Big Buildup In Winter Feeders

The buildup of cattle for fall and winter feeding programs in north-central states is continuing at a sharply increased rate from last year.

The Agriculture department reported the number of stocker and feeder cattle and calves shipped into the 8-state area designated for sampling totaled 708,000 head during August, up 16 percent from a year earlier.

This brought the July-August tally to 1,200,000 head, an increase of 17 percent from the period in 1967.

August shipments of stocker and feeder sheep and lambs also were higher, estimated at 122,000 head in the eight states, up 8 percent from a year earlier. The July-August total was 197,000, an increase of 4 percent from last year.

The August shipments of both cattle and sheep showed most moved directly into the wintering areas. Only 234,000 cattle were reported by public stockyards down 5 percent from a year earlier.

The public yards received only 29,000 sheep during August, a decline of 38 per cent from last year.

The direct shipments reflect a trend of recent years involving less dependence on stockyards to handle cattle and sheep moving from one area to another, a department spokesman said.

"More and more you'll find shippers already have someone at the other end already to take his stock," he said. "This may involve a commission man or someone else, but increasingly the arrangements are made before stock is moved."

The states and number of cattle received during August, compared with the number reported for the month last year, respectively, are:

Ohio 9,316 in August this year and 7,167 for the month in 1967; Indiana, 14,537 and 18,700; Illinois 82,911 and 79,030; Michigan 9,244 and 10,710; Minnesota 65,199 and 46,780; Iowa 325,542 and 267,305; South Dakota 34,122 and 38,222; and Nebraska 167,606 and 145,314.

Cows To Sell

Harris Grunewald of Alma says he has to sell some black springer cows.

Two Issues Sure To Be Farm Problems

Corporation farming and huge government payments to individual farm operators are two issues almost certain to be passed on to the next administration.

Congressional debate over extension of the food and agriculture act beyond its December 31, 1969 deadline has generated enough steam to guarantee each a prominent place in interest.

Urban Outlook Limiting

Urban congressmen, particularly, are tempted to limit government farm payments in some fashion. Members from farming areas, who are dedicated politically to preserving the family farm, are becoming more aware of what large-scale corporation farming can mean.

These two factors merge somewhat in the notoriety associated with large government payments to farm operators who frequently are involved in corporation-type agriculture.

Overlooked, generally, is the contribution government payments make to smaller farmers. Last year 60 percent of the 3 billion dollars in payments went to farmers who received less than $5,000 each.

But there were five payments in 1967 of more than 1 million dollars and 15 between $500,000 and 1 million each. Of the total 1967 farm payments, 91,887 were for more than $5,000 each — for a value of about 1.1 billion dollars.

Despite Agriculture department officials arguing that such services — the adjustment of payments are made for lawful crop production to national requirements — the hugeness of the bill is provocative.

And it is this provocation that is of concern among Congressmen — those who see threats by large corporation farmers and those who want curbs on payments.

Ordered by Freeman
The Agriculture department

issued the first part of its survey on corporate farming nearly two months ago. The study was ordered by Orville L. Freeman, secretary, almost a year ago. But the preliminary report only involves 22 states, mainly in the Corn Belt, Northern Plains and Mountain regions.

The remainder of the report will cover the 26 remaining contiguous states and will include California, Texas and Florida — areas where corporate types of agriculture play important roles.

The final installment won't be ready before about December 1, a spokesman said last week.

In the meantime, some farm groups are pushing the corporate farming issue hard. The National Farmers union, for example, is stepping up its campaign.

The N.F.U. has released a booklet entitled, "the Corporate Invasion of Agriculture," in which author Victor K. Ray of the organization's staff outlines what he describes as a "silent assault" on agriculture by well-financed, corporate-style groups.

Sen. Gaylord Nelson (D-Wis.) is conducting a series of grassroots hearings to investigate corporate farming's impact on communities.

The American Farm Bureau federation, which traditionally has opposed many of the payment policies in farm programs, has not taken a hard-line position on corporate agriculture thus far.

But no doubt this issue will be discussed at its annual meeting in December, a Farm Bureau spokesman said.

"It is an important issue and I'm sure we'll have something to say."

Payment curbs and corporation farming suggest other issues important to agriculture, including farm bargaining, unionization of farm workers and the increasing role of farm cooperatives.

National Corn Contest

Ben Hook of Silver Lake, who started cutting corn last week, is hoping for a 200-bushel an acre yield for he is entered in a national corn yield contest. He farms 480 acres west of Silver Lake in Shawnee County.

Hog Outlook Good Until Late '69

Farmers are increasing hog production — but probably not by an excessive amount as yet. This was indicated by the report, Hogs and Pigs, recently released by the USDA. The report was based on a survey of farmers in 10 states made around September 1.

The increase in hog production apparently began with summer farrowings. The number of pigs weighing under 60 pounds on hand September 1 was 5 percent larger than the number of pigs on hand a year earlier.

The survey also indicated that farmers were planning to increase fall and winter sow farrowings by about 4 percent. The number of pigs saved may be up at least 5 percent.

THE FALL MARKET

The survey of hog producers indicated that the number of hogs weighing over 60 pounds on the first of September was 1 percent less than the year before. Thus, market supplies during the fall and early winter should be little or no larger than during the same time last year.

The number of market hogs weighing over 200 pounds on September 1 was listed at 925,000 — 3 percent less than a year before. The reduction indicates that farmers were taking advantage of good prices, and were not feeding their hogs to excessive weights. Most of these hogs were sold by mid-September.

The number of hogs weighing 180 to 220 pounds was estimated at 5,116,000 — 1 percent less than a year earlier. Most of these hogs should be gone by the middle of October.

Hogs weighing 120 to 180 pounds were reported at 9,453,000 — 2 percent less than in 1967. The number weighing 60 to 120 pounds was 10,370,000 — 1 percent less than the number on hand a year earlier.

We do not expect these figures to be exact. They are only estimates, but good estimates that are based on information supplied to the USDA by thousands of farmers. Most of the farmers do a careful job of reporting.

From these figures, we expect that market receipts of hogs will be close to 1967 levels until the end of the year. Receipts during the winter could run 4, 6, or perhaps 8 percent more than a year earlier.

Prices should average about the same as last year, which was around the $18 level during the fall and $19 during the winter.

1969-70

We expect that farmers will increase hog production more than is now reported. Prices for hogs have been good to excellent for four years. The present hog-corn price ratio is very good — around 20 to 1, or better. The long period of good prices for hogs seems likely to lead to excessive market supplies beginning in the last quarter of next year.

Small Towns Get Break In Nebraska's State Tax Distribution

Nebraska splits a $10 million state-aid melon among its cities and counties in January, and a new breakdown shows some municipalities are in line for a real bonanza.

For example, the village of Arthur in Arthur County will find $7400 dropped into its city treasury. That's $44.85 for each man, woman and child in the village, based on the 1960 nose count of 165.

Harrison in Sioux County does even better, receiving $21,760 or $48.57 per capita, the unofficial calculations indicate.

By contrast, Omaha and the other cities and villages in Douglas County will draw the state aid at the rate of $5.98 per capita.

In Lancaster County, the city of Lincoln and its small town neighbors will be rewarded at the rate of $5.76 per person.

In Adams County, the unofficial figure is $6.42 per municipal resident; in Madison County, $7.11.

The $10 million distribution is called for in 1967 legislation designed to reimburse county and city governments for tax revenue they have given up as the result of repeal of three traditional taxes — head taxes, intangible property taxes and the property tax on household goods and personal effects.

The amount to be distributed statewide is to equal the amount these repealed taxes yielded in 1967. Calculations by the office of Tax Commissioner Murrell B. McNeil place this total at just a shade below 10 million, and the latest estimated distribution figures are based on $10 million.

Each county won't necessarily be reimbursed precisely for the tax money it forfeits.

Under the allocation formula, the over-all total going to each county is based partly on the county's 1960 population in relation to the total state population, and partly on the county's assessed real estate valuation in relation to the state's total assessed valuation of real estate.

Once each county's allocation is determined, this county money is divided, with 80 per cent going to the municipalities in the county on a population basis, the remaining 20 per cent going into the county's general fund.

Forces already are building for a fight in the 1969 legislature to revise the formula, which appears to favor smaller municipalities in the more sparsely settled counties.

Arthur and Harrison happen to be the only incorporated villages in their respective counties, and thus acquire the full 80 per cent of the county allocation.

Arthur County officials have informed the tax commissioner that despite the largesse to which the village of Arthur is falling heir, the village is levying a two mill property tax nevertheless. Village fathers were said to want to see the state aid money before they believe it.

