Property Tax Relief Doesn't Last Long

Short Rest For Taxpayer

County clerks in the G&G area these days are totaling up the latest local tax levy.

It's a powerfully optimistic taxpayer who expects good news.

Few, if any, are getting it.

Property taxes in Kansas are on the rise again, and all-time high levies are too common to be considered news.

Property owners have been complaining about rising property tax rates for nearly 5000 years — ever since about 3000 B.C. when the Egyptians imposed what is thought to be the first property tax.

In the past five years, public officials in the U.S. have been responding as never before to property owners' complaints.

A score of governors this year have called for changes in their states' property tax laws. Since 1962, legislators in at least 21 states have passed laws intended to switch some of the tax burden from property taxes to other forms of taxation. Property taxes accounted for about 45% of all taxes collected annually by states and local governments from 1958 until 1965, when the proportion dropped to 44.2%. Last year's $25.2 billion property tax take was only 42.8% of total state and local tax revenues.

This doesn't mean that taxpayers are saving wads of money, however. The total tax load of most taxpayers at all levels of government is soaring, so any tax revenues lost thru city or state property tax relief programs have to be made up from other sources, usually stiffer sales and income taxes.

And the property tax relief usually is fleeting too.

When the Kansas legislature finally wrangled thru a school foundation plan (that is, the state would provide the "foundation" of local school financing by returning to the districts money collected thru some stable, basic tax resource), one of the declared intentions was reduce local property taxes, a major part of which goes for schools.

After some bitter argument as to the formula for returning the funds to the school districts, the legislature provided the funds by raising the state sales tax from 2½% to 3% and a general increase in the state income tax.

What happened then — and since — is well illustrated in Riley county. The total tax levy for Manhattan taxpayers was $85.70 per $1000 of valuation in 1964. With the school foundation money coming in from the state, the school district levy was lowered enough so that the total Manhattan rate in 1965 was lowered to $74.29.

That cut in property taxes lasted only one year. The rate in Manhattan was back to $89.61 in 1966 (keep in mind that "1966" taxes are for the assessment of January 1, 1966, but are not due until December 1966, and — if paid in halves — not completely paid until June 1967) as both county and city rates went up and the school levy gained back most of the decline of the previous year, despite a limit placed by the legislature when it raised taxes to support the foundation plan which was intended to keep school budgets from rising more than 4% a year.

The 1967 levy in Manhattan will go up another couple of mills to $91.49 — nearly $6 more than the rate before the foundation plan was instituted, with the sales and income tax hikes to pay for it. All this with the intention of lowering property taxes!

In addition to this, within the five years there was a general reevaluation of property which raised the assessed value of much property altho it had not in fact been improved.

The case in Kansas is not unique.

In 1961, Wisconsin adopted its first sales tax, boosted its personal income tax and launched a program to cut property taxes by giving communities state funds earmarked specifically to provide property tax relief.

Initially, the program chopped property taxes by about 10%. But within three years, a typical homeowner's property tax bill had bounced back above the 1961 level.

The New Jersey Taxpayers Association has reported that local property taxes in the state are up 13% this year, despite a new 3% state sales tax that provided $63 million in revenues for local property tax relief in 1966.

Unlike sales and income taxes, which are imposed by state legislatures and exact their tribute piecemeal throughout the year, lump sum property taxes are highly vulnerable to the wrath of taxpayers.

Voters in Cincinnati, Los Angeles, Minneapolis and a score of New Jersey communities have voted down recent attempts to hike property taxes, forcing sharp cutbacks in school budgets and other local government expenditures in many cases.

Last fall Nebraska voters repealed a state property tax and left the state without a major source of revenue until April, when the legislature enacted both a sales and income tax (local property taxes remained intact.)

Nevertheless, property taxes in some places have climbed to staggering levels. In Newark, N.J., which has one of the nation's highest property tax rates, the owner of a home with a market value of $20,000 can expect to pay more than $1000 in property taxes, while owners of business property will pay even stiffer rates.

Since more than 96% of all property taxes are levied by local governments, most states broad relief measures aim at providing new revenue sources for cities and towns.

Besides Wisconsin and New Jersey, other states, including Minnesota and Indiana, provide state funds that are intended to help localities hold down their spiraling property tax rates.

A number of states, including Tennessee, Oklahoma, Wyoming, New York, Virginia and Michigan, have passed laws since 1963 that permit local officials to impose city sales or income taxes or both. Such taxes now are wide-spread in most of those states, says the Federation of Tax Administrators.

"Progressive Taxation"

Tax specialists generally applaud such switches to broader-based forms of taxation. Property taxes are considered among the most "regressive" of all taxes. They hit a low-income property owner much harder than they hit a wealthy property owner, because a poor man's mortgaged home may represent nearly all of his assets. A wealthy man's assets usually are in the form of securities or other "intangible" investments that often are taxed at rates far lower than property tax levels. Tax experts say a personal income tax or a sales tax that exempts food, medicine and clothing is a more "progressive" form of taxation because it is more directly related to a person's ability to pay.

Some states are striving to remove inequities in their property tax structures. "It is inconceivable that a revenue source so entrenched in our political system will disappear from the tax scene," says William G. Coleman, an authority on state and local taxes. "As long as we have to tolerate the property tax, let's do all we can to administer it well."

Kansas Loses Voice In Great Plains Board

—Ralph Ball Blames Docking

STERLING — Kansas has lost much of its voice in Great Plains Wheat, Inc., because Robert Docking failed to appoint new members of the Kansas Wheat Commission, the former president of the organization said Wednesday.

Ralph Ball, Sterling, has been elected as president of Great Plains Wheat by Mearl Gifford of Gardner, N. Dak., and, as a result, Kansas has lost a good deal of its power.

Ball, a Republican, said "I'm upset because I haven't been reappointed to the Kansas

Hammock Party Was 1892 Fun

Oldsters sometimes wonder if current generations don't behave in scandalous ways. But party-goers have always gotten rather inventive, writes Henry Jameson in his Abilene Reflector-Chronicle after lifting this social item from the files of the Reflector, July 15, 1892:

"The young people had a progressive hammock party last evening at the home of Miss Ida Upshaw to talk over the picnic of a few evenings hence. We are not thoroughly familiar with modus operandi of progressive hammocks but we understand that the gentleman in each hammock entertains (?) his partner until progress one hammock. There was only one unharmonious feature in last evening's party — Levi Humbarger and Homer Ellison refused to progress. The girls say they won't be invited to the next party."

