they can inundate the higher price area with foodstuffs to force orderly marketing into play.

Staley said the group arrived at a point — after the greatest growth year of their history — that they can foresee a time of orderly marketing across the nation. Marketing will be backed by "blocked up" supplies held by NFO members marketing together.

Rathke of Penrose, Colo., Tom Dugan of Tampa, G. A. Young of Alexander, and Ross Blue of Inman were other bull-buyers at $1000 or more.

Eight bulls sold to K B Ranch of Randolph. Other name buyers were Scully Estate of Marion; the Cross T Cattle Co. of Plains; the Canadian River Cattle Co. of Canadian, Texas; and Woodland Co. of Haxton, Colorado.

The female top went for $400 to Thomas Werth & Son, Park.

The Werths also bought other open heifers for $700 and $490. Claude Messner of Olathe bought one heifer for $300.

Buying in volume were Annette Allen, Olathe, and Backe Herefords, Gillette, Wyoming.

Test Suit Over Tire Safety

The U.S. government is preparing to file suit against at least one tire manufacturer allegedly failing to comply with safety standards for automobile tires.

The Mohawk Rubber Co. of Dayton, Ohio, reportedly will be the target of a test case. Failure to have complied with standards set up in 1966 vehicle safety law.

If the government wins its case, it likely will take similar action against other major companies, whose tires reportedly also did not meet specifications set up in the law.

Reportedly this list would include Firestone, Goodyear, Goodrich, Uniroyal, General and Armstrong.

Schlickau Sale Grosses $57,805

HAVEN — The Schlickau Hereford sale grossed $57,805, with 61 bulls averaging $750 and 27 heifers $446.

The sale buyers from Kansas, Nebraska, Missouri, Oklahoma, Texas, Colorado, and Wyoming.

The top price was $2525 paid for two-thirds interest in a yearling bull by Ulrich Brothers of Luray.

A $1600 price was paid for another yearling bull by Orville Morrison of Moran.

December Decisions Save Taxes

Income taxes may be inevitable and painful, but some end-of-the-year pencil pushing can ease the strain on your check-book.

Whether your income is above or below average this year, you can lighten your tax bill by making a few management decisions before January 1, 1969.

The less your net income varies from year to year, the less income tax you pay in the long run, says John H. Coolidge, Extension economist at Kansas State University.

Thus, the goal of tax management is to "even out" your annual income over a period of years. But you must act before December 31. After then, you can do little except pay the taxes you owe.

You'll never be able to keep your income perfectly level from year to year. But there are certain business transactions you can make or delay that will help eliminate fluctuations in your yearly income.

The first step is to estimate your income and expenses for the current year. If the estimate is considerably higher than normal, you may consider the following possibilities for leveling income:

—Buy and take delivery on machinery repairs and farm supplies you will need early in 1969, such as seed, chemicals, fuel, oil, and grease.

—Postpone livestock and crop sales where you wouldn't suffer price reduction.

—If someone owes you money for labor or services, delay collection until 1969.

—Take investment credit on qualified purchases.

—If you must sell property before the end of the year, sell on an installment contract. Do not collect more than 30 percent of the sale price in 1968, however, or all the gain will be taxed this year.

If your estimated taxable income is lower than average, Coolidge suggests you try to increase 1968 income and postpone some deductible expenses until after January 1.

Here are a few ways to raise income:

—Sell grain or livestock before the end of the year.

—Cull your dairy or breeding stock and sell before the first of the year.

—Collect money due for labor or custom work done.

—If you are eligible, take a CCC loan on some of your grain.

Delay some expenditures and postpone payment of operating expense charge accounts until next year.

Don't take the 20 percent additional first-year depreciation on machinery already purchased in 1968.

Unless you're quite familiar with tax regulations, you'll probably find it profitable to confer with a tax consultant. But remember that you must take action before the end of the year on purchases and sales.

Your county Extension agent has a publication designed to help you make profitable year-end tax management decisions. Ask him for a copy of "Income Tax Management for Farmers," North Central Regional Extension Publication No. 2.

Steak Or Beans?

