Bull Test Sale at Beloit

Dropouts Have Own Problems, But Quitting School Itself Adds No Harm

A 4 year study of what happens to high school dropouts has led University of Michigan social scientists to a conclusion that challenges one of the basic assumptions of American education.

Contrary to the dire warnings that accompany the stay-in-school publicity campaign, the researchers found that dropouts do not appear to suffer financially or emotionally by quitting school before graduation.

The dropouts do tend to have higher rates of delinquency and other problems, but the study found the problems were just as great before dropping out, sometimes worse. Thus, the researchers say, dropping out should be regarded as another symptom of pre-existing problems and not the cause of new ones.

The study was directed by Dr. Gerald G. Bachman of the University of Michigan's Institute for Social Research. Unlike previous studies, which compared students after they had dropped out or stayed in and then inferred dropping out to be the cause of the differences, the institute study began before the students dropped out.

In the fall of 1966, Bachman and his colleagues selected a sample of 2213 tenth grade boys in high schools across the country. The sample was chosen to be representative of all tenth grade boys in the United States.

The students were given a battery of tests to measure their personal, family and social situations. Then the researchers waited to see which dropped out, which graduated and went to work and which went on to college. Similar tests were given at yearly intervals to assess any changes. The last test was given one year after graduation for the class of 1969, by which time some had quit and sought jobs, and others had stayed in to get a diploma and then look for work.

Those who went on to college were not included in the comparisons, Bachman said. There is no question that college graduates have greater earning potential than high school graduates, he said. The stay-in-school campaign does not, however, urge students to go on to college, Bachman noted. Rather, it argues that simply staying in long enough to get a high school diploma will improve the young person's lot in life.

"Our findings simply don't support this campaign," Bachman said. "I think we ought to curb the antidropout campaign. It's giving dropouts a bad name."

The study revealed that students who dropped out had a very different personal history that those who stayed in. The dropouts were four times as likely to have failed a class, their delinquency rate was much higher, and their scores on tests of self-esteem were much lower. Dropouts were also more likely to have come from broken homes.

Tests of the same personal situations a year after they would have graduated from high school showed little or no difference.

"The difficulties experienced by the dropouts we studied — the low aspiration and accomplishment and even the limitations in self-esteem and self-concept — were already present or predictable by the start of the tenth grade," Bachman said, and there is little evidence that dropping out made matters worse."

In one area, dropping out even appears to have had a good effect. Once they were out of school, the dropouts' self-esteem increased, coming closer to the higher self-esteem of the graduate than when both groups were still in school.

At the end of the study, 71 percent of the dropouts had full-time jobs as compared with 87 percent of the graduates. Bachman said that the difference could be accounted for by the dropouts' pre-existing problems more than by the fact of having dropped out.

Comparing the employed members of each group, the study found the weekly income levels to be nearly identical.

Even Some Union Men Ashamed Of Lazy Construction Workers

Miami Beach, Fla.—The typical building tradesman shows up to work at 8:30 a.m., half an hour late. By 9 he's ready to decide "what he wants to do," and at 10 he knocks off for a coffee break. At 11 it's time for a beer. Then there's lunch. On a typical day he puts in three hours' work.

That description, probably exaggerated for effect, doesn't come from any antiunion contractor. Instead it is the description of J. Thomas Schranck, president of the AFL-CIO Building and Construction Trades Council of Delaware.

"And you can quote me," he tells a newsman, insisting he tells his Delaware tradesmen the same things. "They cheer and applaud and say 'right on,'" he said, but they still aren't working as hard as they should.

Schranck is outspoken, but his words reflect the attitude of many construction union leaders meeting here in convention the last week. Others aren't willing to let their names be printed in attacks on their own constituencies but they, too, complain about lack of productivity in the trade, and they say they are beginning to do something about it.

The complaints of building tradesmen taking unauthorized coffee breaks, starting late and quitting early, restricting the use of new equipment and even doing sloppy work are old complaints. The trade's leaders point to a long period of building boom and also blame the contractors themselves for abdicating their management responsibilities in trying to explain the trouble. And the growth of nonunion construction and the slowdown in the industry are forcing the trade's leaders to begin pressuring themselves for more productivity.

"We must tighten our own operations and increase productivity so the union contractor will have a better chance to compete in the marketplace with the nonunion contractor," Frank Bonadio, president of the AFL-CIO's Building and Construction Trades department, told the construction union leaders at the convention here.

Construction wage rates have gained well above those by other workers and beyond any known productivity gains. In the fourth quarter of last year, for example, construction pay increases averaged 21 per cent a year while manufacturing workers won 7 per cent.

Grass & Grain

The convention delegates even listened to and even applauded—just politely, to be sure—John Healy, president of a major contractor's association, who told them the pay raises were out of line and productivity wasn't moving up. The Empire State Building, he told the union men, was begun early in 1930 and the building dedicated and occupied May 1, 1931. "One year and 45 days' work, including Sundays and holidays. My guess for this project today would be a minimum of three years," he said.

The construction trades leaders say they already are acting to step up productivity and beginning to get some results. A new system to handle jurisdictional disputes between unions has cut down this type of strike. A new set of work rules, accepted by the trades leaders, with the National Constructors Association—representing major commercial builders—states, for example, that "workmen shall be at their place of work at the starting time and shall remain at their place of work until the quitting time." The new rules say production isn't to be limited by unions nor should there be "restriction on the full use of tools and equipment," that "featherbedding practices will not be tolerated." They also state that if a local union doesn't furnish qualified workmen within 48 hours—and withholding workers could be a way to bring a contractor to his knees—"the contractor shall be free to obtain workmen from any source."

How well these new rules are working is debatable. Some union men say they are beginning to take effect while others say they still are ignored, at least in some places. But the willingness of the union to agree to them, and to send officers to argue with locals to accept the new rules, is a sign of concern about productivity.

Another sign has been their general acceptance of wage guidelines, which were imposed on the construction trades in the spring, a half-year before general controls went into effect.

Brookover Promises $125,000 Gift To Livestock & Meat Council

Earl Brookover

A $125,000 contribution to support meat animal research in Kansas and other producing areas has been made by Brookover Feedyards, Inc., Garden City, Kansas, to the Livestock and Meat Industry Council, Inc.

The Council, established to support research and other educational activities related to meat animals, has headquarters on the Kansas State University campus, but research projects it supports may be located anywhere. Dr. Arthur D. Weber, vice president emeritus of the university, is the Council's executive vice president.

Contributions to the Council, which are tax-exempt, are deposited with the Kansas State University Endowment Association and are allocated to projects by the Council's Project Review Committee.

The $125,000 contribution—largest single gift ever made to the Council—was announced by Earl C. Brookover, president of Brookover Feedyards, Inc.

Fifteen thousand of the $125,000, no-strings-attached contribution has been paid.

Contractual arrangements have been made for payment of the remainder to be made within ten years. Brookover Feedyards, Inc., Brookover said, hopes to set an example that will be followed by others involved in the meat producing industry by voluntarily contributing funds to help the industry through research and development.

Because the livestock and meat industry is complex and growing rapidly, related agri-businesses as well as producers should supplement Federal and State funds for research and education "to the point that it might seem to hurt a little at the moment," Brookover said.

"It's the best way we know to channel funds into research development that is pertinent to our industry."

"It also is a good way to show our gratitude to animal scientists and to acknowledge that science and technology have helped the livestock and meat industry as well as our total economy," he said.

$1000 Top At Polled Hereford Assn. Sale

Twenty-three bulls and five heifers were sold at the Kansas Polled Hereford Association Blue Ribbon show and sale at Hutchinson.

The champion bull, shown by Jesse Riffel & Sons, Enterprise, was sold to White's Polled Herefords, Phillipsburg, for $1,000. The reserve champion shown by Serriens Double S Polled Herefords, Lincoln, went for $1,000 to Irwin Schmidt, Buhler.

The top heifer was consigned by Mrs. Harry Smith & Son, Richfield, to Kenneth and Martha Walker, Fowler, for $500. The champion heifer consigned by Elton Fischer, Seward, sold for $400 to Len Mung, Great Bend.

The reserve champion heifer was consigned by Murfin & Clarkson, Winfield. It sold for $400 to Kenneth Hershberger, Sedgwick.

Buyers were from Kansas, Oklahoma, Nebraska and Wisconsin.

Championships were divided in the morning.

A late junior yearling bull, PVF 33 Worthmore 734 X20-418762, owned by Jesse Riffel & Sons, Enterprise, was selected grand champion bull by judge Clarence Helms, a breeder from Holbrook, Neb. The champion was from among the six top placing bulls.

Serriens Double S Polled Herefords, Lincoln, took reserve champion honors with a senior yearling bull, SSR Rollo Mixer 14 X20344735.

Grand champion female was a winter heifer calf, EFF Lads Miss 10 20596528, owned by Elton Fischer, Seward.

Murfin and Clarkson, Winfield, showed the reserve grand champion female, a late junior yearling heifer named MCR Lady ADV 500 X20563241.

The winners among the 35 head were selected in less than two hours.

Judge Helms told the approximate 60 breeders and spectators watching the show that the quality of animals being exhibited here could go to any major show and win or place close to the top.

"...I've picked according to size and scale and beef...I don't like to see them finished heavily...but they should be finished in good condition," the judge explained.

The 35 head were auctioned Monday afternoon by Eddie Sims, Lawton, Okla.

First Kansas Bull Test Sale Packs Them In

Nearly 800 farmers and ranchers crowded into the new 4-H building at the Mitchell County Fairgrounds in Beloit last week to see the results of the first official Kansas Bull Test sale at public auction. Buyers and other interested people filled the bleachers and the entire area close to the auction ring. Some of the late-comers failed to get a glimpse of the bulls as even the alley leaving the ring was filled with people.

The 63 bulls were sold following official 140-day test in the new Kansas Bull Test Station located a few miles east of Beloit in the Solomon Valley Feedlot. The total sale tallied $39,245 for an average of $623. Gene Watson cried the sale and sold two bulls at the sale-topping figure of $1,110 each.

The first bull to to be sold at the top price was a Shorthorn bull consigned to the test and sale by Lindee Farms, Galva. The yearling son of Napoleon Troubadour tipped the scales at 1,188 pounds and had gained 3.41 pounds per day on test with an average weight per day of age of 3.06 pounds. A scanogram measurement of the bull indicated .2 inch fat thickness. The successful bidder on the bull was Robert Ahlschwede & Sons, Crete, Neb.

Much interest was expressed in the Simmental crossbred bulls and the first one to enter the ring sold for the top money of $1,110. He was bred by Hills, Inc., Mankato, and was out of a Hereford cow and sired by Galant. The 1,275 pound bull was the top indexing Simmental of the sale with a 4.03 ADG and he gained 3.25 pounds per day of age. Larry Kendig of Osborne was the buyer.

Clair Parcel, Coldwater, served the bull test as chairman of the Bull Test Committee and also chairman of the Beef Improvement Committee of the Kansas Livestock Association. The test is a joint project of the KLA and the Kansas State Extension Service.

