ADVERTISING RATES ON APPLICATION

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 8, 1923

PLAN A BIG INITIATION CEREMONY.

Many Kansas Union counties are pushing the campaign for members. Several will get in from two hundred to one thousand applications during the next few weeks. How would it do to put on a big show in the county seat or at some other convenient place and take the whole bunch of applicants into organization at one time.

There are a lot of folks in some good Kansas towns who have never heard very much about the Farmers Union. If a County Union will arrange for a public initiation of several hundred candidates at one time it will start some talk and will convince a lot of folks that the organization is alive and growing.

TIME FOR WINTER DEBATES.

The program committees of the live locals have all been busy for some time and several interesting meetings have already been held since the "Frost was on the pumpkin and the fodder in the shock." Here are a few topics for debates that may be worth consideration.

Resolved, that law making bodies should have only one house.

Resolved, that a sales tax would be a fair way to raise revenues for the federal government.

Resolved, that no private firm or corporation should be allowed to manufacture fire arms and other deadly weapons except under rigorous government supervision.

Resolved, that killing any sort of bird in Kansas should be made a crime by act of the next session of the legislature.

Resolved, that no session of the legislature should be permitted to make more than ten new laws in addition to the necessary appropriation acts.

Resolved, that all general laws enacted by the legislature should be submitted to the voters for their approval before becoming effective.

Resolved, that the publication of the Congressional Record should be discontinued.

Resolved, that the next agricultural educator who makes an address on the "Cow, the Sow, and the Hen" should be ducked in the nearest horse pond.

THE FARMERS UNION STATE BANK.

Cooperation needs and is entitled to its own banking facilities. There will be trouble in financing the proposed Farmers Union State Bank of Kansas City, Kansas. The membership of our organization are ready for this institution. Already nearly half of the required capital subscriptions have been secured from volunteers. Farmers who want to share in the possibilities of this enterprise should get in at once. It is now almost certain that the stock will be largely over subscribed long before the institution is ready for business.

Kansas City, Kansas, is an ideal location for a great cooperative bank. Fifty thousand wage earners who believe in organization and co-operation are there and willing and anxious to give their support to bank conducted for service rather than profit. The great state wide co-operative agencies doing business at Kansas City need such a bank and have business enough of their own to justify organization.

This bank will succeed because it is needed, because it will be organized and conducted on sound principles and because it is an enterprise of the Kansas Farmers Union which has developed the habit of succeeding with all its business undertakings.

ARE YOU WORKING FOR MEMBERS.

The Kansas Farmers Union has made good. It is entitled to the confidence and support of all the farmers of the state. Its officers, who are merely the hired hands of the organization, know their business and justify the confidence that has been reposed in them by the membership.

Only one thing is wrong with the Kansas Farmers Union—it has less than half the membership to which it is entitled. There are 170,000 farms in the state and on every farm there are from three to five good folks who should join the Union and help the good work along. If our organization can start the new year with its membership doubled and all paid up no man is wise enough to foresee the good things that can be done for Kansas agriculture during the next five years.

Brother, if you have not secured one or more applications for membership in the Union, during the past two weeks you have neglected your duty. But there is still time for you to get right. Let's go.

HOW TO GET NEW MEMBERS.

A good Union man said, just the other day, that he was willing to do his part in membership campaign but did not know where to start. Chances are that he could make a good start right at home. There are many thousands of the wives of members of the Union who have never joined the organization. How would it do to sign up the wife and the boys and girls the very first thing?

After all the prospects in the family have signed application cards it will be time too start after the neighbors. There is not a member of the organization who does not know anywhere from two to a dozen men who would join the Union and bring their families along with them if they were invited and the record and purposes of the organization made known to them.

It is absolutely necessary for the Union to have more members and it is equally certain and necessary that the men and women who are now in the organization must do the recruiting work and be responsible for securing and keeping new members. The officers of the State Union are covered up with work going on in the interest of agriculture. They can make more rapid progress and accomplish things worth much more if they are assured that their employers the membership of the Union throughout the state, are sticking to the program, talking up the organization, and maintaining and increasing the membership.

There is yet time for every Local and County Union in the state and for every member of the organization to get busy in the campaign for the collection of dues and the securing of new members. More strength is what the Union needs more than anything else. The right sort of work will give us a hundred thousand members before January 1st.

BANNERS FOR COUNTY MEMBERSHIP.

One of the big and interesting events of the next state convention of the Union which will be held in Emporia in January will be the presentation of three banners to three counties that have the most members of the organization in good standing on December 31st. Good standing means for men that all dues and assessments must be paid in full until December 31st, 1924. For women it means that they have been regularly initiated. Every county in the state can participate in the campaign for these prizes. The county with the largest membership on December 31st will get a handsome blue banner appropriately lettered and inscribed which it will be entitled to hold and carry to the State Convention and to use in parades and display at its own conventions just as long as it has more members in good standing than any other county. The county ranking second in membership will get a red banner, and the third place will carry off a white banner.

It is still two months until the books will be closed for the year. In that two months every Union county in Kansas will have a chance to show what sort of men and women it has in the organization.

THE MURRAY GARSSON PRIZES.

Some County Union in Kansas is going to win the first prize of $250 offered by Murray Garsson and the Kansas Farmers Union. Four other counties are going to get substantial rewards for their membership campaigns.

All members of the Union and all officers of county and local Unions are urged to help along in this matter. We must have more members of the organization in Kansas and the best way to get them is for the people who believe in cooperation to get out and enlist their neighbors.

POOLING KANSAS WHEAT.

