CUTTING IT DOWN

Tom White, Wamego, cuts the wheat down on the Charles Ebert farm north of Wamego.

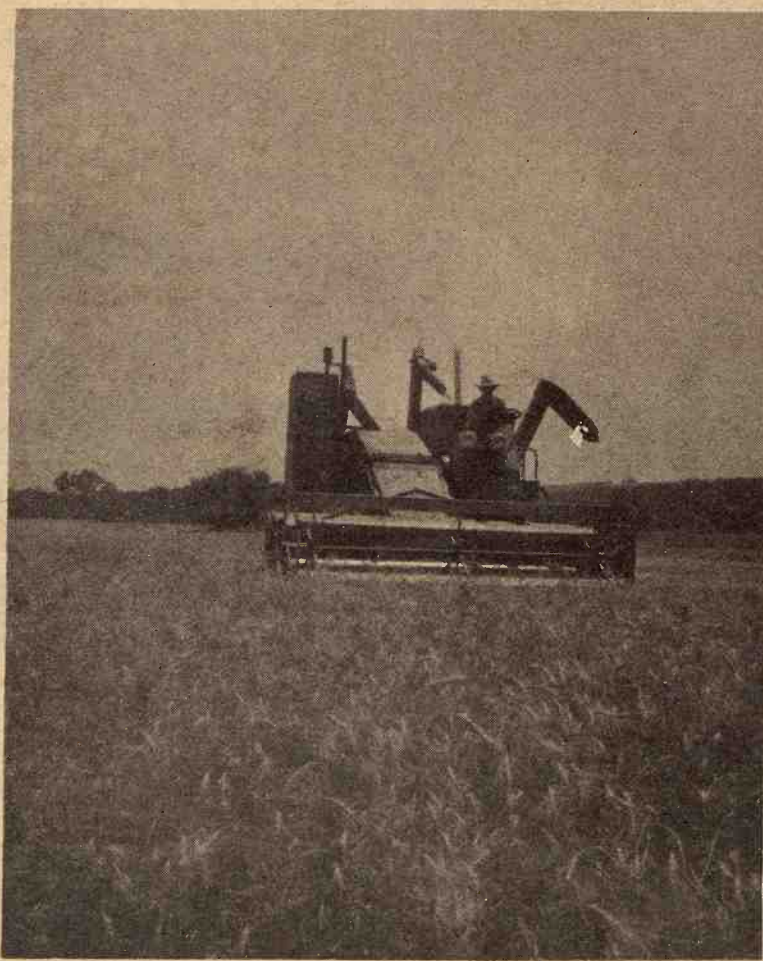

LOADING IT UP

Lawrence Ebert, Wamego, loads up a truck with Kansas wheat. Ebert and Tom White, also of Wamego, were working the same field.

JUST STARTING

Bruno Herrmann, Westmoreland, said he had just started to cut wheat when this picture was taken. Herrmann said too much rain and not enough sun made this a poor field.

See Slight Increase In Sow Farrowing

Farmers have slightly fewer pigs on hand than they had a year ago, but they plan a small increase in sow farrowings. These are the principal facts revealed by the recent USDA report now called Hogs and Pigs. This is the new name for what was formerly called the Pig Crop Report. The survey was made at the first of June.

The report indicates that hog prices will remain at very profitable levels for another year or so. Some seasonal decline should be expected during the next three or four months, but not enough to depress prices to unprofitable levels.

As of June 1, U.S. farmers had 59.3 million hogs and pigs on hand — 2 per cent less than a year before. The number of hogs intended for market was estimated at 49.9 million — 3 per cent less than a year earlier. The number being kept for breeding was listed at 9.4 million — 1 per cent more than last year.

Changes by weight groups. Most of the decrease in the number of market hogs was in the group of pigs weighing under 60 pounds. These numbered 24.2 million — 7 per cent less than a year earlier. Pigs weighing 60 to 120 pounds numbered 12.1 million — up 1 per cent. Hogs weighing 120 to 180 pounds were listed at 7.8 million — the same as a year earlier. Those weighing 180 to 220 were estimated at 4.4 million — up 4 per cent. Hogs weighing over 220 pounds were listed at 1.4 million head — 5 per cent less than a year earlier. Most of these heavier hogs were marketed during June.

Judging from these figures, market receipts should be near year-before levels during July, August, and September. Supplies during the last three months of this year may be 4 to 6 per cent less than in 1968.

Fewer spring pigs. The smaller number of pigs weighing under 60 pounds this year was mostly the result of fewer sow farrowings during March, April and May. The number of sows farrowed during this period in the 10 Corn Belt States was listed at 3,046,000 — 9 per cent less than a year earlier. The average number of pigs saved per litter was given as 7.38 — 1 per cent less than in 1968. The number of pigs saved was estimated at 22.5 million — 11 per cent less than a year earlier.

For some reason, the number of sows farrowed during March, April, and May was much smaller than indicated by the March 1 survey and report. At that time, farmers reported the intention of having 5 per cent more sows to farrow than in 1968. When surveyed June 1, farmers reported that they expected to have 5 per cent more sows to farrow during June, July, and August than they did a year ago. They also indicated that they would have 2 per cent more sows to farrow September, October, and November versus last year.

Grass & Grain

Price prospects. Hog prices will probably decline 4 to 5 cents during the next three or four months. There are three reasons for this: (1) There will be a seasonal increase in market receipts. (2) Consumer resistance to rising prices for meats seems to be increasing. (3) Efforts to control inflation may shut off consumer buying power.

Accuracy of estimates. USDA estimates are based largely on reports mailed in by farmers. There are some errors in these responses. For example, many farmers do not know exactly how many hogs and they have on hand.

We would not expect accuracy to be more than about 97 per cent. The report issued December was about that accurate, judging from the actual slaughter figures during the sequent five months.

Population Gain Rate Lowest Since 1940

Population growth in the United States slowed in 1968 to the slowest rate since 1940, the Census Bureau said.

The 1% rise to 202.3 million people as of Jan. 1, 1969, was the 1.07% gain in 1967, the bureau said, continuing a downward trend from the 1.83% rate in 1956; the rate hasn't been lower than last year's, it said, since the 0.92% rate of 1949.

The net population gain of two million people last year, report said, resulted from 1.1 million births, 1.0 million deaths and 440,000 added by immigration.

The major factor in the slowdown, the bureau said, was reduction in the birth rate to 17.9 in 1967, leaving it the lowest in U.S. history.

Does "the pill" have something to do with it? The 15-page report doesn't make any reference to oral contraceptives, and a spokeswoman shyly added that the Census Bureau doesn't study anything like that.

BIG SAVINGS

Dear Customer:

Twenty years ago, the late John J. Sedlacek, our father, sold us the furniture and appliance business which his father had started in 1890, some 79 years ago. It was our father's thought that by selling us the business, he would make it possible for us to continue OPERATION OF THE STORE, and thereby also have his family together here in Hanover.