Banner County, among others, falls in still another category, lacking any incorporated municipalities whatsoever. Harrisburg, the county seat, is not incorporated.

Banner County officials expect to put the "city" portion

May Get Break On Drug Prices

Consumers may benefit from recent revisions of drug prices to small druggists announced by two major drug companies.

Chas. Pfizer & Company of New York recently announced a new two-price system that will reduce the price of certain drugs and dosages," a spokesman said. He said the new arrangement which replaces an old multipricing system "will be a simpler and fairer way of doing things." The new system provides one price for wholesale and federal government installations and another for all others, including hospitals and retailers. The old system involved different prices for proprietary and voluntary hospitals; state, city and county hospitals, wholesalers, drug stores and federal installations.

Certain drug prices to city, county and state hospitals will be increased, the spokesman said, "to bring them in line with the two-price system."

A spokesman for Merck & Company of Rahway, N. J., said the company would extend its large quantity discounts to all quantities of drugs. "About 60 percent of our products were explained. "Now the discount price has become the catalogue price, thereby lowering the price of drug to many smaller retailers." Certain injectable medicines offered only in hospitals are not affected, he said.

Dryer Matches Almost Any Washer

Now there's a dryer called the "Match-All" because it pairs easily with most any washer — or stands alone. The dryer is only 27 inches wide and will move right in next to your present washer and complement it nicely.

The "Match-All," available in both electric and gas models, features an improved permanent press capability. Wrinkles are literally tumbled out by proper application of controlled heat.

A special feature, automatic termination control, adjusts drying time according to the particular requirements of each fabric load while it is drying. A timing control shuts off the dryer when the clothes reach the proper degree of dryness.

So, for a double-barreled advantage — compact size and improved performance — pair off your washer with the "Match-All."

Extra Shine

For an extra shine on hardwood floors, wax the floors twice. Let the first coat dry to a hard, durable shine before applying the second coat.

Less Work Time

Cut down work time with an aerosol furniture polish. Get one of the new spray products with lemon oil or lemon wax added and when you've finished the wooden furniture, go ahead and shine up the vinyl, leather and metal pieces as well.

Plant Flower Bulbs In Clumps

When in bloom, spring-flowering bulbs look best in clumps of twelve, twenty-four or more. Bulbs of one kind should be planted in a group so that a mass picture is obtained. In Holland, the favorite way of planting is in entire beds of the same variety. Avoid planting in single rows.

Fluffy Carpets

To fluff bathroom carpeting, leave it in the dryer for a few minutes after it's dry — the carpeting will look even more luxuriously soft.

Facing the Future

...together!

Land Bank Associations have been partners in progress with agriculture for over 50 years.

Thousands of progressive farmers and ranchers have used Land Bank loans to expand and modernize their operations during this period. But the Land Bank System has done more than supply credit... it has pioneered the loan features which have made long-term credit a more valuable tool for agriculture.

The Land Bank System is responsive to the needs of agriculture. Land Bank Associations are owned by the people they serve and are operated solely for the benefit of agriculture.

Mrs. Walter Roever Of Hanover Wins Prize

Mrs. Walter Roever of Hanover receives a prize for the following recipe:

CRANBERRY MEATBALLS

1½ cups soft bread crumbs
¾ cup milk
1 egg, slightly beaten
3 tablespoons chopped onion
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
1½ teaspoons salt
½ teaspoon pepper
1 pound ground beef
Flour for dredging
¼ cup shortening
1 16-ounce can cranberry sauce
¼ cup vinegar
1½ tablespoons water
1 tablespoon cornstarch
Soak bread crumbs in milk; add next 5 ingredients. Mix with ground beef; shape into 20 balls. Roll in flour; brown in shortening. Drain off excess fat. Combine vinegar and cranberry sauce well and pour over meatballs; cover and cook over low heat 5 minutes, turning once. Remove balls to platter and thicken liquid with cornstarch and water. Top balls with hot sauce. Serves six.

Mrs. Ronald A. Payne, Formoso: "This is an excellent way to get rid of your green tomatoes."
GREEN TOMATO RELISH
2 quarts green tomatoes (ground)
2 teaspoons salt
½ head cabbage (ground)
½ head cauliflower (ground)
1 bunch celery (chopped)
1 pint green peppers
1 pint red peppers
2 hot peppers
2 quarts cucumber (pickled)
1 box white mustard seed

2½ cups cider vinegar
3 cups sugar
Mix tomatoes and salt. Let stand three to four hours. Squeeze out and discard water. Combine with other vegetables. Add vinegar and sugar. Heat to boiling. Simmer till done. Put in sterilized jars & seal.

To Plan A Dream Kitchen

Planning a dream kitchen? Here are a few pointers to keep in mind: (1) Know your individual work habits; (2) Remember to locate the kitchen near the service entrance and dining area; (3) Investigate local wiring, plumbing and building codes before remodeling or building; (4) Choose appliances that will adapt to the changing patterns of family activities and (5) Before actually beginning the work make a detailed plan on paper to avoid costly mistakes.

Home Heating Systems Can Match The Decor

From the interior decorator's viewpoint, the best heating system is an invisible one. At second best, he hopes for an inconspicuous one.

Most decorators suggest that with just a little planning early in remodeling or new construction, unsightly radiators and wall registers can be eliminated.

A heating specialist confirms that radiators can be hidden with covers which are functional as well as attractive. Baseboard heaters are less noticeable when furniture is positioned in a way which blocks them from view but does not impair their performance. Forced air outlets can be painted to match the walls and indirect lighting can be installed to emphasize other areas in the room.

If the house is to be heated electrically, a new electric radiant heating panel product is available for installation directly in ceilings, flush with standard ceiling materials. Panels are thermostatically controlled to heat objects in the room when the room's temperature falls below a prescribed level.

Since panels are overhead and can be painted to match the ceiling, they are seldom noticed. This also frees floor space and permits greater flexibility for furniture and drapery placement.

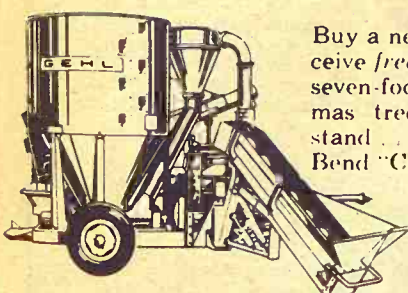

A combination of ceiling and baseboard units can also be installed to increase design and decorating flexibility.

Why Not Take A Fall Vacation Break?

Fall vacations are becoming more popular than ever with young adults and senior citizens — people who don't have to allow for the school schedule of their young children.

The reasons? An autumn holiday can be timed to take advantage of off-season prices in many sections of the country. Also, recreation and dining facilities are free of peak-season crowds.

As one example, you can spend more time touring New England's picturesque fishing villages, which have changed little in the past century.

The North Woods, from Maine to Minnesota, are for hiking and hunting in the fall, not for sunbathing. If you plan a trip to this area, you'll need sweaters and jackets to ward off the chill of evening and rainwear for mist and showers.

South of the Mason-Dixon line and in the Southwest, summer continues, despite the advancing calendar.

Since fall is an in-between season, which varies greatly in different parts of the country, it's wise to watch the weather of your destination in planning a vacation at this time of year. This will enable you to pre-select appropriate activities and wardrobe.

Travel planners will be happy to give you specific advice on tours especially designed to take advantage of the varying autumn activities in all regions of the nation. By joining a tour you can stretch your fall vacation dollars, enjoying substantial savings.

Hyacinths Now Available In More Colors

Hyacinths are most famous for their unparalleled fragrance and their perfect, symmetrical shape. Hyacinths can be planted singly or in groups of a dozen or more among evergreens or flowering shrubs. A few hyacinths added to foundation plantings around the house will give color before other material even blooms.

In addition to the white, soft pastel blue and pink colors, for which hyacinths have long been loved by gardeners, modern varieties are available in exciting strong colors. Red, deep purple, yellow and orange are examples. A few dozen hyacinth bulbs planted this fall near an entrance or window will fill the house with their sweet fragrance next spring.

Prices received by Kansas farmers at mid-September were unchanged from a month earlier and close to last year's level, according to the Kansas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service.

The all-farm products price index stood at 225 percent of the 1910-14 base, unchanged from mid-August but 1 point below a year earlier. The price of eggs increased substantially while prices received for sorghum grain, corn and soybeans were moderately lower. Prices for most livestock items were higher than a year earlier but those for major crops were lower.

