New Housing For G&G Area Towns

Several G & G area towns are in the midst of public housing projects aimed at creating first-class homes for retired people and low-cost rentals.

There are three projects in Washington county — at Washington, Linn and Hanover.

The one at the county seat of Washington, pictured here, is a 50-unit development being constructed in the northwest corner of town. Financed through a loan from the Federal Housing and Urban Development authority, the $600,000 project consists of duplexes, triplexes, and fourplexes in an area called Colonial Acres. There are some low-rental units, though primarily they are being built for retired people at normal rental rates.

The project at Washington has a target completion date of August 1969, although work has progressed so well that inspector Mike Wayland thinks the development may be ready two months before that date. George Sampson & Co. of Omaha is the contractor for the project, as well as for the one at Linn. The Hanover project is being built by Dean Smith, also of Omaha, who is the prime contractor at a similar project in Seneca, in Nemaha county.

32% Of GNP Spent By Governments —But Some Nations Do More

One legacy of the eight years of Democratic rule is a sharp rise in the extent of government involvement with individual lives, for better or worse.

This involvement is especially clear when translated into dollars and cents. In 1960 federal expenditures were $93 billion. In 1968, the total will come close to $179 billion, a 93 per cent increase.

More remarkable is the fact that most of the increase has been in the past three years. In 1965 federal spending totaled $123.4 billion, or nearly $56 billion less than will be spent this year.

One consequence of this has been 4 per cent inflation, the origins of which can be traced to 1965, when financial commitments rose sharply without matching revenue increases.

The federal government now accounts for nearly 21 per cent of the Gross National Product, which is the total of all goods and services produced in a nation, an increase of more than 2 per cent in eight years.

If local and state spending is included, the proportion of the GNP accounted for by government activities rises to nearly 32 per cent. In 1966, this percentage was a bit more than 28. In 1957, it was less than 26.

Despite the increases, the United States remains among those nations with the lowest rate of government spending. During the past decade the governments of almost every industrial nation have become more involved in their economies.

In Sweden, for example, government spending accounts for more than 40 per cent of the GNP compared with about 30 per cent in 1957. France is now close to that percentage, although in 1957 the figure was only 33 per cent.

In Germany, Austria, Norway and the United Kingdom the rates are well over 30 per cent. In fact, only Switzerland and Japan among the highly industrialized nations have clearly a lower rate of government spending.

In recent years, Canada has had about the same rate as the United States, and Italy has had a percentage only slightly above that.

A study of government spending trends by Chase Manhattan Bank notes that much of the U.S. increase is from escalated U.S. involvement in Southeast Asia, which is expected to push defense spending to $81 billion this year compared with $46 billion eight years ago.

But nondefense spending, Chase observes, will show a 108 per cent rise this year over 1960, or an increase even sharper than that for military outlays.

Among the reasons: —Inflation. Especially since 1966, the dollar has diminished in buying power. At the same time interest rates have risen, making government deficit spending costly. Interest on the national debt is about $15 billion a year.

—A growing nation. Population has grown by 11 per cent since 1960, meaning at least a corresponding increase in the demand for government service.

—The nature of the population. There has been an increase in the number of elderly, who more so than in the past are dependent on government financial aid.

—Social Security and welfare. This is the largest category of spending other than for defense. Costs here have more than doubled in eight years, from $18 billion to $41 billion.

—Space exploration. This is a relatively new category. In 1960 it took only $570 million of the budget. This year spending by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration will be $4.4 billion.

—Education. Partly in an effort to break the poverty cycle, federal spending for education has grown from $700 million in 1960 to more than $4 billion a year now.

Time Now For Crop Planning

"It's better to plan now for the production you want on each acre than to wait until next fall and worry because you got less production than you wanted," says Frank G. Bieberly, Extension agronomist at Kansas State University.

"If you want a few more bushels of wheat, corn, or soybeans per acre; if you want a few more bales of hay or loads of silage per field; and if you want better pastures for your livestock, you can have them," he promises.

To reach these goals just become acquainted with the basic production rules and follow them. Recommended seed varieties must be used, good insect and weed control recommendations carried out, and plenty of fertilizer applied.

Bieberly urges all farmers to take advantage of this off-season time to "read up" on some of the new production suggestions from Kansas State University.

Several publications are available for examination at county Extension offices. Ask to see "1968 Report on Experiment Station Variety Tests with Small Grains," RP 139; "Results of Corn Forage, Corn and Sorghum Performance Tests — 1968," RP 136; and "1968 Report on Miscellaneous Experiment Station Tests with Spring Planted Field Crops," RP 134.

This is also a good time to place orders for certified seed, fertilizer, pesticides, and weed control chemicals. Dealers have more time now to make sure that you get exactly what you need for that big "break-through" in production next season, Bieberly points out.

Livestock Largest Industry In State

Kansas has made great strides in industrial development during the last few years. But agriculture — and livestock production in particular — is still the No. 1 business in the state.

A study by Dr. Jarvin Emerson of the Kansas Office of Economic Analysis shows that sales of cattle in 1965 totaled $596.9 million, the highest of any industry in the state.

Adding sales of $100.8 million in the hog sector brings the total for livestock to almost $700 million. Sales of a sector directly related to livestock production — meat packing and processing — totaled $590 million. Sheep production was not considered separately but was grouped with several other farm commodities.

