"—In wisdom and in stature—"

June is 4-H Appreciation Month, a particularly appropriate time to feature those many people and companies who have made their pragmatic concern known by supporting the 4-H educational program financially. Once in awhile, a reverse note of appreciation occurs. The letter from "Randy" Randolph is such a sincere, warm compliment to you leaders and extension agents out across Kansas that we have chosen to feature it as the June editorial—especially appropriate for 4-H Donor Appreciation Month. This month we will invite in as our guests the great states of Iowa, Virginia, Oklahoma, and Texas, included along with Kansas in the following letter from Moorman Manufacturing Company in Quincy, Illinois.

Glenn M. Busset
State Leader, 4-H and Youth

Dr. Glenn M. Busset, Kansas
Mr. C. J. Gauger, Iowa
Dr. Donald L. Stormer, Texas
Mr. Jack M. Tyree, Virginia
Dr. Eugene Williams, Oklahoma

Congratulations!

You are in my humble opinion in a class all by yourselves . . . not a class of unwashed . . . a class of undesirables . . . a class of oddballs . . . but in an old-fashioned class.

Somewhere along the line you and your colleagues and all the folks with whom you work in 4-H have instilled in your 4-H'ers that it's kinda nice and the sponsors appreciate it . . . at least those who live out in the boondocks like we do . . . when people say "thank you".

Yes, you five men representing the states of Iowa, Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas, and Virginia have for the past five years consistently had at least a minimum of ten youngsters write to Moorman's and say thank you for a county medal. And, I think, that's tremendous . . . for I, too, am old-fashioned, and I, too, have tried to instill in the Randolph girls that people appreciate appreciation.

So I wanted to take a minute or two and maybe brighten up a little bit of your day to tell you that we're extremely proud of you fellows. Hope you'll pass along to the folks who've helped to make this sort of thing possible . . . and I suspect that's going to get right back down to Moms and Pops . . . the appreciation of the Moorman Manufacturing Company.

Be seeing you.

Sincerely,

O. W. Randolph, Manager,
Public Relations.

About the cover

"A New Day, A New Way" is the theme for 4-H work this year, and particularly for Round-up, an event in early June which brings, together with the Kansas Invitational Conference, perhaps a thousand young people to the campus of Kansas State University in Manhattan.

Round-up offers about 80 classes in a wide variety of subjects, including music, science, career information, personal relations, and many more. Each individual makes up his own schedule, choosing the courses of greatest interest to him.

A special thanks goes in this issue to all the persons and organizations who, by their support of 4-H work, help to bring about a new day, a new way.

Meet the 4-H agents—

Presenting

Eldon Clawson

President of the Kansas Association of Extension 4-H Agents is Eldon Clawson, Shawnee County, who has been in extension work for eight years, 2½ years in Marshall County and 5½ years in Shawnee County. He grew up in Leavenworth County and went to Linwood High School, was graduated from Kansas State University, and attended Kansas University one year. Mr. Clawson and his wife Patty have a daughter Casie.

With a background in agriculture and an interest in young people, Mr. Clawson decided to combine these interests in extension youth work.

"My interests now are not so much with the youth," Mr. Clawson writes, "but rather with their parents and how their activities affect their children."

Mr. Clawson answered these questions for Kansas 4-H Journal:

Q. Tell about the 4-H program in Shawnee County.

A. "... there are continuous numbers of parents that are wanting their children to take part in 4-H programs and we just have a hard time finding a place to put all of the kids. Right now, we have upwards of 800 boys and girls enrolled in community clubs in Shawnee County. This represents the highest enrollment in ten years. Each year enrollment keeps going up by about 25 boys and girls.

"The strength of our program is at the local level with good, active members involved in things that they want to do, and with strong, active leadership from interested parents and community volunteers.