The store made a living for one family, and we wondered if it could for three families. We had the solution—our idea was simple: continue as a small-town store but operate for large volume, build up through the lowest possible mark-up on merchandise, offer a gigantic selection and free delivery service over a wide area.

How well this plan succeeded is reflected in the size of our operation after twenty years. The main store has been enlarged to more than triple the original size, now we have 30,000 square feet. In addition to the main store, we have three warehouses and what we can unload economically on a railroad siding, so that merchandise arriving. Despite the

TEST ON FERTILIZER AND UNDERGROUND IRRIGATION

This field near Buston is being used by Norther Natural Gas Co. to test natural gas as a fertilizer and also to test the effectiveness of irrigating below the ground surface.

Northern is irrigating and using gas thru perforated plastic pipe buried at 20 inches.

In the past two years, the research has shown that irrigation in sub-surface application brings better yields with less water.

Northern has 13 one-half acre plots watered and fertilized separately to obtain data on irrigation and fertilization methods.

Propane, methane and carbon dioxide treatment of the soil thru the subsurface pipe is being used to determine the effect of those gases on growing crops. In one experiment, propane was applied by injection from the surface.

The polyethylene pipe is buried so that no set pattern for farming that land at the surface is required.

Closer To A Dental Shield

The first step in what is hoped will lead to a vaccine against dental decay has been taken with the successful inoculation of animals at Northwestern university in suburban Evanston.

Dr. Arthur N. Bahn reported that a protection 60 percent greater was accorded rats given the immunization procedure compared to control rats.

The protection was conferred by blocking production of an enzyme that helps form a sticky coating (plaque) on the teeth and that facilitates decay by enabling bacteria to multiply.

The enzyme, dextran surcrase, is produced by streptococci bacteria known to produce decay. When the enzyme is harvested and injected into animals, it is treated as foreign material. Antibodies are formed against it. These antibodies remain in the body to block further production of the enzyme.

Dr. Bahn reported his results before the International Association for Dental Research in Houston.

"We are excited about the prospects," he said. "But much work must yet be done. We have to repeat the experiment. We have to purify the enzyme and we have to determine that the antibodies produced by these animals will inhibit the enzyme in a test tube. We have some evidence of that but we are in a preliminary stage."

The condition of teeth in both groups of rats — those given the dextran injection and those not receiving it — was analyzed by pathologists at Ohio State University who did not know which had received the active material.

Efforts to immunize animals, have been made before but only against a single type of decay-producing bacteria. Dr. Bahn hopes his approach will be universally effective.

Little Fanfare Over Auto Device That Controls Braking Skids

Want to know a secret? Ford Motor Co. has made a revolutionary new safety gadget available on two of its 1969 cars.

It's a computer-controlled device that keeps a car from skidding out of control during emergency stops. When the driver slams on the brakes, the electronic system takes over, automatically pumping the brakes, preventing the rear wheels from locking and bringing the vehicle to a straight-line stop. It works on dry, wet or icy pavements.

While no one claims the system is perfect, it has been widely hailed in engineering circles as one of the most significant auto safety advances in recent years. Auto critic Ralph Nader likes it, and the National Safety Council thinks it could eliminate many of the skidding accidents that it terms an "important" cause of traffic fatalities.

At $197, the antiskid device is fairly expensive. Right now, it's obtainable only as optional equipment on the Ford Thunderbird and Lincoln Mark III, which at $4800 and $6900, respectively, are two of the company's highest priced cars.

And while Ford put out press releases announcing the gadget and includes a description of it in its current catalog, it has scarcely mentioned it in advertising. Ford says that only a small percentage of its Thunderbird and Mark III buyers have opted for the system and that only about 1500 of the devices are in use.

Ford defends the limited scale on which it has made the new system available. While the company insists that the device works well (it was successfully tested 15,000 times before it was offered for sale, Ford says), the firm says it still wanted to "start small" so that any "bugs" could be ironed out easily.

One Ford spokesman explains the company's failure to trumpet the system in its ads by saying that "advertising would be too expensive for such a low volume item — if we advertised it, we'd have to explain how it works, and this would take too much space."

A Ford engineer has a different interpretation. "We're being very careful about publicity, because we don't want to imply that our other cars that don't have the thing are less safe," he says. "We also don't want to give drivers who buy it the impression it's so good they can drive any way they want and not have an accident."

The same sort of fears set off a spirited debate within Ford and the Society of Automotive Engineers (SAE) over what the new system should be named. Neither wanted to use the word "skid"; they feared it would give the impression that the device controls nonbraking skids such as those caused by rounding curves too fast. Also, "we didn't want to go around giving people the idea that cars skid anyway," says one member of SAE, a professional group comprised mainly of engineers who work for auto concerns.

When Ford first unveiled the device, it called it "Auto-Linear," "auto" meaning automotive and automatic, and "linear" referring to straight-line stops. It later changed the name to the present "Sure-Track Anti-Lock Brake System" — Sure-Track for short. SAE picked "slip control" as the generic name for the gadgets.

Wheat Shows Good Moisture Content

Quality tests on 1969 Kansas wheat arriving at terminal markets at the end of last week continued to show a good heavy test weight, but protein content moderately below last year and average, according to the Kansas Department of Agriculture and Livestock Reporting Service and the Kansas and Missouri Grain Inspection Department. Test results of 2452 cars from 47 counties showed an average test weight of 61.9 pounds per bushel compared with 62.0 pounds last year and average of 61.4 pounds. Protein content averaged 10.6 percent, well below the 11.6 percent a year earlier and average of 11.8. Moisture content on the new wheat crop averaged 12.4 percent compared with 12.7 for these counties a year ago.

Dockage and other grading factors continued to show the new crop as relatively free of extraneous material and kernel

Many of the elevators in the G&G area report the wheat shows a good moisture content and is not requiring much dockage.

Appeals Board Finds Pasture Valuation Unequal

The state Board of Tax Appeals issued an order finding that assessment of pasture land in the Flint Hills region of Kansas is assessed with substantial inequality.

The board said it found that the native grass or pasture land in Chase, Marion and Butler counties is assessed in substantial compliance with the law.

The assessed values in those counties on a per acre average are $24.28 in Chase, $26.78 in Marion and $25.79 in Butler.

The assessments are computed at 30 per cent of the justifiable value of the land.

The board said it finds that assessments of native grass or pasture land in Greenwood, Lyon, Elk and Cowley counties are not in substantial compliance with the law and that they should be equalized to correspond substantially with the values determined in Chase, Marion and Butler counties.

The assessments on a per acre average were by county: Greenwood $15.98; Lyon $19.32; Elk $19.29; Cowley $17.30.