Sales of other leading sectors were: petroleum and coal manufacturing, $580 million; aerospace manufacturing, $561 million; crude oil and natural gas mining, $441 million; building construction, $367 million; special trade construction, $344 million; grain mill products manufacturing, $333 million; and wheat farming, $321 million.

Emerson also calculated income multipliers for each sector. Multiplier for cattle production was slightly more than 5. Thus, every additional $1 of output from the cattle sector generated about five times as much income in other sectors, as in the cattle sector.

Multiplier for hogs was 3.29 and meat packing and processing 6.94. Only the grain milling products sector had a higher multiplier — 7.17.

Multipliers for several other sectors: petroleum and coal production, 4.99; dairy products manufacturing, 4.73; crude oil and natural gas mining, 4.57; non-metallic mining, 3.73; dairy farming, 3.38; building construction, 3.11; and wheat farming, 1.79.

Livestock production should become even more important to the state's economy in the future, according to Dr. John H. McCoy, professor of economics at Kansas State University.

A study by the K-State Department of Economics projects that cattle production in the state will increase 79 percent from 1966 to 1980, he says. Total

Grass & Grain

January 14, 1969

U.S. production is projected to increase only 36 percent during this period.

McCoy believes the projected 79 percent increase may be conservative. This estimate amounts to about 5.5 percent a year, he says. Production has increased more than 10 percent during each of the last three years.

The study projects hog production to increase by 30 percent during the period compared to 21 percent for the nation, McCoy says.

BARGES UP ARKANSAS RIVER TO LITTLE ROCK

The Arkansas River has been made navigable to Little Rock, the first barges — loaded with steel — moving into the Arkansas port last week. The 111 miles from the Mississippi river to Little Rock were made navigable by a $1.2 billion project by the Army Corps of Engineers which by 1970 is to be open to Catoosa, Okla., near Tulsa.

PROVE TO YOURSELF

... Purina helps you produce pork at remarkably low cost!

Yes! We're so confident of results you'll get feeding hogs the Purina way, that we'll pay you for the trouble of keeping a simple set of records.

HERE'S ALL YOU HAVE TO DO! Feed your pigs or hogs from birth to market, birth to 40 lbs. or weaning to market. Weigh your hogs the day they start on a recommended Purina feeding program. Keep accurate records of all feed consumed. Weigh your hogs before they are sold or get the market weights. Turn in your completed record to your Purina service man.

HERE'S WHAT PURINA WILL DO: If you feed Purina and grain, Purina will refund $1.00 cash per ton on all the Purina concentrates fed the hogs included in your record.

If you feed Purina Complete Chows, we will pay you 50¢ per ton for all the Purina fed the hogs included in your record.

YOU HAVE A CHANCE TO WIN 2 WAYS!

1. Your hogs are pretty sure to make fast, low-cost gains when fed on the Purina program.

2. You will receive cash for weighing your hogs and keeping an accurate record of gains and feed cost.

WHERE DOES PURINA COME IN? Once you've proved to yourself how economically your hogs can produce pork on the Purina hog program, we're sure you'll join the thousands of hog raisers who regularly feed Purina Hog Chows.

Records you and other hogmen keep will give us up-to-date dollars and cents facts (not chin music) of average Purina hog program feeding results from hundreds of thousands of hogs across the U.S.A.

JOIN PURINA'S HOG FEEDING FACTS DRIVE ... AND WIN 2 WAYS! Ask your Purina dealer or serviceman to explain the simple rules. He will also provide you with record forms. You'll find him at the store or mill with the Checkerboard sign.

OUR DAILY BREAD

- by G&G Area Cooks

Mrs. Jerry Schwartz Of Randolph Wins Prize

The winner is Mrs. Jerry Schwartz, R 2, Randolph:
HOME-MADE GRAPENUTS

- 3 1/2 cups whole wheat flour
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon soda
- 3/4 cup honey

Combine in a bowl and add enough buttermilk to make a batter. Bake on a greased pan until done (300-325 degrees for 30-45 minutes). It will draw away from the pan. Cool and cut or break into small pieces and dry out thoroughly in the oven. Then grind with food chopper. When dry, store in a tight jar. Grind before it is thoroughly dry to have small pieces like grapenuts, otherwise it will be more like bread crumbs. "This is a very good cereal. Some wheat germ could be added before baking, if desired."

The next recipe is from Linda Spade, R 1, Reading:

CARROT CAKE

- 2 cups flour
- 2 cups sugar

- 2 teaspoons soda
- 2 teaspoons cinnamon
- 1 teaspoon salt
- Sift dry ingredients in a large bowl. Add 1 1/2 cups salad oil

- 1 can tuna, broken into pieces
- Put into gelatin mold and serve as a vegetable-meat salad.

By Beverly Macy

I had just parked in front of a garden supply store and saw a fellow, slightly on the beatnik or hippie side, staring intently into one of those ornamental balls on a pedestal that's used for a lawn decoration. While I stared at him staring he gave a quick glance in all directions, whipped out a camera, leaned over and snapped a picture at the image in the ball. Still trying to figure out that one considering all the trouble I take to avoid coming up with distorted pictures when using a camera.

I was sitting in the family room facing our planter divider when all of a sudden I shrieked "what's happened to my variegated philodendron?" My husband examined a strange looking extra growth and diagnosed that it was a soybean seedling which, unbeknown to us, our kindergartener had planted. "Pull it out," said my spouse. "Oh, no," I answered. "Not everyone can boast having a soybean crop growing in the middle of his house."