Nearly every farmer in Kansas believes in the 100 per cent plan of pooling and marketing wheat but so far only a small minority of growers have evidenced their faith by signing contracts and actually selling grain in that way. It is time to put this movement over or quit.

It is likely that announcement will be made in a few days that will be interesting to Kansas wheat growers. Believing in the cooperative marketing plan is not enough. The believer who still sells his grain through the old speculative agencies is in no position to strengthen the movement. His failure to act as he believes does a lot of harm because it is pretty fair evidence that he wants some other fellow to make the start, carry the burdens of organization and prove the thing good.

WHO IS RIGHT?

When doctors disagree, who shall decide? Sidney Anderson is a member of congress, from Minnesota. He represents an agricultural district. He has been busy with legislation, inquiries, conferences and investigations in the interest of farmers ever since he went to congress some ten years ago as a young and ardent Roosevelt progressive.

Congressman Anderson believes that an increase in the import duty on wheat is the only thing that congress can do at this time in the interest of the wheat farmer. He is asking that the Tariff Commission raise the duty on wheat from thirty cents to forty-five cents a bushel.

Duncan U. Fletcher is a senator from Florida, an agricultural state. He has acted with the "Farm Bloc." He has advocated co-operation. He visited Europe to study the agricultural situation on the other side and to learn as much as possible about the many systems of rural credit that have been established in continental countries. He led in the struggles in congress that finally resulted in the Federal Farm Loan Act.

Senator Fletcher says that the farmers of this country get no benefits from the tariff on wheat and other agricultural commodities. He goes much further and declares that the burdens imposed on farmers by tariff duties on manufactures are so heavy that they are largely if not wholly responsible for the distress of American agriculture.

And so there you are. Anderson and Fletcher have studied the same conditions. They have access to the same body of facts. They have had about equal opportunities in securing information. They should be the two greatest experts on agriculture and agricultural conditions in public life today. They have had opportunities enjoyed by no other men in this country. One of them would help the farmer by raising the tariff, the other by reducing the tariff.

It is a said situation. One doctor prescribes as an antidote the very thing that the other denounces as a poison. Under that sort of treatment the patient certainly has a slim and sorry chance to recover.

TEN GREATEST AMERICANS

What ten Americans have accomplished most for their country and for humanity? Call over in your minds the names of the living and of the dead who have contributed most to the security of human life, to the stability of our free institutions, to the lustre of our arts and our literature, to the glory of our statesmanship, to the development of our resources here in the United States and write down ten names.

After the membership campaign is concluded the Kansas Union Farmer proposes that all the young folks in our organization shall put in a little time in the study of the lives and achievements of great Americans. The members of the Kansas Farmers Union will be asked to decide what ten men or women of America have the best title to greatness.

All Union young folks and old folks too for that matter will be invited to join in the search for the ten greatest names in American history. The results of the study of American greatness will form the basis for a contest or game that will be interesting and instructive for old and young alike. Be ready to do your part. The terms and conditions will be stated in this paper and the game will begin as soon as our membership campaign is completed.

UNCLE REUBEN AT WASHINGTON

President Barrett told a most wonderful story to the farmers who attended the Educational Assembly at Salina. He traced the growth of the influence and authority of the Union at Washington from its humble beginnings to its present commanding position as the most powerful agricultural organization represented at the capital of our country.

The whole record is set forth in President Barrett's best title—Inimitable and unequalled in his book, "Uncle Reuben at Washington." Not for a generation has any publication attracted so much attention during the first year of its circulation. That book would make a splendid beginning for a working library for a Farmers Union Local. Why not get it?

Battles are always won by men who know how to keep their powder dry. The battle for justice to agriculture will be won by men who know how to use their own resources and the strength of their own position.

USE THE APPLICATION CARDS.

For several weeks the Kansas Union Farmer has been printing a number of blank application cards in each issue. Those cards are not put in just to fill up space but for the use of the members in getting applications for membership from their neighbors or from the members of their own families.

The next few years are certain to be critical for agriculture. Problems of the farm must be worked out by the farmers through organization. Every member of the Union in Kansas should be willing and proud to assist in strengthening the organization. It has made good. Present its record, its program, and its ideals to your neighbors.

POPULARITY OF CO-OPERATION.

The president of the United States has endorsed co-operative marketing and has pledged the government to assist the movement in every legitimate way. Congress has recognized the right of growers of crops to sell their own products co-operatively and has established the essential governmental agencies to finance co-operation. The banks of the country have endorsed co-operation. Scholars, statesmen, millionaires and merchants all approve and urge the organization of commodity marketing.

Only the farmers themselves are lagging in this great self-help movement. It is time for the producers to get together and make the endorsement unanimous.

Stockholders in Farmers Union Co-operative enterprises who fail or refuse to pay their organization dues often demand the right to vote in the annual meetings of their associations. They claim that they have the right to protect their own investments and that it is neither right nor legal for any one to prevent them from voting. As a matter of fact they are preventing themselves from voting and from protecting their own property. They are violating their own contracts with their association. If they are wronged they have the remedy in their own hands. All they need to do is to live by their own obligations, pay their dues and restore their own voting membership by acting like sensible business men instead of like a parcel of thoughtless children.

Walton Has Been Impeached

By the Oklahoma House of Representatives which has filed a bill of particulars specifying twenty or four hundred separate acts of misconduct. The senate is now in session as a High Court of Impeachment and the Warren Hastings of Oklahoma is on trial for his misdeeds.