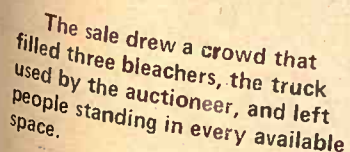

Parcel was gratified after the sale and said, "We must thank many people who put a lot of effort into this test in order for it to succeed. The first consignors are to be commended for their progressive attitudes in beef improvement because if they had not answered the challenge we would not have had a test at all. Max Deets and his crew at Solomon Valley have done a tremendous job and have gone to extra trouble to insure the health and care of the bulls."

Continuing, Parcel stated, "The attendance here at the sale and the interest expressed by many others who could not be here was terrific. We all agree the challenge of better beef bulls has been received and all of us will benefit from performance testing."

Eight Angus bulls sold for an average price of $615; 14 Herefords averaged $500; 5 Milking Shorthorns averaged $442; 8 Charolais averaged $574; 26 Simmental percentages averaged $730; 1 Murray Grey brought $450; and 1 Shorthorn topped the sale at $1,110.

The second group of bulls will officially begin test November 22-23 and Herman Westmeyer and Keith Zoellner, Kansas State Extension Service, said the numbers had increased to 161, including a group of Santa Gertrudis bulls from the King Ranch in Texas. The sale date for the spring sale has been claimed for April 20, 1972.

group of bulls will officially begin on March 23 and Herman Westmeyer and Ken Rasmussen, Kansas State Extension Service, said the number of bulls increased to 161, including a group of 100 Angus bulls from the King Ranch. The sale date for the spring sale has been set for April 20, 1972.

Plastic-Coating May Prevent Cavities

A new technique in which children's teeth are painted with plastic to seal out a major cause of cavities is attracting the attention of G&G area dentists, but most have adopted a wait-and-see attitude before making it available to their patients.

A Minnesota dentist, Dr. Denis Zack, of the Minneapolis Health Dept., calls the technique "very, very promising — The most promising thing since flouridation." The New York State Health Dept. is beginning a major experiment using about 4,000 school children. And dental researchers are conducting studies using the technique in Kalispell, Mont., and in Maracaibo, Venezuela.

One Topeka dentist, the first in the city to use the technique about four months ago, is excited about the prospects of helping to protect children's teeth during the years they are most susceptible to the types of cavities the sealant is designed to prevent.

But he stresses, "Some people have the idea that this is a panacea that will eliminate all tooth decay, and that just isn't true."

The clear plastic coating is painted with a camel's hair brush on the chewing surface of the teeth in the back of the mouth—the molars and bicuspids—and then is hardened by a small beam of ultraviolet light from a gun-like device. Before the liquid sealant is painted on, the teeth are cleaned and dried and then bathed with a mild acid so the sealant will adhere, the dentists said.

The almost-invisible plastic is designed to fill in the small fissures and pits in the teeth so decay-causing food particles and bacteria can't get in.

Pit and fissure cavities, the type the plastic sealant is designed to prevent, form on the chewing surfaces of teeth and account for about 45 per cent of all cavities. Most other cavities form either between teeth or at the gum line.

Dentists say fluoridation of water and good brushing habits work well in preventing the smooth-surface type of cavities. But these do not work as well in preventing small crevices and holes which form natural traps for food particles and bacteria. Because the cavities are so small, they cannot be cleaned out by a toothbrush and fluoride cannot get in to provide adequate protection.

The developer, Dr. Michael G. Buonocore, of the Eastman Dental Center, Rochester, N.Y. reported that in a two year, premarketing test, of the technique with about 100 children, the technique resulted in a 99 per cent reduction in the type of cavities it is designed to prevent when applied to youngster's permanent teeth, and an 87 per cent reduction when applied to baby teeth.

The sealant provided total protection against decay after one year in 200 pits and fissures on the grinding surfaces of healthy teeth, he reported. Forty-two per cent of untreated areas on comparable teeth on the other side of the children's mouths developed cavities.

The studies indicated that for 87 per cent of the permanent teeth, the coating remained on for at least two years.

Dr. Buonocore's work was financed by a grant from the National Institute of Dental Research.

A G&G area dentist commented, "Some of the research conducted by these people with something new to sell tends to give you a good sales pitch. Maybe the stuff is effective, and maybe not."

"Fads in dentistry and medicine have been around for quite awhile," he continued. "We've seen these things come and go. And when we read about some research and a guy claims 100 per cent success, that makes us awfully suspicious."

Wheat, Feed Grain Signups To Start January 17

The sign-up period for the 1972 wheat and feed grain programs in G&G area counties will be held Jan. 17 through Feb. 25.

The state ASCS says there will be no extended sign-up period in 1972.

The 1972 feed grain program is designed to achieve a feed grain set-aside of at least 38 million acres, compared with 18.2 million acres this year.

With new options presented to farmers for 1972 the Secretary of Agriculture must have set-aside commitments by Feb. 25 to enable him to determine whether to accept farmer offers of optional set-aside if sign-up is short of the desired 38 million acres over the nation.

Farmers have from now until Jan. 17 to make their plans and to sign up within the allotted period.

ASCS indicated it is necessary to set aside at least 38 million acres this coming year to help offset the record corn production of 1971.

The 1972 wheat set-aside program works in harmony with similar provisions of the feed grain programs, according to E. R. Patton, chairman of the Kansas Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation committee. He says the two programs have one thing in common—they offer more decision-making freedom to farmers.

Patton points out that the change in direction for farm program policies toward a market-oriented agriculture began with the 1971 programs. The changes were made possible by provisions of the 1970 Agricultural Act. Key features were elimination of rigid allotments or bases as production controls, removal of marketing quotas and penalties, and easing of regulations on the sale and lease of allotments.

Still A Cut In Egg, Hatchery Production

Poultry flocks in Kansas produced 60 million eggs during October, 7 million less than October 1970 and the lowest production for the month since 1936, according to the Kansas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service.

The rate of lay during October averaged 17.7 eggs per layer compared with 17.3 last year.

There were 3,381,000 hens and pullets of laying age on Kansas farms in October 1971, 12 percent below a year earlier and smallest for the month in records dating back through 1925.

United States

The nation's laying flock produced 5,987 million eggs during October, 1 percent more than a year earlier.

The number of layers averaged 321.9 million, 2 percent below a year earlier. Rate of lay on November 1 averaged 60.1 eggs per 100 layers, up 3 percent from a year earlier, and 1 percent above October 1, 1971.

On November 1, pullets 3 months old and older, not of laying age totalled 60.7 million, down 4 percent from November 1, 1970.

Potential layers (hens and pullets of laying age plus pullets 3 months old and older not of laying age) totalled 385.8 million, 2 percent below the same date a year earlier.

Hatchery Production

Commercial hatcheries in Kansas produced 280,000 chicks during October, 7 percent below September 1971 and 51 percent below October 1970.

Virtually all the chicks hatched were egg-type.

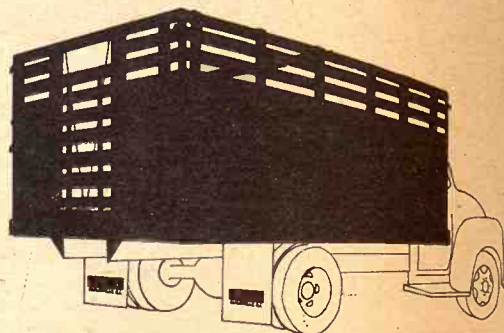

Prices received for chicks by

Kansas hatcheries on October averaged $36.50 per 100 for pure and cross-breed pullets, $40.00 per 100 for hybrid pullets and $45.00 per 100 for broiler-type, straight

States Finding Ways To Cut Medicaid Burdens

A major hospital in Denver recently saw its occupancy rate fall from 100 to 60 per cent. So it let go 45 nurses and shelved a 6-million-dollar expansion plan.

In New Mexico teams of physicians acting under a contract with the state determined that one-third of all Medicaid patients in nursing homes did not need nursing home care. To prevent a reduction in subsidies the nursing home operators took the state to court several weeks ago.

In Georgia the state, acting in tandem with the medical profession, has found it can cut overall hospital expenditures for Medicaid patients—and probably all other patients—by 10 to 15 percent.

What's happening in these three states could well signal a national trend, one that some observers believe could save billions of dollars in public and private funds that now go toward paying hospital and other medical costs.

Medical groups in more than a dozen states including Pennsylvania, Ohio, Massachusetts, Illinois and Florida, are on their way toward adopting a cost-cutting plan that already is operating in Colorado, New Mexico and Georgia. Groups in other states have the plan under study.

"I believe this is one of the most important movements to have come along in American medicine," Sen. Wallace Bennett (R-Utah), chief congressional champion of the concept said.

The plan goes under the name of Professional Standards Review Organization. Sometimes it is called peer-group review, which means that physicians in a state or a large metropolitan area take command, doing what many say they should have been doing all along: Reviewing strictly admissions to hospitals, the length of patient stay and the level of care that patients get in hospitals and nursing homes. The idea started in pioneering experiments in the San Joaquin and Sacramento areas of California, where it was shown that medical costs should be cut by 15 to 20 percent with no sacrifice of quality care. Physicians, both in and out of the county medical societies, joined in medical-care foundations which became the base for sweeping reviews of patient care. Physician teams, aided by a computer, took advantage of national surveys, notably the "Ann Arbor study" of average hospital stays for various ailments across the country.

For example the review teams would look suspiciously at cases where patients of a certain age, operated on for perhaps an appendectomy or a corneal transplant, remained in a hospital measurably longer than the average for such cases. What they were trying to counter was the tendency of some patients to linger in hospitals because their health plans covered such care and the tendency among some hospitals to keep beds filled regardless of whether patients needed them.

Besides the dramatic results of the California experiments, there appear to be three reasons why the concept has spread rapidly in the last year.

One is the belief among many medical practitioners, that if the medical profession does not police its own ranks, bureaucrats will. A second was the inclusion in last year's Social Security-Medicare-welfare reform bill a provision that would make review mandatory in every state. The legislation died, but the message got through. The third was the explosion of the Medicaid program in some states. Costs of Medicaid are borne by both federal and state governments.

In New Mexico officials were afraid Medicaid costs would bankrupt the state so the New Mexico Foundation for Medical Care was formed. In April of this year, it signed a contract with the State Health and Social Services Department to review Medicaid cases.

The initial New Mexico survey showed that 510 patients were getting skilled nursing home care, while 608 patients were subsidized for intermediate care facilities. The review, however, determined that only 25 patients needed skilled care, 467 patients belonged in highlevel intermediate care, 258 patients needed only low-level intermediate care, and 378 recipients could have had their needs cared for outside of nursing homes.

Nov. 1 the state was scheduled to begin redetermining eligibility for Medicaid benefits on the basis of the review. That was when the nursing homes got a temporary injunction prohibiting such a move.

In Colorado the prime impetus for the state review also was the "desperate straits" of the state Medicaid program, according to Donald Derry, executive director of the Colorado Foundation For Medical Care. In that state the initial targets were hospital admission and length of stay.

According to Derry the results of the program have reduced the use of hospital care for Medicaid patients by 763 patient-days each week, a weekly saving of $52,000 in state funds. Length of stay for each patient was lowered from 6.9 to 5.1 days. Partly as a result the hospitals in the Denver Metropolitan area have seen a 20 per cent decline in occupancy in the last few months.

In Georgia a Medical Care Foundation under the leadership of Dr. F. W. Dowda of Atlanta has begun a review concentrating on nursing homes and hospitals. So far, Dr. Dowda said, savings in public funds have amounted to 10 and 15 percent.