Home Economist Describes Making Of Sour Cream

A baked potato just isn't complete without a topping of sour cream — cultured cream, if you prefer, says Mrs. Nancy Hjettland, County Extension Home Economist. Salad cream may be the name you recognize. It certainly is not sour. The flavor is pleasantly tart.

The dairy technologist transforms fresh liquid table cream into the velvety, firm cultured cream. The not-very-fat cream must be dispersed into tiny particles evenly distributed through the product. He does it by homogenizing the cream at high pressure, reheating and homogenizing again.

The processor persuades the protein of the table cream to help hold water to preserve the firm body of the finished sour cream. He does that by pasteurization at 165-180 degrees F. for 30 minutes.

At the proper moment the proper amount of young dairy culture is added to the homogenized pasteurized cream. Then the processor controls the temperature very carefully while the cream develops its characteristic flavor. When it reaches the proper stage, it goes immediately to the chilling room. The action of the culture is stopped and the tart flavor remains the same until you buy it, take it home and plop it on top of a steaming hot potato, or add it to the many dishes you create. Someone described dairy sour cream as a food with a personality — and it is.

If you worry about calories, don't. You will find about 30 calories in a tablespoon full of sour cream.

More Storage In Closets

Want to squeeze more storage space out of your closets?

Transform the inside of the closet door into a handy storage wall with a panel of perforated hardboard fastened to the door over back-up washers. Hooks inserted in the perforations will hold a surprising number of hard-to-store items.

For example: Hats and handbags in bedroom closets; umbrellas in hall closets; plastic bags filled with soap cakes in linen closets, and pots and pans in kitchen closets.

When Is A Kitten A Cat?

A kitten can be officially called a cat when he becomes eight months old.

Birth Control Requests From Migrant Workers

Nearly half the women seeking birth control help in three southwestern Oklahoma counties are migrant farm worker mothers with an average family size of 7.7 members, the state health department said.

Dr. A. B. Colyar, state health commissioner, pointed to the figures in demonstrating need for the program, which is financed at present under federal anti-poverty funds.

The health department is seeking additional funds to expand its birth control program after July 1.

Colyar said records indicate more than 50 per cent of all women coming to family planning centers in Harmon, Greer and Jackson counties are migrants who have come to work in the cotton harvest.

The nicest thing about a Mix-Mill® feed processing system...

when you need it, it doesn't need you!

Your Mix-Mill® feed processing system stores, measures, mixes and grinds your concentrate, grains and other ingredients, and delivers fresh feed to the feeders automatically... electrically. It will deliver feed for two hours out of 24, 10 hours out of 24, or 24 hours out of 24... regardless of where you are or what you're doing.

There are dozens of other advantages which add up to this. A Mix-Mill® system will feed all of the hogs, beef cattle, dairy animals, or poultry you have on your farm... or plan to have... at less cost and with less labor involved than any other method available.

The nicest thing you could do would be to make us prove it. We'll be glad to. Just fill in the coupon, and get it in the mail today.

Read Nursery Catalog - Then Start Planning

The 1968 nursery catalogs are out. Perhaps you have already spent several evenings looking through one you have received. But are you ready to place your order?

No, says James J. Nighswonger, Extension landscape architect at Kansas State University. You should never plant a shrub or tree before you draw a plan. Then plant only those plants specified in the plan. A drawing helps you place trees, shrubs, and flowers correctly and avoid costly and troublesome errors.

Drawing your plans to scale is easy with graph paper. The paper may have 4, 8, or 10 lines to the inch. A practical scale would be to let one line equal 1 or 2 feet on your property.

Draw in the boundaries of the home grounds, the house, the garage, and all existing features, including trees and shrubs already growing. Now you are ready to plan the improvements you want.

Like your home, your yard should have three distinct areas — public, private, and service. As you plan your landscape, relate these areas to home and grounds. The public area should be designed in a manner that will enhance the appearance of the house.

The service area contains the incinerator, garbage cans, clothesline, space for trailers, sandboxes or even a small vegetable garden. Locate this area as convenient to the kitchen or garage as possible, and screen it from public view.

In preparing your ornamental garden, think first of overall design rather than specific plant materials. Your local nurseryman can assist you in choosing plants that are best adapted to the area and which will best develop the landscape picture you have planned.

Ask your county Extension agent to see a copy of K-State Circular C379, "Landscape Development."

GET ON WELFARE BY ASKING FOR IT

Welfare applicants will become eligible for payments simply by saying they are in need. The policy is scheduled to be in effect July 1, and the announced by the Johnson administration, the incoming Nixon administration is not expected to depart from it. The new approach will eliminate investigations before an applicant receives payments, although spot checks will be made. About 1 1/2% of the U.S. population is on a welfare roll, and officials say they do not expect the percentage to increase under the new policy.

Beef, Poultry, Egg Supplies Up

During 1969, supplies of beef, poultry and eggs will be more plentiful than in 1968, according to two reports released in December. This news is pleasing to consumers, but is a cause for concern among some producers of these products.

Beef. The report on beef shows that farmers in six cattle-feeding states were fattening 6,486,000 cattle on December 1 — some 11 percent more than a year earlier. The six states reporting were Iowa, Nebraska, California, Texas, Colorado, and Arizona. They ordinarily produce two-fifths of all the fed cattle marketed in the United States. Judging from the quarterly reports, which cover 32 states, farmers in the other states are also fattening more cattle for market than they were a year ago — probably 10 to 12 percent more.

