FINNSHEEP

Kip Hoffman, Alta Vista, has made a big leap into the sheep business. He bought four Finnsheep at $600 a piece.

NO BEAUTY QUEEN

This Finnsheep ewe is the key to larger lambings. She is expected to lamb early in April, and the consignor guaranteed Hoffman at least three lambs from each ewe. Each of the three ewes had twins in their first lambing.

Finnsheep: The Exotic Sheep Breed?

CHRISTMAS TREE PROBLEM

Over $1,500 was spent each year trying to keep weeds out of this Christmas tree patch. Kip Hoffman, right, and his brother, Stoney, believe that sheep are the answer to their problems. The sheep don't eat the trees, they just mow the weeds.

NOT JUST A SHEEP MAN

Kip and Stoney Hoffman have their interests spread far and wide. Sorrel Sugar Leo, Kip's pride and joy, could become a good race horse and will get his chance this spring.

Finnsheep Solve Costly Christmas Tree Problem

Ted Gum

What do sheep and Christmas trees have in common?

They live and let live. Kip Hoffman and his brother, Stoney, of Alta Vista, had a weed problem in their 50-acre Christmas tree plot. It was costing them about $1,500 a summer to keep the weeds down. Two years ago they tried sheep in the tree plot and the results put them in the sheep business.

Willing to take a chance, Kip Hoffman bought four Finnsheep at $600 a head. These sheep will be the key to a crossbreeding program that should make sheep producers take notice.

According to the report Hoffman got when he bought the sheep in Pipestone, Minnesota, there are about 150 Finnsheep in the United States and they were quarantined in Canada. Sheep specialists believe that Finnsheep could be the exotic breed of the US sheep industry.

Finnsheep rate lower than North American sheep in most production aspects. But they have twice the number of lambs in the lifetime of a ewe, through higher lambing percentages, and they breed at an earlier age. North American rams can handle about 20 ewes during the breeding season. Finnsheep rams are known for higher breeding rates.

Hoffman plans to use his Finnsheep ram to breed 80 Rambouillet ewes that will graze in the Christmas tree patch this summer.

Canadian research shows that crossbreeding yields not only a proportion of the desirable Finnsheep traits, but a high degree of hybrid vigor is in evidence.

Finnsheep can be bred from seven to twelve months of age and usually have twins the first lambing. Litters of seven have been recorded but the average is about four per lambing. The ewe can feed four lambs but supplemental feeding is recommended for maximum gain.

Kip admits he's taking a chance on Finnsheep but points out agricultural ideas are changing so fast that farmers have to gamble.

Not taking anything for granted, Hoffman has done his research on sheep in the past two years. "A big part of the problem in the sheep business is that sheep get what's left over, like poorer pasture and rations."

"The profit lies in more lambs per ewe because those ewes producing one lamb are eating just as much as a ewe producing four lambs," Hoffman theorizes.

Finnsheep were developed in a rugged climate with scanty feeding. In their homeland, Finland, they are considered hardy and efficient converters of feed.

Considering feed utilization and lambing rates, Finnsheep could revolutionize the sheep business like Limousin, Simmental, Charolais, and Maine-Anjou have revolutionized the beef industry.

But, if the Finnsheep project doesn't work out, Hoffman will have a weed-free Christmas tree plot, and he can still go to the horse races.

USDA Dodges Ban On Vertical Integration

The Agriculture and Justice departments has declined to support a bill designed to preserve the family farm by barring vertically integrated corporations and conglomerate firms from farm production.

"We believe that enactment of this bill would not achieve the stated objectives of enhancing the competitive position of family farms," J. Philip Campbell, under-secretary of Agriculture, told a House Judiciary subcommittee.

"Rather, by breaking up a system of vertical coordination that has evolved for certain commodities, many family farmers would be denied production opportunities that now exist under contract arrangements with processing and marketing firms," he said.

He said the measure would adversely affect at least half of the commercial broiler production and a third of egg and turkey production. The bill also would virtually eliminate existing arrangements between producers and processors of sugar beets and sugar cane, Campbell said.

Vertical integration occurs when one firm is engaged in farm production and one or more related activities, such as feed manufacturing or food processing.

Bruce B. Wilson, deputy assistant attorney general, said that while he sympathizes with the desire to preserve the family farm, "I am afraid this bill is not an appropriate vehicle for the purpose."

He said there is little in the way of objective evidence that agriculture has been harmed by the competition.

Chairman Jim Abourezk, D-S.D., said antitrust laws should be applied to halt agriculture production by conglomerates which he said are "devastating rural America and threatening the consumer with even higher food prices."

"Conglomerate farmers displace family farmers because they can farm at a loss and recoup that loss with profits in proposing or retailing. This gives them an advantage over the family producer, but it is an advantage borne of classic monopoly tactics, not of superior efficiency," Abourezk said.

Opening Dates For Combined Hunting Season Selected

The Kansas Forestry, Fish and Game Commission has established opening dates for the 1972 prairie chicken, pheasant and quail hunting seasons.

The greater prairie chicken season in the Flint Hills will open on Nov. 4. Hunting for pheasants and quail will become a reality one week later on Nov. 11.

The combined opening date for pheasants and quail marks only the second time since 1932 that seasons for the two popular game birds will open on the same day throughout the state. The first combined opening on the two species was featured last year in an effort to reduce hunting pressure on private lands on opening day.

"Hunter attitude toward our combined opener last year appeared to be most favorable," said Oliver Gasswint, chief of the Commission's game division. "According to our small game survey, the concurrent opener was well received by hunters and a vast majority indicated a desire to have the combined opening again in 1972. Many landowners have also expressed favorable comments relative to the combined opening since hunters appeared to be more evenly distributed across the entire state rather than concentrated in certain areas."

While season lengths and bag limits will not be established until late summer, the Commission voted to establish the opening dates to accommodate hunters who wish to plan hunting trips to correspond with vacations.

An opening date for lesser prairie chicken hunting in southwest Kansas will not be set until later.

SPRING FERTILIZING

Ted Nihart, a Wamego farmer, is spreading dry nitrogen fertilizer on his brome grass. He plans to fertilize his wheat but said, "I've got a problem with wild buckwheat and will probably use a liquid fertilizer with 2-4-D as a corrective measure."

To be twice as big you'll need four times
as much money.

Where's it coming from?

Now, who's likely to have that kind of money? It will probably come from someone who knows the kind of credit a farmer or rancher really needs. Someone like your local Production Credit Association. They make loans to agriculture exclusively.

When you want operating capital, these guys will give you the go ahead. They're not philanthropic, they merely understand your needs.

PCA has offices all over the country staffed with experienced agriculturists. They do more than make loans to farmers and ranchers. They act as a clearing house for crop, stock and marketing know-how. They provide a variety of services including financial counseling, agricultural consulting and practical listening. So, if you want to enlarge your operation; improve your farm or ranch; buy equipment, appliances, seed, feed, fertilizer, stock, poultry; pay doctor bills; or send a son to college; establish a line of credit with your Production Credit Association. Use your earning power as collateral.

Since you'll need four times as much money to be twice as big, stop by your local Production Credit Association office and discuss your plans with your PCA planner. You'll find him cooperative and helpful whether you want a loan, advice or an understanding ear.

Growers, Sugar Company Agree On New Contract

Representatives of sugar beet growers from a 5-state area and the Great Western Sugar Co., have announced agreement on a 1972 purchase contract.

The agreement includes the assurance that Great Western will buy beets produced by more than 200 growers under contract to the company's processing plant near Goodland.

The contract basically is the same as the one signed last year, and covers grower associations in Nebraska, Colorado, Kansas, Montana and Wyoming.

The pact had been held up by disagreements over financing of the 1972 crop and freight charges tagged on the crop when it is shipped from receiving station to processing plant.

Growers agreed to the financial arrangements after meeting with bankers earlier this month.

The company has agreed to the same freight provisions as in the 1971 contract, while grower associations have agreed to form a joint committee with the company to study the freight problem and make recommendations for the next contract period.

The company also agreed to make reductions in this year's acreage, where necessary, "on a pro-rata basis with the affected district," a spokesman for the company said.

The company at first had asked growers to allow it to make contract acreage cuts on farmers whose shipping costs were high. In most cases, the growers footing any additional cost. But there have been contracts where the company had paid the entire cost of shipping.

Another reason for the cuts is that last year, growers in some areas overproduced, stretching a 120-day season into 160 days. Many of the beets shipped during the final days of the season rotted.

The company's president, George Wilber, jr., predicted production would increase this year, and expects the growers to realize at least last year's gross price of $17.10 per ton of beets. The company processed 5 million tons of beets last year.

The Goodland growers, on 50,000 acres, produced 750,000 tons, 430,000 of which were processed at the Goodland plant. The remaining tonnage was shipped to processing plants in Colorado.

A company spokesman said the acreage cuts expected would not "substantially affect" the Goodland area growers.

very little from the high 1971 levels. Dr. Richard Fenwick, Extension economist at Kansas State University, says bankers report lower "loan-to-deposit ratios," so more money is available for agricultural loans.

"Farmers will be able to get the credit they need given this larger money supply," he says. "In fact, this might be a good year to re-evaluate your financial structure to determine if refinancing of short-term debt is necessary."

Fenwick indicates sources of credit for 1972 will probably be the same as last year. Banks and Production Credit Associations (PCAs) furnish the bulk of short-term and intermediate term credit. He says PCAs are gaining as a major farm non-real estate lender.

The amount of credit needed in 1972 may increase by some 6 percent over the $61.2 billion of debt outstanding in 1971, Fenwick says. "This ratio will be due to higher operating costs and higher prices of land, facilities, and equipment."

OUR DAILY BREAD

- by G&G Area Cooks

Miss Lena Rago Of Junction City Is Winner

Miss Lena Rago, 814 Barnhill Drive, Junction City: "Am enclosing a speedy and delicious frosting recipe. Enjoy the 'Our Daily Bread' section of Grass & Grain. I save all of the recipes and try and share many of them with my friends."

HONEY FLUFF FROSTING

- 1 cup honey
- 2 egg whites
- 1 teaspoon lemon extract
- Dash of salt

Bring 1 cup honey to a boil. Pour slowly over the 2 stiffly beaten egg whites, beating constantly. Add 1 teaspoon lemon extract and a dash of salt. Beat to a spreading consistency. "Simply delicious."

The following recipe was sent by Mrs. Ernest Priddy, R 9, Topeka:

BREAD STARTER

- 1/2 cup warm (not hot) water
  - 1 package active dry or compressed yeast
  - 2 1/2 cups lukewarm potato water
  - 1/2 cup mashed potatoes
  - 1 tablespoon sugar
  - 1 tablespoon salt
  - 2 cups sifted enriched flour
- In mixing bowl combine yeast and warm water. Let stand a few minutes, stir to dissolve. Add remaining ingredients. Beat well. Cover. Let stand two days at room temperature (about 78 degrees), stirring mixture down two or three times daily. After two days, stir well. Take out 1 cup starter for future use and add 1 cup water, 2 teaspoons sugar, 1/2 cup sifted enriched flour. Beat thoroughly. Place in glass jar, cover with lid. Store in refrigerator.