Mrs. Lawrence Henry, Ellsworth: "Since this is the season for mince pies, cookies and fruit breads, I am sending the mincemeat recipe that has been in our family for well over half a century. It can be made in large quantities and canned and sealed for later use. It is better if made and let stand for a time to mellow and allow flavors to blend. This is a Pennsylvania Dutch recipe."

MINCEMEAT

For every 2 cups of finely chopped lean beef add the following:

- 2 cups raisins, chopped
- 2 cups sugar
- 1 cup chopped suet
- 4 cups finely chopped apples
- 2 cups currants
- 2 teaspoons salt
- 1 tablespoon each: nutmeg, cloves and cinnamon
- 1 cup meat stock from simmered lean meat

1 cup cider or grape juice (¾ cup sweet red wine may be used instead of the cider or grape juice.)

Simmer the lean meat in water to cover until tender. Cool in liquid, drain and save liquid. Chop or grind meat with coarse blade. Chop suet fine. Chop apples and raisins. Blend all ingredients, included, in the order named. Simmer slowly about one hour. Pour in hot sterile jars while mixture is hot. Seal and store in cool dry place. If only small amount is made it may be stored unsealed in covered container in refrigerator for several days to blend flavors.

Freezer Foods

Freezing is an excellent way to preserve many of the dishes that you make ahead of time. When preparing foods that will be freezer-stored, season them lightly. Then adjust the seasonings when the dish is reheated. Cloves, garlic, pepper and celery may become stronger when frozen with food mixtures. And onion, salt and chili powder may become weaker.

Self Adhesive Carpeting Now On Market

A new concept in carpeting takes all the mess, fuss and time out of installing broadloom wall-to-wall carpeting. You merely cut it, pull off a poly sheet and press it to the floor.

This new carpeting, introduced by a leading carpet company, is a system in itself. It has a foam rubber cushion back with a "releasable" total bonding system protected with a clear poly sheet. The carpet is readily lifted to move or reposition, again and again. The adhesive system used in this new you-do-it carpeting is the same as that used in the company's popular self-stick lines of carpet tiles. An advantage in using broadloom over tiles is the installation time saved when carpeting a large area.

Here are some installation tips: Determine just how much of the 6-foot wide material you will need and cut into sections—work with pieces as big as you can handle or as small as you prefer. With hubby or a friend, you can tackle a 9x12-foot room with two pieces (9x6-foot each). If the petite Miss or Mrs. is on her own, she might want to cut off 4 or 5-foot sections of the 6-foot wide carpeting for easy handling. When butted together, seams literally disappear. For cutting and trimming of excess material or around radiators you need only a razor knife or sharp scissors.

Three types of carpet are available: A luxurious five color printed shag, a patterned low profile tufted carpet and a patterned needlebond—one for every need from kitchen to den to living room and dining areas. Prices range from $4.50 to $8.00 a square yard.

Colorful Bathroom Accessories Require Careful Laundering

Today's colorful bathroom accessories—deep carpets, brightly hued towels and shower curtains—require careful laundering to maintain their brightness and softness.

Most terry towels are all cotton, but some contain rayon or other man-made fibers for added strength and absorbency.

Terry should be machine washed and dryer dried for best results. Use the regular cycle but never use hot water or chlorine bleach for deep tones or colored monograms.

To keep towels fluffy, absorbent and bright add 1 cup of a borax-based additive to your detergent, then dryer dry. Of course never iron terry. Another caution: Use fabric softeners sparingly, otherwise towels will not absorb readily.

Shower curtains, too, are washable. Soap film, minerals in the water build up and mildew on vinyl or plastic and curtains used without Put several bath towels in the curtain in the washer. Buffers and absorb moisture on regular cycle with detergent and one cup of additive to deodorize and mildew growth. Use cool dryer dry on no heat cycle. Hang on shower rod to dry.

Many shower curtains acetate, nylon, polyester take to machine washing only a brief wash on the gentle cycle with warm or cool water. Freshness and brightness borax product. All but acetate curtains should be dried on the low heat with a cool iron while still damp.

Bathroom carpets, area lidcovers can be machine washed the cycle with warm water cup of the borax additive. Rinse. Those with latex should not be dryer dried.

ANSWERS TO TURKEY QUESTIONS

What does "deep basted" mean? Special basting juices are added inside the turkey where hand cannot reach. The deep vegetable oil recipe does not add the good flavor but assures a degree of tenderness and moistness.

DO-IT-YOURSELF FOR MA BELL

Southwestern Bell is now experimenting with a program in which its customers who are moving scissor the wire and take the phone along with them. If a resident removes his phone, he gets $5.00 credit on his telephone account.

The process, shown here by a Kansas City telephone worker, involves snipping the telephone cord with scissors near the terminal box attached on the wall and carrying the telephone to the new residence.

Sewing Tip

Accuracy in sewing is very important not only for good fit but for fine workmanship. It might help to realize that most tape measures are five-eighths inch wide across the ends. This can be a great help in your sewing. To measure your seams, just use the metal-tip end of your tape. It's both quick and easy.

P&S Charge On Missouri Dealer

Henry Drake, a Seneca, Mo., livestock dealer, has been charged with violation of payment requirements of the Packers and Stockyards Act, the Department of Agriculture said yesterday.

The department charged in an administrative complaint that Drake issued insufficient fund checks for more than $46,000 worth of livestock purchased in February. Drake purchases livestock in northern Missouri, Oklahoma, eastern Kansas and southeastern Iowa.

Regulations require that livestock dealers pay for their stock by no later than the close of business the day following the sale unless credit has been arranged in advance.

John Anderson Talks Of Running Again For Gov.

Former Kansas Gov. John Anderson indicates that there is a chance that he might run for governor again.

Anderson, now a lawyer in Olathe, said he had been talking to people in the past weeks concerning the gubernatorial race.

"I don't really have anything concrete to say at this time, but I've been talking to some people. . . I will continue talking to them in the future. I want to see what the climate is at this time," Anderson said.

The republican's record includes one 4-year term in the Kansas Senate, from 1953-57; two 2-year terms as state attorney general; and two 2-year terms as governor.

More recently, Anderson faced

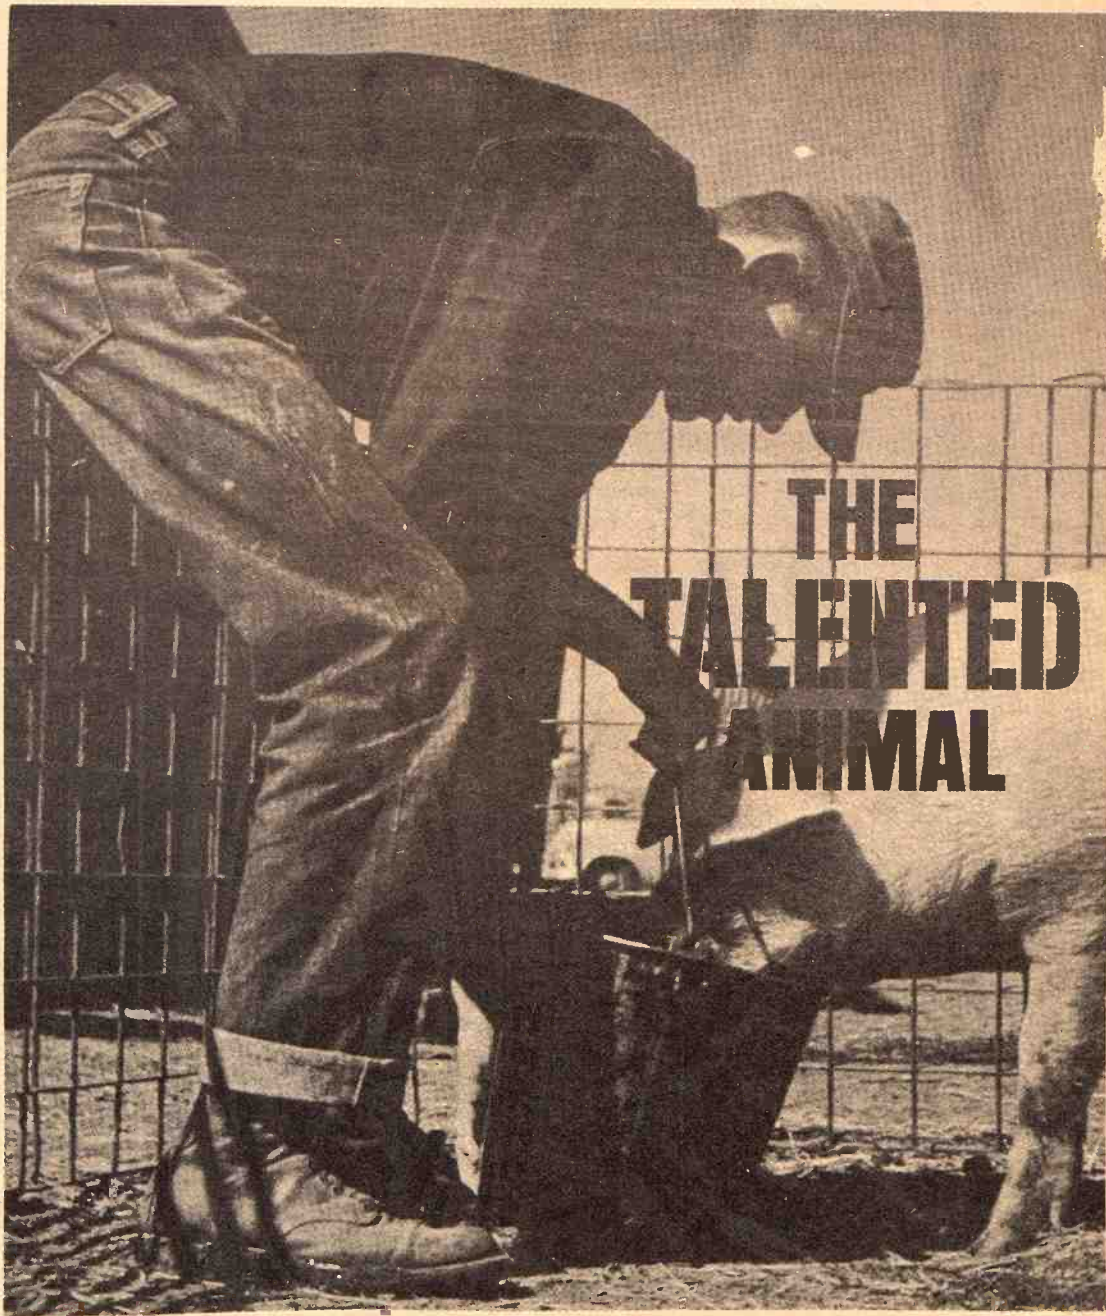

Kansas Supreme Court Justice Earl O'Connor, also of Olathe, in the bid for that federal judgeship vacancy. O'Connor was backed by Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan.; but Sen. James Pearson, R-Kan., supported Anderson. Anderson withdrew his name when the stalemate continued. O'Connor was appointed Supreme Court justice earlier this month.

No Way To Use All That Corn

In early November, the USDA raised its estimate of the 1971 corn crop to 5,552 million bushels. The new estimate is 152 million bushels, or 2 percent, larger than the forecast of 5,400 million made a month earlier.