The USDA report of Cattle on Feed also showed that farmers in the six states put 1,524,000 cattle on feed during November — 18 percent more than were put into feedlots a year earlier. The number of fed cattle marketed from these states during November was listed at 1,126,000 — 10 percent more than during the comparable period a year before.

The fact that farmers are fattening 11 percent more cattle does not mean that there will be an equal increase in the production of beef. A part of the increase in the number of fed cattle marketed will be offset by a reduction in the number of other cattle slaughtered. Nearly one-third of our beef supply is nonfed beef. We would guess that beef output during the first quarter of 1969 will be 5 to 8 percent greater than in 1968.

Ordinarily, we would expect such an increase in beef supplies to take a dollar or two off the prices of fat cattle, but the demand for beef has been growing rapidly during the past few years.

Poultry. Another report, this one by the Poultry Survey Committee of the American Feed Manufacturers Association, points to an increase in the production of poultry and eggs during 1969.

The committee expects broiler supplies to exceed 1968 levels by 4 to 6 percent. The larger supply may permit retailers to feature special prices for broilers more frequently than in 1968.

Weekly supplies of broilers normally increase during the first half of each year, reaching a peak in early summer.

The production of turkeys is also expected to increase again in 1969, probably by about 5 percent. Present stocks are more than abundant, because of increased production and slow sales of turkeys in 1968.

Eggs. The production of eggs also increases during the first half of the year, especially from January to May. This seasonal increase in supplies should bring lower prices for eggs during the next few months.

January 14, 1969

Egg producers are buying many more pullet chicks than they were a year ago. This will lead to a corresponding increase in egg production during the last half of the year.

Pork. Information available from other sources indicates that the production of pork also will increase during the year ahead.

Watershed Money May Be Freed By Nixon

Officers and directors of Kansas watershed districts heard a call for quick removal of the administration's freeze on Congressional appropriations for watershed projects.

Clifford G. McIntire, Chicago, declared it is "time to get going again with this vital program." The director of natural resources for the American Farm Bureau was luncheon speaker at a watershed forum sponsored by the Kansas State Soil Conservation committee.

McIntire said money has long been appropriated for watershed projects but President Johnson has used his executive authority to freeze it although it is not a part of the "economy readjustment."

He said the appropriation is "initiation money" for 96 watershed projects, including six in Kansas. McIntire said Johnson, who helped to sponsor appropriation bills when he was in the Senate, now contends the bills invade the authority of the executive branch.

Sees No Problem

The bill, originally written by Clifford Hope of Kansas and passed by Congress in 1954, does not involve any constitutional questions of authority, McIntire feels. He also helped to write the bill while serving as a Republican congressman from Maine.

"This act was never considered to be subject to question until Johnson raised it," he said.

He believes that the change in administration will release the appropriation.

"In his campaign, President-elect Nixon indicated his support for vigorous expansion of soil and water conservation programs," McIntire said. "This includes resolution of the present administration's impediment against small watershed programs."

Russians Talk Of Private Farm Plots Again

New support has been voiced for farmers' use of private plots of farmland, often attacked here as a remnant of the bad old days before communism.

The magazine Voprosy Ekonomiki (Questions of Economics) put out by the Academy of Sciences, carried an article hailing the private plots as useful for the economy and good for the farmer's working habits.

Answers to Needs
"They help give people a business-like grasp of their job, diligence and a feeling of responsibility, as well as other qualities needed in collective farming," the article said.

It noted that the plots yield agricultural products which are often not obtainable from government-controlled farms, or at best are scarce and of poor quality.

The article contrasted sharply with a commentary two years ago by the official news agency Tass. This said that private plots were on the way out, and treated this as a good thing.

Under the private plot system, collective farmers usually get about four-fifths of an acre for their own use, for planting or keeping livestock. They can consume the products themselves, offer them at special free markets, or sell to the state.

Factors in Output
The private plots, which make up only 3.2 per cent of total acreage cultivated, account for 63 per cent of the output of potatoes and eggs, 41 per cent of the vegetables, and 38 per cent of the meat and milk.

They have often been held up in the West as proof within this country of the superiority of private initiative, and this has been a sore point for the Soviet system.

Nikita Khrushchev tried to discourage private farming with taxes and restrictions. The present leadership did away with these. It also introduced a regular wage for collective farmers, which Tass said would cause them to lose interest in raising crops and livestock on their own.

But the new article, written by L. Kalinin, maintained the plots are remaining "comparatively stable." It denied that they conflict with the basic principles of the Soviet system.

"They develop small-proprietor instincts no more and no less than the private property of working people in general like houses, cars and bank accounts. If a personal subsidiary husbandry (private farming) is to be prohibited, then private property in general should be condemned."

Serve as Brake
The article said the plots helped stem the rush from the farm to the cities in the search for a better standard of living.

Economically, it said, they provided truck garden produce and other agricultural goods with high labor input that the regular farms were not as well adapted to.

The article maintained that the state, instead of taking a negative attitude, should actively support private farming.

It called for a nationwide law to fix the size of the plots, which now varies haphazardly. It also called for tools and machinery suitable for this type of cultivation to be produced on an adequate scale.

A specific recommendation was for a small tractor which could be used for disking, hauling, spraying and other jobs.

National Slant To Welfare

A high-level task force has urged President-elect Nixon to adopt immediate, sweeping changes in the welfare system.

The most important recommendation calls for the federal government to assume a much greater share of the welfare burden and to impose national minimum standards of payment for the nation's 8½ million welfare clients.

