4-H Education for Adults

by Glenn M. Busset
State 4-H Leader

Sometimes we act as if education is founded on a terminal philosophy, with the premise that the educative process stops at a given point in life. Surely it was not expected when early America established a system of "educating all the children of all the people" that an individual could be spoonfed with enough learning in childhood to last a lifetime.

Great emphasis is currently being placed on continuing education which could bring a beginning to the end of our curious contradiction in education. We have educated the child, who could not act in democracy's affairs, while we denied education to the adult, who was responsible for making the decisions that determined the national destiny. The reality is that no matter how well educated the child may be today, without the benefit of continuous education, he becomes the obsolete man of tomorrow. A responsible university such as Kansas State must provide a program of education that offers the adult the opportunity of continuous schooling for as long as he lives.

In actuality, the University now provides little known adult education programs, in which more than 11,000 adults have opportunity to learn new skills, knowledge and understandings, as well as developing new attitudes. This adult learning group represents a student body total equal to all undergraduates at Kansas State University.

These adult students are trained in leadership principles, in group dynamics, in techniques of teaching, in conducting events, in ways of working with people. They become through their educational program specialized in many phases of agriculture, home economics and related subjects.

They study booklets and bulletins, prepare teaching plans, conduct demonstration sessions and judging schools, organize community improvement programs, and work out programs for health, safety and other related improvement services.

In event you have not yet recognized these adults taking part in a fascinating educational program of self-improvement, they are the men and women who serve as leaders to 4-H members in Kansas—in short, this is you. In striving to prepare yourself to better assist boys and girls to meet their objectives, you are preparing yourself for a better, more enjoyable life as an adult, as a more knowledgeable, participating citizen.

You have attended training schools, you have met specialists and extension agents, you have broadened your acquaintance with other men and women who are also interested in their own self-actualization. You have read bulletins, prepared teaching plans, learned skills that you would never have known, had you not become involved in this educational program for boys and girls—a program that has made it possible for you to learn new skills and knowledge as you worked with youth. When you teach another, learning becomes a permanent part of your knowledge, and your "bag of tools."

It hasn't all been easy, of course; self-improvement never is. There have been frictions and frustrations, just as there are in any learning process, but surely there have been great satisfactions and compensations. I'll bet you never thought of yourself as being part of an adult education program that would brighten and broaden your life, as well as the lives of those you touched. While you were helping others improve themselves, something happened to you, and wasn't it nice!

Larry Cartmill watches another panel member discuss a teenage problem.

For the past three years, the Franklin County 4-H clubs have had a personal development project called "Thought and Talk."

The 4-H members meet monthly to discuss all types of subjects. Mrs. C. W. Henning, the project leader, picks the subject to be discussed a month in advance so the members can do research, and then discuss it at the next meeting.

Burt Brewer, KOFO FM Radio operations manager, attended one of the meetings because he was interviewed in the youth of Ottawa. Mr. Brewer decided the project would make a good radio program. Twice a month for the past three months the 4-H'ers have participated in a panel discussion on the designated Sunday evenings. Each panel is made up of six to eight 4-H members of the "Thought and Talk" project. New subjects are picked for the program and the panel members give their individual opinions on the subject in question. The members are free to disagree with the other panel members and do so with tact and skill.

After the 20 minute program, two of the panel members stay at the station to answer listeners as they call in. This part of the program is becoming very popular. Many people call in to express their ideas and agree or disagree with the panel members.

Mrs. Henning said this about her teenagers, "They will respect you, if you will listen to them talk."

Thanks to this new idea in radio programming adults in Ottawa are learning to respect teenagers.

Billy Merhoff, County Extension 4-H Agent is on hand to give advice.

Panel moderator Jim Bacon and Doug Smith look over the questions Jim will ask panel members during the show.

The Breakfast Club program is aired on 450 stations throughout the United States, plus additional stations of the Armed Forces Network.

