Perhaps trying to usher in the Christmas holidays a little faster are Dean, Ellen and John Apel. Having picked out the family tree at a Christmas tree farm, the three begin decorating it in the field. They are the children of Dale Apel, former editor of the Journal and now Associate State 4-H Leader.

Problem Solving, People Development Functions of County Project Chairmen

By Dr. Glenn M. Busset
State 4-H Leader

As a land grant university, Kansas State University has three major functions:

1. Teaching students on campus
2. Creating new knowledge through Research
3. Bringing knowledge to citizens not on campus — Extension

The Extension Service of Kansas State University develops an educational program in three areas:

1. Agricultural program for adults
2. Home economics program for adults
3. 4-H program for children and youth

The success of 4-H depends directly on the efforts of more than 10,000 adult volunteers who give leadership to the 4-H program at the local level. Although the local leaders are assisted by the organizational and administrative efforts of the county Extension agents, 4-H became one of the most remarkable educational ideas of the century when local leadership was given the responsibility for the program.

Four years ago a new descriptive phrase "made the scene," as our teen 4-H'ers say. The idea of County Project Chairmen was launched at the first development clinic at Rock Springs Ranch. During November and December this year, nearly 200 volunteer subject matter specialists will be added to the 400 who have already received assistance in their roles with local project leaders.

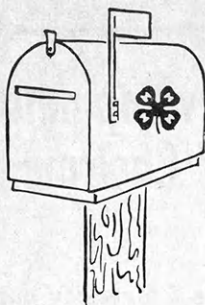

Although the phraseology of County Project Chairmen is new, the practice of developing volunteer leadership that will assist other people help themselves is fundamental to the entire Extension philosophy.

The basic philosophy of the Extension Service is centered around helping people help themselves. The 4-H idea of education—using the project and the meeting as the "vehicles" and the local leader as the source of information and guidance—is the key to the phenomenal success of 4-H.

In initiating the concept of County Project Chairmen, we have simply reasserted our belief that not only does the county 4-H program benefit immensely by the contributions of these "leaders of leaders," but also that the chairman "grows" in direct proportion to involvement in the planning and conduct of county-wide training.

The only way that organizations can benefit and become healthier is for the people within them to grow. People development is our business, one that we understand and in which we have a long history of successes.

Sometimes we emphasize pounds, acres, numbers, quantities and awards as our accomplishments. By giving more preference to such problem solving, we act as if we have forgotten our major objective—people development. The County Project Chairman concept seems to combine the best opportunities for meeting the dual objectives of people development and problem solving most effectively.

Mrs. Eugene Jones, chairman of the Ford County 4-H Foundation, and two Ford County 4-H'ers displayed this model of Rock Springs Ranch at the Ford County Fair.

Ford County 4-H Foundation Exhibits Model of State 4-H Leadership Center

By Galen Frick
Ford County Extension
4-H Agent

One of the features at the Ford County Fair was the booth display of the Rock Springs Ranch model. Ford County 4-H'ers helped Mrs. Eugene Jones, chairman of the Ford County 4-H Foundation, set up the display.

Older 4-H'ers, all of whom had attended one of the state camps, were present throughout the fair to answer questions.

A map of the Ranch helped onlookers find the various sleeping quarters, dining hall, swimming pool, stables, and other places of interest.

Much interest was shown—especially by the younger 4-H'ers—with questions directed toward the type of camps held and the type of camp facilities available. Many were not aware of such a ranch.

The model and map are loaned to interested 4-H groups by the Kansas 4-H Foundation.

Farmers, Homemakers To Provide Shelterhouse

In June, 1969, the Master Farmers and Master Farm Homemakers of Kansas expect to dedicate a memorial shelterhouse which they are providing for Rock Springs Ranch.

Dr. Harold E. Jones, former director of Extension Service, reports the Master Farmers and Master Farm Homemakers, all active or former 4-H leaders in the state and in their home communities, began collecting funds for the shelterhouse in 1966.

