The ROYAL PURPLE

FOREWORD

DEDICATED to those Kansas State Agricultural College men who gave their lives on the battle field, Volume XI of the ROYAL PURPLE stands at the time as a monument to all Kansas Aggie spirit and devotion. Kansas Aggies won immortal glory for themselves, their Alma Mater and their country on the fields of France. Not a few were called upon to give the last full measure of devotion, and their names are forever written on our hearts.

While these men fought the good fight overseas, Alma Mater waged a successful battle against disrupting influences at home. The young women—and the few young men here to co-operate with them—who published this annual, are typical of the students who “carried on” in spite of continued interruptions and unprecedented conditions. Those who withstood difficulties and completed successfully a year of college work, demonstrated their persistent serious purpose, and their unquestionable fitness to survive.

The Kansas State Agricultural College faces a bright future. Another year will see many of the men of the service back in college class rooms, working with old-time vigor in preparation for peace-pursuits. Everywhere will be happy evidence of a return to normal conditions. The opportunities for our graduates of professional and technical training will be greatly enlarged as a result both of the active participation of the institution in war work and of the records made by Aggie men and women.

K. S. A. C. will continue to do effective work. It will open its doors wide to every class of the state's citizenship. Not for the few, but for the many, shall be the watchword, and we shall strive to make only the boundaries of the state the boundaries of our campus.

W. M. JARDINE.

in Memoriam

Were you afraid to die
Our brothers, who went out into the night to find the morning?
We have not said good-bye—
To you, O splendid souls, we offer humble greeting.
The precious lives you give,
And give as freely as once you gave your voices chanting Jay Rah
Earns you the right to live
Forever, at liberty. We are enslaved by an eternal debt.

MAJOR-GENERAL JAMES G. HARBORD, '87

His Men Saved Paris

IN MAY, 1918, a German flood was sweeping down the Marne towards Paris. Divisions of resolute Frenchmen had made stand after stand, had thrown themselves unselfishly against their enemies, but the Hun armies rolled on. General Foch, dismayed, called on the Americans to save the French capital. General Pershing selected the Second Division.

After marching day and night, slopping through mud and braving summer heat, the Second arrived at Chateau-Thierry. A brigade immediately was thrown into line. The Americans struck hard and the invaders, surprised, were halted, reeled, and then gave way before a demon-like counter attack. A brigade of Americans had saved Paris, had given France new hope, had proved the mettle of American troops. These men France thanked were soldiers of the Fourth Brigade, U. S. Marines, commanded by an Aggie man, Brigadier-General James G. Harbord, '87. Following is an extract from a letter General Harbord wrote to his mother, Mrs. Effie Harbord of Manhattan on June 2, the second day of the drive:

"One of my regiments was put in line hurriedly yesterday afternoon. Today, part of another one. They have done splendidly today, and the slopes are piled with dead Germans in one place where the machine guns caught them. Everything seems to be going all right, and I don't think the Germans will offend much farther in this part of the line."

Later, on June 9, after the General and his brigade had been commended in orders from army headquarters—it was the first brigade to be so honored—General Harbord wrote:

"Naturally, I am feeling very happy and glad over it, though saddened by the thought of the brave men lost. Eleven officers of the brigade have been killed this week, many more wounded, and several hundreds of men killed and wounded. But the brigade has stood like a rock, and as the French papers said, 'Their gallantry put a brake on the German advance.'"

Although the most sensational deed of General Harbord, the repulse at Chateau-Thierry is only a small part of the work this Aggie man has been doing. First of all he went to France as Chief of Staff to General Pershing, and for more than a year was the executive officer of the Expeditionary Forces. The Marne battle won him promotion, and as Major-General he assumed command of the Second Division.

The tremendous amount of quartermaster work in France brought General Pershing new problems, and he called upon General Harbord to solve them. The Aggie man was made Chief of the Service of Supplies, a position second in importance to that of the Commanding General.

Men of '19 Who Served

LEADING all classes of the college in the number of men in service and in the roll of those who lost their lives, the Class of '19 has a service record of which every member is proud. Of the approximately eighteen hundred Aggie men who wore the khaki or the blue, nearly two hundred are known to have been members of this year's graduating class. The proportion of men who made the sacrifice is even greater, for eight of the twenty-nine who are known to have died would have received their degrees this spring.

In the list of the men of '19 who were lost is included the names of some of the most prominent students of the college. In the one year he competed in college athletics, "Eddie" Wells, who would have finished his course in February of this year, was accorded the position of fullback on the All-Missouri Valley football eleven and had been placed as a guard on the picked basket ball five of the conference. He was killed in action while advancing with his men of the Rainbow Division in the St. Mihiel drive, September 12, 1918. "Eddie" was a first lieutenant. In the same battle and on the same date, Sergeant Lester B. Hamil lost his life in action. For his bravery in the engagement, Sergeant Hamil was cited by his regimental commander. He was a member of the 353rd Infantry of the famous Eighty-ninth Division, which was trained by General Leonard Wood at Camp Funston, twelve miles from Manhattan.

Clede R. Keller, a former cadet officer, has been missing in action since September —, 1918, and friends practically have given up hopes for his return. Keller, who was a first lieutenant with Company "I," a Manhattan unit in the Thirty-fifth Division, is known to have been severely wounded in action. A number of men of his company have said that he was killed by the explosion of a shell while litter-bearers were carrying him to a dressing station. His name, however, has not appeared on war department lists.

Two aviators, Loyd Vorhies and Ray F. Glover, have been killed in airplane accidents. Both were officers. Vorhies, who was promising material for the Aggie track team, died when his machine fell in France, and Glover was killed in an accident at Langley Field, Virginia.

C. LaFayette Irwin died from injuries received in a football game. He was stationed at Honolulu, Hawaii.

SOME OF THE 1919 MEN WHO SERVED

To Those Who Helped

MOTHERS and fathers, we thank you for the splendid manner in which you have responded to our requests for pictures of your sons. For your interest and co-operation we owe you a lasting debt of gratitude.

Men of 1919, your enthusiasm and hearty support of the ROYAL PURPLE have been a constant source of inspiration to us. Whether your greetings came from France or from camps in our own United States, they brought with them good cheer and encouragement.

Editors.

HO has not, especially in early youth, had a great desire to know big people personally? When we were little boys and girls, and went to community picnics, we stood quite in awe of the man who made the speech. The person in school who had shaken hands with the governor held enviable prestige.

Here at Kansas State we have come to know many great persons, and the realization of childhood ambitions has not been a disappointment. These men and women have given us the heritage of faith in life, for acquaintanceship has brought the realization that it is not money and brain that has made them great, but heart and soul.

PRESIDENT WILLIAM M. JARDINE

THE college catalogue gives President Jardine's record such as college professors give each other before making chapel speeches. It lists his degrees and the places he has served. It is enough for the students at Kansas State to know that he is here now and that he holds a master's degree in Aggie friendship and democracy. There isn't a mean scared freshman who would be afraid to tell the president his troubles.

DEAN JULIUS TERRASS WILLARD

Dean Willard is vice-president of the college, dean of the division of General Science and knows much about chemistry and other sciences. But we are interested in him because he is interested in us. We have a feeling that he is interested in our future careers. We know that five years from now a letter would find sympathetic audience and recognition in the office of Dean Willard.

DEAN MARY P. VAN ZILE

Dean Van Zile thoroughly understands. She might have been a girl a very short time ago for she knows just how we feel and think. She is a jolly pal when we are good—but even if we have done something rather awful we can be sure that she will be fair and kind. These are the qualities which make her worthy to be dean of women.

DEAN HELEN B. THOMPSON

Dean Thompson is the efficient head of the Home Economics department. But one of the nicest things we know about her is that she sat and rooted for the Aggies through one football day that was so shivering cold there were few other women on the bleachers.

DEAN A. A. POTTER

The engineering men with one accord acclaim their dean a good sport, which in college language means much. Again there is a real man back of national fame and achievement.

ROYAL

DEAN F. D. FARRELL

Dean Farrell educates farmers without spoiling them. What better work could he do?

DEAN HARRY UMBERGER

At the head of the extension department, Dean Umberger has the opportunity to take the Kansas State Agricultural College to many persons who cannot come to it. And he sends the Aggie spirit free gratis.

DEAN H. L. KENT

Dean Kent gets jobs for us and he cares what kind of a job it is.

History of the Class of 1919

IN THE fall of 1915 there came to Kansas State College a group of talented youngsters who organized themselves into the Class of 1919. They chose as their motto, "Be on the job" and they have been on the job ever since.

Freshmen caps were worn religiously in 1915. In 1916 they were worn again but by the class of 1920. Why? Because the Class of 1919 saw to it that they were worn. Those were days of real sport down in Aggieville. More than one member of the Class of 1920 moved stiffly for a few days after the Class of 1919 had persuaded him to wear his perky little Freshman cap.

When Aggie Pop Night was invented by the Y. W. C. A. it was named so by one of the members of the Class of 1919. Grace Lightfoot's imagination and ingeniousness served her well, for Aggie Pop Night has played an important part in college activities. It was Rex Criswell who originated the idea of the Freshman-Sophomore Hop which is becoming a custom at Kansas State. It was the Class of 1919 that started the handing down of the Key to the Campus to the Freshmen each year at the Freshman-Sophomore Hop. It was a member of the Class of 1919 that suggested the all class election system which will probably become a custom at Kansas State. The idea of starting a fund for building a campanile on the campus also originated in this class.