Make Trash Containers

Community Service

The Nearman Busy Bees of Wyandotte County participated in a community service project Saturday (September 30) when they picked up litter along two miles of North 55th Street. Two pick-up trucks full of trash were picked up and disposed of in a proper place.

4-H'ers On Radio

First year 4-H'ers, Pat McCusher, Arletta Unruh, Cheryl Kochn, Tim Unruh, Joy May, Erica Treesh, and Jeff Power, were on KJRG Radio in September. Junior Leaders, Mary Wedding and Wanda Stein, interviewed the new members by asking them questions relating to their projects and how they liked 4-H work.

All 4-H'ers in the program were from Harvey County.

Wheat Quality Trip Winners Named

Cooperation of other Kansas organizations in the 4-H Club program is brought to the fore each fall when the Kansas Wheat Commission sponsors an educational trip to study wheat shipping facilities in Texas Gulf ports for 4-H members with outstanding accomplishments in wheat production and marketing. This tour is on the November 1 to 4 schedule for five Kansas 4-H Club boys.

The four state award winners in the 4-H wheat quality program, announced by Dr. Glenn M. Busset, State 4-H Leader, Kansas State University, are Ernie Reusser of Viola, Henry Diehl of Brookville, Mike Scheuerman of Healy, and John Deege of Larned. The state award winner in the wheat project, Carl Raney of Syracuse, also receives the trip as an award.

The Kansas Wheat Commission, recognizing that the five boys will be much in demand as speakers by groups who want to hear about their first-hand observations on wheat handling and exports, also provides each of them with a set of slides from pictures taken on the trip.

Adults who will accompany the 4-H trip winners will be a representative of the Commission, a representative of the Kansas Association of Wheat Growers, a representative of Kansas State University, the Sweepstakes winner in the 1967 Kansas State Fair Wheat Show at Hutchinson — Harry Walker of Englewood, and a Kansas county agriculture Extension agent.

Among the 4-H winners:

Ernie, 16, is a member of the Sedgwick County Ninescah Valley 4-H Club, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Rae Reusser. He is a junior in Clearwater High School.

A member of the Saline County Brookville 4-H Club, Henry, 16, is a junior in Ell-Saline No. 307 High School. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Eli Diehl.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Scheuerman, Mike, 16, belongs to the Scott County Manning Jayhawkers 4-H Club. He is a Scott City High School junior.

Jon, 16, is a member of the Pawnee County Tiny Toilers 4-H Club. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Donald Deege, and Jon is a Larned High School junior.

Carl, 17, is a member of the Stanton County Go-Getters 4-H Club. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Carl Raney, and Carl is a senior in Stanton County High School.

The boys have completed wheat and other crops projects as 4-H'ers. They have excellent records of exhibits at district wheat shows and Kansas State Fairs. They have been members of crops judging teams competing at the Fair. As a part of the wheat quality program, the young farmers studied recommended practices of planting, including fertilization, and, in some cases, irrigation.

We Are Proud . . .

. . . of the achievement of Kansas 4-H Club members in improvement of wheat quality, raising crops, records of prizes at district and Kansas State Fair wheat shows, and judging crops. On behalf of Kansas wheat producers, we are pleased to have a part in recognizing these accomplishments, as well as excellence of records and studies on wheat. Kansas grows the best wheat in the world, and 4-H helps "to make the best better."

WE CONGRATULATE the four state award winners in the 4-H wheat quality program and the state award winner in the wheat project, who will be our guests on an educational trip to inspect Gulf Port export facilities.

The 4-H Leadership Project Helps Youth Better Understand Themselves and Others.

Heroes are made, not born" can also be said of leaders. Everyone at some given time will be called upon to perform some type of leadership. It may be no more than "speaking up" in a group, directing someone toward a destination, serving on a committee, or giving advice to a younger person. It may be serving as an officer of an organization, spearheading a drive for some desired goal, or influencing a group to think twice before they act and become sorry later for their actions. Today, as always the world needs all the leadership that can be developed.