The shelterhouse, to be located on the east rim of the central area of Rock Springs Ranch, will be used as a classroom for 4-H and other groups, and for informal meetings and recreational activities. It is to be built of native limestone, and will contain a fireplace, built-in classroom facilities and rest rooms.

This is the second memorial structure donated to Rock Springs by the Master Farmers and Master Farm Homemakers. In 1964 they dedicated an outdoor vesper lookout on the hill overlooking the Jellison Chapel at the Ranch.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Upham, Junction City, have been co-chairmen of both memorial projects. Serving with them on the shelterhouse committee have been Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Lauer, Junction City; Mr. and Mrs. W. I. Boone, Eureka; Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Carroll, Ransom; Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Bloom, Liberal; Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Fields, McPherson; and Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Russell, Garden City.

4-H Dog Project Marks 10th Year

By Sally D. Jarrott

It's plain to see that many red-blooded Kansas 4-H'ers have "love me, love my dog" as a slogan, because the coming year will mark the tenth anniversary of one of 4-H's most interesting program projects, that of dog obedience and conformation training.

Some Kansas counties had conducted this project on a pilot basis prior to 1959, but it was made an official state project that year, with 33 members enrolled. Membership had grown to 1,089 in 1967, and indications are that there will be an increase for 1968.

One of the first counties to pilot the project was Cherokee County, with Mr. Dale Allen, Baxter Springs, in charge. Crawford County also became heavily involved in the program, and has joined with Cherokee County in giving an annual dog show.

The Cherokee County dog obedience classes begin in April and end with a dog show held in conjunction with the Cherokee County Fair in August. These classes meet once a week during the summer. There are obedience classes for both beginners and advanced students, as well as conformation and fitting classes in each division. Twenty-six certificates of completion were presented to Cherokee County 4-H'ers last summer.

Cherokee and Crawford County 4-H'ers are guided by a dog obedience lesson book compiled by Dale Allen. This book consists of twelve lessons which give step by step instructions on how to train the dog for each obedience command. Bulletins on dog training from the Kansas Extension Service are also given to the members.

Although the Cherokee County project is primarily for 4-H members, two years ago it was opened up to any youth between the ages of eight and nineteen who resides in Cherokee County. Thus the project helps to meet the needs of other young people in the community, as well as giving them an insight into the fun they could have by belonging to 4-H.

Reno County follows a similar program. Mr. Bruno Marx, Hutchinson, is the dog project chairman. He is assisted by junior leaders who help him with the weekly classes during the summer and with the show at the Reno County Fair.

The Reno County 4-H Dog Show was held August 12, with fifteen entries in four obedience classes and two conformation classes. Reno County 4-H'ers were assisted by two adult ring stewards, Mrs. Earl Lowry, Pretty Prairie, and Mrs. Willard Burgess, Huntsville. Junior assistants were Billy Burgess, Huntsville, Chris White, Hutchinson, and Signe Rosenblad, Bushton. The entries were judged by Mrs. M. E. Chambers, Hutchinson, conformation judge, and Mr. Karl Kaiser, Hutchinson, obedience judge.

In the novice obedience classes, dogs are required to learn to heel and sit, both on and off leash. They learn to sit and stay and down and stay for a short period of time, then to come on recall and sit in front of their trainer.

The more advanced classes add the "down on recall" and extend the period of time for sit and stay and down and stay. The owner must be out of sight of the dog during this interval. After these have been mastered, the dogs are taught to go over horizontal and vertical hurdles.

Ribbons and trophies are given winners in all classes, and the highest scoring dog is given a trophy also. A total of 192 points is required for the Reno County grand traveling trophy. This is presented to the owner of the dog if it is won two years in a row.

Conformation is broken into two classes, working dogs and pleasure dogs. Winners of each of these are then judged for the best in show.

The dog project has the added advantage of being one in which almost any 4-H member can participate and work with an animal regardless of whether he lives in town or country.