Crop Prices

The crop price index was 142 percent of the 1910-14 base at mid-September, unchanged from last month but 17 points below last year.

Wheat averaged $1.18 per bushel, up 1 cent from last month but 15 cents below September last year.

Corn brought $1.00 per bushel, 7 cents below last month and 10 cents below a year ago. Sorghum Grain averaged $1.52 per bushel, a decrease of 12 cents from the previous month and 28 cents below last year.

Soybeans averaged $2.32 per bushel compared with $2.45 last month and $2.44 last year. The oat price of 71 cents and barley at 90 cents were both unchanged from August.

Alfalfa hay brought $21.00 per ton, 50 cents above the previous month and last year.

Meat Prices

The livestock and livestock products index at mid-September was 320 percent, up 1 point from last month and 17 points above a year ago.

The meat animal price index stood at 373 percent compared with 478 percent last month and 358 percent last year.

Hogs averaged $19.30 per cwt, 50 cents above last month and 40 cents above a year ago.

Steers and heifers averaged $25.10, slightly below the previous month but 20 cents above the $24.40 a year ago. Calves averaged $24.80, 10 cents below a month earlier and 20 cents below a year earlier.

Lambs, at $24.40, were 20 cents above August and $3.10 above September 1967.

Dairy & Poultry

The dairy products price index as of mid-September was 316 percent of the 1910-14 base, 20 points above the previous month and 20 points above last year. The preliminary wholesale price as of $5.30 was 20 cents above August and 40 cents above last year.

The poultry and egg price index was 134 percent, 17 points above mid-August and 22 points above a year ago. Chickens, at 6.2 cents per pound, were slightly below a month earlier and eggs, at 26.8 cents per dozen, were the highest for September since 1966.

Prices Paid

Prices paid by farmers for feed were nearly unchanged from a month earlier.

Dairy Mergers Have Clearly Paid Off

October 8, 1968

Some 1100 Kansas dairy farmers the past year have become part of the largest single farmers milk cooperative in the United States — and are better off for the move.

The Kansans, along with another 7400 dairymen from Missouri, Arkansas, Oklahoma, Texas, New Mexico, Tennessee, Nebraska and Colorado, in the past year formed Milk Producers Inc. a wholly farmer-owned milk producing processing cooperative.

This group began a series of mergers Sept. 1, 1967. By Sept. 1, 1968, some 14 cooperatives in the eight states had become a single organization — MPI.

They produce 375 million pounds of milk a month and operate 14 plants making cheese, butter, dried milk, ice cream, canned whole milk and bottled fresh milk in Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas and Tennessee.

Actual farm value of the milk they produce was reported at $23.2 million for July, 1968. About 1600 employees handled the corporation business.

The spectacular rise of this group has been such that they were accorded the honor of a personal visit from President Lyndon B. Johnson at their first annual meeting in San Antonio at the end of September.

Benefits and advancements to date listed by Tom Townsend, assistant manager of the Kansas division in Wichita, are:

- A 50 cents per hundred-weight premium Class I milk price above the government milk market order price.

- Mergers have enabled them to coordinate movement and supply of milk, assuring adequate consumer supplies and a steady demand for their produce.

- They have been able to coordinate supplies to eliminate transportation costs for marketing Class I milk.

The series of mergers began because milk cooperative leaders and managers of the area came to realize that since all dairy farmers have the same goal — to increase their net income — it could best be done by a unified effort.

"To accomplish this, they needed to be of sufficient size to bargain successfully with the large chain dairy processor organizations," Townsend said.

First move was to establish a Class I base plan which would assure the producers of a ready sale for a given amount of milk.

Dairymen were assured that they would be able to sell at least 70 per cent of their milk for the Class I price.

Over-base milk is sold as manufacturing milk to be made into cheese, butter, dried milk and other products.

At the time the mergers began last Sept. 1, there were 1800 dairymen producing 40 million pounds of Grade A and 6 million pounds of manufacturing milk in the Southwest Dairy cooperative operating in Wichita.

Earlier mergers, dating as early as the 1950s, had caused milk producers in Dodge City, Arkansas City, Hutchinson, Hays, Pratt and Salina to become a part of this organization already. The final consolidation before the big series of mergers began was that of Tip Top Dairy in Hillsboro with that in Wichita.

Milk Producers Inc. was chartered Aug. 2, 1967, ready to begin operations Sept. 1 of that year. In series the following mergers occurred. Affiliations and dates are:

- Central Arkansas Milk Producers Association, Pure Milk Producers Association of Eastern Oklahoma, South Texas Producers Association, North Texas Producers Association and Mid-Tex Milk Producers Association merged Sept. 1.

- Central Oklahoma Milk Producers Association and Southwestern Dairymen Inc. (Wichita) merged with the larger group Nov. 1.

- Central West Texas Milk Producers Inc. and Gold Star Dairy joined Dec. 1.

- South Central Texas Milk Producers Association, Inc., and Golden Spread Independent Dairymen's Association Inc. joined Jan. 1, 1968.

- Dairy Farmers Association Inc. and Gold Spot Dairy Inc. joined April 1, 1968.

Latest merger is that of Mid-South Milk Producers Inc. of Memphis, Tenn. This unit has just completed its merger with the larger group.

The mergers brought assumption by the larger organization of equities owned by the producers themselves of $21,349,703, and the MPI assumed ownership of some $42 million worth of assets in the form of equipment and plants.

Also during the year, MPI joined a federation of milk cooperatives known as Associated Dairymen, thus bringing into coordination efforts of dairy men in 15 states producing 13 billion pounds of milk annually.

Townsend said the operation really needs to be bigger, and probably after a year of stabilizing following the mergers will be enlarged through consolidation with another regional cooperative or other smaller cooperatives.

Keeping plenty of capital on hand has been a problem of many cooperatives. But MPI has come up with a method to keep themselves supplied. Each producer pays 10 cents a hundredweight into a capital fund. He also pays 5 cents a hundredweight for membership in the bargaining agency as well as owning his one share of $1 par value stock.

This capital fund is returned every five years so that the 10 cents per hundredweight is returned at the end of each five year period.

Perry Buildup Repeats Previous Kansas Lakefront Developments

In the past 20 years, Kansas land developers and realtors have found a new and lucrative marketplace, thanks to the federal government's dam builders.

Since Kanopolis Reservoir was constructed in 1948, 16 other such impoundments have sprung up along streams across what was once a parched, dry Kansas — the land of the "black blizzards" in the 30s.

Today, Kansas is a "water wonderland," to quote 75-year-old Sen. Frank Carlson, R-Kan., and the land and house merchants are making the most of the new bonanza along the shores of these new, artificial lakes.

A prime example of the new market is Perry Reservoir, situated between two of the state's largest urban areas, Topeka and Kansas City. The dam and roads are nearing completion, but there is no sign of a lake. No water is being impounded yet.

Despite that, for the past year Ben Wilson, of Oskaloosa, has been developing and selling land around the site for the Perry Development Co., Inc., which is headed up by Orrin Shepherd, a Kansas City, Kans., businessman.

Wilson is not alone selling land around the unfinished reservoir, dug out of tree-covered bluffs along the Delaware River. There are other land salesmen. But Wilson has been in the same business for 20 years and all throughout the nation.

"I've sold on reservoirs before they were finished before, that's not unusual. It's not much different than other states, the buyer knows he can count on the federal government. This is a $48 million lake," he says.

Wilson has from 1,200 to 1,500 acres of land for sale around the site, and "There's just as much buyer interest here as anywhere else I've ever sold." He says he has sold about 180 acres so far.

Wilson explains that most of his buyers are 35 to 50 years old, middle income, and out to find a "way to get away from it all."

The Perry Development Co. is now doing its own financing for the land purchases. The interest rate is 4.5 percent, with 10 percent down, and up to 60 months to pay. Lots sell from $1,800 to $7,000.

Wilson says his firm leaves the construction of the house up to the buyer. "Usually they have someone they want to build the house," he points out.

Other Kansans like John Tinch, of Lyndon, and his wife have found a worthwhile sideline in selling homes along the state's new lakes. They sell at Pomona Reservoir.

Tinch, vice president of the Lyndon State Bank, says there always is a brisk market for lakefront homes. He adds that within the past year the number of homes around Pomona has increased from 80 to nearly 100, thereby increasing the number that will eventually go on the market.

"Various categories of buyers come out here, some want to make their home out here — we're not too far from Topeka. Others want a second vacation home, and still others want to build a retirement home," he explains.

Tinch says most of the interest comes from the older, better than middle income families, and especially retired couples.