Steak or beans? It was almost a can of beans for Ross Johnson, Gooch Feed Service Counselor for the G&G area. Johnson and the other Gooch Feed Service Counselors competed against their previous years sales performance to determine their menu at the special banquet honoring the winners in a recent Gooch Feed Company Sales Contest. Watching Johnson open his can of delicious beans are left to right — George Ferguson, Manager of Farm and Ranch Supply in Salina, Johnson and Mrs. Ross Johnson.

governmental agencies. Installation of flexible steel structures is the topic of Leonard Jansa, sales representative of Armco Steel Corporation. Crawler tractors is the subject of a presentation planned by J. H. Lambie of Allis Chalmers Manufacturing Company.

Robert Shuck, Edgar, Nebraska, vice president of the Land Improvement Contractors of America, will report on the national organization. And a legislative report is planned by Ed Gordon, Highland, chairman of LICA legislative committee. KCCA is an affiliate state organization of LICA.

The contractors will lend attention to research and programs. They will discuss cooperative programs of soil conservation districts, fish farming, watersheds, and 1969 agricultural conservation programs of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

In sessions on business management, the contractors will discuss personnel management, changes in income tax, and insurance programs.

In the annual business meeting, KCCA members will elect new officers. Harold Leckron, Abilene, is president; Millard Moore, Hays, vice president; W. J. Fox, Girard, treasurer; and M. W. Rhea, Yates Center, field representative and membership secretary.

The Convention banquet is set for Tuesday evening at the Baker Hotel in Hutchinson. Featured speaker is Russell Herpich, Extension irrigation engineer at Kansas State University, who will present "Reflections on Indian Agriculture." Herpich was a technical consultant to the Indian government earlier this year.

Convention registration opens at the Baker Hotel at 4 p.m. Sunday, January 12.

Dirt Contractors Meet At Hutch In Mid-January

Kansas Conservation Contractors Association will hold its 18th Annual Convention at the Baker Hotel in Hutchinson January 12-14.

The group plans to take a look at industry advances, related government agency programs, and business management, and will conduct organizational business including election of officers for the coming year, according to Fred Bergsrud, Extension agricultural engineer at Kansas State University, Manhattan, who is executive secretary of the Association.

During the 2½ day Convention, participants will hear from representatives of industry and

WOODLANDS MAKE POOR CATTLE PASTURE

A common practice in the South, pasturing cattle in woodland, is a loser, says University of Tennessee forester Earl Cady. "Where you gain 50 cents an acre for livestock food, you might be losing $5 in timber production," said Cady. He said that studies in Indiana indicate that steers on woodland pasture lose weight.

Federal Law Has Closed Many Packing Plants

The government has reported that 700 meat packing and processing plants had closed in the first year of the federal wholesale meat law.

Most of the closings were voluntary shutdowns by small operators after enactment of the federal law requiring extension of federal standards to plants that ship wholly within states.

Federal law previously applied only to interstate meat shipments.

However, state authorities closed 59 plants and suspended 98 health and operating licenses and the federal government took action itself against 40 plants that it held were immediate hazards to the public health.

Of the 40 plants against which federal inspectors moved, 10 were shut down, 21 were "cleaned up" to eliminate hazards, and action is pending against eight plants, all in Puerto Rico. The Department of Agriculture, however, refused to disclose the names and locations of the plants.

Rodney E. Leonard, consumer and marketing administrator of the Agriculture department, told a news conference that the department's lawyers had advised him that he could not disclose the names of the plants. He promised that he would obtain a written legal justification for withholding the names of the plants after newsmen questioned whether the public was being protected from suspect meat.

The federal government's actions were taken independently of state procedures under an emergency provision of the law that permits the secretary of agriculture to move immediately against any wholly state plant found to be a menace to public health.

Among the intrastate plants closed by state officials was an unnamed Connecticut slaughtering operation. It was cited for failure "to control condemned, diseased carcasses which had been marked inspected and passed."

Two Pennsylvania plants were closed by state officials but re-opened in August after correcting "improper environmental sanitation." Two other Pennsylvania plants were permitted to continue operation after taking corrective sanitation measures.