"Our 4-H program in Shawnee County is diversified. We have rural interests, many suburban interests, and an urban interest also. Our enrollment stands at two-thirds urban and suburban, and one-third that live on the farm. Therefore, it's real difficult to plan county programs that can help all the boys and girls in the county. Therefore, we place a strong emphasis on the community club in having good adequate leadership for each of the projects where youth are enrolled. This might be somewhat different from other counties with less leadership available. But we have leadership; it's just a matter of getting them contacted. The agent's role is that of a county administrator and trainer of leaders, all based on the interests and needs of the youth."

Q. What do you think is the value of 4-H?

A. 4-H is not any different from any other educational organization, in that you get out of it what you put into it. But 4-H can give

Reaching retarded youth with 4-H

I recognize my 4-H junior leadership project members as teachers and young adults who can carry out trenchant and well planned subject matter lessons. Youth relate to youth more readily than youth to adults. Guided with this basic philosophy of youth tutoring youth, I have selected 25 teenage youth from our 4-H leadership project enrollment to assist in a pilot program of retarded youth education through 4-H. The junior leaders were asked to complete an application, detailed to the point that character references were required, before consideration as a tutor.

Personal interests and social background of the youth were studied to match as close as possible the individual character of the retarded child each was assigned to. This matching of two differently functioning minds was an important step in insuring the success of the program. Improper selection of youth would most certainly sunder their relationship. The youth work on a close relationship primarily on a one to one or one to two basis, depending on the mental aptitude of the retarded child.

This interaction involves the retarded youth both emotionally and socially with a normal individual, and also draws the child closer to a realization of what life would be like out of immediate parental call.

The youth enroll in standard 4-H projects. These projects are tailored by an administrative supervisor to fit the child's abilities.

The supervisor, Mrs. Suzie Bush from Paola, devotes her time to working with the tutors in problems solving the overall subject matter planning and evaluation.

Beyond the close relationship of the tutors and the tutees is the association they receive from each other as a group in a 4-H club, singing and having fun, learning the 4-H pledge, and just knowing real live teenagers.

To stimulate social interaction, we have set up a program of therapy in a horticulture situation similar to the new horticulture therapy curriculum at Kansas State University. These youth will be together working with and learning from plants. Horticulture therapy will give the youth that very special reward that is so necessary to their development. It may be a flower, a radish, or even a bug-eaten squash, but it's theirs, they grew it, and it's the greatest thing in the world.

The Lakemary Pioneers 4-H Club for retarded children is in its first year. Next fall Dr. Glenn Busset will issue them their charter and it will be a proud day for them, for me, and for their parents who, until Lakemary Pioneers 4-H Club came about, had little hope of any out-of-school or social education for their youth. They're proud of their club; they want other people to know about it so other youth like theirs can join 4-H and enjoy their childhood as do normal children.

We at the Miami County Extension Office are proud to be a part of their joy and excitement. You could do the same for the retarded youth in your county.

you more opportunities to put things into it than other organizations. We are very flexible. We can allow for people with all kinds of interests and needs to group themselves together, which gives a tremendous strength and value. We do not have set guidelines and rules. We can stretch to help individuals with their own particular needs, not needs of the organization. However, they might be very similar."

Q. How can 4-H be improved?

A. "I think we continually have to be aware of the changes in our surroundings, the changes in society, the changes in people, the kinds of things they do, and the kinds of growing interests. We can improve our program if we are continually aware of what the changes are that are going on around us. We can be more aware by listening to people, listen to what they say their needs are, listen to what boys and girls want to do, and what they want to take part in, kinds of structures that they want to become part of.

"If we listen to these, become sensitive and help design learning opportunities to meet these needs, we can improve our program. If we can provide opportunities for this to happen, we can improve our program and continue to deliver a youth program through extension to the people of Kansas."

Q. Have you any advice for 4-H members, parents and leaders?

A. "Get to know each other. Members, parents, and leaders alike, get to know each other well. Parents should become leaders if there is an opportunity. This will help the family grow.

"Think of our program as one that can be changed to better fit needs of people. Each person is important. We can program to help everyone. This will make for a better program in the future."

SAFETY DEPARTMENT

MANHATTAN

By Jan Range Kelly
1972 National Safety Winner

Did you know that one out of every three families will see one of their own killed or injured in a traffic accident? Statistics prove this hard cold fact of life. But no one knows who it will be—a child, the mother, or father.