"In fact, it seems some times you see more grandchildren playing around these homes than children," he jokes.

Tinch said the prices on homes usually run all the way from $7,500 up to $40,000. He says there is no real problem at banks for buyers buying lakefront homes.

"Money has been tight at times," says the Lyndon banker, "but it isn't too bad now." Tinch says banks finance such homes usually at least 25 percent down, 15 percent terms or longer, and interest about 7.5 percent.

How The M-C Grain Dryer Works

HOW
GRAIN
WORKS

1. Wet grain supply in top holding bin. Grain is preheated before going into drying columns.
2. Grain flows by gravity into 12" thick drying columns where forced hot air — arrows with white — passes through grain. Grain is contained in the 18 gauge galvanized steel perforated sheets. Large air flow possible because of 34% open area in perforations.
3. From hot air section grain passes through cooling — where additional moisture is removed and cold air — stripe arrows — brings grain temperature down to normal. Dust and dirt blown out through perforations.
4. Adjustable metering device gives exact control of grain flow out of dryer.
5. Simple, rugged construction. The base of the M-C Grain Dryer is very rigid and is the base from which all operating parts are attached. Heavy gauge steel is used throughout the base and the grain columns themselves are made from 18 gauge galvanized sheets with reinforcing angles and bracing where needed. All parts are bolted together and any part may be replaced if necessary.

6. The burner of the M-C Grain Dryer is adapted for LP or natural gas. The burner is arranged in a circular ring placed in fan housing so that air and heat are thoroughly mixed for uniform temperature throughout drying section.
7. Fans — one 36" diameter 12 blade fan forces large volumes of hot air through the drying section. The 9 blade cooling fan powered from same shaft as the hot air fan forces air at outside temperature to cool the grain as it passes through dryer.

'Substantial Compliance' By All Counties To Reappraisal Law

TOPEKA — All of the state's 105 counties are in "substantial compliance" with the 1963 reappraisal law, the state property valuation director says.

Ronald F. Dwyer, the director, made the determination in a statement released in accordance with a statute enacted by the 1968 Kansas Legislature.

The statute set Sept. 15 as the deadline for Dwyer to make a statement on how the counties were complying with the 1963 reappraisal law.

"I, Ronald F. Dwyer, hereby certify the 105 counties of Kansas to be in substantial compliance as of this day with the requirements of law to reappraise taxable property at 30 percent of justifiable value as passed by the 1963 Kansas Legislature and signed into law at that time," Dwyer said in his official statement.

Later, Dwyer said his definition of "substantial" does not mean "completely."

However, he said, all counties are acting in good faith in attempting to carry out the law as passed by the 1963 legislature.

The property valuation director said most of the difficulties arising from the 1963 law have to do with the time of implementation of new reappraisal programs.

In several counties, taxpayer groups have filed court actions to block implementation of the new programs this year. A case filed earlier in Labette County apparently has been successful in delaying implementation until at least 1969.

"The only point at issue is the time of implementation," the former Sumner County clerk said.

Several special interest groups, including the Kansas Livestock Association, have been vocal in their opposition to values placed on pastureland in several counties.

Washington County in north central Kansas is the only county which has not initiated a reappraisal program. And that county, Dwyer said, has interviewed several firms qualified to make the appraisal and has conferred with the Property Valuation Department.

In addition, he said, Washington County rates were highest among the counties in the annual ratio study, published by the Property Valuation Department.

Under the 1968 law, Dwyer is authorized to change his list of counties in substantial compliance with the 30 per cent law.

The same law also directs Dwyer to examine reappraisal programs to see if they are "substantially equal" to those in adjoining counties.

If a substantial difference is found, the director is authorized to order the county assessor of the offending county or counties to increase or decrease the assessments to the level of surrounding counties "to make all such counties comparable to adjoining areas."

Dwyer has made no moves in this area.

We recognize there are many problems still to be solved in this area (of property reappraisal)," Dwyer said. "We intend to continue to work with local officials in implementation of the tax laws of Kansas."

NFO Convention At Salina Next Week

SALINA — The National Farmers Organization of Kansas will hold its state convention here Wednesday, October 16.

The meetings will be open, Merlin Banker, Saline county NFO chairman, said.

The NFO says it has been growing in Kansas altho membership figures aren't made public.

Included in the program will be a program by Joe Nebo, who fled Castro's Cuba and now lives in Topeka.

Nebo was granted political asylum in the United States after spending about six months in a Cuban jail for anti-Castro activities.

BEER—toast to America's economy

The brewing industry is a massive and dynamic part of the national economy. Each year it pours billions of dollars into commerce and government.

- $1.4 billion in state and federal excise taxes.
- $3 billion to employees, suppliers and distributors.
- $875 million in agricultural products and packaging materials.

The brewing industry is a proud contributor to America's prosperity.

A Case man has something extra going for him...

because Case power is usable power... high-torque power from a big bore, long stroke, big leverage engine. Reserve power that doesn't know how to quit when the going gets tough. Less downshifting, more ground worked, more production per man-hour with acre-eating outfits like this 7-bottom Case plow with new on-land hitch.

You'll like the easy-going way these big Case tractors handle the job. Whether you choose the 7-plow 1030 shown here or the 6-plow 930, you get a big-displacement engine. 451 cubic inches in the 1030, 401 in the 930. And moderate engine speeds. 2000 rpm rated speed in the 1030, 1800 in the 930 — up to 700 rpm less than some comparably powered tractors. Wouldn't you agree that a Case will last longer, require less maintenance... as well as handling those big jobs just a little easier and faster?

Case high torque tractors come in 7 sizes... 3-plow to 8 plow. It's worth a visit to your Case dealer to see and try one. He has a Case Crop-Way Purchase or Lease Plan to your liking. J. I. Case Company, Racine, Wisconsin.

Pearson, Dole Score Handling Of Meat Quotas

Two Kansas members of Congress, Sen. James B. Pearson and Rep. Robert Dole, have complained about the way Orville Freeman, secretary of agriculture, is handling the controversial issue of meat imports.

Freeman had announced that meat imports for this year would be an estimated 990 million pounds, still below the so called trigger point of 1,045,300, 000 pounds that would require the President to impose limitations. The estimate is 55 million pounds more than that made in June.

"Yet the secretary announced no import quotas would be established," Pearson said, "for the reason the law permits imports of additional 10 percent over the quota before restrictions are imposed.

"The law passed in 1964 provided it was the intent of Congress that the additional 10 percent would be permitted as a means of providing flexibility and protection to meat importers," Pearson added. "It now appears the intent of Congress once again has been circumvented. Foreign meat importers and the secretary of agriculture now are using this 10 percent figure to actually increase the quota."

Representative Dole said the latest estimate from Freeman reflects an unstable flow of meat imports.

"Erratic monthly imports are damaging to domestic market prices," Dole added. "American cattlemen deserve a fair quota system as the basis for planning and production within the industry."

Both Pearson and Dole said they favored quotas based on a quarterly instead of an annual basis, as recommended by the American National Cattlemen's association.

LARGEST CITY IN AREA IS JACKSONVILLE, FLA.

The largest city in the United States in area is now Jacksonville, Fla. The title, once contested by Los Angeles and Oklahoma City, went to the Florida city when it reached 766 square miles in a consolidation of practically all government units in Duval County. Several municipal government scandals precipitated the consolidation.

Canadians Protest Price Of Corn

Tractors rolled onto Parliament Hill last week in Ottawa, Canada, as Ontario farmers protested the collapse of corn prices. Some of the demonstrators had driven their tractors as much as 550 miles to Ottawa from southwestern Ontario.

About 70 tractors and a score of busses and trucks swarmed into the capital protesting the low-cost imports of corn from the U.S. which have pulled down Canadian prices.

First To Make Tougher Hereford ROM Standard

The first bull to make Register of Merit under the American Hereford Association's revised, tougher requirements is a 12-year-old herd bull owned by the Indian Mound Farms of New Harmony, Indiana.

The bull, 30 Prince Return, made the list which now requires a sire's progeny to earn points both in the showing and the feedlot and carcass program.

Several other bulls are close to ROM status under the new requirements.

Said AHA secretary W. T. Berry Jr., "This program is accomplishing exactly what was planned when it was conceived and announced — it is helping breeders identify the sires with the genetic capability of siring modern type steers and the program has stimulated many breeders to fit and show the progeny of their herd bulls, already proven in the feedlot and carcass test. Essentially, it is proving what we already knew . . . many Hereford bulls are capable of consistently producing modern steers and our judging standards of today advocated by the American Hereford Association are stressing the same kind of cattle in the showing."