Wheat Commission; what irks me is that because the governor hasn't made the necessary appointments to the commission the commission couldn't put up candidates as necessary."

State Support

Great Plains Wheat is a market development association supported by the wheat commissions of Kansas, Colorado, North Dakota, South Dakota, and Oklahoma.

"I really don't expect to be reappointed," Ball said. "But that's just politics. It is really bad when the only reason Kansas didn't have a fair chance in Great Plains Wheat is because the governor wouldn't appoint four new members to the commission. Our terms expired July 1, and he's got four spots to fill."

Ball was on the commission five years; three of those years he was chairman.

"I had the support of all the states involved," he said. "I could have been president again, but it's just the governor's pleasure when he makes appointments, so I didn't have a chance, and neither did anyone else from Kansas, since the commission lacks four members."

"In fact, they held the elections until the last of the meeting last week in hopes that Kansas' appointments might be made and new candidates named," Ball said.

Kansas pushed Great Plains Wheat onto a good foundation last year, Ball said. "We've got all the staff we need and we're really ready to roll, but now we're out. It's really sad when Kansas gets hit like this."

FARMERS OUTLOOK

Here's Current Grain Stock Chart

Four times each year, the United States Department of Agriculture releases estimates of total stocks of grains on hand. These figures are helpful to producers in planning the sale of their crops, and to farmers and others who buy grains for feed and other uses. The latest of the quarterly reports was for July 1.

Soybeans. Stocks of soybeans on hand July 1 totaled 199 million bushels, according to USDA calculations. This amount was 49 percent more than was on hand a year earlier.

The quantity of soybeans stored on farms was estimated at 85 million bushels, compared with only 19 million bushels a year before. Beans stored in elevators and mills were listed at 114 million bushels, about the same as last year.

As of July 1, farmers had placed 150 million bushels of soybeans under price support loans. They had repaid loans on half of these beans, leaving 75 million bushels still under loan. The amount not under loan was about 124 million bushels.

It now appears that about 100 million bushels of old beans will be left on hand September 1, the beginning of the next soybean marketing year. The new crop is developing well, despite some bad spots. The crop may total 1000 million bushels, compared with 931 million last fall.

The prospective total supply could be near 1100 million bushels, which might be enough to leave nearly 200 million bushels for carryover at the end of the next marketing year. With such a supply in prospect, soybean prices may be depressed below the support level for a time during and following the harvest. If farmers lock up enough beans under price support, the price will rise enough to bring some of them out on the market.

Corn. Stocks of corn on hand July 1 were estimated at 1735 million bushels, down just 3 percent from the same date a year earlier. Farm stocks were listed at 1330 million bushels, practically the same as last year. But supplies in elevators and mills were 425 million, down 7 percent.

Farmers had 310 million bushels of corn under price support loans on July 1. A year earlier, they had 423 million bushels under loans. Unsold stocks of corn held by the CCC on July 14 were estimated at 140 million bushels. A year earlier, the uncommitted balance in CCC hands was 82 million bushels.

It now appears that the carryover of old corn on October 1 will be close to the 840 million bushels carried over last fall. While the new crop is a few days late in most areas, many farmers will have a record crop. Total production may exceed the 4.5 billion bushels forecast on the basis of conditions on July 1.

Present conditions point to a total corn supply of more than 53 billion bushels for the next marketing year. Compare that with the slightly more than 4.9 billion bushels available at the beginning of this marketing year.

Prospective use and exports in the year ahead are less than the expected 1967 production.

Thus, the carryover stocks are likely to increase in the fall of 1968. Prices may sag below the price-support loan level during or after harvest. The extent to which prices recover after harvest will depend largely on how much corn farmers put under loan, and on how fast they sell the remainder that is to be put on the market.

Move To Earlier Grain Payment

A bill introduced by Congressman Robert Dole, R-Kan., to permit advance payments to wheat producers under the federal Feed and Grain Program, was reported favorably last week by the livestock and grain subcommittee, House Committee on Agriculture.

Dole said he did not know when the full committee will act on the bill. The bill was introduced by Dole March 1. Under Dole's bill, wheat growers would receive half their payments when they sign up for the program, after the first of the year. The second half would be paid once compliance had been proven, about six months later.

The bill would apply to 1968 and subsequent crops, putting wheat farmers on the same basis as feed and cotton growers. Under present law, sign-up is made after the first of each year, but no payments are made until compliance has been proven.

Quick...while there's still time!

Make sure all the important people at your house are listed in the new telephone directory. But you'll have to hurry, because the directory of alphabetical listings closes soon.

Who needs a listing? Why just about everyone at your house who's old enough to say "hello."

How about those teenagers with lots of friends... a wife who's active in church or community affairs... relatives who live with you? Wouldn't personal directory listings mean a lot to them?

For example, here's how a husband and wife are both listed, with a separate identity for each:

Regular Residence Listing—
Chalmers, John W 4708 Elm. KL 5-2134

Wife's Residence Listing—
Chalmers, Karen Mrs 4708 Elm. KL 5-2134

The cost of an additional listing is low compared with the pleasure it gives.

Call the telephone business office today and order listings for those important people—before the directory closes.

Mrs. Frank J. Ewart, Minneapolis, Prize Winner

Mrs. Frank J. Ewart, 220 N. Rothsay, Minneapolis, is the weekly prize winner. She writes, "I really enjoy the G&G recipes — so many have become our favorites."

CHICKEN DELECTABLE

1 large frying chicken, cut into serving pieces
1 can Franco-American chicken gravy
½ cup evaporated milk

Dip chicken in flour and seasoning and brown in melted fat or cooking oil. Put browned chicken in 9x13x2-inch pyrex pan with skin side up. Pour gravy and milk over and cover tightly with foil. Bake at 325-350 degrees for one hour. A little diced onion for flavor or pimiento for color may be added.