This recommendation would cost between 1½ billion and 2 billion dollars annually, depending on which of two approaches is chosen. The task force also has recommended:

- Gradual dismemberment of the Office of Economic Opportunity, which runs the antipov-erty program, and the transfer of most of its major functions to other agencies.

- Immediate establishment of a single agency with great authority in the executive offices of the President to plan and co-ordinate the activities of more than 400 grant-in-aid programs on the federal level.

• Adoption of the Model Cities program as "the accepted instrument for the entire federal government" for co-ordinating, on the local level, assistance to the poor and the cities.

The report was presented to Robert H. Finch, secretary-designate of health, education and welfare and to Nixon's urban affairs adviser, Daniel Patrick Moynihan, at a meeting at the Pierre Hotel. A copy was obtained by the New York Times.

The Task Force — one of 22 that have been preparing reports on domestic problems — is headed by Richard P. Mathan of the Brookings Institute in Washington, and includes eight liberal critics of the welfare system, including Mitchell I. Ginsberg, administrator of the Human Resources administration in New York City.

"The Nixon administration comes into office at a time when there is growing frustration about the capability of major government programs," the report declared in its conclusion. It called for "the design of new systems . . . and more effective implementation of existing programs of the federal government to assist the poor and reduce economic dependency."

The report was highly critical of the Johnson administration, mainly for its alleged failure to develop an administrative capacity to carry out its bold legislative dreams. But it did pay the Johnson administration one major compliment by recommending that the approach embodied in the Model Cities program — which, through heavy cash incentives to the cities, as designed to pull together all existing federal programs to the poor in selected "model neighborhoods"

Herington Can't Find Streets It Paid For

HERINGTON — A former mayor and a former city commissioner here said they are mystified over the whereabouts of a two-block-long street which was authorized in 1954 but was never constructed.

The street was part of a $189,000 bond issue authorized in 1954 by the Herington City Commission. Kirkland Street, which was to be a part of Butler Avenue, and Lewerze Street were authorized by the commission and plans and specifications prepared by a Salina firm were approved.

Kirkland Street was never built and Butler Avenue was built one block long.

The bond issue was retired in 1964, according to the state auditor's office. The project cost $192,861, with $122,393 assessed against property owners and $70,467 paid by the city-at-large.

The missing street was noted recently by City Utilities Commissioner C. F. Thompson, whose investigation into alleged city irregularities in Herington city government touched off a grand jury investigation scheduled to convene in Abilene Jan. 20. The missing street is expected to be one of several things probed by the jury.

Thompson said he discussed the opening of Kirkland Street and Butler Avenue because of growth in the northeast section of the city. "I attempted to find out about the construction project but had no success," Thompson said.

The City Commission was composed of J.A. Pelter, mayor; John D. Kirkland, finance commissioner; and Fred Kendall, utilities commissioner when the three street projects were authorized Jan. 21, 1953.

The commission accepted a $35,031 bid from the Hall Brothers Construction Co., Marysville, for Kirkland Street on Aug. 4, 1953.

Kendall is deceased. Pelter is a retired railroad engineer and Kirkland is a Herington insurance agent.

"It doesn't seem possible that the people who owned property along that street would pay assessments against it for a street which wasn't there," Kirkland said. "The street was authorized but not opened."

Kirkland said he cannot understand how bonds could be issued for work which wasn't done. "We had engineers inspect it and the bonding company surely must have inspected those sites," he said.

Sees Farm Exports Doubling By 1980

The export potential of Kansas farm products as far ahead as 1975 or 1980 appears reasonably bright, Paul L. Kelley, head of the department of economics at Kansas State University, told 400 delegates attending the 98th annual meeting of the Kansas State Board of Agriculture at Topeka.

"It is possible that U.S. farm exports could double from the $6 billion currently to $10 or $12 billion before 1980," Dr. Kelley said. "Countries that do not grow enough feed grain, if they achieve higher incomes, will help us build foreign markets."

Dr. Kelley named the nations of Western Europe and Japan as our largest customers for feed grains. At the same time he said economic potential in emerging nations leads to increased sales of U.S. farm products.

"Kansas agriculture," he said,

"relies heavily on export trade as a source of markets, so Kansas farmers have a critical stake in the type of trading policies that the U.S. develops in the decade ahead."

The speaker termed agriculture a "great dollar earner" for the U.S. This nation's share of the world's wheat and flour trade has grown to 37 per cent from a pre-World War II nine per cent. The U.S. at this time supplies 57 per cent of the world's feed grain and claims 90 per cent of the world's soybean exports.

Domestic market prospects, Kelley said, look equally bright for Kansas. He predicted this state will become the center of a vast new beef belt in the next decade and this rapidly expanding industry will be one of the most important affecting Kansas' economic development in the years ahead.

long-time treasurer of the national association, and George Meeker of Garden City, past president of the national association, will attend the convention as delegates at the national level.

Docking Favor For Farm Bargaining

Gov. Robert Docking says he strongly favors collective bargaining power for farmers as a means of obtaining fair prices for their products at the market place.

The governor spoke at the 98th annual Kansas Agricultural Convention dinner, attended by about 1000 farm leaders in the state.

"I have voiced my continued support of the precept of free, unfettered collective bargaining between employees and employers, and between farmers and processors," Docking said. "I strongly support both the principle and the practice of collective bargaining power for farmers. This is one of the few ways farmers can deal effectively in the market place."