Several other counties have combined in conducting their annual dog shows. Sedgwick and Harvey Counties have combined, and a tri-county show is given each year by Rice, Salina, and McPherson Counties.

Biographical Sketch Sally D. Jarrott

(Editor's note: Sally D. Jarrott is the wife of Dr. John B. Jarrott, Hutchinson, and the mother of Linda, Thomadora 4-H club member. The Jarrotts have two older children, Susie, a student at the University of Houston, and Jack (John, Jr.), a student at Sterling College, Sterling, Kansas.

A senior at Sterling College, Mrs. Jarrott is majoring in education and English, and hopes to teach journalism. Although she is interested in 4-H, her school work limits her participation to writing an occasional article about the club.

She has done some free lance writing, and is a member of the Kansas Authors' Club and the Kansas and National Press Women.

Kansas 4-H Congress Meets in Wichita

By Marjorie Ann Tennant
Assistant Extension Editor

What happens when teenage 4-H'ers from every area of Kansas are brought together for two days of speeches and discussions, parties, meals, and tours of industry and commerce? The annual Kansas 4-H Congress in Wichita meets this description, and October 31 to November 2 found almost 100 Sunflower State 4-H'ers in Wichita as Kansas Congress delegates.

Charles Bates, Extension 4-H specialist, Kansas State University, Manhattan, and coordinator of the event, explains that each 4-H'er was named for the honor in recognition of outstanding accomplishments. The projects or areas of 4-H involved were citizenship, personal development, electric, field crops, foods and nutrition, recreation, civil defense, weed control, and total 4-H achievement.

Members of the first place judging teams in crops, foods and nutrition, clothing, and home improvement were delegates.

Almost 10 years ago, the Kansas 4-H Foundation and members of the state 4-H staff, KSU, originated the Wichita event. The Foundation directs the awards program which includes the trips to the Kansas Congress. Wichita Chamber of Commerce personnel assist in the planning each year.

Sponsors of the trips include American Legion of Kansas, Southwestern Bell Telephone Company, Rural Electric Cooperatives and Electric Companies of Kansas, Federal Land Bank of Wichita, Wichita Bank of Cooperatives, Thompson-Hayward Chemical Company, Kansas Production Credit Association, and Federal Intermediate Credit Bank of Wichita.

Citizenship, in one or more of many possible areas, is stressed at each Kansas Congress.

The 1968 program featured Mrs. Kay Arvin, Wichita attorney, and Clark V. Owens, judge of the Sedgwick County Probate Court.

Mrs. Arvin challenged the 4-H'ers to answer these questions

—Do I like and enjoy myself?
Why do I act as I do?

"Use your imagination, see the situation, and find ways to meet it. Use positive terms, enthusiasm, and confidence to meet life. Never be content, but anxious to do better." So went the comments from this popular speaker.

Judge Owens reminded the teenagers that "there are very few things you can't accomplish if you try hard and have faith."

"In Kansas, approximately one per cent of youth could be called delinquent. Everyone, no matter what age, wants to be recognized. You 4-H'ers are willing to work for this recognition, and you have parents behind you. Some youth have to go against the rules of society to be recognized, to attract attention, or to be somebody in their own eyes," Judge Owens said.

Traditional highlight of the Kansas Congress is the Friday night banquet with representatives of the sponsors joining the delegates. Parties on Thursday and Friday nights, planned by Pratt County 4-H'ers honored in recreation, provided time to get acquainted and learn new games and dances.

Saturday morning was spent in tours and visits to places of special interest to the groups. The personal development and general achievement groups toured Southwestern Bell facilities. Delegates in electric and home economics judging teams spent the morning at Kansas Gas and Electric seeing and hearing demonstrations on the newest equipment and uses of electric power.