Mrs. Cleo Mayer, Haddam:
"I always enjoy your recipe page and would like to share this recipe. It is equally good as an elegant company dessert or a hearty finish to a workday supper."

STRAWBERRY CREME DELIGHT

1 cup graham cracker crumbs
½ cup butter or margarine, melted

Combine above and press into baking dish.

1 package lemon or orange gelatin
1 cup boiling water
Chill until syrupy.

2 egg whites

¼ cup sugar

Beat egg whites. Gradually add sugar and continue beating until stiff. Whip 1 cup heavy cream till soft peaks form. Add thickened gelatin. Beat till thick and creamy. Fold in egg whites and 1 pint strawberries, sliced. Pour over crust. Chill till firm.

Mrs. Elmer Hildebrandt, West 12th, Ellsworth: "I want to send my way of preparing carp. Most people don't want to eat them because of the many bones they have. I have a way that will do away with most all of them but the bigger one that runs down their backs."

PREPARING CARP

Skin your carp and wash it then cut it into pieces small enough to go into jars. Pint or quart jars may be used. Pack carp in jars tight, using ½ teaspoon salt to one pint and pressure pints 80 minutes at 15 pounds. Pressure for quarts, put in 1 teaspoon salt and pressure 30 minutes at 15 pounds pressure. Do not add any water when canning. When you are ready to use them, you make salmon patties, salmon loaf or fix it anyway you want to. We like it better than the salmon you buy downtown."

To Clean Appliances

Clean electric appliances after use by rubbing them with a little detergent on a damp sponge. Then dry with a cloth.

Gelatin, Ginger Ale Combine To Make Sparkling Dessert

What makes a dessert sparkle? Well, you begin with a package of strawberry punch flavor gelatin — so full of the essence of many fruits, including cherry, pineapple, lemon and raspberry. Add a cup of ginger ale instead of the usual cold water. Finally, stir in a cup of diced fresh pears. Chill in small molds and serve with frosted grapes — a sparkling gourmet's touch!

JELLIED GINGER-UPPER

1 package (3-ounce) strawberry punch gelatin
1 cup boiling water
1½ teaspoons lemon juice
1 cup ginger ale
1 cup diced fresh pears

Dissolve gelatin in boiling water. Gradually add lemon juice and ginger ale. Chill until slightly thickened. Then fold in pears. Spoon into individual molds. Chill until firm. Unmold and garnish with Frosted Green Grapes, if desired. Makes five to six servings.

FROSTED GREEN GRAPES

Brush seedless green grapes with egg white that has been beaten until slightly foamy. Sift granulated sugar over grapes. Store in refrigerator until dry.

Easy To Find

If a man drops a tie tack, collar pin or other small object on the floor while dressing, it can be located quickly and easily by placing a lighted flashlight flat on the floor. It will give the elusive item a long and distinct shadow.

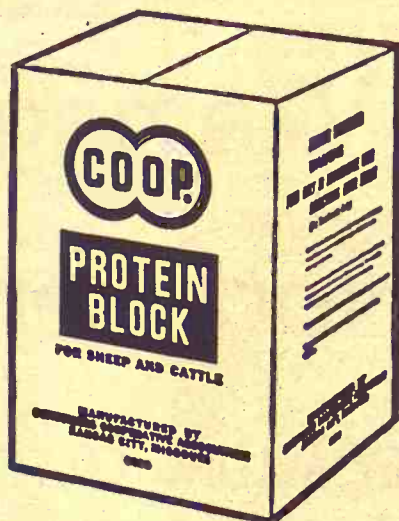

Keeps Chamois Soft

If you use a chamois for polishing furniture or metals, wash it often in warm sudsy water and rinse it in clean water. Then put a little more soap or detergent in the final rinse water and squeeze the chamois out of these clean suds. This will keep it soft.

Women Should Heed These Tips When House-hunting

When a woman buys a pair of shoes she checks them thoroughly, examines the workmanship inside and out and when she is sold, she is really sold!

A woman buying a house is something else again. Not knowing exactly what to look for, she's inclined to leave the whole thing up to her husband, and then feel miffed if the house doesn't live up to her expectations.

Because a house is the largest investment most families ever make, it deserves a good, long look. Women in the know deal with a reliable broker, preferably one recommended by a satisfied client, and limit their search to homes well within the family's means.

Generally speaking, it is wise to keep the cost of the house within two-and-a-half times the family's income. In estimating annual costs, be sure to anticipate taxes, any specific assessment charges and premiums for the best home insurance you can afford. Determine, too, the cost and availability of water, electricity, gas, telephone, sewers, street lights and garbage collection. If you have children, learn as much as possible about the schools they will be eligible to attend.

As for the house itself, the important considerations are efficiency of the plumbing, heating and electrical systems. The latter should be capable of handling all of your appliances as well as any you may wish to buy in the future.

Essential, of course, is that the house be structurally sound. To determine this, check the roof, attic and basement beams and condition of all walls and ceilings. Take a careful look at the siding and check for solid, tight window sills.

Women in the know who have found a desirable house waste no time in encouraging their husbands to buy. It's true that mortgage rates are, at present, rather high but forecasts do not suggest that they will be appreciably lowered for some time.

Meanwhile property rates will probably continue to rise. There seems little to be gained by waiting and much real satisfaction to be lost.

Give Special Care To Cookware

Enameled porcelain-on-steel casseroles are attractive and blend well with any kitchen or dining room decor. For a lifetime of service from your cookware, handle it carefully, avoiding hard or sharp blows.

Pouring cold water into the utensils while they are still hot or letting them boil dry could cause costly damage. Be careful not to clean the cookware with gritty abrasives or steel wool. Also never scrape with sharp objects, like a knife, especially teflon-lined utensils.

Snappy Sauce Enhances Meats

Serve a snappy sauce to enhance the flavor of sliced pork of beef roast, beef pot roast or ready to serve meats. Place it in a bowl on a large platter surrounded by one or several of these meats.

