FOREWORD

Lines, crowds, surging masses of youth . . . eager, vital and striving. Abnormal conditions of wartime replaced by new conditions . . . a new impetus, a new feeling and a new hope.

Temporary barracks dotting the campus, a stadium honeycombed with quarters, a new dormitory for women . . . standing room only, an auditorium more than filled, sitting on rafters to see every other basketball game . . . Hurry, get there early, wait . . . teachers younger than their students . . . New courses to meet the changing needs . . . Organizations galore.

A year of change, this 1947 . . . A year of awakening and transforming . . . A year of beginnings . . . A year for history.

MILTON S. EISENHOWER, President of Kansas State College

DEAR MOE:

Well, I'm back in school now, and brother, how things have changed. Oh, the old buildings are the same. They'll probably always be the same. The ivy has grown a little thicker on some of the walls until you can't be sure whether the walls are holding the ivy or vice versa. I guess it's changed some since the original buildings were built in a corn field—but that's another story.

But, Moe, the rest of the picture is something like a DeMille mob scene. No one had any idea what the enrollment would be last fall. The prexy estimated a large enrollment—maybe 5000. When the books were closed behind the last enrollee there were 6500. The school was shaken to the core. There just weren't enough rooms to go around either for classes or for living. It looked for awhile as if the seams would let go. Somehow the school's pilots, who had been working on plans for almost a year, dug up enough extra quarters for all the students. They started teaching classes at all ungodly hours, beginning at 7 in the morning and lasting until late at night. For some students they even scheduled them through the noon hour, utterly disregarding the custom of eating.

That old crowded sensation we used to feel in an overloaded Quonset was common to everyone. Every available room in town was taken and in some cases students had to live so far from school that they wandered around for weeks like visiting firemen.

The school searched frantically for ways to stretch their existing housing facilities. They added more rooms for men in the stadium until it was honey-combed with quarters. They converted the Waltheim apartment building into a dorm, since Van Zile Hall had long since housed only a fraction of the women students.

CAFETERIA

Army barracks were moved in from Coffeyville and were thrown together on the southeast corner of the campus. That was that lovely plot of grass where we learned our hup-ta-three's, remember? The buildings are not good to look at, but they hold nearly 400 veterans.

For married veterans the facilities were even worse. The trailer camp behind the military building held a hundred families, but another million or so searched for shelter. Every basement in town that wasn't full of water (and some that were) was occupied. Attics, likewise.

Finally the Federal Public Housing Authority agreed to build a million dollars worth of units. They started them, but they didn't do fall semester students much good. The first ones weren't ready until early in January. You should have heard the griping from fellows whose wives had to stay at home with the folks.

As for eating, remember when we used to drift into Aggieville beaneries any time of day and help ourselves to anything on the menu? Now if you are starving enough to stand in line for a meager helping, you can have it. And the Canteen! Coffee and cokes aren't always worth struggling to the fountain through a mass of sports.

Books? You want books. Okay, students, get in line, and what a line! Then when we got to the counter we found they were fresh out of some texts and would we please come back Tuesday. Tuesday there was another line. Fellows who had sweated lines from here to there found it easy to fall in, and luckily the school's enrollment was more than two-thirds veterans.

Parking on the campus became a problem. Cars were stacked all over the place. Harry, the cop, developed writers' cramp making out parking tickets. Then the school blossomed out with traffic signs allowing parking but limiting it to one side of each drive and the whole thing worked itself out.

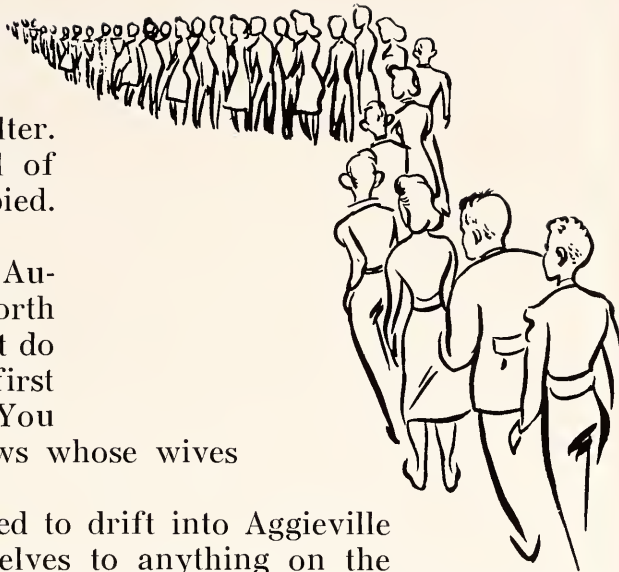

The coeds again learned how to be coy with the man-to-woman ratio back to pre-war standards. The big beef of the girls was the uncertain marital status of the men. They hated to waste time fluttering eyelids at ineligible males.

The College threw out the dragnet for more professors and got some, but not nearly enough. Profs who had become accustomed to sleeping nights or having a few days off each year had to change their ways. Old boys who were used to looking down to the three students in the front row started raising their eyes and voices to teach a roomful of thirsty learners.

Yes, sir, Moe, the old place has changed. More changes are needed, but the school has weathered the first big wave. With any luck she should make the grade. By the way, I spoke to the dean about your chances of enrolling next year if you get back by that time. He said, "We'll see."

DEAR MOE:

In a way, Moe, you're lucky. You will find several of the deans and heads of departments changed when you get back. And as I remember your status with many of them, you will be the better off for the changes.

There has been a reshuffling of the athletics department. Hobbs Adams, who took up the reins of director of athletics only last fall, resigned and Thurlo McCrady from South Dakota State moved in behind the desk.

Sam Francis, whom you will remember as a slippery back from Nebraska, was given a three-year contract as football coach.

R. I. Thackrey gave up his job as Dean of Administration to go to Washington as executive secretary of the Association of Land-Grant Colleges and Universities. You can't blame a man for going after a job with that long a title.

Dean L. E. Call of the School of Agriculture reached the retirement age and gave way to R. I. Throckmorton. Thus, the executive machinery of the College was settled for another year.

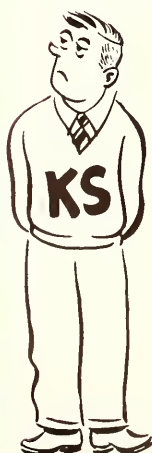

There was perhaps more than the usual amount of hiring, firing and retiring of instructors and professors, but you can survey that situation for yourself.

Though we need more teachers, I don't know where they would live, if we did get them. The city is talking of building apartments for them, or rather, of encouraging private capital to do the job. That might fix it; we'll see.

Teachers have been one scarce item the OPA ignored altogether. Attractive offers from private industry and competition among schools have made prospective faculty members as independent as drill sergeants.

A big drive was begun last fall to finance a Memorial Chapel. When the necessary funds are raised, the building will be erected on the east side of the campus there below the formal gardens where you used to cut across from Willard to Aggieville. It will serve as a useful memorial to K-State students who served in the war. That's you, Moe.

The new budget for the school provides for buildings that will be a great break for all of us. Although we're not getting all we need, we're getting enough to ease the crowding—I was beginning to think we would have to resort to tents.

Among the glad tidings received from the legislature came news that we were appropriated $500,000 in cash and permission to borrow more during the next two-year period to finance the construction of dormitories both for men and for women. Yes, Moe, I said for men. Imagine a men's dorm at K-State. We didn't need that any more than a fish needs water. It will be built on the Eliot tract northwest of the campus.

The women's dorm will be put up beside Van Zile Hall. Work on plans for the two dorms should be well underway by the time you get here. They will both be native limestone. What else?

Other appropriations call for, believe it or not, a combination fieldhouse and gym. It will go up at the north end of the stadium, but work will probably not begin on that until the spring of 1948. It takes time, Moe, to get the plans drawn up and the necessary preparations made.

Three new home management houses for the Home Ec school are authorized and work will be started on them right away. They will be along the creek road on the northeast part of the campus. And then there's a small animal research building. It will go up between West Waters Hall and the Military Science building.

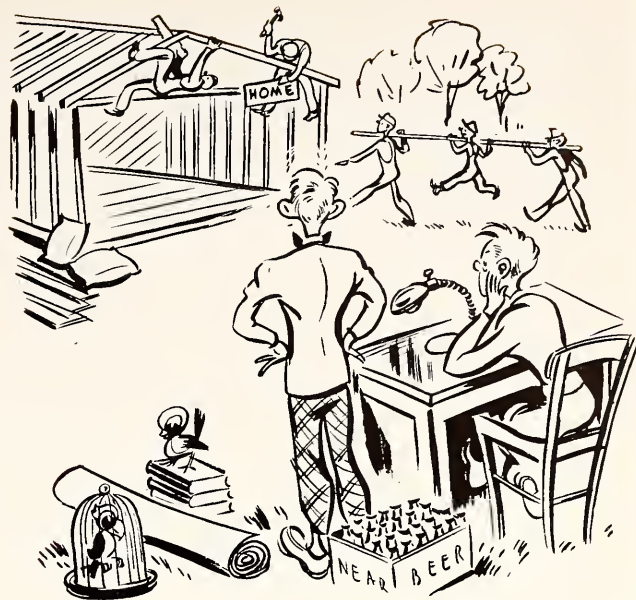

I'm telling you, Moe, there's gonna be some changes made. You'll have to be shown around.

Something probably will be done about getting us a student union in the reasonably near future, but in the words of school officials, "It presents a problem" (a prize understatement).

No classroom buildings were provided for. That hurts. If the President's estimates of coming enrollments are correct, we'll need everything short of a Yankee Stadium to handle the gate. By the fall semester of 1947, he expects maybe 8,000.

Although we didn't get it, you can imagine how bad we need a new hospital. I don't mean to imply that the student body is puny, but only that the present hospital is outmoded. It is 80 years old, and as historians have it, was the first building on the campus. I can believe that.

ARCHIE.

FRANK CARLSON, the new Governor of Kansas, assumed his duties at the State Capitol after serving 12 years in Washington as Representative of the 6th Congressional District of Kansas. Governor Carlson is a native of Concordia and a former Kansas State student.

Former K. S. Students

The face of Governor Frank Carlson is a familiar one to Kansas State students. Many of them supported him actively during his candidacy for the office and when he and his Democratic opponent debated state issues in the College Auditorium in October, they were greeted by an overflowing audience of students and townspeople.

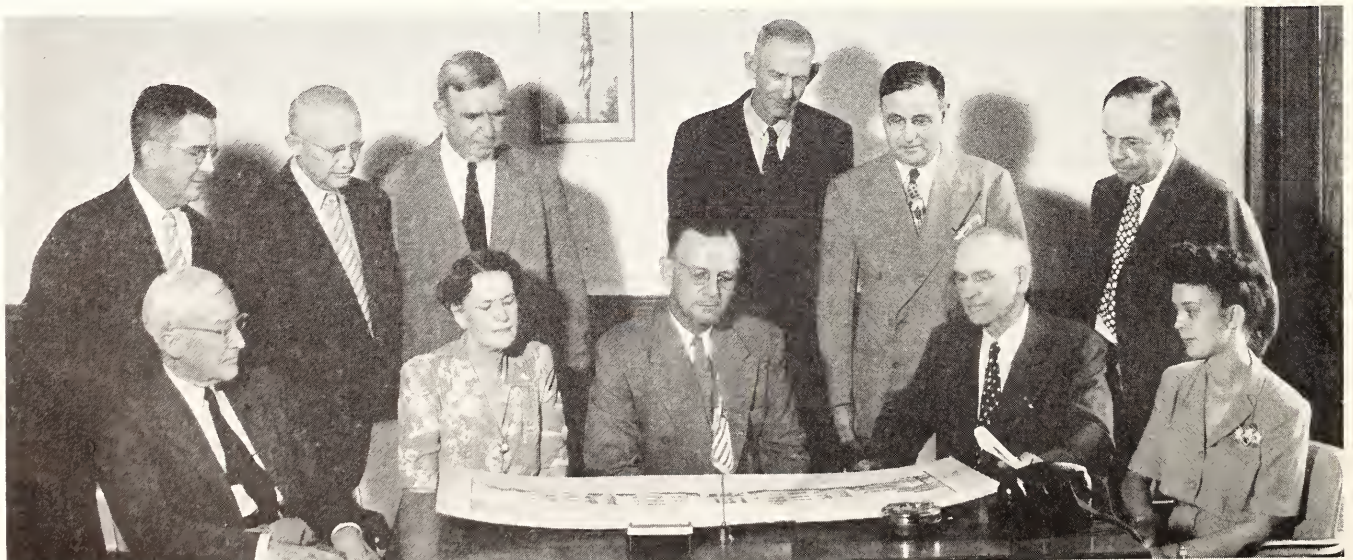

Governor Carlson, a former KSC student and for the last 12 years a representative to Congress, also visited the campus for the Industrial Agriculture Week in the fall, when Kansas State welcomed many Kansans outstanding in industry and agriculture.

The Board of Regents, consisting of nine members, of whom Willis N. Kelly of Hutchinson, a Kansas State graduate, is chairman, faced many problems this year in connection with the eight state-supported schools over which they hold jurisdiction.

With 11,084 World War II veterans enrolled in these schools this year, sufficient housing, classrooms, and instructors presented major issues to the Board. In an effort to overcome these difficulties, which show promise of becoming permanent, the Board of Regents submitted requests to the Kansas legislature this year for increased appropriations for all schools.

Appointed by the Governor for a term of four years, the nine members are prominent Kansans whose homes are scattered throughout the state.

Head State and College

The name of President Milton S. Eisenhower, apart from family connections, was of significance to the nation as well as to the College this year.

Through President Eisenhower the initials of UNESCO became a reality to 6,500 K-Staters. Appointed by President Truman as a delegate to the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization meeting in Paris in November and December, President Eisenhower also served for the year 1946-1947 as chairman of the commission of 100 American educators, publishers, and scientists, who, by law, advise the Secretary of State on American participation in UNESCO.

In addition to acting in an advisory capacity, the commission has the responsibility for putting the UNESCO program into effect in this country.

President Eisenhower returned from Paris to act in his official capacity as chairman of the executive committee at a meeting of the Association of Land Grant Colleges and Universities.

A graduate of Kansas State, President Eisenhower resigned as associate director of the Office of War Information in 1943 to become president of the College. Directly responsible to the Board of Regents for the welfare of K-State life, his duties as College head are manifold and complex in a period of rapid expansion and change.

C. O. PRICE, who has served as advisor to three Kansas State Presidents, is an experienced hand at the job. It is his duty to keep the machinery of the College functioning smoothly during the President's absence.

PRESIDENT MILTON S. EISENHOWER, the first graduate of Kansas State to be appointed President of the College, took office four years ago. Since receiving his degree of Bachelor of Science in Industrial Journalism in 1924 he has held many positions of national prominence.

During the President's absence, smooth functioning of the office is assured by C. O. Price, assistant to the President. Through his experienced hands passes much of the business essential to the administration of the office and the College.

Mr. Price has watched Kansas State expand through 27 years and three Presidents to its present overflowing enrollment. The large student increase naturally demands a corresponding increase in the work of the President's office as in other administrative offices, to keep the affairs of the College running at top efficiency.

Financial matters, correspondence, and acting in an advisory capacity to the President occupy much of Mr. Price's time. During his quarter of a century serving the College and its Presidents, Mr. Price has taken part in many plans and projects which promote the interests of the school and its students, and which have aided the College in growing to its present record stature.

Administrators Take on New Duties

Duties of the College administrators have become even more complex with the increase in student enrollment. New methods of handling business and projects for improvement of the College program have been announced this year from all administrative offices.

Elimination of laboratory fees for students has made it possible this year for the office of Comptroller A. R. Jones to handle registration work without outside help. The office which handles financial matters for the College, also assumed the task of furnishing supplies and equipment for veterans, billing the Veterans Administration. By introducing book permits, it was made possible for veterans to get their texts in the same manner as other students.

Raising funds for a College chapel in memory of 5000 Kansas State students who served in World War II and of the 200 who died, has been the year's main activity of the College Alumni Association. In addition to sponsoring a campus drive, the association has organized Kansas county and large city campaigns. The office, under the direction of Executive Secretary Kenny L. Ford and the new assistant secretary, H. O. Dendurent, keeps files on all K-State graduates.

Now writing a history of the chemistry department, Dr. J. T. Willard, College Historian, long made KSC history his hobby, until he took it over as a full-time job in 1937. Having served the College for many years as head of the chemistry department, Dean of what was then the division of general science, and Vice-President, Dr. Willard, also has written the "History of Kansas State College of Agriculture and Applied Science," which was published in 1940.