A reader sent in the following sour dough recipes:

SOUR DOUGH STARTER

- 1 cup flour
- 1 cup water

Mix to a smooth paste. Set aside in a warm place, about 80 degrees, for several days to work, about three to seven days. A tablespoon of yeast, 2 teaspoons sugar will shorten the working time. When ready to use the flour will settle to the bottom and a sort of yeast liquor will come to the top. You keep the starter in the refrigerator from now on in a large cover jar or plastic container. Before you make sour dough biscuits or whatever, each time you make a starter mix. Half of this will go into the dough and the other half will be put in the container in refrigerator to keep the starter going until the next baking.

STARTER MIX

- 1 1/2 cups sour dough starter from above mixture (stir flour and liquid together before measuring:)
- 2 cups lukewarm water
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 package yeast

Mix thoroughly and add 2 1/4 cups flour. Mix to a smooth paste. Take out 2 cups of this starter mix for your recipe. The remainder stays in the bowl. Cover and let set overnight to work. The next morning pour it into your container with the rest of the starter; refrigerate. The starter will improve after several uses.

SOUR DOUGH CAKES & WAFFLES

- 2 cups starter mix
  - 1/2 cup warm water
  - 1/4 cup melted shortening
  - 2 eggs, separated (beat egg whites first)
  - 2 tablespoons sugar
  - 1 teaspoon salt
  - 1/4 cup powdered milk
  - 1 cup sifted flour
  - 1 teaspoon baking powder
  - 1 teaspoon soda
- Beat egg whites and set aside.

Combine starter mix, warm water, melted shortening and egg yolks. Mix well. Add flour, sugar, milk and salt. Mix to make a medium thick batter. Add stiffly beaten egg whites. Fold into batter. Add baking powder and soda dissolved in 1 tablespoon warm water. Work gently into batter. Bake on hot griddle. These are delicious.

SOUR DOUGH BISCUITS

- 2 cups starter mix
- 1/2 cup warm water
- 3 tablespoons shortening
- 2 teaspoons vinegar
- 1 tablespoons sugar
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 cup powdered milk
- 3/2 cups flour

Combine all ingredients except flour and mix. Gradually stir in flour to make a soft dough. Knead for ten minutes. Let raise 1 1/2 hours, then form into rolls on greased baking sheet. Let raise until double. Bake at 375 degrees for 30 minutes.

SOUR DOUGH CHOCOLATE CAKE

- 2 cups starter mix
- 3/4 cup warm water
- 1/4 cup powdered milk
- 1 1/2 cups all-purpose flour
- 4 squares unsweetened or semi-sweet chocolate
- 2 cups sugar
- 1/2 cup shortening (melted)
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 1 1/2 teaspoons soda
- 2 eggs

Combine starter mix, warm water, milk and flour. Mix well. Cover and let raise for 2 1/2 hours. Fifteen minutes before 2 1/2 hours expire, melt chocolate and let it cool. Combine sugar, shortening, salt, vanilla and soda with above mixture, and add eggs, one at a time, beating well after each addition. Mix to creamy consistency. Add cooled chocolate and blend together. Pour into greased layers not quite half full. Probably take three layers — is a big cake, or 9x13-inch pan. Will take about 50 minutes for large pan, 35 for layers. This is a heavier chocolate cake.

Plan Extra Bedroom For Growing Family

If your family is expanding and needs another bedroom or if you'd like additional sleeping area for friends or relatives who want to stay overnight, there are some things you should know about planning that extra bedroom. And one important thing is how you're going to heat it.
Even though you may turn the heat down at night in your sleeping areas, you'll still want heat there during the day.
The best way to heat your bedroom is with electric heat, and two excellent ways available today are with electric baseboard units or with ceiling cable. Baseboard can be installed on an outside wall under a window, while ceiling cable is best used for an addition, rather than remodeling of an existing room. Or you might consider a valance heater.

If you put in a baseboard heater,
the best place is along an outside wall and under a window. For ceiling panels or valance heaters try to keep them away from where the headboard of your bed will be. The best thing is to locate the unit under or over the window. If you want to use a wall heater, heating experts suggest that it would be best for a dressing room or alcove. This is where you will want instant heat and a fan-driven wall unit will deliver it.

Three-Wire Plugs Reduce Danger Of Shocks

Over eight decades have passed since Thomas Edison introduced the phenomenon of his electric light to an amazed world. In many ways electricity remains a mystery to man, yet it is an essential part of our contemporary society. However, at the flick of a switch electricity can become a killer. Perhaps the figure of approximately 1000 lives per year being taken by electric shock is not so staggering, considering that over 200 million people live in this country. Nevertheless, it is still a wanton and needless waste of human life.

Many means are being employed to reduce shock fatalities and one such method is the 3-wire plug. The third wire of this plug acts as what is called a ground conductor and serves as one of the protective means for the device. Such protection is accomplished through the ability of the wire to force the fuse or circuit breaker to "blow", thereby eliminating any shock hazard. Though originally found primarily on power tools, 3-wire plugs are now used on many appliances.

When a situation arises regarding
"blowing" fuses or circuit breakers, it should be emphasized that this happens for your protection. There is nothing wrong with the fuse. The fault lies elsewhere; either with the appliance which forces this reaction or because the circuit has been overloaded. In either case, the fuse is just doing its job of protecting you and warning that something is wrong. Should an instance occur wherein there is a fault in an appliance but a fuse doesn't "blow", the appliance becomes an extreme hazard as it remains "live".

Therefore, if one were to contact the "live" metal enclosure of that appliance and something which is grounded (radiator, refrigerator, water pipe, etc.), shock and possible
electrocution could result.

Perhaps your home is not equipped with grounding type receptacles. If this is the case, an adapter is available to accommodate the 3-wire plug. But always make sure the green grounding lead of the adapter is connected to the faceplate of the receptacle.

Another point to be remembered is never to remove the ground pin from a 3-wire plug. This would allow the plug to be used in a 2-hole receptacle, but the protective capability is rendered useless.

Origin Of Name, "Avocado"

To some people, the avocado is an exotic fruit, but it is an everyday item in the tropics where an avocado tree is as common in the backyard

as an oak or maple is here.

The name "avocado" goes back directly to an Aztec word for the fruit, "ahuacatl". The Spanish conquerors came. They took over the fruit and the word for it but they couldn't pronounce it, and neither can we.

Our word "avocado" is a phonetic attempt to say the Aztec word
"ahuacatl" though it seems much more soft and suave, almost like the buttery soft texture of the fruit.
Avocados are in good supply at market now. Enjoy them.

Traditional For Easter — Hot Cross Buns

Traditional for many families at Easter is the baking of Hot Cross Buns. Serve your family these popular treats this year:

HOT CROSS BUNS

Mix together:

- 1 cup lukewarm milk
- ½ cup sugar
- 1 teaspoon salt

Crumble into mixture:

- 2 cakes compressed yeast

Stir until yeast is dissolved. Stir in:

- 2 eggs
- ½ cup soft shortening

Mix in first with spoon, then with hand:

- 4½ to 5 cups sifted flour

Add flour in two additions, using the amount necessary to make it easy to handle. When the dough begins to leave the sides of the bowl, turn it out onto a lightly floured board to knead. Knead until dough is smooth and elastic and doesn't stick to board. Place in greased bowl, turning once to bring greased side up. Cover with damp cloth and let raise in warm, draft-free spot (80-85 degrees) until double, (1½ to 2 hours). Punch down; let raise again until almost double in bulk (30-45 minutes). Knead in:

- ½ cups seedless raisins
- ¼ cup currants or white raisins
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon
- ¼ teaspoon nutmeg

Divide dough into 24 pieces and form into balls. Place about two inches apart on greased baking sheet. Cover and let raise until double (30-35 minutes.) Just before baking cut a cross in the top of each bun. Bake at 400 degrees, 15-20 minutes or until brown. Let cool slightly then make cross with confectioners' sugar icing.

Seed Of An Idea

Punch a hole, put in the soil and plant the seedling or cutting — then let nature take its course. Polystyrene foam cups, used by the billions for hot and cold food beverage service, are used by tens of thousands as plant starters by nurseryman F.D. Hall of Butler, Pa., who recommends them as the ideal plant starter for the home gardener. Hall, who has been using between 50,000 and 75,000 six-ounce foam cups a year for the past seven years, says that the cups provide distinct advantages over peat pots and other containers.

Besides their insulating properties which help preserve moisture even in hot, dry weather, their capacity for reuse (Hall uses each one at least three times), and their relative low cost, the foam cups prevent potentially damaging intertwining of the roots with neighboring plants.

The top photo illustrates the simplicity of the operation and the bottom, the comparison in root spread between use of a peat pot and foam cup.

Fresh Corn Needs Little Cooking

Fresh corn requires very little cooking, and it is very important to cook it only until the milk in the kernels is set. Most vegetables become softer with longer cooking but corn does not; it becomes firmer or tough when overcooked.

Cook only one ear of corn per person at a time. Half fill a large kettle with water, add 1 teaspoon salt per quart of water, and bring to a boil. Add corn and boil covered, just until milk in kernels is set, three to six minutes. Remove ears with tongs and serve immediately with butter or favorite sauce. Then begin to cook second batch.

Since the cooking time will vary with the size and even sometimes with the variety of corn, it can be helpful to cook a "test ear" to determine the exact cooking time needed, and then to time the cooking time very carefully for the rest of the ears. If it is necessary to cook corn ahead of the serving time, turn off the heat when the corn is added to the boiling water, then cover and let stand until ready to serve.

Dieting? Order Chicken

If you're trying your best to stick to a diet, eating out can become a real challenge.

Fortunately, chicken is featured on most good menus, so you can enjoy a break from the kitchen without breaking your diet plan. Dine in style on any number of succulent restaurant favorites like Roast Chicken; Baked Chicken; Broiled Chicken; Chicken In The Pot; Sliced Chicken Platter; Open Chicken Sandwich, and Chicken In Aspic. Avoid stuffings, gravies and sauces. Enjoy salads and vegetables with your chicken and you'll have a satisfying, nutritious meal, reasonable in calories.

Grass & Grain

March 28, 1972

Consider Quality

If you consider buying beef for your home freezer this time of year, be sure to consider U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) grade to get the quality you can appreciate. That's important whether you buy by the quarter of beef or whether you buy the retail cuts you find special.

But when you buy a quarter of beef or side of beef, you'll also want to consider the yield grade. That grade determines how much meat actually goes into your freezer and the amount of waste.

Yield grade 1 gives you the most meat and the least waste of any yield grade. Your retailer would use the term "the best cut-out."

Yield grade 5 gives you the most waste. Less meat goes into your freezer. When you buy your meat by the quarter or side of beef, expect to lose at least one-fourth in cutting waste. There could be more than one-third waste when you get a number 5 yield grade, even when the quality grade is high.

May Cause Fungus

Dense shrubbery and vines planted too close to a house can interfere with drainage and air movement and thus promote fungus growth.

Governor Vetoes Farm - Labor Bill

Governor Robert Docking vetoed the farm-labor bill passed by the 1972 legislature. The veto was not expected. The Governor vetoed the bill on the grounds of its prohibition against secondary boycotts and strikes by agricultural workers was unconstitutional. The governor relied almost entirely upon an attorney general's opinion to support his veto of the farm labor bill.

Organized labor in Kansas, a heavy supporter of Docking campaign bids, was opposed to the farm labor bill primarily because of its prohibitions against strikes and the governor had been expected to reject the measure.

The opinion was written by John R. Martin, the first assistant attorney general, and signed by Atty. Gen. Vern Miller. The opinion was written in response to a request from State Rep. Roger Turner, R-Wichita.