To make this relish-sauce, mix 2 cups of applesauce with 2 tablespoons of prepared horseradish and 1 tablespoon of lemon juice.

To Remove Gum

To remove any type gum from shoes or clothing, put the article in a plastic bag and place it in the deep freeze. After it's frozen, gum comes off easily.

Cotton Coats Step Out

All-weather coats in year around cotton fabrics take fashion by storm for fall '67.

Generating all the excitement are the spiffy military coats, the disciplined tent shapes, the smartly belted coats and the side-closed silhouettes. Industrial zippers, metal grippers and other hardware closings accent the new designs along with chain belts, self-belts and back belts.

Adding to the fashion excitement are the newsy cotton fabrics on tap for fall '67. Water repellent corduroys, gabardines and cotton canvas defy stormy weather days in neutral hues, deep shades of red and brown, animal prints and bright bands of color.

Squatter's Rights

To discourage your dog from climbing onto all the furniture, designate one chair as "his" — then keep the family from occupying the chair.

Gives Fresh Smell To Towels, Sheets

For fresh-smelling towels and sheets, try adding a tablespoon of bath salts to the rinse water on the washing machine.

Three In Row For Craig Good

The grand champion steer at the Riley County Fair was shown for the third consecutive year by Craig Good, son of Don Good, the K-State livestock expert. Craig's entry was a steer from the herd of Warren Woody, Barnard breeder who has sold previous winners to him.

Here with Craig and his champion Hereford is Theresa Ebert, whose top Angus steer was reserve champion at the Riley County Fair.

Linda Good, College club, sold her steer for 34 cents a pound at the sale of 4-H livestock following the Riley County Fair.

Riley County Fair

Cheri Bingham, Ashland club, sold her hog for 30 cents a pound at the sale of 4-H livestock following the Riley County Fair last week.

Riley 4-H Sale Grosses $22,000

One hundred nineteen animals sold for a total of $22,000 at the 4-H auction at the conclusion of the Riley County Fair.

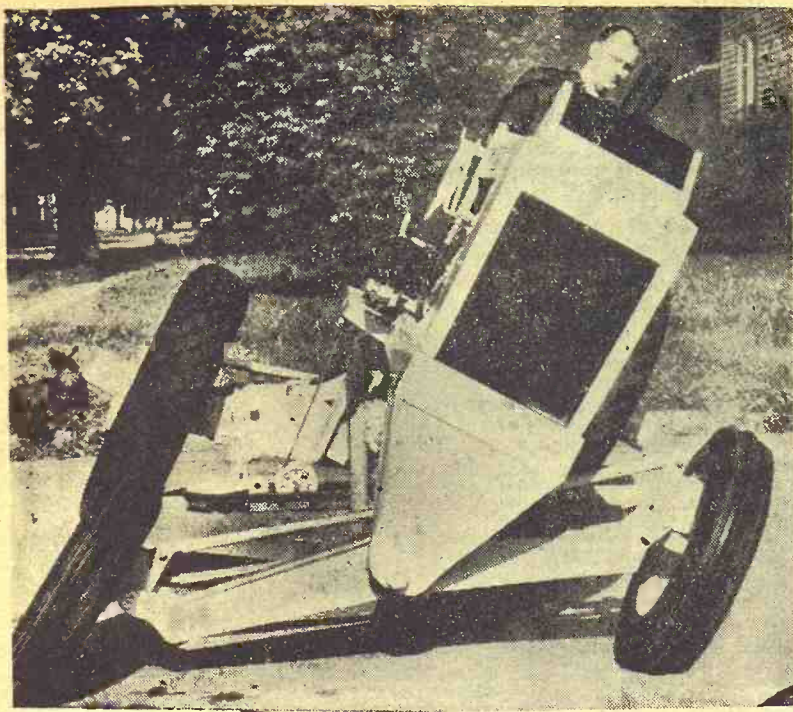

Several of the projects are being held for further competition, of the award winners only the grand champion steer was sold.

It was a Hereford belonging to Creig Good and sold to Berry Truck Lines of Manhattan for 36 cents a pound, a total of $258.70.

The highest price paid during the auction was 75 cents a pound for the swine project of the late Danny Hurlburt. The sale price of 185 dollars, paid by the Riley Business Men, will be added to a scholarship fund which will pay for a 4-H youth's attendance at the Conservation Camp at Rock Springs each summer.

Jon Dreith picked up 38 cents for his fat lamb at the 4-H sale following the Riley County Fair.

Leaning Tractor

A farmer who has had some close calls moving a tractor across some steep bar ditches might be interested in this tractor-mower built in Harper, Ks., which is designed for work on steep highway side slopes. Demonstrating the vehicle's ability to shift its center of gravity, Roger Wedman "leans" his mower over on a level street.

K-State Staff In Nigeria Stays Put

MANHATTAN — Kansas State University officials are keeping a watchful eye on the civil war in Nigeria but said the 17 KSU staff members teaching there appear to be in no immediate danger.

Glenn H. Beck, KSU vice president, said the staff members teaching there appear to be in no immediate danger.

Glenn H. Beck, KSU vice president, said the staff members and their families are located at Zaria, in Nigeria's northern region, about 500 miles north of the fighting in the lower regions.

"As far as our people go, the situation is one which doesn't give us immediate concern," said Beck, "but two American universities — Michigan State and Colorado State — have evacuated their staff members from the eastern region.

Beck said only KSU and the University of Wisconsin now have instructors in Nigeria. The UW instructors are located at Ibadan in the midwest region. KSU instructors are working with the veterinary and agriculture colleges at the Ahmadu Bello University at Zaria.

"The civil war is having this kind of impact on our people — we are attempting to hold together our program without adding any new members to the staff," Beck explained. "Any staff members sent there now will be sent without their dependents."

"We will be working on a holding basis until things settle down. Normally the staff members would travel a lot in the northern region but they are being told to stay in Zaria now," he added.

Beck is scheduled to make a 10-day executive visit to Nigeria beginning Aug. 24 to evaluate the teaching program. He said he would like to learn what effect the present limitations are having on the program. KSU has had instructors in Nigeria for the past three years.