Active participation in 4-H activities and events can provide learning experiences that contribute to leadership development.

Many older youth who continue 4-H membership overlook the experiences that the junior leadership project could offer. Also many who do enroll in this project fail to have satisfactory learning experiences, because no one points out the purposes of the project in time for them to gain.

The purposes of the leadership project are these: (1) To give youth realistic experiences in different leadership situations; (2) To help youth better understand themselves and others; (3) To help youth develop the qualities of personality that a leader must possess; (4) To assist them in becoming more effective citizens; and (5) To give older youth opportunities to be of assistance to others.

NOW, is the time to make plans for a successful leadership experience. Junior leaders and all adult leaders of each 4-H Club should meet together at the beginning of the club year and develop these plans. Plans should

EDITORIAL DEPTH

It takes complete coverage and editorial depth in Kansas...

This brings accuracy and this is KANSAS FARMER's way of writing about Kansas agriculture. Depth of editorial takes time, it takes effort, concentration and endless hours of research. For 100 years and more, KANSAS FARMER editors have known the importance of writing complete and thorough features... merely reporting the news is not enough. If you know KANSAS FARMER you know it's true. If you don't know KANSAS FARMER, shouldn't you get better acquainted?

And... you should know Clyde Zimmerman, Managing Editor of KANSAS FARMER, his knowledge, experience, and his ability to dig out the facts on any subject that might effect your farming operation. When you read a Clyde Zimmerman article in KANSAS FARMER, on feeding, crops, or management, it might take you thirty minutes... but, it took Clyde Zimmerman weeks of study, and research to present it to you accurately and completely.

KANSAS FARMER is proud of its history of honesty, depth and accuracy... you can be proud, too, because it's your magazine.

be developed around the interests of the junior leader, taking into consideration his abilities and skills and what kinds of leadership the club needs. After considering these areas, each junior leader should develop a program or plan that he or she would like to follow for the year. Adult leaders would want to be available to assist whenever needed.

The opportunities to provide leadership are continually arising if one is alert to take advantage of them. The two manuals for the junior leadership project, "Leadership for the Beginner, age 13-15," and "Leadership for the Young Adult, ages 16-19," both sight many leadership opportunities for those interested in including several in their yearly program.

One of the real challenges for older 4-H youth is to interest other older youth in some of the learning experiences available through the 4-H program, that will not be gained anywhere else. Why not ask them to explore with you such areas as: philosophy for life, careers, citizenship, thought and talk, reading for discussion, home management, and a concept of leadership for a new and rewarding experience?

Suggest several pictures be used to illustrate a point or two:

An older youth assisting a younger person.

Cloverleaf Club Holds Car Check

The Cloverleaf 4-H Club in Mitchell County recently conducted a safety check on cars and trucks in Beloit. Two afternoons were devoted to the project. The "check" was to find how many unoccupied vehicles had keys in the ignition.

A total of 764 vehicles were inspected. Thirty-four percent, or 262 cars, had keys left in them. Members took the license numbers on the cars and wrote the owners a letter telling them of the club's project, and the danger of having a car stolen when keys are left in the ignition. They also cited a city ordinance prohibiting leaving vehicles unattended unless the engine is stopped, the ignition locked, and the key removed.

The purpose of the safety check was to inform drivers violating this ordinance of the opportunity they are providing a potential car thief and the fact that leaving keys in the car is a violation of the law.

“Step up the stairs”

Ed note: This article was taken in part from a demonstration talk given by Gaylene Bock of Chase County at the State Fair.

Take a look in the mirror and what do you see
Besides just the faces of you and me?

Do you see a real person, the deep inner you

Or a surface image but not one that's true.

Now let's try to climb the steps that we see

Then we'll know how to develop personality.

I am Gaylene Bock of the Emerald 4-H Club in Chase County, and I am enrolled in the personal development project. This is a new project for me this year and I have discovered there is a stairway that leads to personal development that presents a big challenge to every boy or girl. Each step will not be easy, but with Faith in God and yourself, you'll be able to find the way to new heights of happiness you never dreamed possible.