When there came a call to the colors this class responded and many of its men went across, some never to return. Among these were Eddie Wells and Lloyd Vorhies. No men could be better liked or more respected than those two loyal Aggies who gave their lives for the sake of humanity.

The girls have done their share too. During the S. A. T. C., when the men were giving their time to their country, the girls took it upon themselves to keep the old time class spirit alive. Was there to be a class book? Of course. The girls were on the job and the 1919 Royal Purple is the result.

The college needed pep and there is nothing that brings the student body together more quickly than scandal sheets. Therefore there were scandal sheets of vivid hues. No one knows who printed these, but it isn't probable that the Class of 1919 let a chance go by for creating pep without having its finger in the pie.

Far be it from the Class of 1919 to seem conceited, for it is not. It is merely proud of its record, for it has a good record. Should the succeeding classes surpass this record we shall be only too glad to congratulate them. If they do not measure up to it we shall regret it.

—Betty Cotton, Class Historian.

Juniors

Class of 1920

Colors—Red and White.

WITH a strong determination to come back and win the fight for knowledge the class of 1920 responded nobly to the call. Ike Gatz was chosen president and under his leadership the campaign started with a zip. The first difficulty to be overcome was the "Stick Around Till Christmas" organization that insisted that military tactics came first and that knowledge held only second place. After much tactful maneuvering the situation was mastered and knowledge came out victorious. Once more steps were directed toward the Hall of Fame and then the "wicked chimmie" came along to distract attention. After a brief struggle it died an early death, and from then on Juniors walked the straight and narrow path toward finals.

Juniors have had fun and have enjoyed life. There have been ups and downs but they have put spice into the meetings. Next year they will mount the final steps to the Hall of Fame and as noble seniors will do their best to leave a mark as one of the live classes of K. S. A. C.

The Class of 1921

THE FALL of 1918 with the whole student body under military regulations was perhaps the hardest season the classes of K. S. A. C. have ever seen within the last decade. Many of our strongest men were taken right out of class ranks and put into military camps. The student soldiers were kept too close to the barracks to take any part in class affairs. The "flu" made many of these men its victims and broke into school two different times. Finally, though, girls were elected to the responsible offices and came to the rescue of class affairs. From that election on, things have run quite smoothly.

The Sophomores had a very nice dance during the first semester and indulged in the usual sport of intruding at Freshmen parties.

The Class of '21 is well represented in basket ball, football, debate, dramatics and several other college activities. They have just had a very successful and peppy election and are making live plans for the rest of this year.

Class History of the School of Ag.

THIS, the Class of 1919, is the fifth class of the School of Agriculture to graduate from the vocational course connected with K. S. A. C. The class early formed an organization with Robert Keys as president. The first social function was a mixer held in the Domestic Science building and this brought about amity and good fellowship. A remarkable amount of interest was shown in athletics in the school of agriculture in the year of 1916-17. There were boys' and girls' basket ball teams and a girls' hockey team which won the hockey championship of K. S. A. C.

During the second year the class organization lapsed, but a mixer was held in the spring. The third and the last year began with enthusiasm with Ben Thompson as president. Two all-school of Agriculture social functions were held. The first was a mixer in the gymnasium under the chairmanship of Miss Orem and J. R. Smithheizer. Every one who was present will testify they spent a very enjoyable evening. The other was a party on the Country Club grounds under the chairmanship of Herman Metz. This was one of the most successful events of the year.

Most of the class are members of one or the other of the two literary societies from which they gain much in literary training and leadership. Joint programs, spelling matches, hikes and the annual taffy pull, being some of the events of the year.

The days spent in the School of Agriculture will always be among the happiest.

MILITARY

Aggie Men Were Ready

WHEN war clouds, which had been threatening the nation for two years, finally broke on April 6, 1917, the United States found itself in a pitiful state of unpreparedness. There was a hustle to send men to officers' training camps, to build cantonments, to plan for a new air service, to provide for supplies and to organize generally for a vigorous offensive in France.

One group of civilians, however, was partially prepared. These men were the alumni and undergraduates of Kansas State—men who had learned the fundamentals of drill on the slope east of the auditorium. These trained Aggies responded splendidly, and proved by their rapid promotions that military training in the college—training which Aggie men had been given for years—had prepared them to face squarely the problems of war.

The fall of 1918 found the former Reserve Officers' Training Corps replaced by the Students' Army Training Corps. The College campus was alive with khaki-clad men and every day found them busy with study and drill.

In the following pages an effort is made to portray a bit of the military side of college life at K. S. A. C.

CAPTAIN GEORGE STURGES

received his commission from the second officers' training camp, Camp Grant, Illinois. He was assigned to Camp Funston, where he was with the 353rd Infantry. Captain Sturges came to K. S. A. C. as commanding officer of the first training detachment, and later commanded both sections of the S. A. T. C.

CAPTAIN STURGES

CAPTAIN KEMPER

CAPTAIN RALPH L. KEMPER

received his commission from the second officers' training camp, Fort Benjamin Harrison, Indiana. He was first sent to Camp Funston, where he served with the Machine Gun Company of the 353rd Infantry. He came to K. S. A. C. with Captain Sturges, and later was in charge of Section B of the S. A. T. C.

Part Played by the S. A. T. C.

THE OUTSTANDING FEATURE of the military work of this year unquestionably consists in the organization and experience of the collegiate section of the Students' Army Training Corps, briefly designated as Section A, S. A. T. C. Units of this corps were organized in more than six hundred educational institutions. The general purpose was to give practical military training, together with instruction in subjects of military value, to a large body of men, many of whom would be good officer material.

From May 15 to June 15 the college trained in half a dozen vocational mechanical lines a detachment of two hundred and fifty drafted men. From July 15 to September 15 a second detachment of five hundred men received similar instruction and about September 15 a third detachment arrived for such instruction. On October 1, 1919, the training detachment of five hundred men became the vocational section, or Section B of the S. A. T. C., and on the same date the collegiate section was inducted into the service. Impressive ceremonies were held on the slope east of the auditorium.

College had opened on September 9 and in preparation for the collegiate section of the S. A. T. C., all young men in college curricula who desired to enter the corps were given assignments in harmony with instructions from the War Department. The committee of the War Department, however, issued orders later which made it necessary to change the assignments of a large number of the students who were twenty years or more of age. These and other orders from the department were cheerfully complied with.

By an order of the State Board of Health the college was closed on account of the epidemic of influenza from October 12 to November 10. Shortly after the closing of the college the influenza broke out among the soldiers, and the military medical officers, assisted by other physicians, Red Cross nurses, and volunteer nurses from the ladies of the faculty and of Manhattan, were taxed to the utmost to care for the sick. At the height of the epidemic six fraternity houses and the Y. M. C. A. building, all of which had been in use as barracks, were required for hospital purposes. Two hundred and fifty-seven of the collegiate section suffered from the disease. Four of these died. In Section B there were two hundred and thirteen cases with six deaths. Comparatively few students outside of the corps were effected. A second outbreak of the influenza in the city caused another closing of the college by order of the local board of health from December 9 to December 30.

With the signing of the armistice November 11 the interest of the students in the S. A. T. C. and in military work slackened, and the interference of military routine with college duties and privileges was felt to a great extent. The corps was demobilized within a period of a few days beginning December 10.

Building the Barracks

When the men of the first training detachment arrived on the college campus on May 15, 1918, the authorities were without barracks in which to house the newcomers. The only available accommodations were in the college gymnasium. Those in charge decided to use this building as temporary quarters, and the "gym" became the home of the two hundred fifty men of the first detachment. The regular college activities for which the gymnasium is ordinarily used were dispensed with, and the immense room was lined with rows of cots.

This housing provision was merely temporary and as soon as possible barracks were to be constructed. Preliminaries were completed and the actual construction of the first building was begun on June 10.

That part of the campus where the new barracks were to be located took on new life. A large number of workers were employed and every day they were busily engaged in the construction of the soldiers' quarters. Steadily the work proceeded and with as great rapidity as could be expected. By the middle of July, little more than a month after operations had been begun, the first barracks was completed. At the same time five hundred new men were sent to begin the vocational course. The one building which had just been completed could accommodate only one hundred fifty men. One hundred soldiers were housed in the largest recitation room of the shop building and the remainder were quartered in the gymnasium.

The building of the other barracks was pushed as fast as possible. On August 8 the second building was completed and ready for occupancy.

The soldiers were moved out of their temporary quarters and into the barracks as rapidly as these buildings were completed. On August 11 the mess hall was ready for operation and five hundred men were served there. Before this time a large number had been given meals in the college cafeteria building. By September 10, the beginning of the college year, four large barracks had been erected and were occupied by men of the training detachments. This meant that the work had been done in surprising time—three months. When the college students returned they found that this new group of buildings had sprung up on the campus like a mushroom growth. The last barracks, the fifth one, was completed by the first of October, when the collegiate and vocational sections of the newly organized Students' Army Training Corps were inducted into the service. As many as possible of the student soldiers were housed in the barracks on the campus, the remainder being assigned to certain houses in town which had been turned over to the S. A. T. C. There were two mess halls on the campus, and they were large enough to accommodate all the men.