To qualify a sire on the new ROM system:

- Sire's progeny must obtain 100 points from the showing in the traditional manner.
- Sire's progeny must obtain at least 100 points in the feedlot and carcass program; and in the carcass program —

- 1) Eight steers must qualify, and —
- 2) Each animal qualifying must accumulate a minimum of 11 points in each of three traits: weight-per-day-of-age, cutability (percent retail yield), and marbling score.

"Naw, I ain't fat, when it rains and I eat a lot of beans, I jist swell up."

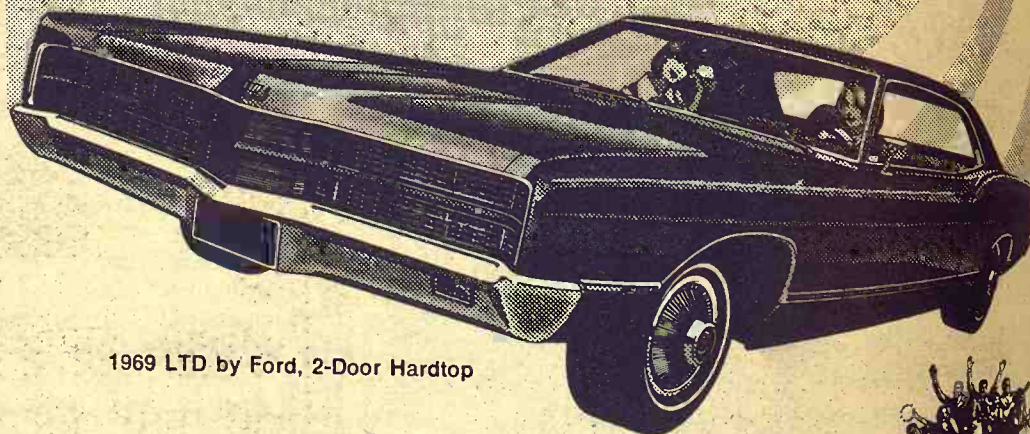

If you haven't driven a Ford lately, you're one of the reasons we built this one!

The '69 Ford is the car that's creating all the talk. You ought to know the reasons.

The '69 Ford hugs the road with a track as wide as Cadillac . . . smooths your ride with a longer wheelbase than Chevrolet. This '69 LTD is designed to ride quieter than the LTD that was quieter than Rolls-Royce. It has more front headroom, legroom and trunk space than cars costing hundreds of dollars more. Even with a longer wheelbase, it's easier to handle, easier to park.

This is a new luxury-size Ford at a very popular price. Big. Strong. Quiet. A great road car. Drive one at your Ford Dealer's now.

Fish Farming Growing But Problems Not Whipped

Advice for agriculturalists: Plant fish.

That's what more than 3600 farmers in a 10-state Southern and Midwestern area are doing, helping build a fledgling industry, which from farm through retail, yielded gross profits of $19 million in 1967.

Farmers are discovering that catfish production is a risky but lucrative business. Reduced production and labor costs result in an average profit of $280 an acre, equal to or exceeding that from cotton, rice or soybeans. A few large agribusiness concerns, including Ralston Purina Co., are eyeing the catfish processing business with increasing interest.

Currently more than 26,000 acres are under catfish cultivation with an expected 1968 production of some 36 million pounds, compared with only a few thousand pounds produced in 1963. The U.S. Bureau of Commercial Fisheries is predicting a doubling of acreage under catfish cultivation by 1969 and an annual production of 100 million pounds by 1972.

Most catfish farmers are flooding land for their ponds that formerly was used to grow soybeans or rice, says John Donahue, a fishery marketing specialist in Little Rock, Ark. A few farmers are flooding unused land that has no trees and a soil that holds water.

The explosive increase in production hasn't been translated into lower prices for catfish sold in supermarkets, largely due to a great many marketing problems. But the newly created Catfish Farmers of America, based in Little Rock, is tackling the industry's growing pains with ambitions of funneling more Federal research funds into catfish farming, boosting national catfish consumption, and eventually listing the commodity on a futures market.

Demand for pond-raised catfish has so far outstripped the supply. Catfish farmers in production can't harvest enough fish to supply even smaller chain food stores on a continuing basis. (It takes from 18 months to two years for a catfish to hatch from its egg and grow to marketable size.)

Prices offered by operators of pay-fishing lakes or customers at the farmers' pond sites are far better than those paid by frozen fish processors. Current prices for live catfish weighing one to three pounds range from 40 cents to 60 cents a pound; fish processors pay only 35 cents a pound.

As a result, more than 80% of the fish produced in 1967 were sold to pay-lake operators or to regional restaurants and live fish markets. Only a half million pounds were sold to normal food distribution centers as frozen products.

Marketing problems are compounded by the lack of quick, efficient methods of harvesting, skinning and dressing fish and an adequate system of distribution. For example, last year there were only four small processing plants equipped to handle and dress the 20 million pounds of catfish produced.

Most catfish farmers use the "drain-and-seine" method of harvesting. The ponds are partially drained, the fish are seined (caught with a large, weighted net) and manually loaded into trucks. A few farmers seine their ponds without draining them, yielding only an 80% recovery of the fish.

Fish experts speculate that within five years there will be a method of harvesting fish using electronic equipment rather than manual labor. Experiments are now underway with various methods of driving the fish into a harvesting area where it would be easier to seine or otherwise gather them.

These and other problems may be solved sooner than they would have been had not big agribusiness concerns with money to spend on research become interested in catfish farming. Ralston Purina Co., for example, is trying to hire a Bureau of Fisheries biologist to work on improving harvesting methods.

Purina also is building a fish-processing plant at McGehee, Ark., to be completed in November. Capacity of the plant will be four million to five million 12-ounce to 14-ounce fish during a nine-month harvesting season, September to May. Catfish will be purchased from local farmers, harvested by Purina and dressed automatically for sale to restaurants, hotels and institutions.

Arkansas Valley Industries, Inc., an integrated poultry concern, also is studying the cat-

Farm Bureau Won't Quit KC As Convention Site

The executive committee of the American Farm Bureau federation, the nation's largest farm organization, has voted to hold its annual convention in Kansas City from December 9 to 12 despite the city administration's official endorsement of the California grape boycott.

Some members of the 1,750,000 member organization had asked that the convention be moved to another city to protest a proclamation issued by Mayor Ilus W. Davis endorsing the boycott.

Charles B. Shuman, president of the federation, said the committee had studied the requests before making its decision.

"The committee recognized that moving the convention from Kansas City would unjustly penalize many business people for the unwise and unjustified action of Mayor Davis," Shuman said.

Shuman said that a boycott action against farmers at harvest time is an inhumane method of "coercion" since most farm products are highly perishable and farmers and ranchers have very few days in which to move the crop to market.

"Boycotts of food products could destroy the livelihood of hundreds of thousands of farm families and farm workers whose total annual income is tied up in the once-a-year harvest," Shuman said.

Shuman also decried the action of the persons attempting to unionize the California grape pickers, saying that the federation considers the boycott a dangerous threat to impose dictatorial union control over the food supply of consumers.

"Until Congress acts to prohibit strikes against farmers at harvest time, the compulsory unionization of farm workers must be challenged by every means available," Shuman said.

Several thousand members of the federation are expected to attend the December convention in Kansas City.

Machinery Makers Gunshy After '68 Profit Lag

Stockbrokers, who haven't had a good word for farm equipment makers for a couple of years, are beginning to recommend the issues of some companies.

That's encouraging to some of the implement makers who hope for a comeback in 1969 after a year of sagging sales and profits.

But farm equipment executives themselves are cautious, judging from reactions at the recent annual meeting at Atlanta of the Farm and Industrial Equipment Institute, a trade group.

There, executives seemed to feel that they might do well to keep pace with this year's disappointing volume. Many of them think that it was overly optimistic outlooks in late 1966 and early 1967 that got the industry into its present predicament.

A combination of bad weather, falling crop prices and rising interest rates and other costs caused many farmers to hold off on planned equipment purchases in 1967 and 1968.

As a result, farm machinery began piling up in dealers' lots and in the distribution pipelines, and before executives could turn off the flow from the factories the glut caused a severe profit drain in inventory tieups.

By the end of this month, which for most manufacturers is the end of fiscal 1968, the inventory surplus is expected to be worked down to normal levels.

To do this, equipment makers have had to slash production — some are running their factories at 60% to 70% of capacity and others have closed a few plants entirely — while dealers unloaded the inventory pileup. Meanwhile, much higher labor costs, coupled with lengthy strikes for two manufacturers, and climbing materials expenses deeply eroded profits.

