Southern Farmers are Marketing Their Rice Crop Co-Operatively

B. E. Chaney, President of the Arkansas Rice Growers Co-Operative Association, Telis of the Early Struggles of the Organization

In the Fall of 1920, when the rice on hand, with every assurance that we farmer of Arkansas had his crop ready will continue to have an active, for market—incidentally, the largest healthy market. crop we had ever produced, and produced at the highest prices ever known—he was confronted with a new made possible, first, by the fact that our members signed a long-term ironproblem. The high prices of preceding years had had a tendency to curtail consumption of rice in the United States, which has never at best been clad contract, covering all crops pro-duced and based on the principle of the locality. In other words, we are dealing with an entire commodity—not one back yard. Second, under the particular form of membership and a rice-eating nation. The retail trade was already overstocked with high-priced rice. The farmer had his usual crop mortgage indebtedness to pay on marketing contract we have from our crop mortgage indebtedness to pay on or before January first; and foreign countries to which we had heretofore looked for export outlet were bankrupt and unable to buy. We looked to the old Southern Rice Growers Association for relief. They conceived a plan that had not been tried out on the farmer for a long time, and had him turn his rice over to the various millers to mill and sell for him—Toll Milling! The only result that could follow this mode of procedure was complete demembers, we can go out in the finan-cial world, and secure federal or other money as we find it necessary in the orderly marketing of our product. to any other big business organization or industry. We have reasonable as-surance that Louisiana and Texas will mode of procedure was complete de-moralization of the rice market. In our frantic efforts to solve some of the evils of the conditions existing, a mass meeting of the rice farmers from all over the rice belt of Arkansas was held in Stuttgart on January 26, 1921. Then and there the toll milling proposition was stopped and I hope and believe it was stopped forever. A committee was appointed at that meeting to devise ways and means at the greater returns to the growers of the rice. We can then begin to think in really big terms, and map out a proing to devise ways and means of relieving the situation. That committee was the nucleus of co-operative marketing of rice in America! It was the death knell of toll milling! It was the beginning of a new and better day for east of the Rocky Mountains. These In our organization, among ourselves, mills are owned and controlled by less than twenty men who are federated every other member. One vote is very closely by their organizations. Heretofore, our only market for our grower or how small. We keep in entire product was at the pleasure of these few men. Under our plan of them what we are doing. We are now milling our rice and preparing it for sending out a weekly letter, and hope the consumer, we not only save for the grower the non-essential middlemen expense, but we have every market of the world open to us.

We are authentically advised that there has already been some $500,000 spent in attempting to put our organization on the rocks, but this antagonistic attitude has only had a tendency to strengthen our organization within. And I take a great deal of pleasure, and have no little pride, in being able most powerful influence in the country. The ideals of this organization, put into practical effect, should go and to say to you today that the farmer who is a member of our organization is a different man from the farmer who "signed up" last year. He has a new hope, a new confidence, a new ease on life. He believes in his organiaztion, and in the men he placed at the head of it; and I take these things as an indication that we have succeeded well in a noble work, thus

During the extreme depression of the second half of December, and of able to market. With proper organization there should no longer be such January and the early part of February, we fed the market, in an orderly way, only what rice it would take. The loan of one million dollars, later increased to one and one-quarter million dollars, from the war finance corporation, enabled us to do this. Since it ation, enabled us to do this. Since it activity. The present agricultural namade it possible for us to advance our members, as soon as their rice was delivered to mills or approved warehouses, about 60 per cent of the appraised value of the rice. In this way. they were able to take care of their January 1 obligations, and yet did not have to dump their crops on a manipulated market to be taken up by specu lators who would get the profit there

The wisdom of our plan has bee proven in our own case in the last fit teen days. The rice market has strengthened, and we have sold more than 150,000 pockets of clean rice at a decided advance over any price we could have gotten during the precedcould have gotten during the processing sixty days. Our Association has more than eighty per cent of the rice acreage of the state, and we have approximately fifty per cent of our rices.