In addition to these buildings, a "Y Hut" was constructed by the Young Men's Christian Association. This was near the barracks. It was not completed, however, until after the signing of the armistice. Its purpose was the same as that of all other huts of the same organization—to give the soldiers a place in which to read and write, and spend any leisure minutes which they might have.

The Officers in Charge

MAJOR DAVIDSON

CAPTAIN KEMPER

AT THE beginning of the second semester, when the Reserve Officers' Training Corps was to be organized, Captain Ralph Kemper, the only officer remaining from the Students' Army Training Corps group, took charge temporarily. He divided the corps into four companies. Soon, however, Major L. C. Davidson, a West Point graduate who had been with the Forty-first Infantry at Camp Funston, was detailed as Commandant and Professor of Military Science and Tactics. He organized the advanced classes of the corps, and picked out cadet officers to take charge of the companies.

The work of these two men has been important in the good results obtained in the short time that the R. O. T. C. was functioning. Both are young and have plenty of initiative. These qualities, together with the ability of both officers to get into close touch with the students, made them popular with the men in the corps.

The student heads of the corps are Bruce B. Brewer, senior in industrial journalism, who is cadet major, and Raymond C. Plyley, first lieutenant and battalion adjutant. Mr. Plyley is a junior in engineering. E. C. Waters is the battalion sergeant-major.

The Reserve Officers' Training Corps

THE RESERVE OFFICERS' TRAINING CORPS was organized by the government to provide for a supply of reserve officers in time of war. Unfortunately, the system had been in operation only a short time and in only a few colleges when America was plunged into war with the Central Powers, and a supply of trained men with which to officer the troops was not available. Even in the short time that the plan had been in operation however, wonderful results were obtained, and a limited supply of students were commissioned directly from the corps.

The R. O. T. C. was established at the Kansas State Agricultural College at the beginning of the spring semester, 1918. A regimental organization was perfected under Captain W. P. J. O'Neill, an officer detailed by the War Department. At the beginning of the fall semester, 1918, the R. O. T. C. gave way to the Students' Army Training Corps, an organization with a larger and broader officers' training plan. This student army was demobilized following the signing of the armistice, November 11, 1918, and at the beginning of the spring semester, 1919, the R. O. T. C. came back into its own.

Major L. C. Davidson was detailed as Commandant and Professor of Military Science and Tactics, and Captain Ralph L. Kemper, a former S. A. T. C. officer, remained to assist Major Davidson.

Military Science as taught under orders from the War Department is divided into classes, with each college group studying different subjects. All students in the corps drill two hours each week. During the present semester this practical work has been given during the first and second hours on Monday morning. Then the groups of underclassmen are split up to receive an hour of instruction during the week under Captain Kemper.

Juniors and Seniors who elect to take the advanced courses are grouped into classes under Major Davidson. All officers are picked from the upperclassmen, and these assemble immediately following the drill period for a discussion with the Commandant of problems which arose during the drill, and of the plans for the following week. Aid in giving commands is also a part of this hour's instruction.

In the advanced courses are taught such subjects as the general military policy of the United States, principles of military combat, camp sanitation, recent military history, technical problems in patrolling and in advance, rear and flank guards, trench warfare, minor warfare, camp expedients, marches and camps, orders and messages, field orders, map maneuvers, company administration, minor tactics, elements of international law, property accountability and methods of obtaining supplies and property.

Students in all courses receive one complete woolen uniform each year. Rifles, bayonets and other ordnance materials are furnished by the government. Students who elect to attend a one month's summer camp receive commutation of subsistence, amounting to approximately twelve dollars for each of twelve months.

THE YOUNG WOMEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION, founded at Kansas State Agricultural College in 1885, has grown steadily in size and influence until today it stands as the one all-college organization where women can work and serve in the common cause of making Christian citizenship a reality on our college campus. Every girl, regardless of belief or creed, is coming to have a deep interest in the activities of the Christian Association and finds through, service for others, a larger fuller college life. The women of the college by untiring interest and devotion have made this association a power at K. S. A. C. It stands as a monument to their efforts.

Engineering Association

Pres. H. FAIRMAN, Vice-Pres. H. G. SCHULTZ, Sec. F. WESTCOTT, Treas. E. WILLIAMSON

BRANCHES of two national engineering societies, The American Institute of Electrical Engineers and Mechanical Engineers, have been established at the Kansas State Agricultural College for the benefit of the engineering students. These societies hold bi-weekly meetings, at which papers and discussions based on their experience and study are presented by students and teachers. At frequent intervals practicing engineers from the outside are secured to address the students.

The Architectural Club, composed of students and instructors in architecture, and the Civil Engineers Society, composed of students and instructors in civil engineering, also meet bi-weekly for a purpose similar.

The Engineers' Association is composed of students from all curricula of the division of Engineering. Its objects are to further the interests of the division in the College and the state, and to promote acquaintanceship and fellowship among the students of the division. It meets bi-weekly, the meetings alternating with those of the departmental organizations, and with them constituting the seminar of the Engineering division. Members of the Engineering faculty and eminent consulting engineers present addresses on the engineering topics at these meetings. The Engineers' Association also issues semi-annually "The K. S. A. C. Engineer," a publication dealing with the activities of the engineering division.

Veterinary Medical Association

Organized October, 1906

The object of this organization is technical training along veterinary lines, together with such social and literary training as may accompany it. Two meetings are held each month and consist of a program and the regular business meeting. The program consists of discussions by the faculty, prominent men in allied lines and the students themselves. Upon graduation all members in good standing are given sheep skins in recognition of their work.

Young Men's Christian Association

Faculty Advisory Committee:

H. L. KENT, Chairman
H. L. DURHAM

Officers:

HOMER CROSS, Student President
W. W. McLEAN, Secretary
C. F. COOL, Substitute Secretary
J. F. DANIELS, War Work Secretary

During the past year the local Young Men's Christian Association has passed through a series of experiences that have brought about a change in the character of its work. In June, the former secretary, Mr. W. W. McLean, sailed for France in the war work service. Upon the establishment of the S. A. T. C. in October, the student cabinet ceased to exist, the Y. M. C. A. building was converted into a barracks, and a reading and lounging room was established on the campus in F3. To further serve the men of the S. A. T. C. the War Work Council provided a hut close by the campus barracks and placed a secretary in charge.

Upon the demobilization of the S. A. T. C., it became necessary for the local Association to re-establish itself. In answer to the general feeling that the organization had not in the past met the existing needs of our student life, it was determined to place the Association upon a broader basis. To that end, a three-fold policy was adopted. The building on the corner of Eleventh and Fremont will be used only for dormitory purposes until such time as it may be disposed of to advantage. The Association headquarters will be located permanently on the campus. A secretary, a man who knows present day college student life, will be secured at a very substantial increase of salary.

The Association looks forward to future growth and development that it may fill its place in the life of K. S. A. C.

Aggie Pop Night

A SCENE FROM THE WINNING STUNT "WEDDING IN THE WILDS"

Once each year every student at the Kansas State Agricultural College tries to be clever and originate a winning stunt for Aggie Popularity Night. Each organization on the hill plans a stunt and presents it to a committee which chooses seven to be staged Aggie Pop Night. The organization presenting the most clever and original stunt receives a silver loving cup to hold until another Pop Night. This cup was given to the cause by the Y. W. C. A. Advisory Board. This year the cup went to the Eurodelphian Literary Society.

The President's Inauguration

This year the history of K. S. A. C. will be marked by the inauguration of William M. Jardine, the seventh president of K. S. A. C.

During his association with the college, President Jardine has won a lasting place in the hearts of the students by the "Pep" and never failing interest he shows in college activities. Under his leadership the future of K. S. A. C. is assured.

Dr. Raymond A. Pearson, president of the Iowa State College, was the principal speaker of the inaugural exercises.

The inaugural banquet was prepared and served in the domestic science dining room by the Institutional Management girls.

A reception was held in the Gymnasium at night. Faculty members and representatives from over the state were guests.

The Ides of March

We got to saying "Hell, Yes!" at pep meetings and then we thought up Rough Neck day. The first sign of spring at K. S. A. C. is a poster on the bulletin board warning the public to beware of the Ides of March. Because the Ides of March are considered more dangerous than the city police, on the day of the fifteenth, the populace comes out dressed fit to be killed.

Coxey's army would have blushed like a spring dawn to see K. S. A. C. so out at the elbows. Everyone comes to school dressed like they used to at home on the farm—each looks as brainless as he naturally is.

However, it is the one day in all the year that we shabby ones need not be envious. It is a day when we better dressed ones are brought to realize the real insignificance of silk and fine linen. It adjusts our sense of values. It brings us all together. It justifies its existence.

May Fete

When spring comes to the campus at K. S. A. C., it brings with it the beautiful custom of crowning the Queen of May. A senior girl is chosen by the student body to reign for a day. From her throne she reviews the graceful dances, mad frolics and joyous games of her subjects. In gay procession they pass beneath the campus trees and play on the campus green. Then, just before the sun reddens the west, boys and girls wind the May pole and May day becomes another happy college memory.

Inter-Fraternity Basket Ball

UNUSUAL interest was manifested this year by the national fraternities in the contest for the basket ball championship cup which is presented annually to the winner by the Pan-Hellenic Council. This interest was due largely to the uncertainty of the final result, the strength of each team being an unknown quantity, the outcome being further complicated by the addition of a new member to the Council, the Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity.