The eight Puerto Rican plants against which action is pending were cited for "insanitary environment and lack of insect and rodent control."

Leonard said 37 states had "taken substantial corrective action on their own to clean up" state plants since the law became effective in December, 1967.

The law resulted from disclosure of adulterated meat and unsanitary conditions in nearly 15,000 plants selling wholly within states. These plants produce about 9 million pounds annually — 15 percent of all the slaughtered meat and 25 per cent of processed meat.

Missouri Suit Over Fertilizer Price-Fixing

A Federal grand jury indicted five sellers of anhydrous ammonia agricultural fertilizer on a charge of conspiring to fix prices in Perry County, Mo.

The indictment was returned in Federal district court in St. Louis. The Justice Department, in announcing the indictment here, said the case was prepared by the U.S. Attorney's office in St. Louis.

Named as defendants were Missouri Farmers Association Inc., Columbia, Mo.; W. R. Grace & Co., New York; Phillips Petroleum Co., Bartlesville, Okla.; Gulf Oil Corp., Pittsburgh, and Agrico Chemical Co., New York, a division of Continental Oil Co.

The five defendants and unnamed co-conspirators, were charged with conspiring to maintain and raise prices of the fertilizer in Perry County during 1966 in violation of the Sherman Antitrust Act. The indictment asserted that as a result of the conspiracy Perry County farmers were deprived of competitive prices.

F. V. Heinkel, president of Missouri Farmers Association, said he hasn't seen the indictment, but doesn't "believe anyone in the parent corporation ever participated in any such deliberation." He speculated that a local agency using the name of Missouri Farmers Association might have been involved, but said he couldn't be sure.

"We haven't had an opportunity to read the indictment," said a spokesman for W. R. Grace & Co. "But on the basis of facts known to us, Grace is confident that it hasn't engaged in any illegal action," he said.

An Agrico spokesman said the company's management met to review the indictment and might issue a statement later.

A spokesman for Phillips Petroleum said "We have no comment inasmuch as we haven't received, seen or analyzed the indictment."

A Justice Department spokesman said the charge didn't involve fertilizer pricing anywhere other than in Perry County.

Maximum penalty on conviction for each of the five would be a fine of $50,000.

Hardin Not Answering—But Asking

The secretary of agriculture-designate, Dr. Clifford M. Hardin, is going to spend the next few weeks talking to farmers, commodity groups and others to learn their views on rural problems.

Hardin, now chancellor of the University of Nebraska, has been noncommittal on most questions on future farm policies asked him at his first press conference.

He has spoken strongly, however, of doing more to increase farm income and to relieve hunger and malnutrition both in this country and around the world.

"What do farmers want?" That is the question he said he has been asking himself and others and will continue as he prepares to take over from Secretary Orville L. Freeman.

Hardin already has conferred with Freeman and plans further meetings with various administrators of the myriad farm programs.

Hardin, like other Nixon appointees who have met the press, declined to get into policy questions. Acknowledging the complexity of the Agriculture department itself and the many programs it runs involving as many laws and regulations, Hardin said only that he planned to study as much as he could in the next few weeks. He thanked Freeman for the many materials already prepared to aid in the transition.

Asked what would be the chief difference in present and future farm policy, Hardin replied:

"I don't think I know at this point."

He said he favored long-range planning regardless of what field he is in, but admitted sometimes you have to be prepared for short term leeway in the farm field because of the weather.

The number one problem is the income gap, he believes. He said that farmers get a lower rate of return than the rest of the economy. He was not prepared to say how this could be improved by the Nixon administration.

Airlift May Start Major Export of Breeding Cattle

FORT WORTH, Tex. — A massive "cowlift" has signaled the beginning perhaps of a new era in the cattle industry.

A sleek new jet with 262 Polled Hereford breeding cattle arrived last week in Chile.

"This maiden flight is not only historic, but it is researching airlifts with big shipments of cattle," said Orville Sweet, executive secretary of the American Polled Hereford Association of Kansas City.

"If successful, the flight will open a whole new world in livestock movement."