Wheat Growers Ask Farmers' Union To Reconsider Pooling

The National Wheat Growers' Association of Kansas would like to have the Farmers' Union recind its announcement that the Union will organize a wheat pooling association of its own. President John Tromble of the Farmers' Union at that the National States of Saturday that the Saturday Saturday Saturday that the Saturday Satur ion stated Saturday that the National Wheat Growers' Association conferred with the board of directors here this week on the subject, and that they invited a committee of the Farmers' Union to meet with a like committee of the wheat growers. Mr. Tromble stated that the Union officers accepted the invitation to confer with the wheat growers, and Clarence Huff and Louis De Voss were sent to Wichita Friday where they conferred with the officers of the Wheat Growers. Mr. Tromble states that it is the plan of the Farmers' Union to submit a plan to the wheat growers. He stated that he did not expect a report from the spe-cial committee until the fore part of this week. Meanwhile Mr. Tromble stated, it is the intention of the Farmers Union to proceed with the wheat pool, and expect to make it a 100 percent organization.

It is astounding how great is the sum of money piled up each year in the reserve funds of the great insurance companies. There are more than 250 life insurance organizations in the United States and last year they collected more than six billions of dolars in life insurance premiums. And it has been estimated that only about one dollar in six comes back in death claims. Over seventy millions were collected in Iowa last year and about twelve returned, so you can readily see how these immense reserves are piled up year after year. The question perhaps comes to you as to where all this has any bearing on the farmer, and here is the answer. The consensus of opinion among or ganized farmers is that if the farmers are to control the marketing of their own products they can only do so suc cessfully by providing their own funds and finances, and to provide these tinances they must do so by pursuing well known and proven methods. Since insurance and banking are the proper channels then the American farmer must take this position in accordance with the importance of his business in these absolutely essential business principles. The farmers now furnish a very

LOCAL SELF GOVERNMENT

The people themselves are in control of any community that exercises the old time powers of local self government. The township board the township trustee, justices of the peace, constables, the school district officers, and the city and county officers are the agents of the people for carrying out the purposes of local government.

There is no doubt that all these local officers are losing their authority and that their duties are held in constantly growing contempt and scorn. No condition could possibly be more dangerous to our liberties. It means that we are centralizing and bureaucratizing our government activities, that we are delegating our duties to boards, commissions and officials who are so intrenched in office that they are becoming a permanent body of substitutes for the citizens.

We have a state law regulating the speed of automobiles on public high ways. That law is daily violated scores of times in every township in the state of Kansas. The average constable has forgotten, if he ever know, that it is his sworn duty to arrest all speed law violators and hale them before the nearest justice of the peace for trial and punishment.

The county attorney and the sheriff have authority to abate all nuisances, to require cleanliness, to enforce all laws. They need no grand jury nor any state officer to assist them in raids on loosely conducted dance halls or other immoralresorts. Local officers neglect their duties because the state and the nation have stepped in and set up espionage systems and law enforcing agencies that take no account of the traditional and statutory authority of the officials who get their mandates directly from the people.

We are getting very far away from the Jeffersonian ideal that "that government is best that roverns least." We have gradually abandoned the falth of our fathers and have allowed a bureauccracy to establish itself in this country that in time will destroy our liberties and our free institutions.

UNION WORK FOR YOUNG FOLKS

All natural, normal and wholesome young folks want at least three things: They want to do something, to learn something, and to have some fun. If the programs of the local unions are fixed up with these three things in mind it will be no trouble to get the boys and girls to attend and to take part. Fact is that where these three things are possible the young folks cannot be kept away with a club.

Trust the young men and impose responsibilities on them and they will rise to their opportunities and grow in power and influence just in proportion as their interest is aroused and their dutles discharged. Give the young men and the young women a chance to hold office and serve on local committees. Elect more young men as delegates to the county and the state conventions.

THE MISSION OF THE UNION

There are a few short-sighted folks who believe that with the organization of cooperative marketing the Farmers Union will have served its purpose and may be buried without regret. They are mistaken. There are so many things to do for rural life in this country that no more marketing association organized for just one purpose can ever get far with our general prob-

It is time for us to draw a clear cut distinction between a farmers organization for educational, social and fraternal work and a mere marketing association which is based on commercial needs only and exists only for money making

As long as agriculture has a single unsolved problem, as long as the farmers suffer from a single unredressed wrong there will be a field for the Farmers Union.