President Emeritus F. D. Farrell, who serves as a member of the Council of Deans and is consulted by faculty members, taught two courses this year in connection with his position as Professor of Rural Institutions. Much of his time is taken by research on an Agricultural Experiment Station project entitled, "Case studies of Kansas Rural Institutions." Head of Kansas State for 18 and one-half years, Dr. Farrell retired as president and assumed his present position in September, 1943.

Work of the Office of Admissions, of which Dr. S. A. Nock is head, has increased at least 300 per cent with this year's jump in enrollment. The office handles all problems of admission, including the individual and specific cases of veterans, besides editing the College catalogue.

A. R. JONES became supervisor of the College spending program a year ago last fall when the office of College Comptroller was added to the Kansas State administrative system.

EXECUTIVE SECRETARY of the College Alumni Association is Kenny L. Ford, who keeps tab on all K-State alumni. Raising funds for a memorial chapel has been this year's main activity.

DR. J. T. WILLARD, the official College Historian, has served Kansas State all but 16 of the 84 years that it has been operating. In 1940 Dr. Willard published a book on the history of the College.

DR. F. D. FARRELL (left) is still active in College affairs, although he resigned as President in 1943 after 18 years in that office. Doctor Farrell felt that a younger man was needed to direct the College through the war years. The Director of Admissions, Dr. S. A. Nock (right), is the first to contact each prospective student of Kansas State College. Every application for enrollment at Kansas State must be approved by the Director of Admissions.

A new College agency, the Veterans Service Office, of which A. Thornton Edwards is head, handles certification and scholastic records and receipts for all students whose fees are paid by an outside agency. This year, about 4,170 students, all of them veterans, came under this classification. Mr. Edwards was formerly principal of a Manhattan grade school and came to the College in April, 1946.

The newest thing about the office of the Registrar is the Registrar herself, Miss Eleanor Tibbetts, who took the place of Miss Mary Kimball in July, 1946. A graduate of Kansas State, Miss Tibbetts came to the College from a position as an administrative assistant in Antioch College. Her office keeps accurate scholastic records of each student, and gives information to those who need it.

This year the Student Health Department, headed by Dr. R. R. Snook, moved from Anderson Hall to the reconverted Army barracks near the College Hospital. Here facilities were raised to care for 70 bed patients. Through a general change in policy this year, the student benefits were greatly increased. Among the innovations were preventive influenza shots given to the major part of the students. Besides nurses, the department is now staffed with five physicians.

NEW TO THE CAMPUS this year is A. Thornton Edwards, head of the Veterans Service Office, a new College agency created to take care of the scholastic records and certification of the veteran enrollment.

THE REGISTRAR'S OFFICE, which is connected with the Office of Admissions, is headed by Miss Eleanor Tibbetts. Her job is to keep scholastic records of each student and to prepare graduation lists.

DR. R. R. SNOOK is the Director of the Department of Student Health. He supervises the physical entrance examinations which are required, and the medical service which is available to students.

R. I. THACKREY, who has served Kansas State in many capacities, resigned January 1 as Dean of Administration to become Executive Secretary of the Association of Land Grant Colleges and Universities.

On January 1, R. I. Thackrey cleaned out his desk in the office of Dean of Administration, and left Manhattan for Washington, D. C., to take up his new duties as executive secretary of the Association of Land Grant Colleges and Universities.

On the same day, A. L. Pugsley packed up his books on engineering and architecture and moved from the engineering building to the office of the Dean of Administration in Anderson Hall.

The new Dean of Administration and Summer School came to the campus in September of 1943 as Assistant Director of the Engineering Experiment Station and professor of structural engineering. The two years previous were spent in Washington, D. C., as Assistant Director of Engineering, Science and Management War Training Program of the United States Office of Education. Before that, he had taught architecture and structural engineering at the University of Nebraska and had an extensive consulting practice.

A graduate of South Dakota State College, Dean Pugsley earned his degree of Master of Architecture at Harvard University.

While traveling abroad as a Sheldon Fellow of that University, he painted many of the water colors that are his hobby, two of which now decorate the walls of the Dean's office.

In his duties as Dean of Administration, Mr. Pugsley assists in the development and appraisal of the educational program of the institution, acts as a coordinator of veterans' affairs, directs the Summer School, and sifts administrative problems for the President.

Dean Pugsley feels one of his more important duties is seeing people. For this reason, the door to his office is always open to any student or faculty member. He is a member of 18 College committees, which undoubtedly would earn him a record among faculty members.

The position of Dean of Administration was new to the College when it was taken in September, 1944, by Mr. Thackrey on his return from service in the Navy. Before he entered the service he was connected with the College as head of the journalism department.

NEW DEAN OF ADMINISTRATION A. L. Pugsley helps coordinate the administration of the College, listens to student and faculty problems, directs Summer School and paints water colors in his spare time.

Pugsley Takes Over

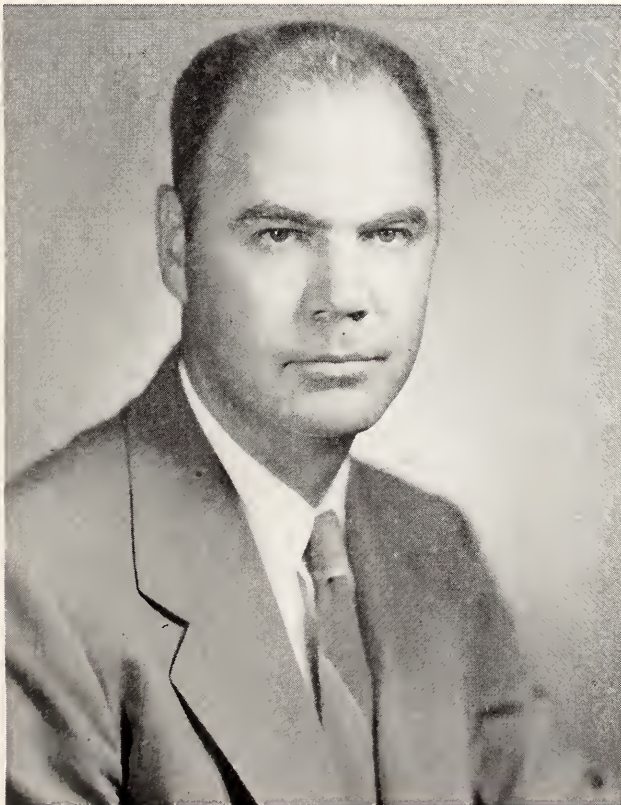

Perhaps the largest single new project under the direction of the Office of the Dean of Women during the year was the transformation of Waltheim Hall. The building, formerly an apartment house, was remodeled to house 80 K-State coeds. Miss Dorothy Hamer, assistant dean, is housing director, and Mrs. Blanche Twiss serves as director of Waltheim Hall.

Under the guidance of Dean Helen Moore, interviews are conducted with Kansas State freshmen women to help in their adjustment to college life, a job placement service is operated for women who wish employment, and all social functions for women are considered.

In charge of the employment service during the major part of the year was Mrs. Pat Lupfer, who held the position of assistant to the dean. Her place was taken in the spring by Mrs. Laura Pfeffer.

ARRANGING FOR WOMEN'S HOUSING, counseling freshmen, and working with other administrative officers are duties which come in a day's work for the Dean of Women, Helen Moore.

DIRECTOR OF THE COUNSELING BUREAU, Dr. M. D. Woolf plans the College's vocational guidance program, gives personality tests and aids the K-State student to adjust to college life.

The Counseling Bureau, under the direction of Dr. M. D. Woolf, sponsors the faculty advisory program for freshmen, and is the office on the campus most closely corresponding to the Office of the Dean of Men since the resignation of Dr. A. A. Holtz from that position in the summer of 1946.

Paul Torrance, Veterans' Counselor and instructor of psychology, has been acting as men's advisor in connection with the Bureau.

In a broad sense, the duties of the Bureau center around student personnel. Specifically, the staff is responsible for the freshmen counselors, freshmen orientation week prior to the opening of each term, and a freshman and transfer student testing program. This year a reading proficiency course was introduced.

Open to all students are services concerned with vocational and educational guidance and personal problems.

THE STUDENT UNION PLANNING COMMITTEE (below) studies plans for the proposed structure, which is still being delayed by shortages of money and materials. Committee members (left to right) are Winston Schmidt, Shirley Freienmuth, William Fiden, Dr. A. L. Goodrich, Prof. Paul Weigel, R. F. Gingrich, Glenn Rea, Richard Medlin, Mrs. Bessie Brooks West and C. J. Medlin. Not in the picture are Martha Adams and Prof. George Montgomery.

The Faculty Council on Student Affairs, headed by Dr. Harold Howe, Dean of the Graduate School, works in cooperation with the Student Council, governing body of the Student Governing Association, in the determination of policy on extracurricular student affairs.

Decisions of the Student Council are given the final O.K. by the Faculty Council, which is composed of 12 representative faculty members. The Faculty Council has several subcommittees, including the Committee on Fraternities and Sororities, and the Organization Control Board.

The Student Activity Fund Apportionment Board, composed of three student and three faculty members, distributes the money to college organizations from the Student Activity Fund. The fund is received from a specified amount paid by each student with his fees as he enrolls. Through the years the percentage received by each beneficiary is changed very little, in accordance with tradition and policy of the Board. The allotment may vary in normal times approximately as much as one per cent.

The Student Union Planning Committee, directed by Prof. Paul Weigel, head of the Department of Architecture and Architectural Engineering, deals with, as may be imagined from its title, the planning of the long-awaited Student Union building.

Several members of the committee attended a meeting in Ohio this spring of Student Union directors and committees from colleges and universities throughout the country. Definite plans have been approved. Construction on the proposed building is awaiting sufficient funds and building materials.

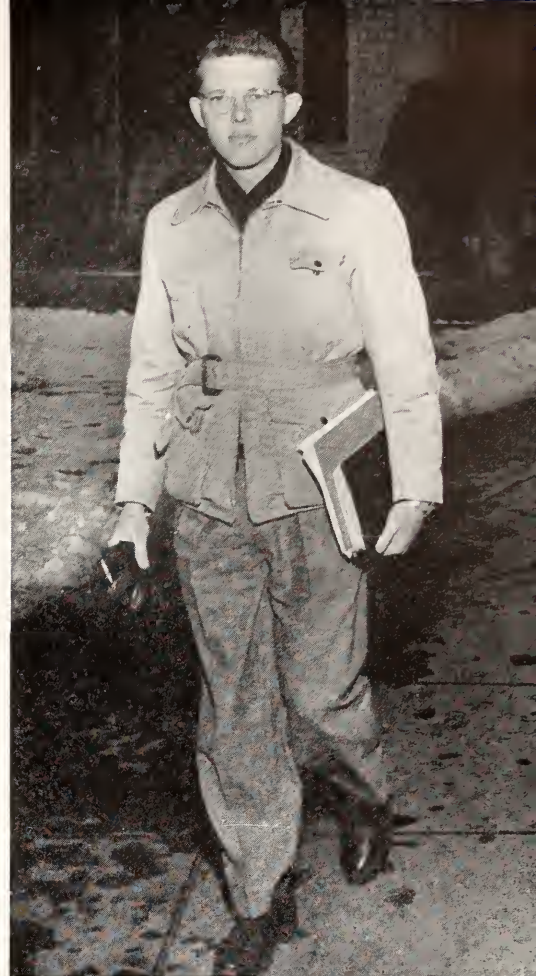

Council Governs SGA

Although the activities of the Student Council, the executive body of the Student Governing Association, may seem endless, they all come under the heading of the purpose for which the organization was formed. Through the Council of the SGA the students have a voice in the government of the school and in extracurricular activities.

The Student Council sponsored the Student Planning Committee and cooperated with all arrangements for Homecoming. Among the Council's numerous projects were the revision of the constitution by-laws; continuation of the study of more efficient forms of student government; printing of the student directory; cooperation with the Y organizations in printing freshman handbooks; sponsoring of the "Go-to-College" teams whose purpose was to publicize Kansas State; and sponsoring the SGA varsities.

Nine members, including President Don Carttar, elected by the various schools of the College, carry on the Council business, in cooperation with the Faculty Council on Student Affairs.

The Student Planning Committee, which was for the major part of the year a subcommittee of the Council, brought many new plans to the campus this year in the form of recommendations for revisions of the constitution. A vote on the proposed amendments was held by the student body, but though the majority of those voting accepted them, they were automatically rejected since less than a quorum of students went to the polls.

DON CARTTAR, Student Council president, leads the Council in the planning and organization of student extracurricular affairs. Under his guidance, representatives determine student policy in cooperation with the Faculty Council.

Throckmorton Takes

R. I. THROCKMORTON became Dean of the School last summer following the resignation of L. E. Call. Dean Throckmorton was formerly head of the agronomy department.

EAST WATERS HALL, along with West Waters, is home away from home to many students in agriculture. East Waters, which is better known on the campus as East Ag, is headquarters for the Dean's office. C. W. Mullen, who is Assistant Dean, also held that position under Dean Call. Much of the School's business passes through his office.

Over as Dean of Ag School

R. I. Throckmorton, who has been with the College 36 years, took over the leadership of the School of Agriculture July 1, 1946, with his acceptance of the position of Dean of the School and director of the Agricultural Experiment Station. He replaced Dean Emeritus L. E. Call, who resigned to head an agricultural mission to the Philippine Islands.

Dean Throckmorton, who had served many years as head of the agronomy department, is a member of seven honorary agricultural societies, an author of note, and a national authority on soil conservation.

Following the trend at Kansas State for expansion, addition and improvement, the School of Agriculture has added four new curriculums, three new courses, 17 regular faculty members and 15 graduate assistants, and has revived many of the pre-war student organizations.

Among the faculty additions was Dr. Harold E. Myers, who became head of the Department of Agronomy, taking the place of Dean Throckmorton. Assistant Dean of the School is C. W. Mullen, associate professor of agronomy.

Agricultural education, agricultural journalism (with a B.S. in agricultural journalism), soil conservation and a two-year curriculum in agriculture, are full-sized curriculums offered by the School for the first time.

The two-year curriculum in agriculture is intended for former service men and for men who have been detained on the farm or who have been employed in defense industries and who do not wish to take the time to earn a degree in agriculture.

Several women are included in the total enrollment of 927, which is not a great increase over a normal year's enrollment.

A commercial grant of $7,500 annually was awarded the Department of Horticulture by the Sharples Chemicals, Inc., of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, for research on the response of plants to a series of new organic compounds. Also, the Institute of American Poultry Industries, Chicago, is contributing $5,000 a year for five years to aid in the promotion of White Plymouth Rock poultry breeding work at the College.

The Department of Milling Industry is the only institution in the Western Hemisphere which is offering instruction in milling industry. This department trains students in fields of milling administration, milling technology, and milling chemistry.

The College owns 1,428 acres of land, which are used by the School for experimental work and instruction, and maintains laboratories for soil and crop work.

The first courses in agriculture were taught at the College in the fall of 1863, with a four-year curriculum approved in 1897. The first Dean of Agriculture on the campus was appointed in 1908, and from that time, the School has progressed toward its present recognition as one of the best in the country.

Milling Association Has 80 Members

An essay contest was sponsored this year as a new project of the Milling Association, an organization of students whose majors are in the Department of Milling Industry. The essays, which were to be on some phase of the milling industry, were also destined to be used in instruction in the milling department. The winner of the contest was awarded a year's subscription to a milling magazine.

Marlo Dirks was president of the Association, whose members met monthly to discuss problems and opportunities in their chosen field. Authorities in milling were also called in to speak to the millers on practical aspects, recent accomplishments, and other phases of the occupation.

Unlike many departmental organizations, the club membership is not honorary, but is open to any student in milling industry. Remaining active through the war years, while many other campus organizations primarily for men retired to inactive status, the Association keeps its world-wide viewpoint through its several members from other countries.

A spring picnic was one of the major social events of the year for the group whose membership increased to more than 80 students this year. Although the club carried on other social activities, its main purpose remained that of extra-curricular education in the field of milling.

R. O. Pence, associate professor of milling industry, and milling technologist for the Agricultural Experiment Station, sponsored the organization. Mr. Pence, who has been with the College for many years, has done several research projects in addition to his teaching and Experiment Station duties.

Aq Clubs Reactivate and Double

Klod and Kernel, its membership nearly doubled this year, is headed by William Phillips, and is an organization of men concerned with furthering interest in agronomic activities at Kansas State College.

C. R. Porter, the faculty advisor, has brought several noted speakers in the field of agronomy to the club's regular meetings.

Sponsoring student crops judging contests, Klod and Kernel awards medals to winning entries from Kansas high schools. A College crops judging contest in which any student can participate is also held each spring. Klod and Kernel members act as judges for these contests.

Block and Bridle, largest of the School of Agriculture's departmental clubs, spent an active year sponsoring judging contests and dances, and holding numerous meetings for the discussion of current problems of the livestock industry.