The flight was arranged by the Hereford Association working with the U.S. Agency of International Development and CORFO, the developing bank of Chile.

The cowlift is designed to help Chilean ranchers develop their beef cattle industry.

Sweet said if the first two flights were successful, eight additional flights would be made in January and 10 next October, totaling nearly 7000 cattle.

He said there would be 4 per cent registered bulls and 96 per cent commercial heifers, ranging from four months to nine months of age.

The cowlift aircraft, a $10.5-million jet, is scheduled to return to Fort Worth less than two days later for a second flight.

Jim Harris of the American Polled Hereford Association said the total shipment would be the largest airlift exportation of agricultural products in history — a $2.2 million package.

Lender May Want To See "Cash Flow" Record

The balance sheet and profit and loss statement are as old as bookkeeping. But farm record-keeping, like the rest of agriculture, has changed. And a new type of record — the cash flow statement — has emerged as a useful management tool.

Cash flow records reflect all the cash transfers that occur in your business. They summarize all farm income and expenses, nonfarm business affairs, and family living expenses.

Related to the past, they show loans and debt repayments. Related to the future, they point out what loans will be required, at what time, and what the payment plans will be.

Why the emphasis on cash flow statements these days? Increased use of borrowed capital is the big reason, says Wilton B. Thomas, Extension economist, Department of Economics, Kansas State University.

It's no secret that today's successful farmers use money to replace labor. In fact, many farmers could not succeed without borrowed capital, Thomas says.

Most cash flow statements are kept on a seasonal basis, depending on the nature of the business. For example, a wheat farmer or a cowherd operator would summarize annually, because they generally market once a year. A 6-month summary would be most useful to a hog farmer who markets twice a year.

Used only to record what happened last year, the cash flow statement merely enables you to study history, Thomas points out. This will not improve your future income one penny.

To make cash flow records work for you, you must link the story they tell to your plans for the future. In this way, they become a valuable aid in obtaining credit and in making other management decisions.

Additional equipment, more livestock, or an added parcel of land are often tempting investments. Will they pay? Will you have available funds to meet the cash payments?

These are questions your banker will ask before loaning you money. That's why your chances of getting the loan are better if you have a cash flow statement to show him. It communicates your needs in a way he can understand.

A cash flow chart also is useful in keeping a check on your business. If receipts are less than you had expected, this will show up on your cash flow, and you can start checking to see why.

Extra effort may be required to get yields up to standard, to improve feed conversions, or to raise the average number of pigs marketed per litter.

If you think keeping a cash flow statement means more work for you, you're right. But this time will be well spent. Used properly, cash flow records will make you a better farm manager and help you succeed in today's highly competitive agriculture.

Your county Extension agent has a publication which tells how to set up a cash flow chart for your farm business operation. Ask him for a copy of "Stretching Your Resources Through Borrowing Money for Your Farm and Home Business." Look for the worksheet under the section "Finance and Credit Plans."

Form Protest Of Grove Dam

TOPEKA — A committee to oppose the relocation of Grove reservoir has been formed.

The committee contends that the Corps of Engineers project was originally approved in Congress as a $15 million job in Jackson county but has now been relocated as a $35 million construction nearer Topeka in Shawnee county.

Al Glotzbach, president of the organization, said, "Our organization maintains that the Corps has authorization to work on the project in Jackson county and no authorization to work on an entirely different watershed area of Lower Big Soldier creek and Little Soldiers creek.