The tax appeals board said it is not feasible for it to issue an order effectively equalizing the values in the counties under consideration because adjustments could affect the equality of valuations in other classes of property in those counties.

It said the director of property valuation has the authority and power to have and exercise general supervision over the administration of the assessment and tax laws.

Cunningham Tries For Compromise

TOPEKA — A Wichita attorney, representing Glenn Cunningham Youth Ranch Inc. of Augusta, sought a compromise in the ranch's efforts to launch a fundraising drive.

The drive has been stalled by Mrs. Elwill Shanahan's refusal to grant the corporation a certificate to solicit funds in more than one Kansas county.

Edgar Dwire, the corporation's attorney, and Mrs. Shanahan, secretary of State, met for more than two hours.

Dwire reportedly offered to correct some of the deficiencies outlined in Mrs. Shanahan's refusal to grant the certification.

In return, Dwire reportedly suggested that Mrs. Shanahan grant a temporary certificate to allow the fund drive to begin.

Mrs. Shanahan is expected to

July 15, 1969

seek the advice of the attorney general's office in the matter.

In her refusal, Mrs. Shanahan cited seven reasons for her action, including the contention that the ranch facilities do not meet safety or health standards.

The ranch is operated by Glenn Cunningham, star miler of the late 1930s.

National Jr. Angus Show To Be Held July 24

More than 130 youngsters from 13 states will exhibit their heifers at the first National Junior Angus Heifer Show, in Columbia, Mo., on July 24. They have entered over 190 head in what promises to be a big display of agricultural youth in action. Missouri leads the list with 39 exhibitors and is followed by Oklahoma with 23. Other leading states include Kansas, Iowa, Indiana, and Illinois. In addition, youngsters competing for the top honors will come from Arkansas, Minnesota, Mississippi, Nebraska, Tennessee, Texas, and Wisconsin.

The show is the first of its kind ever held. It is expected to be the highlight of the 15th annual American Angus Conference which will start on July 23 and end at noon on July 25, in the University of Missouri's new Livestock Center.

The Heifer Show will start at 8 a.m. on Thursday, July 24, and the classes will be limited to 20 head so there is a narrow range of age in each class. The biggest innovation in the show will be added premiums paid to the youngsters who have had their heifers measured in the Angus Herd Improvement Records Program. Those who have measured the weaning age, grade and weight of their heifers, or the yearling age conformation score and weight will get an additional 25 percent added prize money. If they are also the breeder of the heifer they'll get another added 25 percent. The potential first prize will be $75.

The idea behind the show is to promote the use of production records in order to help junior members learn more about the individuality and growth rate of their heifers. Judge of the show will be Robert Totusek, Oklahoma State University, Stillwater, who also will conduct a demonstration of "What To Look For When Watching An Angus Show" on Friday morning.

The conference program will start following the selection of the champions in the heifer show. Leading speakers will be L. S. Pope, Texas A&M University, College Station, who will discuss "Designing Your Program to Breed a More Efficient Cow Herd," and Lloyd D. Miller, secretary of the American Angus Association, St. Joseph, Missouri, who will outline "Your Association's Goals in the Soaring Seventies."

Riley County To Host 4-H Dairy Judging School

Riley County will host a 4-H Dairy Judging School July 21 at the Dairy Barn, Kansas State University, Manhattan. Registration will begin at 9:00 a.m. with the judging to begin at 9:30 a.m. A total of six classes of Holsteins and Jerseys will be judged.

Individuals and/or teams from surrounding counties are invited to attend, according to Miss Louise Voelker, County Extension 4-H agent. Dr. Ed Call, Extension Specialist, will conduct a type demonstration during the morning.

OK Contracts For Improvements

The Kansas Highway Commission has announced the approval of contracts totaling $7.4 million for improvements on the state highway system.

The contracts are based on bids opened at Topeka last month.

southeast eight miles to ton, Kans.

Bemis Tractor Service, Bend, was awarded the contract at $931,695.

A contract for 12 bridges connection with this project went to King Construction, Hesston, Kans., at $997,133.

Thompson Construction Co., Ellinwood, Kans., was awarded a $364,674 contract for 8.6 miles of grading on a new U.S. 58

- 2 teaspoons soy sauce

Mix and bake at 350 degrees, covered, for 30 minutes. Uncover and spread 1 can Chinese noodles over top and continue baking another 30 minutes. ("No salt is correct.")

Mrs. Vernie Ecklund, Burdick: "I enjoy trying the many good recipes that are sent in. Here is a salad recipe that is easy to take on picnics."

ORANGE TAPIOCA SALAD

- 2 packages orange tapioca pudding
 - 1 can orange sections
 - 1 can chunk pineapple
 - 2-3 bananas, diced, add a few hours before serving
- Drain the juice from the fruit. Add water to make 3 cups. Stir the tapioca pudding into the juice and bring to a boil. Let set until cool; add the orange sections and pineapple chunks. Add diced bananas when tapioca is real cold. "This is a delicious salad; very easy to make and won't melt at a picnic."

By Beverly Macy

My mother, here on a visit, was busily whipping up a batch of potato salad and asked me to taste it to see whether it needed anything. "It's perfect," I said, whereupon she turned around and began adding salt to it. She really has great faith in my judgment, doesn't she?

We took our son to Kansas City to catch a plane back to New York. After takeoff, we returned to the car, broke a radiator hose and figured he got home before we had even left the airport.

I have our neighbors with basements educated on leaving a door unlocked for me in case of a tornado warning. Merely told them if one wasn't unlocked I'd do one of two things: Either break down the existing door or make a new one.

Remove Cover Before Storing

Remove or break the tight transparent film on fresh, unfrozen meat and poultry before storing in the refrigerator. The tight wrapper holds moist air which encourages the growth of micro-organisms and the development of unappetizing flavors and odors.

Place the meat on a plate and cover loosely with waxed paper or foil.

Tasty Leftovers

It doesn't make sense not to use leftovers before they are really weary. Take roast beef, for example. If you want it hot, heat in a gravy made by thickening condensed onion soup, which has been diluted. Add zip with horseradish (one teaspoon), then heat with beef slices to serve over mashed potato nests, or split hard rolls.

Sun Umbrellas Provide Color

Sun umbrellas provide a dramatic impact of color and pattern for the terrace, patio or poolside. Hammocks permit lazing in shade or sunshine.

Now sun umbrellas and hammocks are very easy to care for. Sun umbrellas can be hosed with a detergent solution, rinsed, and then dried in the open position. Machine-wash hammocks and stretch them on their own metal frames to dry wrinkle free.

The most common hammock styles are the three and four point. The three point has two hooks that fasten at the stand head where a flatter surface is more desirable and one hook at the foot. The four point hammock is a flat bed type, using two hooks at both head and foot to spread the fabric.

These sun accessories now come in a variety of styles, materials and colors.