It is quite likely that the proceedings will string out for several weeks but the trial was actually over before it started. Walton was indicted and all that followed is merely for the purpose of making a record. If Oklahoma is to lose a governor it is only right that several big books full of evidence should be accumulated and handed down to posterity in proof of the purity of the great aggregation of Oklahoma kettles that are certain that Walton is a pot of exceedingly great blackness.

All because the plain citizen on foot, the sovereign squat who should be on the job on election day refuses to respond to the call of duty. There are a million voters in Oklahoma who never did want Walton for governor but about seven hundred and fifty thousand of them would not take the trouble necessary to get the right sort of man. There are likewise more than a million voters in the state who did want the legislature to meet in special session to spend several weeks and probably a half million dollars in correcting a blunder that the people were too lazy to prevent.

If slackness were as prevalent in war as it is in peace Pershing would never have had a chance to lead an army of more than 100,000 men. But never forget that slackness is more deadly to free institutions in peace than it can possibly be in war.

Flivvers Multiply in Number

So rapidly that no one can tell where the trouble started by a Detroit blacksmith who turned tinner about twenty years ago will stop. One of Ford's rivals sold nearly half a million cars last year and will nearly double that output this year. In every state where the soldiers have received a bonus the "Lizzie" trade has been fine.

The average amount paid to to a service man by the several states that have enacted bonus laws is just about the price of a flivver and the record shows that most of the boys have spent it that way. If the congress of our country comes across with a dollar a day bonus act at the forthcoming session the bill should be entitled. An Act to stabilize the business of Henry Ford, the General Motors Company and other Manufacturers of Popular Priced Automobiles.

Fishman, A Russian Jew

Is the biggest and the most successful farmer in Kansas. He is just finishing seeding of 30,000 acres of wheat in Greeley county, all of it on his own land. If there is a good yield next year he will harvest a crop of 600,000 bushels. This is pretty fair business for a man who was born in Russia and carried a peddler pack for several years after coming to this country.

Fishman developed Cheyenne county Nebraska and a county in Colorado. He boasts that he plowed up 144,000 acres of virgin soil and that he will make it a half million before he dies. Campbell who farms an Indian reservation for a syndicate is the only other man in the United States who can equal Fishman's record.

Simon Fishman loves the soil and wants to see more people on farms. He proposes to locate hundreds of families in western Kansas but on unimproved prairie tracts. He will build a good modern house on each quarter section sow 150 acres in wheat stock the place with cows, hens and pigs and then sell it for about $7,000—two thousand cash down and balance at five per cent interest. Instead of starting in a sod house the pioneer will live in a modern bungalow with hot and cold water, electric lights and bath room.

We all learn something every day as long as there is any life in us from the neck up. The average Kansas wise man has long been certain that there is not a Jew farmer in the state. It now turns out that a Jew is the biggest farmer in Kansas and that he is making an exceedingly businesslike effort to start a march from the city back to the farm or if that cannot be done a movement from rented lands to ownership.

Negroes Do Little Farming in Kansas But one of the 1300 farmers of that race in this state is about as successful as could be expected. Less than forty years ago he bought eight acres of Kaw valley potato land on credit and he now owns something like six hundred acres all paid for. He lives in a fine brick house, farms with tractors and must be worth several hundred thousand dollars.

When that colored man came to this state he was so poor that he did not even have a hat or a name of his own. He went to work bareheaded and called himself June Grove because he was born in a grove in Kentucky in June. He has eight children, all grown up and farming and it is said that every one of them holds a degree from the Kansas State Agricultural College.

Amidon Urges Democratic Harmony

In Kansas, he is notional commitment for his party in this state. Naturally he wants to see democracy win at the next election. The Colonel might as well make up his mind that politicians of his sort have little influence in the Kansas voting. The people of this state have quit troubling themselves very much about party names and platforms.

The democracy may carry Kansas again next year but if so it will not be the result of the efforts of the small group of politicians of the Amidon type but will follow the deliberate conclusion of thoughtful citizens that the men nominated by that party are in sympathy with producers and workers. There was mighty little harmony among Kansas democratic leaders in the campaign that put Johnathan Davis in the governors chair but the overall wearers of Kansas liked that farmer understood his talk and thought he would do to tie to. So they elected him without knowing whether he was acceptable to Amidon and the bunch.

It is very well for the self-elected democratic leaders to talk about harmony with each other but they can win no elections unless they make up tickets and adopt policies that are acceptable on the farm and in the shops and mines of the state.

France Has Destroyed Germany

Since the treaty of peace was signed. Perhaps it would be more truthful to say that France and Germany together have destroyed Germany. Ten years ago the empire of Germany was the most prosperous area of the earth's surface. All the lands were in a high state of cultivation. The city and village populations were employed in the industries and were making good wages in the production of goods for export that had a ready market in every part of the world.

The insanity of the Kaiser and the arrogance and ambition of the Junkers, still only partially civilized if measured by modern standards, threw Germany into the most causeless, foolish, wicked and ruinous war of all history. Since the war no German statesman has declared to be honest. Had the obligations of the conflict been met in good faith France would have had no occasion for the invasion of the Ruhr and the intrigues that have split the German empire into three jangling and hostile groups would have failed.

France has not been faithful to her obligations to mankind but her military schemes would have come to nothing had it not been for the German policy of evasion.

Fleming, Kansas City Judge

Who drove his car into a ditch and killed a woman with whom he had been visiting the "Chicken Farm District" is still in office although the good people of Kansas City almost without exception, through their organized groups, have asked him to resign. Law will never be enforced until the officers and agents charged with that duty become law abiding. It is bad enough for a private citizen to violate the constitution and laws of country by going into partnership with bootleggers and other criminals to get a few drinks of poisonous whiskey. It is infinitely worse, it is really a seditious act, not much less culpable than actual treason for a judge, an officer of any state, or any one connected with government in any way to conspire with thugs and smugglers in the violation of law.