Docking said in his veto message on the Agricultural Labor Relations Act, "The attorney general of the state of Kansas has advised in an opinion... That certain provisions... substitute for Senate Bill 291 (farm labor bill) are in direct violation of the First Amendment to the Constitution of the United States and section 10 of the Bill of Rights of the Constitution of the state of Kansas.

"This, in effect, renders substitute for Senate Bill 291 null and void."

The attorney general's opinion said, "In summary... it is our opinion that the prohibition of secondary boycotts operates on its face not only to discourage, but to prohibit the exercise of First Amendment rights, including freedom of speech, among all agricultural workers in the state subject to the act, as well as rights protected by section 10 of the Bill of Rights of the Constitution of the state of Kansas."

Martin said in his opinion, "The act in question there is an instance of the attempted exercise of the power of the state 'to set the limits of permissible contest open to industrial combatants.'

"The question presented here is whether the limits of 'permissible contest' have been drawn so narrowly as to permit the invoking of provisions of the act against constitutionally protected speech and conduct.

Martin said in the opinion that prohibited acts in the bill do not "merely define the limits of permissible contest in agricultural labor disputes, but operates to forbid the exercise of constitutionally protected First Amendment rights, including that of freedom of speech.

The prohibition of organizational picketing and of strikes likewise operate not only against employees who are members of organizations, but also individuals."

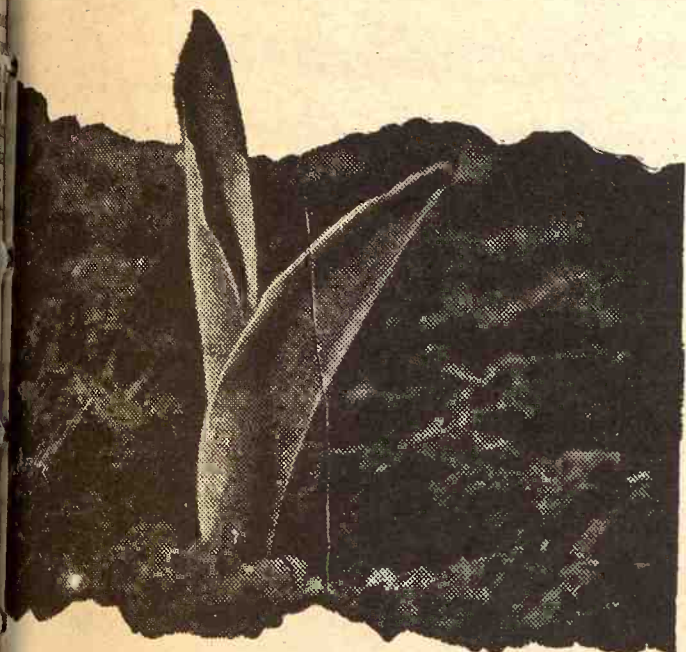

The bill set up machinery for agricultural workers to organize into bargaining units, and spelled out provisions for workers and employers to "meet and confer," to submit labor disputes to mediation and to invoke binding arbitration if accepted in writing by both sides in the dispute.

The bill also prohibited the establishment of maintenance of organizational pickets around the residence of an employer, his place of business or the location where his goods were on sale.

It prohibited strikes during periods of marketing of livestock or during a critical period of production or harvesting of crops or during mediation, fact-finding or arbitration proceedings.

It also prohibited engaging in secondary boycotts.

No Funds For New Rent, Says American Royal

The American Royal Livestock and Horse Show is on the brink of financial disaster, its president says.

John C. Gage, president of the American Royal Association, declared in a letter to members of the association board of governors that the city should take immediate steps to buy the land and facilities needed.

There is a very real possibility, Gage wrote the governors, that his duties as president could include "presiding over the funeral of the American Royal."

A major factor in the problem, Gage said, is the increase in rental due the Stockyards Co., effective July 1. The annual rent on the American Royal Pavilion will increase from $110,000 to $160,000.

"The Royal does not have the funds to pay the rental and keep going," Gage wrote the governors.

He urged that the city use general obligation bonds approved by voters several years ago to purchase American Royal facilities.

"If this were done, the American Royal would turn over to the city title to its leasehold improvements including the governor's Exposition building," he said.

"Purchase of the property by the city should be done irrespective of whether a hockey franchise will be operated at the American Royal site and whether a sports arena can be constructed there in the immediate future. If this does not come about, we can offer no hope of keeping the American Royal going."

Northern Pike Get Two-Foot Raise In Milford Lake

If there's such a thing as good news for fish, the northern pike in Milford Lake, Geary County, have got it!

The Army Corps of Engineers recently announced plans to increase the lake's level two feet in an attempt to provide improved spawning habitat for northern pike. The raise began February 4 and when completed, the reservoir will be two feet above conservation pool. This level will be maintained until early May. At that time, some water may be released if flood control needs require it.

March 28, 1972

The rising waters will inundate lakeside vegetation which should result in an improved northern pike spawn since the species does well in this type of spawning habitat.

If the flood control situation permits the higher level to be maintained through May and into June, it would prove beneficial to largemouth bass and walleye by providing their spawning with protective cover.

Hog Men Hold The Line

March 28, 1972

The number of hogs and pigs on farms on March 1 was down considerably from last year but was higher than in any other year since when March 1 records began, according to the Kansas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service.

The December-February pig crop was slightly below last year and the number of farrowings in the next quarter are down moderately.

Reservoirs Lower
There were 1,900,000 hogs and pigs on Kansas farms March 1, a decrease of 9 percent from last year and 1 percent more than on March 1,

Included in this total were 266,000 head being kept for breeding purposes and 1,634,000 head for market. Both breeding and market hogs were down 9 percent from a year earlier.

The number of market hogs was down in all weight groups with decreases from last year ranging from 5 percent in the under 60 pound group to 15 percent in the 180-219 pound group.

Pig Crop Down Slightly

Sows farrowing during the December-February quarter totaled 97,000 head, 2 percent fewer than a year ago.

There were 718,000 pigs saved during the quarter, down 1 percent from last year.

Pigs per litter for the quarter averaged 7.40 compared with 7.35 a year earlier and a range of 6.91 to 7.71 during the previous decade.

Fewer Farrowings In Prospect

During the March-May quarter farmers in Kansas plan to farrow 117,000 sows, down 4 percent from 1971. During the June-August quarter 88,000 sows are expected to farrow, unchanged from last year.

Hog Numbers Off

Hogs and pigs on farms March 1 in the 10 Corn Belt States are estimated at 41.8 million head — 6 percent less than a year earlier.

Hogs for breeding number 6.5 million, down 8 percent while market hogs totaled 35.3 million, off 6 percent from March 1971.

The 10 Corn Belt States include Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri, South Dakota, Nebraska and Kansas.

Farrowings and Pig Crop Down

The December-February 1972 pig crop in the 10 Corn Belt States was estimated at 13.3 million, 6 percent below last year.

A 10 percent decrease in sows farrowing was partially offset by a 4 percent rise in average litter rate.

Hog producers in the 10 States currently intend to farrow 7 percent fewer hogs during both March-May and June-August than in the same periods a year earlier.

'Don't Buy Meat' Advertises Eastern Food Chain

Giant Food, a grocery chain with 92 stores in Maryland, Virginia and the nation's capital, has launched an advertising crusade urging customers to purchase less meat because of high prices.

"Buy something else," say ads in Washington, Baltimore and Richmond newspapers. "Several good protein alternatives to red meat are in plentiful supply now."

The advice was quickly described by the American National Cattlemen's Association as wholly unfair. It comes in the wake of Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz's declaration that shoppers are "going to have to pay" the higher meat costs.

Giant's campaign is directed by Mrs. Esther Peterson, onetime consumer adviser to President Lyndon B. Johnson, who noted in the ads that beef prices are "near the highest level since the end of the Korean war."

She suggests chicken, turkey, fish, eggs and cheese as high-protein substitutes for meats. The ads tell customers also to check posters in the stores for other nutritious alternatives.

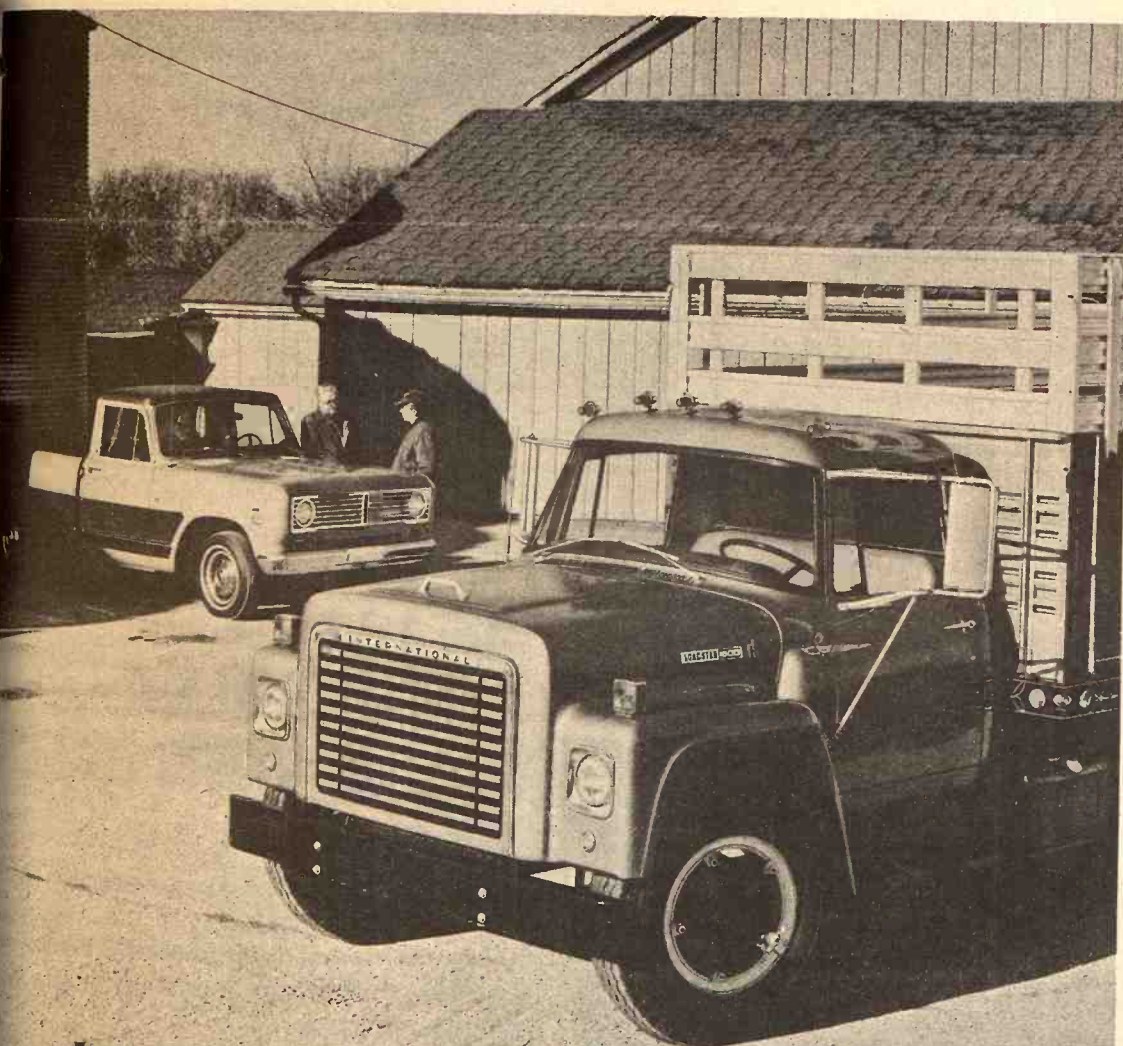

A spokesman for National Association of Food Chains said it was the first time, to his knowledge, that a major food chain has made "a direct statement to the consumer" urging them not to buy.