Family Room Lighting Must Be Kept Flexible

One basic rule to remember about lighting the family room: It must be kept flexible. It should have ample lighting for reading, playing games or sewing, and at the same time be capable of changing to a lower-key type of lighting for TV watching or conversation.

Luminous ceiling panels or well-shielded fluorescent fixtures provide sufficient lighting for most activities, but the family room can use other lighting systems to supplement varying situations requiring a concentration of light in a specific area or a subdued general lighting level.

Downlighting is used to direct light on horizontal tables, such as the floor or tables, without making the room appear unduly bright. It is done best with incandescent reflector spot and flood lights in either recessed or surface-mounted ceiling fixtures.

The effect is dramatic and should be coordinated with other lighting systems in the room.

A brick or textured wall, such as a fireplace, can be lighted with spotlights, recessed in or mounted on the ceiling as close to the wall as possible. These will light the wall from a grazing angle and enhance the texture through highlights and shadows.

Wood paneling should be lighted with incandescent or Deluxe Warm White fluorescent lamps. It looks its best when the lighting is distributed as evenly as possible from top to bottom, enhancing its grain and warm color.

Check Towel Before Buying

When buying a towel, hold it up to the light. If it is properly thick, the light will barely show through.

Fabric Softeners Are Boon To Housewife

Fabric brighteners are like salt to the chef — a touch is almost always necessary for success. They have been included in soap and detergent for some time and are now available for use in the home washer. Fabric brighteners are optical dyes which impart a fluorescence to fabric so that yellowness is masked while light reflectance and brightness are increased.

They vary in composition and in their effectiveness on various fabrics. Some work well on cotton, others on nylon and still others on polyester and other fibers. Usually a combination of several is included in the overall formula to give some effect on all the fabrics in today's wash basket. Effectiveness also varies with the concentration and frequency of use since their results are cumulative.

As a laundry additive, brighteners are added to wash or rinse water. There are very few of these products in national distribution. Those available frequently are combined with other ingredients that help to soften water or to remove stains. Some claim to eliminate graying, yellowing, or rust staining.

But generally, good results may be achieved by following basic laundering methods — using the correct amount of soap or detergent and bleach after pre-treating specific stains and making allowances for special water conditions.

When fabric softener is used, many wash and wear garments which ordinarily would require some ironing become truly wash and wear with no ironing needed. Softeners also improve the appearance and hand or feel of durable press garments.

Beads To Hemline

Strings of beads and ropes of chains go to hemline length for fall and winter. You knot them, tuck them into or loop them around a belt. The more strands, the better.

Today's fabric softeners may or may not contain bluing, brighteners and bacteriostats to counteract yellowing and to help sanitize. Available in both liquid and powdered form, some are even packaged in individual measured packets.

Ease Cooler Load
Any household chore that requires water, like mopping floor, washing windows, etc., should be done on a mild day, during the coolest part of day, to cut down the humidity load on the air conditioner.

Percentages, 1957-59 Base Year Period to March 1968

FARMLAND VALUE INCREASE

Altho farmland values have increased by 62% in the decade since a 1957-59 base period, Kansas land values have not gained any more than the average of all states.

This chart by the U. S. Department of Agriculture shows generally that states where land values have been lower have had the greatest increase, while states which historically have had highest cropland values — Iowa, Illinois, Wisconsin — have had smaller percentage gains.

Included among the states which have had smaller percentage increases are mountain states, with concentrations of forest and barren land.

The national average of 70 percent growth in the past decade figures an annual growth of 5.5%. Farmers have been the buyers in about two out of three purchases in the study.

More States Show Signs Of Tax Revolt

Another mass protest is in progress.

The protesters are mostly middle-class, middle-income and middle aged — the great body of taxpayers.

In state after state, there are signs of impending taxpayer resistance.

Examples:

Gov. Raymond P. Shafer of Pennsylvania stumped across his state pleading for establishment of a state income tax to help balance a proposed $2.52 billion budget. At Williamsport, these placards were hoisted before his eyes: "Governor, You Hike, We Strike," and "Join the Taxpayer Rebellion."

In Georgia, Gov. Lester Maddox ran into trouble with the legislature, which refused to approve major tax hike proposals resulting from the governor's $1.1 billion budget. Maddox has offered to resign if the legislature will return in special session and pass his program, including new taxes.

sion and pass his program, including new taxes.

Taxpayers in many states are refusing to pass school bond issues.

In one week, Ohioans voted on 117 local school tax issues and rejected nearly 55 percent of them.

Some of these proposed operating levies failed for the second and third times. Education leaders claim inflation has wiped out $100 million of local education money in the past two years.

In New York City's suburbs, voters have rejected 34 out of 55 school budgets so far this year.

Officials see the rejections as a taxpayers' revolt in the face of the failure of the state legislature to provide increases in state aid to local school districts and with teachers demanding higher salaries.

Voters turned out in greater numbers than ever before in Mahtomedi, Minn., a suburb of St. Paul, to turn down bond issues for a new senior high school and swimming pool. It was the first time a bond issue ever was rejected in the community.

The San Diego Unified School District lost its first bond election in 30 years with the defeat March 13 of a $91.3 million measure intended to finance, among other things, improvement of school buildings declared unsafe in the event of an earthquake.

Los Angeles voters roundly refused to pass three school propositions and Supt. Jack Crowther placed the blame on student unrest and taxpayer desire for tax reform.

Crowther recommended to the Board of Education a 49-cent tax boost coupled with the severest school cutbacks in the city's history.

Change Site Of Hog Conference

The National Berkshire Type Conference which was scheduled to be held at the St. Joseph Livestock Market Center, St. Joseph, Mo., on July 17, 18 and 19, has

The change in location came about as a result of the Missouri Department of Agriculture restrictions placed on the movement of hogs within and into the state of Missouri. All other rules and regulations of the Type Conference and the dates will remain the same.

Vote Down Limits On Farm Subsidies

WASHINGTON — Senators have voted down a proposed $20,000 ceiling on government payments to farmers for not planting crops, but House supporters of the limit say the fight is not over.

The Senate, before passing a $7.6 billion Agriculture Department appropriations bill last week, eliminated a House-originated amendment which would impose a $20,000 limit on the subsidies. The vote was 5334 in favor of rejecting the ceiling, and the bill was passed 88-2.

A conference committee will iron out differences between the Senate and House versions of the appropriations measure.

Republican Reps. Silvio Conte of Massachusetts and Paul Findley of Illinois, who pushed successfully for the ceiling in the House, said they would not give up on the limit.

Conte, calling the Senate action "a tragic mistake," said he would try to get the ceiling reinstated in conference or would seek House floor action insisting on the $20,000 limitation.

The ceiling was opposed by the administration.

No Executions For Two Years Ease Effort To Abolish Capital Punishment

Since 8:20 p.m. June 2, 1967, when asthmatic Luis Monge coughed in cyanide gas that killed him, no criminal has been executed in the United States, a development that is stemming the tide to outlaw capital punishment.

