ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

I am unusually fortunate to have this rare opportunity of pursuing an advanced degree in a foreign land. Therefore, I would like to extend my sincerest thanks to the Integrated Agricultural Production and Marketing in the Philippines (IAPMP) Project who sponsored my program; to Director Jesus C. Alix and to Dr. Gil R. Rodriguez, Jr. for giving me a good break and for having faith in my capability.

I am also deeply grateful to Dr. Vernon Larson, Dr. Jim Jorns and their staffs for being extra attentive to the needs of the Filipino students.

I owe a debt of gratitude to my adviser, Dr. Carroll V. Hess and committee members such as Dr. Orlo Sorenson and Dr. Arlin Feyerherm, whose comments and criticisms proved to have been especially helpful in the shaping up of this paper.

I am especially indebted to special friends like Grace Pablo and Sangil Park whom I can always count on through thick and thin; to Dionisia Trigo for keeping me company during the final editing of this paper; to my colleagues in Projects ADAM and IAPMP and Elvira Dumayas for supplying me the necessary data; to Alberto Manalo for lending me his old notes; to Odie and Josie Maningat and all other friends who have contributed in one way or another in making my stay in Kansas as one of the most meaningful experiences of my life.

My landlady, Mrs. Lois W. Holm also deserves a special mention for giving me a home and for being like a mother to me.

Finally, deepest appreciation goes to my mother, who painstakingly look after my children while I am away and for her prayers and encouragement; to my husband for his love, trust and confidence on me and for being a father and mother at the same time; to my kids who serve as my inspirations in all my undertakings; and to my brothers who never fail to show that they care for me.