The every day citizen is under oath to support the constitution and enforce the laws. His obligations are moral but of course should be accepted and should bind him and rule his conduct. The judge, senator, congressman, admiral, general or other public officer who traffics with bootleggers and smugglers without exception has taken an oath that binds him to support the constitution. Every public servant who violates that oath should be dismissed from office and disqualified from ever again disgracing the service of his country.

Fleming will probably be cleared of blame by the courts and ignoring the verdict already registered against him by all the decent people of Kansas City will continue to disgrace the bench and bring scorn on the administration of justice. Yet there are many honest folks who wonder why people distrust the courts.

NOW IS THE TIME TO GO FORWARD

In view of the fact that the state organization at this time is putting on a membership campaign the following article from one of our Nebraska brothers published recently in the Nebraska Union Farmer is of a timely nature. It would be well if this article could be read at every local meeting in the state. No doubt it would hearten the loyal members of the organization and likewise stiffen the backbone of the weaker ones. It would also lend encouragement to the local secretary to go out into high ways and byways and shake the bushes for new members.—Editor's Note.

I am an optimist by nature and a pessimist by experience, so when President Osborn asked me to write for the Union to tell why we were shy on members compared with former years, I decided to take an optimistic view of the situation, providing the facts would justify me in so doing. A little thought on the subject seemed to reveal the following:

Prior to the war, the Farmers Union was a comparatively new organization in many parts of Nebraska, and its principles were very imperfectly understood by many of the newer members. They had little practical experience in the conduct of mercantile business, and had yet to learn the art of co-operating when the balance sheet was in the red.

Stock was sold to the more loyal members, and after considerable hip hooray the business enterprise was under way and left to the management of the board of directors, who, in turn, left it to the manager, and he, all too frequently, soon had the business on the bum. Then the real test of loyalty began, and our local lost many of their charter members, those who were interested only while they made a constant profit.

The rapid expansion of our membership during the several years prior to the war drew in many who were not real Union men at heart, and these weaker brothers were sifted out during the struggle which resulted from the deflation period following the war.

"Quick Cures Only Confused"

During this period there were also several contributory causes of great importance. The Nonpartisan League was expected by many to give the farmer thorough political control, a short end easy method wherewith to get his just dues. Instead of treading the long and prosy path of co-operation, starting a small business and learning to build on a solid basis by hard experience, but retaining the control of the business in the hands of the farmers, one voted right and the state did this for the farmers without further effort.

In short, the farmers thought they saw a chance to get something for nothing. However, they failed to consider that men who would not co-operate in a Farmers Union business enterprise could not be expected to co-operate politically. They had not learned that co-operation, like charity begins at home.

While this was going on, the Farm Bureau, which had been started as a war measure to secure greater production among farmers, burst out as a general cure-all for the economic evils affecting the hayseeds. Plans were drawn for solving all our farming problems, and Wall Street, anxious to down the remnants of the League, joined in the chorus. Now these contending organizations began to overlap in their claims and all wanted money in considerable amounts. The farmers began to be confused and in many cases abandoned one organization for another, or joined all three. Dissension arose over rival claims and much valuable time was wasted. Finally the farmers were deflated by the government after the war, and the Farmer Union emerges practically with a clear field action.

I only wonder that we are in so good shape as we are. The confusion of war, politics, of production and marketing schemes, the financial distress, make the brain whirl just to remember these exciting times.

The shortage of labor has been a prime factor. Everyone has been so busy along his own work, and so hard-pressed financially, that it left no time for public work, and no money to finance a co-operative business. The Farmer Union emerges practically with a clear field for action.

Enough of the past; what of the future? There is every reason to be encouraged. The beginning of order in our governmental affairs is at hand. Washington has looked the farmer over thoroughly and decided that nothing can be done except to loan him money and teach him to co-operate. He already has too much money borrowed, and he could co-operate if he wasn't too stubborn.

There is a psychological moment and I believe it is time for the Farmers Union of Nebraska to strike some hard blows and regain its membership. Farm prices are rising a little, and the $2.40 won't come quite so hard. Retailers have widespread margins and made a nice opening for cooperative business. But most of all, the farmer now knows that if he doesn't work out his own economic salvation he will be put out of business by organized capital and labor.

In the next issue I shall give an outline of a feasible and inexpensive method of increasing our membership.

GEO. W. YOUNG, Secretary, Custer County Farmers Union.

MIGHTY GOOD NEWS

Nearly every day, always several times a week, comes the news of the formation of another cooperative marketing organization by farmers. Everywhere farmers are getting together and working in cooperation because they have found it does not pay to "go it alone." There is tremendous hope for the future in this tendency because if farmers are co-operating on a small scale, sooner or later they will co-operate in a big way. The maximum benefits will not accrue until the marketing of crops is put on a commodity basis if the experiences of the past are of any value. The quicker national marketing by commodities is put into effect the sooner will agriculture receive its dues in the way of fair prices for farm products.—Cappers Farmer.

An attractive meal, how to plan one which will be nourishing, economical, and appetizing, using the materials grown on the home farm or ordinarily at hand in the farm kitchen, was the interesting problem on which more than 5,000 club girls worked in 1922 under the direction of co-operative extension agents. In this study these young home makers prepared, according to reports to the United States Department of Agriculture, more than 86,000 meals.