Those who would wipe execution from the lawbooks say the unofficial moratorium, which started its third year recently, has softened interest in the subject for all but the 504 convicts held at last count in barren cell blocks where death is the way of life.

The American Civil Liberties Union spent $6000 in salaries last year for a staff member to lobby against capital punishment, but chose that area to economize to zero this year when budgets got tight.

Rep. Robert Kastenmeier, D-Wis., chairman of the House subcommittee considering his own and other abolition bills, made the point this way:

"Jokingly, but with some bitter truth, I told the ACLU that if it could arrange to have an innocent man hung, I think we could get the bill passed."

Unknown to Kastenmeier that nightmare of the law, execution of an innocent, apparently was averted just a month ago at Clearwater, Fla., when two men who had been on death row at Raiford nearly six years on double murder were declared innocent after another man confessed to the crimes.

Earlier this year, the Supreme Court knocked out death penalty provisions of the federal Lindbergh kidnap law because a defendant faced death only if he chose jury trial. In another case, the Witherspoon decision, the court said jurors may not be excluded from capital cases merely because they have objections to the death penalty, until then a common procedure in many states.

Many of those in death row cells have been there as long as 10 years. One who has been under death sentence even longer than the 11 years and 10 months undergone by California's Caryl Chessman, executed May 2, 1960, is Edgar Smith, sentenced June 6, 1957, to die in the New Jersey electric chair for the murder of pretty teen-aged Victoria Zielinski.

Another long-timer is Dennis Whitney, now 26. In 1960, Whitney killed seven persons in a transcontinental binge of gunfire. He recently wrote his lawyer from the Florida death row that he has become so accustomed to being locked in his cell, a room the size of a family bathroom, that he now is more comfortable inside than out.

"Try to imagine that," Whitney wrote. "You have now reached a point where you want to be in a cell! A cell is natural. A cell represents security. A cell is your whole world! Outside of that cell is unnatural."

But Whitney is fighting for his life, urging the attorney to file any motion that can keep him from the electric chair down the hall. One man fighting to die is Robert L. Massie, 28, awaiting the gas chamber at San Quentin on murdering a housewife in a 1965 robbery. In a self-typed petition to the courts, he said the delay of his execution is the cruel and unusual punishment.

"I do not want a stay of execution," Massie said, but the U.S. Supreme Court gave him one anyway.

Some of the newer arrivals on death rows are young, a 16-year old boy at the Ohio Penitentiary, 17-year-old Marie Hill on murder in North Carolina — the youngest woman awaiting death.

Not all those awaiting death are murderers. Alvin Anderson, 17, was sentenced just May 21 at Ocala, Fla., on rape. Edward Boykin awaits death in Alabama for robbery.

But most states reserve the death penalty for murderers and kidnapers. Other crimes which 10 or more states punish with death include dueling, treason, perjury in a capital trial and train wrecking.

Georgia allows death as punishment for desecrating a grave or causing death by mishandling a poisonous reptile. Arkansas makes it a capital offense to force a woman to marry. In the federal law it is a death penalty offense — reportedly never imposed — to sell heroin to anyone under 17.

The bills in Congress by Kastenmeier, Rep. Emmanuel Celler, D-N.Y.; Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich.; Rep. Charles C. Diggs Jr., D-Mich.; Rep. Andrew Jacobs, Jr., D-Ill.; and Rep. Abner J. Mikva, D-Ill., would abolish death as a penalty in the federal law.

"If it did go through it certainly would spur the states on to act on similar legislation," said Celler, chairman of the House Judiciary Committee which handles such bills. Celler's own bill, now reposing in Kastenmeier's subcommittee, would abolish the death penalty under federal law and commute to life the sentence of anyone awaiting death under federal sentence.

"I don't see much possibility a bill of this kind will be going through the current Congress, particularly because of the law and order issue and because of the climate in this country, but it could change," Celler said.

Kastenmeier agreed about the lack of prospects for passage, but said he also agreed with the analysis of another Capitol Hill observer who said: "It has been so long since an execution that the public sentiment is not pressing in on us . . . capital punishment might be dying of its own accord."

There was one execution in 1966, in Oklahoma, two in 1967 and none in 1968, the first year in which no person was legally executed in the United States since such records have been kept.

Eight states — Alaska, Iowa, Maine, Michigan, Minnesota, Oregon, West Virginia and Wisconsin, have abolished the death penalty, three of them since 1963.

Five other states — New York, North Dakota, Rhode Island, Vermont, and New Mexico — severely limit the penalty, usually for killers of policemen and murders by those under life sentence. New Mexico joined these ranks just two months ago.

But the other 37 states maintain gallows, a firing squad, gas chambers or electric chairs.

Plan Reading Survey In State

A survey of public school reading programs and what they accomplish is planned by the State Department of Education.

The program is part of an increasing emphasis among state department, college and public school educators on cooperative action, said state reading consultant Wes Pelsue.

It grew from a conference earlier this month which was held to bring college and public school teachers together the first time, Pelsue said.

"We finally got the people together that are definitely knowledgeable and involved," he added.

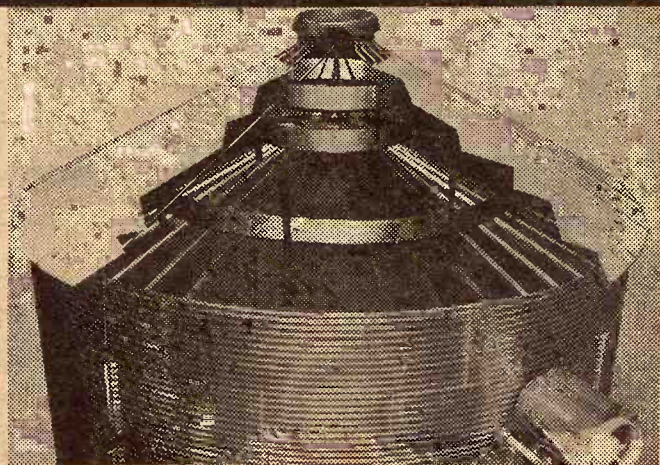

The "follow up" fall survey and study will deal with reading readiness of children as they come to the first grade, the director said. Various methods, such as basal (textbooks) approaches versus the Initial Teaching Alphabet, will be studied.

How Kansas reading teachers are qualified and certified to teach also will be a topic for the survey, Pelsue said. Regional committees will be formed. Another full-scale conference is planned for this fall.

The state department can be a "catalyst" to help improve reading programs in Kansas schools, Pelsue said.

"We've had a glut of materials on the market," he added. "Now is the time to settle down and take a look at them."