International trucks look as good on your books as they do on your farm.

Sure, the optional fiberglass hood can give your next INTERNATIONAL® LOADSTAR® truck a smart new look. But it can also give your operating expense records a smart new look. Because the tilting hood and fender assembly lets a serviceman walk right up to the engine. That saves time. And that, of course, can save you money.

A new 5/16-inch frame is standard on most models and available on all. And the longer your truck lasts, the less it really costs.

When you do need service or parts, Loadstar puts you ahead again. With the back-up of the largest organization of heavy-duty truck service centers in the business.

And it's nice to know that this same service is available for your International 1110 pickup truck. Which, incidentally, offers you many of the heavy-duty features you get in the big Loadstar truck. Including the optional 392-cubic inch V-8 engine.

International Loadstar. International 1110 pickup. Built to perform reliably on the job. So they perform beautifully on your expense records. Check them out soon at your International dealer.

BUX. MORE FARMERS USE IT THAN ANY OTHER ROOTWORM INSECTICIDE.

What makes BUX so special? A lot of things, including effective season-long control. Just a single application of BUX at planting time keeps corn standing tall right up to harvest. Besides that BUX offers several "extras." Extras no other rootworm insecticide can give you. It resists leaching in rainy weather. It's lower in toxicity than most other corn rootworm insecticides. You don't need special clothing or equipment. Just follow label directions. Corn treated with BUX can be fed to livestock. It won't bridge over in applicator hoppers or clog equipment. It doesn't have an objectionable odor like other insecticides. It's made with non-abrasive clay granules, so it's easy on equipment...making calibration easy too. So treat your corn to BUX. Before rootworms treat themselves to your corn.

Shorter Savings Time Span Not Winning Attention

Despite protests from rural members, Congress will take its own sweet time to consider a significant change in the Daylight Saving Time Law.

House Commerce Committee Chairman Harley Staggers (D., W.Va.) said his panel probably won't hold hearings until early next year on proposals to shorten the six-month period of daylight saving time.

Under a 1966 federal law, all clocks in the nation are moved ahead one hour on the last Sunday in April and are moved back on the last Sunday in October, unless a state legislature exempts the whole state.

Mr. Staggers outlined his timetable on time during brief House debate on a bill that makes the first change in the 1966 time law. The House passed the bill, which mainly affects Indiana, by a vote of 332 to 7, and returned it to the Senate for concurrence on a technical point. That will send the Nixon administration backed measure to the White House.

The bill applies to the 12 states split by time-zone boundaries.

Most of Indiana lies in the eastern time zone, but two clusters of counties around Gary and Evansville are in the central zone. The Indiana legislature want to avoid daylight saving time this summer, but the existing federal law requires it to exempt the whole state.

Thus, summer-time clocks in Gary, instead of advancing to Central Daylight Time along with those in neighboring Chicago, would have to run an hour later on Central Standard Time. The bill nearing enactment would let a state split by time-zone boundary exempt just part of itself from daylight savings time, allowing Gary's clocks to tick with Chicago's this summer.

After the Senate passed this bill last year, its House outlook was dim because sponsors of the 1966 law feared any tinkering could lead to more sweeping changes.

They're especially against proposals to shorten the observance of daylight saving time to the three months between Memorial Day and Labor Day. The shortening is desired mainly in rural areas, where people complain children in May and October must wait in morning darkness for school buses.

The Indiana bill was brought to the House floor under rules forbidding amendments. So rural lawmakers hadn't any chance to attach a shortening of the daylight-time period. Rep. Wiley Mayne (R., Iowa) and others complained bitterly about this procedure, and at Chairman Staggers' observation that other work probably will keep the Commerce Committee from holding hearings this session on daylight savings time.

New Standards Would Kill Area Watershed Project

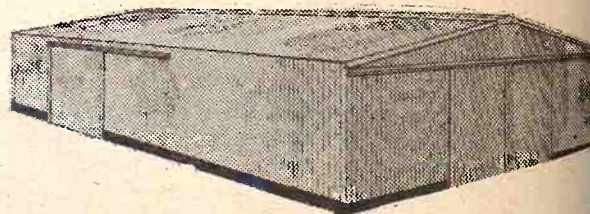

CHANUTE — Chanute area residents interested in growing cucumbers are being offered guaranteed markets up to 100 acres. Farm Products Management, Coffeyville, is offering the market through Atkins Pickle Co., Arkansas, the contract buyer. Earl Shell, president of Farm Products Management, said there is an estimated $500 gross return per acre of cucumbers, with a net profit of from $300 to $400 per acre. He said the $500 figure has been established through actual experience. Shell said four teen-agers have been hired to pick cucumbers. They should make a net of $100 each in six weeks of work.

Department officials report that several months of federal quarantines are weighing on the Southwest. But the Southwest has been a trouble area since last fall. USDA says 82 outbreaks of scabies, affecting nearly 100,000 people, have been reported so far. Quarantines of cattle across the Southwest are in effect in more than 100 counties, including Texas, Oklahoma and Kansas. Quarantines, however, have been reported in isolated areas of Colorado, Nebraska and Kansas. USDA says records checked in those areas were traced to the Southwest. Earl Shell, president of Farm Products Management, said there is an estimated $500 gross return per acre of cucumbers, with a net profit of from $300 to $400 per acre. He said the $500 figure has been established through actual experience. Shell said four teen-agers have been hired to pick cucumbers. They should make a net of $100 each in six weeks of work.

Scabies Worst Since 1959

Agriculture Department officials say it might be several months before all federal quarantines are lifted in areas of the Southwest where cattle scabies has been a major problem since last fall.

The Animal and Plant Health Service in USDA says 82 outbreaks of scabies, affecting nearly 100,000 head, have been reported so far. Federal quarantines, which restrict movements of cattle across state lines, are in effect in more than 10 counties of Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico.

Cases of scabies, however, have been reported in isolated areas of Kansas, Colorado, Nebraska and Iowa. Officials say records checked so far show those cases were traced to cattle originally from the Southwest quarantine areas.

Dr. Robert P. Jones, an APHS official and a veterinarian, says he thinks the scabies outbreaks, the worst since 1959, are slowing up but he could not estimate when the federal quarantines might be lifted.

"There is some feeling here that we would like to see them go some weeks or a month without any new outbreaks before lifting the quarantines," Jones told a reporter. Scabies, an itchy skin disease caused by a tiny mite, rarely is fatal to cattle but does debilitate animals and produce considerable economic loss.

One feedlot operator, Jones said, reported the disease was costing him $1 per day for each head of cattle in terms of reduced rates of weight gain and expenses for treatment.

But the federal quarantines are not meeting favor on all fronts. A dissident group from Oklahoma met with USDA officials and members of the state's congressional delegation last week on the quarantine situation.

The Oklahomans were assured by department officials that the scabies-control program, including a survey of all herds and feedlots in the quarantine areas, was making progress but were not promised when restrictions might be lifted.

Under the regulations, all herds of cattle in a quarantine area must be inspected and all infected or exposed animals treated for mites. Cattle can be moved out of state only if they have been inspected and certified free of scabies.

The regulations have reduced and complicated the shipment of lighter-weight feeder cattle from the Southwest into out-of-state feedlots and into winter-wheat pasture throughout the southern plains, particularly to Kansas and Colorado.

Jones said the wheat pasture season is almost at an end but the annual spring movement of cattle into native pasture areas could be impaired by the quarantine restrictions.

Another factor causing pressure on USDA to speed up the quarantine time is the big demand and high prices for feeder cattle this season.

But USDA officials say if quarantines are lifted before scabies outbreaks are brought under control, the mites can be spread into other states and force federal actions in those areas.

Jones said one of the problems is that scabies treatment, usually dipping in pesticidesolutions, sometimes is not done properly and leaves mites on the animals.

Another factor, he said, is that the mites — almost invisible to the unaided human eye — shot up most during the cold winter months when cattle have heavier coats. In the summer, he said, the mites are more difficult to detect.

Thus, Jones said, mites can frequently exist undetected on livestock during the summer and then multiply and become a visible problem in the fall.

Butz Sees No Price Controls On Meat Prices

On the topic close to every housewife's purse strings, Earl L. Butz, agriculture secretary, said in Kansas City last week there is no inkling that the Nixon administration is considering price controls on meat.

Butz, making his first Missouri visit since joining the President's cabinet four months ago, reiterated that point in appearances in Springfield and during a conference at the Hotel Muehlebach. Later he spoke to hundreds of delegates to the National Pork Producers Council at a dinner there.

There were several reasons, Butz explained, that the administration would combat any control effort. First President Nixon specifically exempted from Phase 2 raw agricultural prices "because he realizes that farm prices fluctuate. They can go up, but they also can come back down."

"When prices of an automobile, or a television set go up, they stay up," Butz said. "When wages go up, they stay up. But the price of farm products varies. Cattle, for example, have dropped $1.50 a hundred under the January high, which equaled their level of 20 years ago."

Another reason is that many raw farm products are perishable, Butz said. They cannot be stockpiled. "Take meat," he continued. "You've got to either sell it or smell it."

Finally, the secretary added, price controls likely would be accompanied by an unwanted Siamese twin-rationing — and possibly shortages.

"The way it is now," Butz said, the "the price of meat is high enough so there is always something there for the purchaser who wants it and low enough so the grocer doesn't have any left over."

Usual Line On Pasture Burning

SALINA — Kansas' Flint Hills will continue to burn in spring — but preferably about May 1 — according to recommendations of Dr. Clenton Owensby, Kansas State University professor.

Owensby was one of six speakers at the First Annual Kansas Livestock Association Range Management Conference in Salina. About 75 ranchers from all parts of the state attended the all-day session at Hilton Inn, Salina.

Speakers from the drier and short grass areas of the state, and one each from Oklahoma and Texas, however, recommended no burning.

The question of burning pastureland in spring, along with weed control, insect control, rotation practices and fertilization of native grassland was discussed at length.

Owensby discussed a paper prepared by Dr. Robert Hyde, KSU, about grazing distribution tools, and his own work with burning and fertilizer.

Fertilizing often brings additional weeds if done at the wrong time of year, he said. Burning also should be done only when conditions are exactly right to protect crowns of little bluestem and the Big bluestem, too, he said.

Ranchers who pasture steers during the summer can burn every year, while cow-calf operators might not need to burn more often than every three or four years, he said.

Only the extra rainfall of eastern Kansas apparently allows for burning, according to the speakers. It was recommended, however, as the only means to control red cedar, which has become a pest tree in Kansas rangeland.

Corporate Farm Spectre Holds Salina Conference

SALINA — If the tractor was the symbol of U.S. farming 30 years ago, the corporate board of directors is its symbol today, Sen. Fred Harris (D-Okla.) said here in opening a brief Kansas hearing into the effects of corporate farming.

The hearing was one of several Harris is holding across the country in his last months as senator. He told about 60 farmers and farm organization leaders he hopes to found a New Populist Institute when he retires from the Senate. The institute would study problems of concentrated wealth and power in fields including agriculture.