WICHITA HOUSE MAKES
GAIN 51 CARS IN OCTOBERSecond Month's Business Shows
Steady Growth by Young Firm

The Farmers Union Live Stock Commission at Wichita has closed its second month of business. In view of the weather conditions throughout the Southwest and the great amount of high water in Oklahoma which has caused many bridges to be washed out and as a result very few people were able to ship their stock to market, we are certain that our Farmers Union membership will be more than delighted with the business handled during October.

As our readers will no doubt recall, during September the Wichita firm handled 155 cars of stock, and during the month of October a total of 236 cars were handled. Definite figures have not yet been made public, but we have every reason to believe that our farmers firm purchased more cars than the total of any other two or three firms operating on this market. Another interesting feature of the month's work is the increase of truck business. It seems that the farmers close around Wichita have quickly realized the benefits to be derived by selling their stock through the farmers firm.

The splendid success of this latest venture of the Farmers Union is due partially to the high type of people employed at Wichita, and their ability to render the best service obtainable on that market. The balance of the success of the month just past is due to the wonderful cooperation of our members who have had the faith in, and the loyalty to their organization to consign all their live stock to their own firm.

It is the desire of the members of the firm at Wichita that their highest appreciation be expressed to their many friends and customers for having had the pleasure of meeting them and handling their business during October. It is the desire of all of the employees that they may during November, make the acquaintance of many other members who have not yet become acquainted with the Wichita Farmers Union Live Stock Commission.

ERIE LOCAL BREAKS THE ICE

The State Secretary's office reports numerous inquiries regarding the membership drive that is now being waged over the state and great interest is manifested in many localities.

Erie Local No. 562 is the first one to get the 1924 band wagon and Secretary Walter J. Schumacher has sent in dues for the coming year from 37 members and states the balance will follow within a few days.

It is to be hoped that every local and county secretary over the state will make a strenuous effort within the next few weeks to round up all of the old members and as many new ones as possible and remit to the state office, thereby putting their local on the Union map in big letters.

LET US HEAR FROM KANSAS

What are the leading co-operative counties of the United States? We can't say for this year or for last but in 1913, according to the United States Department of Agriculture, there were five counties in each of which the products of over two thousand farms were sold through co-operative agencies. Four of these counties were in California, four in Minnesota and one in Michigan.

Fresno county, California, led with 5,281 farms in the co-operative list, with Otter Tail county, Minnesota, second, with 4,328. The method of estimating leadership is hardly fair to Iowa counties, of course, because no Iowa county has as many farms in its total as Otter Tail lists as signed up with co-operatives. The total number of farms in the Minnesota county is 6,627 a number that would take two of our biggest counties to match. Nevertheless getting two-thirds of the farms in a county signed up with co-operative selling agencies is something of a job and Otter Tail is entitled to its fame. To handle the products of these four thousand farms, the Minnesota county has established twenty-five co-operative creameries, thirteen co-operative elevators, three potato shipping associations, and two stores. One-half of the live stock shipped out of the county is handled co-operatively.

A record like this—and it is too good a record—shows how much farther we will have to go before American agriculture will be completely committed to the co-operative plan. We must have made a good start, but it is only a start. We wonder what county will have the honor of being the first 100 per cent co-operative county, with every farm signed up to deliver its products through a farmers marketing agency?—Wallace Farmer.

HALLOWE'EN ENTERTAINMENT
ENJOYED BY FRANKLIN LOCAL NUMBER 1301

That Franklin Local No. 1301, Ellsworth County, is much alive, was demonstrated at its meeting, Monday evening, October 22. At the close of the business session the meeting was turned over to the entertainment committee. Novel, well conceived, and seasonal in its appointments was the program they carried out.

The school room was beautifully decorated in autumn leaves, pumpkins and bats the clever work of Mrs. L. C. Heischmidt.

In one corner was a wigwag occupied by a fortune teller, Melba Caldwell and an Indian maiden, La Verne Heischmidt, who gave apples and marshmallows to their patrons.

In the hallows' and black cat contests, Mrs. L. C. Heischmidt won first place, with Mrs. Warren Need, a close second.

It was a pleasing reception, for members of the local, whose surprise was heightened, when carrying out the suggestion of the season, and sandwiches, apples, pickles, potsetsa sal-wiches, apples, pumpkin pie, with coffee was served. Apparently all had a wonderful time.

Our next meeting will be held November 5th.

MRS. O. W. HOLMES,
Local Correspondent.

The Pooling Plan, The Wheat Growers Way Out

through efficient use of opportunities that have been handed to them by the farmers themselves on a silver or rather a golden platter.

Also a large number of local elevators and the federated agencies are active in opposition to co-operative marketing. This also is perfectly natural. They are looking after their own interests. Even now the propaganda agencies of local grain grain dealers are flooding the mails with statements to show that co-operative handling of wheat has resulted in considerable losses to the members of pooling associations. There may be some truth in their charges. Several of the state growers Associations started operations with a very small volume of grain under contract, a volume by no means sufficient, to carry the necessary overhead expenses and take up the unliquidated organization costs in a single season without imposing a considerable tax on their members.

Farmers are extremely conservative. They do not like to adopt any new system until it has been proved by the results of experience. One man dislikes the idea of binding himself to sell his grain for a number of years through a single agency even though he is part of the organization. He does not realize the the contract or conditions that bind him to support the existing agencies is not for a limited period but for all time unless he himself, and his fellow producers take the matter into their own hands and do something about it. Another sears the idea that he needs any guardian or agent to run his business for him. He prides himself on his ability to sell his own crops and to get the high dollar. That man should realize that he never sold any crop in his life in the sense that he bargained with a purchaser and charged and obtained a price based on the cost of production plus a reasonable profit.