Adding 152 million bushels to the previous forecast did not make much difference in the outlook for prices during the next several months. Most farmers and grain users already knew that the crop was bigger than had been forecast in October. Furthermore, this year's crop is so much larger than any possible needs that another 150 million bushels or so did not change the market situation very much. Prospective Needs

The amount of corn needed for domestic use this year seems likely to be between 4,700 and 4,800 million bushels. These figures are 6 to 8 percent larger than the 4,444 million bushels used and exported last year (ending with September 30). The figures are about the same as to 2 percent more than the 4,697 million bushels used during the 1969-70 marketing year.

We expect an increase in the use of corn this year because: (1) the price is lower, (2) more cattle will be fed, (3) less wheat will be used for feed, (4) poultry and egg production will increase, and (5) a substantial amount of corn will be exported to Russia. These increases will be partially offset by a 10-percent cut in hog production and by an abundance of grains in other countries.

It now appears that the corn crop exceeds needs by 750 to 850 million bushels, which is the largest excess ever produced. Prices are being maintained by the USDA loan program. If farmers put enough corn under loan—all of the excess and more, prices will rise 10 to 15 cents over the support level but only a small part of the crop can be redeemed at a profit.

Soybean Estimate Raised

In its November 11 report, the USDA raised its estimate of the 1971 soybean production to 1,200 million bushels—25 million above the October forecast and 64 million more than the crop harvested a year ago.

Even so, the present supply of soybeans is smaller than a year ago, because the carryover (on September 1) was cut from 230 million bushels a year ago to only 99 million bushels this season. Thus, the total supply at the beginning of this marketing year was only 1,299 million bushels, 67 million bushels less than last year. At least 50 million bushels will be needed for year-end "pipeline" supplies, so the usable supply was no more than 1,250 million bushels. This usable supply is 5 percent smaller than the amount used and exported in 1970-71.

The prospective shortage of soybeans does not insure that prices will rise, or even hold at present levels. As we have said before, price trends for soybeans will depend largely on the supplies of the many competing products—other edible fats and oils and other high-protein feeds. Also, prospects for the 1972 soybean crop—first acreage, then yield per acre—will influence the market, beginning early next spring.

Spiders In, Snakes Out At KU Live Exhibit

LAWRENCE—Spiders are in and snakes are out at the University of Kansas Museum of Natural History.

Ray Ashton, state taxidermist and director of the museum's educational services, is replacing the "Live Snakes of Kansas" exhibit with a similar live spider display. The snake display which opened last summer was so popular with visitors Ashton said they decided to continue "live exhibits" during the school year.

Only two types of spiders native to northeast portions of Kansas are dangerous to humans, Ashton said. They are the relatively common brown recluse spider and the not so common black widow. He added that a recluse variety will be displayed and he hopes to have a black widow, if one can be found.

Approximately 35 species will be collected and housed in aquarium cages previously occupied by snakes on the museum's sixth floor. Ten spiders and 12 snakes are on display.

The snakes will be moved to another section of the museum and will be used in traveling educational services programs planned for use in public schools and community groups' meetings.

Accompanying each spider will be a photograph and a printed description of the species.

The exhibit will run for four months. Museum hours are 10 a.m. to 4:45 p.m. Monday through Saturday and 1:30 p.m. to 4:45 p.m. Sunday and holidays.

Another USDA Official Quits

The man in charge of the government's most important consumer agencies is stepping on the heels of Agriculture Secretary Clifford M. Hardin in Nebraska.

Dr. Clayton Yeutter, director of the USDA Consumer Marketing Service, is announcing his resignation.

Yeutter, 40, is from Lincoln, Nebraska, and was named head of the agency which oversees federal meat and poultry inspection.

There was no immediate word of what Yeutter plans to do after leaving the department. Ralston Purina, St. Louis, was some speculation.

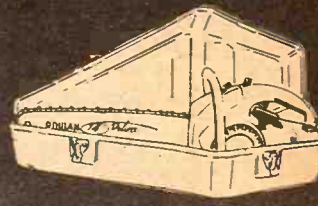

Yeutter's resignation comes another round of organizational difficulties for the USDA, which was the third administration by the Nixon administration in months.

Farm Bureau Leaders Of The Year

Here are the 10 men named by the Kansas Farm Bureau at its state convention at Wichita last week as 1971 Leaders of the Year.

Recognition includes a trip to Washington, D.C., next spring. There they will visit with members of Congress, officials of USDA and the Washington staff of the American Farm Bureau Federation.

This is the 23rd year the Kansas Farm Bureau has selected 10 farm leaders for recognition. The award is based on leadership activities in the county and state Farm Bureau, participation in community affairs and achievements in the business of farming.

Pearson Hails Senate Move To Allow 10% Tax Credit On Rural Jobs

James B. Pearson, R-Kan., week hailed Senate approval by vote of 60-19 of his amendment leasing to 10 percent the investment tax credit for investments which create new employment in rural areas.

This measure combines the goals of stimulating the economy and creating a more balanced national growth and reinforces the national commitment to balance growth between rural and urban areas. If adopted by the full Congress, it will permit the growth and development of Kansas," Pearson said.

Kansas' senior senator explained the amendment is drawn from the Rural Job Development Act, which has been cosponsored by 53 senators. The tax credit authorized by the amendment would be made available for new and existing business enterprises and industries in areas outside standard metropolitan statistical areas, when it can be demonstrated that employment opportunities will be improved.

Indian reservations, wherever they are located, would qualify for tax credit. It would not apply in areas experiencing population growth above the national average.

modification proposed by Sen. William Ribicoff, D-Conn., to apply increased tax credit in center areas where unemployment is per cent or higher passed the Senate.

"The glowing recommitment to rural development and balanced national growth is a result of a recognition that the process of massive, unguided urbanization has gone awry—that the gathering of people and industry has reached the point where the liabilities are beginning to outweigh the benefits," Pearson said in remarks delivered on the Senate floor.

'No Way' To Cut Feedlot Pollution To Zero

Kansas' director of the Environmental Health Service and a feedlot operator from Emporia, agree that a goal of zero discharge of pollutants as envisioned by the Environmental Protection Agency in 1985 is absurd.

Melville W. Gray, director of the Kansas Health Department's environmental program, said, "We've got to recognize fact from fiction."

In Kansas, he said, "30 million tons yearly of good topsoil goes out of the state by way of streams. Silt also carries organic materials which degrade surface water. The only sterile soil is in the deserts."

Ronald Hughes, co-owner of the Flint Hills Feedlot at Emporia, who said he spends $40,000 to $50,000 on pollution abatement, insisted: "There's no way we can control pollution 100 per cent. If that's going to be the EPA's rules by 1985, I can tell you there won't be any feedlots."

Hughes followed Gray in addressing the American Bankers Association conference on agricultural and rural interests at Kansas City. Together they called attention to "Ecology—a New Dimension in Agriculture."

The federal restrictions against pollution "are almost impossible," Gray said. They cannot be complied with in the rural areas, he said, and when the period for compliance expires, "we're just going to find the standards are not being met."

Gray said his department has held authority to enforce state laws regarding pollution since 1968, when it was estimated "it would take five years to completely implement the requirements and control animal wastes."

Winter Cuts Into Livestock Profit

Wintertime costs of maintaining a cowherd goes up as the thermometer mercury goes down. It takes a sharp manager to keep these cold season costs from eating into profits.

Dr. Keith Zoellner, Extension beef specialist at Kansas State University, says feed and feeding are the big reasons costs increase during winter. In most areas pasture is less expensive than silage, grain or hay. Also, cows gather the pasture themselves while most winter feeding requires some daily labor.

Some cattlemen get around some of these labor costs by self-feeding silage from a trench or bunker silo. This may not be the best way to handle it.

A 1,000-pound cow will eat 75 to 80 pounds of silage a day if allowed to have all she wants. She doesn't need this much. Fifty to 60 pounds are ample.

Zoellner says the farmer has to decide if he can produce the extra 20 to 25 pounds of silage at less cost than he can ration it out to the cow.

Another way to cut labor costs is with large capacity hay racks that only have to be filled two or three times a week. Also, grain and protein can be limited and self-fed by mixing with salt.

Hand-feeding is often preferred to self-feeding because it makes more economical use of feed and allows the farmer to see his animals daily.

A farmer needs to watch his cows closely for such things as calving problems, sickness, and other troubles that he could miss if he didn't feed them daily.

Here are some other suggestions from Zoellner:

- To be assured that each cow gets her share, spread the feed out so all animals can eat at the same time.

- If space is available, separate the young heifers with their first calf and the replacement heifers with no calf from the older cows. Feed these a little higher quality roughage and a few extra pounds of some kind of grain to get them off to a good start.

- The last month or six weeks is the most critical part of the winter. The cows should be nursing two to three-month-old calves by then and need to be in top physical condition. This means feeding the best quality feed available. The best quality feed should be saved for the last.

A word of comfort to those who concern themselves with "those poor critters" standing out in the bitter Kansas cold weather. The KSU specialist points out that Mother Nature provides for them. Cattle tend to put on a layer of fat next to the skin for insulation. Also, the dead hair does not shed from the haircoat but mats with new hair to form another layer of insulation.

Most cattle aren't bothered by wind and snow, but cold, driving rain does affect them. As a general rule, if they are well fed and can get to a grove of trees for some protection, they'll do well through the winter.

FLBA Predicts Favorable Rate On Interest

BELOIT—G. A. Wiles, vice-president and treasurer of the Federal Land bank of Wichita, told Beloit residents "Favorable interest rates for farmers are forecast for the next year or so."

Wiles, speaking at the local FLB meeting, said the cost of money had decreased in the past 18 months with farm credit agencies able to obtain ample funds at favorable rates.

Association manager Herman H. Eddy, reports 625 loans representing $6½ million of long term credit used by stockholders in Missouri, Ellsworth, Jewell and counties.

Nearly $340,000 worth were established during year.

"This follows the trend of ranchers turning towards long-term credit capital required for farm and ranch operation," said.

Hazel L. Fleming, who was elected to serve a year on the board of directors, members include J. J. Sylvan Grove, Harold Natoma and Harold Mankato.

Need Old Hydrants To Serve As Symbols, Not Targets

Happiness, someone once said, is a warm puppy . . . "resting" in someone else's yard.

Well, the lush grass and high trees of Kansas' highway safety "rest" areas are everybody's yard, supposedly.

But recently, tourists have stepped on a foul problem, more and more travelers, it seems, are taking more and more warm puppies on long trips . . . and for long "rests," at the safety stops.

Irate travelers — particularly those who've chosen to dress fashionably, or barefoot — have complained to State Highway Commissioner John Montgomery.

"We've received numerous complaints that people allowed their pets to foul the grounds indiscriminately," the highway director said.

But there are no restrooms for dogs. How to persuade the puppy to be "discriminating?" Fancy little huts? A bright bulls-eye on the grass here and there, with appropriate warnings posted to unsuspecting travelers afoot? Huge sand boxes? Fresh car tires?

No.

The state highway commission thinks it has the answer. The commission is looking for 15 to 20 old fire hydrants! A perfect target!

However, the fire hydrants must be "no longer useable for their intended purpose," Montgomery said.

The plea is urgent; the problem grows deeper each day.