The list of witnesses for the session was a give-away to its contents. Without exception witnesses represented so-called radical farm organizations, all of which opposed the recent nomination of Earl Butz as secretary of agriculture.

They included Robert Speer, president of the Kansas National Farmers Organization; Chris Walker, a Kansas farmer who also serves as national treasurer of the N.F.O.; Dale Lyon, farmer and legislative director of the Kansas National Farmers Union, and John Stencel, president of the Rocky Mountain Farmers Union. Also scheduled were Gov. Robert Docking and Vern Miller, Kansas attorney general.

Docking's statement was presented by John Ivan, administrative assistant. Miller said his staff is investigating rumors of corporate farming, which is illegal in Kansas.

Witnesses blamed most of the financial plight of farmers on the growth of corporate farming. They insisted the situation is increasingly important in Kansas, though the state since 1923 has had laws prohibiting most kinds of corporate farms except those that are family owned.

The Denver-based National Farmers Union leaders tended to blame the entire spectrum of corporate farming, while the N.F.O., headquartered in Corning, Iowa, laid the blame on vertical integration by corporations.

At least one corporation has claimed in national advertising its goals include building a food system "from seedling to supermarket."

"We view vertical integration as phase 1 of a corporate take over of the food industry," Walker, N.F.O. treasurer, said. "It would involve acquiring or controlling all phases of production, processing and retailing."

"The big companies are there in force pushing vertical integration all across the county. Their objective is to manipulate the marketing flow to suit their own purposes."

Walker said it was time to challenge that concept,

16

Grass & Grain
March 28, 1972

which he claimed eliminates family farms and moves persons off the land, often into already crowded cities with their problems.

Lyon, legislative director of the Kansas N.F.U., said the cattle feeding business in Kansas today rapidly is becoming corporate-owned and the hog industry is becoming vertically integrated.

survive, a range specialist warned here.

Pat McIlvain, Great Plains Experiment Station, Woodward, Okla., addressed about 80 cattlemen attending the first Kansas Livestock Association range management conference here.

"You can be darn sure this kind of agriculture is a way of life. The only way you can pass it on to your children is to change," McIlvain said.

He said he feared cattlemen's children will lose out to big business unless cattlemen can improve their operations.

McIlvain was one of six speakers headlining KLA's conference, designed to outline new concepts in range management that will boost income and cut costs for the state's ranchers.

Among the old concepts ranchers must thrust aside is the idea that grass costs nothing — this borders on old wives' tales, McIlvain said.

Salt placement was another example used by Dr. Clenton Owensby, Kansas State University pasture specialist. "Salt doesn't have to be by water, but 50 percent of our ranchers think it does," he said.

Salt placement is only one tool used in achieving grazing distribution which can increase grass potential. He advised ranchers to look over their pasture, map it, then arrange things cattle like at unused or lesser used spots to achieve uniform grazing of pastures. Burning, fertilized spots, salt, back rubbers, drift fences and three-foot-high iron stakes will also attract cattle, he said.

Spot burning and fertilizer improve grazing quality, he said. "Increasing the grazing distribution in your pasture will increase the capacity of the land to carry cattle," he added.

Yield response is the determinant for fertilizing pastures, Owensby explained. Hay meadows are excellent for fertilizing to increase yields. Bluestem pasture appears to respond for about two years, if it gets rain, but weeds may respond more than grass, he warned. Fertilizer can also cause problems.

"Nitrogen changes the Ph of the soil and may become a problem in years to come," he said.

While fertilizer response has been best in southeast Kansas fire may be the most important management tool in the Flint Hills and Western Kansas, Owensby said.

John Lauchbaugh, Fort Hays Experiment Station, outlined long-time summer grazing intensity produced more gains per head, more beef per acre and returned more per acre than heavy or moderate grazing, he said.

Explaining various pasture rotation systems was nationally known agriculturalist Dr. Leo Merrill, Texas A & M University.

Find Mercury-Treated Wheat In Town Dump

BELLEVILLE — An undetermined quantity of "deadly poisonous" mercury-treated wheat has been taken from the Courtland city dump officials say.

The grain, if ground for human consumption, could cause blindness, paralysis and death, Republic County Sheriff Bob Blecha reported. If used to feed poultry or livestock eggs, milk and meat it will be poisonous, he said.

Original source of the 800 bushels of mercury-treated wheat placed on the dump was not determined, Blecha said.

Mercury was used under controlled conditions as a pesticide and fungicide for seed wheat until it was banned by the United States Department of Agriculture.

The wheat deposited at Courtland was recognized by a pinkish color produced by mercury treatment, the sheriff said.

Officials of the State Department of Health and the Environmental Protection Agency were called to Belleville to aid in solving the problem.

Blecha said some of the poisonous grain already has been located on two farms. He asked the public to report any grain known to have been picked up at the dump. The grain is safe for use as such but nothing else, Blecha said.

Beloit To Delay School Bond Sale Pending Hearing

BELOIT — The UD 273 Board of Education has agreed not to sell bonds on the recently passed $2,334,000 school construction proposal pending conclusion of a hearing scheduled April 11 in Mitchell county district court.

Judge Marvin O. Brummett set the hearing date in response to a petition filed following the bond election by 135 patrons of the district.

The 20-year bond proposal, providing for construction of both a junior and senior high school, was voted down 5 times before recently being passed 1388 to 1163.

After the election, the 135 patrons filed a petition seeking an injunction to prevent the issuance of the bonds alleging irregularities in the election.

William F. Stover, Beloit, one of the originators of the petition, said school officials "tried to pull something over on us that we didn't need."

"Yes, we need a school but not something that elaborate," Stover said.

RELATIVE RELATIONS

These three men know each other very well. From left: Rayburn Hofman and his brother Delmar, both of St. George have been with the PCA since the middle forties. Ernest Hofman, their uncle, says he's been with PCA so long he can't remember when he joined. The annual meeting of the Manhattan PCA has become a ritual for the Hofmans.

Idled Acres About As Expected

Farmers have agreed to take about 37 million acres from the production of corn, sorghum, and barley this year, about on target with government objectives for reducing production, the Agriculture Dept. says.

The farm sign-up period began Feb. 3 and closed March 10, when enrollments also were accepted for wheat and cotton programs.

Counting the three crops, more than 59 million acres will be idled under the government's 1972 set-aside programs.

Under the plan, farmers agree to take a portion of their land from production in return for price-support guarantees and payments for eligible crops grown on the remainder.

Government payments under the programs this year are expected to total more than $4 billion, compared with about $3.2 billion in 1971.

Asst. Secretary of Agriculture Clarence D. Palmby said the total acreage to be set aside under the crop programs this year is practically on target with the goal of about 60 million acres.

But Palmby said he could not estimate whether the land diversion would reduce grain production in line with expected demand. Much depends on the weather, yields, final acres planted and the outlook for exports, he said.

According to the plant-intentions report, farmers may plant 68.5 million acres of corn this year, which could produce a harvest of 5.1 billion bushels if recent yield trends continue. Last year corn farmers produced a record 5.5 billion bushels. The department's report showed a record 1,764,551 farmers were signed up in the 1972 feed-grain program. The actual land enrolled to be set aside from production this year was 37,024,684 acres, the report said.

When the program was announced last fall, the goal was set at 38 million acres. Last year 18.2 million were taken from production.

The feed grain sign-up included nearly 26.8 million acres under a rule requiring participating farmers to set aside 25 per cent of their feed base in return for benefits. The balance, approximately 10.2 million, were signed up under the options providing for additional payments.

Part of the optional enrollment, more than 2.9 million acres, was signed up with the understanding it would be accepted by the government if needed to curb production this year.

Asked if the additional acreage would be accepted, Palmby replied: "Yes, we are accepting everything that has been offered us."

Wheat farmers, in trouble because of a record crop of 1.6 billion bushels last year, signed up 4,982,472 acres in addition to their basic set-aside requirements. The goal for the additional participation had been five million to six million acres.

Although the additional wheat sign-up was at the lower end of the goal, Palmby said production this year could go either way.

"If we should have record yields again... we could add to the wheat carryover," Palmby said.

On the other hand, if dock strikes do not resume and production turns out not so large, the wheat situation could be brighter, he said.

Department economists expect surplus wheat carryover on July 1 of more than 970 million bushels, the most in nearly a decade.

The sign-up report said 991,346 wheat farms were enrolled in this year's program, down slightly from 1971.

Cotton producers, who are being encouraged to grow more this year, signed up 267,351 farms in their program. Those accounted for 84 per cent of the national acreage allot-

Plan Standards For Young Bull Beef

The U.S. Department of Agriculture has proposed revisions to the U.S. grade standards for bull beef that would distinguish for the first time between beef from young and older bulls.

Historically, most bull beef has come from older animals and has been used primarily for processed meat products. Officials of USDA's

Consumer and Marketing Service, which establishes U.S. grade standards for farm products, said that in recent years, however, there has been increasing interest in feeding young bulls specifically for the production of beef for sale at retail. This interest stems largely from research showing that young bulls gain more rapidly and efficiently than steers.

Because of these advantages, several suggestions have been made to C&MS officials that young bull carcasses be graded on the same standards as steer carcasses and also that such carcasses no longer be identified with the word "Bull."

Therefore, it is proposed that the same quality requirements be used for beef carcasses from young bulls and steers. This means that the quality grade standards for beef from young bulls would be more definitive — with respect to marbling, color, and firmness — than the present bull standards. As a result, some young bulls will grade lower than under the present standards without these specific requirements.

Since presently available research shows that the beef from young bulls may be more variable in palatability than steer beef with the same characteristics, it is also proposed that beef from young bulls, when federally graded, also be identified with the word "Bullock." On all wholesale cuts the term "Bullock" would appear in conjunction with the USDA grade shield. The term will also carry through to many of the retail cuts made from these wholesale cuts and would provide a means of distinguishing between these cuts and cuts from other kinds of beef.

It is also proposed that carcasses from older bulls be graded only for cutability or yield grade and that they be identified with the word "Bull." Since carcasses from older bulls will continue to be used almost entirely for processing, the yield of lean meat — rather than its quality — is the primary factor affecting their value.

The standards for grades of slaughter bulls also would be revised to coordinate them with the revisions in the carcass standards.

2 Registered Hereford bulls 2 year old.

Again we had a large run of cattle, at our sale last Thursday, March 23, with the demand real good for the lighter weight cattle. However, cattle carrying flesh and heavier feeder cattle were hard to move.

The wholesale beef market continues to tumble due to the fact that there's so much publication of beef being so high. We feel that the fat cattle market at its high time was still below the price that we farmers and livestock producers have to pay for what we buy for our business operations.

People who are complaining as to the price of beef being high are mostly people who've never been associated with livestock in any form. We wonder how they'd like to put in as many hours as it takes to care for a drove of cattle and at the low hourly wage like the producer.

White Spots On Black Eliminate "Big Mac"

TIRED FARMER

Leo Ebel, Wamego enjoys the dinner at the annual Manhattan PCA meeting. Ebel said he was a tired farmer, retired that is.

"Big Mac" or "Jeep" whatever the name of the National Western Stock Show grand champion steer might be, he won. But, white spots appearing on the Angus entry seems to rule out the possibility of the big steer keeping his crown.