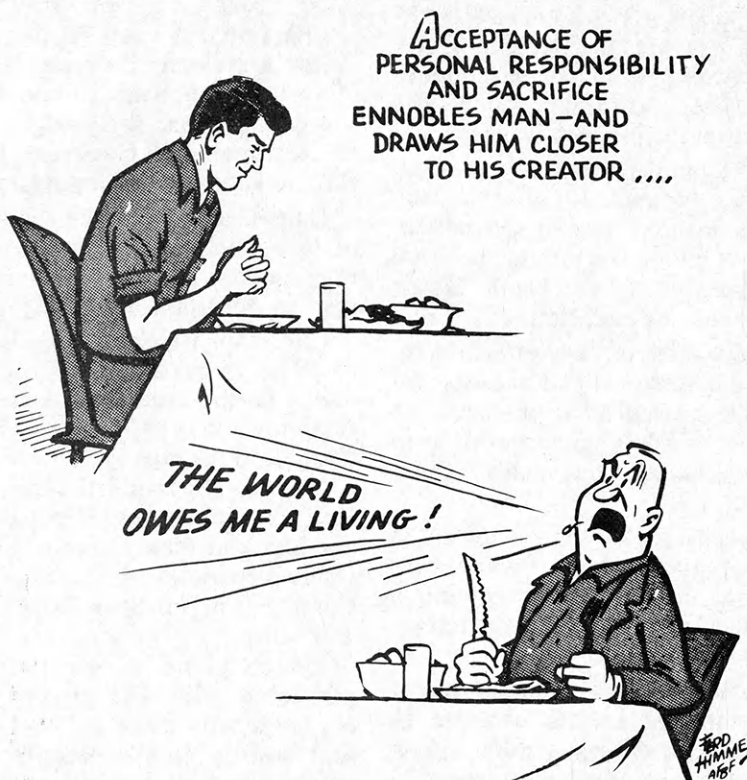

The crops judging team and delegates in crops and weed control toured the Kansas Milling Company.

Kansas 4-H Congress is an excellent example of how an event can serve two purposes — provide educational and recreational experiences for youth, and recognize accomplishments. It is incentive to "make the best better."

THE OLD VIEW - AND A NEW ONE ....

America's unparalleled progress is based on freedom and dignity of the individual sustained by basic moral and religious concepts.

Freedom of the individual versus concentration of power which would destroy freedom is the central issue in all societies.

Economic progress, cultural advancement and ethical and religious principles flourish best where men are free, responsible individuals.

Federal "war on poverty" programs are being administered ineffectively and extravagantly and are characterized by confusion, waste, duplication and overlapping effort. They have contributed to inflation and to concentration of power in the federal government.

Christine Erickson also is one of 18 sectional award winners in dairy foods, receiving a trip to National 4-H Congress from Carnation Company.

Mogge, 18, is a University of Kansas sophomore. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Mogge. He is a member of the Sherman County Warren Star Busy Bees 4-H Club.

Mogge plans a career in engineering. His 4-H projects include sheep, tractor, landscape and design improvement, field crops, citizenship, dog care and training, and junior leadership.

A state and national winner in 1966 in the sheep project, Mogge handled 690 animals in this project. His field crops consisted of more than 200 acres in six projects.

Turnquist, 18, is a Kansas State University freshman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Turnquist, and a member of the McPherson County Smoky Valley 4-H Club.

Turnquist plans to have a career in agriculture. During his 4-H years, he completed projects involving 440 acres of wheat, 115 acres of sorghum, 14 acres of alfalfa, and 121 head of beef. He has been active in the tractor and public speaking projects.

Health, foods and nutrition, woodwork, grain marketing, garden, conservation, reading, grooming, safety, and junior leadership are other projects Turnquist has completed.

A member of the Greenwood County Upper Fall River Jayhawks 4-H Club, Miss Erickson, 18, is a freshman at Kansas State Teachers College, Emporia. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Chris Erickson.