Governor Docking said he believes people tended to forget that farm prosperity is the keynote of economic health of the states and cities and towns across the nation.

"The price we have paid for this indifference," he said, is a massive involuntary exodus of our people from farms and small communities to already overcrowded and problem-filled cities."

He said he was alarmed by the decreases in the prices for wheat and corn and the continuing price increase for equipment and commodities the farmer must buy in order to produce.

"Farmers should not be forced to accept less money when they continue to produce more wheat to feed hungry people at home and abroad," he said. "Farm policy should provide fair prices to farmers, and that means higher prices. Rural economies will not respond to oratory.

"Raising the price of wheat or of corn is only a partial answer. A better, or different, farm policy alone is not the answer. America's agricultural areas today are mixed economies, dependent upon services and industry, as well as agriculture. The farmer must be given his rightful place in this economy."

He said persons in rural areas should have the freedom to choose whether they remain on the farms and not be forced out of agriculture because of economic conditions.

Docking reiterated his opposition to unrestricted corporate farming in Kansas and said he would carry out his threat in this session of the Legislature to veto an open corporate farming bill if one should be passed. He said he and the Democratic party in its platform had gone on record as opposing such a policy.

The governor said he believed the important issues confronting the 1969 Legislature will be what to do about "high an unequal taxes, highway construction, accelerated growth of rural areas, education and water resources."

He praised Kansas farmers for their production record, saying it had reached a historic peak in volume in the last 10 years, ranging from 30 to 50 per cent above the previous decade.

Mill Purchase With Expansion Of Feedlot

GREAT BEND — The Barton County Flour Mill Company, one of the oldest business institutions in Great Bend, has been sold for an undisclosed sum.

The mill was purchased by Pete Kirkman and Roger Murphy. It was founded in the 1890's.

Charles Gunn, one of the owners, will remain with the firm and continue to manage the elevator.

The flour mill, which has been under limited operation opening for about one day a week, will be closed.

The elevator, which had a capacity of 500,000 bushels, will continue to buy wheat and grain sorghum from area farmers and will store the grains.

New officers for the Barton County Flour Mill Company will be Pete Kirkman, president; Rodger Murphy, vice-president; and Mrs. Mary Lou Murphy, secretary-treasurer.

Kirkman declined to disclose the purchase price of the mill. Although the mill transaction was an individual purchase by Kirkman and Murphy, the facilities will also be used as supplier for grain needs of Great Bend Feeding Inc., a commercial cattle feeding operation seven miles northwest of Great Bend.

Kirkman is president of Great Bend Feeding Inc., and Murphy is vice-president.

The mill purchase coincides with the expansion of the 12,000 head capacity feedlot into a unit twice its size.

Meat Import Quotas Draw Ire Of Cattlemen

Cattlemen's organizations are renewing their campaign for restrictions on beef imports following the announcement made by Orville L. Freeman, secretary of agriculture, on the estimated amount of meat that will be coming into this country in 1969.

Freeman said that the first quarterly estimate of meat imports into the United States in 1969 indicated a total for the year of 1,035,000,000 pounds.

This country has a law which establishes quotas on imports and this quota is based on domestic consumption. As consumption rises, so also does the import quota. In addition, the law indicates that the quota law shall not be invoked with embargoes unless the quota is exceeded by 10 per cent.

Secretary Freeman said that the estimated import total for this year is 50 million pounds below the amount which would allow the President to invoke the quota law. The quota base for 1969, the secretary said, is 988 million pounds.

Multiplying the 988 million by 110 per cent gives 1,086,800,000 pounds, or the amount which would trigger the use of the quota law. It is this figure that is 50 million more than the estimated total imports for the year, which will consist mainly of beef and mutton.

Freeman said the domestic demand for beef continues to be strong and that current prices received by farmers are above year earlier levels.

Bill House, Cedar Vale, Ks., president of the American National Cattlemen's Association which has its headquarters at Denver, said the nation's cattlemen had been jolted by the 1969 import estimate.

He said the estimate "revealed obvious trading of domestic industry economic well-being for appeasement of exporting countries."

House said the trigger point should be 988 million pounds, the actual 1969 quota under the 1964 Meat act. The expected imports as announced by Freeman exceed that quota by 37 million pounds, or 5 per cent.

The American National Cattlemen's Association is not asking that beef imports be banned. What it wants, House explained, are amendments to the meat import law which would eliminate the 10 per cent override on the basic import quota; adjust the base period on quotas to the years 1958-62; establish quarterly quotas for more orderly marketing to stabilize prices for both domestic and foreign producers, and the inclusion of canned, cooked and cured meats in the quotas. Now only fresh (frozen) meat is counted.

The National Livestock Feeders Association at Omaha has also called for amendments to the law.

"The estimate on 1969 imports made by Secretary Freeman was not really an estimate at all," Don F. Magdanz, executive secretary of the feeders association said. "Rather, it was a statement of the volume which supplying countries have informally agreed not to exceed."

"With the 1969 quotas established at 988 million pounds, the executive branch of our government has deliberately given a green light to foreign suppliers to overship the quota by approximately 50 million pounds. While the figure used as an 'estimate' is not sufficient to trigger the imposition of the actual quota, the procedure being used is a clear circumvention of the intent of Congress."

Magdanz said a determined effort would be made by the feeders association to get the import quota law tightened up.

Entire Health Care System Needs Revamping

Rising costs and manpower shortages in the fields of health and medical science will be one of the big headaches for the new administration.