Blood test results submitted by laboratories at Ohio State University and the University of California preclude the possibility that the grand champion was sired by an Angus bull, but qualify him as the offspring of Atlas, a Charolais bull. Because of a lack of space Charolais-sired steers were not eligible to compete in the 1972 junior or open steer shows at the National Western.

Robert Miller, Aurelia, Iowa, who allegedly sold the steer to "Big Mac's" exhibitor, Rex Miller, Alta, Iowa, stated in an affidavit that the steer was sired by Keyban Bardoliermere 42. A number of persons claim that "Big Mac" was actually produced on the Skylark Ranch, Parshall, Colo. — he carries the Skylark Ranch brand — and that he was sired by Atlas.

The University of California blood test report stated Keyban Bardoliermere 42 lacks two blood factors found in the blood of "Big Mac" which thereby excludes him as a possible sire. The Angus bull and the steer cannot be related as sire and offspring regardless of the dam, the report added.

The California test also stated that the Charolais bull, Atlas, possesses all the critical blood factors and qualifies as the sire of the steer.

The Ohio State findings concur that Keyban Bardoliermere 42 is, by phenogroup probability analysis, excluded as a possible sire of the steer and that Atlas has all the blood factors which the steer possesses. Mr. and Mrs. Ray Daves of Limon, Colo., and their son, Kirk, said they're positive Big Mac is a Colorado-bred Charolais named Jeep that they raised and fed before selling to an Iowa rancher.

Several ranchers who knew Jeep when the Limon couple owned him

FUTURE CHAIRMAN

Kenneth and Ann Germann, Alta Vista, are having a friendly visit with Herb Roepke, center, Manhattan. Later that evening Roepke was selected board chairman at the annual meeting of the Manhattan PCA.

PRISCILLA'S PET PIG

A hungry pig can be a demanding pet as Kansas State University coed Priscilla Baxter, Route 3, Salina, can testify. But college and pigs really don't mix, so it's back to the ranch for the pet.

Priscilla's Pet Pig Made It To College

And everywhere Priscilla went, her pig was sure to follow. Kansas State freshman Priscilla Baxter, a Salina farm girl, actually has a baby pet pig which was given to her by her boy friend.

The K-State coed who thinks "pigs are cute," was given one recently when a sow had a litter of 15 — too many for the mother to care for.

The pig was only a day old when she got it, but proved a handful, because it had to be fed every two hours from a bottle filled with a special formula prescribed by a veterinarian.

Although Miss Baxter brought the pig back to her Ford Residence Hall room on the KSU campus, it only took a couple of days before KSU authorities learned she had the pet and notified her she could not keep it at the dorm. So when she returns home for Easter Vacation the pig will have to go with her.

Miss Baxter has been keeping her pig confined to a box in her room, but often takes the pet for walks. The pig trails the tall blond coed wherever she goes. Miss Baxter likes to take the pet on long walks in the evening so it will sleep through the night.

The first night the pig was in the dormitory it woke up oinking at 5 in the morning and didn't go back to sleep until 7:30 a.m.

The Baxter family already is looking forward to the arrival of the new pet, which shouldn't feel out of place because the Baxters have unusual pets — raccoons, baby lambs, calves, colts, and even a pet snake which slithers around the barnyard.

CENTERVILLE SEEKS RURAL WATER DISTRICT HOOK UP

CENTERVILLE — This Linn county town is seeking to hook up its water system to a nearby rural water district supply since the Kansas Board of Health condemned the main town water supply. A petition will be presented in mid-April to get from a rural district an extension which runs west from LaCygne. Presently the town is getting water from private wells and by hauling from nearby towns. The town well was dug by the WPA in the 1930s.

Crown Vetch Finds New Home Along Turnpike

Crown Vetch, a leguminous vine, has found a home along the Kansas Turnpike.

The main advantage of vetch is less mowing expense. The fact the vine grows to between 12 to 18 inches high has been the main point stressed by turnpike officials.

"Its primary use has been erosion control, particularly along road-sides," Kansas State agronomist Frank Barnett said.

Gene Cleavinger, a retired K-State agronomist, said the State Highway Dept. has used crown vetch for some time, particularly along interstate routes.

The plant is of European origin, but agronomists are uncertain how it came to the United States.

"It first showed up in this country around 1905," said Barnett. Ben Eaton, another Kansas State agronomist, said crown vetch would be a "vast improvement over many plants that we now have along the highways. "Once crown vetch has been established, it spreads rapidly."

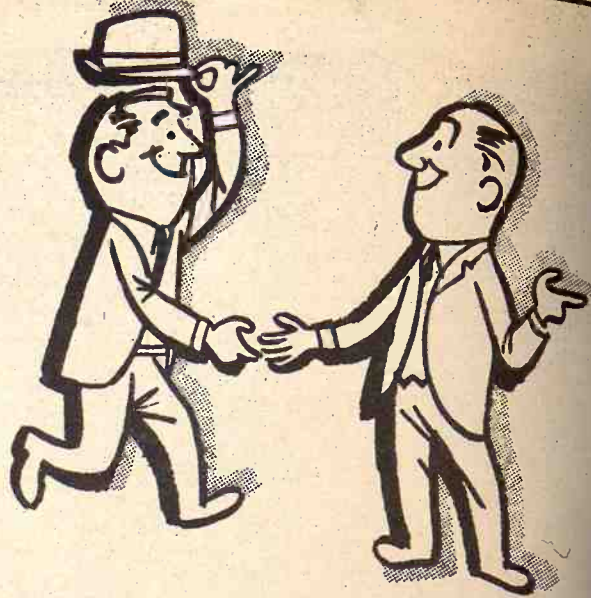

Verlin Peterson, Kansas extension agronomist, said crown vetch would be ideal along highways, provided careful preparation was made for the seed bed.

Cleavinger said because of its spreading ability, mowing could not be eliminated completely.

"Areas near the shoulder of highways would have to be mowed," he said, "but they wouldn't have to mow along slopes back away from the road."

The agronomists also mentioned the crown vetch flower is pretty and would further improve the beauty along highways.

In Pennsylvania and Maryland, they said, crown vetch has been used for sometime along highways for its aesthetic qualities as well as its erosion control characteristics.

Sheep On Feed Increase Due To Good Conditions

Sheep and old crop lambs on feed for the slaughter market in Kansas totaled 77,000 on March 1, 1972, 54 percent more than a year ago, according to the Kansas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service.

This year's early lambs born before March 1 were estimated at 170,000, 6 percent less than a year ago.

Sheep and Lambs on Feed

There were 77,000 sheep and old crop lambs on feed for the slaughter market in Kansas on March 1 this year, compared with 50,000 last year. The largest number on feed for this date in the 1961-71 period for which data are available was 137,000 in 1964. One important reason for the increase in feeder lambs from last year was good wheat pasture in southwest and south central Kansas this season.

Also the snow cover in western and central areas was light during a large part of January and February this year.

Large operators were feeding 57,000 sheep and lambs for the slaughter market compared with 26,000 a year earlier, while smaller farm feeders had 20,000, 17 percent less than last year.

Sheep and lambs on feed for slaughter market in the 7 major feeding States on March 1 totaled 983,000 head, 9 percent more than a year earlier.

There were 898,000 sheep and lambs on feed in the 7 States in the spring of 1971. Only California and South Dakota had less sheep and lambs on feed than a year ago.

In Texas many lambs on feed on fattening pastures January 1 and intended for slaughter in January-March have been moved to feedlots because small grain pasture froze off.

Sheep and lambs placed on feed during January and February in the 7 States totaled 349,000 head, down 7 percent.

Marketings of fed sheep and lambs for slaughter during January and February totaled 880,000 head, down 2 percent from the same period in 1971.

Early Lamb Crop

New crop lambs born before March 1 in Kansas are estimated at 170,000, 6 percent less than in 1971 and the smallest early lamb crop in 12 years of record.

Early lambs dropped during the October-February period normally represent about 85 percent of the annual Kansas lamb crop. Lambing this year has progressed at a near normal rate.

Feed and forage supplies are generally adequate although there were some shortages in localized areas.

The early lamb crop in Kansas, Texas and California totaled 1,833,000 head, 22 percent less than a year ago. The number of early lambs in Kansas is estimated at 170,000 head, compared with 180,000 head in 1971.

The early lamb crop in Texas this year totaled 1,012,000 head, 26 percent less than the 1,370,000 early lambs born in 1971.

The January 1 inventory of ewes one year old and older was down 7 percent from a year earlier.

California's early lamb crop is estimated at 651,000 head, down 20 percent from the 813,000 head dropped a year earlier.

Breeding ewes decreased 11 percent from a year ago. Lamb losses were reported to be greater than usual in California.

Still Corn Surplus, Soybean Shortage

The March report on corn and soybean planting intentions showed little change from the one in January. Farmers still indicate that they will plant more corn than will be needed and not as many beans as could be used. The latest USDA survey was made around March 1; the results were reported on March 16.

The new report had very little effect on corn prices because it did not dispel the prospect of excessive supplies again in 1972-73. Soybean prices, however, went up a few cents because the intended increase in soybean acreage was less than expected; and with normal yields, the planned acreage would not produce as many beans as processors and exporters could use.

Corn Acreage Will Be Cut

Corn producers reported that they plan to plant 68.5 million acres of corn this year, 7.6 percent less than the acreage planted last year. At the first of January, farmers intended to plant 70 million acres of corn, 4 percent less than in 1971. The reduction from January to March was probably the result of changes made in the Feed Grain Program after the January report.

If farmers plant 68.5 million acres of corn, they will probably have about 59 million acres to harvest for grain. And if the national average yield is 85 bushels per acre (the average for 1969 and 1971), a little more than 5 billion bushels would be harvested next fall. Such a harvest might about equal the needs for domestic use and export during the 1972-73 marketing year.

With such a close balance between corn production and expected utilization, prices would probably sag a few cents below the loan rate during the main harvest season, rising to a few cents above the loan rate after that. A kind of upper resistance level would be encountered at 10 to 15 cents above the loan rate. At such prices, some farmers would be able to redeem and sell 1971 corn that would be held under resale loans next year.

Soybean Shortage To Continue

Soybean growers expect to plant 45.5 million acres of soybeans, only 5.4 percent more than last year. In early January, the reported increase in acreage was only 3.7 percent.

If 45.5 million acres of soybeans are planted, there should be about 44.6 million acres to harvest for beans. National average yields per acre have been close to 27.2 bushels in each of the past four years. Such an acreage and yield would produce about 1.2 billion bushels of soybeans — which is the amount expected to be used and exported this year. Thus, the soybean supply situation a year hence could be much the same as it is now.

There are not reserves of soybeans. Supplies now on hand are about enough to keep the mills and export lines running until the new crop becomes available in September. The shortage of soybeans is shown by high prices for soybeans in relation to the value of soybean products — oil and meal.

At recent prices, soybean oil provides only about 37 percent of the value of soybean products, while soybean meal contributes 63 percent. The price of soybean oil have been held down by large supplies of competing oil and fats in world markets. Soybean meal prices could get some support from greater U.S.

cattle feeding and broiler production, or from increased needs for animal feeds in other parts of the world.

Kansans To Forget Smallpox Shots

State statute requiring smallpox shots before a child can enter school will not be enforced strictly, Kansas Health Department says.

Dr. Edwin Lyman, Kansas health commissioner, said Kansas Board of Health recommended the state U.S. Public Health Service that routine primary vaccinations be discontinued.

Lyman said the present law is a statement of public policy that a strictly enforced rule. "There is a difference of opinion in the Kansas Legislature as to whether the vaccination would remove the vaccination requirement remained in compliance with the present law," he said.