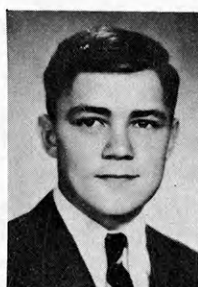

An interest in science, especially the "why" of coagulation of milk, prompted Miss Erickson to experiment with milk in many foods. She did more than 230 tests on milk coagulation and won honors in district and international science fairs.

Patton, 17, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Patton, a Riverton High School senior, and member of the Cherokee County Riverton 4-H Club.

Patton began his electric project in 1960 with the beginning phase. His accomplishments though the years include installation of radiant heat cable in four rooms of his home, installation of outdoor lights, weatherproof outlets, installation of an intercom system throughout the house, installation of many of the lights and outlets in a new house, and assisting with the installation of a central air conditioning system.

Demonstrations and project talks in electric are a part of his records. He has been county electric leader the past three years.

A Saline High School senior, White is the son of Mr. and Mrs. O. S. White and a member of the Saline County Willing Workers 4-H Club.

A collection of almost 1,700 insects representing 21 orders is one of White's entomology accomplishments. He is a junior leader in the project and shares his knowledge and skills with other 4-H'ers and many groups.

White has given talks and demonstrations in classrooms, garden clubs, and 4-H club and project meetings. He gave a collection of 300 insects to the Salina Museum.

"Learning scientific methods in working with insects" is one value of his work that he lists in his record book. Purple ribbons on state fair exhibits and demonstrations show the quality of his work.

A Kansas State University sophomore in agriculture, Munson, 19, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Munson. He is a member of the Geary County Blueline 4-H Club.

With 6 years of field crops projects, Munson has managed 128 acres of wheat, 45 acres of corn, 25 acres of alfalfa, 30 acres of grain sorghum, and 5 acres of soybeans.

Weed control and chemical pesticides programs have proved a practical addition to the crops projects.

Judging, talks and demonstrations, and exhibits are a part of Munson's record. He was first place individual in the 1968 4-H crops judging contest at the Kansas State Fair.

Much of the feed grain produced is used for cattle feed. Corn and alfalfa crops are irrigated.

Felder, 15, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Felder, a Trego Community High School junior, and member of the Trego County Busy Kansas 4-H Club.

He has prepared window displays and newspaper articles on health subjects in addition to almost 70 talks and demonstrations. His topics have included first aid, water supply, heart, and cancer. Felder attended a State 4-H Health Camp and was a leader in starting a community water testing program.

A Girard High School senior, Miss McClintock, 17, is a member of the Crawford County Hepler Hustlers 4-H Club and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William McClintock.

As safety chairman for her club, she and her committee took the leadership in planning and accomplishing a varied safety promotion and improvement program. She has enrolled in safety each of the 10 years she has been a 4-H'er.

Cooperation with civic clubs and Extension homemaker units made it possible to do many of the safety projects. A bike safety program, campaign for rabies prevention, promotion of a rural fire district, and promotion of traffic lights and railroad crossing blinkers are examples of community projects.

A member of the Sherman County Ruleton Eager Beavers 4-H Club, Miss Nelson, 15, is a Goodland High School sophomore. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. LaVern Nelson.

During the 5 years she has enrolled in the dog care project, she has handled 4 dogs and 27 pups, all Australian Shepards.

Miss Nelson is a member of the Australian Shepard Club of Colorado. She shows her dogs at 4-H dog shows and 4-H businessmen's picnic in Sherman County. Eleven talks and demonstrations are a part of her record.

She ships her puppies to all sections of the United States. She comments on the importance of pedigrees and blood lines in breeding stock and the importance of balanced rations and health measures.

Conard, 18, is a Kansas State University student. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Conard, and he is a member of the Rush County Center Conquerors 4-H Club.

Poultry projects he has completed include the handling of more than 8,000 laying hens, 5,600 pullets, 450 broilers, and 600 turkeys. He has given demonstrations and project talks and exhibited at state fairs. He was a member of the Kansas poultry judging team that participated in the national contest in Chicago.