Through my study of safety, I have found that no matter how many new safety features we get installed in our cars and how good the road conditions are, it won't make a difference unless one other factor is improved. That is the driver and his attitude. The driver must be made to realize that the highway rules were made for his protection, not to be broken!

Many accidents would probably be avoided if some people didn't think they were better than average drivers. The best way people can prevent accidents is to take a good look at themselves and their own driving habits. One has to realize that the effectiveness of safety measures is in the driver, not the car. If everyone would take an active interest in accident prevention and try to do his part perhaps accidents could be cut in half. But everyone doesn't and won't take an interest in safety, so the best and wisest thing to do is drive defensively.

Perhaps to drive as if every other person on the highway is an idiot is putting it a little strongly, but it is a precautionary measure. One never knows what the other driver will do, whether he will make a wise or poor choice of movements with his car, so be on the lookout! The secret of expert driving is not just knowing how to drive defensively but doing it everytime.

Become a defensive driver

Editor's note: Jan Range, a national winner in the safety project in 1972, wrote this article about highway safety for the Kansas 4-H Journal. A graduate of Weaver Airline Personnel School, Jan was married in May, and now lives in South Carolina where her husband is taking medical laboratory training. Jan was a member of Derby 4-H Club, Sedgwick County. She is pictured with her $1,000 scholarship certificate. The scholarship was given by General Motors.

Experts drive defensively all of the time. So take care and become a defensive driver, one who keeps all of these important points in mind.

1. Alertness—Keep your mind on the driving job.
2. Foresight—Plan ahead and see ahead.
3. Knowledge—Know what causes accidents and how to prevent them.
4. Judgment—Be able to decide on the correct thing to do in every situation.
5. Smooth operation.

If everyone practiced safety we could prevent many of these painful accidents which bring tragedy to our lives. Safety is definitely a matter of life or death!

If you have an accident— Here's what to do

Crunch! Thud! Bang!

That's the sound of your car (or your parent's car) hitting something—and you're driving! You haven't been a driver very long, and you freeze as you think, "Golly! What should I do?"

First, STOP! Pull out of traffic lanes and stop as quickly as you safely can.

Second, see if anyone is hurt. If anyone is, try to help him. If the injury appears to be serious, flag a car and ask the passengers to call an ambulance. You stay with the patient till help comes. If he's bleeding very much, put pressure with your hand on the wound. Keep him warm and lying down and don't move him unless necessary.

Third, if the only damage is to cars or other property, be thankful! If damage appears to be more than $100, call the nearest sheriff, police, or highway patrol office.

Fourth, if another driver is involved, write down his car license number, as well as his name, address, and driver's license number. Give him the same information about yourself. But don't talk about what caused the accident.

Fifth, go to the police station or highway patrol or sheriff's office for an accident report form if the accident caused death, injury, or more than $100 property damage. Fill out the form and return it within 15 days of the accident to the Motor Vehicle Department, State Office Building, Topeka, Kansas 66612.

Sixth, the day of the accident or the following day, report to your insurance company what happened.

Seventh, begin immediately to always drive defensively!

Be a wise shopper when selecting a used car

Editor's note: Are you thinking about buying a car? For many young people, this is their first major purchase. A good used car is a good buy, because new cars lose from one-third to one-fifth of their value in the first year.

Buying a good used car isn't easy, but the ability to do so is worth developing. This article has tips to help you develop that skill. The author, Mike Range, is a 4-H member from Derby who was a national winner in the automotive project last year; he is also a student at Wichita Automotive and Body School. Mike took vocational training in high school and last July was a delegate to the National Cooperative Industrial Training Conference in Roanoke, Virginia.

Yes, Mike bought and drives a used car.

By Mike Range

First, when buying a used car, have an approximate amount of money in mind which you wish to invest in a car. If you intend to have a car financed, give some thought as to where you can get good financing with reasonable interest.