In 1917 the Aztex fraternity, which was at that time a member of the Council, won the championship. Last year the Sigma Nu fraternity came into possession of the cup as winner of the contest. To have the trophy as a permanent object of pride and glory it must be won three times by any one of the contestants. No organization has yet succeeded in getting its name on the cup more than once. However, the Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity made a flying start this year by winning every game and the championship with a total score of 72 as against a total of 29 made by all of its opponents.

The success of the team was due largely to the work of "Susie" Sears who played an invincible game. "Ship" Winter was also a bulwark of strength for the Sig Eps before he became ineligible because of playing on the varsity squad. The other members of the Championship quintet were Fairman, Janssen, Haughton, Knisely, Raymond and MacGregor.

TEST PICKED
The K. S. victory over Nebraska was pretty much a foregone conclusion, although Coach Cleveland used his strategy well all during the first half. In order to save his stars for the second game, Cleveland had the rest of the team play the first half.

As neither Coach Cleveland nor Coach Schell have seen the film yet, it is hard to say how good the team's strategy was. However, it is pointed out that Nebraska's strong point is their defense. Also that the team, while not as large as the usual basketball team, is unusually fast.

Not many know it, but it is supposed that the teams will have their own set of uniforms. The Aggie cheerleaders will be wearing their uniforms at the game.

1919 Football

AT THE beginning of the football season of 1918 the Aggie lineup of prospects seemed rather depleted. Although there were forty men out for the first practice, these men for the most part lacked experience. Some had played on high school teams for four years and some had come from other colleges, but still there was a doubt as to whether the Missouri Valley conference would allow first year men to play on the Varsity teams. Old men were a minus quantity. Gatz, Husted, Bogue, Hinds were the only letter men that returned to resume their studies.

Around these four men as a nucleus Coach Clevenger and Assistant-Coach "Germany" Shulz built a team that, had it been allowed to finish the season would have run Kansas University a close race for the championship of the Valley. After the first three games had been played Hinds who was showing better form than he had the year before and Murphy, one of the strongest centers the Aggies have had in many years were called to training camps and the coaches had to find new material to fill the places made vacant by these two veterans.

Throughout the entire season new difficulties were presenting themselves that made it no easy task for the coaches to keep a team going regular. First the organization of the S. A. T. C. interfered with the practice hours, then came the news that some of the men who had expected to play would drop out on account of injuries received in previous years or on account of studies. On top of all this the influenza epidemic broke out and on that account several of the scheduled games had to be cancelled. Practice games went by as if nothing had interfered.

The Kansas University-Kansas Aggie game was the big contest of the season and was played on the Kansas gridiron on Thanksgiving day. The field was covered with water and the Aggie team was light. The old jinx at this time twelve years old was still with the Aggie and the game was lost to Kansas, 13 to 7. The football season ended with the fans hoping that the jinx might be broken in 1919, the thirteenth year of its existence.

FOOTBALL—Continued

"Johnnie" Clarke, K. S. A. C.'s all around athlete is the same star in football that he is in basketball and baseball. Johnnie has the Aggie spirit and he puts it across. Unfortunately this is his last year.

"Smoky Hill" Bogue, captain-elect of the 1919 team has all the spirit in the universe and with Joe at the head of the Aggie aggregation Coach Clevenger expects to have one of the most perfect machines that have ever existed in the Missouri Valley conference, next year. Joe has two more years of Aggie football before him. In those two years he will show the Valley a real end.

Cliff Gallagher, the speedy Oklahoman who first played on the Aggie gridiron as an opponent with the Oklahoma Aggies in 1916 is one of the fastest, brainiest and smallest halfbacks that the Wildcats have possessed for several years. Cliff was easily persuaded to change Aggie schools and has already established himself as one of the necessities of the future success of the Purple football.

To find a better, bigger guard than "Ike" Gatz would require a thorough search of the largest schools in the country. Ike after playing a good game on the Freshmen Varsity in 1916 at center was transferred the next year to guard on the Varsity. This year he not only held down the left guard position but was chosen unanimously as the captain of the Aggie S. A. T. C. team.

Young playing beside Gatz made a wonderful combination of weight endurance and fight on the left side of the line, a combination that only very few opponents could break through. Young came to the Aggies from the Kansas City Veterinary College. He is a Senior but is thinking seriously of refusing the diploma in order to play with the best team in the Valley next year.

THE BIG FIVE

ALL-VALLEY SELECTIONS

FOOTBALL—Continued

"Pete" Hixson, a junior vet, showed a wonderful development this year in the half-back position. Pete, last year was one of the best "subs" that Coach Clevenger carried on his trips; this year he was one of the best half-backs in the Valley, next year the Wildcats will place great confidence in this small but mighty Wild-kitten.

"Ship" Winters, playing his first year of college football, made one of the fastest, hardest hitting ends in the Missouri Valley this year. His play was both sure and spectacular. Ship could be depended upon to get his man on every play around his end. Three years more of college football lies before this man and he is expected to make one of the best athletes the Kansas Aggies ever turned out.

Husted, "Hustey" for short, playing at the full-back position was to be counted on for five yards at any time that the team needed it and was a consistent ground gainer for the Aggies. Several times when the Aggies needed only a few feet to make a touchdown, Husted was called upon to make the gain and was successful.

"Mac" Magrath played as first alternate to right tackle and right guard. His height accompanied with a grim determination to get the other fellow has won for Mac a name that the Aggies will retain in their memory until football has become one of the middle-age sports.

"Ding" Burton, quarter on the Freshman Varsity of 1917, and pilot of the regulars during the S. A. T. C. season of 1918, proved to be one of the mainstays of the Aggie aggregation. Even at times when Ding was "out of his head" on account of injuries, he continued to run the team with the determination that made him one of the selections for the All-Valley quarter position.

FOOTBALL—Continued

Lloyd Miller at half-back played a game that did justice to the efforts that he put in in practice. Miller is one of the hardest working men that has ever donned an Aggie football uniform and played with a Purple team. After playing a year on the Freshman squad Miller "subbed" a year and then played this year at either half-back position relieving Gallagher and Hixon.

"Chief" alias "Young Stiff" Randals has started to place his name before the Missouri Valley conference along with that of his brother "Stiff" as one of the hardest hitting tacklers and one of the slickest field runners that ever wore the moleskins. His carriage, his hair and his smile are the things that bring back the memory of his older brother.

Dewey Houston was the one man on the team that could be depended upon for three points in almost any football game of the season. His toe was one of the strong points of the Aggie Wildcats. As a guard he was a strong, consistent line plunger.

Basket Ball

ANOTHER championship basket ball team has been added to the list held by the Kansas Aggies. At the opening of the season it was predicted that the Purple five would clean up on the valley and they did. The season started with a rush. It was an easy matter for the Aggies to clean up on the teams from Fort Riley and St. Marys and Camp Funston. The Emporia Normals, high in the State Championship race, were also added to the string of unsuccessful opponents.

The season started with one of the best teams of the valley and the Aggies were again successful, this time downing Kansas University twice in as many games. Then followed the remainder of teams in the valley. No team showed the Aggies a hard battle until Nebraska invaded the Nichols court and put up a likely scrap. Two games were taken from this team, one of the contenders for the "rag."

The victorious season continued until the champions met Missouri on the court at Columbia. The Aggies seemed to care little for the all-victorious season after the championship had been won. Both games were lost to the Missouri team without a struggle, but the Aggies had annexed another championship.

Next season will be another good season for the Purple team. Plenty of good material is available from this year's Freshman team. A number of the old men of the former Aggie teams will be returned to school by that time and another championship is predicted for the Kansas State College.

George Blair in his second year with the squad has shown the Aggie rooters that it pays to stick to the game thru various odds. Blair graduates this spring and will not be in the team next year.

"Mac" McCullom was another one of the men who helped to make two championship teams possible for the Aggies. After returning from the army Mac donned a suit and made the guards play to gain their position. Mac will be a member of the squad about which Coach Clevenger will build another championship team in 1920.

"Ship" Winter didn't know at the first of the year that he could play basket ball, but after playing half the season with the scrubs he was transferred to the Varsity and played a good game at center. Next year "Ship" will be running someone a stiff race for the right guard position.

Kecker played on the championship team two years ago that won their last two games from Missouri and again helped the Aggies to obtain the rag. Keck entered school late but worked into shape in a very short time and played in every game after the middle of the season.

"Shorty" Foltz won't be back again. This is his last year for the Aggies. He was another veteran of the championship team. As a running mate for Kecker, "Shorty" has shown his ability and has shown his willingness to help make for the Aggies the best team in four states.

BASKET BALL—Continued.

Captain "Johnny" Clarke playing his third year of College Basket Ball at right guard has proven himself to be the best guard in the valley this year. "Johnny" besides being a steady consistent guard is a basket tosser of no small reputation. It is his policy to get at least two or three baskets during the course of the game.

To find a team mate for the captain was the difficulty that confronted the coaches when the season opened. In "Shorty" Cowell was found all that was wanted, a man that could hold anything if necessity demanded and could go down and toss a basket.

Along with other Freshmen in 1917 came a man whom they called Jennings. He was reputed as having been the best high school center in Kansas. After playing one year on the Freshman team he was given his chance with the Varsity and has made good. Jenks is so tall that he shoots baskets over his opponents heads and gets the tip-off with ease.