Some farmers do not believe that it will be possible for a wheat marketing association organized without capital and conducted for service rather than profit to finance the movement of crops. So far the experience of wheat pooling organizations has been that getting the money for advances and for other association purposes is the very easiest part of the business. The grain itself is the capital for operations. Every one of the properly managed pools is borrowing all the money that it needs for this year's operations at five per cent and even cheaper funds may be secured a little later on. Financing co-operative marketing of the great farm staples is much easier than getting growers signatures on contracts for the delivery of the crops to such agencies.

There appears to be a great number of farmers who believe in the pooling plan but do not want to put in their own grain until the associations have control of at least half the wheat production. That attitude is very dangerous to the movement.

How can it ever be possible to show the good results certain when a majority of the growers refuse to enter into contracts until success has been obtained? There must be pioneers in every movement. The men who reclaimed the prairies of Nebraska and Kansas and made these states the seat of a great agricultural empire did not hesitate to take a chance. Their sons and grand sons should have the courage and the good sense to pioneer this new and promising marketing movement which, if successful, will assure them safety and security on the lands that their father did not fear to open up and cultivate.

Many growers would like to know in advance just what profits are possible under the pooling system. Of course that is a question that cannot be answered in advance. Until at least sixty-five per cent of the American wheat production is pooled it is not likely that the marketing associations can become a determining factor in fixing prices. Whenever as much as sixty-five per cent of the wheat is pooled it is practically certain that the co-operatives can fix the price of their crops used in home consumption clear up to the limit made possible by the protective tariff. Until a controlling volume is signed up the advantages of co-operative marketing must come from economical operation, from the equitable distribution of the premiums of good milling wheat among the members, and from the ability of selling agencies to find better markets and get the full value of the grain.

The profits and expenses of the wheat merchants of this country operating on the various boards of trade and grain are known to be very large and grain exchanges are known to be very large. In the total they must amount to many hundreds of millions of dollars a year. The co-operative marketing association can reach the manufacturer and the exporter with considerably less expense than is possible through the organized grain trade. What ever can be saved in marketing costs, all the profits now made by the grain merchants and the additional proceeds due to result from getting exactly what the wheat is worth for milling purposes are the basis for co-operative profits until a controlling volume is secured by the poolers. Existing associations that have been properly and honestly managed and that have handled a good volume of grain show an advantage to their members of from ten to fourteen cents a bushel. Sounds small but is big when it is applied to hundreds of millions of bushels.

Quite a few growers who believe in the pooling plan are troubled over the cost of organization. That is a matter that is wholly within the control of the farmers. If every wheat grower in the United States who already believes in the pooling plan would enter the organization in his own state by signing the contract today there would be very little organization expenses. The longer it takes to secure association control of a majority of the wheat the higher will be the organization costs. The Burley Tobacco Association was organized, so it is reported, for thirty-five cents a pound. The whole plan was put over and eighty-five per cent of the production was obtained in about ninety days. It is delay, procrastination, hesitation and inertia that are piling up the costs of organizing wheat. If all the growers would get into the movement next week practically their entire enrollment fee could be returned to them in the first final settlement for their grain.

The pooling movement has its friends as well as its enemies. Almost universally the bankers of the country, large and small, are in favor of co-operation. It stabilizes the security that bankers take for the money necessary to move the crops. Every sensible country banker would rather lend on wheat than on the personal security of the men who make wheat or the elevators that handle it. Too many bankers have been sweating blood over poorly secured loans to local elevators. They welcome any change in the marketing methods that enables them to carry on their business with less risk to their shareholders and depositors and so most of them advocate the pooling plan.

Almost without exception the intelligent business men and merchants in the wheat belt are strong supporters of co-operative marketing. There are in favor of any workable plan that will increase the farmers purchasing power. They know that their prosperity rises and falls as the prosperity of the farmers rises and falls. They want more trade and trade more nearly on a safe cash basis and they believe that better prices through co-operative marketing are therefore no less beneficial to them than to the producer of farm products.

The farmers of the middle west are at the parting of the ways. They must organize co-operatively in their own interest if they hope to save their farms from foreclosure as they are signing their rights away and going into bondage when they put their names on the association agreements and the marketing contracts of pooling associations. They are doing exactly what Thomas Jefferson, John Hancock, Benjamin Franklin and in other of the immortal signers did in 1776. They are putting their signatures to a new Declaration of Independence in which they put the world on notice that from this day they will use their own brains in conducting their own business affairs.

....The Kansas Farmers Union Has Made Good....

WHY SUPPORT EXPERIMENTAL AND UNTRIED ORGANIZATIONS?

Every Union Member in Kansas is Asked to Join in a Campaign to Get Members and Collect Dues

THE RECORD OF ACHIEVEMENT

LOCAL CO-OPERATIVE ASSOCIATIONS

The Farmers' Union has established more than 700 incorporated co-operative associations with a combined capital of more than $10,000,000 and with an annual business turnover of not less than $300,000,000. All these enterprises that have had the support of a courageous and loyal membership have been successful.

PROFITS FROM CO-OPERATIVE ELEVATORS

Through a Local Co-operative Elevator System the Kansas Union has abolished profit taking by local grain dealers and has added an average of 15 cents a bushel on the day of sale to the price of all wheat and corn marketed in the state. In this single field of activity the Union has increased the cash income of Kansas farmers more than $30,000,000 annually.