Floyd Frisbie presided over the club, whose membership more than doubled over the previous year. Prof. D. L. Mackintosh was faculty sponsor.

A semi-formal dance highlighted fall activities and with spring came the department sponsored Collegiate Judging Contest, banquet, and spring dance. The club also assists annually with Feeder's Day at Kansas State and presents a medal to the high man in the FFA judging contest.

Their Former Membership Totals

Dairy Club activities are gaining momentum after a period of suspension during the war. Helping to sponsor the Collegiate Judging Contest and a high school judging contest, and entertaining visiting dairymen are some of the items on the Dairy Club calendar.

In addition to these service projects, the Dairy Club joined with the other agricultural clubs in a program to prevent students from walking on the campus lawns.

Glenn Weir was president of the group in which membership increased 100 per cent over last year when the club was first reorganized. Ivan Strickler served as vice-president and Glen McCormick as secretary.

Both those interested in the production and in the manufacturing phases of the dairy industry find much of value in the club program.

Prof. F. W. Atkeson sponsored the group which meets bi-monthly.

Horticulture Club members this year erected a sundial in the formal garden as a war memorial to horticulture students who lost their lives in World War II.

Faculty members and students in the department discussed current phases of horticulture at the club's regular meetings as a supplement to class work.

Annual picnics, the Horticulture Show and the improvement of Marlatt Park northwest of Manhattan were among the activities of the club this year, under president Phil Haims' direction.

Prof. L. R. Quinlan was faculty sponsor for the Hort Club which increased its membership 350 per cent.

Ag Honoraries and Professional Clubs

Milling students this year found an active program for those of their profession in the honorary fraternity, Alpha Mu.

At monthly meetings, problems of the milling industry were discussed, and several social functions were included in the year's activities. All milling students attended a smoker and later, initiations and banquets were held.

Alpha Mu is an honorary fraternity, and membership requirements are based on scholarship, leadership and character.

Milling of five-pound bags of flour each Christmas for Manhattan's needy families is an annual activity of the group.

An award was made for the first time this year to honor the outstanding freshman in milling industry.

John W. Fitzsimmons was president, with Prof. R. O. Pence as faculty advisor.

Alpha Zeta, professional agricultural fraternity, this year resumed its custom of giving an award to the freshman with the highest scholarship in the School of Agriculture.

Alpha Zeta publishes a yearbook of its activities as a part of its program for the promotion of the agricultural profession.

Harold Riley as chancellor headed the organization this year and Dr. George A. Filingier was faculty sponsor.

Promote Programs of Service to College

A plaque honoring the Kansas high school with the highest total score in judging and FFA activities was presented by the Agricultural Education Club this spring as one of their service projects.

The club assists in the program of the annual Judging and Farm Mechanics Contest and the annual Future Farmers of America meeting held at Kansas State.

W. Dick Turner and William R. McMillan each served a semester as president with Prof. A. P. Davidson as faculty advisor.

At evening meetings held once a month, leaders in the field of argicultural education spoke to the group, and at the afternoon meetings, club members studied the organization and management of high school FFA chapters.

Authorities in the various fields of agricultural economics have been the guests of the Agricultural Economics Club at their bi-monthly meetings this year. Following a talk by the guests, the members of the club hold panel discussions.

A spring steak fry, parties and smokers are also a part of the annual program of the club which boasts a membership of 55 this year.

Floyd E. Rolf heads the club, with Dr. W. E. Grimes, head of the Department of Economics and Sociology, as faculty advisor.

Ag Association Sponsors Barnwarmer

Ags overflowed the Gymnasium for the biggest Ag Barnwarmer in the history of the Agricultural Association, the Barnwarmer's sponsor.

Mildred Hall, tiny, dark-haired junior in home ec from Coffeyville, reigned as queen of the Barnwarmer, following her coronation by Dean R. I. Throckmorton. Ags and their dates danced to the music of Matt Betton between trips to the tables where traditional cider and doughnuts were served.

Five candidates for the royal title were chosen from the field of entrants by the members of the Ag Association to compete in the series of contests. Besides taking part in the milking contest, hog calling contest, tractor race and hay-pitching race, the women were required to prove their knowledge of the farm by explaining technical farm terms.

After the fun was over the members of the Association voted for their choice for queen, regardless of the outcome of the tests. The candidates who attended the queen were Yvonne Cline, Mary Smith, Charlene Warner and Becky Wilkinson.

The Barnwarmer climaxed a week of campus activity during which agriculture students wore overalls or other work clothes, complete with red handkerchiefs.

Publication of the Agricultural Student was resumed this year under the editorship of Lewis Schafer and the advisorship of Prof. E. B. Macy. When the editor graduated at the close of the first semester John Tasker was chosen to succeed him.

The Ag Student is published four times yearly and each student in agriculture has a voice in the government of the publication since the editors are elected each semester by the members of the Agricultural Association.

Floyd Rolf served as business manager for the magazine both semesters.

James Nielson was president of the Association this year, with Assistant Dean C. W. Mullen as faculty advisor. Membership almost tripled over last year, with 937 on this year's roll.

Members voted to amend the Association's constitution to provide for the election of an Agricultural Council to formulate policies of Agricultural students and to advise the school's representative on the Student Council in regard to its position on campus-wide questions.

Each Ag student becomes a member of the Association when he enrolls in the School of Agriculture. The members meet once a month in seminar to hear addresses by prominent leaders in agriculture.

Other activities of the Association include presentation of "K" medals to members of all agricultural judging teams. The management of the Little American Royal in connection with Farm and Home Week is under the direction of the College Agricultural Association.

The Association worked through the various departmental clubs to sponsor a campaign against paths made across campus lawns.

Poultry Team Second at Purdue

The Kansas State Poultry Judging Team competed in the twenty-third annual Midwest Intercollegiate Poultry Judging Contest held at Purdue university last December 14 and came up second in the final placings.

Teams competing in the contest included Missouri university, Iowa State, Louisiana State, Illinois university and Purdue. Missouri placed first.

K-State Rates Three Firsts

The K-State team rated three firsts in different divisions of the contest, including egg judging, live market poultry judging, and all-around judging of market products.

The team also rang up two second place ratings in judging dressed market poultry and exhibition poultry.

Plans are now being made to hold next year's contest in Chicago and making it of national scope with as many as 30 teams participating.

Poultry Club Picks Turkeys

Poultry Science Club members picked turkeys for the holiday trade last fall as one of the major activities of the club. Members bought the birds from the College flock and dressed them for local trade.

The club edited the March issue of the National Collegiate Poultry Club's publication. A spring picnic was held for department and club members. Intramurals were also a part of the club program.

Club Sponsors Judging Contest

An all-school poultry judging contest was sponsored by the club, with 125 entering. Prizes amounting to $100 were awarded.

Richard C. Eaton was president of the club for the school term and Prof. Tom B. Avery was faculty advisor.

Judging Teams Compete for Honors

The Senior Livestock Judging Team led by coach F. W. Bell, professor of Animal Husbandry, entered two intercollegiate judging contests. At the American Royal at Kansas City in October they ranked third, with 14 colleges competing. Oklahoma A & M placed first in a close race with Nebraska university in this contest.

In separate divisions of the contest K-State ranked first on judging horses, third on cattle, third on sheep and twelfth on hogs.

At the International Livestock Exposition held at Chicago in November, the senior judging team ran eighth in the field of 22 colleges that were competing.

Take Top Honors at Denver

The Junior Livestock Judging Team pulled down blue ribbon honors at the National Western Stock Show in Denver, Colo., in January, thus outshining their more experienced contemporaries.

The K-State group, composed of juniors in agriculture, was triumphant in a field of nine college teams. Ranking below them in order were New Mexico A & M, University of Nebraska, Oklahoma A & M, Utah State, South Dakota State, Colorado A & M, Texas Tech and Wyoming university.

Massey Scores Individual High

Of a possible individual score of 800 points, John R. Massey of the Kansas State team compiled a total of 742. He was crowded by two of his own teammates, Clair Parcel and Wayne Ukena, who both scored more than 700 points in the contest.

In separate divisions of the contest, the team ranked first in judging breeding stock and second in judging fat stock.

Professor Bell coached the Junior Livestock Judging Team in addition to the senior group.

The Kansas State Dairy Cattle Judging Team took a trip north to Waterloo, Iowa, last fall to take part in the National Intercollegiate Judging Contest.

The team ranked fourth in judging Ayrshires, fifth in judging Guernseys and sixth in judging Jerseys, and came home with seventh place in the national contest.

Dick Warren, a junior in Animal Husbandry from Arkansas City, shone as the mainstay of his team by placing as sixth high man of the entire contest. He rated second on Ayrshires, third on Jerseys and fifth on Guernseys.

The team was coached by G. H. Beck, associate professor of Dairy Husbandry.

Meats Team Ranks High

The College Meats Judging Team competed in two intercollegiate meat judging contests: one at the American Royal livestock show in Kansas City, Mo., and the other at the International Livestock Exposition in Chicago.

Led by their experienced coach, David L. Mackintosh, associate professor of Animal Husbandry, they ranked fourth among seven competing teams at Kansas City. At Chicago, where Robert Henrickson of K-State was high individual for the contest, the team ranked fourth among 12.

Frisbie Wins Morrell Prize

In addition to the two intercollegiate contests, members of the K-State team competed as individuals in the John Morrell contest at Topeka. Floyd Frisbie, veteran member of the team, came out on top in that meet and was awarded a 21-jewel gold watch as prize.

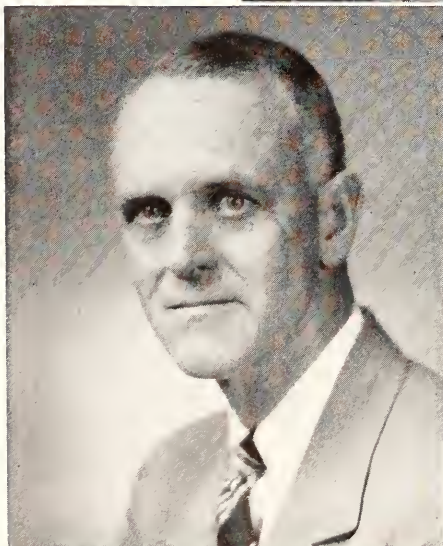

DAIRY CATTLE JUDGING TEAM—Robert J. Flipse, Dick Warren, Ivan Strickler, Tom Bentley, Prof. G. H. Bell, coach.

70 Percent of Teaching

DR. RODNEY W. BABCOCK has served Kansas State as Dean of the School of Arts and Sciences for 17 years. In addition to the enrollment of over 2000 majors in the School of Arts and Sciences, 70 per cent of the entire College's laboratory and classroom instruction is given in the School. Basic courses such as English, chemistry and math, which are required in all Schools of the College, come under the jurisdiction of this School.

ANDERSON HALL, whose aged corridors daily resound with the tread of thousands of student feet, houses most of the administrative offices of the College, and is the headquarters for the School of Arts and Sciences. Richard C. Maloney, assistant dean, who was new to the College this year, served during the war as a Lieutenant Commander in the Navy.

Load Carried by Arts and Sciences

The School of Arts and Sciences this year boasted an increase of nearly 1,000 students and 138 faculty replacements and additions, including five new department heads and a new assistant dean.

Although the School of Engineering had a slightly higher enrollment for the fall semester, Arts and Sciences could count 2,088 students—more than the other four schools combined. In addition to this heavy load, over 70 per cent of the class and laboratory instructions for the entire College is shouldered by the School.

A new department was created this year. The Department of Geology, headed by A. B. Sperry, was taken from its former position as a part of the zoology department and made a separate entity.

Other new heads of departments were Dr. P. L. Gainey, replacing Dr. L. D. Bushnell as head of the Department of Bacteriology; H. Leigh Baker, taking over the leadership of the education department following the resignation of Dr. E. L. Holton; R. G. Sanger, replacing W. T. Stratton as head of the Department of Mathematics; and Thurlo McCrady following Hobbs Adams as Director of Athletics.

R. C. Maloney, formerly a Lieutenant Commander in the Navy, came to the School this year as assistant dean, taking the place of L. E. Hudburg. Prior to entering the service, Mr. Maloney was connected with school administration in Massachusetts.

The School is keeping pace with the great strides in all phases of science, including military. The entire program of the Department of Military Science and Tactics was revised this year and an air advance course was added. Infantry and anti-aircraft artillery courses were changed on the basis of tactical and technical improvements brought out by World War II.

New courses were offered in nearly all departments. For instance, Nuclear Physics was presented for the benefit of Kansas State's budding atomic experts. New courses also were added in the Departments of Music, Entomology, Modern Language, Zoology, History and Government, and Industrial Journalism.

Many departmental clubs were reorganized, and the Spanish Club, or Club Cervantes, became active for the first time on the campus.

No new building additions were made within the School, although money for a field house was appropriated in 1945 and an Arts and Sciences class building was requested of the 1947 legislature.

The School has been a separate division of the administration since 1912. The Dean, Rodney W. Babcock, came to Kansas State 17 years ago to take his present position.

Business Club Takes Inspection Trip

Organizations in the School of Arts and Sciences were in a prosperity boom this year, after a slump cycle during the war period. Departmental club memberships matched the huge jump in Arts and Sciences enrollment, with students taking a lively interest in outside work from Spanish to medical technology.

One of these organizations, the Business Students' Association, relates to the others in that its purpose is to provide a supplement to class work.

Open to all men and women enrolled in Business Administration, the club attempts to stimulate interest in practical business problems and employment opportunities. This is accomplished in part by bringing in outside speakers who are leaders in the business world to address their meetings, which are held once a month.

One of the Association's major annual projects, which was revived for the first time in three years, is the inspection trip to Kansas City to view at first hand the inside workings of a wide variety of businesses. April 17 and 18 marked the days scheduled for the trip this year, with approximately 70 students in attendance.

The Board of Trade, the Federal Reserve Board, Peck's Department store, the Sheffield Steel works, the Buick, Oldsmobile and Pontiac assembly plant (the old North American Aircraft factory), and Sears-Roebuck were on their visiting docket.

The Association attempted this year to include only students in the inspection trip who would graduate before the spring semester, 1948. As the trip is an annual affair, others who graduate at a later date will have an opportunity to make the journey in their senior year.

Harry Stewart, professor of economics and sociology and faculty sponsor for the group, his wife, and Edgar S. Bagley, assistant professor of economics and sociology, who was in charge of the inspection trip program, went with the group to Kansas City to act as guides, directors and chaperons. Two days were spent on the trip, in order that the business systems used by each establishment might be looked over carefully.

The 55 members of the organization also honored the high ranking seniors in Business Administration at their last monthly meeting in the spring.

Officers elected in the spring of 1946 to serve a full year's term were Herb J. Barr, president; Keith Kehmeier, vice-president; Flo Hineman, secretary, and Darlene Schreiber, treasurer.

The Business Students' Association is not related to classwork except through its attempt to develop business abilities by listening to the various speakers and viewing practical business problems.

Honorary and Professional Societies

Members of Theta Sigma Phi, honorary and professional fraternity for women in journalism, this year reactivated several projects discontinued during the war. One of them was Matrix Table, a banquet at which a prominent woman journalist was guest speaker.

Women are elected to Theta Sigma Phi on the basis of their scholarship, professional ability and interest in journalism.

The year's meetings usually combined social and professional activities. Miss Velma Carson, novelist, spoke about creative writing at one of the typical ones.

The group sent the president, Mrs. Helen Peterson, as a delegate to the national Theta Sigma Phi conference in Chicago last summer.

K-State journalists returned after years of Army and Navy service to reactivate Sigma Delta Chi, honorary and professional journalism fraternity for men.

Eleven student journalists, all of them veterans whose schooling was interrupted by the war, met the eligibility requirements in scholarship and professional skill this year. Only two of the students, including President Jack James, were members before they entered service.

Sigma Delta Chi men sponsored the April Fool's edition of The Collegian as one of the year's projects. The winter flu epidemic cancelled a pep rally planned by SDX to honor Athletics Director Thurlo McCrady and Football Coach Sam Francis.

As part of the fraternity's program to encourage journalists in their profession, Sigma Delta Chi presented scholastic awards to outstanding graduates in Industrial Journalism.

Stress Scholarship and Leadership

An honorary organization with a membership of 19 this year, Phi Alpha Mu sets a record for scholarship. Topping all college organizations both semesters of the last two years, books in the registrar's office show that Phi Alpha Mu has had the highest scholastic average among all college organizations 16 out of the last 21 semesters.

Activities of this organization for junior and senior women in the School of Arts and Sciences were led by Wanda Nanninga, president, and included the annual scholarship tea honoring sophomore women, and the Food Caravan to raise money for the Margaret Russel Scholarship Award. This award is an annual presentation of $25, given to the junior woman who made the highest average. Elizabeth Button was presented the award in the spring of 1946.