Another first year man that has proven himself is "Ham" Bunger. "Ham" hails from Colorado, but the Aggies claim him for their own and are proud to do it. A quick, fast, hard playing forward that has not yet found his equal in the Missouri Valley—that's Bunger.

"Heine" Hinds, playing his second year at the forward position, is still going with the speed that has characterized his playing in the three years he has been in school. Heinies floor work has gained for him a reputation as one of the shiftiest of basket ball players.

THE TRACK season of 1919 at Kansas State opened with more men out for the team than any other year previous. However the material that appeared seemed to lack experience and confidence in themselves.

Captain Foreman and Frost were the only two men back that had had experience on the Varsity team.

The season opened with Kansas in an indoor meet in the Nichols gymnasium. The Kansans were easily outclassed, the Purple speedsters carrying away the honors in the dashes, the hurdles, the shot put, the mile and the two-mile events and placing in all the other events. The final score of the meet was 28 2-3 for Kansas to 36 1-3 for the Aggies.

The feature meet of the season was the K. S. A. C. meet held in the Convention Hall at Kansas City where the Aggie dash man, Gallagher, broke the world's record in the 50-yard low hurdles and where the Aggies carried away more points than any other organization represented. Watson took a first in the mile, Foreman won the three points in the same race, Beckett took third in the half-mile and Frost tied with Powell of Missouri for second in the pole vault. "Jack" Evans who two years ago was the fastest high school dash man in the state donned Aggie colors when the outdoor practice began and has been showing good form. "Ship" Winters out for the quarter-mile showed good material and will make a good runner for the 1920 team. Tom Neely after the entrance of Evans into the game devoted all of his time to the quarter-mile and has been showing good form. Frost has been making eleven feet consistently this year and expects to do better next year in the pole vault. Depuy is one of the contestants for the quarter-mile who is making good in his race. Captain Foreman still has his equal in the two-mile to meet. He has not yet been defeated in a conference meet.

Prospects point to a great team for the 1920 track team. More material will be available from the Freshman class than ever before and some old men will be back.

Intensive Vocational Courses

THE AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE interests hundreds of men and many young women each year in Special Intensive Courses related to Engineering, the practical intensive work of the Housekeepers' Course and the Farmers' Short Course, and the technical training provided in the Commercial Creamery Short Course.

The special courses related to Engineering train auto mechanics, tractor operators, carpenters, blacksmiths, machinists, foundrymen, telegraphers and electricians. Students may enroll to prepare for any one of the first six vocations named on the first Monday in any month from September to May, inclusive. Each student devotes his entire time to training in his chosen field and usually continues the work until he has acquired the proficiency desired, whether that be for two three, or more months. This method of training practical mechanics was fully developed and its effectiveness proved in the training of thousands of men in the vocational sections of Uncle Sam's army. This year has proved that it is just as applicable and efficient in the training of civilians. In the courses in electrical repair work, radio and telegraphy, students may enroll only on the first Monday of January.

The Housekeepers' Course provides special training in home making. It is given during the first fifteen weeks each semester.

The Farmers' Short Course embraces the most intense and practical work in all phases of farming of economic importance in Kansas. The Commercial Creamery Short Course is a technical course for creamery men. These courses are given during the months of January and February each year, enrollment day being the first Monday in January.

The value to the state of this practical and intensive training in farming, home making, and the various phases of farm engineering given each year to men and women, mostly those actually engaged in the farming industry, can hardly be estimated. Many students, having become acquainted with the work offered, return to the College a second and third time, each time taking new work valuable to them in their vocations. Having completed this second course, they select a third.

The popularity of these courses was demonstrated by the large attendance this year. In spite of unsettled conditions—the war situation and resulting scarcity of labor, and the serious health situation throughout the state during much of the winter—more than three hundred civilian students enrolled in these courses. This enrollment was increased during the month of January by more than two hundred and fifty soldiers from Camp Funston. The picture on the following pages was taken January 27, 1919. It shows two hundred and fifty soldier students and about as many civilians. In the front row of the soldier group may be seen their officers in charge. In the front row of the civilian group are the members of the College faculty especially concerned with the work of these students.

Gathering Crumbs from the Faculty Table

THE college hill was barren of the things that make it glad.
Those who could had gone to war; the others wished they had.
All traditions were about to gasp their last and die,
But the class of 1919 couldn't let the book go by.
So they fixed up a committee with instructions to go see
A few of the high moguls about whether it should be.
The moguls stroked their furrowed brows and then with judgment rare
They impressed the young committee with the troubles they'd ensnare.
Each had a different "idee" as to what the book should hold (Their suggestions were so waterproof the campus must be told.)

N. A. Crawford, head professor of the Journalism crowd, pointed out the details, in a speech he gave aloud, to the open-mouthed committee that lined up in his room, of the anguish, and the struggle, and dark and deepening gloom, they were likely to encounter if they undertook a book. "Now a four-page balanced sheet of the perfection and the style of the accurate Industrialist would beat a book a mile. With some interviews on something, bits of verse, some sage, some free, an editorial or so on cigarettes and tea. And the college shop would print it at a nifty little gain"—Then one of the committee noticed it was going to rain.

NOBODY CAN READ EM

THEY waited then until they had an afternoon to spare very an bravely marched into meet Dean Willard in his lair. His attitude was cheerful. He considered that the cash might every bit as well be spent for annuals as trash. A necessary evil this we had to grin and face, just so the editors and staff would conserve extra space. The awful waste in snap shots was a nightmare to the dean. He hitched his glasses up and vowed they never could be seen. Now he'd suggest that snapshots be replaced with thoughtful rhyme. Then one of the committee rose and thanked him for his time.

Well, Prexy took about a week to think the matter o'er and then he called the waiting three inside his office door. He cleared his throat and shook their hands and bade them feel at home and closed his eyelids half way while he said his little poem. He cautiously admitted it a most unusual year. Historians with books to write would always hold it dear. And the class of 1919 should some way celebrate its own existence on the hill somehow commemorate the war, or something. Anyhow he had a hazy thought a statue of somebody would be the thing they ought to replace the Royal Purple with—of course he could not tell. Then one of the committee that she heard the chapel bell.

THE dean of women next they met to get her best advice. She quite agreed a memory book of some kind would be nice. She felt the girls could do it, scarcity of men was nil, that all it took was brains and wit and business sense and skill. Though the thought of transportation was the thing that made her fear we'd never get them carted from our printing house to here.

She had a vision of a mob demanding books with force, and the business manager bringing them from K. C. on a horse. Now she'd suggest that first we find a way to stop the war. Then one of the committee led the others out the door.

Macarthur (knowing all the rules to make guests feel at ease), embarrassed the committee and soon had them all at seas. A portfolio one could roll and fasten to his vest was the kind of Royal Purple this 'perfesser' liked the best. He hoped sincerely nothing rough would this year break in print. There have been jokes you know good folk that had a yellow tint. A little culture (goodness knows nobody has it here) would help the class of '19 to hold the campus dear. Be careful how you say it, and look well to what you say—Then the heedless young committee went and did it their own way.

Rush Week

THE sweet young thing in autumn rain is gently dragged from off the train by gushing ones who feature furs and spattered spats and kitty purrs, a Greek harangue, a place to board, a taste for things they can't afford. They sway the freshman to the car where several other sisters are who smile and lilt and squeal and coo all over her so young and new. They dash her dizzily away to find a place where she can stay and sling her clothes through rushing week through which she dances sick and weak. She gaily flits from house to house in evening dress or georgette blouse and speculates which way she'll go. She trots from dinner to a show, thence to a dance and up at dawn for some wild breakfast on a lawn. She learns the frats and all their rigs, familiarly raves of "Sigs." Then when the last Greek hop is hopped, the poor thing's either pledged or dropped.

Rushes are expected to dance with
other.

The tender youth with knitted brows who just last night was milking cows on father's farm so calm and still was also grabbed against his will, by Greeks, who, taking in his size, see future football in his eyes. They knock his reason off the track by slapping him upon the back so hard his cerebellum shakes and big importance Nothing takes. They give a smoker for the boy, and other freshmen young and coy. If that don't start him coming 'long they gently sing the old frat song, administer a social dance where wily co-eds have a chance to help him lose his own good head—and use his pocketbook instead. The little button soon looks good, as wise old brothers knew it would. And when he awakens from the spell, he finds it in his coat lapel.

If the Old Frat House Could Talk

THE artist just fixed me this way so that the public would think I harbor a real fraternity. Shucks, they are nothing but a lot of nice boys—brooded over by Papa Macarthur. He sees that they gargle their throats in winter and makes them put back the money they take as treasurers of organizations. As soon as they get well started they expect to keep a cow and chickens. Yes, the Sig Eps have their faults—had 'em even back in the days when they were tri-nothings. They often interpret Sigma Phi Epsilon as Signify Everything. Well, it takes all kinds of men to make Pan Hell and it didn't take the Sig Eps long.