Before going car shopping, check the newspaper used-car advertisements to give you an idea as to what make of cars you wish to look at and about what they sell for. Consider what you will be using the car for. Do you want a two-door or a four-door car, a station wagon or a convertible? How many passengers will you be carrying? Do you want a heavy car for a lot of highway travel or a light car for economy and shorter trips?

There are three places to look for a used car:

1. from a new car dealer;
2. from a used car dealer;
3. from a private individual.

When you have found a car that you are interested in, here are some things that should be checked:

1. Does the paint give the appearance of being touched up? Does the paint on the door jams match the exterior? If not, the car may have been wrecked.

2. Do the doors shut easily? If not, they may be sprung from having been in an accident.

3. Are all the windows in good condition and do they operate properly?

4. Does the upholstery show signs of wear?

5. Do the brake, clutch, and gas pedal pads show more wear than you would expect? Also, new pads may indicate the car has been driven many miles.

Under the hood there are many things to be checked. Some of the important points to check are:

1. See if radiator, hoses, and belts are in good condition.

2. Check motor for oil leaks. Pull the dip stick to check the condition of the oil. Check the tailpipe. If the inside is black with heavy carbon, it may indicate high oil consumption; for an engine in good condition, the inside of the tailpipe should be a grayish white.

3. Check transmission oil. If the car has automatic transmission, the oil should be clean and new looking. Also smell the oil. If the transmission has been damaged, the oil will quite often smell burnt.

4. Start the engine. Does it start easily? Does it run smoothly or is it noisy? Accelerate the engine and check the exhaust; blue smoke may indicate high oil consumption. Check under car for oil leaks.

5. Check tires and wheels for good condition. Check inside of wheels for brake leakage. Check brake pedal. It should be firm and not fade.

6. Check steering, front end and wheel bearing to see if loose or worn.

7. Road test car as to how it drives. Does everything operate at normal temperature?

8. Check wiring and all lights and horn for good condition. Check parking brakes.

9. You may wish to have a reliable mechanic check the car. He may spot something that will cause trouble that you have missed.

10. Check the odometer. Does the mileage look reasonable?

11. Talk to previous owner if possible as to the mechanical condition of car.

12. Check as to the guarantee and see that the title is correct.

13. Make a good buy on a car and do not let someone try to force a sale on you.

BUILDING THE FUTURE YOUTH by YOUTH

The Kansas 4-H Foundation of Developing Useful Citizens

Honoring the 1972
Kansas 4-H Donors

LET'S NOT LOSE OUR FREEDOM — KEEP AMERICA STRONG WITH THE YOUTH OF TODAY

Remarks from the Chairman of the Board of the Kansas 4-H Foundation:

Kansas people are good people, and they are generous!

Our 4-H program is one of the outstanding youth programs in the United States, thanks to the quality of our citizens and to their generosity in providing proper "tools" for our young people to work with.

Rock Springs Ranch is, without question, the finest 4-H facility in the nation; a $2,500,000 complex providing superior surroundings for youth activities. The ranch and all buildings are entirely paid for. The rolling land portrays nature at its best and the numerous sturdy and inspiring buildings provide a superior place for our young people to work, study, and play.

The success of the project is because the people of our state have been anxious to share their good fortune with others; because the 4-H Foundation administrative staff provides excellent leadership; and, because our 4-H young people represent American youth at its best.

The 4-H program encourages young people to be better citizens, better neighbors, better members of the family, better workers, and more loyal to the basic principles which have made the United States the most ideal place in the world in which to live.

The 4-H Foundation and the tens of thousands of our participating young people are deeply grateful for the financial support of all those who are mentioned in the report. Your contributions have helped to make the United States a better nation and have created better citizenship for our leaders of the future.

You generous people deserve a special salute! Thank you, very much, for your continuing support.

With private funds, Kansas 4-H Foundation programs enrich and broaden 4-H work.

The Foundation:

Assists with training for volunteer adult leaders.

Publishes the Kansas 4-H Journal, which reaches more than 18,000 families monthly.

Provides awards and incentives, including college scholarships.