Working in the out-of-doors, on field trips is a favorite pastime for members of the Williston Geology Club. All students majoring in geology are eligible to belong to the Geology Club.

The organization's purpose is to present views on the future of several phases of geology, such as economic and engineering. At their weekly meetings, members listened to informative talks by faculty members and prominent off-campus speakers, one of whom was formerly head geologist on the Alcan Highway to Alaska.

Mixing business with pleasure, the group took a field trip during the Easter holidays to south-east Kansas, and included an annual fishing trip in their activities.

Serving as president for the group was Max S. Houston. The faculty sponsor is Prof. Arthur B. Sperry.

Arts and Sciences Interests

During the second semester Kansas State swimming enthusiasts reactivated the women's organization aptly named the Frog Club. Thirty women joined the group which had been inactive since 1941.

During the semester the Frog Club invited women's swimming clubs from six other Kansas colleges to participate in a swimming meet in the pool in the women's gym. The event was called a Play Day. In previous years the Frog Club sponsored a public swimming demonstration, but the Play Day was substituted this year.

The feminine swimmers competed in a telegraphic swimming meet. Colleges from all over the nation entered the event.

Kansas State women must pass swimming tryouts to be admitted to the Frog Club, and members must pass tests to check their improvement to stay in the club, for it is the organization's aim to improve its members' swimming and life-saving abilities.

Pauline Reed served as president of the Frog Club and Emelie Kirk was secretary-treasurer.

The 37 women majoring in physical education belonged to Phems. Although work of the club is directly related to class work and is designed to promote interest in the physical education field, social activities are a prominent part of the program.

A Christmas party was planned by the playground class, and a supper, given in the spring, honored the graduating seniors.

Supervising the activities of Phems was Pauline Reed, president. Other officers were Betty Stout, vice-president and Marie Rock, secretary-treasurer.

Groups Have Varied Programs

A social club for students interested in music, Promusica had a membership of 21 this year on the first anniversary of its founding.

There is no relationship to class work connected with the organization, the only requirement being an interest in music.

Invitations were issued throughout the year to members of the music faculty to attend the meetings of the club, enabling members and faculty to become better acquainted.

Besides the regular social and study meetings of the group, the main outside activity of Promusica is a caroling party at Christmas time which is planned to be an annual event.

President Joyce Crippen, a charter member, led the organization this year and her co-workers were Mary Beth Jones, vice-president; Jacqueline Timmons, secretary and Shirley Pinegar, treasurer.

This was the first year for the Medical Technicians as members of the national service organization, Alpha Delta Theta. Plans were made last year by the Medical Technicians Club to petition the national group, and this fall they received their charter.

The club sponsored the annual cancer drive this spring and decorated the Arts and Sciences float for the Homecoming Parade.

Presiding over the 63 members was Helen Lawson Patty.

Engineering School

ASSISTANT DEAN M. A. "COTTON" DURLAND acts as administrator and advisor to Engineering and Architecture students. The Engineering Hall houses equipment, faculty and students for the School of Engineering and Architecture. The sloping lawn in front of the building has been surveyed by generations of K-State engineers.

R. A. SEATON, Dean of the School of Engineering and Architecture, supervises this division, which had a higher enrollment than any other school in the College during the fall semester.

Leads in College Enrollment Increase

Reconversion and enlargement have been keynotes of the past year in the School of Engineering and Architecture. Twenty-seven faculty additions, several new courses, revival of pre-war organizations and extra classrooms located in three Army surplus buildings were steps taken to help meet the increased demands made on the school by the almost 100 per cent jump in enrollment.

Approximately 3,000 students were registered in some phase of engineering or architecture this year, while in the past, a figure higher than 1,000 was rarely reached.

Among the numerous faculty additions in the school were two department heads. Dr. F. A. Rohrman of the chemical engineering department replaced Dr. John W. Greene, and Prof. G. A. Sellers, of the Department of Shop Practice, took the place of Prof. W. W. Carlson.

Although all of the short curriculums were dropped during the year due to the pressure on the regular four-year programs, at least eight new courses appeared in the school. Instruction was offered for the first time in advanced mechanics, ceramics, commercial illustration, elasticity, electronics, rheology, structural design, and television.

Construction of a television station was begun during the year by the Department of Electrical Engineering. It is expected that the station will be completed by September 1, 1947.

Engineers' Open House, which before the war drew visitors from all over the state, was renewed, as was publication of the Kansas State Engineer.

One two-story and two one-story Army surplus barracks were erected adjacent to the Engineering building for use as drafting rooms, aeronautical engineering laboratories and machine design department offices.

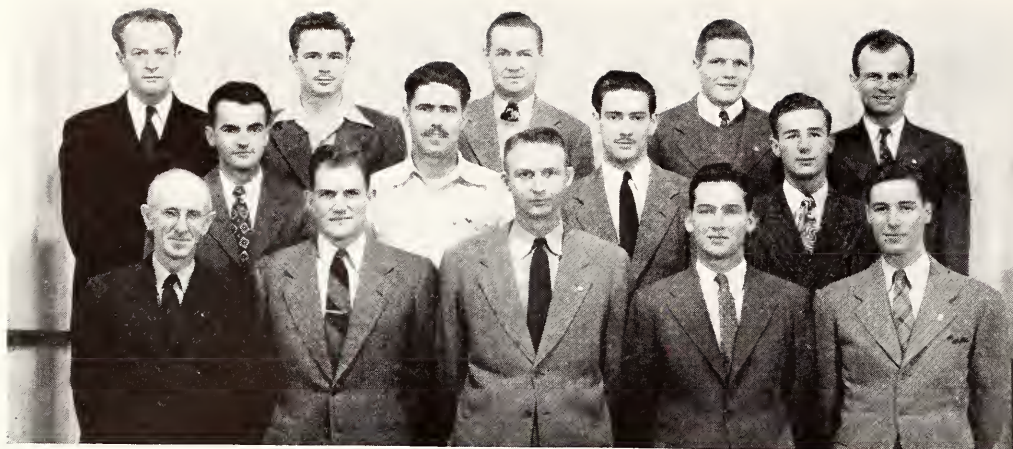

The Department of Machine Design boasted the only 13-hour class day in the College. Over 1800 students were enrolled in courses presented by the department, and classes met from 7 a. m. to 10 p. m. at least four days each week.

The Department of Building and Repair was responsible for much of the construction, moving and renovating that took place on the campus. The department prepared sites and fitted plumbing for the many housing units erected, besides painting, re-decorating and repairing such campus-cities as Splinterville.

Engineering instruction began in Kansas State Agricultural College in 1869, and progressed under the various names of Division of Mechanic Arts, Division of Engineering, Division of Engineering and Architecture, to the School of Engineering and Architecture in 1942.

Council Governs Engineering Students

Charged with governing students in the School of Engineering, the Engineering Council acts as a board of directors for students in this division. Six of the members are elected by the Engineering Association, an organization in which each of the 2,500 engineers has a vote. Eleven others are placed on the council by virtue of other offices held in the School.

Activities of the departments are coordinated under the direction of the Engineering Council. The Engineering Association meets annually and nominates members for office on the Council and candidates for Open House chairman. A week later the officers are elected by secret ballot.

The Council, representing the members of the Association, apportions the general seminar fees of the entire division. It considers all proposals submitted by departmental organizations and arbitrates all judiciary matters that may arise.

K. B. Lucas led the Council as president. Other officers were H. D. Babcock, vice-president; S. H. Stuart, secretary; and W. H. Borland, Jr., treasurer.

Although active the first semester, the student branch of the Institute of Radio Engineers was not recognized by the national professional institute until the second half of the year. According to the policy of the national group the organization must fulfill certain requirements before final acceptance is given.

Entering on a plan to advance the theory and practice of radio in the allied branches of engineering, the Institute spent a major part of the year in orientation of the members.

Ray Murray and Danny Lingelback served as president first and second semester respectively. Prof. R. G. Kloeffer is faculty advisor.

Sigma Tau Sponsors St. Pat's Prom

A Sigma Tau project of some years—the acquisition of a plot of ground on “KS” Hill and the construction of the letters “KSC” on this property—was advanced another step toward completion this year. With the members of the organization exchanging their services as surveyors for credit toward purchase of the land, Sigma Tau gained the title and hopes in the near future to start work on the “C,” thus completing its project.

As in prewar years, Sigma Tau honored the three freshmen in engineering attaining the highest scholastic average. The Freshman Award was presented at the Sigma Tau spring banquet when medals were given as rewards for attainment. Later at the meeting of the Engineers’ Association, the winners received certificates of merit.

Sponsored by Sigma Tau, St. Pat’s Prom, the grand finale of Engineers’ Open House, once again copped honors as an outstanding social event of the season. This year the Prom featured the sweet music of Raymond Scott and his orchestra in the Manhattan Community House. Even in the midst of a severe flu epidemic, several thousand visitors attended this, the first major Open House since prewar days.

A national honorary fraternity for engineers, Sigma Tau selects its members from the juniors and seniors in the school of engineering. Case Bonebrake, president for the first semester, was succeeded by Robert Ekblad second semester. K. B. Lucas was elected vice-president of the organization for both semesters.

Civil Engineers Take Inspection Trips

Indoctrination of the freshman student was a year-long program for the student chapter of the American Society of Civil Engineers. Fighting the tradition of the transit, the society directed its effort toward the underclassmen in an all-out effort to impress upon them the importance of the engineer to society today.

Highlighting their twice-monthly meetings were guest speakers and informal discussions showing how the engineer can best serve his community and country today. With the steps already taken forward in their field, new fields are opening in city planning, modernization of highways, dam construction, and management of municipal planning. The society hopes by its program to give valuable information which will direct the student to specialize in the field for which he is best suited.

Each year the society sponsors two inspection trips. Traveling to Kanopolis Bend and Kansas City, the society conducted tours of the various industries related to the field of civil engineering. While in Kansas City, the members attended a meeting of civil engineers and heard them discuss their professional problems.

In the spring the society sponsored its annual picnic for its members, the traditional send-off for the graduating seniors.

Sponsored by Prof. F. Frazier both semesters, Edgar B. Johnson served as president and Jess Boughton as vice-president during the first semester. Elected to serve for the second semester were Philip Wikoff as president and Vance Miller as vice-president.

A. S. M. E. Promotes Professional Aims

With its membership above pre-war highs, the American Society of Mechanical Engineers was once again able to sponsor a program that would promote professional interest in mechanical engineering among the students of the department.

In addition to the regular monthly business meeting, the society found time to play. As in the past, the annual fall smoker was held, as well as their spring picnic. Later in the spring a dinner was given for the Kansas City section of A.S.M.E.

The Kansas City section sponsored a contest for the best paper on any technical subject, with the prize being a junior membership in the society. A similar contest was also held by the regional district at their meeting in Norman, Okla. Larry Spears won this contest in the spring of 1946 and was awarded the fifty dollar first prize. This honor has been awarded a K-State A.S.M.E. member six times in the last ten years, with at least one member placing every year. As previously, the undergraduate chapter of the society cited the junior in the department judged most outstanding in his freshman and sophomore work. This year the award, the Kent Handbook Series, was presented to Richard Fedell.

Guiding the society through the first semester were Case Bonebrake, president, and Robert Stone, vice-president. New officers elected after mid-year graduation took its toll were Wilbur Hiser, president, and Marion Spoelstra, vice-president. Prof. Boyd Brainard was sponsor for the society.

Engineers Sponsor Open House

Providing a unique project for the year, the American Institute of Chemical Engineers was able to give each member a part in the student branch's work. In conjunction with the state-wide effort to employ graduates of Kansas colleges in the state, the society endeavored to show students employment possibilities in Kansas industries.

Beginning last summer, members were assigned the different counties in the state as their project to survey. The results of their surveys were turned in to David Patterson, chairman of the survey committee. After this data had been received a large map of the state was painted on the wall of the Chemical Engineering building and each industry that offered employment in the various fields of chemical engineering was plotted.

The results of the survey were tabulated and the large map was on display during Engineers' Open House and will remain as a reminder to all students of the opportunity in the state.

The entire Chemical Engineering exhibit at Open House was sponsored by the members of the society. Project chairmen were selected from its membership as well as the departmental chairman.

Each year the society cites the outstanding freshman and junior in the department and presents them with the society awards. This year Glenn Hudson received the freshman award, the "Rubber Handbook," and Harvey Spencer was selected the outstanding junior and presented "Perry's Handbook."

The society became one of the first of its kind to sponsor an athletic team. During the year the society was represented in basketball, volleyball, and baseball intramurals. Smokers were held and most of the business meetings were followed with refreshments. The society held a spring picnic during which they completed plans for the next school year.

Jack Evans served as president of the society for the first semester and was assisted by David Patterson, vice-president. Elected to head the society the second semester was Richard Medlin with Leonard Luehring, vice-president. The sponsor for the society is Dr. F. A. Rohrman, head of the department.

The student branch of the American Society of Agricultural Engineers turned journalists this year and entered the contest sponsored by the professional branch of the society. Working the entire year, members completed and published a booklet covering the activities of the department. It was entered in competition with the other departments of agriculture throughout the country.

At their monthly meetings the members discussed the various fields open to graduates in the departments. From studies of positions held by graduates it was seen that the fields most represented were soil conservation, rural electrification, teaching and sale of farm machinery. From these various fields speakers were invited to participate in group discussions with the undergraduates. For their entertainment picnics and smokers were held.

Officers for the fall semester were Orville Baker, president, and Bill Funk, vice-president. Serving as president for the second semester was Ted Suberkropp, with Edwin Chubbuck as vice-president. Prof. F. C. Fenton, head of the department, served as faculty sponsor.

Engineering Societies Sponsor Program

With the knowledge that the greater per cent of graduates will enter the technical field of engineering, the American Institute of Electrical Engineers sponsored a very practical program throughout the year. Many industrial leaders appeared before the student branch and discussed with them the problems they should be prepared to meet.

The student branch also served as an introduction to the national professional organization, which is their sponsor. Guiding the organization through the first semester was chairman James Johns and second semester Reed Larson.

With variety their aim, the student branch of the American Institute of Architects provided entertainment and serious thought for all of their members.

On the serious side the society presented to their group guest speakers and many sound films. Throughout the year competition was held in drawing, planning and modeling. From their year's work the best student creations were selected for Open House. On the social side of the calendar the annual A. I. A. picnic and dance were held.

The president, who held office throughout the year, was Cecil Holland.

To Promote Professional Interests

One of the youngest engineering honor fraternities on the hill, Eta Kappa Nu was established to recognize scholarship and fellowship among electrical engineers. Celebrating its ninth year on the campus, the organization already has earned a place with the older honoraries in engineering. Annually the organization sponsors an exhibit in Engineers' Open House as well as picnics and smokers.

William Swim served as president during the fall semester and George Sample served during the spring. Prof. R. M. Kirchner was faculty sponsor.

Steel Ring, another honorary, completed a year of service to engineers. Since it came to the campus in 1929, Steel Ring has encouraged Engineers' Open House in an effort to improve it from year to year. By providing a trophy to be awarded to the department displaying the best exhibits, the organization has helped build rivalry among departments. The "double Es" won the trophy this year.

Once again the annual publication of "Intake and Exhaust," the humor magazine of the engineers, made its appearance on the campus. Outstanding graduates are honored in Steel Ring's Hall of Fame and their pictures placed in the hall of the Engineering Building.

Vance Miller was president for the year while Harold Siegel was vice-president. Prof. L. M. Jorgenson and Prof. R. F. Morse were faculty sponsors.

DR. MARGARET JUSTIN, Dean of the School of Home Economics, has served the School and its students for many years. Under her direction, the School has revised curriculums to meet modern needs. Dean Justin has written and published many books used by high schools and colleges throughout the United States.

MANY A CAPABLE HOMEMAKER, interior decorator, and nutritional expert has trod the limestone steps of Calvin Hall, wherein women learn the fine science of domesticity. Dr. Martha Kramer, Home Ec Assistant Dean, helps women plan their schedules, acts as women's advisor within the School, and is administrative assistant to the Dean.

Home Ec Liberalizes Curriculums

Curriculums in the School of Home Economics have been liberalized recently to meet the increasingly widening interests of the students. Thus, this past year, the School has had students preparing for a wide variety of future activities, which include the home economics extension service, food demonstration or food research, clothing retailing, textile research, work with housing or home furnishing or household equipment, nursery school teaching, and commercial aspects of interior decoration.

Further, the curriculum in home economics and journalism was offered for the first time, putting into definite form the plan already followed for some years, when students arranged their electives to include this combination. Now the curriculum provides for a double major.

Along with the acceptance of new curriculums and new uses of old ones, have come aids in vocational guidance. Data from the Counseling Bureau is available. In connection with the work in vocational guidance, most departments within the school have arranged that major students take an elementary course early in their academic career.