NEIGHBORHOOD LIVE STOCK ASSOCIATIONS

Union Local Live Stock Shipping Associations have eliminated local buyers and speculators in livestock and have secured fair prices and fair treatment for all small producers of meat animals in Kansas. The profits from this single department of Union co-operative activities amounts to many millions of dollars annually.

JOBGING ASSOCIATION RESULTS

Through its Jobging Association the Kansas Farmers' Union has established a great grain marketing agency on the Kansas City market and for five years has fixed the price of binder twine at a figure that saves the wheat growers of the state more than a million dollars annually. It now handles one-tenth of all the grain receipts of the Kansas City markets.

THE LIVESTOCK COMMISSION COMPANY

The Farmers Union Live Stock Commission Company has become the largest house on the Kansas City market and this year will sell nearly 10,000 car loads of animals for its satisfied patrons in Kansas, Missouri, Oklahoma, Texas and Colorado and will pay very substantial shippers dividends at the end of the year and better than any cash returns it has secured a fair deal for all farmers producers from all live stock dealings.

RESULTS OF CO-OPERATIVE INSURANCE

The two great Insurance Companies established and conducted by the Kansas Farmers Union have forced a reduction of rates for protection of farm property against fire, lightning, tornado and hail that makes an enormous annual saving for farmers and has paid co-operative dividends and established reserves that amount to almost a million dollars.

THE CO-OPERATIVE AUDITING ASSOCIATION

The Farmers' Union Co-operative Auditing Association has standardized co-operative accounting, has supplied its members and others with efficient, impartial and rigorous auditing services at reasonable rates and by establishing better business methods in all Union co-operative enterprises has reduced the chances for failure and increased the opportunities for success.

THE UNION WHEAT POOL

The Farmers Union Wheat Marketing Association has pooled a large and constantly increasing volume of Kansas wheat production and is now selling the grain delivered by its members in an orderly and economic way that is certain to yield very large returns in profits and satisfaction to the growers who signed its wisely worked out marketing contract.

THE KANSAS UNION FARMER

The Kansas Union Farmer, the official organ of the Kansas State Farmers' Union is the only paper in the state that owes no allegiance to any political party and that it is under no obligations to any of the great organized commercial, financial and transportation interests. It exists only to tell the truth, to advocate and discuss the principles of co-operative business and to serve the members of the Union in all possible helpful ways.

COMMUNITY ORGANIZATIONS

The Kansas Farmers Union has built up more than two thousand local and county organizations to serve the members as community centers for educational and social activities. Through these groups the farm people of Kansas have been trained in better business methods and taught to use their power and influence in public affairs.

UNION HAS SAVED THE SCHOOL DISTRICT

The Farmers' Union has prevented the destruction of the independent rural school district and the creation in its place of a county system of school administration designed to deprive parents of every vestige of democratic control over the education of their own children and has steadfastly advocated a better system for raising distributing funds for elementary education.

UNION AND PAVED ROADS

Through its educational agencies and the activities of its legislative representatives the Farmers Union has checked the construction of costly paved roads and prevented the waste of public money for improvements too expensive for the resources of the taxpayers but has consistently advocated highway improvement within the means of the people.

UNION HAS CHECKED EXTRAVAGANCE

The Farmers' Union has waged a never ceasing war against waste, extravagance and graft in public expenditures for state, county and local purposes and has prevented the legislature and the other money spending governmental agencies from levying many millions of dollars of wholly unnecessary taxes.

KANSAS CO-OPERATIVE LAWS

The Farmers' Union secured the enactment of the co-operative laws of 1913 and 1915 defining and authorizing the organization and operation of Rochdale business associations in Kansas and of the Standard Marketing Act of 1921 which provides for the orderly marketing of farm products through growers co-operative agencies.

PREVENTED BAD LAWS

For more than ten years the Farmers' Union has been able to prevent the passage of laws intended to cripple co-operative business and restrict the activities of co-operative insurance companies.

ACTS WITH OTHER ORGANIZATIONS

Co-operation with other bona fide self help farmers organizations, has always been one of the policies of the Kansas Farmers' Union. The relations between the Union and the Grange are entirely friendly and the wonderful growth of the Farmers Union Live Stock Commission Company at Kansas City is largely due to close affiliation with the Missouri Farmers Association.

EFFECTS ON FARM FINANCES

The beneficial effects of the co-operative agencies established by the Kansas Farmers' Union are fully demonstrated by the fact that Kansas has a smaller volume of farm mortgage indebtedness than other agricultural state with equal investments in farming facilities and corresponding value of annual crop production.

WORKS ONLY FOR PUBLIC GOOD

The public and legislative activities of the Kansas Farmers Union have always been in the interest of all the people. The organization has advocated and secured legislation designed only to serve the public good and has uniformly and successfully opposed all proposition of self help movements. Not a single Farmers Union law or proposed law has ever asked the legislature of the state for the appropriation of one dollar of public funds.

UNION HAS PROVED ITS VALUE

The Kansas Farmers Union has proved the merit and the usefulness of its program of Organization, Education and Co-operation. It is engaged in the great work of establishing a system of co-operative business and service for Kansas agriculture which will not be complete until marketing associations for all staple farm products have been organized a complete structure of co-operative banking and credit agencies has been formed.