August 15, 1967

Improve All Silage The Natural Way With

KALOZYME Silage Maker

What Is KALOZYME? SILAGE MAKER

KALOZYME is a product of controlled fermentation of sugars by a living organism which is known to produce over 25 different organisms.

It is added while ensiling to inoculate the silage with these pre-fermented sugars to provide, at the start of fermentation, the kind of natural preservative and protective material that should be produced through the normal fermentation period in good silage under normal conditions.

48 TO 72 HOURS

KALOZYME helps to promote quick low temperature fermentation completed in 48 to 72 hours without giving undesirable organisms time to multiply—the organisms that cause bad odors, sourness, mold, etc.

NATURAL REACTIONS

The reactions activated by KALOZYME take place in 48 hours and produce large quantities of the proper ensiling enzymes and pre-fermented silage sugars. These pre-ferments and enzymes deprive the undesirable silage bacteria and oxygen and limit their growth. Silo temperatures are lowered, and the destruction of protein, fat, vitamins, and N. F. E. is minimized. The ability of the ensilage enzymes to break down high-fibre materials into valuable nutrients increases during this period.

You Stop Silage Stink and add Special Fragrance and Taste Appeal. Make Better Silage the Normal Way With Kalozyne!!!

After three months storage the KALOZYME SILAGE was still of good appearance and had a fine aroma and taste. The untreated hay silage had a stinky, rancid odor and there was a strong musty odor in the corn silage. After 12 months storage the treated silage was still completely preserved, but the untreated silage had turned to compost.

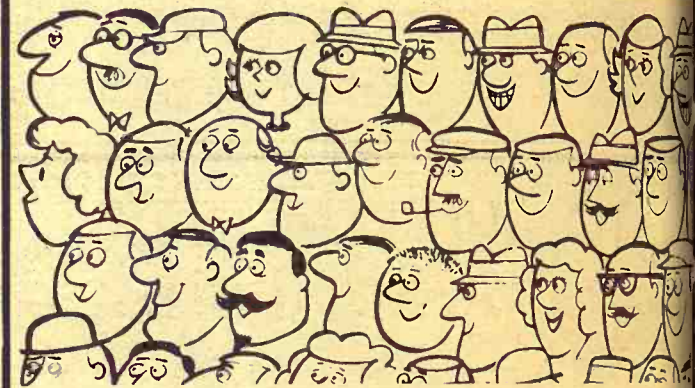

SOME RESULTS TO BE EXPECTED

No silage stink; no signs of mold, rancidity, or putrefaction; silage that is cleaned up without waste; less top spoilage, silage that keeps longer when exposed to air; 200% more beta carotene; 200% more carbohydrates; 10% more protein; more dry matter, less leakage, and less fibre; more nutritious silage enriched with vital enzymes and unidentified factors produced by this process . . . to help increase feeding profits.

ECONOMICAL TO USE — Kalozyne is concentrated, so that you use only ½ pound per ton in all kinds of silage.

There's a "Space Race" on Earth, Too

The population explosion creates a greater and greater demand for food . . . and the American farmer is meeting the challenge of food production. The average farmer today produces enough to feed thirty-seven people—does it efficiently and economically. We're proud to have been partners in progress with agriculture for the past 50 years. We salute the American farmer . . . provider of plenty.

Extension Has Plan For Pipe Trailer

If you use a sprinkler irrigation system on your farm, you may be interested in a new pipe trailer design. And if you have a welder, it can be built right on the farm, Leo Wendling, Extension agricultural engineer at Kansas State University, says.

The lightweight 36-foot trailer will haul 30 to 40-foot sections of irrigation pipe. It is designed to be used in fields of low-growing crops where a tractor can run alongside the pipe laterals.

The main frame and braces form a three-cornered truss which gives strength at a minimum of weight, Wendling points out. The plans include a sheet metal pan on the lower frame to hold tools and various fittings needed to connect pipe and sprinkler heads.

Construction materials include pipe for the main frame, square bar steel for braces, and channel iron for the bolsters.

Wendling suggests painting the trailer to guard against rusting. Prime the frame with metallic zinc dust and zinc oxide base paint. Then apply a coat of zinc paint or metal paint.

Working drawings of the trailer are available. Order Plan 5942 through your county Extension office or from the Extension Engineering Department, Umberger Hall, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kansas 66502.

TO MAKE MONEY ON HOGS, YOU MUST GET "PROFITS" LONG BEFORE YOU SELL

That statement doesn't come as "news" to anyone who has been in the hog business very long.

It's a known fact. Men who are successful in producing pork at less cost and more return make it a regular practice to get "profits" from the beginning.

That means profits from high conception rate in the breeding herd. Profits from sows in condition to farrow bigger, stronger litters. Profits from big, extra pigs at weaning.

Profits from fast efficient weight gains during all growing stages. How is it done? Not by "luck" or chance. It's done by planning. Planning and following through on an organized step-by-step co-ordinated program to eliminate disease—the biggest risk to hog income.

Such a program, of course, demands good management, adequate housing and sound sanitation practices. These are all-important but far more is needed.

Baltimore Livestock Market To Close

The 86-year-old Baltimore Union Stock Yards, the largest terminal livestock market on the East coast, will be closed October 1.

"The stockyards are really a 'hotel' for cattle, sheep and hogs," said Frank G. FitzRoy, president of the Stock Yards company, "and you might say that we have had just too many vacant rooms in recent years."

Last year 240,668 head of livestock moved through the yards, compared with 573,500 ten years ago.

August 15, 1967

The winner was exhibited by Patty Pettijean, Brookville, and the reserve champ belonged to Russell Johnson, Cloverleaf club.

Announcing... NEW BREED AUCTIONS of STOCKERS and FEEDERS

Angus and Herefords will be offered at four special stocker-feeder events:

Angus
Hereford
Angus
Hereford

Wednesday, August 30
Wednesday, September 6
Wednesday, September 27
Wednesday, October 4

Each auction will begin at 10 A.M. and will be held in the air-conditioned sales pavilion at the Kansas City stockyards. Black/white face cattle or calves will be handled on the same Wednesdays as the Angus.