Let's look in the mirror before we start climbing the stairs. What do you see? Do you see the person your friends think you are? Do you see the person you think you are? Or do you see the person you really are? This last one is the most important one. Too often young people give all their attention to other people and forget that there is a personality within just waiting to be developed. So why not start right now to study just who you are and what you want to be. Life can't make something out of you—You have to make something out of life!

Once you have decided to be the real you, you are in for a great adventure. Let's call this Individuality—the first step toward personal development. It takes individual people to make up any group or crowd. Every group needs the personality of each member or it has none of its own. So find the group that will welcome you for what you are. Belonging to a 4-H club gives you this kind of an opportunity. In such a group individuals also learn to respect each others wishes—but don't be afraid to be different. You can live with someone else's frown but you'll be miserable with your own.

Now to continue the climb, every individual must develop self-confidence. Let's see how the mirror reflects your good points. Some people say, "I have no talent," or "he's a born pianist," or "She's a born athlete." People are born all right but they bring only the raw materials of their talent into the world with them. It takes hard work and training to make them seem easy.

Friendship is another part of the real you—and it must be the next step. To have friends you must be a friend. Look again in the mirror. Would you choose yourself as a friend? Honesty, dependability, loyalty, sincerity and consideration are all qualities that we want our friends to have. If your mirror tells you that you don't have them, you had better get busy and develop them. What about faults. We can't go through life ignoring them. Thoughtlessness, rudeness and selfishness can have no part in a pleasing personality and they certainly won't make friends for you. My mother often reminds me that parents are the best friends a boy or girl can ever have.

Our outward appearance is what gives others their first impression of us. Good posture, cleanliness, manners and good grooming are qualities we must have if we are to step up to the step called POISE. Learn to walk gracefully—good posture makes you relax. If you want to look your best you have to polish your features, not try to change them. Make-up is not a substitute for good grooming. Hair that is shining from frequent shampoos and clean nails will do far more for you than any amount of eye shadow or hair dye. Just be sure that person in your mirror looks natural. Poise cannot come to you until you have learned to use good manners. Good manners are like new shoes — they may pinch but you can break them in by wearing them around the house. Wear clothes appropriate for the occasion and be sure they are clean and well pressed. Beware of fads.

A HEALTHY way of life is a must if you are to continue the climb. The proper amount of regular sleep and good eating habits are very important. Most teen-agers don't have to be told to exercise, but if you aren't getting outdoors every day, try some indoor exercises. There are two alarming health problems facing us today — smoking and drinking. There is abundant proof that both are very harmful to health.

FAITH in God affects the way you feel and the way you act. It sets the moral standards and values you have. Faith helps you to know what life really means and is a way of expressing love for others.

There is still one more step to climb. Yes, we all need a GOAL so let's set our sights on one that will demand a lot.

Now when you think you have reached the top of the stairs take a good long look in your mirror. You'll see an inner sparkle you have never seen there before. There is confidence in that smile. The real you is showing through, and wherever you go, whatever you do, you will be proud to take the new you along. But don't admire the reflection in the mirror too long. If you look farther you'll see that you are standing on the landing of another stairway that goes on to new heights of happiness—your future. And best of all—you'll be able to climb it with ease.

To summarize I have shown you the important steps for a program of personal development. They are:

1. Individuality—be yourself
2. Self-confidence—a feeling of trust in yourself.
3. Friendship—to have a friend you must be one.
4. Health—the one who reaches his goal does so by healthy living.
5. Poise—being able to express yourself through your appearance.
6. Faith—faith in God and faith in yourself.
7. Goal—you lose only if you quit.

There is one more thing I would like to say before I close my talk today. It is the thought another shares "Don't stare up the steps—step up the stairs."

Reasons like the kids and their education. The wife . . . and the mortgage on the place. And your retirement.