I'M a pretty decent looking place in real life and I'm going to defend my architecture by explaining that Tom Neely took this picture the morning after he—aw, I guess I won't tell on Tom. What's the soul of a house in comparison to the reputation of a man? No, it wasn't the time he and Carl Miller stayed out all night organizing a high school fraternity. It was another time. But what's the use to roast Tom Neely with material like Rex Maupin under my roof? I let a couple of shingles fall the other day when I heard that Hamilton and Epperson had "cooled" their 3rd chicken in 1919. Only a frat house understands that remark. By the way, the Sigma Nus would give their charter if they could recover the remarks they left at the Chi Omega house the time they went after their furniture. They s'posed there was nobody home. They live under an Italian motto, "Dice et les Dames." There's nothing to do now but let the Sigma Nus stay and thank Heaven there can be only one chapter in one college and not everybody will join them.

P. S.—Hap O'Brien is a Sigma Nu. Always attending some vet convention in Topeka. Now, some fellows—nobody has any idea what course they are taking. Everybody knows, though, that Barringer is taking a dangerous one.

THIS is the more the way I feel than the way I look. I got an idea in my rafters that if the dear brother don't put sand on their shoes the lil' old sign they've hung to my front porch is going to mean not Sigma Alpha Epsilon but Sick And Empty. I consider myself a right spiffy looking house too. I suppose there is nothing for me to do but put on a bold front, stand on the corner and advertise for pledges.

I am not acquainted with my own inmates. They all stay down at the Palace. Dewey McCormick is here at times. They resemble a real fraternity in that they run a table, hold dances and give out pledge buttons. Their pin looks like the ace of diamonds, but there—all this is the Sig Alf's funeral, not mine. I was built to advertise and to shelter any member who should decide to reform and come home.

I AM a fraternity house and I guess, by hek, I look it. I have been through the S. A. T. C. and the spring initiations. I'm simply a nervous wreck from trying to look nice when Delta Tau Delta's were visiting me. The Aztex make me their wigwam. Old Crow Feather (George Blair) is one of the old men who sighs for dimming glory. Heap Big Jerry sits and dreams of days on the western plains. Civilization is plainly getting him. Young Rising Smoke (S. P.) makes good squaw man. They are a race of warriors, these Aztex. They paint 'emselves up with purple K's and scalp anyone who comes across their war path.

ITS superfluous to explain that I am the Beta house and before you get to wondering what is the matter stop and think who has been living here. The S. A. T. C. were bad enough, but since Louis Ritter and some of them came home its been all I could do to keep roof and foundation together. They say the Betas are strong in K. U. God pity poor old K. U! I know a lot. Most frat houses do. I know things the discipline committee doesn't. Pawhuska Smith is one of the best ones and he broke a date with F. R., a sorority pledge, and she wore crepe on her arm in memory of her dead love. Murphy Pome de terre ain't so bad.

I missed Heinie Enns one whole day. I found out later when someone whispered in my halls that he was doing extension work—was trying to solve a little problem of how long and thin could you stretch a date without it snapping. The Kappa cook prepared and served three meals while Heinie sat with B. C. on the front porch. Finally her pitying sisters lowered a sign from the upper story announcing that "Quiet Hour" had arrived. I've often wondered what kind of a sign they lower to get Ike Gatz back from Kansas City, Missouri. And if there is any sign Shorty Myers could hang before his guardian Angel to remind her that what Cliff needs is a guardian, not an angel.

THE Sigma Phi Deltas are degenerating beneath my roof. It would be the same under any roof. I refuse to take any of the blame. Well, really, it would be too bad to blame anyone except those who organized it. Its founders got the design for the shield from the Cress Racket Store and chose the colors of a bruise. Their frat song is written to the tune of "Some Sweet Day." There are several Sigma Phi Deltas—some besides Gordon—Beaudette is one. Mock is another. There is still another by the name of Francis Totten, candidate for college Sheriff on the platform of free speech. Gordon and the brotherhood joined up because each felt sorry for the other one. There have been worse menaces on the hill—the least I can do is to furnish them a hiding place. The Sigma Phi Deltas made the sad mistake of homesteading too far west of the Mississippi, is all.

THERE are worse things than being an Alpha Theta Chi. One of them is being an Alpha Theta Chi house. I speak from sad experience. The Alpha Theta Chis are the only ones of their kind in the United States, but they are petitioning for a charter from the I. W. W.'s. James Angle was an Alpha Theta Chi. Ain't it a shame that Charlie Chaplin can get $10,000 a year for his walk and J. B. has to do his for nothing? The boys justify themselves in being a fraternity. Every now and then a rushee has a fairly good time. And old grads—if they have the nerve and don't care what they do—have a home to come back to. They are very exclusive, which pleases everybody. It would be awful if they went to entertaining their friends. Anything the Alpha Theta Chis could do though would be entertaining. Oh, well, I'd just as soon keep them as regular roomers.

I MAY as well admit that I am the Pi Kappa Alpha house. I guess I look like I've been worrying about them too. I don't know what they put out about themselves, but bless my clapboards, you can take it from me they were founded when no one was looking. The number of chapters is one too many and their colors dark brown. They are noted for wearing stiff upper lips, if you know what I mean by that. It may seem funny, but lots of boys do come to College and pledge Pi Kap. During a lull once they negotiated with the Shamrocks to trade pledges sight unseen, but even the Shamrocks will only go so far. The most prominent members are Woody, Woodward, Harold Woodward, H. S. Woodward and Harold S. Woodward.

Editor's Note—(The Shamrocks promised to pay printing charges on this section if their name and pedigree were kindly omitted. So we didn't say anything about them—but you KNOW—sh).

Dear Bill:

Now I know that there is no use hedgin' with you Bill. I came to this college to join a sorority and I intend to break in somehow. Goodness knows I am not getting very far, but others have done it before me and I wear my ear bobs just as big as any of them.

No, I have not been really rushed. They've all been playing catch with me and about one more strike and I am out. What would it be like to be really rushed though? Oh, Sweet Bliss akin only to pledging. I have been to see them all. However, while I was seeing them they were seeing me. It's a kind of a gamble—the outcome depending upon who sees the most. I sure let them all know that I have quite a few dates and that if they took me in they could depend upon a lot of fellows hanging around.

I'm crazy about the Alpha Delts. Say, if I could kid dates out of the men like Murl Gann can I'd be happier. I like the Bachmans too, they aren't so intellectual that it hurts. Nothing crowded there either. You could have a sneak date in the parlor corner and not be apt to be discovered.

I would not mind being a Chi Omega. I wonder if any of them do. Anyhow that have no conscience about asking girls to come in and try it. You used to could tell a Chi Omega by the way she combed her hair, but they've stopped doing that. I asked Gladys Peterson to give me her recipe for getting in but she couldn't, her case was an accident. Jesse Cook dates at their house too. I'm mad about that man's waltz. I love the way he pivots on his heels.

Do you know anything about the Tri Delts, Bill? Most people do, but I'm keen about them anyhow. I like their location. Why do so many of the sororities move so far away from town? I like to live where I can smell the smoke of the drug stores and hear the music from Woodman's hall and get to an ice cream Sundae without getting out of breath.

Still the Kappas have a car or two. They struck luck in Adelaide. They realize it too. I heard at the Kappa house that Van Trine took lessons in love making from the lovely Lou Tellegen. I don't care so much for them tho. Every time you turn around you see a Beta pin. (Marvel sure has a talent for fiances.)

I don't care much for the Pi Phi's either, tho I do admire some of the younger ones. It's just too clever the way they rave about the "SWEET SIG ALPHS." It's pretty awful, Bill, the measures they have to take to have a little mid-week date now and then. One thing I don't like about them is the situation of the porch swings. One of them is right in front of a full length glass door through which the light shines, and I guess the dates that love each other in that porch swing save the people across the street movie money—and give lots of freshmen a wrong idea of college.

Do you know I feel at home at the Delta Zeta House. I love the Wakefield girls' way with the men and I'm mad about Dorothy Gleason's red coat. I wish the D. Z's would invite me home. Oh, well, Bill, it's an ill wind that is too weak to blow and I'll get there yet. I aint had my eyebrows shaved for nothing.

As ever,

MABELLE.

P. S.—There is a bunch of girls that live at 1301 Poynts, Iota Psi, they say, and they are right. I took dinner there. But between you and me, Bill I think that they realize that I am just a little too spiffy for them. With one or two exceptions they wear their own clothes and their only diversions are violet picking and street car rides. They had a fuss about whether they should call themselves "Spunky Spinsters" or "Busy Bees." So it was a long time before they told anybody they were there and by that time everybody knew it. It came out about the time E. S. threw peas all over the dining room. I don't suppose you are interested though Bill, so I'll ring off. Answer soon.

MAB.

P. P. S.—For heaven's sake don't repeat anything I've said Bill.

The Truth About College Professors

A WORD OF WARNING: We don't advise anybody to become a college professor. It is an awful death. Leave college as soon as you are graduated. If you hang around a year or two and soak up a lot of information that you can't throw off, some desperate board of regents is almost sure to ask you to teach in their college. And if you accept you are a goner. Afterwards nobody will ever give you a chance in any line of useful work.

COLLEGE professors, like Gaul and everything else that has ever been written about, are easily divided into three classes. (It would be just as easy to divide them into four classes, or eleven; but three seems to be the favorite number.) Those three types are old line profs, pink tea profs, and human profs. It is the avowed purpose of this article to discuss them in the order named with impunity, fairness, charity, unction and a lot of other things that we can't take the time to think of now.