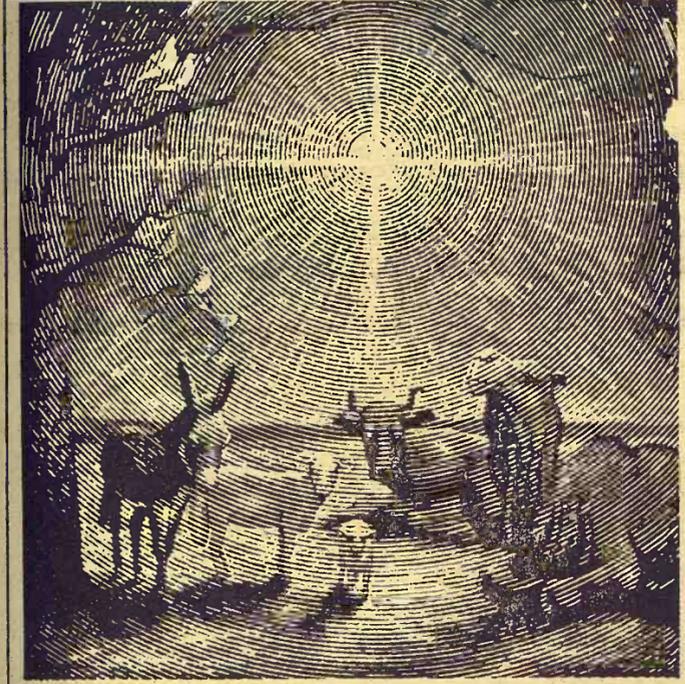

Glotzbach said the organization intends to make issues of the increased cost of the project, the intention to charge Topeka for water supply, the lack of control over use of water for barge movements away from Kansas, and loss of valuable farmland.

Besides Glotzbach, officers are Gerald Tibbs, vice president; Mrs. Glen Riley, secretary; Milton Ferguson, treasurer; and Phil Brown, Donald Kirkwood, Eldon Roberson, Al Schwerman, and Harrison Shenk, board members.

Feed Sunflower Soybean Pellets and watch winter weight snowball.

It's a long drive to market bloom and few cattlemen can afford to sit out the winter. So, to finish ahead of the other herds this spring, feed Sunflower Soybean Meal Pellets this winter.

During winter months, most of the feed your cattle will eat merely goes to meet basic energy requirements. Most herds will be doing well to hold their own. That's why you need a super-charged protein supplement if you're looking for a substantial winter weight gain. The best one you can buy, and feed, is Sunflower Soybean Meal Pellets.

This is a supplement made from nature's richest source of protein.

Prime soybeans. They're carefully processed to preserve vital protein content while actually increasing their palatability and digestibility.

Feed Sunflower in 40% soybean meal pellets or as 36%, 32%, or 22% formulated range cubes.

Don't let cold weather hold up your herd's drive toward market bloom. Keep them moving. Supplement winter grasses with Sunflower Soybean Meal Pellets and pack on the pounds. That way, winter feeding will be more than just dead wait.

CABLE TV OKAY — FOR FEE SHARING

Wichita's city commission has approved a cable television franchise for the city provided the city gets a share of the income. A circuit judge has ruled that a franchise ordinance requiring the city sharing in proceeds is illegal, so the company, Aircapital Cablevision Inc., has agreed to "voluntarily" pledge payment to the city from fees.

ONE OF SEVEN DEER HUNTERS SUCCESSFUL

Bow-hunters killed 531 deer in the 2-month season, according to the Kansas Fish & Game Commission. With 3800 permits issued, this indicates a 14% success, about on par with previous Kansas bow-and-arrow deer seasons and more than twice the national average.

No Silver In 50-Cents Either?

The Treasury Department has announced it will seek congressional approval to stop putting silver in half dollars, the only U.S. coins still being produced with any silver content.

The halves now being produced are 40 per cent silver. The commission has also recommended legislation, he said, to make permanent the current administrative ban on the melting of silver coins.

Cowmen Encouraged With Market Prospect

DENVER — Analyzing the six-state USDA cattle-on-feed report issued Dec. 12, the Market Development Committee of American National Cattlemen's Association says there is "little to indicate the market will weaken, provided that feeders do not take the short-sighted view and hold cattle after they reach grade."

The USDA report revealed that placements are up in most areas, as was expected at this time of year. This is particularly true in Nebraska and Texas.

Marketing ratio to placements, however, has remained within a fraction of a percentage point compared with the previous month and all major feedlots are current on sales. Average slaughter steer weights are 13 pounds under the same month a year ago. This is said to be a major influencing factor on maintaining current stable prices. With 6,486,000 head (steers and heifers) on feed the 13 pounds would represent 84,318,000 fewer pounds reaching consumer channels, notes ANCA.