So . . . where do you get this life insurance? Well, there are about as many places to buy it as there are reasons to have it. Have a new baby . . . and you'll get some idea of how many insurance companies there are.

Yes, there are lots of life insurance companies, all right. And we're only one of the many. But we don't believe any of the many can build you a better program or serve you better.

And, we think programming and service are about the only two real reasons for selecting a life insurance company. Don't you? So . . . when you think of Life . . . make it Farm Bureau's Kansas Farm Life!

Veterinarians are ready to advise and teach.

Knowing Your Animal

By Dr. Charles E. Lingle
Extension Specialist
Vet Medicine

What are the normal body functions of your best dairy cow? Why does your dog bark at the postman and not the newsboy? If you want an answer to these questions, ask any 4-H'er enrolled in Veterinary Science; or better yet, take it as a project.

The 4-H'er enrolled in Veterinary Science is given information that can be used. In Unit I, a student begins with areas that are familiar, and then taken through more complex discussions concerning the normal animal.

Subjects included in this unit consist of animal psychology, normal body functions, maintenance of animal health, cleaning and disinfecting animal quarters and concludes with a discussion of the structure of the animal body.

There is often a misconception concerning eligibility in this unit. Frequently we find that a student believes that they must live on a farm and have farm animals available. This idea is not correct. The 4-H'er must have an animal, but may live either in town or on a farm; and the animal may be anything from a rabbit to a mule.

Another common misunderstanding is that the participant must be a boy. This also is not true. The only prerequisites for this unit of instruction are membership in a 4-H group, be between ages of 8 and 19, have an animal and a desire to discover the why's concerning this animal's behavior and body structure.

The lower age limit causes some concern among parents and club agents. There is some doubt expressed as to the value this group achieves by participating in this unit. I can assure you that these students are doing quite well. Conversations with 4-H leaders and veterinarians around the state point to the fact, that in most cases, the younger students are exhibiting the most interest and gaining valuable information from this course.

These areas of study were carefully chosen so that the student will be better prepared to deal with animal health problems, primarily in the early detection of abnormalities. The enrollee should remember, however, that this unit is not designed to train a veterinarian, nor is it the intent to teach the enrollee how to treat animal diseases. The primary goal is to provide the interested student with an insight into veterinary medicine. It is hoped that this preliminary training will interest some students in pursuing a career in veterinary medicine.

Veterinarians all over the state stand ready to serve in an advisory and teaching capacity for this unit. The office of Veterinary Extension will furnish, on request, film, depicting the duties of veterinarians, pamphlets and other materials useful in the instruction of this unit.

This instruction does contain information that will allow the student to better decide on his future vocation. How will it serve those students not interested in a future in Veterinary Medicine? Surely, this unit will prove a useful addition to any 4-H animal project. In addition, the study of any living animal will provide some information regarding the normal processes as they occur in our own body, and through this to a better understanding of life in general.

This is not the only unit in this project. The original project was designed to consist of four units. Unit II is ready for release. This unit deals with principles of diseases. The causes of disease in general, as well as the effects of external influences on diseases are discussed. The remainder of the units will be released in an orderly manner.

In order to accomplish the desired ends of this project, it is essential that the student perform all the requested tasks. Those that choose to enroll in this project, devote time to study and practical use of course material will find that as your knowledge increases your personal satisfaction will also.

The future leaders in agriculture and veterinary medicine will come from the 850 4-H youth, in 47 counties, presently enrolled in the Veterinary Science Project. The knowledge gained by their participation in this unit of study will better prepare them to meet the demands of these disciplines in years to come.

JOHN DEERE ANNOUNCES

Kansas' 1967 4-H
Winner in Conservation of Natural Resources

Michael Croucher

Michael Croucher, 17, Osage County, will be Kansas' representative in the Conservation of Natural Resources project at the National 4-H Congress in November at Chicago sponsored by John Deere. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Sam Croucher, Jr. of Osage City. Michael is a senior at Lebo High School and plans a career in agriculture.