If students like the elementary course, they may proceed in the field with confidence, while others may alter their plans without loss of credit. Similarly, most departments are revising their advanced offerings. The Department of Household Economics introduced a summary course for seniors, and the food economics and nutrition department consolidated two courses to offer nutrition and dietetics for six credits.

An increase of $13,350 was made to the appropriation of $30,000 for the construction of two home management houses. Originally scheduled for completion in 1945, the houses are yet to be constructed.

Faculty changes in the school include one new department head and two acting heads of departments. Dr. Gladys E. Vail, formerly a professor in the Department of Food Economics and Nutrition, became head of the department to succeed Dr. Martha Pittman, who resigned.

Acting heads are Miss Rosamond Kedzie of the Art Department, who is taking the place of Miss Dorothy Barfoot while she is on sabbatical leave, and Miss Jennie Williams, replacing Dr. Katharine Roy, who resigned as head of the Department of Child Welfare and Euthenics.

Total enrollment in the school is 709, with 45 graduate students. For the first time in the history of the school, two men were registered. The school, however, records less of an increase than other schools of the college since it was relatively unaffected by the return of veterans.

THE HEADS OF THE DEPARTMENTS in the School of Home Economics are—Back row: Rosamond Kedzie, acting head of the Department of Art; Miss Jennie Williams, acting head of the Department of Child Welfare and Euthenics; Dr. Gladys E. Vail, Department of Food Economics and Nutrition. Front row: Mrs. Bessie Brooks West, Department of Institutional Management; Alpha C. Latzke, Department of Clothing and Textiles; Lucile O. Rust, Department of Home Economics Education; Dr. Josephine Kremer, Department of Household Economics.

HOSPITALITY DAYS, sponsored by the Home Economics Executive Council, governing body of the Margaret Justin Home Ec club, is one of the important projects of the year for the School. High school students and their teachers come from over the state to view the exhibits and learn what's new in the science of domesticity.

Exec Council Governs Home Ec Clubs

The Home Economics Executive Council is the governing body of the five individual home ec clubs which make up the Margaret Justin Home Economics Club, named in honor of the Dean of the School. The officers are Dorothy M. Wilson, president; Carol Jean Heter, vice-president; Margaret Richardson, chairman of counsellors; Jean Walters, secretary for the first semester; Jean Helfrey, secretary for the spring semester, and Alice Schoebel, lecture board chairman.

The presidents of the five clubs which are units of the organization are ex-officio members of the executive council. They are Virginia Olson, president of the Freshman Club; Kathryn Brainard and Lola Warden, co-chairmen of the Service Club; Norma Jean Mauk, president of the Radio Club; Norma Jean Thomas, head of the Nursing Club, and Ruth Deewall, president of the Publicity Club.

It is the purpose of this organization to provide varied interests in the field of home economics, so that each girl may find her own particular interest. The club offers an opportunity to take part in the type of activities in which one is interested and provides a means of service to the School of Home Economics and to the community.

An annual affair sponsored by the club is the "Snowball" dance, at which the "Favorite Man on the Campus" is elected by the girls attending. The fellows went all-out for campaigning this year with free coffee in the "Can," bands, songs, posters, and slogans. "We Want Mahoney" reigned supreme, and Kenneth Mahoney of basketball fame was crowned FMOC of the school year 1946-1947. Tom Moreen and Bill Christian were awarded runner-up positions.

"Hospitality Days," the Home Economics Open House, is the big event of the year sponsored by the Home Economics Clubs and is open to everyone, although the project is planned especially for high school students from over the state who attend the sessions. The open house presents an opportunity for women in all phases of home ec to display their work. This spring "Hospitality Days" was held April 18 and 19, with Betty Jo McCaustland as general chairman.

At a reception for students and teachers, honors were announced and awards presented. The celebration was drawn to a close by the annual Hospitality Hop.

"The Consumer Speaks" was another spring semester project. The purpose of this was to obtain consumer opinion as to the characteristics which specified articles in a given price range should have to be worth buying. This project was suggested by the American Home Economics Association.

The results of the discussions were compiled and sent to the chairman of the state subcommittee on clothing and textiles. A contribution made by the organization this year went to the International Scholarship Fund set up for the purpose of bringing foreign students to the United States for schooling.

In the spirit of the holiday season, a Christmas tea was given, shortly before vacation, in Calvin Lounge, for all those students enrolled in the School of Home Economics.

All women enrolled in home economics are eligible for membership in one of the branches of the Margaret Justin Home Economics Club.

Omicron Nu Sponsors Freshman Tea

Omicron Nu, honorary and professional society for junior and senior women in home economics, has been one of the progressive organizations on the campus this year. It has as its goal the recognition and promotion of scholarship, leadership, and research in the field of home economics.

In order to be eligible for membership in Omicron Nu, undergraduates must maintain a grade point average of 2.2, while graduate students must have a 2.75 average. Leadership and research ability are also taken into consideration. This year Omicron Nu had 13 active members, in addition to the faculty members.

Helen Louise Smith served as president for the past year, and was assisted by Patricia Shoemaker, vice-president; Jean Reneau, secretary; Jeane Greenawalt, treasurer and Kay Knappenberger, editor.

Annual activities of this organization include a $10 scholarship award as recognition of the freshman with the highest scholastic standing in home economics.

Each year, for those who are new to Kansas State College, Omicron Nu sponsors a tea for freshmen and transfer students enrolled in the School. Omicron Nu members play an important part in Hospitality Days, the home economics open house and big project of the year. Conducting college officials through the many exhibits of achievements is only a part of their contribution to this annual affair, for they also assist with the Hospitality Days reception, which honors outstanding students in home ec. This society also presents special awards to deserving students.

In addition to these annual activities, members of Omicron Nu have launched some new projects. They have been busy revising the Omicron Nu Bookshelf and modernizing the lending library. Something new in the form of an open meeting to discuss research on the Kansas State campus was held this year. It was open to senior women and was devoted to a study of research in the home economics school. At the initial meeting demonstrations as well as talks were given to explain the research projects being carried on in the department. The object of this meeting was to acquaint the graduating seniors with the many phases of home economics so they might not graduate with knowledge limited to one specific field.

Efforts have been made to extend the tutoring service provided for the benefit of those women who require extra assistance with their class work. Membership in this service comes from those who have shown academic excellence.

Omicron Nu, a national organization, has been active on the campus since 1915. It has been instrumental in securing positions for many of its members after graduation.

Freshmen Have Orientation Program

The Home Economics Freshman Counselor Service is to aid those girls who are new to the Kansas State campus. Juniors and seniors in home ec are eligible for the counseling service, and are chosen in the spring of each year to serve the following fall. The women are selected by the Home Economics Council after consideration of the application blanks.

In the fall each counselor meets with seven or eight freshman women once a week. In these weekly meetings which serve as an orientation program, they discuss college customs, grooming and dates.

Although there are no officers chosen by this group, the vice-president of the Margaret Justin Home Economics Club serves as head counselor. This year Carol Jean Heter served in this capacity, with Margaret Richardson assisting her.

All counselors enroll for a one hour course in Guidance of Freshmen, and they conduct the freshman lecture period on Thursdays at 4 o'clock.

There are 24 counselors, chosen on the basis of scholarship, desire to serve and ability to deal successfully with people.

Helping the freshman women to decide which field of home economics they prefer is the purpose of the Freshman Home Economics Club. The organization also provides an opportunity for the women to get acquainted socially. Membership is open to all freshman home ec students. The club has a total membership of 135, which is a 25 per cent increase over last year.

Officers of this organization are Virginia Olson, president; Ruth Hoover, secretary; Marilyn Moomaw, treasurer; Claribel Lindholm and Marlys Waln, publicity, and Norma Koon, social chairman.

The big project of the year for the Freshman Home Ec Club was gathering food and clothing to send to needy European families.

Home Ec Interest Groups

The organization responsible for letting everyone on the campus know what is going on in the School of Home Economics is the Home Ec Publicity Club. Anyone who is a student in home economics is eligible for membership.

This year the special project was making a collection of favorite recipies. Those chosen to be included in the collection were printed on cards and sold in order to earn money for the club. Other projects sponsored by the Publicity Club are the Home Ec Newsletter, which they publish, and a scrapbook of the activities of the home economics school and clubs.

For the past year the club has been under the leadership of Ruth Deewall, president; Pat McVey, vice-president; Phyllis Wheatley, secretary; Mary Jane Meili, Helen Smith, Marilyn Larson, and Marilyn Keeshan, committee chairmen.

The Home Economics Radio Club this year increased its membership by 20, making a total of 50 members. To qualify for membership in this organization, a student must be in the School of Home Economics, and have a particular interest in radio or in radio writing. The Radio Club gives to women in the various fields of home economics an opportunity to tell others over the radio what they have learned at Kansas State. The club sponsors a 15-minute radio program every other Saturday over the College station, KSAC.

Annual activities of the Radio Club include a social function with some other organization on the campus, and this year it was with the Cosmopolitan Club.

This year's officers are Norma Jean Mauk, president; Lavonne Theobald, vice-president; and Jane Foster, secretary-treasurer.

Aim to Serve the College

The Home Economics Nursing Club is a pre-professional group, having as one of its main objectives acquainting members with nursing as a profession, showing both its opportunities and responsibilities. Another purpose of the organization is to get the women who have similar professional interests acquainted with each other.

At the regular meetings of the club, guest speakers discussed nursing from all aspects, including the doctor's, supervisor's, and patient's viewpoint. The experiences told by nurses who served overseas during World War II also proved informative.

As the name implies, the Home Economics Service Club aims to work on projects that will be of service to other organizations. Three meetings are held each semester to organize and carry out their program. One meeting each semester is reserved for a purely social program with games and refreshments.

The project for this year was sewing for the Red Cross. The articles completed by the Service Club were sent to hospitals.

The total membership of the Service Club is 110 and membership is open to any woman enrolled in home economics.

Kathryn Brainard and Lola Warden served as co-chairmen of the club.

DR. R. R. DYKSTRA, Dean of the School of Veterinary Medicine, holds many honors in his field. Connected with Kansas State for 28 years in his present position, Dean Dykstra guides the School, one of the few of its kind in the nation, from his office in Veterinary Hall.

Vet Hospital Rebuilt and Improved

More than 30,000 cases were treated in the Veterinary Hospital during the past year, while construction on the building, partially destroyed by fire in February, 1946, was being completed.

The reconstructed building has many improvements over the one which was swept by flames. In the large clinic room the ceiling now has anti-acoustic qualities, which practically remove all of the previously existing resonance in the room. The addition of fire walls and an extensive fire controlling sprinkler system were installed to prevent the recurrence of such a disaster.

The School of Veterinary Medicine was not so heavily burdened with the enrollment increase, as registration is limited and students are accepted on the basis of past grades.

One of the ten veterinary schools in the country, the enrollment is limited to 200 by the Board of Regents, and competition this year was fierce for permission to register in the field.

New faculty members in the school include Dr. R. D. Barner in the Department of Pathology, Dr. A. L. Good in the physiology department and Dr. D. R. Peterson in the Department of Anatomy. Returned to the campus after many months' leave of absence for war service in China is Dr. C. H. Kitselman.

Pharmacodynamics, a new course for graduates and undergraduates in the School, was taught for the first time in the spring semester.

Professors of veterinary medicine have been on programs at state and national conventions during the year in California, Utah, Idaho, Montana, Missouri, Oklahoma, Florida, Massachusetts and South Dakota. Appearance on these programs shows appreciation of the outstanding faculty by other states.

The curriculum in veterinary medicine was established in 1905 and the first degrees were conferred in 1907. Joining the College staff soon after the opening of courses in veterinary medicine, was Dean R. R. Dykstra, who came to Kansas State September 1, 1911.

Dr. Dykstra took the position as dean of the division in the summer of 1919. An author, and member of many honorary veterinary societies, Dean Dykstra is a member and past president of the American Veterinary Medical Association.

The School teaches treatment of domestic animals, varying from horses to poultry. The clinic, a laboratory for advanced vets, is a non-profit organization and serves animals brought from nearby farms and homes. The clinic provides instruction in the upper courses such as surgery, infectious diseases, obstetrics and materia medica.

The school attracts many out-of-state and foreign students, although for the past year, only applications from Kansas students have been accepted.

AVMA Again Sponsors Javmarak

The annual Javmarak sport dance, one of the outstanding social functions of the Junior American Veterinary Medicine Association at Kansas State, started activities whirling for the association this fall. Highlighting the spring's social functions was the semi-formal dinner dance for all vets at the Country Club, March 28, with the music of Matt Betton and his band.

The Junior American Veterinary Medicine Association, a branch of the national AVMA, constitutes a twofold purpose. First, to advance knowledge of veterinary science, and second, to promote social and literary activities. The association endeavors to develop its members technically along the lines of the profession.

At their evening meetings on the first and third Tuesday of every month, students heard out-of-town speakers who are noted in the field of veterinary medicine and science. As the purpose of the meetings is to supplement class work, many times vet medicine students provided the program. Discussions at the meetings were concerned primarily with the technical aspects of veterinary medicine.

Only sixty new students are allowed each year in the School of Veterinary Medicine and because of an unusual circumstance there is no junior class this year. During the war the school was put on a speed-up program with the ASTP, and it continued on this trimester basis until last year. At that time the freshman class was returned to the two-semester course of study while those in advance classes continued on the trimester plan. This means that there will be no graduating class in 1948.

Students going to college just for the "fun of it" are quickly eliminated by the high scholastic requirements necessary for entrance into the School of Veterinary Medicine. It is universally classed as the "roughest" curriculum on the hill.

During the senior year of the five year course, clinic practice is offered to the students, where they learn by actual cases and practice the responsibilities of the title, Doctor of Veterinary Medicine.

Presiding after the election in January was Ansel B. Tarrant, president; Joe McGinty, vice-president; Peter Kennedy, secretary; Ken Jewell, treasurer; Lyle Boley, critic; and David O. MacIntosh, marshal. The faculty sponsor is Dr. J. E. Mosier, instructor of surgery and medicine.

Veterinary Students of all four classes are eligible for membership in the Junior AVMA, although pre-vet students enrolled in the School of Arts and Sciences are not eligible. To be classified as a member students must be enrolled in the School of Veterinary Medicine and must have and maintain a good scholastic standing.

IN THESE SCENES from the vet clinic are portrayed services the hospital performs for people of the town and vicinity, at cost. The clinic, a laboratory for advanced vets, provides instruction in the upper courses such as surgery, infectious diseases, obstetrics and materia medica.

OVER 30,000 CASES of ailing pets and domestic animals passed through the hospital this year. Here student vets learn their profession by actual practice, under the direction of an experienced faculty. The vet hospital building has been completely renovated since the disastrous fire in the spring of 1946.

Move to Barracks

Moving Extension offices, conducting a balanced farming and home living program, and preparing to take over the direction of the new 5,000-kilowatt television station, in addition to regular Farm Bureau, 4-H and home study programs, have kept the Division of Extension as busy as those schools of the College struggling to carry the load of greatly increased enrollments.

During the spring the division moved from its offices in the Military Science building and the Wareham property on Anderson avenue to temporary barracks north of the greenhouses. The barracks will house the division until the proposed extension building is constructed.

The balanced farming and home living program is designed to improve the profits of farming and to make home living more comfortable, according to Harry Umberger, dean of the division.

Unknown to many K-Staters, the division has been operating a 1,000-kilowatt television station in addition to its regular sponsorship of radio station KSAC since about 1931. Therefore, the direction of the more powerful station will be familiar business to Kansas State extension experts.

Headquarters and state offices for all extension organizations in Kansas, such as 4-H, Farm Bureaus and home demonstration agents, are located within the College division. Added to the faculty during the year were an assistant state club leader, a district home demonstration agent, an extension animal husbandryman, an extension farm management expert and an extension architect.

PROF. L. C. WILLIAMS, Assistant to Dean Umberger, is head of the Department of Extension Agricultural Specialists.