But, since heifers have been only six pounds lighter, the true figure would still hit more than 75 million less pounds on the market — a mighty price-stabilizing effort that cannot be sacrificed to thoughtless and costly over-finishing, the Committee stated.

Demand for beef that has been rising rapidly this past year, along with the lower slaughter weights, can overcome the 11 per cent numbers increase over the same month in 1967, the Committee says. "Actually, the number on feed now are about equal to that of 1966, when fed weights were much higher and beef demand was lower."

The Marketing Committee pointed out that the buoyancy evident for several months and now extending strong into the winter season, can retain its favorable position with continuing cooperation of cattlemen in holding down weights and marketing when the cattle are ready.

"All that has been gained this past year could be lost in a short period of time, unless fed cattle continue to be marketed in orderly and businesslike fashion," the analysts said. Holding for higher prices "might give a quick higher profit, but every cattleman would very shortly be in trouble at the bank — a position the industry has worked so strenuously to avoid this past year," the Committee said.

Aussie's Merinos May Be Open For Import

The top policy-making group for the Australian wool industry will ask the government to lift the ban on the export of stud Merino rams. The Australian Wool Industry Conference made this historic decision here recently. The embargo on sending Merinos overseas was introduced almost 40 years ago.

The recommendation of the Wool Industry Conference to remove the embargo has certain conditions attached. One of these is that rams destined for foreign countries must be sold through public auctions nominated by state associations affiliated with the Australian Association of Stud Merino Breeders. Other stipulations include a ban on export of Merino semen, no more than 300 rams to be sold overseas in the first 12 months after the lifting of the ban, and an annual review of the export situation.

The original ban was introduced in 1929 against a background of fear that allowing other countries access to Merinos would weaken Australia's hold on the fine wool market.

 CONCORDIA KANSAS

Monday Sale Starts 1 p.m.

This week's sale found consignments of all classes and sizes of cattle. It was a good, active market and a good farmer exchange. Most all of the calves and yearling stockers sold to Kansas cattlemen, the feeder cattle going to Nebraska. We had a lot of smaller farmer consignors and a lot of local farmer buyers.

Feeder cattle sold fully steady and very active, stocker yearlings very active and possibly 25¢ higher. Good and choice quality calves sold $1.00 higher on load lots and fully steady to 25¢ higher on odd lots and smaller bunches. Butcher cows sold active and 25¢ higher.

Ewe Import Is Prolific

A new Finnish breed of sheep that has a flock average of three to five lambs per ewe has been imported to the United States and will be used at the University of Minnesota.

"Ewes of this Finnish Landrace breed have given birth to as many as six and seven lambs, and some flocks average from three to five lambs per ewe," according to W. E. Rempel and William Boylan, animal scientists at the University of Minnesota. Standard breeds in the United States average about one lamb per birth.

Boylan says this is the first time the Finnish Landrace breed has been imported to the United States. Five rams and one ewe were recently brought to New York from Ireland, quarantined, and then flown to the Twin Cities. They will be crossed with standard breeds such as Suffolk and Minnesota 100.

Researchers plan to study the management and rearing problems of the breed and try to develop a cross that will have a substantially higher lambing average.

101 Years

George Pfile, longtime livestock auction operator at Clay Center, now retired, was 101 years of age last week. Born in Baden, Germany, in 1867, Pfile has lived in Clay Center for 64 years and in Kansas for 84 years.

Add Six Watersheds To State Plan

Keith S. Krause, executive director of the Kansas Water Resources Board, says the board will recommend to the 1969 legislature that six watershed projects and three reservoirs be added to the state water plan.

The watersheds are: Roy's Creek in Brown County South Fork in Butler, Chase & Greenwood; Eagle Creek in Lyon County; Pony Creek in Brown & Nemaha counties in Kansas and Richardson County in Nebraska; Spring Creek in Marshall County; Pawnee River in Edwards, Finney, Ford, Gray, Hodgeman, Lane, Ness, Pawnee and Rush. The proposed reservoirs, all in Johnson County, are part of the Blue River Project proposed by the Corps of Engineers. They are Indian Creek Reservoir, Wolf-Coffee Creek Reservoir, and Tomahawk Creek Reservoir.