Lyman said he does not share the view that it is safe to discontinue routine vaccinations. "There is a difference of opinion in the Kansas Legislature as to whether the vaccination would remove the vaccination requirement remained in compliance with the present law," he said.

Lyman said he cannot recall the date of the last reported case of smallpox in Missouri, but neither he nor the state health department has any record of smallpox cases since the late 1940s.

Kansas To Forget Smallpox Shots

A state statute requiring smallpox vaccinations before a child can enter school "will not be enforced strictly this fall," State Health Department officials say.

Dr. Edwin Lyman, Kansas health director, said Kansas Board of Health recommended the state follow a U.S. Public Health Service opinion that routine primary smallpox vaccinations be discontinued.

A bill in the Kansas Legislature that would remove the vaccination requirement remained in committee. Lyman said the present law is more a statement of public policy than a strictly enforced rule.

In Missouri, Dr. Herbert Domke, director of the State Division of Health said he does not share the PHS belief it is safe to discontinue routine vaccinations. "There is a professional difference of opinion and I am not completely alone in my opinion," he said.

In revising its position on vaccinations last September, PHA cited 1970 statistics reflecting 572 complications resulting from 14 million smallpox vaccinations. The complications ranged from relatively minor reactions to induced encephalitis and vaccinia necrosum, which kills human tissue and often leads to amputations.

PHS also cited dramatic decreases in the number of countries where smallpox is endemic and pointed out no importation of smallpox has been evidenced in the United States since the late 1940s.

Domke said he cannot recall the date of the last reported case of smallpox in Missouri, but neither can he recall a reported complication from the vaccinations. He "would not support any legislation at this time to do away with such a requirement," Domke said.

"This is an important public health experiment, but I'd like to see more information before I recommend this policy in my state. You have to know some pretty good medicine to differentiate between smallpox and chickenpox and the disease could be widely spread in a community before anyone recognized what it is. I don't think it is prudent to take that kind of risk."

Waterville Co-op Has High Savings

The Waterville Co-op held its annual Stock Holders meeting. Two new directors were elected for three year terms. They are Kenneth Peter and Lee Wohler, both of Randolph. The directors elected Raymond Scheller, president; Melvin Niemeier, vice president; and Leon Bentman, secretary-treasurer.

The Waterville Co-op Elevator had total sales of $2,073,177 in 1971 and showed a net savings of $88,685. Their assets include elevators, buildings and equipment valued at $811,135.

Nebraska Mixes Tax Relief On Farm Implements With Company Inventory

The Nebraska legislature brushed aside the veto of Democratic Gov. J. J. Exon to pass a bill giving a partial personal property tax exemption to business inventories, farm equipment and the stocks of auto dealers.

The vote to override was 31-16 in Nebraska's one-house legislature. Thirty yes votes were required.

The bill provides that exemptions start at 12.5 percent in 1973. The exemptions would progress by that rate annually, reaching the maximum of 62.5 percent permitted under the bill in five years.

It is estimated that when the plan reaches the full 62.5 percent, the state will be losing $27 million annually in revenue that will be made up in state sales and income taxes.

Said Gov. Exon: "The forces attuned primarily to the interests of big business finally won out. Large foreign corporations were well treated by the majority of the legislature. (The legislature) made a grave error in judgment."

The issue, a running battle between Gov. Exon and farm interests since last year, was mainly an urban-rural battle. But in the final vote, three Omaha senators voted against the governor, turning the tide.

Gov. Exon stated: "Let's put this in perspective. This bill will provide relief for corporations like (International Business Machines Corp.) at the tune of $450,000 a year (after five years). The average farmer will get about $208 a year."

He had backed a bill giving some relief from taxes but containing a maximum-payment provision.

Nebraska quit taxing personal property of individuals, such as household goods, in 1968. But the tax had remained on business and farm inventories and equipment.

Honors To PCA Pioneer Fred Morgan

The man of the night at the Manhattan Production Credit Association's annual meeting was Fred Morgan, Alta Vista. Morgan retired as chairman of the board after 38 years of service in that position. He was one of the founders of PCA in Kansas and was named chairman of the Manhattan PCA when it was established in 1934.

About 260 people attended the annual meeting and dinner. The meeting was held in the Kansas State University Union. Herb Roepke, Manhattan, was elected new board chairman; and Harold Steere, Alta Vista, was the only newly elected board member.

Speaker for the evening was Don Edson, public relations man for the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank in Wichita. Edson noted Morgan's achievements with the PCA.

In recognition of his dedication, Morgan was given a plaque and a portrait of Morgan was given to Mrs.

Eyeball Test Speeds Up Finding Resistant Plants

Kansas State University scientists have found a way to rather quickly get plants that resist insects attacking them, even where greenhouse and laboratory facilities are not available.

It is selecting healthy or living plants following heavy, natural infestations of the insects.

The three researchers who developed Kanza, an alfalfa that resists devastation by pea aphids, think that "field selection" can be used even in developing countries.

They are T. L. Harvey and H. L. Hackerott at the Fort Hays branch of the Kansas Agricultural Experiment Station and E. L. Sorenson at the Station's headquarters in Manhattan.

A discovery by them while comparing resistant and susceptible plants may make it possible to select resistant plants long after insects have attacked.

After four cuttings of resistant alfalfa they had selected in the field, they found that resistant plants had more stems than susceptible when neither was attacked by insects.

More than 95 per cent of resistant plants one year and more than 85 per cent the next year had more than 30 stems. But the scientists say they have not determined if resistant plants can be selected on the basis of stem number in an unknown population.

Because many biotypes or races of insects exist, plants that resist an insect species in one area may not resist another biotype of the same species in another area. Selecting resistant plants in the field gets resistance to the insect biotype concerned.

The drawback to field selecting resistant plants, the three scientists emphasize, is that a field must be nearly destroyed to be sure plants left were attacked by the insects.

The normal way of breeding plants for resistance and developing them in greenhouse laboratories helps prevent such crop disasters.

Either way scientists end up with plants that resist insects or diseases, such plants make it unnecessary to risk chemical pollution by poisonous sprays. They also help keep farmers competitive in food production — and help keep meat, egg, and milk prices down, in the case of alfalfa, because it is a "miracle" food for cattle, chickens, and swine.

AFTER 44 YEARS CHEVY BUSINESS IS TERMINATED

Yingling Chevrolet Inc., Wichita, established as a Chevrolet dealer in 1928, has terminated its Chevrolet franchise, Fred Gartung, president of the firm, announced.

He cited the establishment of numerous new dealerships and a decline in the number of auto buyers as reasons for termination of the franchise.

"We will continue the operation of all departments of the business until further notice," he said.

Kansas Milk Output Still On Decline

Kansas milk production during 1971 was slightly below the previous year and, except for 1969, was as low as has been recorded in the 48 years for which we have data, according to the Kansas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service.

Milk production totaled 1,717 million pounds, compared with 1,740 million pounds in 1970 and 1,687 million pounds in 1969.

The number of milk cows on farms continued to decline, averaging 194,000 for 1971, compared with 200,000 in 1970.

The annual production per cow, however, reached a new record high of 8,851 pounds in 1971. This compares with a production of 8,700 pounds in 1970 and 6,110 a decade earlier.

On January 1, 1972, heifers for milk cow replacement weighing 500 pounds or more totaled 58,000, unchanged from a year earlier.

Manufactured Dairy Products Preliminary totals of dairy products manufactured in Kansas during 1971 showed a record large output of American cheese and the State's second largest ice cream production, but a further decline in production of creamery butter.

Manufactured dairy products represent the ultimate utilization of about two-fifths of the State's total milk production.

American cheese production in 1971 was estimated at 12.4 million pounds, down 6 percent from 1970 and only one-third that produced a decade earlier.

Ice cream production in 1971 totaled 7.9 million gallons, 6 percent above 1970, and largest quantity produced in the State since the 8.1 million gallons in 1946.

United States

The Nation's milk cows produced 118.6 billion pounds of milk in 1971, 1.3 percent more than the revised estimate of 117.1 billion pounds produced in 1970.

The annual average number of milk cows on farms in 1971 was 12,347,000, down 1 percent from 1970 and the smallest number since the 1880's.

Output per cow reached a record high rate of 9,609 pounds in 1971, 2 percent above the previous record of 9,385 pounds in 1970.

Milk production in 1971 was 7 percent below the record 1964 production of 127.0 billion pounds.

Wisconsin's milk production for 1971, at 18.9 billion pounds, was the highest for any State, followed by New York, 10.4 billion; California, 9.7 billion; and Minnesota, 9.6 billion pounds. Of the 10 leading milk producing States, 7 had larger production than a year earlier.

The 10 leading milk producing States accounted for 64 percent of the total U.S. production in 1971. Milk production was above a year earlier during all 12 months of 1971 — with the increase mostly 1 percent, but ranging up to 2 percent in January and September.

Annual production per cow set a new high of 9,609 pounds in 1971, up 2 percent from the previous record of 9,385 in 1970. Rate per cow was above a year earlier in all but 6 States.

The highest State average production per cow was 11,985 pounds in California. Arizona had 11,700 pounds; Washington, 11,554 pounds; Connecticut, 10,629 pounds; and New York, 10,525 pounds. Thirty States had annual output per cow of over 9,000 pounds of milk in 1971.

The annual average number of milk cows on farms in 1971 was 12,347,000, down 1 percent from 12,483,000 in 1970. Milk cows have declined each year since 1953

HOARSE BARKER?
Roger A. Johnson is auctioneer.

RAVE HORSES
Trained horses are ridden into the sale ring.

OLD GREY MARE?
This seventeen year old horse bar...

HOARSE BARKER?

Roger A. Johnson is auctioneer at the horse sale.

MOLLY MULES

Long ears are silhouetted against the bright lights as this pair of "molly" mules are led into the sale ring. They are eight and eleven years old. They came from Ellsworth County and sold for $360 for the pair.

Horse Sale

One of the best attended shows in the Grass & Grain area takes place once a month in Salina. This show draws a crowd from Kansas and Nebraska. The audience are participants in the show, there is standing room only when the show starts, and best of all it's free.

This "show" is the horse auction held the first Saturday night every month at the Wilson Sale Barn in Salina. Cowboys and would-be cowboys always crowd into the smoke-filled sale barn leaving little room for the horses. Sometimes as many as 200 horses go through the sale ring in one night. One time 60 Shetland Ponies were sold here. At the March sale 140 horses were unloaded for sale.