In important respects, however, these obvious problems are only symptoms, and few experts think the solution lies only in providing more money and doctors, even if these were immediately available.

Some specialists think there is an urgent need to reshape the entire health care system.

This concern was expressed more than a year ago by a national advisory commission on health manpower.

"Unless we improve the system through which health care is provided," read the commission's final report, "care will continue to become less satisfactory even though there are massive increases in cost and in numbers of health personnel."

The Nixon administration will inherit a set of problems that has been growing more acute for years — as evidenced by rising hospital costs and doctors' fees.

The physician in private practice and the independent non-profit hospital have been the mainstays of the existing health system in the United States. In the past, much health legislation has been designed to avoid changing the basic system in deference to the wishes of organized medicine.

But today, calls for change are coming from many areas.

"The federal government is going to have to use the leverage it now has to bring about a modification of the system," said Dr. Ivan Bennett, deputy director of the office of science and technology in the Johnson administration during a recent interview.

He sees the probable future of health care foreshadowed by community health centers set up in the last two years by the Office of Economic Opportunity to cope with health problems in poverty areas. These are affiliated with local hospitals and often with a local medical school. The objective of these health centers is comprehensive family health care in the neighborhood.

An OEO spokesman said some of the approximately 35 such centers in operation today are already under local pressure to extend their services to persons whose incomes are too high to qualify them for health center aid.

The new administration will have to decide what position to take toward such demands.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare has been facing tight budgets in recent years and this is expected to continue. This creates problems not only for program vigor and research support, but also in attracting manpower.

For example, about 15 years ago the National Institutes of Health, the government's main arm for medical and biological research, could compete with nongovernment employers for scientists and other key personnel.

Today, said Dr. Philip R. Lee, assistant secretary of health, education and welfare for health and scientific affairs, the institutes can compete only on the most junior level and the more experienced scientists and administrators at HEW often fight continuing financial temptation to move to academic institutions.

Taking Orders For Trees

Kansas landowners have ordered and received 16 million seedling trees in the past 11 years through the Extension Tree Distribution Program, according to Harold Gallaher, State Extension forester at Kansas State University.

The program continues this year with about two dozen tree and shrub special available for a variety of conservation purposes. Orders are taken at county Extension offices and some local Soil Conservation offices.

Last year Kansans ordered nearly a million plantings. The foresters expect a greater number of orders this year because most of the state has better moisture conditions now than for several years, Gallaher explained.

Deciduous tree seedlings available include black walnut, Russian olive, Chinese elm, redbud, cottonwood, green ash, honey locust, Russian mulberry, Osage orange, silver maple, burr oak and hackberry.

Stratified nuts are available in walnut and pecan species if seed is desired.

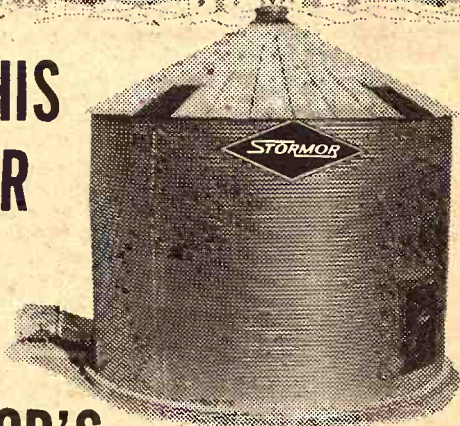

Evergreen species include Scotch pine, Austrian pine, white pine, ponderosa pine, eastern red cedar, Rocky Mountain juniper, and spruce. Shrubs available are multiflora rose, cotoneaster, lilac, honeysuckle, American plum, and tamarix.

First orders will be shipped early March. Shipments are made parcel post. Orders will be taken through April. Seedling prices are $8 per hundred and stratified nuts sell for $2 per hundred.

Kansas Water Quality Program To Get OK

Interior Secretary Stewart L. Udall says he hopes to approve shortly the water quality standards program of Kansas.

Kansas is one of five states whose water quality standards have not yet been approved by the secretary.

The standards program began with the Water Quality Act of 1965, passed unanimously by Congress.

All the states, territories and possessions were given the option of preparing water quality standards for their interstate and coastal waters, subject to the approval of the secretary of the interior.

In his announcement, Sec. Udall praised the states and other jurisdictions for their water standards.

"They proved that they have a real interest in restoring America's polluted rivers and lakes and protecting the fishing streams and other clean waters we still have left," Udall said.

The standards set limits on such pollutants as bacteria, toxic materials, minerals and taste and odor producing substances in the water. Also included are standards for water treatment facilities.

Freeman Swan Song For Controls

Agriculture Secretary Orville L. Freeman said farmers are sitting on a powder keg" of potential over-production and present federal control programs should be continued in the immediate future.

Freeman, who steps down Jan. 20 after eight years as secretary, also said the scope of the department has expanded so much that the name should be changed. He suggested it be called the Department of Food, Agriculture and Rural Development.

In his final yearly report to the President, Freeman said farmers and rural people have reached a new plateau "from which they can begin to share more fully" in the nation's economic growth.

"But most of the conditions which made the voluntary farm programs necessary in the first place are still with us," Freeman reported. "American farmers still have the capacity to produce more than the market can absorb at a fair price to them."

Freeman noted that agricultural output currently is about 50 per cent more than it was 25 years ago and requires less than half the labor it did. He said this is a "great economic bulwark" for the country "but it also keeps the farmer and rancher sitting on a powder keg."