New Responsibility Law Requirements Now In Effect

Additional requirements added to the Safety Responsibility law by the Legislature went into effect the first of this month, H. J. Ulrich, Superintendent of the Kansas Motor Vehicle Department said today.

In a report to Governor Robert B. Docking, Ulrich said, "the 1969 session of the Kansas Legislature enacted into law House Bill No. 1043, which became effective July 1, 1969. This bill provides for financial responsibility of the owner and operator of a vehicle involved in a collision on the streets and highways of the state of Kansas. Persons not covered by liability insurance at the time of an accident causing damage in excess of $100, or personal injury, shall be required to demonstrate and thereafter maintain proof of financial responsibility for the future period of not less than three years. This is in addition to the present requirements under the Safety Responsibility Law.

"To demonstrate and thereafter maintain proof of financial responsibility may be accomplished in numerous ways: Provide the Motor Vehicle Department with proof of liability insurance coverage in the minimum amount of $10,000 for each person; $20,000 for each accident and $5,000, property damage; posting cash with the Motor Vehicle Department in the amount of $25,000; filing a bond with sufficient sureties in the amount of $25,000.

"If the provisions of this new law are not complied with by the owner and operator of a vehicle involved in a collision without liability insurance at the time of the accident, the operator's license of the driver will be suspended and the vehicle registration of the owner will be suspended. These suspensions will continue until the law is complied with or at least the three year period of time has expired," Ulrich concluded.

Livestock Producers Benefit From Wholesome Meat Act

Anyone who eats meat has an interest in the Wholesome Meat Act. This legislation is one of the strongest steps ever taken to assure the nation of a wholesome meat supply.

But beyond the typical meat consumer there are particular groups in the marketing community which have their own special reasons for wanting to keep unfit and adulterated meat away from the dinner table. The retailer knows his establishment will lose customers should he sell unsuitable products. Volume feeders, such as restaurateurs, know they must satisfy today's discriminating and safety-conscious consumers with wholesome products.

And livestock producers, the men who grow the meat animals, have their own interest in the Wholesome Meat Act. They know that increased consumption of meat in large part hinges on the confidence which the consumer has in the wholesomeness of the nation's meat. The Wholesome Meat Act, by providing a nationally uniform inspection system, can help reinforce that confidence.

All meat sold across state lines is subject to federal inspection. The Wholesome Meat Act provides that by December 1970 meat sold within individual states will be subject to the same strict standards of inspection, processing, and labeling.

The livestock producer knows full well that occasional news stories about illness caused by impure meat strike a severe blow at his livelihood. He should also know that the Wholesome Meat Act is the best safeguard yet devised to prevent these incidents from occurring.

How does the meat inspection program assure that these proper precautions are taken? To start off, the program requires that every animal slaughtered in a federally inspected plant is examined by trained inspectors and veterinarians both before and after slaughter.

In addition, inspectors are on hand to observe the various steps from slaughter to final packaging. Processed products receive the same attention as fresh meat. The inspection program also requires that all labels be honest and informative. The end result is that the livestock producer can be sure the animal sells becomes wholesome meat fit for the dinner table.

Livestock men also know the profits suffer badly when the investment of raising a meat animal is wasted when the animal is condemned for disease.

The meat inspectors gather information on tuberculosis and other diseases, such as cysticercosis, a parasitic disease. This data in turn is useful in the prevention and control of livestock diseases. The uniform standards of the federal inspection program also assure the livestock producer that his animal will be arbitrarily condemned.

In addition, the meat inspection service supplies figures to USDA's Market News Service on a daily basis with the number and types of livestock slaughtered in all federally inspected plants. This information indicates marketing trends and help the producer find the sales outlet for his animals.

So the Wholesome Meat Act means more to the livestock producer than wholesome meat on his own dinner table. It also means wholesome meat on the nation's dinner tables, to the eventual benefit of the producer himself and meat consumers everywhere.

Will Need 2400 Census Takers

Based upon rough averages the 1970 federal census in Kansas probably will employ approximately 2,400 people to count state's estimated 2.2 million residents.

Five district census offices in Kansas have been assigned: Wichita and Kansas City for direct mail and to Salina, Emporia and Garden City for household counting.

A memorandum from Sen. Minority Leader Everett Dirksen, R-III, to Sen. James Pearson, R-Kan., outlining preliminary knowledge about the census, indicates that nearly 500 people will be employed in each of the five Kansas districts.

Lady Marshal Prefers Blackjack

MOUND VALLEY — She's handier with her blackjack than a gun and still lacks a red flasher light for her patrol car, but Mrs. Zerita Beye figures she's enough law for this southeastern Kansas town of 510 persons.

Mrs. Beye, mother of 10 children and grandmother of 14, was hired this spring as city marshal.

"I'd never done anything like this before," she said, "but I figured anyone who could take care of six boys and four girls was qualified."

Marshal Beye is paid $100 a month plus 15 per cent of the fines paid by those she arrests. Traffic cases make up the bulk of her work.

"I believe the law is the law" she said. "At a stop sign all the wheels are supposed to stop rolling."

Does Mrs. Beye know how to use the .38 caliber revolver she carries in a holster on her belt?

"I know how to point it in the right direction and fire it," she asserted, "but I haven't had much chance to practice with it. It's just for emergencies."

"I'm really more comfortable with the blackjack. My reactions are quicker with it than a gun. You can ask my kids about my reactions."

but they want more for welfare. Time for the taxpayers to start kicking over the traces with this mess. Taxpayers, call on your County Commissioners to make a closer check on welfare people; also report cases which you have doubts about being in need of welfare help and let's clean up some of it at least.

It's up to the taxpayers to do it; the state is not going to do anything but call for more taxes.

Toledo, Ohio — James Cossins told police his attempt to catch a liquor-snatching burglar backfired.

He later found the burglar had struck again, and taken the camera too.

Vatican Buys American

A rash of reports has circulated in Rome that the Vatican is selling its vast holdings of Italian stocks to American companies. A Vatican spokesman said he had been instructed not to comment on the reports.

The Vatican reportedly has had contacts with American financial interests negotiating to sell its holdings in Societa Generale Immobiliare of Rome, Italy's largest real estate company.

This would mark the start of a major operation by the Vatican to get rid of its Italian stocks and buy investments abroad, according to the reports.

The reports appeared in Rome's right wing weekly Lo Specchio and in several daily newspapers.

The unloading of Italian stocks might be a move by the Vatican to avoid paying the equivalent of 2 million dollars a year in Italian taxes on its dividend earnings.

For years the Vatican was exempted from taxation on its Italian stock holdings. In 1962 the Italian government revived an old tax on dividend earnings, but the Vatican remained exempt until last year.

At that time the legislature rejected an interpretation that the 1929 Italian-Vatican Concordat exempted the Vatican. As a result the Vatican now is being charged with current taxes and arrears payments back to 1963.