Pool News

The Great Government of the United States lays particular stress on the importance of protecting the life of her citizens. Laws define the rights of people in the exercise of their freedom. Traffic laws determine the passing of traffic on streets of our crowded cities in such a manner that the life of the humble citizen is protected in so far as possible. Railroads are required to have the crossings marked and signals placed that will warn the citizen of the danger of crossing without investigation. Armed police patrol the streets to protect the life of the undesigning citizen against the attacks of the culprit who has in view the taking of things that go to support life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. Life preservers waves and winds. Life preservers him. Life boats are on board the vessels that hazard the oceans mighty around the bodies of the humble citizen hold his body aloft to escape the tongues of water that would snuff out the life of the most innocent. Pure food laws open the eyes of those citizens who would take medicine without knowing the composition. Prohibition laws prohibit the sale of intoxicants that are dangerous to the lives of the people that are obsessed with the idea that happiness depends upon a condition of irresponsibility. Gambling is prevented as far as possible where the results are liable to be disastrous to the unoffending. In fact the aim of Government is for the securing of life liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

The security of our Government rests upon the willingness of the citizens to obey the laws. To violate the laws wilfully is to show our contempt for the Government that represents our ideas of justice. Laws on the statutes are a part of the conclusions of the best men that we could pick to define our relations with one another. Ignorance of the law excuses no one. Therefore our plain duty demands that we know the law and abide by its regulations. Is the farmer exempt from the provisions of the law? Let us see what the farmer is and then decide.

The farmer as a citizen, occupies the position of being the beginning of things that go to support life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. His is the hand that plucks from the earth the gifts of a wonderful Nature. Without his harvest the wheels of industry fail and the whole of Government collapses because the need for laws regulating the relations of citizens in the exchange of the things that support life no longer exist and the function of Government is dead. To keep alive the function of Government the farmer must continue to harvest. To make possible the harvest the farmer must be protected in life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. To say that the farmer should be exempt from the provisions of the law created to protect the innocent from the robberies of the designing would be to admit that laws are based on class and that we have class legislation instead of unprejudiced laws of justice. The farmer cannot be exempt because he is the beginning and the end. The gambler that speculates on the farmers wheat and through his manipulations of the market causes the price of the farmers product to be confiscatory is a culprit and punishment is prescribed in the Anti-Gambling law. To rob another of a thing that does not belong to you and that you have no part in creating is a wrong in the eyes of the law that stands for the protection of life. The farmer is protected in two ways from the gambling culprits. The first has been mentioned; the second is the Co-operative Marketing Act. The life of the whole nation is protected in allowing the farmers to escape the gamblers clutches by organizing co-operative selling agencies where the services of the farmers shall be fully paid for by the consumer of his products.

As a measure of self preservation both laws were made a part of the body of laws of the country. Both were directed against what was considered a detrimental practice. One punishes by fine the direct actor in receiving service at less than cost, forcing the acceptance of the pay through market manipulation. No provision seems to have been made for punishing the man who indirectly supports such an institution by furnishing wheat to the gambler in the face of the law making possible his escape. The gambler who is guilty of forcing the price of wheat down is no more guilty than the man who furnishes the wheat. If the act of one is detrimental to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness and is recognized as such by the courts; then why let the man who aids in the robbery go unpunished? The farmer who furnishes ammunition to the robber to hold up his neighbor is as bad as the robber. The farmer who is taking advantage of the Marketing Act and is organizing his selling agencies is saving the country from the result of ruinous practices of the gamblers and their lieutenants.

Wheat pooling is being done by men who recognize the laws of the country and are willing to comply with them. Those that refuse to pool do so in the face of two laws that recognize the necessity of pooling. The pooler obeys two laws that the non-pooler refuses to obey, so therefore is a more law abiding citizen than the non-pooler. The pooler agrees by contract that it is detrimental to the Association for him to violate the obligations of his contract and sell to the gambler. The courts hold him guilty of violating his contract and he pays a fine of twenty-five cents per bushel for every bushel of wheat that he turns over to an institution that was recognized by law as detrimental. The wheat farmer who sells to a gambler becomes a bootlegger in a sense. He is supporting an institution that has been declared illegal. Why punish the man that sells home brew in violation of this law and let the farmer go unpunished who refuses to pool with his neighbors, but scabs on the organization and sells the laws of the country out to the grain gambler. If the pooler is guilty of violating the law; is the man less guilty that aids in robbing of his own children and family and piles up a debt for an unborn generation of innocent children to pay after robbing the soil of its fertility and by aiding a gambling institution to destroy the avenue of escape for the wheat farmer) brings down the Greatest Government on earth by setting the example for non respect for the law? Brother Farmers, Union men when you know these things and then refuse to help with the pool you are, as Guilty As Hell!

The final date for beginning the return journey is Nov. 26.

Fraternally Yours,
A. C. DAVIS, National Secretary, Springfield, Mo., Oct. 30, 1923.

Diversified farming has proved its value. Here and there, in spots specializing in one particular crop is advisable. But care needs to be taken in making the selection and in management. There are the "rubs."

Miami County's Annual Meeting. The Miami County Farmer's Union will hold their annual meeting in the American Legion room in the City Hall in Paola beginning at 1 P. M. We urge a large attendance as this is the time to elect officers for the ensuing year.

All standing committees are requested to meet at the Farmer's store at 10 A. M.

WAUBAUNSEE COUNTY MEETING DECEMBER 8th

The fourth quarterly meeting of the Waubaussee County Farmers Union will be held in the Court House at Alma on Saturday, December 8th, commencing promptly at 2 p. m. At this meeting the officers will be elected for the coming year, and the secretary will read the financial report. Local Secretaries if you have not sent in your 1923 dues do so at once as the books will be audited at this meeting and I would like to have all dues in. A good attendance is always desired.

JOE RICHMOND, County Secretary.

Cooperation is the most effective weapon that the farmer has at his command. The whole commercial system of the nation waits to get a slice out of the farmer but he can prevent it if he will cooperate with his brother farmers.