If you need quality feeders or herd replacements — or if you have choice to good animals to sell — these special breed auctions are events you cannot afford to miss!

Kansas City is the country's top spot stocker-feeder market. Regular stocker-feeder auctions will continue to be held on Thursdays as usual in the Kansas City yards. These auctions have been so successful that more than a quarter million stocker and feeder cattle are expected to change owners in Kansas City during the year ahead.

At Kansas City you have two ways to buy or sell stocker and feeder cattle and calves: by auction every Thursday, or private treaty every day of the week. Either way you deal you can have the services of a skilled pro, a Kansas City Livestock Marketing Specialist, to represent you.

KANSAS CITY LIVESTOCK MARKET

USDA Sees Fall Livestock Strength

The Agriculture Department reported livestock slaughter was declining from the high levels of early this year, with prices more favorable to producers.

Looking ahead in a livestock situation report, the agency said fall slaughter rates were expected to be lower than a year earlier. Producer prices of most classes of livestock were expected to be higher.

The price decline in late 1966 and the first part of this year have influenced livestockmen to curtail operations somewhat in the hope of encouraging price improvements.

It appears, the report said, that the nation's cattle inventory will decline in 1967 for the third consecutive year. The decline was forecast at 500,000 head or more from the 108,500,000 on hand the first of the year.

The report said fed cattle prices next fall were expected to show additional strength and average considerably above the $25-a-hundred-pound average last October to December.

The report pointed out that hog producers were cutting back production because of higher feed costs and lower hog prices during the last fall and winter. It said hog prices this fall were expected to average a little above last year's October-to-December average of $20.37 a hundred pounds.

The department said lamb prices likely would show some seasonal decline this fall. However, prices are expected to be a little above the average of $23.14 during the October-to-December period last year for choice lambs at Denver, a major market.

August 15, 1967

in the Rolling Hills beach area. "This will give us some tools to work with in controlling unruliness in the reservoir area," Schmedemann said.

Geary County Atty. Richard Medley was asked by the commissioners to prepare a resolution against littering. It will cover all the county, including the reservoir area and state parks.

Present state law only covers littering on highways, roads, streams and waterways.

The penalty for violating the new ordinances will be a $100 fine or 30 days in county jail, or both.

JUNCTION CITY — Consumption or possession of alcoholic beverages or beer in the beach area of Milford Reservoir near here has been banned by a resolution adopted by Geary County commissioners.

The action was taken on recommendation of Sheriff Harvey Schmedemann, Leland Brown, reservoir manager, and Rush Lang, state game protector.

Commissioners said they also are considering a curfew on the beaches which would be 30 minutes after sunset.

The sheriff told the commissioners the resolution was necessary because of "rowdiness"

Mixed Bag In Wheat Situation

USDA's "Wheat Situation," the 4-times-a-year publication which analyzes the world wheat market, is out, and the current word is not overly optimistic. The August report, released after harvest but with most of the marketing year ahead, says the outlook on price is less favorable than last year, simply because of apparent ample U.S. and world supplies as against a prospective world wheat trade not much larger than the previous year.

The current issue was made before the August 1 crop report and predicted a June 30 carryover of 523 million bushels—about 100 million bushels more than the June 30, 1967, carryover.

Substituting the new crop report figures would lower this 1968 carryover to 437 million, not much of an increase. If the current statistical revision is an accurate guess, the market outlook will be more favorable and the wheat market did show some strength last week.

Predictions in the "Wheat Situation were for these 1967-68 uses:

Domestic food use — 525 million bushels, up from 520 million, but not a per capita increase.

Seed use — 70 million bushels, down from 78 million bushels, reflecting the drop in acreage allotments from 68 million to 59 million acres.

Livestock feed — Up, possibly to 125 or even 150 million bushels, from the 82 million bushels used last year. Reason: lower prices make wheat a good buy for livestock feed.

Exports — 750 million bushels, a figure viewed by much of the grain trade as very optimistic, and a figure lifted from a USDA "target" rather than a known demand. USDA, however, can bring powerful influences to make its "targets" reachable, either by underpricing or making more concessional export sales.

Exports in the year just ended totaled 742 million bushels. Dollar exports were up and concessional sales (under Public Law 480) were down. Exports a year ago were 867 million bushels.

Current estimates for world wheat production are for 10.1 billion bushels. The U.S., France, and Argentina each expect gains from the previous year, offsetting a lighter Canadian crop and possibly a smaller one from Australia too.

The Soviet Union, as usual, provides the biggest question in world wheat supplies. It raised its biggest crop in history in 1966 after providing a price-stimulating demand as an importer the previous year. The crop this year is good, but not up to 1966.

The Wheat Situation predicts wheat prices this year may run somewhat above the national loan rate of $1.25 a bushel, but not as high as last year. The season average price last year was $1.63 a bushel, 38 cents above the $1.25 loan rate. In July of this year, the average price received by farmers was $1.37 a bushel.

In the summer of 1966, the world was concerned about wheat supplies with expectations both Russia and China would increase purchases while India's needs would continue. As a result many countries resorted to forward buying to make certain their requirements would be fulfilled.

Save corn—up to 10 bushels an acre. Save time—switch rear units in 5 minutes. The 234 corn harvester—from IH.

No other tractor-mounted picker on the market can pay off on these two big promises. Because no other picker is designed and built like the International 234.

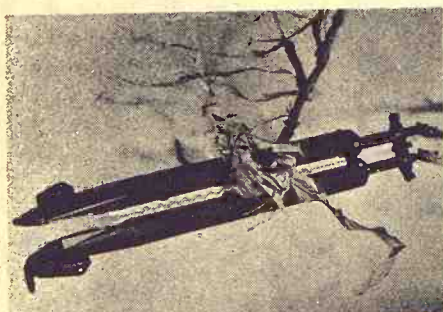

Take the snapping unit. Designed like a combine corn head. Same corn-saving efficiency. Best news is the scalloped stalk rolls and rotary stripper plates. Cut butt shelling to almost zero, even in single cross seed production. Deep pockets save loose ears. Low, gently-tapered gatherer points lift up the worst down corn, save weak-shanked ears.