Executives concede the worst is behind them now, but most are still gunshy about even a mildly bright outlook.

Falling farm prices, especially for corn, wheat and soybeans, are mainly blamed by most executives for their hold-the-line forecasts.

But some officials think the bumper crops expected this fall will partly compensate for lower prices. In addition, "we think gross and net farm income will improve moderately for 1969," says Emery Dearborn of Ford Motor Co.'s tractor operations.

Dearborn and L. W. Davis, farm equipment vice president of Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing Co., are two executives who predict an industry sales increase next year of about 5%.

Their view is shared by some brokerage house analysts who follow the industry closely. Of course, some of this gain will simply deflect price increases on the 1969 lines; industry sources say new model prices will be raised an average of 4%.

There are several indications that the industry will improve its profit performance far more than its sales.

For one thing, profits were hurt considerably this year and in 1967 by manufacturers' juggling production schedules several times to find a level that wouldn't hamper the inventory cleanout.

This year, says Harvester's Burnside, "Manufacturers are gearing their production to retail demand and output will be on a much more stable basis than it has been in 1968."

That's important, explains Ford's Dearborn, because "if you can gear your cost base to one certain level, then profits go up much more rapidly."

Some manufacturers are re-vamping operations to further utilize this principle. For instance, Allis-Chalmers by Dec. 1 will complete a $2.5 million expansion of its West Allis, Wis. tractor plant that includes re-designing the assembly operation to maintain a steadier flow of production.

Foreign operations also are expected to bolster 1968 results. "Overseas sales have been improving for the last six months," says Ellsworth F. Curtis, president of Deere & Co., "and we expect gains next year in the various countries of 5% to 20%." (Deere's foreign operations still will have an overall loss in fiscal 1967, says William A. Hewitt, chairman, "but it will be substantially less than in fiscal 1967.")

Massey-Ferguson Ltd. predicts a world-wide sales increase of 7% to 12% for the next three years and John G. Staiger, group vice president, expects a dramatic resurgence in Brazil, with steady growth in most European markets and Australia.

Finally, the equipment makers are trying to lessen their dependency on the still-cyclical farm machinery markets by beefing up their stake in industrial equipment, mainly light-to-medium construction lines.

Massey Ferguson greatly expanded its line of industrial machinery this year, and other farm equipment makers have been steadily adding to theirs. Case has done this to such an extent that next year industrial equipment will account for half its volume of more than $350 million.

construction equipment market seems on the verge of working its way out of a two-year depression. So far this year, for example, unit sales of industrial tractors are 8% ahead of a year ago.

Security analysts generally believe all these factors indicate better performance ahead for farm equipment companies than the executives are willing to predict.

Morton D. Silverman, director of institutional research for Piper, Jaffray & Hopwood, Minneapolis, is telling customers to start watching the group carefully. He offers these estimates of fiscal 1968 and fiscal 1969 per-share earnings to indicate the sharp turnaround he thinks the companies are capable of:

	Estimated Earnings	1968	1969
Allis-Chalmers	$0.75	$1.50
J. I. Case	$0.30	$1.50
Deere	$2.70	$5.00
Harvester	$2.25	$3.00
Massey-Ferguson	$1.00	$2.00

Executives who hear these and other bullish brokerage house estimates smile wistfully and decline comment. Privately, they agree such gains are possible, but only with a few breaks and rigorous management.

Next year will be "a highly competitive market," says Staiger of Massey-Ferguson, adding that he thinks some equipment makers "will still be paying in 1969 for their mistakes in 1968."

COW HERD

Feed 1-3 lbs. Dehy alfalfa pellets to beef cows 90 days prior to calving and during lactation.

FINISHING PROGRAM

Feed 2-3 lbs. Dehy alfalfa pellets to supplement average grains and roughages of unknown qualities.

WINTERING CATTLE

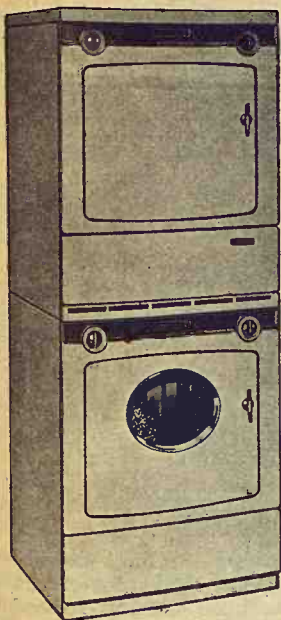

Feed 1-2 lbs. Dehy alfalfa pellets as quality of forage drops and as wheat and rye pasture freezes down.

WE ARE MOVING

It's true — after nine years in the same old spot we are moving, to 201 West Pacific.

WE NEED YOUR HELP

We are going to make it easy for you to help us. We will sell our inventory at greatly reduced prices, some for cost and even less.

Here are a few of the many items:
New Case 2-row forage harvest-er
26½" Case field cultivator
170 bu. Case manure spreader
T-10 Case trail type mower
4-row Case cultivator
392 Case manure loader
1200 Case tractor; we will give extra long trade on it.
155 Case garden tractors
831C Case with cab

We're going to take some out of the cold at a big saving on this. We have all sizes of tractors and plows, tandem disks, so come over and save, save, save.

All the above are new; none is shopworn but it costs money to move, and we'll have to do our best.

This sale will continue till
Nov. 1 or up to the time we get moved sometime in November. We will also give extra long deals on our used inventory.

Coming Conflict On Truck Weights

Truck operators and private car owners are moving toward a head-on collision in the House of Representatives one day soon. They are caught up in one more battle over truck load limits, but this fight rises above the familiar statehouse level: The pending struggle directly involves the entire interstate system and indirectly involves connecting roads throughout the nation. Considering the magnitude of the issue, the bill that now awaits action in the House has drawn remarkably little attention. At the state level, a legislative proposal to increase truck limits will arouse incredible passions; the fellow who sponsors a bill to raise the axle load might as well sponsor a bill to legalize abortions. Feelings run high.

Present law, dating from 1956, fixes maximum load and width limits for trucks operating on the interstate system. Subject to these limits, the individual states are free to enact whatever laws they please. The pending bill would increase the permissible single-axle weight from 18,000 to 20,000 pounds. The over-all gross weight limit is now 73,280 pounds; the pending bill would permit gross weights, depending upon the number and spacing of axles, of 105,500 pounds or more. Finally, the bill would increase maximum truck width from 96 inches to 102 inches, plus.

Evidence is in hopeless conflict on a major question of the damage that would be done to bridges and road surfaces by reason of the higher weights. The truckers insist stoutly that no significant damage would be done. Opponents scoff at this position.

Some persons believe that if the bill is enacted, the next few

'If You Won't Quit Smoking, Try These Tips On Cutting Down'

Conceding that millions aren't going to stop smoking, the government for the first time has issued guidelines to help cigarette users lessen the perils that officials see in their habit.

A pamphlet entitled "If You Must Smoke" was issued by the U.S. Public Health Service in behalf of its National Clearinghouse for Smoking and Health.

While the pamphlet addresses itself mainly to those who continue smoking, it reports that about 1.5 million Americans give up the habit each year and insists "anything short of quitting is a compromise."

But it acknowledges that tens of millions of Americans are either unwilling or unable to give up the habit. For them, it offers five suggestions:

- Choose a cigarette with less tar and nicotine.
- Don't smoke your cigarette all the way down
- Take fewer draws on each cigarette.
- Reduce your inhaling.
- Smoke fewer cigarettes each day.

Most of the efforts by the National Clearinghouse for Smoking and Health have been aimed at getting people to quit smoking. A spokesman for the unit said: "This is the first time we have publicly, in this way, tried to get people to cut down."

The pamphlet advises smokers to check their brand of cigarettes for the level of tar and nicotine, listed by the Federal Trade Commission.

The pamphlet says people who switch to brands with lower tar and nicotine levels usually don't smoke more and sometimes smoke less than before.

Most of the tar and nicotine is in the last few puffs of any cigarette, the pamphlet reports, and it says of the new, longer length cigarettes: "Their 'extra puffs' are really extra perils for you."

Would Like Grain Reports

I surely enjoy Grass & Grain and the complete livestock reports. I would like to see a cash grain report of Kansas City markets and grain received at market and more news on grain exports and government storage. Several farmers have talked about a report of grain. I hope Grass & Grain will find it possible to make a grain report.