"Governor Docking tells me no money is available to buy these, but a highway maintenance truck would be sent to pick them (old fire hydrants) up. Any city in Kansas that has any unwanted fire hydrants in their storage yards, please contact us," Montgomery said.

But Montgomery claims the hydrants would not be "targets," rather, "symbols".

Montgomery said that before next summer the commission will install signs in a few rest areas directing people who have pets to take them to a section of the rest area set aside for them. "The fire hydrants will be just a symbol," a highway commission statement said.

The plan is to install one or two hydrants in "obscure" corners of the rest areas, marking the reserved-for-pets section. The statement said Montgomery "noted that fire hydrants are durable, and they do seem to attract dogs".

Symbol? Target? Durable? To a dog, it may make no difference. Happiness, the highway commission has conceded, is a warm fire hydrant.

ANCA Threatens Higher Prices For DES Ban

The American National Cattlemen's Association plans to use the threat of much higher meat prices to combat a move in Congress to ban feeding of the growth hormone diethylstilbestrol.

A bill calling for the DES ban has been introduced by Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis.

The ANCA has proved to be an effective lobby on behalf of the cattle industry, including coups against an expansion of the meat import program and earlier attempts to crack down on DES.

Now, however, the real battle over the hormone, used since 1954 as a growth booster, seems to be developing. Beside the Proxmire bill in the Senate, DES interest in the

State Tax Collections

Below Estimate

State tax collections for the first quarter of the current fiscal year are $5.4 million below the estimate for the first quarter of the current fiscal year, according to the legislative Budget Committee.

For the first quarter of the year, receipts to the state were $1.7 million below the estimate and that gap widened in the second quarter.

The researchers estimate income taxes and interest deposits accounted for the gap between estimated receipts with retail collections only slightly below estimate.

"Income tax withholdings in October were $2 million estimated, at least, but could be offset in November such receipts are coming in the first two months of the year."

"Also, sales tax receipts estimated since October weekend," the report states, "makers had estimated that for the first four months of the year would be $111.5 million, they totaled only $106.2 million. The estimate on which are based was revised in the 1971 session to reflect the action."

House has picked up again with renewed looks by a Government Operations subcommittee headed by Rep. L. H. Fountain, D-N.C.

C. W. McMillan, ANCA executive vice president, says an outright DES ban would mean severe adjustments, including higher costs, for cattle producers.

McMillan and other industry spokesmen concede DES is headed for trouble. Part of the reason lately has been disclosures by the Agriculture Department that DES has shown up in beef and lamb liver samples. None was detected in the red-meat muscle tissue.

Late this summer USDA officials reported no DES residues had been detected through June this year. But the department, under fire from Proxmire, later acknowledged it had erred and disclosed 10 samples had shown DES residues. Others subsequently were reported.

A study by the Agriculture Department on the economic consequences of banning DES from animal feed is a major armament for cattlemen. That study, reported to Congress last June, says consumers would pay $300 million to $460 million a year more for beef, as much as 3½ cents a pound extra.

Petition For Jury Study Of Clay Hospital

CLAY CENTER—A citizens group is circulating petitions calling for a grand jury investigation of Clay County Hospital.

The drive apparently stemmed from a July 1970 hospital board decision to expell Dr. Ronald Strand from the staff of the hospital.

"Mainly we want trouble at the hospital investigated," said one of the petition drive organizers, Fred Schoneweis, Miltonvale.

"Over 200 names" have been collected on the petitions, Schoneweis said and 178 names are needed to get the grand jury impaneled.

Under a new state law, signatures of 100 qualified voters plus 2 per cent of the number who voted in the 1968 gubernatorial election are needed on a grand jury petition.

Schoneweis said his group has been in contact with the attorney general and hopes to have the petitions ready to present to the county attorney and county clerk in less than two weeks.

Strand's license to practice was suspended last year by Kansas Healing Arts Board, which later stayed its order and allowed him to continue to practice under the board's supervision.

The board gave no reason for the suspension.

The hospital board then suspended

Strand. A district court order later allowed Strand to practice in the hospital, but Strand voluntarily resigned from the hospital staff.

Propose New Senate Districts

A plan for reapportioning the 40 seats of the Kansas Senate has been recommended for submission to the 1972 legislative session.

The plan would perpetuate the policy of having senators from metropolitan areas to run at-large from the area, rather than to run in individual districts.

Under the plan, six senators would be elected at large from Sedgwick County; four from Johnson County, three from a portion of Wyandotte County and three from a district which would include Shawnee and Jefferson counties.

The average population of the state per Senate seat is 56,231. The Senate districts with single senators would range in population from 53,944 to 58,916, although the Wyandotte County district with three senators would have an average population of 59,484 per senator.

Five districts would be divided among two or more districts.

Crawford County would be divided between districts 7 and 8; Geary between 12 and 15; Reno among 18, 21 and 22, Sumner between 20 and 21 and Wyandotte, between 2 and 3.

Dist. 1, 54,888—Doniphan, Brown, Atchison and Jackson counties.
Dist. 2, 56,732—Leavenworth and a portion of Wyandotte County.
Dist. 3, an average of 59,484 for each of three senators—a portion of Wyandotte County.
Dist. 4, an average of 56,097 for each of four senators—Johnson County.
Dist. 5, 54,080—Douglas County.
Dist. 6, 54,256—Osage, Franklin and Miami counties.
Dist. 7, 54,969—Coffey, Anderson, Linn, Allen, Bourbon and a portion of Crawford counties.
Dist. 8, 57,007—The remainder of Crawford County plus Cherokee County.
Dist. 9, 57,414—Labette, Neosho and Wilson counties.
Dist. 10, 54,917—Elk, Chautauqua and Montgomery counties.
Dist. 11, 56,364—Butler, Greenwood, and Woodson counties.
Dist. 12, 55,518—Marion, Chase, Lyon, Morris and a portion of Geary County.
Dist. 13, an average of 56,223 for each of three senators—Shawnee and Jefferson counties.
Dist. 14, 55,976—Washington, Marshall, Nemaha, Pottawatomie and Wabaunsee counties.
Dist. 15, 58,421—Riley and Jackson counties.
Dist. 16, 53,944—Crawford, Cherokee and Dickinson counties.

23 Corn Stalks, Other Crop Residue, Seen As Low-Cost Feed Source

Cow-calf operators are recognizing a larger demand for feedlot cattle but may be wondering where they can find an additional source of feed for the increased number of animals.

The use of crop residue, particularly corn stalks, to reduce production costs of existing cow-calf herds or to expand cow-calf production has been studied by Dr. John Ward, associate professor of animal science, University of Nebraska-Lincoln. Crop residue is considered a potential source of the additional energy needed to meet this rising demand.

"The potential per acre of harvested corn might be thought of as energy for finishing two yearling steers and furnishing a cow maintenance ration for approximately four months," Ward said.

The study conducted by Ward tested different forms of crop residue for use as a winter roughage. Stalklage (which consists of mostly stalks with some leaves, husks and cobs), grazing brome regrowth, and grazing corn stalk fields were evaluated.

The stalklage was cut with a flail chopper, recut and water added to make a product that was about 50 per cent dry matter and ensiled.

The cattle wintered with a hay ration were grazed on the regrowth of a brome pasture which had been cut for hay. Brome hay was fed free choice. Brome hay was fed as necessary due to snow cover to the cattle grazing corn stalks.

The cattle used in the study consisted of 100 head of gestating F-1 Angus x Hereford heifers due to drop their first calves in the spring.

Results showed that all groups of cattle during the wintering period, December 15 through March 1 had similar weight gains averaging 28 pounds per head.

The stalklage fed cattle were kept on a stalklage ration from calving until being moved to the breeding pasture. They weighed approximately 125 pounds less than the other two groups. The other two groups were fed hay and were pastured during the same period of time.

Stalklage-fed cattle were in poor body condition when moved to summer pasture which resulted in their calves averaging nearly 20 pounds less than the other two groups on an unadjusted 205 day weaning weight.

Ward stressed that this difference in weight does not mean that stalklage is not useable as a food source. Stalklage can be used for gestating cows without additional energy sources.

"It's an acceptable feed if used in the right way and supplemented with protein, vitamin A, and minerals," Ward said. He added that another source of energy is necessary with stalklage to fulfill the nutritive demands of lactating cattle.

Grazing stalks has proved to be the most simple and economical way of using corn crop residue. Less than 50 per cent of the available dry matter will be utilized by the cows when grazed, however. One method used to increase the percentage of the stalks utilized is to section off the field. Cattle graze one section entirely before being turned into another. This does result in a larger percentage of corn stalk residue being consumed by cattle. One drawback to this method is the possibility of losing grazing potential due to heavy snow cover.

Other forms of residue use include husklage, stalklage, and whole plant corn silage. These are more efficient methods of using stalks but are more costly due to additional harvesting expenses.

Husklage consists primarily of the husk and cob and is collected in a trailer pulled behind the combine. Several manufacturers offer equipment for this harvesting operation. If a dump trailer is used, husklage can be dumped randomly in the field or on the headlands. No additional labor is needed beyond normal grain harvest but husklage can be moved with a tractor mounted grapple fork if desired.

Stalklage is harvested by a forage harvester with a flail pickup attachment following directly behind a combine or picker. More material can be obtained behind a picker because of the less aggressive snapping rolls and the larger quantity of husks remaining attached to the stalks.

Whole plant corn silage is harvested like regular corn silage at 3-35 per cent dry matter. This eliminates additional trips needed in other forms of crop residue use. It makes an excellent feed but usually provides more energy than is needed for wintering beef cattle.

Several variables determine the value of the crop residue. Time of harvest, per cent moisture, quality and composition can vary greatly. Different levels of protein and energy supplements are needed to supply the cattle with an adequate ration.

Expanding European Feeding A Market For U.S. Grain

Greatly expanded livestock production in eastern Europe and the resultant increased demand for grains for feed should benefit American grain producers.

This was the conclusion of a joint U.S. commodity team which just returned from visits to Poland, Romania, Hungary and Czechoslovakia.

The five-man team was made up of representatives from wheat, feed grain and soybean groups and the foreign agricultural service, USDA.

"The increased east European demand for grains is based largely on a need for feedstuffs to meet goals set for increased livestock production necessary for the planned enrichment of east European diets," according to Joseph Halow, Great Plains Wheat's executive vice president, a team member representing U. S. wheat producers.

"Although wheat is used also as a feed grain in eastern Europe," Halow said, "prices for wheat are relatively higher than those for feed grains."

The team did not, therefore, see wheat as clearly as a part of the program for increased grain imports, in the short run.

The short-run benefits accrue to the U.S. wheat producer in the tightening of all grain markets as a result of the greatly expanded demand for other grains. Since western Europe has apparently already sold all its barley surpluses to eastern Europe, more attention will be given to wheat feeding in the EC, increasing possibilities of larger imports of higher protein wheats, from the U.S."

Hallow said, "Of the countries the team visited, only two actually produce enough wheat to meet domestic requirements, and Romania has in the last several years generally produced a small surplus for export." He further pointed out that such exports cut into the potential western European markets for U.S. hard winter wheats. Since all these countries are expected to use their grains for livestock their interest in grain exports should be diminished or nonexistent, again increasing U.S. export potential to west European and other markets which customarily purchased Romanian wheat. Poland and Czechoslovakia will undoubtedly continue to be large importers of wheat. Although they now cover their requirements largely from the Soviet Union, in view of the fact that the Soviet Union must itself rely on imports, both Poland and Czechoslovakia provide possibilities for direct shipments. There should at least be compensatory shipments to the Soviet Union to replace wheat which the Soviets may sell to Poland and Czechoslovakia. It is of lesser importance in which countries the additional import requirements are manifest."