The old line professors are almost extinct, and always were. They are usually pale and shelf-worn. They walk with a slight lope, like a coyote, and keep to themselves a great deal. Their hair, when it is worth mentioning, is not worth anything else, being grassy and anaemic. Their clothes are baggy, because they don't make enough to hire them pressed and their wives are busy doing welfare work or playing auction bridge for 49 cent vases and lace collars. Such profs are nearly always specialists in something or other you have never heard about and never will. They hang out mostly in colleges and college communities where culture is so thick that it won't spread.

The pink tea prof is a different sort of kid, believe him. He dolls himself up like George M. Cohan and cuts up something awful—in his way. He goes in heavy for macaroons and light gray spats and monocles and button-hole bouquets, and adores Water Pater and Freud and Gertrude Stein and Lord Dunsany. He sadly deploras the fact that the great mass of people have common sense instead of erudition. He hardly ever marries—which he shouldn't. Usually he doesn't last long in one place, in which particular he certainly has it on the old line type.

The human professor is not a thing of beauty, but he is a joy forever, bless his heart. He speaks to students, meek and lowly though they are, as if they really had a part to play in this sorry scheme of things. Of course, he is tiresome most of the time, churning over a lot of stuff that doesn't exactly thrill them, but he accepts them as human beings and they forgive him. The only thing really bad about the human prof is that he got a poor start in life.

As a whole, college profs are subject to the same ills and frailties that afflict the ordinary run of mankind. They have boils and indigestion and unruly children, just like anybody else might. They swear at smoky furnaces, fuss with their wives, dodge bill collectors, and stay away from Sunday evening services so that the young folks can go and worship in their own way. On Saturday night after the picture show they bathe in lukewarm water and Ivory soap.

Unless professors see the error of their way and reform before they are fifty, their condition becomes chronic and they gradually go into emeritus and are forced to retire on a princely pension that enables them to have eggs for breakfast once a month for the rest of their natural lives. But if they have been frugal and have denied themselves as nobody can reasonably be expected to do, they can have their homes practically paid for, so we should worry.

Taken all in all, college professors are amicable, single-minded folk, perfectly harmless when they are not taken seriously, which nobody should ever be. The main trouble with so many of them is that they are made—not born.

—H. W. Davis.

Imagine what
 A nestful of them
 Would be like.
 They swap opinions
 On certain students
 And
 From that time on
 The student is done for.
 They argue with
 Each other
 But they don't listen to each other.
 They smoke on the front

 And give dances
 Sometimes.
 They think their Own methods are
 By far
 The smartest.

ROYAL

Let others sing of the anguish
 Of the S. A. T. C.
 As with shaking knees they stand
 At inspection,
 Awaiting the company commander,
 and
 Their week end sentence.
 My song shall be of the maiden
 Behind the gun,
 The maiden who hopes that his shoes

May be shining,
 Who breathlessly wonders whether
 His gun is clean,
 Who strains limpid eyes to see if his buttons
 Are buttoned,
 The maiden who prays that her date
 May not pass
 Into the dim obscurity of the land
 That never was.

SOME FIT.

Their folks sent them money to buy new suits and they had one rare time. Three or four boys, three or four bones, three or four shakes and everybody's money went over the top.

WHEN the S. A. T. C. infested the campus they had quite a lot of fun. One little thing about 'em, their clothes didn't fit. The fat ones were issued tight clothes and the thin ones got clothes that hung on 'em like an unstretched circus tent drapes around the center pole. Their leggins left room for improvement, and several yards of padding. Nothing fit them but the hat cords. It was awful cute of the government to fix them up like that. Everybody thought so. Especially the tailors. Several boys made money—and names for themselves selling fits. Lots of them made names for themselves though, by just walking through Main hall. To hear them from a distance one wouldn't believe that they were just walking through. It sounded as though they were riding through in a horse and buggy that needed greasing.

DID YOU HAVE THE FLU?

OH DEATH! WHERE IS THY STING?

IT BROKE up our college year. It flunked a lot of us. It kept us home for months in sick little towns. It made the Royal Purple and everything else late. It made long distance centrals nervous wrecks. It cost us money, the ordeal of vaccination, and intense anxiety. It took from us many very dear friends—and yet we joke about it. We write silly little poems, and draw ludicrous pictures—shrug our shoulders, and pass on.

Some Line!

Dad: "You've run over your allowance, son."

Son: "Yes, I know it, dad, but I haven't danced, I haven't attended a party, I haven't taken a trip, or done anything but study for the last week; now, dad, please won't you give me enough to get a shoe shine?"

Dad: "Gosh, boy, you're a whang. Here's a twenty, now have a smoke."

Come on Down Perfessor

Why is it that certain members of the faculty deem it necessary to the successful running of this institution that they should sit upon the stage in chapel? Like arch enemies, the faculty and the students—when the latter attend—sit facing each other. This is no royal road to democracy. Why not a shoulder-to-shoulder feeling, with the instructors mixing with the students?

There is still another bad feature of this practice. A certain chapel speaker once said, "Every time I made a statement, I felt those cynical eyes behind me, ready to approve or disapprove, but more ready to disapprove. A man is not afraid of opposition that faces him—it is the dagger in the back that he fears."

And that is probably the sentiment of many men who have made chapel talks.

Good Evidence

Landlady: "Gladys, you stood on the porch quite a while last night with that young man."

Gladys: "Why, my lady, I only stood there for a second."

Landlady: "But I'm quite sure I hear the third and fourth."

IF THERE is anything alas, that makes a bleak north shiver pass clear up and and down your vertebrae and chills your frame the whole darned way, it's hesitatin' in your track and watchin' poor old grads come back—say one who just three years ago knew everything there was to know, knew everyone by sight and name, whatever happened, they's to blame. Controlled elections, ran the hill, helped turn the wheels in every mill. Who even owned the college pep and never missed a chance to step on freshmen in the way. Well, he slinks back some cloudy day. No one knows him, no one cares. He only gets a few cold stares. He, who a few short years ago, yelled, every step or two, "Hello!" He finds main hall still standing true, the college rushing madly through, folks putting out the same old line, without him, things just running fine! He reads in every passing face conviction that he's out of place. He hunts out memories—heaves a sigh as haughty sophomores pass him by.

No there is nothing quite so sad as the return of some old grad.

There was a man in our town,
 Oh, he was wondrous wise;
 But he jumped into wedlock
 For a pair of limpid eyes.

A Slight Difference

Asks the youth who is hearing the call of love,
 "What is it that's taking me on?"

DANCE HALL GIVES SENSATIONS

FRAT LOUNGE LIZARDS AND SOCIAL BUTTER- FLIES ARE CLEVER.

EVERYONE IS INVITED TO THE SENSATIONAL HOP

Strange sights may be seen every Friday and Saturday night at John Harrison's dance hall, when the fraternity lounge lizards and sorority butterflies get together for a little sensational hop.

Many people who are too old to participate but still enjoy the thrills of youth sit on the side lines and observe. Anyone who has a sense of humor is invited. It is a first class show and mighty entertaining. Mrs. Van Zile always attends and usually brings some frivolous member of the faculty with her.

Some of the College people put on more sensational stuff than others. Last Friday night the most amusing thing on the program was the bent wobble put on by Harold Combs and Iron Seary. A description of this cannot be given but very likely all of those present remember.

Pi Kappa McCannel bows backward in a peculiar manner that is equal to any Charlie Chapman walk. It gives him a form like question mark.

The Sigma Phi Epsilon are capable of a variety of enterprising stunts, their most successful one however is a glide which they can do very cleverly on the toes of their ladies slippers.

Don Blockomo has some special stuff. He says he learned it at the Blue Goose in Kansas City. Don should remember that there are Quakers in our school.

The Delta Zeta's add very little to the entertainment of the spectators, as they usually forget they are at a dance and go to sleep on the bosom of their partner.

Helen Giles comes as often as she can and tries to live in the moon by her temperamental Irish turns. But some of them don't fall for it they say.

Bella Murphy and Kappa Ross are not as frivolous as some of the performers. Their favorite step is a heavy funeral drag, with all the agonies characteristic of the occasion.

Chain and Isabelle gallop merrily around and around the dance hall always quiet, always looking into space. It is hoped that some fine Chain will own an airship so when he wishes to take Isabelle for a soar he may do so in the open where there is plenty of room.

Griff and Anne Wilson take pinning little pie steps. It's all original stuff with them. They believe in conserving good energy for hikes. However that's the Sig Alpha's all over.

Sigma Nu Hamilton is crooked. He tries to dance in a circle, but every few minutes he flies off at a tangent and knocks two or three gasping dancers off the floor. But Hamilton may learn yet in the next two years.

If Goddard doesn't stop dancing with her cheek against her partner's she may ruin her dimples. It's hard to give up joys like that but dimples get you farther than La Truffle powder.

Everybody does something clever and everybody does something different, it's a fine place to get thrills and ideas.

The faculty are cordially invited to the dances, a hot time is promised. Come on out.

For why should you sit in the corner seat?

And had the cycle's ban?
Come on out and sit on the seats at John's.
And be a friend to man.

Sissy Andrews broke into the Chi Omega sorority under disguise as a chemistry tutor. Nevertheless, we can't forget his head is made of peanut shells.

SORORITY GIRL CONFESSES

THREE PROMNENT GIRLS TELL HOW THEY DO IT

MEN ARE DEAD EASY IF YOU ON TO THE GAME

It has been a question of much debate as to how some of the college coeds get by with their midnight campaigns. In order to clear this question Ernestine Bibb, Edith Wilson and Wilma Hoark have given a brief account of the way they do it.