Warranty Cutback Adds To Cost Of New Car

The Federal Trade Commission estimates the auto industry may be saving $300 million this year by cutting back on car warranties.

Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., chairman of the Senate Commerce Committee, made public a letter from FTC Chairman Rand Dixon giving the estimates.

Magnuson in a letter called the FTC letter "deeply disturbing."

He noted that the commission's estimate was that the manufacturers would save $40 per car through the warranty reductions.

The senator said that large auto industry profits in recent years made it clear the "manufacturers could have afforded to hold the price line" on their 1969 models.

"Instead, however, the announced price increase for each company's new cars averages about $50 per car," he said.

"And when the undisclosed price increase represented by the decrease in warranty coverage is included, the manufacturers true price hike, averaging an estimated $90 for each 1969 automobile, reveals — at best — an unfortunate insensitivity to the public interest."

Dixon wrote that his agency's estimates on the warranty savings to the industry were only preliminary, but might be an understatement.

"The cost to manufacturer for warranty service work is considerably less than dealers would charge the public for non-warranty work," he wrote.

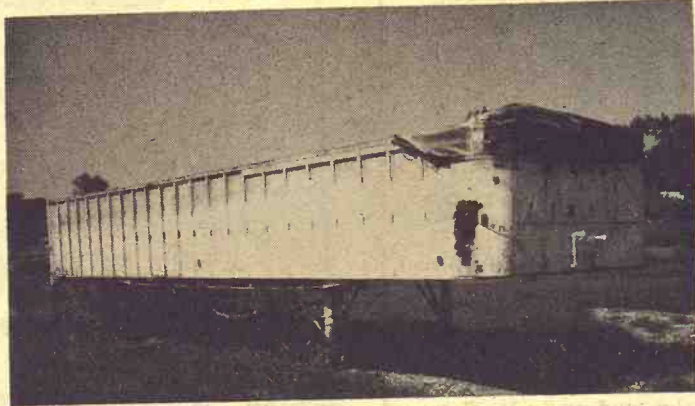

"All dealers charge a higher markup on parts and most make higher labor charges for non-warranty work."

Magnuson said these facts made it likely that, "while the manufacturer will save $40 per car by reducing its warranty coverage, the consumer will be confronted with increased maintenance costs, ranging from $46 to $80, on the new car which he buys this year."

LAWRENCE TO TRY WHEEL TAX AGAIN

LAWRENCE — For the second time in two years Lawrence will vote on a special car tax. The proposal is an assessment of $10 a car in the city. The previous vote in August 1967 was defeated 4500 to 1800. The proposed tax would be applied to cars of students at the University of Kansas, who generally oppose the tax.

Population - Food Supply Symposium To Draw International Experts

An international symposium on world population and food supply will be held at Kansas State University, Manhattan, December 3-4.

The two-day seminar, which is to be an annual affair, honors the state's senior United States Senator, Frank Carlson, according to a joint announcement by President James A. McCain and former U.S. Senator Harry Darby.

Senator Darby will serve as chairman of a national committee of leaders in industry, agriculture and government who will serve as symposium sponsors.

"This symposium will bring together leading authorities to discuss and seek solutions for what is probably the major problem of our time, the threat of widespread famine," McCain and Darby said. They added that experts on food production and population control from developing countries in Asia, Africa and Latin America would be invited to the symposium, along with specialists from this country.

President McCain and Senator Darby described the symposium as "an eminently appropriate means" of honoring Senator Carlson, a K-State alumnus. They called attention to his long career as a statesman with distinguished service in international affairs, especially in the fields of world agriculture and economic development; as a ranking Republican member of the Senate Foreign Affairs Committee; as President Kennedy's appointee to the Kennedy-Round tariff negotiations in Geneva; and as Senate delegate to the 19th General Assembly of the United Nations.

McCain and Darby, in their announcement, pointed out that Kansas State University has a combination of resources for sponsorship of an international symposium on world population and food supply which probably is unmatched. They mentioned the KSU Food and Feed Grain Institute with an annual research budget of more than $2 million, a newly established Population Research Laboratory, the University's location in the heart of America's wheat producing area and a three and a half million dollar Federal Grain Marketing Research Center to be constructed on campus.

Distinguished citizens who have accepted Senator Darby's invitation to serve as sponsors for the Senator Frank Carlson Symposium on World Population and Food Supply include Dr. Aaron M. Altschul, Washington, D.C.; Lowell Andreas, Minneapolis, Minn.; Harrison S. Brown, Pasadena, Calif.; Norman Cousins, New York City; James H. Dean, Hutchinson; H. Hal Dean, St. Louis, Mo.; Gov. Fall Fertilizing Worth Considering

In Kansas and surrounding states, fall application of nutrients for both wheat and row crops is gaining in popularity and for good reason, says Dr. Larry Murphy, research agronomist at Kansas State University.

Combined with the acceptable agronomic features of such a practice is the added benefit of spreading of the heavy spring workload to the late fall months. Getting the required nutrients on and plowed down in the fall also tends to overcome the competition for fertilizer application equipment during the spring rush.

Broadcast and plowed down applications of nitrogen, phosphorus, potassium and zinc may result in better placement of these nutrients than when they are applied to the surface and disced in, Murphy says. Generally speaking, deeper placement of these nutrients in the soil will tend to overcome the phenomenon of "positional unavailability." Positional unavailability occurs when nutrients are located in soil that is too dry for roots to be active. This most often is the surface 3 to 4 inches of the soil.

Fall applications of nitrogen are acceptable for both wheat and row crops in Kansas. This practice should, however, be restricted to soils that are not subject to excessive leaching, Murphy advises.

The ammonium form of nitrogen, such as that found in anhydrous ammonia, urea or ammonium phosphates, is least subject to leaching but is readily converted to the leachable nitrate form by soil bacteria when the soil temperature is above 50° F. By the time row crops are ready for nitrogen in the spring, bacterial action in the warm spring soil will have converted all nitrogen to the nitrate form regardless of the form in which it was applied.

There is no superior time and/or method of nitrogen application for all situations in Kansas. Summarized results of wheat investigations conducted in south central and northwestern Kansas show that fall applications of nitrogen prior to planting of winter wheat produced acceptable yield increases more consistently than did comparable spring applications.

In many other areas, applications of nitrogen in the fall and the spring were essentially equal in their effects on wheat yields. Studies of time of nitrogen application for corn conducted at Manhattan and Powhattan with irrigated and dry-land corn indicate little if any difference between fall and spring applied nitrogen on yield.

Questions concerning differences between band and broadcast application of phosphorus often arise. Band placement of phosphorus is probably best for very low rates of application, particularly on acid soils, the K-State agronomist indicates. When rates higher than 30 pounds per acre of P₂O₅ are recommended, the application should either be split between broadcast and band or all broadcast.

Studies conducted by the Department of Agronomy have shown few differences between broadcast and band applications of moderate to high rates of phosphorus for irrigated corn except when zinc was limiting. Where the soil is low in zinc, banded applications of phosphorus may create even more sufficient zinc deficiencies by causing a phosphorus-zinc imbalance within the plant.

Current recommendations for the application of potassium and zinc suggest that these materials may be applied efficiently in a broadcast application. Research results show no benefit of banded zinc at planting over comparable broadcast applications.

"Now is the time to be thinking of fall applications for your 1969 crops," Murphy says. "Remember that you may make considerable savings in time by spreading that spring workload into the fall. Some of the greatest returns to fall applications of nutrients for row crops may arise from more timely planting operations in the spring."

No Local Hearing On Haskell ASC

Rep. Bob Dole, R-Kan., says a request for a hearing in Sublette, Kans., to review the removal from office of Haskell County's three-member Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee has been denied.

Dole said he was "not satisfied with this decision and will pursue further to have the review Sublette."

Dole said that in reply to a letter of Sept. 17 he received from Ray Fitzgerald, deputy administrator of state county operations, ASCS, Department of Agriculture, which said:

"A hearing by the state ASC committee has already been held in Kansas on the case. The regulations allow persons removed from office the opportunity to have their cases reviewed by this office. Such reviews, however, are made here in Washington D.C. The persons involved may present their case either in writing, or personal appearance, or both.

"The purpose of the review by this office is to ascertain whether or not the removed officers were given a complete review of the case by the state committee in accordance with the regulations and that such determination by the state committee was supported by the facts developed in the review. It would be administratively impractical for the office to travel to the field to conduct such a review.

"We have advised the removed Haskell County ASC committee members that we have reserved the date of Oct. 15, 1968, for a personal appearance here in Washington if they so desire. This date is not convenient for them but they would like a personal appearance on some other date, we have asked for their preference and two alternative dates."