See '69 Wheat Crop 9% Below 1968

The Agriculture Department predicts that winter wheat production in 1969 will be nine per cent below the 1968 record crop but still will be seven per cent above average.

The department said that on the basis of fall plantings, and on conditions existing Dec. 1, the 1969 winter wheat crop will be 1,115,465,000 bushels, compared with the 1968 crop of 1,228,638,000 bushels and the 1963-67 average of 1,044,293,000 bushels.

In an effort to curtail wheat supplies, the department reduced winter wheat allotments by 13 per cent for the 1969 crop.

The department said that seedings of winter wheat in the fall of 1968 — for harvest in 1969 — totaled 43 million acres, 13 per cent less than for the 1968 crop and six per cent less than average.

The acreage allotment for all wheat, including winter, durum and other spring wheat, was reduced 13 per cent to 51.6 million acres for the 1969 crop.

Acreage diversion payments will be offered to growers for the 1969 crop, but were not offered in the two previous years.

Declines in planted acreage from a year earlier occurred in all major winter wheat producing states.

On Dec. 1, most of the winter wheat crop was generally in good condition. In the past decade, changes in estimates of the wheat crop between Dec. 1 and the final production estimate have averaged 69 million bushels, seen or analyzed the into 185 million bushels.

The Dec. 1 conditions indicate that 88 per cent of the seeded acreage will be harvested for grain, compared with 86 per cent in 1968 and the average of 85.4 per cent.

The acreage seeded to winter wheat for 1969, the percentage this acreage represents of this year's crop plantings, and the indicated production, respectively, by major producing states included:

Kansas — 10,886,000 acres seeded, 91 percent of this year's crop plantings and production of 239,492,000 bushels.
Missouri — 1,176,000; 82 and 35,280,000.
Nebraska — 2,999,000, 90 and 95,968,000.
Oklahoma — 5,299,000; 87 and 111,279,000.
Colorado — 2,702,000, 87 and 29,722,000.

The condition of the rye crop as of Dec. 1 was reported at 90 per cent of normal compared with 85 per cent a year ago and with the five-year average of 86.