"In the long run the demand for better diets in eastern Europe will make itself felt in need for stronger wheats to produce better breads," Halow concluded.

The team was headed by Raymond A. Ioanes, Administrator of the USDA's Foreign Agricultural Service. Other members were Chester Randolph, Director of Market Development, American Soybean Association; Darwin Stolte, President U.S. Feed Grains Council; and Harold Champeau, of the Grain and Feed Division, FAS/USDA.

State Feedlots Open Up To Lamb Feeders

Sheep and lambs on feed for the slaughter market in Kansas totaled 125,000 on November 1, 15,000 head above a year ago and the largest number in five years, according to the Kansas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service.

Included in the total sheep and lambs on feed were those being grazed on volunteer and seeded wheat pasture, and on aftermath in harvested corn, grain sorghum, and sugar beet fields in addition to those in confined feedlots.

Of the sheep and lambs on feed November 1, some 85 percent were placed on feed during the months of September and October.

Many of the lambs on feed in Kansas were shipped in from Texas, New Mexico, Colorado and Oklahoma. By weight, the sheep and lambs on feed November 1 were grouped in the following categories: Under 70 pounds, 57,000; 70-79 pounds 46,000; 80-89 pounds, 12,000; and 90 pounds or over, 10,000.

In western Kansas volunteer wheat for pasturing lambs was rather limited but seeded wheat by November 1 was beginning to provide considerable feed. Lambs were also grazing on harvested corn and grain sorghum fields and on sugar beet tops. Lambs in south central Kansas were feeding on wheat pasture, grain sorghum aftermath and corn stalks.

Major Feeding States

Sheep and lambs on feed in seven major feeding States on November 1, 1971 are estimated at 1,444,000 head.

This reflects a 3 percent drop from the 1,493,000 head on feed a year ago, and continues the down trend of the past decade.

Declines in sheep and lambs on feed in Iowa, South Dakota, Nebraska, Colorado and California, more than offset a 14 percent increase in Kansas and a 35 percent boost in Texas.

Of the seven State total on feed November 1, an estimated 1,217,000 head were placed during September and October and 227,000 were placed before September 1.

By weight groups, the number of sheep and lambs on feed November 1 and the change from a year ago are as follows: Under 70 pounds—285,000 head, up 56,000; 70-79 pounds—403,000 head, down 14,000; 80-89 pounds—390,000 head, down 46,000; 90-99 pounds—289,000 head, down 100,000; 100 pounds and over—97,000 head, down 1,000.

Merger Doesn't Appeal To ANCA, Feeders Assn

A proposal to merge the American National Cattlemen's Association, Denver, and the National Livestock Feeders Association, Omaha, has gotten cool treatment from the leaders of both organizations. The suggestion that the two cattlemen groups merge for the purpose of heightening the efficiency of their efforts on the state level was made by Baxter Freese, president of the Iowa Beef Producers Association in a written proposal directed to the officers of both groups. Freese said for several years both the Iowa Livestock Feeders Association and the Iowa Beef Producers Association have discussed the inefficiency of their duplicative efforts. Both organizations recognize a need to merge, but because of individual and affiliate membership requirements of their parent organizations, a state merger cannot be consummated, he explained. "IBPA directors have concluded that a national merger is the logical answer to eliminate duplicative association educational programs and services at the national and state levels," he added. In Denver, American National officials expressed interest, and W. D. Farr, president, said the merger proposal would be carefully evaluated by the ANCA executive committee at its regularly scheduled mid-December meeting.

He said ANCA has felt a building momentum in many areas for a single cattle industry spokesman to represent the economic, political and promotional needs of the beef industry. "The merger approach could well be the best method of achieving that goal," he added. A reply to the Freese proposal was made for the feeders associations by Irving Anton, president of the Iowa Livestock Feeders Association. Anton said, "The suggestion that the National Livestock Feeders Association, headquartered in Omaha, and the American National Cattlemen's Association, headquartered in Denver, merge into one group in order to solve Iowa's organizational problem is unrealistic. Such a merger could occur someday, when enough people feed it is advisable, but we have a local problem now, not a national one." Anton said further, "you don't solve family (state) problems by asking all the neighbors (other states) to intercede and change their way of life. As far as the cattle industry in Iowa is concerned, we're all one family with the same types of operations and problems, and we ought to be able to get together ourselves without trying to prevail on other states to change their organizational structures. This is what the Iowa Livestock Feeders Association has been trying to do. Sometime ago the ILFA board of directors made a reasonable and meaningful proposal to the Iowa Beef Producers. We have never had an official reply to that proposal, nor have we received a counterproposal for the merger of the two organizations in Iowa. "Instead," Anton continued, "we've been answered by a suggestion that the two national organizations merge. When making our proposal, the ILFA board of directors felt it was an internal, private matter and, pending consideration and an answer from the IBP, no public announcement of it was made. I feel quite strongly it would have been most appropriate if the president of the IBP had exercised the same consideration." With respect to a possible merger, Anton said, "in the consolidation of any groups where structural differences exist, it is necessary that each make some concessions. The ILFA proposal to the IBP contained concessions, subject to the vote of our membership. The IBP suggestion of national merger contains no concessions on their part whatsoever, and actually calls for concessions on the part of all other states making up the two national groups. "I'm sure the Iowa Livestock Feeders Association will still entertain a realistic offer to merge with the Iowa Beef Producers in the state. However, the annual meeting of the ILFA is coming up December 8th and 9th in Des Moines when decisions will be made for next year. In the absence of an answer to the ILFA proposal, or a substitute merger proposal from IBP, we will have no alternative but to continue to build the Iowa Livestock Feeders Association as a separate organization," Anton concluded.

Western Sugar Payments Total $61 Million

Great Western Sugar Co.'s initial payment to sugar beet growers for the 1971 crop will total a record $61.7 million, a company official says. The previous record payment was $55.2 million in November 1968. George Wilber Jr., president of the Denver-based firm, said payment will be made to about 4,200 growers in Colorado, Wyoming, Montana, Kansas and Nebraska. The initial payment covers beets delivered through Nov. 4, he said, when the harvest was 91 per cent complete. Wilber said the 1971 crop was "very satisfactory" in spite of some recent unseasonably cold weather. He said, however, that from a tons-per-acre standpoint, the crop was one of the best ever. The 1971 crop tonnage was above average, he said, although sugar content was below average.

Name Names On Air Pollution Standards

The State Board of Health has ordered 27 steam generating plants to report air pollution emissions to determine whether they are in compliance with state air quality regulations.

Howard F. Saiger, air quality supervisor for the board, said the list contains the names of all steam generating electric plants in Kansas which have not previously been issued reporting notices.

Orders went to these plants:

Anthony Municipal Power Plant; Central Kansas Power Co. Inc., Colby; Central Kansas Power Co. Inc., Hays; Central Kansas Power Co. Inc., Hill City (Ross Beach No. 1 and Ross Beach No. 2); Central Telephone and Utilities Corp., Concordia; Central Telephone and Utilities Corp., Dodge City; Central Telephone and Utilities Corp., Great Bend; Central Telephone and Utilities Corp., Liberal; Chanute

Municipal Power Plant; Clay Center Municipal Power Plant; Coffeyville Municipal Power Plant; Empire District Electric Co., Riverton; Iowa Municipal Power Plant; Kansas Gas and Electric Co., Gordon Evans Station, Colwich; Kansas Gas and Electric Co., Murray Gill Station, Electric Co., Kansas Gas and Electric Co., Wichita; Kansas Gas and Electric Co., Ripley Station, Wichita; Kansas Gas and Electric Co., Neosho Station, Parsons; Kansas Gas and Electric Co., Wichita Station, Wichita; Kansas Power and Light Co., Abilene; Kansas Power and Light Co., Hutchinson; Larned Municipal Power Plant; McPherson Municipal Power Plant; Ottawa Municipal Power Plant; Pratt Municipal Power Plant; Wellington Municipal Power Plant; Wheatland Electric Cooperative Inc., Garden City; and Winfield Municipal Power Plant.

If the plants are found to be in violation of state air quality standards, they will be required to adopt compliance schedules.

In addition to the power plants, the board issued notices to these Topeka companies:

Cable Spinning Equipment Co. Inc., Rosco Concrete Pipe Co. Inc., and Santa Fe Railway Co.

It also sent a notice to the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railroad Co. in Kansas City, Kan.

The board notified these cities that they must report emission levels from open burning at their city dumps:

Baxter Springs, Coffeyville, Frontenac, Great Bend, Independence, Osawatomie, Paola and Parsons.

At the same time, the board was informed that these companies meet emission regulations:

Kansas Power and Light Co., Lawrence; Kansas Power and Light Co., Tecumseh; Leavenworth Steel Inc., Leavenworth; McPherson Custom Products, McPherson; Union Construction Co. (asphalt plant), Lenexa; Broce Construction Co. Inc., Dodge City (Now in Oklahoma).

NO MORE THROWAWAY STRIPS

If cans like this one are used by beverage-makers, there will be no more of those sharp metal strips left over from opening throwaway cans.

A Colorado brewing firm will use a can like this one. To open the can the user first pushes the small disc to relieve pressure from inside the can. Then he presses the dime-sized tab, which folds inside the can. There still is no patent issued on this opener, though one has been applied for.

Several beverage-makers have talked about cans which would eliminate the ring-pull openers. The old type are often criticized because they often are the cause of cuts, defy picking up, and do not decompose in the soil.

The Kansas City-Wyandotte county air pollution control office informed the board that these industries in the Kansas City area have met emission regulations:

American Walnut Co., Asphalt Sales Inc., Bartlett and Co., Bennett-Rogers Pipe Coatings Inc., Board of Public Utilities, Boise Cascade-Composite Can Division, Breddo Food Products Corp., Bruce Milling Co. Inc., Cargill Inc., Darby Corp., Far-Yar Co. Inc., Farm-land Industries Inc., Fordyce Concrete Inc., Inland Industries Inc., Jones and Laughlin Steel Corp., Kansas City Structural Steel Co., Mobil Oil Corp., Perk Foods Co., Philadelphia Quartz Co., Phillips Petroleum Co., Reno Construction Co. Inc., (Rock Quarry), Sealright Co. Inc., Scott Barrel Co. Inc., Simonds-Shields-Theis Grain Co., The Sims Barrel Co. Inc., Swift and Co., Textileana-Nesse Inc., Thompson-Hayward Chemical Co., J. A. Tobin Construction Co. (Rock Quarry), Wilson Certified Foods Inc., and Wolcott and Lincoln Inc.

The Kansas City Air Pollution office said these industries do not meet emission regulations:

Certain-Teed/Saint Gobain Insulation Corp., E. C. Conroy Coffee Co., Inland Underground Facilities Inc., Life-Weight Products Inc., Stewart Sand and Material Co., J. A. Tobin Construction Co. (asphalt plant), and Union Construction Co. (asphalt plant).

The Board said Rockwell Manufacturing Co. of Atchison and Union Quarries Inc. of Lenexa failed to meet emission standards and compliance schedules will be required.