Assists the International Farm Youth Exchange, which contributes to world understanding.

Maintains a state 4-H leadership training center, Rock Springs Ranch, and is developing a new more rugged facility, Lake Perry 4-H Camp.

Supplies awards and various printed items to counties at cost.

Assists Clovia, a girls' scholarship house at Kansas State University.

Kansas delegates to National 4-H Conference in Washington, D.C., place their flag in front of the National 4-H Center to mark their arrival in the nation's capital. Left to right, kneeling, are William Bradley Jr., Lawrence, and William Slater, Mahaska. Standing, left to right, are Claudia Washington, Fairview; Susan Johnson, Parsons; and Lynn Carpenter, Stockton.

The Kansas Bankers Association provided funds to send the delegates to Washington as part of the Kansas 4-H Foundation awards program.

Nearly 300 delegates from the 50 states, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands and Canada attended the conference, April 15-20, to explore ways of improving and expanding the 4-H program. Based on the theme, "4-H Gets It All Together," the conference featured seminars, assemblies, tours, and visits to Capitol Hill and the White House.

Memorials also serve youth

To keep a memory bright or to express affection for a living person, a number of persons have established memorials or contributed to continuing memorials through the Kansas 4-H Foundation.

This practice began in 1948 with funds for the Council Circle given by the family of Clyde Coffman. Since that time, gifts have been given ranging in amount from one dollar from a 4-H member in memory of his leader, to a combination gift of $275,000 from extension workers, 4-H members, and their friends for Williams Hall, the dining hall at Rock Springs Ranch.

Some memorial gifts are for unrestricted use in the Foundation programs, others for specific items for 4-H use at Rock Springs Ranch, or for contributions to scholarships or leader training.

During the past year, the Tree Walk at Rock Springs Ranch neared completion. It contains almost 40 trees, honoring more than 30 persons and organizations.

Development of Lake Perry 4-H camp is beginning. The 273 acre site is 17 miles northeast of Topeka, a rugged area with many trees and scenic bluffs. It is especially appealing to groups interested in forestry and general nature study.

In 1973 camp trailers can be scheduled for use there with equipment for overnight camping for up to 50 people. Groups may bring their own food and plan their own programs. Limited program and food services are available. Contact Kansas 4-H Foundation office for additional information and reservations.

The Kansas 4-H Foundation, a non-profit educational corporation, was established to make it possible for all citizens and organizations to share in furthering the 4-H program of the Kansas Cooperative Extension Service. The Foundation is dedicated to getting the highest return from each and every donor's investment in our State's number one resource—its youth.

New programs are ready at Rock Springs Ranch

A bonus is waiting for visitors to Rock Springs Ranch.

Special programs are ready and may be used by any group at the state 4-H center this summer.

Friends of 4-H Day

With an afternoon program and an evening buffet, Friends of 4-H Day has a new schedule this year, in contrast to the mid-day meal and program in the past. June 7 is the date for the events honoring those who support 4-H work through Kansas 4-H Foundation. Registration will take place at Rock Springs Ranch from 1:30 p.m. to 2:15 p.m.

Dr. George Charles Roche III, president of Hillsdale College, Michigan, will be the speaker at an assembly at 2:15 in Heritage Hall. His topic is "The Moral Imperative of Freedom."

Before becoming president of Hillsdale College, Dr. Roche was for five years Director of Seminars at the Foundation for Economic Education in New York. Before that, he was professor of history and philosophy at Colorado School of Mines, Golden. He also taught at the University of Colorado for two years and received both a master's and doctor's degree there. He served as an officer in the Marine Corps.

A "Thank You" to Jackson Co. Journal sponsors

Hats off to the seven sponsors who make it possible for each 4-H family in Jackson County to receive the Kansas 4-H Journal, writes Lester Harris, reporter of Pleasant Valley Rustlers.

4-H'ers enjoy reading articles in the 4-H Journal about other 4-H'ers and clubs from across the state. They also get new ideas for their own clubs and communities.