He said that "for the foreseeable future" there are two basic choices: continuation and improvement of the existing voluntary control programs, or a return to mandatory programs which farmers already have rejected.

In suggesting that the name of the agency be changed to the Department of Food, Agriculture and Rural Development, Freeman said: "I have no pride of authorship — perhaps a better name will be broached."

JUDGE WON'T EXCUSE ADDINGTON'S LAWYER

A Sedgwick County District Court judge has refused to allow the withdrawal of the attorney of William Addington, former Kansas grainman charged with fraud in dealings at his Hutchinson elevator. Attorney Shelley Graybill of Elkhart had asked to be excused from the case because Addington had no funds to pay him and because of a conflict between the attorney and Addington in the proper way to handle the defense.

Look For Best Pork Barbecuer

The best outdoor cook of pork in Kansas is being sought by hogmen to represent this state in a national contest in Omaha in March.

The Kansas Swine Improvement Assn. has scheduled an outdoor pork-cooking contest in Wichita Feb. 14 and is taking entries. Any Kansas male over 12 years of age is eligible to enter.

Basis for the judging of entries is excellence of preparation, use of quality pork products, originality in selection of pork used and preparation and appetite appeal of the final product.

No Lower Gas Rates For Fort Riley

A district judge has turned down a request of the U.S. government to get cheaper gas rates in Fort Riley and Schilling Manor, Salina.

The government contended that it should receive wholesale rates from Kansas Power & Light Co., lowering its cost of natural gas by $200,000 a year. Fort Riley has been getting a "resale" rate higher than a wholesale rate. Thirty Kansas cities joined KPL in opposing the Army case. The cities apparently figured KP&L would ask for higher rates in their municipalities if the rate for Fort Riley were lowered.

Co-ops, Power Companies Wince Over Taxes

Rather softly but in unison, G&G area electric co-ops are letting the public know that their property taxes are not puny. Most of them released news stories shortly after the 1968 tax notices were out, showing what happens to the tax bills under rising ad valorem rates and increased valuations.

One of them, the Kaw Valley Electric Cooperative at Topeka, has legally protested in Shawnee County, saying that its taxes are based on 30% of the actual value of its property, while the remainder of the county averages only 16% of actual value.

Fred Stone, manager of the Kaw Valley Electric, said this year's taxes will be $37,838, an increase of 53% over the $24,767 paid in 1967.

O. E. Mabrey, manager of the Flint Hills RECA at Emporia, said his co-op had a 56% increase in property taxes since 1965 and the current yearly increase was nearly 15% with Flint Hills paying out about $89,264 in property taxes in 1968.

At Solomon, the DS&O Rural Electric Cooperative reported its ad valorem taxes in 1968 amounted to $57,494, up 13% from 1967. The NCK Electric Cooperative at Belleville also had a 13% increase from 1967 to 1968, paying out $58,486 in 1968.

There are 37 electric co-ops in the state and they estimate they paid from $2 to $2½ million in local property taxes in 1968.

Not to be outdone, the Kansas

Power & Light Co., the major stock company in the state, which operates in 63 counties, said it had paid out some $4 million in December for its first-half taxes in these counties, showing a total tax for the fiscal year of over $8 million.

KP&L spokesmen said the company was either first or second largest taxpayer in a majority of the counties in which it operates.

ARKANSAS DEBATES A SALES TAX HIKE

The Arkansas legislature will debate a proposed increase in the state sales tax from 1% to 3 or 4%, as part of the money-raising program of Governor Winthrop Rockefeller. The Rockefeller proposal includes a plan to grant rebates to low wage earners.

Hardin At Least 'Starting Even'

The National Council of Farmer Cooperatives last week declared that the Hardin hallmark is a clean slate.

They referred to Clifford Hardin, who will take over the thankless job of secretary of agriculture for the Richard Nixon administration.

"He starts with a clean slate—no marks against him," the NCFC wrote in its Washington Situation magazine. "That's the most anyone could hope for in stepping into one of Washington's worst jobs, secretary of agriculture."

"So reads the assessment of cooperative officials and most others in agricultural circles as they study the credentials and character of Clifford Hardin, the man who will head USDA in the Nixon administration.

"Hardin himself seems determined to keep the slate clean at least until he takes office January 20. He has carefully avoided any statements that would give a hint of his plans, policies or posture in the delicate role of farm chief.

"No apparent connection with a farm organization, no public record of a stand on the controversial farm policy issues, no sign of party politics activity. Such are the minuses which seem to add up to a plus for Hardin.

"There is little record of farmer cooperative activity, but this does not alarm co-op leaders. 'We are more interested in what he does after January 20,' said Kenneth Naden, executive vice president of the NCFC. Policies put forth by the top man at USDA can help or hurt cooperatives in many ways," the Washington Situation continued.

Glen Hofer, executive vice president of the National Association of Wheat Growers, noted that Hardin had been reluctant "to become too vocal before he is even confirmed in his new post and in fact has turned down an invitation to address our Boise convention for that reason."

The National Association of Wheat Growers traditionally has tried to obtain a visit from the secretary of agriculture at its national convention. This national convention is scheduled in Boise, Idaho, Jan. 14-17.

Wheat men have reason to want to get in touch with the new secretary as soon as possible.

The 1965 Food and Agriculture Act which was due to die in 1969 was given an infusion of only one year of life by the outgoing Congress. The jockeying for new farm legislation, continuation of the old laws, and even some effort to throw out the whole thing already has begun.