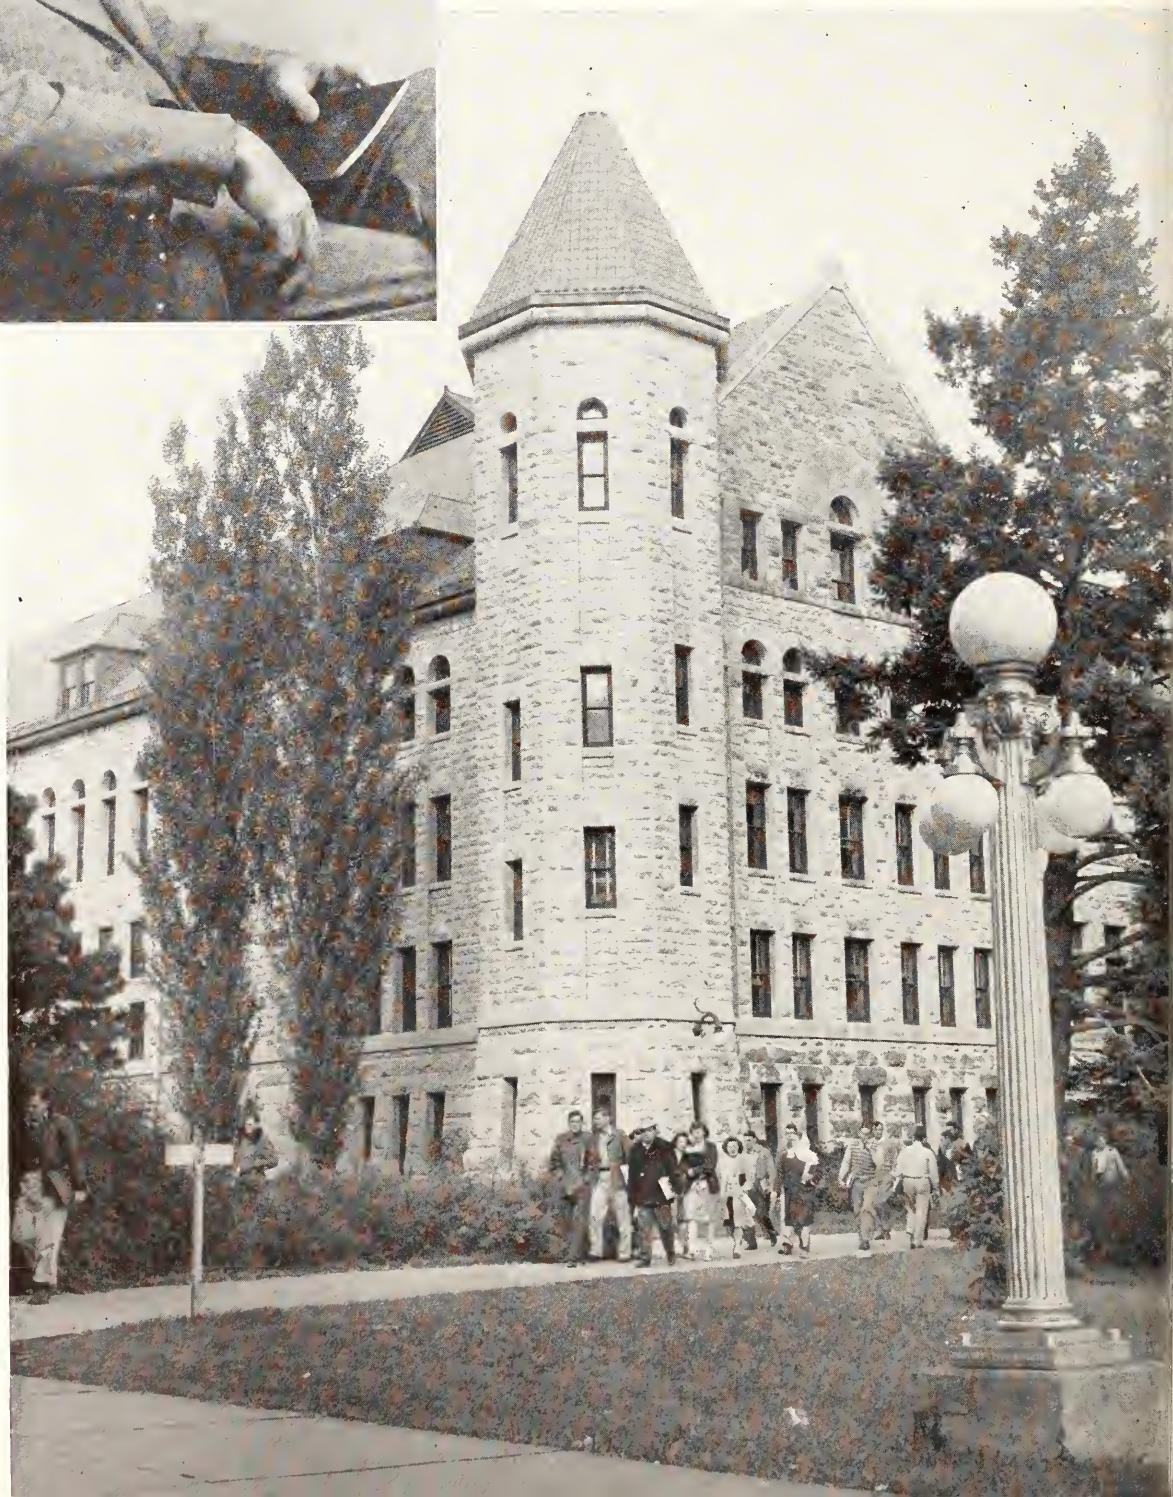

OFFICIALS IN THE EXTENSION DIVISION include: Back row, Prof. George Gemmell, Department of Home Study; Prof. John M. Ferguson, Department of Engineering Extension. Front row: Prof. L. L. Graduate School

GUIDING THE GRADUATE SCHOOL is Dean Harold Howe, who has long been with Kansas State in the field of economics. Students in his School are enrolled in courses of nearly every other division on the campus. The Graduate School offices and the graduate laboratory are located in Fairchild Hall, among various departments of the School of Arts and Sciences. Many graduate students in search of higher degrees make Fairchild their headquarters.

Devises Plan to Make Master's Thesis Optional

When a student enters the Graduate School at Kansas State, he usually has one of three objectives in mind.

First, he may be one of a comparatively small group of students who enrolls in the Graduate School in order to take a few courses which will help him in his job or profession, or will broaden his general knowledge. This group is not interested in obtaining an advanced degree.

A second group, which includes only a small percentage of the total graduate enrollment, enters the School to work toward the degree of Doctor of Philosophy.

The third group, by far the largest per cent, includes those students who enroll in the Graduate School to work toward the degree of Master of Science. Work leading to this degree is offered in almost every one of the 42 departments of resident instruction at the College.

Consequently, the School has intimate connections with practically every department on the campus. Perhaps more than any other School, it is afforded the opportunity of having an all-College viewpoint. It is all in the course of a day's business for the Dean's office to confer with students in fields as widely different as architecture and veterinary medicine, child welfare and soils, chemistry and sociology.

The Graduate School depends upon the other schools, and the departments which are the subdivisions of these schools, to provide the teaching and research staffs to instruct in the course work and to direct the research of graduate students.

Greater flexibility was given to the School this year by the adoption of a plan under which a student may substitute a master's report and additional hours of advanced credit for the thesis usually required for a master's degree, if approval is given by his major department. The fields of botany and plant pathology were added to those in which a doctor's degree is offered.

Dr. Harold Howe, Dean of the School, was appointed to that position in July, 1945. With the College since 1925 in the field of economics, Dean Howe is a well-known educator and past chairman of the North Central Regional Land Tenure Committee.

The Graduate Club, which is open to all graduate students, opened a membership drive in the spring semester with a dinner and a short program. Activities of the club are mainly social, and wives and husbands of graduate students may be associate members. Dean Howe is the club's sponsor.

Officers this year were Jean Hummel, president; Merlin Gustafson, parliamentarian; Betty Drayer, vice-president and Ruth Wells, secretary-treasurer.

DR. ROBERT A. WALKER, Director of the Institute of Citizenship, came to the campus in 1945 when the office was first organized.

Institute Organized

This year, as something new in the history of the College, a full curriculum was offered in citizenship education. Organized last spring, the first courses were offered during the spring and summer semesters. Under the direction of the Institute of Citizenship, headed by Dr. Robert A. Walker, fifteen K-Staters chose the new curriculum for their major.

In addition to teaching classes, the staff of the Institute sponsors off-campus programs and brings well-known speakers to the College.

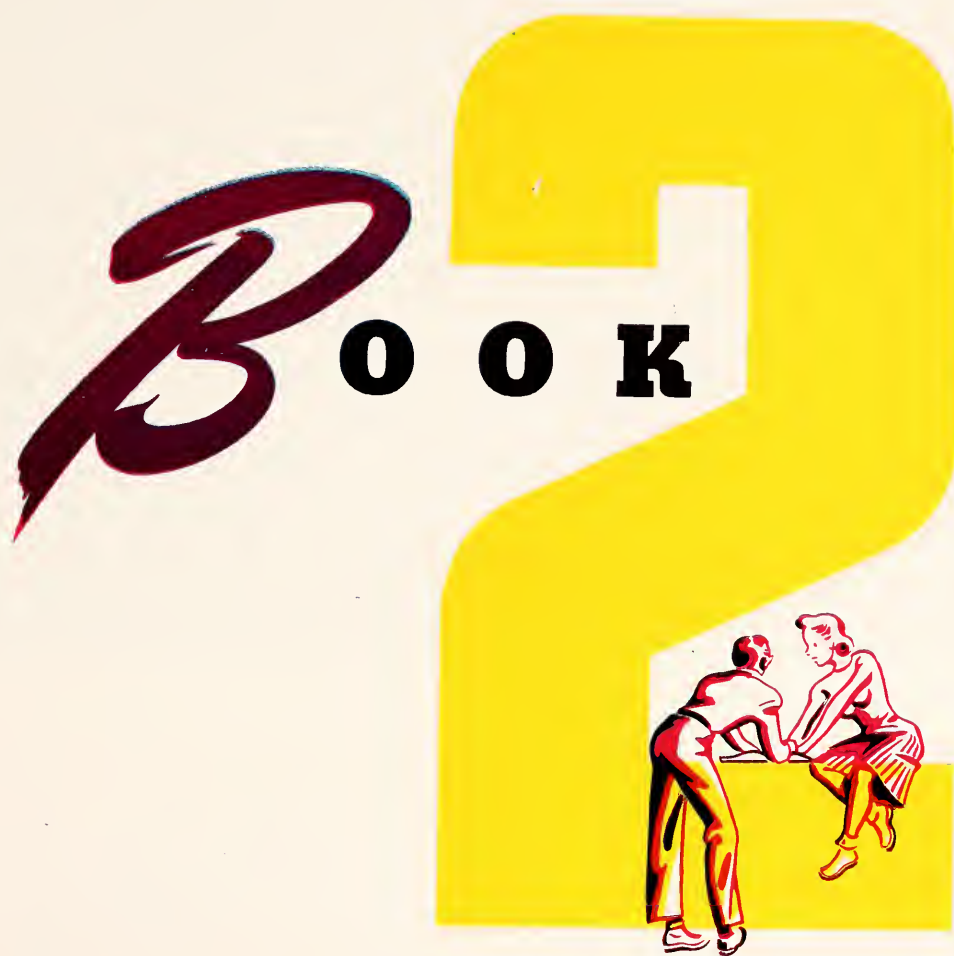

Courses offered are built entirely on the original source material; no texts are used. Classes take the form of discussion periods, with the students themselves doing the lecturing.

New to the Institute this year were Dr. Earl E. Edgar, formerly with the University of Chicago, who arrived in September, and Eric T. Tebow, who came in January after five and one-half years of military service as commanding officer of the Signal Corps photographic center in New York. Mr. Tebow is faculty advisor to the International Security Assembly.

Among the speakers the Institute brought to the campus this year were Peter F. Drucker, Hans Kohn, ex-Governor of Georgia Ellis Arnall, Edwin Witte and Gen. Victor A. Yakhontoff.

S

DEAR MOE:

Activities, Moe? Now there, doctor, you've struck a nerve. Things have been hopping around here along that line.

Take sports, for example. Last spring we had promising reports about the year's football squad. The biggest and sharpest bunch of ball handlers in the history of the School were going to scrap for old K-State. "Every Man a Wildcat," they said. We all turned out for the first home game, eager to see the new model team. Fifteen minutes before game time a horde of huskies jogged onto the field. We roared our approval, suppressing ourselves just enough to keep our team's juggernaut strength secret until the kick-off.

Came the kick-off. Briefly, what happened in the ensuing 60 minutes is better left unsaid. Our new model team was much like the old model. We all went home with the customary mutterings of "Maybe next year," and "Every man a Wildcat?"

After nine such reverses, the fellows hung up their suits, the coach took down his shingle, and that was our football season.

Basketball was a less embarrassing story, especially when the time came for the rivalry-packed meet with K. U. on our court. "Rock 'em, sock 'em, Beat K. U.!" we pleaded—and the boys handed the Jayhawks to us on a sizzling platter, 48 to 45. It was our first victory over our ace rival in ten years, so naturally we had to have a holiday. Some of us got a little over-enthusiastic and brightened up Mt. Oread. Just like before the Peace Pact, Moe.

Yes, when the team was hot, it was red-hot. And when it was cold, it looked about like any other K-State team that you or I can remember. We watched only half of the home games. They issued two colors of activity books. Each book was good for only half the home games. Even so, we were packed in tight at every game. Nichols Gym just wasn't built to serve more than a handful of people at any given time, and we're here in bucketfuls.

The fivesome knocked over ten of their first twelve, including O. U. and Arkansas, both toughies. Nebraska was the first conference game, and they went under without too much struggle. Then we hit a snag. From there on the whole Big Six was one big series of upsets. It was a case of six good teams and not enough luck to go around.

Oh yes, the '46 baseball team. They won some and lost some—with most falling in the latter category. They usually played bang-up ball for eight innings and rested for one. It was during that rest period that they were soundly drubbed.

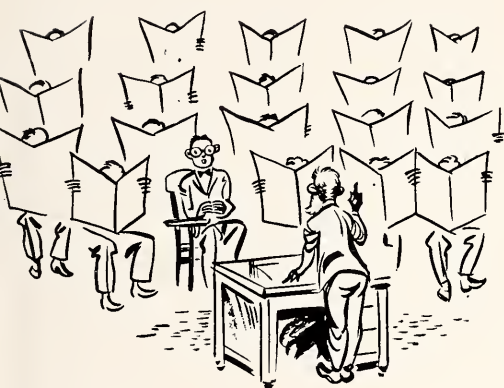

The Canteen, as I mentioned in another letter, was much more of a roughhouse than you knew it. Dale took out the counter on the west, and installed more booths and tables, but that did little good in the face of the invading hordes. Lots of us drank our cokes and coffee standing or went without. I'm not sure, but there must have been some records set in the number of human beings occupying a given amount of space. What a wrestling match!

Speaking of wrestling, Patterson's grunt-and-groaners exchanged hammer locks with the best of them, and they came out looking mighty smooth.

Dramatics went about as usual except that the house was filled. The usual number of promptings were whispered from the wings. Some plays really looked professional and all were entertaining. A few of the oldtimers were back from the wars to bolster the casts.

Then there were dances. The Avalon packed them in as usual. That "finest spring floor in Kansas" took a beating when more than 300 couples kicked it in unison to one of Matt Betton's chicken reels on an average of twice a week.

A notice from the gym that only traditional all-school dances could be held there as the floor was getting too thin for sanding, eliminated the only place which could accommodate a decent percentage of the student body—500 couples, that is.

The Royal Purple Beauty Ball, although a traditional all-school affair, branched out to the new Manhattan Community House, formerly the USO, for a change from campus atmosphere. Speaking of the RP, last year's book came through with the eleventh consecutive All-American—huzza huzza.

This year the school publications opened all stops. The Collegian started hitting the street twice a week. The poor pros then had two days a week when "nearly everybody at K-State reads the Collegian," and they couldn't see the eager faces of their pupils before them. The Industrialist kept its steady flow of high spot news trickling out to alumni. The Ag Student, monthly publication from the agriculture school, opened up once again, and the K-State Engineer hit the press at regular monthly intervals.

Your chances of lettering are getting thin, Moe—in foot, base or basketball, that is. How are you at throwing the discus? I said discus, Moe.

ARCHIE.

Crowds . . .