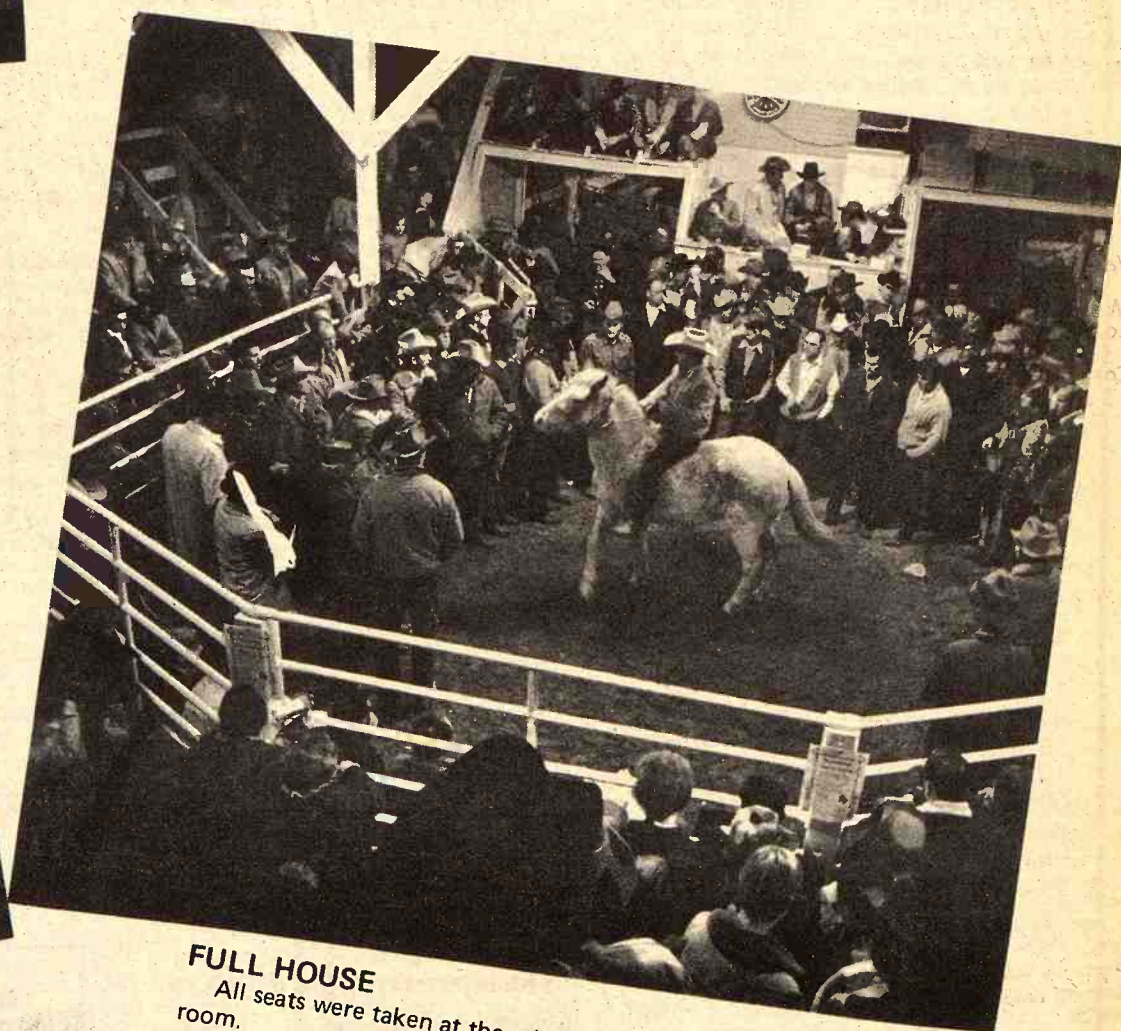

The sale starts with the auctioning of saddles, tack, dogs, and sometimes various other items. The sale progresses on to horses, both trained and untrained. Roger Johnson and son are the auctioneers.

A bumper sticker in the parking lot proclaims "Fight Smog—Ride a Horse." This may be a good idea, but obviously, a lot of gasoline was burned in bringing horses and horse lovers to this sale.

TAME HORSES

Trained horses are ridden into the sale ring and then unsaddled.

FULL HOUSE

All seats were taken at the sale and practically all the standing room.

OLD GREY MARE?

This seventeen year old horse barely has room to move around in the sale ring.

Set May 5 As Date For KSU Cattlemen's Day

It will be front and center stage for Kansas cattlemen here Friday, May 5.

That's the date for the 59th annual Cattlemen's Day at Kansas State University.

Dr. Don Good, head of the K-State Department of Animal Science and Industry, said a variety of topics dealing with trends and developments in the cattle industry has been arranged for this year's day-long session.

Registration and viewing of exhibits from 8 to 10 a.m. will precede introductory remarks by Good and Dr. Glenn H. Beck, vice-president for agriculture at KSU.

The remainder of the morning session will consist of discussions by K-State researchers and Extension specialists concerning organic acid treatment of grain, feeding value of different varieties of sorghum grain,
a new approach to polioen-cephalomalacia, feedlot bullers, performance and carcass characteristics of different cattle types, and central bull testing.

One of the highlights of the day will be a 1 p.m. address by John Trotman, president of the American National Cattlemen's Association, who'll discuss development in the cattle industry in the southeast.

A graduate of Auburn University, Trotman is a producer and feeder in Montgomery, Ala. "All cattlemen and agribusinessmen in Kansas will be interested in this speech," said Good.

A 2 p.m. tour of the KSU beef cattle research center north of the campus will conclude the afternoon program. A Block and Bridle Club banquet for parents and visiting stockmen is planned at 6:30 p.m. in the Union Ballroom.

The Kansas Cow Belles are planning a dinner at the Union's Bluemont Room at 6:30 p.m.
Thursday, May 4. Reservations for the dinner are made through Mrs.
Don Good, 2027 Sunnymead Road,
Manhattan 66502.

Special activities for women
during Cattlemen's Day will include a 10 a.m. coffee at Weber Hall's Memorial Library, to be followed by an 11 a.m. program in Room 107.

Farm Volunteers Supply Basis For USDA Forecasts

Four G&G area men who have helped for 35 years provide the information from which USDA makes its estimates on crop and livestock production have been cited for their longtime services in providing basic acreage and output information.

The four are Leo Muckenthaler of Paxico, Cecil Williams of Olathe,
Ansel Ellis of Lyons, and the late Byron Porter of Fredonia.

Along with four western Kansans
— Arthur Holmberg of Oberlin,
William Crotinger of Tribune, Logan
Meade of Jetmore, and E.F. Madden of Hays — they received certificates for voluntary work over 35 years each.

The Crop and Reporting Service has over 3000 farmers who voluntarily provide information from their own farms and nearby areas.
The eight men cited this month have each been reporting since 1937 or before.

Though forecasts often are a sorepoint with farmers and livestockmen, the Reporting Service has a record that holds up well when compared with figures from federal census, assessor records, or other information that can be used for comparison. To accomplish this takes slide rules, tables and charts, trend lines, surveys and computers,
and some close observation.

Much of the close observation comes from voluntary reports from Muckenthaler, Williams, Ellis and the late Mr. Porter, who receive questionnaires from USDA, fill them out based on their activity and what they observe nearby.

These individual reports are then assembled when received in Topeka,
where state estimates are reported.
These are sent to the crop reporting board in Washington for review.
State and national figures are then set and released at a specific time.

Through the years the farm statisticians have tried some ingenious ways to guess acreage and production. Years ago a statistician might travel across the state by train. He'd count the telephone poles adjacent to crop fields and since poles were a standard distance apart, he got an indication of planted acreage.

Forty or fifty years ago, a statistician might use a meter which was attached to the odometer of the car he was driving. The meter had two rows of buttons, one for each side of the road. The buttons were labeled for different crops. At the end of the trip the frontage of each crop could be computed and compared to similar data for the previous year.

Even before that a statistician might carry a box with several compartments in it and a supply of beans. As he'd pass a field he threw a bean in the compartment that was to designate wheat or oats or barley.

In recent years, the department has depended on the mail survey as its soundest method of estimating.
The program has been refined over the years, and statisticians regard it as scientific enough to provide useful information. What makes it work is the voluntary effort of men such as the four G&G area farmers just recognized.

Junction Citians last Jan. 2 along the US-77 city route just north of Junction City has recovered and again is roaming the skies, according to Rush Lang, state game protector here.

The big bird was nursed back to health in the Clay Center zoo. Last week it was brought out of its cage, after it was concluded that its wing had healed. The eagle was placed on the ground, in the open, remained there momentarily until it realized it was free, then flew into a nearby tree. From there, it took off again, presumably heading north, where most eagles migrate at this time of year. It had been in captivity for 80 days.

The eagle had been caught here by Tom Tankersley, Willard Jackson and Ernest Patrick after they noticed the bird flopping around on the ground in its attempts to fly. The eagle was believed to have broken its wing when it hit an overhead line, or perhaps a fence wire while in pursuit of game.

Europe To Raise Farm Prices

Farm ministers of the European Common Market have agreed on a package of proposals to raise farm prices in the European Economic Community and at the same time provide aid to modernize the inefficient farm sector of the six countries.

The agreement came after 15 hours of continuous bargaining, after almost 100 hours of talks over seven days.

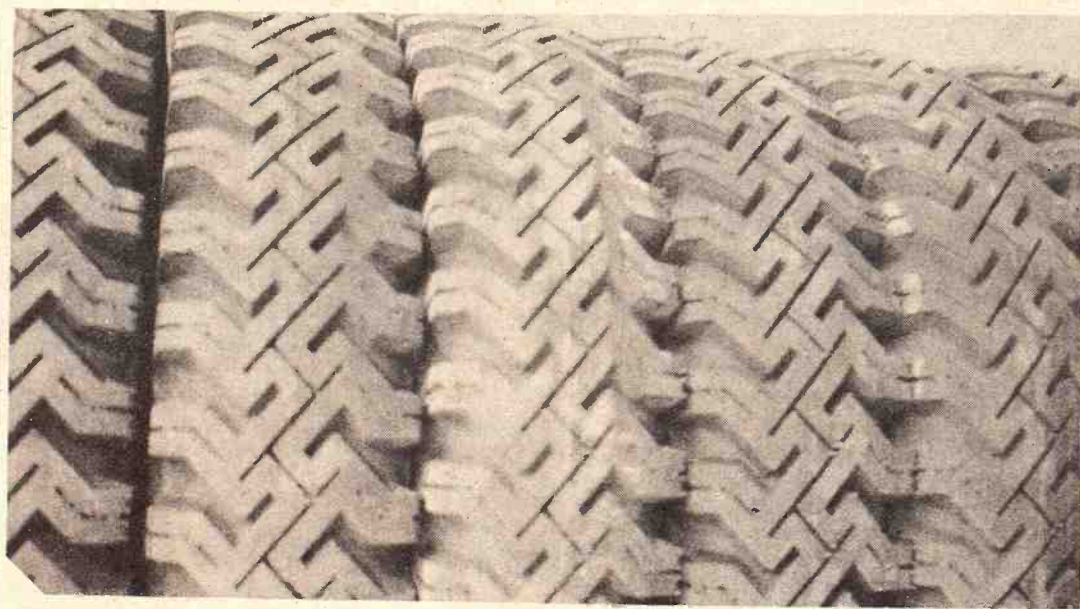

Under the agreement the guaranteed price paid to farmers in the Common Market for their produce will be raised by an average of 4 per cent for cereals and 8 per cent for dairy products. Beef prices will be raised by a 4 per cent at once, with further measures planned to encourage beef production.

The increases are way below those demanded by farmers' organizations, which had sought an average 8 per cent rise in cereal prices and a 12 per cent rise on milk products. But the new increases still are likely to arouse the wrath of United States agricultural interests. The community applies levies to raise the price of imports from efficient food producing zones to those guaranteed to its own, relatively backward farm industry.

At issue in the negotiations was the living standard of Europe's 12-million-member farming community, whose members are heavily dependent on the farm policy of the 6-nation unit. This is because overproduction by European agriculture means that the Common Market Commission is forced to step in frequently to buy up surplus production at a guaranteed minimum price. It is this guaranteed price which has been raised by the ministers' agreement.