The Conards have hosted a district poultry judging school and contest each year since 1963. Dale shares his skills and knowledge of poultry judging and handling with younger 4-H'ers.

His present projects include 150 turkeys and approximately 1,700 hens which are caged layers.

Douglas County Bankers Honored at 40th Banquet For 4-H Club Achievement

The 40th Annual Douglas County 4-H Club and Vocational Agriculture Achievement Banquet was held October 29, with approximately 625 4-H club members, leaders, and guests present.

Special recognition was given to the hosts, the Douglas County Bankers Association, who have sponsored each banquet over the 40-year period.

At the first banquet in 1928, C. E. Cory, Association president, said, "This banquet is given for recognition of the efforts the young folks of our county are making to use and develop their opportunities."

Bill Lienhard, current Association president, remarked that this type of spirit has remained through all the years.

The first banquet was held at the Hotel Eldridge, with 150 4-H's in attendance. The FFA chapter members of Lawrence High School were included the second year, and the event later became so large it had to be moved to the Union Building at the University of Kansas.

M. H. Coe, state 4-H leader, complimented the grade of work being done in the Douglas County clubs as "hardly equalled anywhere else in Kansas" at the first banquet. Although unable to attend the 40th banquet, Coe echoed this praise in a letter read by Ralph Utermohlen, County Extension 4-H Agent.

Ed Lothamer, defensive football player for the Kansas City Chiefs, was the guest speaker. Recognition of outstanding 4-H work and presentation of awards concluded the banquet.

Ellis 4-H'ers Practice Civil Defense

Ellis county 4-H members served as patients for the Ellis County Civil Defense disaster practice. The group met at the courthouse to apply fake wounds and bandages. They were transported by ambulance and station wagons to the two local hospitals.

The disaster practice was staged to give the hospitals an opportunity to check the efficiency of the facilities and staff in the event of a local disaster.

The members enjoyed the ambulance trip to the hospital and learned more about hospital facilities.

They were served refreshments by the hospitals in appreciation for their participation.

WILL YOUR COUNTY BE INCLUDED IN THE 1969 KANSAS 4-H in REVIEW?

For the Kansas 4-H in Review edition of the Kansas 4-H Journal, to come out September 1, each county has been asked to provide material on at least one topic.

The Kansas 4-H in Review is a special project of the Kansas State University Collegiate 4-H Club, cooperating with the County 4-H Councils and the Kansas 4-H Foundation. Within a short time, the Collegiate 4-H members must start working on the stories—then it will be too late to include your county's material if you have not selected a topic and started to write the stories.

If you have pictures or information on any of the topics suggested in a letter a few months ago to your county, send them to the 4-H in Review — but please don't delay.

Counties that have already picked their topics are: Barber, Jefferson, Lane, Rush, Russell, Shawnee, Sheridan, Thomas, Wabaunsee, Wallace and Wichita. Let us hear from you. It is not too early to send in your stories.

ABOUT YOUR 4-H JOURNAL

Did you know some 429 firms in 102 counties make it possible for you to receive the Kansas 4-H Journal each month?

Have you taken the opportunity, recently, to make sure these firms know how much you appreciate receiving the Kansas 4-H Journal?

You might show your appreciation during the Christmas season by extending a personal thank-you, sending a box of cookies or candy, or serving coffee and cake to each employee in the sponsor's place of business.

Your county extension agent will know the names of these firms in your county, or you may wish to check the list of sponsors in the September 4-H in Review.

Sedgwick County 4-H'ers helped show groups of underprivileged children the mysteries of rural life this past summer.

Under the sponsorship of the Red Cross, these youngsters were bussed to the Paul Jacobs farm near Goddard and the Glenn Nagel farm near Valley Center. It was the first time many of the children had visited a farm.

The groups were taken on tours of the farms and given explanations of the rural way of life. The tours were followed by picnics, with milk furnished by the American Dairy Association of Kansas.