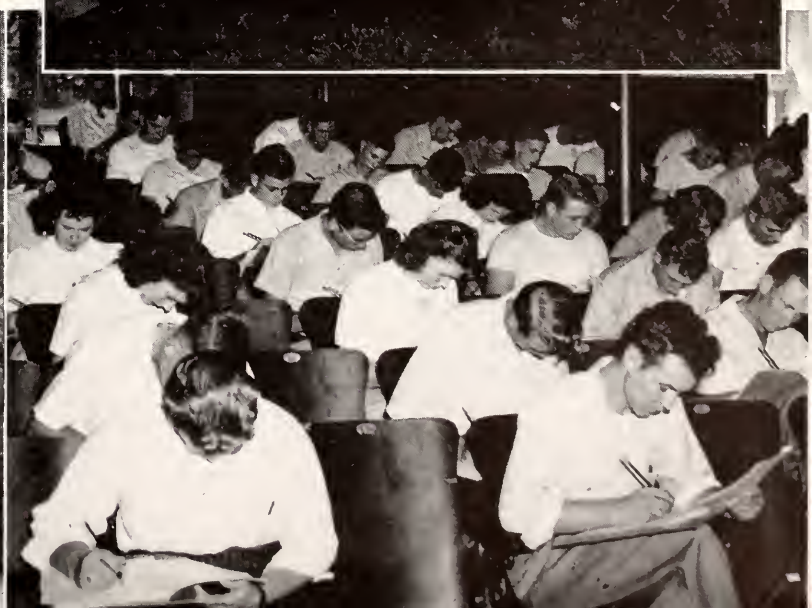

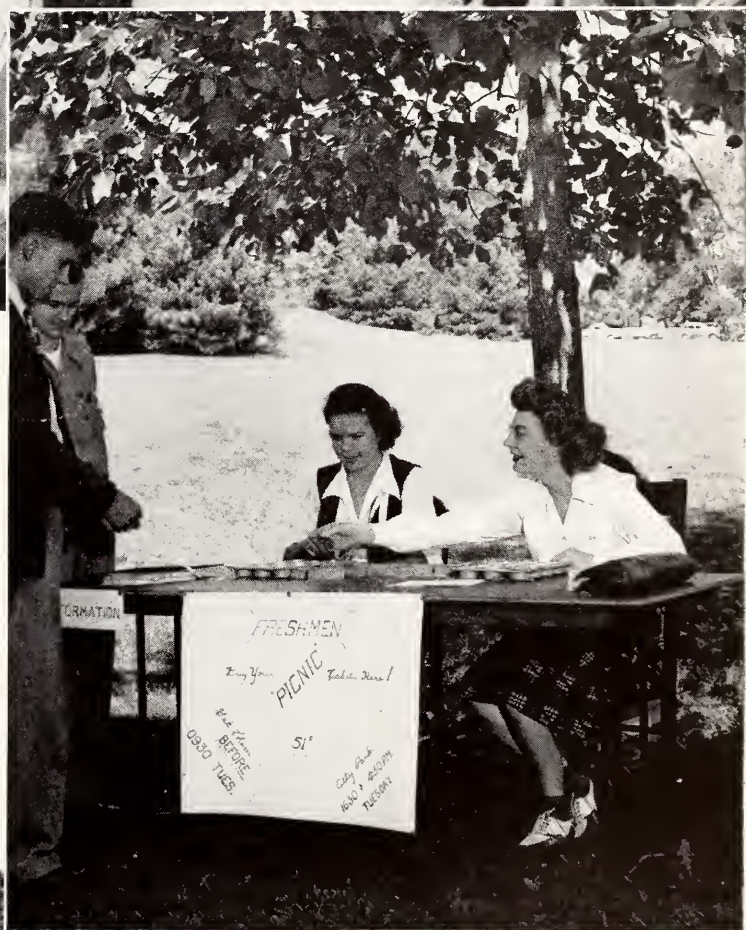

BASKETBALL FANS must come early for a seat; late comers use the rafters, stand or return home. Activity books entitle students to see every other game only, and, with the exception of officials, faculty as well as all non-college fans are barred from all games. Even the auditorium had "standing room only" at times this year. At the Ellis Arnall assembly students standing in the aisles waited patiently 15 minutes after the scheduled hour for the assembly when the speaker was delayed en route from Topeka. The Southern accent and slow wit of the ex-governor of Georgia amuses his listeners (left).

This fall a new plan for a regular Freshman Orientation Week was sponsored by the Counseling Bureau. A full week was set aside for entrance exams, enrollment and entertainment. A group of freshmen (above) inspects the ice cream making machine in West Ag while an upperclassman leads the tour through the campus, pointing out places of interest.

Frosh Take Over

Members of the Counseling Bureau staff sell tickets to the freshman picnic (right). Strolling over the campus two freshmen groups stopped to examine the Shops (below). The Auditorium (below, right) was the scene of the two-day testing program for new students. As the picture indicates, freshmen found the ratio of men to women was back to prewar standards.

Before the series of rush week activities began, 148 women registered at the College dorm for the round of activities. Panhellenic members (above, left) assign rushees to their groups. Registration for rush week was limited this year since housing facilities in the sororities were as crowded as every other place in Manhattan. A moment of relaxation at the Alpha Xi house (above, right) was a help to the women who spent the week going to parties, teas and dances.

At the conclusion of the torch parade there was a bonfire and pep rally in which a large number of students took part (below, left). Speeches were made to the student body by the football coaches and President Milton Eisenhower.

NINE KANSAS HIGH SCHOOL BANDS took part in the annual Band Day at Kansas State. Visiting bands paraded from downtown Manhattan to Memorial Stadium before the K-State-Iowa football game. More than 50 drum majors and twirlers (right) performed before the bands.

Precedes Band Day

A HUGE CROWD WATCHES the half-time proceedings at the K-State-Iowa football classic. The highlight at half-time was a salute to the Kansas high school bands with a twirling demonstration by band leader Jean Hedlund. When the band played the "Iowa Corn Song" the cheering section spelled out "Iowa" with a red and white card display. The playing of "Roll On, Kansas State" changed the card display to purple and white and the word "Wildcats."

Students challenged the two leading candidates for governor of Kansas to a debate in the College Auditorium, much to the horror of elderly politicians. The red-hot debate proved to be one of the most dramatic events of the political campaign.

PHYLLIS LOU JOHNSON, freshman in Industrial Chemistry and a Kappa pledge from Salina (left), was chosen by a board of experts to reign as queen over the Homecoming celebrations. She was the 10th queen to receive this honor at Kansas State.

CHI OMEGAS (below left) won first prize in the women's competition for house decorations with the theme "Watch Cow College Give KU the Bird." The front of the house represented a barnyard with a cow mechanically kicking its feet at a Jayhawk. First prize in the men's house competition was awarded to Beta Theta Pi for their railway known as the "Wildcat Line." The locomotive with the Wildcat engineer puffed and tooted as it approached the bedraggled Jayhawk.

PI BETA PHI's rode off with the top honors in their car, decorated with chicken wire and napkins to look like a huge "mum," in the Homecoming Parade which preceded the K-State-K. U. football game.

A RECORD CROWD of approximately 20,000 persons witnessed the 1946 Homecoming game. As part of the half-time activities the band played while the cheering section formed a card display saying "HAIL QUEEN."

THE ELECTION OF NINE new members to the Student Council in the spring caused the creation of a new organization known as the Veterans All-School Party. The first real political party to form at K-State, the Veteran Party set up a platform and nominated candidates for the Student Council election. Students stop in Anderson Hall on their way to and from classes (left) to vote for their candidates for Student Council membership.

POLITICAL MANEUVERS at Kansas State this fall included the formation of the All-College Party for the class officers election. Votes were cast in the Engineering Building last spring (right) to determine who would be representatives of that School on the Student Council.

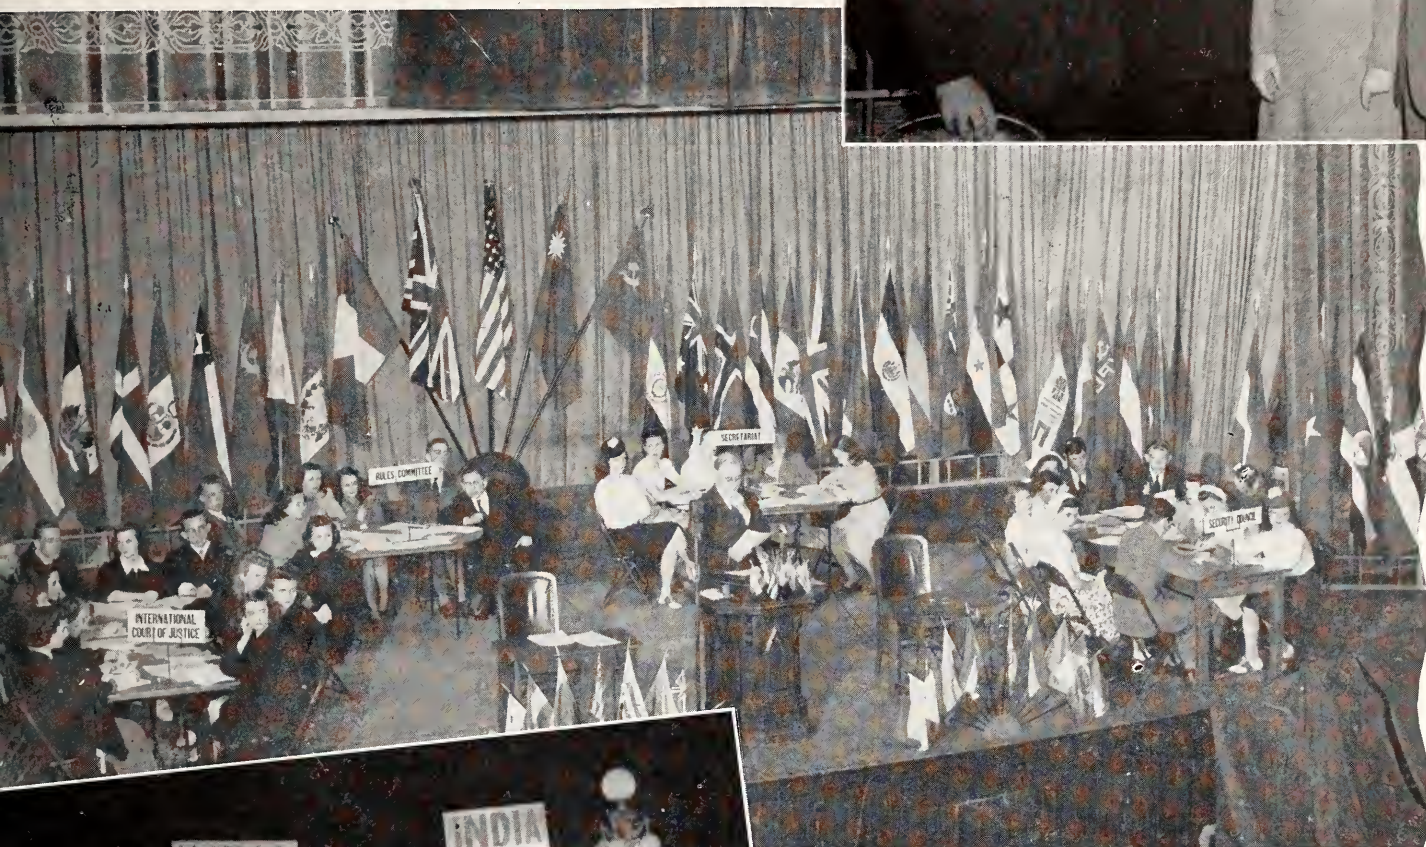

Political Upsets

ANOTHER POLITICAL FUROR was caused when the All-College Party was split and the Commonwealth Party was formed. Begun by some of the organizers of the All-College Party, the Commonwealth Party platform was based on similar ideas. Political big-shot Murlin Hodgell served as president of three political parties at various times during the year, starting his career with the ISP and carrying through the two reform parties. Students Study . . .

HELD LATE LAST SPRING, the second plenary session of the International Security Assembly, student version of the United Nations, received a boost with Ex-Governor Andrew Schoeppel as the main speaker and Justice Hugo Wedell of the Kansas Supreme Court, as chairman of the session. The visiting dignitaries talk it over with Lois Meisner, chairman of the planning committee and President Milton Eisenhower.

THE RULES COMMITTEE, World Court, Security Council and Secretariat ruled from a flag-filled stage. Individual campus organizations chose countries to represent in the study of world peace problems. The Pi Phi delegation representing India (left) provided much color with their turbans and saris and huge sign saying "Holy Cow—We're Modern Now."

. . . Peace Problems

THE CROWDED BALCONY was reserved for guests who included approximately 1,000 high school students, college students and interested visitors. Along with the colorful displays of the various delegations was a serious discussion of world problems. One of the hottest discussions of the evening was over the proposal that the veto power of permanent U. N. Security Council members be removed.

Ease KSC Housing Crisis

HOUSING WAS A PROBLEM for students at Kansas State, but the situation was relieved temporarily when surplus army barracks and trailers were moved on the campus, and the space under the stadium was utilized to house students.

Views of the temporary set-ups used by the College show (extreme right, reading from top) housing facilities for men students in a group of barracks called Splinterville, located east of the campus. Students do their studying in the "home-like" atmosphere of the stadium. Construction work on Splinterville barracks was aided by student workers. Heavy rains in the early fall halted the construction of the barracks temporarily. During the cold winter months snow covered the Campus Courts, a trailer community for veterans and their families. For a brief interlude during the fall semester a few students commuted from Fort Riley, but as soon as closer facilities were provided the Fort Riley project was closed.

ANOTHER FEATURE of the Y-sponsored carnival was a ball-tossing concession as students try their aim. Members of Alpha Phi Omega, organization for former Boy Scouts, help in the March of Dimes campaign by carrying a tub around the basketball court between games and letting onlookers try their luck at hitting it. Hit or miss, the dime drive was the winner and the campus campaign a success.

THE ANNUAL Y ORPHEUM competitive acts contest resulted in a tie between the Phi Delt and Sig Alphas in the men's division and a first place for the Chi Os and second for Tri Delt in the women's competition. "Drums Through the Ages" presented by the Phi Delt showed the development of the drum through the age of primitive man to the present day (above). The winning Chi O act, "Rhythm in Route," gave the audience a chance to choose a vacation spot in New York, New Orleans or California (left). "One Man's Poison," the Tri Delt act, gave the story of a French hat designer and the women that wear his hats (below). The Sig Alphas' skit interpreted acts of history through popular song hits. Duplicate trophies were presented the Phi Delt and SAEs, declaring them "co-winners" after it was originally decided to toss a coin to break the tie.

Beauty Reigns

"Operation Valentine" was the theme of the 1947 Royal Purple Beauty Ball at the Manhattan Community House on February 15.

Some 500 couples danced to the music of Matt Betton and his orchestra in one of the biggest social events of the spring semester. Paul DeWeese, business manager of the Royal Purple, was in charge of the dance and Tom Moreen headed the committee in charge of decorations.

The eighteen candidates for beauty queen were chosen from sorority and independent houses. The beauty queen and her attendants were chosen by three commercial artists, Karl Fitzer and Charles Converse of Kansas City and Lawrence Blaker, Manhattan.

McCrary Appointed Athletics Director

This was a busy year for the Kansas State Athletics Council.

Besides determining the general policy of Kansas State toward Big Six problems, the council was faced with the task of appointing a new director of athletics and head football coach. Also on the council's agenda is the awarding of letters and the approving of schedules. Six faculty members, one alumni member, the director of athletics and one student make up the council.

THURLO E. MCCRARY (left), new director of athletics at K-State, was formerly athletics head at South Dakota State College. McCrary took charge of the directorship March 1.

HOBBS ADAMS (right), former athletics director and head football coach, resigned after the disastrous 1946 season. Adams had been head grid mentor for three years.

THE APPOINTMENT OF SAM FRANCIS (left), former All-American, as new head football coach of the Wildcats was made February 8 by the Athletics Council.

A LOT OF CREDIT GOES TO FRANK MYERS (right), the likable business manager of Kansas State athletics, who has also done his share of coaching as well as handling business matters.

For the first time in several years, a member of the student body was appointed to the athletics council. Karl Kramer, football letterman, was selected as the students' representative.

Most important conference problems were the restoration of the freshman rule which was relaxed during the war, and the addition of the University of Colorado to the conference. These major questions received wholehearted support from Big Six members.

The appointment of Thurlo E. McCrady as director of athletics brings to Kansas State a man with an outstanding record. When McCrady was athletics head at South Dakota State, his teams consistently ranked among the top ones in the conference.

Sam Francis, newly appointed grid mentor, was a former All-American at Nebraska, both in football and track. In 1936 he was a member of the U. S. Olympic teams which took part in the games at Berlin. He also played four years of professional football with Chicago and Brooklyn.

Disastrous Grid Season

Kansas State's football team made history in 1946.

The Wildcats were one of three major colleges to go without a victory during the entire season. The K-State gridders struggled through nine contests, falling in order before Hardin-Simmons, Nebraska, Missouri, Oklahoma, Iowa State, San Francisco, Kansas U., New Mexico, and Arizona.

Wildcat football records go back 50 years to 1896 when a team captained by "Poston" played two contests for a tie and a loss. Not since '96 has a Kansas State eleven failed to annex at least one victory.

OKLAHOMA'S LINE, one of the best in the nation, rated Clarence Heath one of its best opponents. He plays tackle, was elected honorary captain at end of season.

Coached by Hobbs Adams, the Wildcats showed a definite lack of experience both in the backfield and line. However, despite the disastrous season, six K-State players received honorable mention on the All-Big Six teams. Rollin Prather, Huck Heath, Dave Schirmer, Ed McNeil, Vic Jones and Norman Rothrock received honors.