The seven Jackson County 4-H Journal sponsors are: Clark Chevrolet, Lueck Grain, Jackson County Farm Bureau, Holton Lumber Company, Mayetta Appliance Company, Jackson Farmers, Inc., and Jackson County 4-H Council.

Lueck Grain and Orvil Blosson of Holton Lumber Company have been Journal sponsors for 17 years, and Homer Clark and Jackson County 4-H Council for 6 years. New sponsors are Jackson County Farm Bureau, Don Fowler of Mayetta Appliance, and Jackson Farmers, Inc.

Lester points out that these sponsors help 4-H members in many other ways also. He says that Mr. Lueck "not only supports 4-H but is interested in the members."

Mr. Blosson helps 4-H members to select the proper wood and the right amount of wood for wood-working projects, and lets Pleasant Valley Rustlers build their float in his lumber yard.

Mr. Clark is president of the fair board.

Five members of Merry Meadowlarks 4-H Club received special awards at the Republic County 4-H Achievement Night. The 4-H members and one of the honors each won are, from left, Cheryl Wiche, reserve winner of John Polansky garden exhibit award; Mary Williams, first place individual and on first place team in state home improvement judging contest; Andrea Polansky, state award winner in commodity marketing; Cecilia Kasl, county champion in four projects; and Belinda Havel, silver achievement pin.

With the help of the Whitmore Veterinary Clinic of Goodland, the Prairie Gem 4-H Club of Thomas County recently sponsored a rabies clinic in Brewster. Twenty-five dogs and two cats were vaccinated against rabies. Pictured are John Cranston, Earl Dunn, and Bonnie Crabtree helping Dr. Whitmore vaccinate Boots.

Labette County Sweeps Oklahoma's Aggie Day

For the fourth consecutive year, Labette County 4-H'ers won the overall sweepstakes trophies at this year's Aggie Day activities at Northeastern Oklahoma A and M College.

Approximately 50 4-H'ers combined their talents to place first in livestock, entomology, and horticulture and third in poultry and meats. Several youth also placed high in the speech divisions.

Carrie Brooks, Parsons, was high individual in the entomology contest.

By Dr. Margery Neely
Extension Specialist,
4-H Child and Youth Education

The preplanning committee of the Kansas 4-H Invitational Conference announced that the 1973 conference keynote speech will be given Monday evening, June 4, by Dr. Tex Sample. Dr. Sample is on the faculty of St. Paul School of Theology in Kansas City and has served in several states as the stimulus to 4-H youth conferences.

The four advisory groups have also lined up keynote speakers for each topic and resource people to work with the advisory groups in exploring 4-H program emphases for the coming year.

"Choosing Your Poison: Teen Issues" advisory group will sponsor Roberto Sosa from Hugoton as its keynoter. Mr. Sosa has been deeply involved with Operation: Self Image in the public schools has served as a 4-H geology project leader and is a speech therapist.

The resource person for this advisory group's study session is Doug Deets, former FFA president from Beloit and a current KSU student.

Paul DeWeese, KSAC radio director, will present the "What's Behind the Clover: Philosophy of 4-H" advisory group talk. Andy Schuler, Chapman, and Lila Gattton, Bunker Hill, will serve as resource persons for the philosophy sessions.

The advisory group entitled "What's It To You: Citizenship" will feature Murt Hanks, Manhattan City Commission member and former Manhattan mayor as its major presenter. The study sessions will utilize the expertise of Jamie Schwartz, director of Rock Springs Ranch Heritage Hall programs.

The fourth advisory group will study "Let's Teach the World to Sing: Cross Cultural Programs" and make recommendations concerning 4-H directions in that area. The main address will be delivered by KSU agricultural Dean Carol Hess, former extension specialist to Brazil, Germany, India, and Nigeria. The group will attend Round-up sessions on Cross-cultural Capers. Also, Carolyn Olson, agent from Marion who recently visited the eastern countries, and Bill Fultz, Kansas urban 4-H agent from Wichita, will serve as resource people for the advisory group.