It is best they say to choose a dark starless night when the wind is blowing. At twelve bells take a dose of gruel which is composed of 20 per cent precaution, 30 per cent devilishness and fifty per cent Coco Cola with aspirin tablets dissolved in it. At one o'clock they ease out the kitchen door on low. That is how they get away from the house.

Then they love a little, fuss a little, and make up again and that is how they get away with the men.

"Everything's dead easy even the men, if you know how to work them," said Edith. That's how we get away."

TO THE FACULTY

Here's to you old tops as good as you are.

And to me as bad as I am
But as good as you are and as ban
as I am

I'm as good as you are as bad as I am.

—The Student

A fool there is (Woodhouse) who has made his prayer

We call her the wild woman who doesn't care

CO-EDS SEEK POPULARITY

COLLEGE WOMEN RACE MADLY INTO POLITICS.

THINK IT OVER GIRLS—IT'S ALL A MISTAKE

Some girls in this school have hitched their little red wagons to the moon beams of popularity and are working themselves thin to live up to their aspirations. Their idea of popularity is to hold as many offices on the hill as possible, be in all the beauty contests and have a hand on the reins of college politics in general.

Poor things! They carry in boxes, wagon loads of college stationery have hollow eyes and sleepless nights. They rush madly from one committee meeting to the next. School pleasures are forfeited for a sham popularity which gets them no where, especially with the men.

They may see their names in print in every issue of the Collegian and their pictures are sprinkled here and there in great gobs through the College Annual but their names are not remembered in the hearts of the student body. There is a long string of stuff under their names when they graduate but what does that mean—Simply that they made a fool of themselves. They misinterpreted the phrase College Popularity.

Composition of a Sorority Girl

After a careful analysis, Professor West of the Chemistry department has submitted to our paper his results of a piece of research work as to the analysis of the modern sorority girl of today.

He announces that they are 20 per cent talking machine, 20 per cent vampyres, 15 per cent nonsense, 10 per cent blank space, 15 per cent snobbishness, 5 per cent brains and 5 per cent loving.

Aquarium is Being Stocked

ANGLING IS SUCCESSFUL AT TIMES

Several Poor Fish Are Taken In.

Irregularly, intermittantly, and one at a time, specimens are being taken in to the Aquarium. Though not completely filled yet persistent fishing and the right kind of bait may land a sufficient number to stock the place.

Last fall when the big rush was on only a few were nabbed and by now the choice prizes have been caught in the nets of other Greek anglers, or have been swallowed down stream by bigger fish.

The variety yet available seem to be unusually slippery and have been known to be almost landed when they flop back.

Those already in the aquarium are much alike. They have very little variety or anything, hard fins, brightly colored, rose and Nile green scales, and contentment with their lot. No doubt many of the other five sisterhoods have catches they would be glad to throw back if it were possible.

Next semester may bring a few victims in. Most of those who came in the fall school are too wary to nibble the hook. They are afraid of the lamp light or something.

Are The Quakers at K. S. A. C?

On a black midnight, in a raging thunderstorm, a Quaker came to the ford of a swollen stream. The thunder claps were deafening but the flashes were too brief to guide him across the torrent, so he knelt on the bank and prayed for a little less noise and a little more light.

Pax and Prix are cross at each other. The boys tried to run a candidate for assistant marshal, and the girls simply wouldn't stand for it. Isn't it awful the way the men try to run things around this institution?

THE VET QUARTETTE

The veterinarians have a way Of singing in the night Indeed, its most pathetic Is the Vet's musical plight.

Four nery mea stand in a row And yell N'everythins. They put their heads together And imagine they can sing.

Everyone in college Knows about the Vet quartette, There's not a victim human They've not serenaded yet.

Some time, some reckless member Will try to baritone, And the Vets will try their voices On the ambulance telephone.

Kappa's Open House Success The Kappas recently decided not to hold open house. It is rumored that the Betas felt slighted and took it upon themselves to see that one was given.

The fraternity of Beta Theta Pi had recently lost some of its valued property, namely, a stuffed owl that had been dead many years and was molting. As the owl holds a sacred place in the Kappa sorority they were blamed for its disappearance. Therefore when said owl disappeared the Betas took it upon themselves to visit the Kappas. They flocked into the hall and demanded their property but it was not forthcoming. No owl was in the possession of the Kappas as sufficient proof, and it is rumored that the Betas proceeded to hold open house. And still no owl could be found. Where, oh where is the Beta owl? Won't whoever took it, please return it?

Oliver Nelson was bitten by a mad dog last week but was immune from ill effects, being madder than the dog at the time he was nipped.

Fraternities Are Hit Hard

18th AMENDMENT RUSHES GREEKS TO K. C.

Barley Corn Family Had Friends In College.

It is with sincere regret that we have heard of the death of John Barleycorn. Our deepest sympathy goes out to the fraternities in their recent bereavement. Before his death the Sig Alphas and the Pi Kaps received daily telegrams concerning his health. When his condition became serious and there was little hope of his surviving, representatives were sent to offer their aid. It is rumored that the expenses of these representatives were paid and also financial aid was given to the Barleycorn family.

The fraternities supporting the family of John Barleycorn may find it impossible to keep up their own organizations and will probably call on the Betas for help. Should this be the case the Betas will probably be very glad to give financial aid to this cause.

The home of the Barleycorns has been in Missouri for the past ten years, but owing to their sudden bereavement they will spend seven years abroad. When they return they will probably spend their time at their home on Whiskey Island, three miles from the coast of New York.

John Barleycorn has been one of the prominent members of the Drinking Club in Kansas City, Missouri, for many years. He will be missed here probably more than anywhere else. The good old Irish Shamrocks will also miss him in their merry-making for he was always one of their gayest members at their Irish wakes. The Sigma Phi Deltas sent condolences by the quart. The Axtex did not hear of his death in time to take action. It is hoped that as Delta Tau's they will wake up. It is expected that the Sigma Nus will keep up their record in philanthropy and will not let this burden rest too heavily upon the

AGGIE FIVE OUT FOR GAME —ARE YOU?

Open Season On Jayhawk Killing.

The Kansas Aggies are playing their first title games this week. The Clevenger five will be remembered as having captured a title already apparently won from the Tigers in 1917.

In the smaller games played this winter the Aggies have displayed speed. Hinds, Bunger, Cowell and Jennings are fast, and Captain Clarke's dexterity in handling the ball rounds out a quintette which makes the opposing team bustle.

Inconsistency is the only trouble with the Aggie Team. In one game Bunker basketed a dozen goals and in the next only one. Coach Clevenger feels that they are temperamental.

K. U. always was our jinx. Never seem to have the right mascot when we go up against K. U. One might suggest a little pep as a mascot. Put the jinx on K. U.'s side and soak 'em next year in football. Now is the time to begin. Make K. U. rooters feel sick and weak. Give the "Rock Salt, Live Stock, Hey Rube" in the spirit of '76. Let's Go Aggies.

other organizations. Panhellenic may be able to apportion the amount correctly among them. In that case the Sig Eps should have a voice in the matter. However, that is neither here nor there. No single organization can decide a matter as weighty as that. Panhellenic must act as it thinks best. When the Delta Taus are admitted the balance of power will be restored.

You've All Heard About Dinner Work?

Song and dance of Miss D.S. Lettus - entitled "Safely Through Another Salade."

Dinner Work is a "nothing to be scared over" that meets home economics girls at the train their freshman year and hangs oppressively heavy on them until it flattens them out their senior year. It is traditional that such girls lie awake the entire night before they serve an informal luncheon to four ordinary persons. If they pull a bone, such as stepping to the left side instead of the right, they are ashamed to go through main hall until they have forgotten their disgrace.

They only have so much money to spend on their meals and for this reason have sprung up little economies that make your heart ache. Way back at the beginning some enterprising woman saved money on lettuce and they have been doing it ever since. Lettuce leaves that at the end of the meal came out from under the salad unharmed, uneaten, decorated another person's salad the next day. The other girls copied this cleverness and soon the great outside heard about it, and senior men, either desiring to be popular with the cook, or else fearing the lettuce leaf's past, protected each green leaf as though it were a part of his life. A nickel's worth of lettuce thus could be used a week and then chopped up and eaten the last day.

This practice was traditional even in 1912. It might have gone on forever, but this year conscientious Vera asked her horror stricken critic what would happen if someone should eat theirs. The horror stricken teacher said indignantly that this was the first time such a hideous economy had been practiced, which of course made everybody laugh. D. S. instructors with snappish eyes asked each other how long this had been going on, and when they found out they just hushed up and put an awful stop to the all-week stands of the faithful lettuce leaf.

THE STORE THAT SERVES

JUST ONE WORD MORE—

If,
You are irritated
By names spelled incorrectly—
Just stop and think, a minute.
If you helped on
The Royal Purple
It was probably
You
Who mis-spelled them,
And, if you didn't
Help any
In this year of Flu epidemics
and high prices,
and war conditions,
and uncertainties,
and no money,
and late start,
Well—
Surely you haven't the nerve to kick!

Thanks,
Everybody—
And if you hear
of a job
Any place,
Tell the boss
That
We have had
EXPERIENCE.