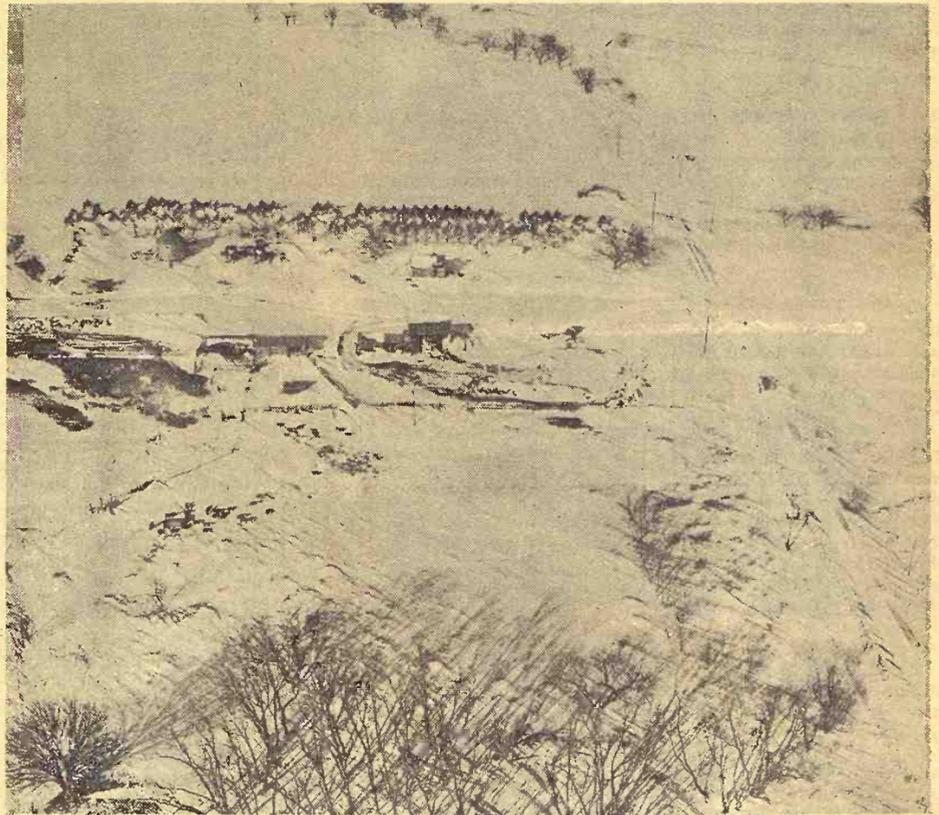

The acreage seeded to rye and the percentage this acreage represents of plantings a year ago by states included:

Mankato Under 14 Inches Of Snow

The G&G area had its first major snow of the season last week, with Mankato getting the worst of it, measuring 14 inches. For men who had to clear roads like the impassable county road near the top of the photograph, there was little to cheer in the snow.

But for just the lookers, designs of snow on junipers attracted sightseers at Concordia.

Windbreaks From Earth Mounds

The latest thing in windbreaks are man-made earth mounds protecting cattle from winter winds on Wyoming's Laramie Plains, and the mounds are sure to be adopted elsewhere, according to the Soil Conservation Service.

They cost less than wood-slab windbreaks ($70 to $120 as opposed to $700 for the wood). And besides saving cattle and money, the earthen windbreaks help distribute livestock better on the range, resulting in more efficient use of forage.

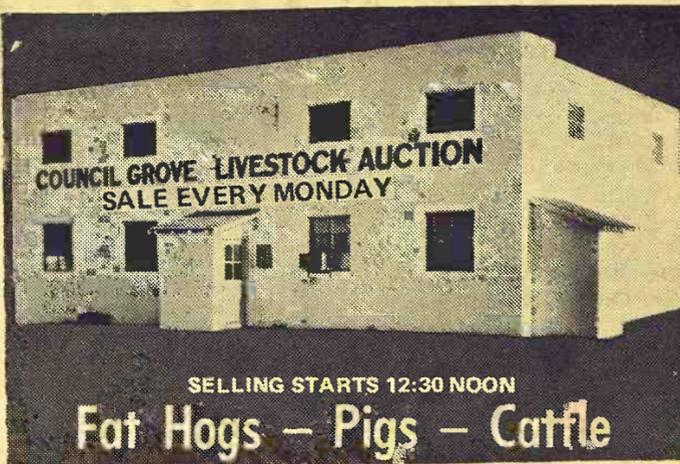

To Re-value Morris Co. Land At No Cost

COUNCIL GROVE — Morris County has decided that the job of reappraisal of taxable property in the county wasn't done to satisfaction, and the company that did the job has said it will do it over.

The J. M. Cleminshaw Appraisal Company, which has done the professional valuation in several counties in the G&G area, last week agreed to re-do at no additional expense all the land appraisal work.

The work of reappraisal will be started after January 1. A representative of the company, Thomas Valentine, said the company would not try to patch the initial work but would start over.

As in many counties in the G&G area, Morris County had numerous complaints and some organized objection to its reappraisal work, which has been required by law of all counties in an effort to standardize tax appraisals across the state.

We had a real good sale last week with receipts of 405 cattle and 378 hogs with a fat hog top of $19.10. With three fat hog buyers regularly at our sale, we need more hogs to meet the demand.

All classes of cattle were higher. Steer and heifer calves $1.00 to $1.50 higher, feeder steers 50¢ higher, cows & bulls 50¢ higher. We are still receiving some light weight steer and heifer calves and some light weight yearling steers.

Call us collect any time for information or appraisal of your livestock. Here's a partial listing of last week's sale:

Many consignors brought in a big run of good quality cattle last Saturday. Heavy feeders looked on the strong side, as well as steers and heifers. Cows were steady to strong. Steer calves somewhat slower but sold fully steady. With many consignments already listed it looks like the last sale in 1968 will be a big one.