That saves you corn—and a lot of it. What about time? The unique power-mounted universal frame solves that problem. Bolts on your tractor at only 3 points—in minutes. Fits 26 different models of 5 makes of tractors, even those with rear tires as big as 18.4 x 38. Lets you mount—or switch—rear units in 3 to 5 minutes. The 12-roll husking unit. Or the sheller unit. Or the rear snapper hopper—if you want to leave the husks on. No sweat. No strain. No tools.

Want to free up your tractor for other work? Drop the snapping unit—and the rear unit—and the universal frame. In 10 minutes. Maybe less.

Sound too good to be true? Stop in at your IH dealer and let him prove it. And talk to him about the IHCC credit program that's tailored to your income pattern.

Scalloped stripper rolls and rotary stripper plates practically eliminate field shelling losses. Deep-pocket snapping rolls are optional.

Power-mounted universal frame mounts quickly. All drives are self contained. Drive couplers—and pto couplers—mate automatically.

Switch from husker—to sheller—to snapper hopper—in 5 minutes or less. Couplers mate automatically. No sprockets or chains to fuss with.

KPL Says It Needs More Money For Gas

If the Kansas Corporation Commission approves, the new year 1968 will bring higher gas bills for more than 100,000 customers of Kansas Power and Light Co.

The company has filed with the commission a request for a gas rate hike totaling $1.82-million, an increase of 7.7 per cent. President Balfour S. Jeffrey of Kansas Power and Light said more money is needed because of increased costs, particularly the cost of gas bought in the Kansas fields.

A spokesman for the Kansas Corporation Commission said that a public hearing probably will be held on the request, possibly in late September or October.

The commission would hear arguments from both sides on whether an increase is justified and then decide whether to grant or deny the boost.

Jeffrey said that $240,503 of the increase would be paid by KPL's own electrical department, which buys gas for fuel for its generating stations.

He said that the increase would amount to 74 cents a month for the firm's 103,100 residential customers. Also affected would be 400 industrial and commercial customers and eight wholesalers.

Jeffrey said that KP will experience a substantial increase in the cost of gas it purchases in the gas fields of Kansas.

The appointment was announced last week in Washington, D.C., by Undersecretary of Agriculture, John Schnitker.

Thornburrow will work on questions and problems involving the administration of present farm programs at local and regional levels.

He also will be involved with reappraisal and analysis of these programs. He will remain in Marysville but will be available to be called to Washington for consultation.

Thornburrow, 60, has been active in farming most of his life. He currently operates a commercial feedlot in Marysville.

India: 'What Do We Do With Good Crops?'

Some economists in New Delhi are worried that the Indian government may have grown so used to economic disaster that it won't be able to adjust to success if the current monsoon rains produce good crops.

These analysts say they see little sign of vigorous thinking about what needs to be done to promote fast economic growth once the major cause of the present depression — the food shortage brought on by two years of drought — has been removed.

"I sometimes think they are doing everything they can to make sure they won't have a success," a foreign expert declared. "They're afraid it would leave them in a bad position with the aid givers."

If there is a bumper crop, some analysts believe, the government should be ready to step up spending quickly on something basic like the railroad as a means of reviving depressed steel and manufacturing industries.

Some observers are calling for a nationalization of the system of agricultural prices.

Under the present system, farmers are not allowed to sell what they produce in another state. The result is extraordinary variations in price for the same commodities.

Also, it is possible that twice as much food will be coming to market this season. A good crop will drive down prices everywhere.

There is no evidence that the government is preparing to abolish the food zones or that it is thinking of building the warehouses it would need if it was to go into the business of agricultural price supports in a serious way.

Ease Limit On Hog Shipping

Changes in federal interstate shipping rules now permit hogs treated with either anti-hog cholera serum alone or anti-hog cholera antibody concentrate alone to be shipped across state lines.

Under the change, official administration of serum alone or antibody concentrate alone will serve as an alternative to current requirements for official vaccination of feeder pigs, breeding stock, and exhibition swine shipped across state lines. Other requirements are not affected.

Kansas REAs Consider Atomic Plant In State

The Kansas Electric Co-operative Association disclosed last week a new goal is the construction of an atomic-fueled electric power generating plant somewhere in Kansas.

President Gene Porter, Viola,

Beauty In The Family

The Miss America entry from Kansas next month at Atlantic City will be Debra Barnes, right, of Moran. She is the daughter of Dwight Barnes, Moran implement dealer. Barnes has another daughter who may also be Miss America material. She's daughter Barbara, 16, shown with him at left. Moran is in Allen County, east of Iola.

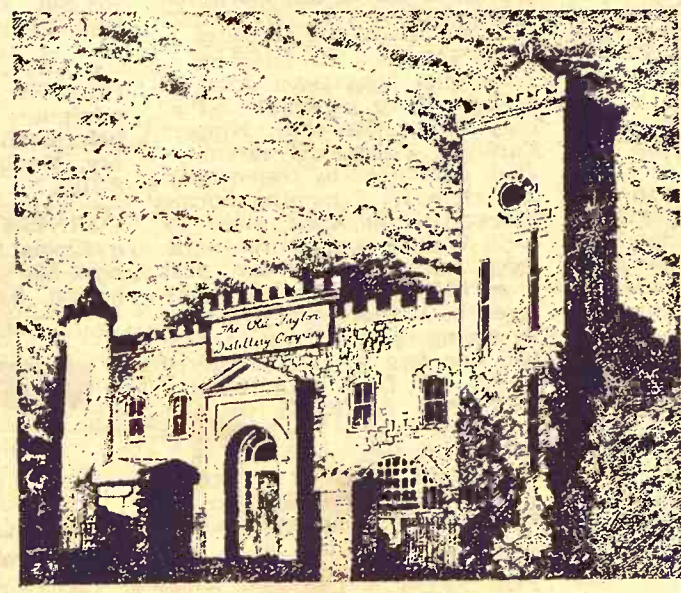

disclosed the objective at the mid-year meeting of directors at Kansas City. The association embraces 36 cooperatives serving 95,000 consumers.

Porter said the co-operation of municipal and power groups would be sought in what he proposed as a "partnership venture."