THE REAL ISSUE IN KANSAS Kansas candidates for public office need have no trouble in discovering the real issue of this campaign. The fact that in ten years taxes have

ed from less than THIRTY MILLIONS OF DOLLARS A YEAR to more than SEVENTY-

FIVE MILLIONS furnishes the only issue in which the voters of this state are taking any interest. The burden of taxation is proved by the lists of unpaid taxes recently published in the Kansas papers. In Crawford county more than four thousand pieces of real estate were advertised for sale and of that number nearly three hundred were farms of sufficient acreage to support that many families. In Johnson county, either the best or the second best county in the state, more than $47,000 of the taxes on real estate have not been paid this year. Nearly three hundred Johnson county farms are advertised for sale for taxes

Plenty of good folks believe that the Industrial Court Law is all wrong and should be repealed; also a large number of equally good people still cling to the hope that industrial peace may yet be secured by the just and effective administration of this law. There is room for an honest difference of opinion on that matter and the repeal of the law or the support of the law cannot be made a strict party question nor can it be the dominant issue of this campaign.

Taxation is becoming unendurable in Kanaas. It now takes about one fourth the annual value of all agricultural products to pay the state and local expenses. Expenses must be reduced because taxes are now so high that they cannot be paid. Each of the candidates for governor is advocating the reduction of taxation. Voters must investigate the record, study the associations, and reach their own conclusions as to the purposes of these two men. The safety of the state demands the election of the candidate for governor who is in deadly earnest about the business of reducing taxes.

CAN TAXES BE REDUCED?

There are many good citizens who believe that it will be impossible to reduce taxes through any action of the Kansas legislature no matter which of the two candidates for governor is elected. They are mistaken. The reduction of state expenses can be effected if the governor and the legislature will work together for that purpose.

There are at least a dozen boards and commissions which could be abolished. The State Tax Commission should be the first to go. All the work of that body can be done by an ex-officio commission made up of the governor, the auditor, and the secretary of state. Perhaps a state office must be maintanied but one expert and a few stenographers are all the extra help needed.

The Board of Administration as the law is interpreted serves no useful purpose. Its functions should be turned over to an ex-officio body made up of the Lieutenant Governor, the Attorney General, and the Superintendent of Public Instruction. Such a board without any extra expense for salary or railway fares could do much more work than is possible under the present system. The present office organization of the Board could be retained and it is just possible that such an ex-officio board might have the courage to do some of the things for which the Board of Administration law was planned.

The administration of the automobile license law could be greatly cheapened by requiring local sheriffs, constables and policemen to act as tag inspectors. The local officers could make it hot for tag tax dodgers in a hurry and do that work much more cheaply than it is done from

Then there is inspection of hotels, drugs and foods by state officers at public expense. This is all wrong. Every particle of such work can be done just as well if not better by the local health officers cooperating with the various county attorneys. , There are said to be SEVENTEEN assistant attorney generals at this time. The whole outfit should get the axe right in the neck. They are not doing one single thing that it is not the lawful and sworn duty of the local county attorneys. Let us either abolish the office of county attorney or require that officer to do his own work. These are only a few suggestions. There are plenty of ways to save money and reduce both state and local taxes but first we must wean a considerable portion of the Kansas population that is now hanging onto the public teat.

The New York Nation thinks the organized farmer is a joke. That paper is wrong. The unorganized farmer is a huge joke, his well being the plaything of speculation.

MATCHING DOLLARS WITH UNCLE SAM Many farming communities are now in debt so deeply that the interest on their obligations absorbs from one-half to twothirds of their net income from agricultural operations. In order to get a few dollars from Uncle Sam they have over taxed their own resources to provide service and construction of one sort or another that they do not really need and cannot afford to pay for even if they are most desperately needed.

Concrete roads are not necessary in Kansas A well constructed dirt road properly maintained can be used in this state about 330 days in each year. During the few days that such roads are impassable on account of mud the only folks much put out are tourists driving through the state It is no great hardship for the farmers to stay off the roads for two or three days once or twice a year and as for the tourists, the more they are delayed in our midst the more money they will spend with us. Why should Kansas taxpayers burden themselves to pay for roads to hurry up the passage of the trans-continental motorist through our state? If the government can afford to spend money for roads and there is a necessity for good roads clear across the republic such trans-continental driveways should be constructed and maintained by the United States. Local roads to market and to the county seats should be built and maintained by the local units. The state should have nothing to do with either the trans-continental or the local roads,

The whole system of road construction and upkeep is wrong and is so wrong that it is bringing disappointment to all friends of good highways and ruin to thousands of tax payers.