It also approved compliance schedules for these firms:

Cities Service Oil Co., Hutchinson; Delco-Remy Division of General Motors Corp., Olathe; General Portland Cement Co., Fredonia; Kato Woodwork Co. Inc., Lawrence; Monarch Cement Co., Humboldt; and Rockwell Manufacturing Co., Atchison.

Broad Range In New Statistical Summary

Wedding bells rang out 22,421 times in Kansas during 1970, for the highest number of marriages recorded annually in the state since 1947.

But the Kansas marriage rate for 1970 still was somewhat smaller than the estimated marriage rate for the nation as a whole.

The Kansas State Dept. of Health's Division of Registration and Health Statistics Services, in its newly issued annual summary of vital statistics, lists June as the most popular month for marriage (13.8 per cent of the total performed), and March as the least favorite month in which to be married (6 per cent.).

The largest percentage of Kansas brides in 1970 were married at 18 years, with the largest percentage of bridegrooms, 21 years.

The most frequent marital combination last year consisted of an 18-year-old bride and a 19-year-old bridegroom.

But while more couples were marrying in the state, there also was a 10.4 per cent increase in divorces and annulments over the 1969 total. Kansas, in 1970, had a divorce and annulment rate of 3.9 per 1,000 population—higher than the estimated 1970 national divorce and annulment rate of 3.5.

The couples most frequently divorced in Kansas were in the age group of 20 to 24 years.

Kansas in 1970 had the highest total number of divorces recorded since that of 1946.

The majority of the divorces and annulments in the state in 1970 occurred during the early stages of marriage, with over two-thirds involving marriages of seven years' duration or less. The highest concentration was noted during the second year with 13.1 per cent of the total. Nearly 40 per cent of all divorces and annulments involved marriages of less than three years' duration.

duration.

Children were affected in 60.3 per cent of the cases.

The new legal grounds for divorce action, "incompatibility," was the most frequent specified legal ground, accounting for 39.8 per cent of the cases. Extreme cruelty decreased in importance from 63.9 per cent of the cases in 1969 to only 39.3 per cent of the 1970 total.

Kansas, according to the U.S. Bureau of the Census, had 2,249,071 on April 1, 1970. This represents an increase of 3.2 per cent from the 1960 census.

The state had a net out-migration of 132,966 between 1960 and 1970, an average of 13,297 annually. The largest total net in-migration during the 10-year period was recorded for Johnson County, with a gain of 49,946. The largest net out-migration was experienced in Sedgewick County, with a loss of 44,085.

The Kansas population in 1970 was 94.5 per cent white, with 5.5 per cent nonwhite. Females comprised the majority, with 51 per cent of the total population. The age group with the highest proportion of Kansas residents in 1970 was that of 25 through 34 years, with 11.5 per cent of the total.

The numbers of older age groups increased and the age group under 5 years decreased.

Live births increased in Kansas by 4.3 per cent over 1969, with 38,215 born last year. The majority were males—51.3 per cent. But, despite this, non-white mothers gave birth to 49.4 per cent males, with 50.6 per cent females.

Illegitimacy continued its steady climb in 1970, as it has for the last 50 years.

During the initial 12-month period of the revised abortion law—from July 1, 1970, through June 30, 1971—there were 8,549 therapeutic abortions performed in Kansas.

Among them, 7,645 were white; 794 were non-white; and for the remaining 110, race was not stated.

The majority—64.8 per cent—were single when the abortion was performed. The primary reason for requesting abortions was that of mental health, in 89.8 per cent of the cases.

Of the total, 3,244 were Kansas residents. The rest came from 34 other states, primarily Missouri, Illinois, Iowa and Oklahoma.

Deaths in Kansas decreased by 4.3 per cent from 1969. Yet the 1970 Kansas death rate was substantially greater—3.2 per cent—than the comparable 1970 national rate.

Overall average age at death in Kansas during 1970 was 67.8 years. The average age at death for males in 1970 was 65 years, and the average age for females, 71.2 years.

The 15 leading causes of death, in order in 1970 were: Heart, cancer, cerebrovascular disease, accidents, influenza and pneumonia, general arteriosclerosis, diabetes Mellitus, diseases of early infancy, emphysema, suicide, cirrhosis of the liver, congenital birth defects, nephritis and nephrosis, homicides, and peptic ulcer.

Heart disease, far and away, led the causes, with 38.4 per cent of the deaths. Cancer, the second leading cause of death, comprised 16.6 per cent.

The first four causes of death—heart disease, cancer, cerebrovascular disease, and accidents—were responsible for almost three-fourths of the total.

Cancer was among the three leading causes of death in every age group, with the exception of those under 1 year of age. Accidents were the leading cause of death among persons 1 through 44 years of age.

The 1970 total of heart disease decreased a notable 5.5 per cent from the 1969 total. But despite this improvement, the 1970 Kansas heart disease death rate exceeded the estimated national rate for 1970 by 3.6 per cent.

The report showed a slight decrease in deaths from cancer during 1970—.2 per cent. In the period of 1946 to 1970, deaths from cancer of the stomach declined almost 55 per cent. There also was a sharp decline in uterine cancer deaths in the period from 1940 to 1970, undoubtedly influenced by the "Pap" smear test.

But there have been significant increases in Kansas in deaths from cancer of the bronchus and lung and in leukemia mortality.

There were almost five times as many fatalities recorded from bronchus and lung cancer in 1970 as were recorded in 1949. Deaths resulting from leukemia have increased almost 100 per cent since 1946.

In accidents—the fourth leading cause of death in Kansas in 1970—50.3 per cent resulted from motor vehicles. Of the non-motor vehicle accidents, falls caused the most deaths, with females being the victims in the majority of cases.

Suicides decreased in Kansas in 1970, but the rate still was 1.8 per cent higher than the estimated rate for the nation.

The 106 homicides registered in Kansas during 1970 was the highest numerical total recorded in the state since 1934, when 118 fatalities were registered. The majority of homicides were recorded among the white population, with 63.2 per cent of the total.

Infant deaths (under 1 year of age) in Kansas last year were the lowest recorded since 1912. The infant death rate in Kansas was 10.6 per cent lower than the estimated 1970 rate for the United States.

Each day during 1970 Kansas averaged approximately: 105 births, including eight illegitimate births; one stillbirth; two infant deaths; 61 marriages; one annulment; 23 divorces; 23 abortions; 60 deaths, including 23 from heart disease, 10 from cancer, and four from accidents.

No NFO Support For Butz

The head of the National Farmers Organization made a charge of agribusiness bias Wednesday against Dr. Earl L. Butz, nominated to be secretary of agriculture.

Oren Lee Staley, president of the farm organization, said even though Butz has resigned his directorships on large agriculture related firms "it is unlikely he will be able to resign his longtime agribusiness biases."

Testifying before the Senate Agriculture Committee, which is considering Butz' nomination, Staley said "there is no point in mincing words on what this confirmation vote means."

The Senate will select "between an historic commitment to opportunity for people on the land and a goal of mechanical efficiency that drive people out of rural areas, eliminates farms and small business enterprises, and destroys rural communities," Staley said.

Staley said naming Butz to the job would be like naming the president of General Motors Corp. as secretary of labor and appointing AFL-CIO President George Meany secretary of commerce.

Butz testified earlier in the day that he is for the family farmer.

"But I don't want to freeze him in concrete where he can't make an adequate living for his family," Butz said.

On numerous specific questions from committee members Butz declined to say what his policy might be saying he is not ready to commit himself or the administration to a set course.

Sen. Bob Dole, Kansas, chairman of the Republican National Committee, agreed with Staley and other Butz critics that some farm crop prices are too low but said he is satisfied Butz will work to improve the status of American farmers. "I'm also aware we're in the throes of an election campaign" and some Butz opponents might be eyeing the possible political mileage involved in defeating a presidential nomination, Dole said.

Aussies Take To Shorthorns

The fourth annual auction of the A.G.F. Munro Shorthorn—Polled Shorthorn Stud, Weebollabolla, Moree, NSW, made recent Australian Shorthorn history.

A total of 144 bulls sold for a $1,668 average and the Queensland Country Life called it "one of the most sensational sales in Australian Shorthorn history."

Two bulls sold for a top price of $4,000 and 14 bulls sold for $3,000 or more. No bulls sold for less than $1,000.

The North Australian Pastoral Co. were buyers of one of the $4,000 top sellers and took four others for their 6,400 square mile ranch in the Northern Territory. This firm has bought more than 3,000 Weebollabolla Shorthorn bulls in the last 13 years, the biggest draft being 415 head. Company Manager Bill Young stated "that Shorthorn cattle were the only breed for the Northern Territory."

About 2,000 Shorthorn enthusiasts attended the sale.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING FOR WEEK OF NOV. 22 —

Thanksgiving week, or did the federal system change it. Farmers lot should be looking up with new agriculture chiefs Butts coming. Too bar about Hardin getting fired. Mr. Butts won't have to worry about small farmers for long. They are disappearing rapidly. I understand he's an old farm boy from Indiana and understands farm problems. Why shouldn't he. He was trained by Benson and the past few years he's been working for Martha and John Mitchell, the two No. 1 do-gooders, the atty. generals.

Just arrived. No. 115 JD Chuck Wagon with heavy duty running gear $1395

932 Case tractor, very new condition, 68 model, 1200 hours use. New 18.4x34 tires, big tires front, etc. $4650

For sale — good used cab for 930 tractor, row crop, Egging-nearly new $395

Did you head the abd news about Cheney Reservoir? Corps of Engineers dam near Wichita. The wind blew a crack and they had to drain it and pump the crack full of oats & concrete. Must have been embarrassing for the Corpse, Mr. Pinky I mean Colonel — Must have gotten there T.O. Mixed up to make all them generals 2600 high rankers 160 3 stars that's a lot of brass — No wonder the Vietnam war dragged out for so long. So they all could get their promotions.

1968 1032 Case, 3 pt. hitch, 23" tires, cab & air conditioner, reduced to $5450

Wichita getting plenty of help from DC going to build an agriculture center. That ought to help the small farmer? Also going to build Indian center at Cheney. So indians could meet with friends. Bet they forgot to ask the Indians. Could be the indians could use the money better somewhere else.

Verv late Moline 6' onewav, 26" blades, hyd. lift, cast wheels & weights, very good condition, $169

Model T running gear, no motor, no body, just chassis $39 Blair feed wagon, new $999 delivered. Used Blair feed wagon $749.

Read where one presidential candidate already dropped out. Too poor to run I would imagine. It cost Dick & sponsors $35,000,000 to get him elected. Wouldn't say we got a bargain.

Have antique rock house to sell. Dated 1869, nearly oldest in town. Comes with 17 acres of creek & river and a little farm land. Would make ideal restoration material for a professor or lawyer or doctor. Will furnish antique stoves and antique plows and antique two-holer in deal. Great possibility for development. Barn included. $9,999.99

Nearly new 3x16 3 pt. mounted plow, only $239 fit any 3 point

900 Case diesel tractor, good sound tractor, pulls 5 bottom 16" plow $1499

800 Case row crop tractor, Eagle hitch, PS & weights $1399 830 Case tractor, 64 model row crop way above average condition, Eagle hitch, 2600 actual hours, clean $2950

Mr. Butts once said at a meeting, there are lots of people farming who shouldn't be farmers. Same could be said about dept. secretaries and presidents. We've had them and still have them as such Still haven't received my like type proof dollars at five each. Could be they're being made in Japan.