The Haskell County committee was removed from office in August allegedly, ASC officials said, "for impeding the effectiveness of the program administered in the county."

Tomato Growers Set K-State Meeting Oct. 29

A comparison of hydroponic and soil culture for growing to- matoes under glass will high- light the third annual Kansas Greenhouse Tomato Growers Conference October 29 at the Kansas State University Union.

Dr. Robert O'Keefe, professor of horticulture and forestry at the University of Nebraska, will discuss his research on the methods of greenhouse tomato culture.

O'Keefe also will tell how in- dividual greenhouse tomato va- rieties respond to the culture methods.

The day-long program also features talks on insect and dis- ease control by Dell Gates, Ex- tension entomologist, and Claude King, Extension plant pathologist at K-State.

Other speakers include Dr. J. K. Greig, professor of horti- culture and forestry, who will discuss production practices, and Dr. William Willis, Exten- sion plant pathologist, who will

Crop Trouble Again In India

India's Food minister, Jagji-van Ram, says that uneven monsoon rains have resulted in serious drought conditions in six of the country's 17 states.

After discussions on the uncertain crop outlook with the chief ministers of the states, Ram listed Andhra, Mysore, Rajauthan, Gujarat, Madras and Hariana as the states now causing the greatest concern to the government.

He refused to commit himself to any estimate of the crop loss, but officials in his ministry privately conceded that they have given up hope for the gain of 7 million tons in food production in the coming year that they were confidently forecasting a few weeks ago.

For the first time in a year, officials again preoccupied with questions of food aid from the U.S., a tacit admission that their much-praised "agricultural revolution" has been slowed down by forces beyond control.

In July, they were so confident of rising trends in food production that they issued a postage stamp to mark the "breakthrough."

Last year, after one of the best monsoon seasons in many years, India chalked up an officially estimated production in foodgrains of 95.6 million tons. Most experts believe that the rice-surplus states deliberately underestimated their gains and that the total output was actually closer to 100 million tons.

According to the official estimate, 63 million tons were produced in the kharif crop, which is harvested at the end of the monsoon season. Officials here were counting on bettering that crop by at least 2 million tons this year.

Further gains in the winter crop, they hoped, would have brought them the projected increase of 7 million tons. At that rate, they calculated, India could be producing 120 million tons by 1971, more than enough for self-sufficiency.

Agricultural experts say that impressive gains in the modernization of farming techniques through the use of improved

30 Grass & Grain
October 8, 1968

seeds and fertilizer are continuing. But the spotty rain pattern of the last few weeks has reminded everyone that technology has a long way to go before self-sufficiency in India can be assured.

Poultrymen Meet At Wichita October 30-31

Kansas Poultry Association will hold its 34th annual convention in Wichita October 30 and 31.

The convention will give opportunity for meetings of Kansas Turkey Federation, hatcherymen, allied industry representatives, and poultry and egg producers of the state.

Meetings will provide a forum for producers to pose questions and learn from guest specialists in educational sessions. And there will also be turkey and egg shows and contests.

"We want producers to participate in discussion of problems that are present all over the country," M. E. Jackson, Extension poultryman at Kansas State University and secretary of KPA, said this week.

Special sessions designed to meet the interests of those attending include a presentation on "Servicemen's Dilemma," a panel discussion of problems and how they are solved by the industry and educational specialists.

J. W. Reece, Topeka, The Fleming Co., will present views on "Believe It Or Not, The Middle Man IS Your Partner," and KSU specialists and industry representatives will discuss "Using Egg Futures In Your Business."

Orvel Cockrel, Mt. Morris, Illinois, vice president and publishing director of Watt Publishing Co., will keynote the convention at a luncheon the first day and will be toastmaster of the banquet the final evening of the event.

Expected attendance for the convention is set at 500 to 600 people.

Sale Every Monday

Starts 1:00 p.m.

This week found most of the farmers in the field working — our run was smaller with 550 head being offered. Most classes were stocker fed yearling steers, which sold fairly active and 25¢ lower. Heavier feeder steers sold active and fully steady. All other classes were few in numbers but all selling easy to a smaller number of buyers. All calves sold steady; cows possibly 25¢ lower.

We look for more stockers next week and some feeder cattle. The big "if" depends on field activity and the weather.

FHA Wants To Sell Many Houses In Salina Subdivision

SALINA — A pilot project to dispose of vacant houses which have reverted to the Federal Housing Administration is scheduled for Salina, Jack Pattie, Topeka, FHA property disposition officer, has announced.

Twenty-five houses in the Indian Village subdivision in southwest Salina will be sold by sealed bids, which will be opened at 1 p.m. Oct. 23 in the FHA Topeka office.

The houses must be moved outside a 10-mile radius of Salina. The package bid includes all 25 dwellings and the lots upon which they sit.

Pattie said the government is paying an average of $200 annually in special assessments and taxes on 580 homes it owns in Salina. All but 100 are located in Indian Village.

The houses were built by private developers with FHA financing as a part of a crash program during the Korean War to house families at Schilling Air Force Base at Salina. The Air Force later developed its own Capehart housing complexes at Schilling and the developers started turning back Indian Village deeds to the FHA.

Closure of Schilling in 1965 speeded the process and made FHA the major landlord in Indian Village, according to Pattie. The FHA acquired, refurbished and sold 1700 properties since Schilling closed.

Pattie said several developers have expressed interest in purchasing Indian Village homes and moving them to Kansas reservoirs such as Milford near Junction City for use as lakeside cottages.

At least 70 of the 485 FHA-owned homes in Indian Village will be sold for removal if the pilot project is successful. Deeds to the lots would be transferred to the purchaser when the area is cleared.

Salina zoning regulations for Indian Village specify residential use for the lots.

"The 25 houses offered for sale are the smallest and least desirable," said Pattie. They are well constructed but they are small and all but one of them are on concrete slabs.

"Financing such construction wasn't a question in 1952, when the homes were the issue. They the homes were built. Providing served the purpose," he added.

FHA officials want to be relieved of the burden of maintaining the properties and tax load they have caused.

"We want to take them out of the Salina market," Pattie said. "There are plenty of homes in this range here."

The Capehart housing complex — Schilling Manor — was turned over to the Army which rents the housing to the Army which rents the housing to wives of servicemen serving in Vietnam and other overseas assignments prohibiting families to accompany their sponsors.

Schilling Manor is operated as a subpost of Fort Riley.

SALINA GROCERY SOLD TO FALLEY GROUP

SALINA — The Ashton Bros. grocery here has been merged into Falleys Inc. of Topeka. The Salina store will retain its Ashton name and Leon and Merle Ashton will continue to be active in it. Falleys, a corporation of which Lou Falley is president, operates seven stores in Topeka, besides a farm where meat animals are produced, central meat plant and a central bakery.

Total livestock receipts were considerably higher than last week due to the light rain. We had a lot of farmers on the scene. The pig market was steady with not too many pigs offered. The cattle market was active in all classes. Feeder steers were steady. There was a good demand on feeder heifers which sold on a higher market. Light steer calves were higher. Butcher cows were steady with last week.

If you have livestock to sell, please contact us at any time. The Superior Livestock Commission Company is your best hog and cattle market.

Lives In Same House 90 Years

LINDSBORG — A retired farmer, Carl S. Frantz, has lived in the same house southwest of here for 90 years. The house was built by Frantz's father, a Swedish immigrant in the early 1870s and Frantz was born in it, raised in it, and he and his wife Tekla raised five children in it. The Frantzes have been married for 55 years.

LIVESTOCK COMMISSION COMPANY

St. Marys, Kans.

CERTIFIED MARKET

Central Kansas Most Modern Livestock Auction... West Side Of Salina

TWO SALES EVERY WEEK

Hogs & Cattle

Hogs sell at 11:00 a.m. followed by our regular cattle sale as they are unloaded.

THURSDAY

Cattle Only

Selling starts at 11:00 a.m. Cattle will sell in the order they are consigned on the books.

3220 cattle and 438 hogs sold through the market the past week. Feeder steers and heifers looked 50 cents higher; the calf market was very active, and the fat hog top was $18.55.

The three sales again this week will be on:

Monday, Oct. 7 — Regular Cattle & Hog Sale

Wednesday, Oct. 9 — Kansas Shorthorn Commercial Sale (except 1500 head)

Thursday, Oct. 10 — Regular Stocker & Feeder Sale

Our next special Calf and Yearling Sale will be held Friday, Oct. 25; get your calves and yearlings consigned now.