K-State Professors Collaborate On Book Concerning Agrarianism

MANHATTAN — Two Kansas State University professors have collaborated on a book examining agrarianism and its persistence in a changing society.

"The Agrarian Transition in America," by Dr. Louis H. Douglas, professor of political science, and Dr. Wayne C. Rohrer, professor of sociology, deals with the small farmer and the agrarian "myth" of individualism.

The book presents three tenets of agrarian ideology: The farmer is independent; agriculture is the nation's basic industry; farmers follow a sanctified calling.

Both professors served for several years on an area development committee concerned with urban and rural development and composed of political scientists, economists and sociologists.

They realized that agrarianism persists despite the decline of the small farmer and increasing rural poverty. "Nothing was being done for the non-commercial farmers," Rohrer said.

The authors suggest, "what hadn't been said until 1967, that something must be done about rural poverty."

The political scientist and sociologist spent two years researching and writing the book. In one area of research, they reviewed the Congressional Record for one legislative session and discovered seven bills introduced to strengthen the family farm. "Everyone claims rural ties," Dr. Douglas said.

There is a loyalty to the "sanctified calling" of farming — and to the "agrarian myth" as the authors see it — the rightness of agricultural individualism persisting despite efforts to bring farmers into political and economic organizations for their own good.

As an example of the agrarian spirit, they cite the intensity of feeling about legislative reapportionment following the Supreme Court decision in 1962.

The two men summarize the book's intent: "Our hope is that this work will become a part of the social science fund of knowledge and that the total fund will be used by busy legislators, agency administrators and social researchers. In our view, the clarification for social circumstances is fundamental to contemporary decision-making."

May Soon Use Pneumatic Conveyors To Feed Livestock

Farmers in the near future may feed their cattle silage that is blown to the feeder on a stream of air.

This is the prospect based on tests at the University of Wisconsin and reported at the American Society of Agricultural Engineers annual meeting.

R. R. Wolfe, University of Wisconsin agricultural engineer, described a pneumatic conveyor that will transport corn silage and haylage at capacities up to 30 tons per hour.

Corn silage used in the tests was 69 percent moisture and the grass silage was at 52 percent moisture. Pneumatic conveying was studied using four-inch, six-inch and nine-inch tube diameters.

Wolfe found that an air velocity of 5000 feet per minute needed to effectively move material in any of the tube. The silage is accelerated to velocity within 14 feet of the point where it is fed into the tube.

Using the data collected in experiment, the engineers have devised a mathematical formula to determine capacities and other requirements for conveying silage over various distances through different sized tubes.

The idea of transporting materials on a jet of air is well developed in many industrial areas but it has been used very little in agriculture because of the power requirement and lack of design information.

G&G Area Farmers Use Ladybugs To Fight Off The Greenbugs

JAMESTOWN — When greenbugs invaded the milo fields on Glen Elder and Wilson Game Management Areas near here, Donald Dick, north-central regional game manager for the Kansas Forestry, Fish and Game Commission, began casting about for ideas to obtain adequate control of the pests without resorting to chemical pesticides.

While visiting with Bob Goodheart of Bunker Hill, the game manager mentioned the ladybug as being a natural enemy of the greenbug. As the conversation continued, Dick and Goodheart decided it was worth investigating provided enough farmers could be interested in the project and a source of supply for ladybugs could be discovered.

Since the game management lands controlled by the Commission are farmed on a share-crop basis by local farmers, they were the first to be contacted and almost to a man agreed to share the costs of obtaining the ladybugs. The source of supply was not so easy. After two days of extensive inquiry, the name and address of a California bug farm was located and an order was placed for the first shipment.

A gallon of the black and red beetles numbers about 75,000 and is adequate to treat from 15 to 30 acres of milo, depending on how heavily it is infested. It is estimated that the average ladybug will eat 40 or more greenbugs per day.

The first release consisted of 15 gallons of ladybugs and they were distributed along the field borders of the milo acreage on the game management areas. Apparently, the beetles are best released at night and in relatively thick vegetation. Release directly into the milo is not recommended unless it has already grown to a height of six inches or more to provide an adequate hiding place for the predator bugs.

The news spread fast. There was apparent success with the first release and more farmers became interested. To date, approximately 12,000 acres of milo have been treated with the introduction of 22,500,000 ladybugs in north-central Kansas, both on state and private lands. The Wilson Game Management Area has received 5 gallons while 20 gallons of the beetles have been placed on Glen Elder Game Management Area and most farmers agree that the back of the greenbug infestation has been broken.

When ordered in quantity lots, the ladybugs can be obtained for $7.50 per gallon delivered air express. Thus the cost per acre of the treatment is relatively low.

Conservationists throughout the United States have long advocated natural biological controls instead of the dangerous chemical pesticides.

Neb. SPF Hog Meet Set For July 29

LINCOLN, Nebr. — SPF swine producers from Nebraska and 16 other Corn Belt states are expected to attend the 9th annual SPF Swine Conference here July 29. The meeting will be held in conjunction with the George A. Young Swine Repopulation Conference for veterinarians on the University of Nebraska East Campus.

Guest speaker at both conferences will be Dr. Howard Dunne, professor of veterinary science at Pennsylvania State University.

NU staff member on the Program include Dr. Ernest Peo on lameness associated with nutrition; Dr. Roger Mandigo, modern swine and swine processing, and Dr. James DeShazer, buildings for swine.

John Hermanson, Elmwood, will discuss production operations in his SPF setup. Richard Coupe, Nebraska SPF coordinator, will give an SPF report and present awards to four Nebraska producers.

Performance testing requirements, unique in the Nebraska SPF program, have made it a leader since the SPF program was started 11 years ago. Nebraska stock has gone to breeders throughout the country and around the world, Coupe noted.

Despite Rain, Kansas Crop Prospects Quite Favorable

Mid-season crop prospects in Kansas were generally quite favorable, although wet and unsettled weather during the growing season to date has caused some problems, according to the Kansas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service. A wheat crop of 299 million bushels is expected as of July 1, moderately above last year and the second largest crop of record. Harvesting started slowly during the second week of June and progressed about a week behind usual in most areas during the month. Frequent rains caused delays and some harvesting difficulties. Unusually good filling weather resulted in excellent small grain per acre yields, with wheat, rye and oats at a record high and barley only a couple bushels below last year's record.

Corn production, at 82.5 million bushels, is slightly smaller than 1968 but the second best since 1950. Sorghum plantings declined moderately this year while the same soybean acreage was planted. Plantings of dry edible beans and sugar beets were up moderately. The prospective sugar beet crop of 782,000 tons is substantially above any previous Kansas crop. All hay production is forecast at 5.5 million tons, above last year and second only to the record 1965 output. Excellent fruit crops are expected. Frequent rains during June interrupted small grain harvesting throughout the State and caused some harvesting problems. Row crops in most western and central areas responded favorably to the added moisture, while many eastern Kansas crops were hurt by excessive rains and flooding of lowlands.

