Residential CAT Communities

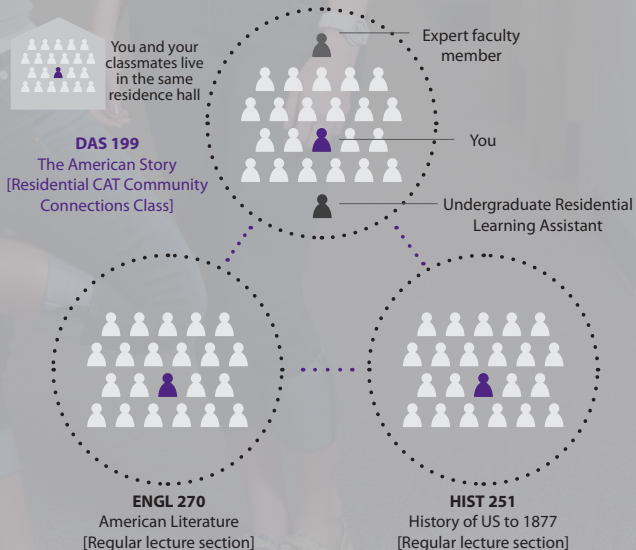

A great college experience starts with a great first year.
..... K-STATE.EDU/FIRST

Residential CAT Communities are a place for first-year students to connect their classroom learning with a dynamic residence life experience. Students take a group of courses designed around their academic interests, while living with peers who can share academic and social experiences.

In a Residential CAT Community, you will:

- Take two general education courses and a one-hour connections course
- Live in a popular, on-campus residence hall with your CAT Community, an undergraduate Residential Learning Assistant, and other K-State students
- Study closely with expert faculty members, both in class and in the residence halls
- Participate in social and educational activities with your CAT Community friends

Residential CAT Communities

The American Story

Through texts, slides, music, literature, original documents and the words of the participants themselves, The American Story offers you the opportunity not only to learn the “facts” of history, but to experience the “feel” of our past from the colonial period through the end of the 19th century.

Who it's for:

All first-year students interested in how history feels

Where you'll live:

Moore Hall

Courses:

ENGL 270 American Literature: MWF 9:30 a.m., Dr. Stacia Gary
HIST 251 History of US to 1877: TU 2:30-3:45 p.m., Dr. Charles Sanders
DAS 199 The American Story: U 8:30 a.m., Dr. Charles Sanders

Psychology of Prejudice

The Psychology of Prejudice CAT Community will examine stereotypes, prejudice and discrimination, including where bias comes from and how it may be reduced.

Who it's for:

All first-year students interested in processes that perpetuate stereotypes and discrimination

Where you'll live:

Goodnow Hall

Courses:

PSYCH 110 General Psychology: TU 2:30-3:45 p.m., Dr. Donald A. Saucier
SOCIO 211 Introduction to Sociology: MWF 9:30-10:20 a.m., Dr. Roy Barnett
DAS 199 Psychology of Prejudice: U 1:30-2:20 p.m., Dr. Donald A. Saucier

Interested in joining a Residential CAT Community?

- Email kstatefirst@k-state.edu to sign up. Please include the title of the Residential CAT Community you wish to join. Space is limited to 22 students in each community.
- We will enroll you in the CAT Community and reserve your space in the corresponding residence hall. You will receive a confirmation email when your enrollment is complete.
- Prepare to move into your residence hall and start your CAT Community courses.

Note: Joining a Residential CAT Community will automatically reserve a space for you in the residence hall listed. This will replace any other residence hall requests you have made. However, your roommate preference is still valid.