Michael has been in the soil and water conservation project for seven years. He has saved valuable acres of land by practicing his knowledge in conservation.

He has attended several land judging contests, visited with the S. C. S. people in his county who helped him with his conservation work and has given six demonstrations.

Michael has gained important skills and "know-how" from his conservation work and has formed the opinion that, "Hard work and planning ahead make a farm pay."

John Deere is proud to have a part in the 4-H Conservation Projects by sponsoring awards for outstanding work.

Kitchen Bowl

Chicken Supreme

- 4 lbs. chicken
- 1 qt. milk
- 4 well-beaten eggs
- 1 c. chicken fat from broth
- 2 tsp. salt
- 1/4 c. flour.
- 1 can mushroom soup
- 2 c. buttered crumbs

Cook chicken until tender. Remove from bones and cut into small pieces. Mix flour, fat and salt. Add to eggs and milk. Cook in double boiler until a medium thick custard. Add mushroom soup.

Mushroom Dressing

- 1 c. chopped mushroom buttons
- 2 tbsp. butter
- 3 c. dry bread crumbs
- 1 tsp. grated onion
- 1 tbsp. finely minced parsley
- 1 tsp. salt
- 1/2 tsp. celery salt
- 1/8 tsp. pepper
- 1/2 c. water

Brown mushrooms in butter. Add remaining ingredients. Line bottom and sides of 9 1/2 x 11 x 2 in. pan with this dressing. Place chicken in shell of dressing. Pour custard over chicken. Cover entire top with buttered crumbs. Bake in oven at 350 for 1 hour. Serves 20.

Cranberry Salad

- 1 qt. cranberries
- 1 c. water
- 2 c. sugar
- 15 marshmallows
- 1 c. chopped celery
- 1 c. diced apples
- 1 c. pecan nuts
- 1 pkg. lemon gelatin

Boil berries, sugar and water. Remove from fire and whip in marshmallows. Add gelatin while still hot and stir until dissolved. Cool. Add apples, celery, nuts. Chill in refrigerator for 24 hours.

Carrot-Pineapple Cake

- 3 c. flour
- 2 c. sugar
- 2 tsp. baking powder
- 1 tsp. soda
- 1 tsp. salt
- 1 1/2 c. Wesson Oil
- 3 eggs.

Sift dry ingredients, add oil and eggs and mix.
Fold in:

- 2 c. grated raw carrots
- 1 c. chopped nuts
- 1 small can undrained crushed pineapple
- 2 tsp. vanilla
- Bake 1 hr. 350°

Icing

- 2 tbsp. oleo
- 3 oz. cream cheese
- 1/2 tsp. vanilla
- 2 c. powdered sugar
- Add 1/2 c. each coconut, nuts and raisins as desired.

Cereal Kisses

- 1/4 tsp. salt
- 2 egg whites
- 1 c. sugar
- 1 tsp. vanilla
- 3 c. post toasties or grape-nut flakes

Add salt to egg whites and beat until foamy. Add sugar, 2 tbsp. at a time, beating after each addition until sugar is blended. Continue beating until mixture stands in shiny peaks. Add vanilla, fold in cereal. Drop by teaspoonsfuls onto greased baking sheet. Bake 350° for 15 minutes, or until firm. Makes 3 doz. cookies.

A young boy, who knew only three words, chanced to go to his first day of Kindergarten. His vocabulary consisted of "Roy Rogers," "Trash Can," and "Oh, Boy." When asked his name the boy answered, "Roy Rogers." Annoyed but patient the teacher asked, "Where do you live?" To this the little boy replied, "Trash can." This was the last straw. The teacher warned, "If you don't settle down I'm going to send you to the principal's office." To this the little boy could not help but reply, "Oh, boy!"

'Twas midnight in the ocean
Not a streetcar was in sight
The sun was shining brightly
For it rained all day that night
'Twas a summer day in winter
And snow was raining fast
As a barefoot boy with shoes on Stood sitting in the grass.