With election year coming up we people should pass a law limiting their speeches to one channel so we wouldn't get so fed up & might even vote.

I read the ASC bulletin mailed out last week. Says smile & sign up & complain & they are closed for Thanksgiving and think about your farming for next year.

Ford tractor & loader, live pump unit, works OK. 8N unit. Runs good. Clean appearance $849

WD Allis tractor, wide axle, runs good, clean appearance, $649

Can't think LBJ & his bird lady would do much good back in D.C. but they stopped off to give Dick & Pat some advice & tour the White House?

While they all are going thru Phase I-II-III small farmers & small businesses are being phased out. Nixon leading down the road to peace & prosperity. Said he had a dream & a vision and when he woke up he had made $200,000 on a land deal in Flor'da with Reboza.

John Deere No. 60 '55 model row crop tractor, LP fuel, 3 pt. hitch $999

WD 45 allis, new engine, new transmission overhaul, new hand clutch. Wide axle .. $1149

WD 45 Allis tractor, wide axle, fair condition $695

Too bad about Meany pickin on the president the way he does. He should show more courtesy. Didn't even honor with "Hail To The Chief. It's up to us farmers for Phase 4. Just don't buy anything new for 10 months and prices will surely seek a new lower level. Just try it for six months. Would make a lot of management, labor and government officials wonder what had happened when it hit the fan.

Martha Mitchell going back to visit her home town in Arkansas has to have 2 FBI agents escort her. No wonder it takes thousands of agents to escort these people about.

See where big federal gov. going to pour money into country areas by the millions. I think what they mean is like Topeka, Wacnita, Hutchinson, Salina, etc. it sure won't be Marion or Madison or White City or Waverly or Clyde, Kansas. The reason would be there wouldn't be enough potential votes there to gather.

Had a letter from Dick's helper this week with stamps on it said they are still wounding down the war & not to worry, that they were going to bring troops home from Germany when Penny-gone saw fit.

New 12' Schaefer wheel chisel, must take less this week.

600 Case combine, good condition, 62 model, 13' ready to cut $1995

28' Mordidge springtooth crust buster, used only 100 acres $599 500 Case diesel tractor, good used tractor, very good 18.4x34 tires $1050

New Case & Allis machinery, being sold at cost for the rest of the year to help out with the phases. Wonder what happened to the do-gooders on the launch sites and the garbage dump at Lyons and the prairie park people. They must have gone underground. I hope.

COLD WEATHER DRIVING PUTS GREATEST DEMAND ON IGNITION, ELECTRICAL SYSTEMS

No part of a car gets a more strenuous workout during the cold weather months ahead than the ignition and electrical systems. Severe cold and dampness attack these systems. Only when they are in top condition can they function properly.

The National Automotive Parts Association (NAPA) provides a detailed description of the electrical and ignition systems in a new publication "Car Repairs — Facts You Should Know." The booklet also prescribes maintenance procedures to help keep the systems in top running order.

Copies of the NAPA booklet can be obtained free from local automotive service and repair shops, in the United States only.

Parts most often needing replacement...and why

A IGNITION SWITCH — really several switches in one. First, it turns on the ignition system, then the starter — and simultaneously turns off the radio and other accessories to avoid damage due to power surges which occur in starting. As it ages, resistance builds in the switch so not enough electricity gets to starter and ignition.

B BATTERY — stores electrical energy for starting and all other electrical jobs. Life expectancy of a good battery is 2 to 3 years... if it's kept clean, filled and in good state of charge.

C BATTERY CABLES — deliver electricity to starter and all other electrical systems... and bring in charging current from the alternator. Unless cables are in good condition and have clean, tight connections, the car cannot start or run properly.

D STARTER SOLENOID SWITCH — connects the battery to the starter motor. Poor connections and age reduce solenoid's ability to pass enough electricity to turn the starter motor fast enough to start the engine.

E STARTER — an electric motor which, by means of a movable gear, cranks the car's engine. As internal wear develops, the starter may be unable to turn the car's engine fast enough, or may run down the battery. Then, the unit must be replaced.

F STARTER DRIVE — the movable gear connecting starter motor and car engine. If the starter whines — but the engine doesn't turn over, chances are the starter drive needs replacement.

G CONTACT SET — a switch that turns the ignition coil on and off to fire the spark to each cylinder. Contacts (points) gradually wear causing loss of power and poor gas mileage. Useful life — about 10,000 miles.

H CONDENSER — like an electrical shock absorber, it smooths out surges caused by rapid opening and closing of the contact set. Should be replaced when the contact set is changed.

I ROTOR — turns inside the distributor, carrying the spark from coil to each part of the distributor cap. High voltage gradually burns it and insulation deteriorates. Should be replaced with the distributor cap.

J DISTRIBUTOR CAP — covers internal parts of distributor, providing terminals for each spark plug wire and for the coil wire. High voltage gradually burns the terminals. Dirt and moisture cause sparks to leak away, resulting in carbon tracking which is a permanent short circuit. This causes hard starting and engine "miss." Replacement is the only cure.

K IGNITION COIL — heart of the ignition system. It is really a transformer, boosting 12 volts from the battery to as high as 30,000 volts. And it does this about 100 times a second at only 30 m.p.h. When the coil weakens, entire engine is affected. When it burns out, entire system goes dead.

L SPARK PLUG WIRES — connect plugs to distributor cap and carry 30,000 volts. These wires must be built so high voltage doesn't cause interference not only with car radio but also nearby TV sets and even aircraft radio. Under load, defective wires cause engine "miss."

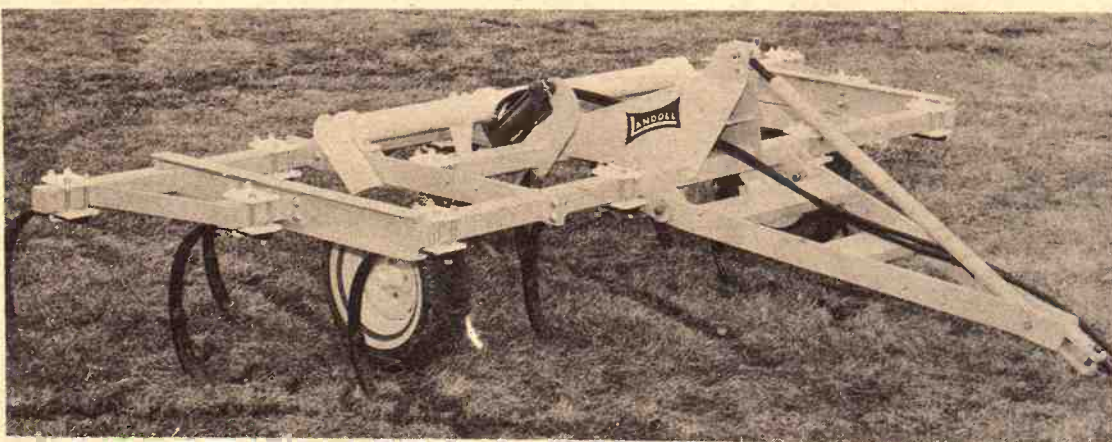

M SPARK PLUGS — fire the ignition spark into the gasoline mixture in each cylinder to power the car. Improper plug gap causes loss in power and gas economy. Deposits cause spark to leak away. High voltage gradually burns the plug, changing gap. Average efficient life is about 10,000 miles.

N ALTERNATOR (or generator) — generates electric power for everything except the starter, also recharges battery. Dirt or deterioration cause hard starting, power loss and reduced fuel economy.

O VOLTAGE REGULATOR — limits voltage produced by alternator to the amount needed by the car's systems. Poor connections can damage it. If the regulator gets out of adjustment, it's probably damaged and should be replaced.

A Throwaway Automobile On Drawing Board?

European and Japanese manufacturers are designing a $400 automobile that can be thrown away in a year, Europa magazine reports.

One European builder "has already subjected a prototype to extensive tests," said the magazine printed in the Netherlands.

Another prototype is "well past the drawing-board stage" at the

November 23, 1971
Volkswagen factory in Wolfsburg, West Germany. Volvo of Sweden, Toyota of Japan are manufacturers working on design of such a car.

The magazine quoted Giovanni Gottardi of Turin, an auto executive, as saying his factory would aim for 3,000-mile life for the revolutionary car. He said the price would be $400.

The throwaway car is scheduled to be introduced at the New Automobile Show next spring. It probably will not hit the market in 1975, Europa said.

ikes Give New To Several all Towns

AGE CITY, Kan.—Man-made ges in Kansas geography have several older communities life and have brought about the gence of new towns in Kansas, director of the Kansas Depart-of Economic Development
here.

ector Jack T. Lacy said at least en towns are springing to life as result of reservoir construction that several communities are ging at key interchanges of interstate highways.

"With completion of Melvern Reservoir, Osage County will have two recreation facilities—Melvern and Pomona," Lacy said. "With the present emphasis on recreation every community in Osage County will benefit and the little crossroads community of Olivet will emerge as a new town in the years to come."

His remarks were prepared for the annual meeting of the Osage City
Chamber of Commerce.

Lacy said examples of towns with a new spirit of growth are New Strawn, Randolph, Ozawkie, Wakefield, Milford, Glen Elder and Cawker City.

Along Interstate 70 he projected a new community to emerge at the Paxico interchange. He said the towns of Solomon and Chapman were closing the gap between the central town and the interstate highway.

Electric Co-ops Spot Error In Tax Valuations

An error in the state's assessment manual for rural electric cooperatives may result in cuts in valuations placed on 41 of the associations.

Clarence Malone, acting property valuation department director, said he first learned of the error during a pre-hearing conference with seven rural electric cooperatives which had appealed their valuations to the state board of tax appeals.

They objected to the value placed on distribution wire in the cost-less depreciation method of figuring valuations, he said.

Hearings for the seven utilities were to have taken place before the tax appeals board, but the board, acting at the request of the property valuation department, continued them until Dec. 10.

Advise On Handling Buyers Of Timber

Woodland buyers and Kansas woodland owners are reporting difficulties with some timber buyers, according to Henry Deutsch, district extension forester at Hutchinson.

Deutsch says a major cause is easily misunderstood verbal agreements such as terms of payment, numbers and kinds of trees to be sold.

"A written agreement or contract is valuable when selling standing timber so valid intentions of both seller and buyer are recorded to insure both parties fair treatment," Deutsch said.

He said the owner often first realizes his timber has value when the buyer makes an offer.

Other situations causing dissatisfaction by the woodland owner include the number of merchantable trees, what kind of trees are being considered, volume, the market value of the timber, the part that tree and log quality play in timber value, how much logging damage should be expected and the best terms of payment?

Buyer dissatisfaction can result when boundaries aren't clearly defined, sufficient time isn't allotted to complete the harvest, there isn't free access to the timber area, conditions which will void the agreement and the penalty for unexpected logging damage aren't spelled out.

"Before selling timber it is best to get at least 3 or 4 bids in order to establish the fair market value," Deutsch said. "This is especially true of black walnut sales."

Timber buyer lists and other marketing information are available from county agents or from Deutsch, Court, Hutchinson.

November 23, 1971