Others from KSU who are lending their skills to the training for the delegates' year as Kansas Ambassadors are Paul DeWeese in radio and TV skills, Darrell Spoon in group communications, and Dr. Howard Kittleson in career planning.

Club serves community with safety activities

By Mrs. Floyd Lotker Jr.
Adult Club Safety Leader

The Sappa Valley 4-H Club of Decatur County has gone all out on their safety project for the year, with something for every age.

In the picture in the center column, three of the under 11 year old members help scrape off, clean, and apply new safety strips in the bathtubs of the Good Samaritan home for elderly people in Oberlin. They are assisted by the safety chairman, Laurie Lotker, with the home director, David Steltzer, looking on.

Other projects for the home include a "wet floor" sign to be carried by the cleaning women when washing floors, and a strong safety railing at the entrance where cars drive up to load and unload residents.

For other ages of citizens in the community, the club helped with Farm Bureau's "baby sitters school," had a safety contest for elementary school youngsters, and planned a three-day demonstration by the mannequin Smoking Sam on "Hazards of Smoking" at the county fair.

We are truly trying to make our community a safer place to live.

"Of course not," said the teacher.

"Then how does it manage to live?"

Kat: No, I haven't. What does it look like?

Kit: In most places, it looks a lot like Jane.

Smart: Getting up.

Burglar alarm and cattle waterer are made by Norton County 4-H'er

Helping install a new cattle waterer with electrical heating in the Atwell Feed Yards was a major activity for Leon Atwell in the electric project last summer.

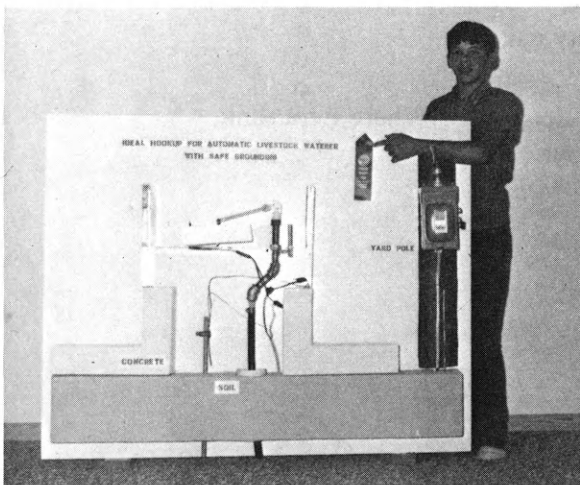

For an exhibit at the Norton County Fair he constructed a cross section of the waterer on a 4' x 5' display board. It won a purple ribbon.

Leon enrolls in the beef project; his favorite 4-H project this year is personal development. This is his seventh year as a member of Busy Jayhawker 4-H club.

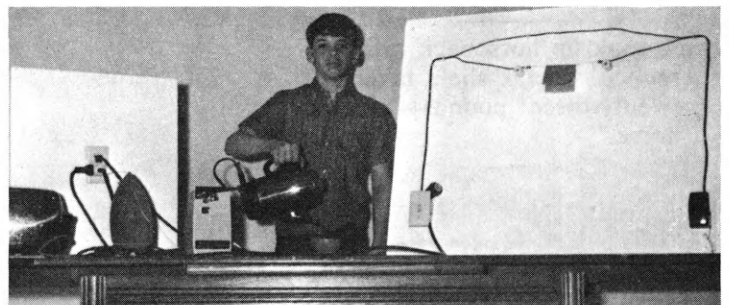

The Norton High School sophomore is an officer in the FFA and has participated in cross country running.

A burglar alarm is one of Leon Atwell's exhibits. Also shown are a tachmeter; a small electric motor that won top in its division at the industrial arts fair in Hays; and a display board which shows the ideal electrical hook-up for a private water system using a submersible pump. It won a purple ribbon at the Norton County Fair and a blue at Kansas State Fair.

The electrical wiring and heating element in a cattle waterer are shown on Leon's display board.

Leon demonstrates what happens when too small a wire is used in an electric circuit. His demonstration discouraged the use of octopus plug-ins.