Perry Miller, Topeka, executive manager of the association, said some discussion at the meeting concerned legislation that would place municipal systems under jurisdiction of the Kansas Corporation Commission and restrict their expansion into areas outside of city limits.

Miller said co-operatives were under the commission's control and joined private companies to curb municipal plant growth.

Our distillery is a conversation piece. But our Bourbon speaks for itself.

Col. Taylor built our distillery back in 1887.

It's kept us on our toes ever since. Because when you have a castle for a distillery, the Bourbon you make had better be some Bourbon.

It is. Today, Old Taylor outsells every other premium-priced Bourbon in the country.

Of course, we still get questions about our distillery. But our Bourbon always has the last word.

Defense Of USDA Statistics

Secretary Orville L. Freeman defended the Agriculture Department's farm statistical reporting service against criticism of its crop and livestock estimates. He said he would stake his life on the honesty of its personnel.

Freeman offered this defense at an unpublicized symposium attended by representatives of farm organizations, trade associations, commodity exchange markets, agricultural extension specialists, and other users of agricultural statistics.

Freeman said there have been "some nasty implications" in the criticism of statistical information supplied by the depart-

John Barton

John Barton Quits State Angus Position

Another state cattle breed association is looking for a new secretary-fieldman.

John Barton has resigned that position for the Kansas Angus Association, effective September 1.

He has been named field representative for the American Angus Association in Nebraska, Southern Wyoming and Colorado. The position is a new one with the national Angus group.

Barton has been the secretary-fieldman for the Kansas Association since 1963. He served the state association in the same capacity from 1955 to 1958. Following graduation from Oklahoma State University in 1950, he was county extension agent in Sedgwick and Cowley counties in Kansas and later managed Fairlawn Farms near Topeka.

He has lived in rural Hutchinson and Inman since he has been managing the state Angus association. In his new job, Barton, his wife and three children will live in Hastings, Nebr.

Applications to fill the position to be vacated by Barton are being received by Dale Mc-Curry, Mt. Hope, Kansas, president of the state association.

For the Angus association it will mean the fourth secretary appointment in the past decade.
The Kansas Hereford Association has also had four managers in the past 10 years, making its last change in the past month.

ment which serves as the basis for billions of dollars in trading in agricultural products and for the shaping of federal crop control programs, planting plans of farmers and operations of livestock men and the meat industry.

Cattlemen Upset

A report early this year threw the cattle industry into a tizzy because its estimate of cattle numbers was considerably higher than previous department reports had indicated. Cattle feeders claim this report had a depressing effect on prices which still, they say, influences markets.

Freeman said the criticism had implied, in some instances, that somebody in his department was putting out information to benefit those who buy from the farmer. Some also claim, he said, that those in the statistical service were either stupid or did not know what they were doing.

Says:

We are all born little so we have equal chances to grow and develop.

the appearance of several imitation milk products in the market.

Most of them so far have appeared only in the Far West but they likely will spread into other areas soon.

The products are being offered below those charged for fluid milk. The dairy industry may well see the new product in a fight similar to the one it waged against margarine. The results of the margarine vs. butter fight will not fill dairymen with optimism about a milk substitute battle.

The milk substitutes contain such ingredients as coconut oil, fluid skim milk or reconstituted non-fat dry milk, corn syrup and a basic mix which contains stabilizers. It soon may be possible to substitute for the skim milk or non-fat milk, a soybean product.

Filled milk — the term generally applied to these products — has some flavor problems to overcome when soy flour is used in it, but it is superior in protein content and is cheaper than milk.

Some states have so-called filled-milk statutes which attempt to bar the sale of the product. In the past, some states barred the sale of margarine, but most of these laws have been repealed. Federal law prohibits these products in interstate commerce. But this law does not stand in the way of the production and sale within states which do not bar them.

Here Are Current Crop Charts

Here are current figures from the Agriculture Department on wheat and corn production estimates, along with sorghum and soybean acreages for Kansas and other major producers:

'Come Look For Yourself' KFB Tells Detractor

MANHATTAN — Rep. Joseph Y. Resnick, D-N.Y., who has been investigating the National Farm Bureau, has been invited here to inspect State Farm Bureau records.

Ray Frisbie, Kansas Farm Bureau president, said he understood Resnick would be in Omaha Saturday in connection with his investigation.

"I saw no point in sending him a suitcase full of information by mail when he could take time to come into this area for a personal investigation," Frisbie said in extending the invitation to the New York congressman.

Resnick has criticized the American Farm Bureau for its business and financial holdings.

Frisbie said Resnick had written asking for a list of all businesses and companies "owned, controlled, or affiliated" with the Kansas Farm Bureau. Resnick asked for annual reports and financial statements of the businesses plus other information pertaining to the Farm Bureau in Kansas.

Frisbie said officials in the State Farm Bureau Office at Manhattan "will cooperate completely to answer any reasonable question he has."

We had an exceptionally good run of cattle at the sale last week. The run of cattle was larger than we had expected, with more coming to do business the J. C. Livestock Sales way. The buyers are coming here; compare us with any other livestock selling market, and you will find that the best way to sell or buy is here at our barn.

Prices on all classes were steady to strong all the way. Cows sold on a higher market than the previous week. We can sure use more good fresh cattle and you can be sure of getting a top price. With four packer buyers here, the demand for more hogs continues.

When the big equipment starts rolling here's the tire and price that will put profit into every mile of operation. Not only does it give good stability and control, but with its strong, Riverside engineered nylon cord body it comes back for recap after recap.

And it increases durability for sustained high speed driving!

The chart at left shows how the temperature advantage from cap/base tread construction increases durability. The tires were started at 25 mph and speed was increased 5 mph every 4 hours. As the results show, the tires with conventional construction failed at 65 mph. The tires with cap/base construction completed their 65 mph run and went on to 70 mph. To others this difference may seem small. But as a trucker you know that every penny saved on tires is a penny in your pocket. And that's the best reason we know of to buy Riverside!

demand. Butcher hogs were down $1 from a week ago with an extreme top of $20.80. We had a good run of weaning and feeder pigs and prices