If the government had spent all the money that it was wasted on state partnership projects in construction on its own account we would now have several roads each way across the United States. If the states had spent all the money that they have squandered on federal ald roads in the building of market and county seat roads we would have more than twice the present mileage of good local roads,

Just because we got off wrong on roads by reason of the organized agitation of contractors, cement producers, automobile manufacturers and other interested parties is no reason why we should stay wrong forever. We can still get right if we have the courage to tell Uncle Sam to go spend his own money in his own way and give us a chance to do the same with local and county taxes.

BETTER TIMES FOR FARMERS

Some expert statistician in the federal Depart ment of Agriculture has it all figured out that the farm income for 1922 will be about a BIL-LION AND A HALF dollars more than it was in 1921. Like many other stories that we read in the newspapers this report is important if true.

.It requires only the slightest examination of the estimates to learn that it is not true. Cotton for example, is figured in at 11,000,000 bales. The boll weevil has not yet finished with this year's crop. When he is through it will be found that not much more than 9.00,000, bales of spinnable cotton has been produced this year.

The wheat and the corn production has been over figured just like the cotton, probably more so. The great drought that struck all the corn states in August cut the yield many hundreds of millions of bushels. The wheat did not turn out up to its advance notices, in Kansas for example a crop estimated by state and government experts at about 110,000,000 bushels has dwindled down to only a little more than half that quantity. Other farm yields are falling behind press notices in about the same way.

Of course this reduction in volume of production may not result in decreased returns for the farmers. Prices may advance enough to give ag riculture an increased income of a billion and a half this year. The expert, however, was not figuring it out that way. He based his figures on an increased volume of farm products sold at the prevailing prices.

Not satisfied with predicting an increased income of a billion and a half for the farmers this year there are a lot of friendly souls who are already figuring on how it can be spent. One newspaper editor suggests that the farmers increased income is about equal to the interest and sinking fund requirements for the public debt and wonders if the farmers may not generously assume that burden and relieve business from such an obligation this year. If the farmers of the United States would voluntarily turn that billion and a half into the public treasury it would absorb about three-fifths of the deficit that is facing the republic next June.

All speculation on the disposition of the farmers increased earnings for this year might as well be stopped. The cold truth is that there is no such animal as agricultural net income or profits in the United States. The 1922 crop is the third in succession that has been sold far below the cost of production. Agriculture will be more deeply in debt when this crop is sold than ever before in the history of the United States.

MELLON SMELLS BUSINESS REVIVAL Your Uncle Andy Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury, and either the richest or the second richest man in the world is satisfied that the immediate business future is very bright indeed. He is a business man. The Kansas City Star assures us that he is a most remarkable business man and for once the Star is right. As a business man Uncle Andy assures us, that having averted the threatened calamity of a soldier bonus, the country is on the highway to prosperity.

Well, your Uncl e Andy ought to know. He has always been one of those wise birds looking for a chance to buy low and sell high. Just before the prohibition amendment went into effect Mellon is reported to have bought about 40,000,000 gallons of first rate stock bottled in bond. That merchandise has probably been withdrawn from bond at such an advance in average price that it is not strange that good old Uncle Andy is satisfied with the business outlook. He is an expert on the smell of good times.

LA FOLLETE OR SMOOT

Robert M. La Follette and Reed Smoot are as smart as any other two men in the United States senate. When the reorganization of that body comes next March Smoot will be chairman of the Finance Committee or of another equally important committee and in that event La Follette will be chairman of the Finance Committee.

There are a lot of politicians who are right uneasy over this particular matter. They all admit that it would be impossible to beat either of these two men for brains but La Follette is a radical who is republican in name only and Smoot is an Apostle of the Mormon church. La Follette voted against the McCumber-Fordney Tariff and Smoot was one of the staunch defenders of that

La Follette believes passionately in the rights of the people; Smoot believes that Joseph Smith and Brigham Young were two true prophets and that salvation is certain only through the adoption and practice of the Mormon religion. In his heart undoubtedly he still adheres to the doctrine of polygamy and would have as many wives as Brigham Young enjoyed if it were not for the laws of his country.

Well, anyway, these two men will be the most powerful in the senate of our country after next