Winter Wheat: The July 1, 1969 Kansas winter wheat crop forecast is 299,243,000 bushels, up 863,000 bushels from the June 1 forecast and 12 percent above last year's crop. If realized, the 1969 crop will be the second largest of record, exceeded only by the 1952 crop of 308 million bushels. The 9,653,000 acres for grain harvest was down one percent from 1968. A record high yield of 31 bushels per acre exceeds last year by 6 bushels and the previous record of 28.5 bushels in 1958 and 1960. Cool weather during early June was ideal for crop filling and contributed to heavy test weights and excellent yields. After a late start and frequent interruptions by rain, harvesting became widespread across central and into northern Kansas by July 1 and was nearly completed in many south central and southwestern border counties.

By July 5, about 57 percent of the acreage had been harvested, somewhat behind last year's 70 percent and the 10-year average of 78 percent. Some 10.3 percent of the 10,767,000 acres seeded last fall was abandoned, compared with 18.5 a year earlier and a range of 7.1 to 18.9 percent during the previous 5 years. In extreme western counties, planted acreage losses were primarily attributed to dry fall and winter weather and pasturing. Lodging from excessively wet weather, hail and cutworms accounted for most of the crop abandonment in eastern and central areas.

Sorghums and Corn: Acreage of sorghums planted for all purposes is estimated at 4,066,000 acres, 9 percent below 1968 and 6 percent below the 1967 acreage. Cool wet weather delayed planting progress during early June and greenbug attacks caused considerable thinning of stands and much replanting later in the month.

Corn grain production is forecast at 82.5 million bushels based on July 1 condition, 3 percent smaller than last year but the second largest crop since 1950. Acreage harvested for grain is expected to be 1,179,000 acres, with an average yield of 70 bushels per acre, second only to last year's record high 75 bushel yield. Corn acreage planted for all purposes totaled 1,491,000 acres, 3 percent more than last year and the highest since 1963. Most early planted western and central corn acreage was showing good development. In eastern Kansas, excessive rains have caused moderate flood damage to many low-lying fields. Cultivation has been limited by wet fields and standing water, with many fields becoming extremely weedy. Only 52 percent of the corn was "laid-by" and 6 percent had tasseled by July 5.

Other Crops: Oat production is forecast at 6,318,000 bushels, 8 percent less than a year ago and third smallest since the 1870s. Yield per acre at 39 bushels is one bushel above last year and, if realized, would equal the highest yield of record in 1883. Harvested acreage at 162,000 acres is down 10 percent from a year earlier.

Production of barley is expected to total 5,320,000 bushels, up 44 percent from a year ago and the largest crop since 1964. An estimated yield per acre of 35 bushels would be the second highest of record, exceeded by last year's record 37 bushels. Harvested acreage of 152,000 acres was 52 percent above last year. The 1969 rye crop is forecast at 1,425,000 bushels, nearly three times last year's production and the largest since 1964. Yield per acre, at 19 bushels, is the highest of record.

Soybean acreage harvested for beans is estimated at 957,000 acres, the same as last year's record acreage, although wet weather hindered planting progress. Sugar beet production is forecast at a record 782,000 tons compared with last year's previous record of 597,000 tons. Beets were planted on 49,000 acres in 1969, some 7800 acres more than in 1968.

A dry bean production of 250,000 cwt. is expected, up 47 percent from last year and exceeded only by the 1961 crop.

Irish potato production is estimated at 124,000 cwt., the same as a year earlier.

Fruits

Commercial apple production is forecast at 16.0 million pounds, up slightly from last year and largest crop since 1951. Peach production is estimated at 9.5 million pounds, some 3.3 million pounds above last year and best crop since 1935.

Hay, Crops and Pasture
The 1969 all hay production is corecast at 5,484,000 tons, 16 percent above a year ago and the second largest crop of record. The Kansas hay crop is expected to be harvested from 2,478,000 acres, with a record yield of 2.21 tons per acre.

Alfalfa hay production during 1969 is estimated at 3.5 million tons, representing a record yield of 3.00 tons per acre. Wild hay production, forecast at 1.1 million tons is 13 percent above last year and the largest crop since 1927. Pasture feed conditions on July 1 rated at 94 percent of normal, 11 points above a year earlier and one of the best for the date since 1951.

Milk & Egg Production

Milk production in June totaled 149 million pounds, 2 percent below output for the same month last year. Egg production during June at 77 million eggs, was up 3 million eggs from the same month a year earlier.

New Ag Attache To India Visits Kansas Wheat Sites

The new agricultural attache to India, James H. Boulware, will take with him to his new post Dec. 1 a good view of the Kansas wheat harvest and wheat industry. He was a guest of the Kansas Wheat Commission in the state on a tour of major agricultural areas which have an interest in the Indian market.

Boulware was brought to Dodge City, where the harvest was at its height at that time, says Lawrence E. Brennan of Dodge City, vice-chairman of the commission, and was shown elevator facilities and harvest operations during the day. In addition to seeing new grain handled at the Dodge City Cooperative Exchange, Boulware visited with Bill Turley, a farmer near Dodge City, who was harvesting wheat.

"This visit to our premier wheat state at the peak of harvest has been a real eye-opener," Boulware said.

Long Locks A Fire Hazard

VERNON, B. C. — A young man was given time off from the firelines in British Columbia recently after a forest ranger said he posed a hazard to fire and fire fighters.

The ranger dug into his own pocket for $2 so the youth, could get a haircut.

The ranger, who preferred not to be identified, told the youth his hair could easily catch fire, or on the other hand, other fire fighters might mistake him for a woman. Either event could lead to "disaster," he said.

Can Expect Better Prices

WASHINGTON — American farmers and ranchers can expect to receive good prices for their output and better usual returns from several products during the second half of this year.

A broad survey of supplies and prices in recent months and fresh estimates by the Agriculture Department attribute better prospects largely to the continuing buoyant economy, despite indications of some slowing of the rate of advancement of personal incomes.

Prices for all farm products have been averaging about 5 percent above last year's levels, with a rise of nearly one-tenth prices of livestock products more than offsetting slightly lower average receipts for crops.

Stop Treatment Of Bacon By Radiation

The U.S. Department of Agriculture has withdrawn permission for meat packers to use gamma radiation in treating canned bacon.

Officials of USDA's Consumer and Marketing Service said the amendment to Federal meat inspection regulations would not affect meat processors or consumers since no products treated by radiation have been produced for commercial consumption.

The USDA action follows a similar move made by the Food and Drug Administration of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.

The use of gamma radiation was originally viewed as a satisfactory factory way of preserving various meat products, such as bacon. It was subsequently determined by FDA, however, that more data would be necessary on possible health hazards before permitting public consumption of irradiated meats.