LEWIS TURNER, pre-war veteran of K-State, returned to handle intricate quarterback assignments in the Wildcat's T formation. Karl Kramer (extreme right) was one of the nation's leading punters. Phenomenal kicking won him a spot on the Kansas All-Stars team which played Missouri All-Stars in Kansas City.

Texans Topple State

The Kansas State Wildcats opened the 1946 grid season by dropping a 21-7 decision to the Cowboys of Hardin-Simmons in Abilene, Texas.

Featuring a pass offense that had the Wildcats in a daze, the Texans scored in each of the last three quarters. K-State's lone tally came in the closing minutes of the game when Al Bandy raced a kickoff 23 yards back to the 30 and the drive started. Delbert Ehret kicked the extra point from placement. The game ended with the Wildcats threatening again on the Cowboys' three-yard line. The outstanding kicking of Harold Bryan and Karl Kramer was the Wildcats' chief threat throughout the game. Hardin-Simmons scored their first touchdown on a 43-yard pass in the second quarter.

Huskers Blank Cats

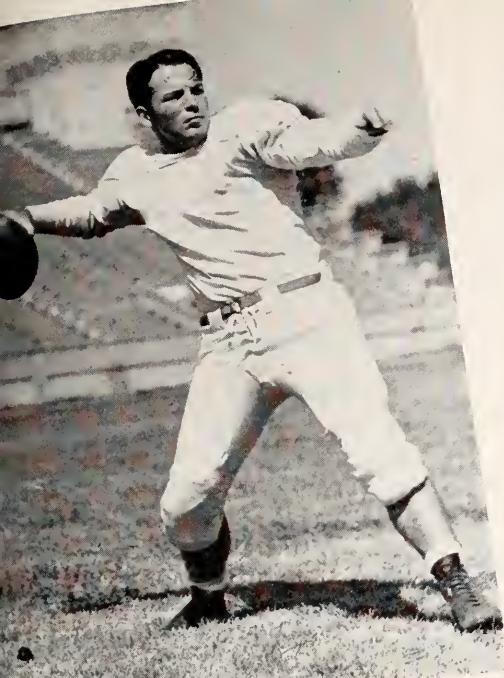

Kansas State invaded Nebraska for the conference opener only to go down in defeat 31 to 0. The Cats worried the Huskers for 13 minutes, but after that it was all Nebraska. The only K-State threat came after three minutes of play when Nebraska tried to run on the fourth down and lost the ball.

A NATURAL FULLBACK WITH SPEED, Vic Jones like many other Wildcats, has three more seasons to play. Edgar McNeil, rugged and tough in line play, was the Wildcat's fastest lineman despite his 220 pounds.

BILL EDWARDS, K-STATE LEFT HALF, sweeps right end in the Missouri game. Bob Berry, guard, moves up to do a little blocking. (Lower left) Hard-running Harold Bryan, also a great punter, frequently spiraled the pigskin 50 yards against strong winds. Mike Zeleznak, a pre-war hero, regained his old form toward the end of the 1946 season.

Six plays later, the Wildcats had advanced the ball to the one-foot line. Three plunges and a pass failed for the Wildcats as they attempted to dent the Cornhusker stonewall. Nebraska scored once in the first quarter, once in the second, two in the third and one in the last period.

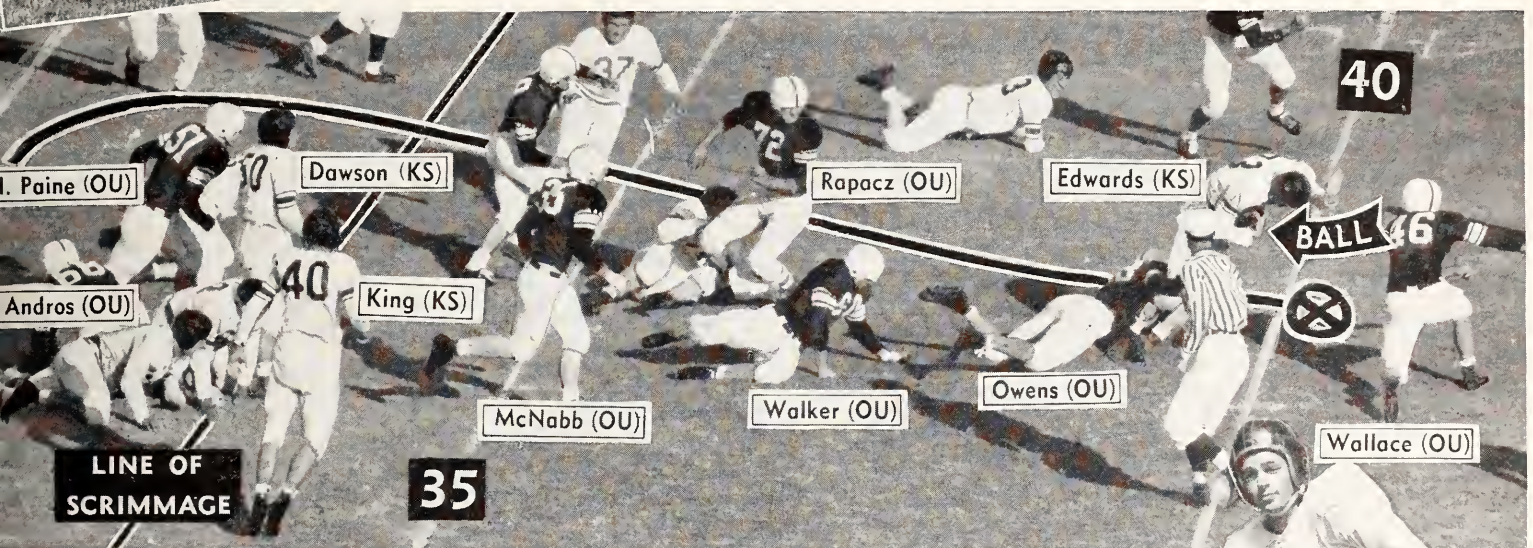

Tigers Batter Wildcats

Twelve thousand fans watched the Missouri Tigers hand the K-State grid squad its second conference defeat 26 to 0 in Memorial Stadium.

Early in the game, the Tigers appeared to be on their way to a high scoring rout of the Wildcats, but Kansas State came to life in the second half to hold Missouri to a lone score.

The Wildcats crossed the mid-field marker only once in the first half when they got to the Tiger 35-yard line. From there, Harry Merri-man booted out on the Missouri 6-yard line. The Bengals' first tally came after a sustained drive from their own 30.

EDWARDS, WILDCAT HALFBACK, hits the Oklahoma line for nine yards (above). Oscar Erickson (right), a blocking back in pre-war years, moved to quarterback last fall. Erickson called signals brilliantly in Oklahoma game . . . injuries hampered him throughout season.

A fumble by Harold Bryan set the Tigers up in scoring position again early in the first period. Two passes, an end run and a line plunge put the Tigers ahead 13 to 0. It took Missouri only 11 minutes of the first period to shatter the Wildcat defense.

Early in the third period the K-Staters settled down and held the Bengals to one scoring threat. Vic Jones and Gene Snyder aroused the Cats' fire which netted Kansas State its initial first down of the game. The Wildcats managed to move the ball to the Missouri 32 late in the final period, but the gun sounded with the Tigers in possession at mid-field.

LARRY KING, RANGY END, had regular position when not out with injuries. Grover Nutt (lower right) ripped San Francisco line to pieces during short time he was in the west coast game.

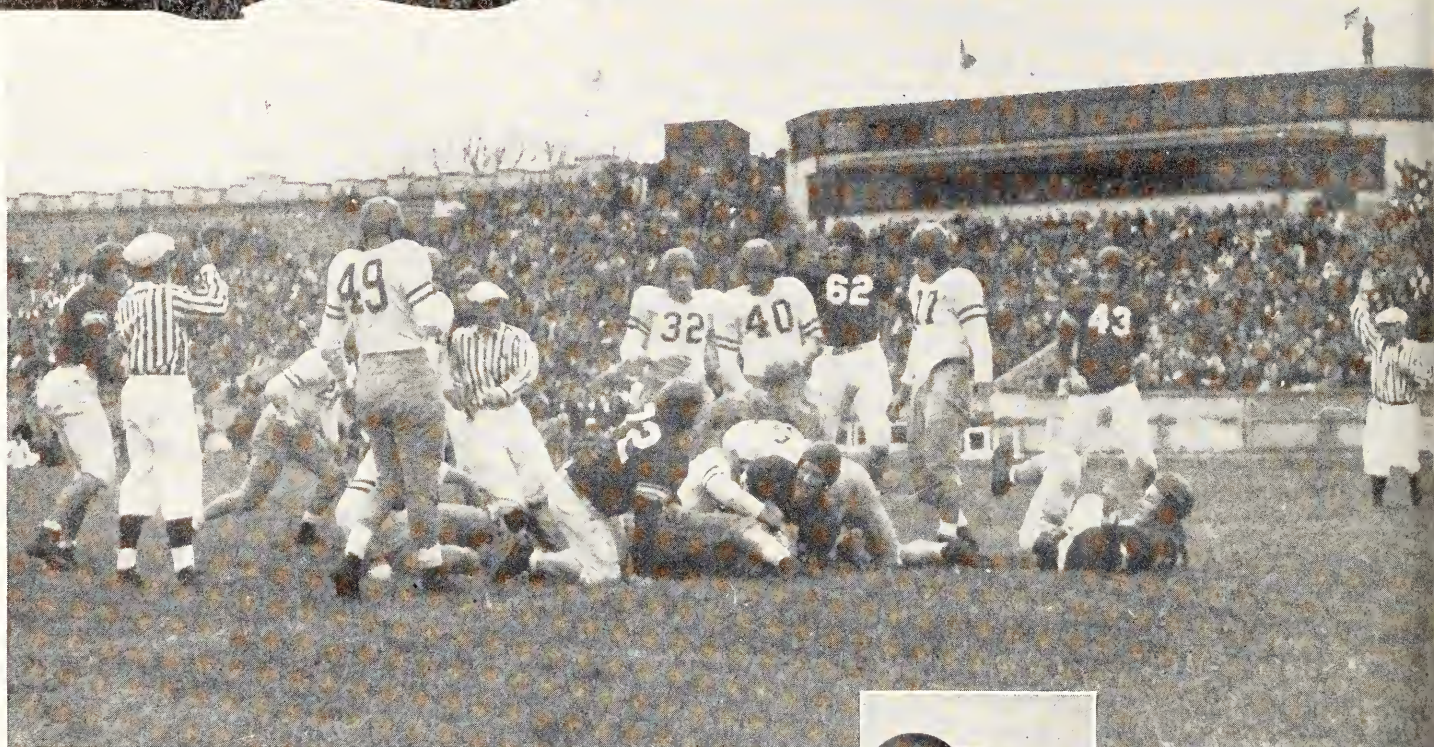

K-State Battles Sooners

For the first time of the season, the Wildcats sprouted claws and fought tooth and nail with the Oklahoma Sooners at Norman before going down in defeat 28 to 7. Twenty-five thousand fans watched in amazement as the two teams battled on even terms for three quarters.

ROYCE PENCE started practice late, worked his way to a top position among Wildcat centers. Dick "Big Red" Noyce, letterman in 1945, returned from short service term to strengthen tackle position.

VIC JONES CRACKS THE IOWA STATE LINE for a touchdown. "Lighthorse Harry" Merriman starred in late season games, averaged 10 yards each time he carried the ball against University of New Mexico. Gene Snyder (extreme right) started season at center, moved to quarterback spot. Few surpass him for sheer courage and defensive ability.

The spirited Kansas State eleven held the Sooners to a 7 to 7 tie for nearly three full quarters. Then Joe Golding, Oklahoma's All-American halfback, broke loose for two of his three touchdowns to sew up the contest for the Sooner grid-ders. Kansas State, trailing 0 to 7 in the second period, knotted the score when Grover Nutt, sub fullback, plunged over after a 34-yard Wildcat drive. Bill Edwards, halfback, sparked the Cats, and it was his interception of an Oklahoma pass that started the Wildcats' lone touchdown drive.

However, Coach Hobbs Adams' outmanned eleven made a fine game out of it, using a tricky, deceptive offense to actually surpass Oklahoma in first downs and resisting heroically on defense, although playing most of the time against two fresh Sooner elevens.

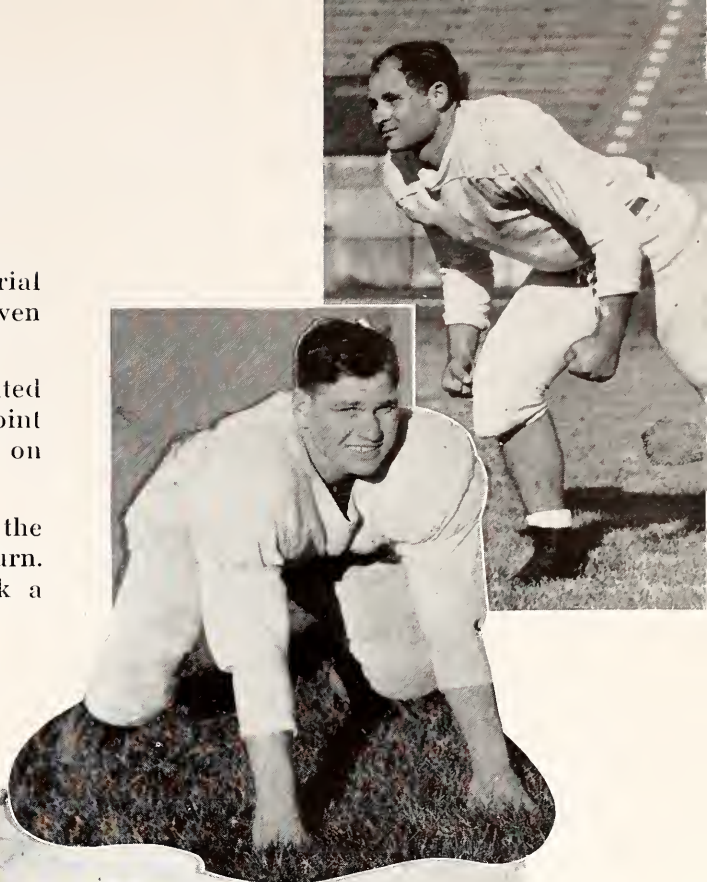

A Cyclone Struck

An injury-riddled Iowa State football team invaded Memorial Stadium and outclassed an almost full strength Wildcat eleven 13 to 7.

For the first time during the season, the K-Staters were rated the favorites, but the Cyclones fought back from a seven point deficit at halftime as they slammed the Big Six cellar door on the hapless Wildcats.

It looked like it might be all Kansas State at the start of the game. Karl Kramer took the kickoff and made a 17-yard return. On the first running play of the game, Harold Bryan took a handoff and fought his way to the Iowa State 29-yard marker.

MIKE VARGON (above right) hits as hard as any of 'em. Defense is his forte. On a winning team, Dave Schimer would have been all-conference guard. He was a great defense man, starred against the highly-touted Oklahoma two-line system.

THE "FLYING WILDCATS" climb aboard a Continental Airliner to leave for San Francisco. Harmon Lesco (lower left) never hit his full stride last season, but showed flashes of the old half-back skill which made him a terror in the Kansas junior conference league. Dale Wright had plenty of speed for a fullback, made frequent gains on wide sweeps around end.

It was then the Cyclones bogged down the Cats' offense. In the second quarter the Wildcats scored their only touchdown. Recovering an Iowa State fumble, and with hard charging Vic Jones carrying the ball, K-State finally scored.

Lose to Jayhawkers 34-0

Kansas State made it seven losses in a row as they fell before the Kansas Jayhawkers 34 to 0 in Memorial Stadium with 17,000 Homecoming fans witnessing the debacle.

Kansas put on a scoring spree in the third quarter which netted them 28 points and gave the Purple and White one of its worst defeats in 42 years of rivalry between the two schools. Both teams displayed poor football during the first half and the rest period found the score 6 to 0 in favor of the Kansas University gridders.

MARVIN NORBY (upper left) finished a four-year career as guard with the Wildcats this fall. Norby was a tough defensive man with speed on the down-field blocking. Dick Bogue, a Wichita freshman end, has lots of promise. He is good defensively and is expected to become a pass-snagger. Long touchdown runs on the B team won Jim (Dutch) Stehley (lower left) enough varsity action to win a letter. Stehley should be a helpful halfback cog next fall.

A K.U. BACK BREAKS LOOSE deep in Kansas State territory (above). Dale Cowan, tackle, finished his fourth season at Kansas State this fall, climaxed his football career by appearing with the Kansas all-stars in a post-season game against Missouri all-stars.

"Riflin" Ray Evans, Kansas back, was the whole show. He shot passes, skirted the ends and when he wasn't scoring, he saw that someone else was. The Wildcats could never get started. Fumbles, poorly executed plays and pass interceptions bogged down the K-State offense.

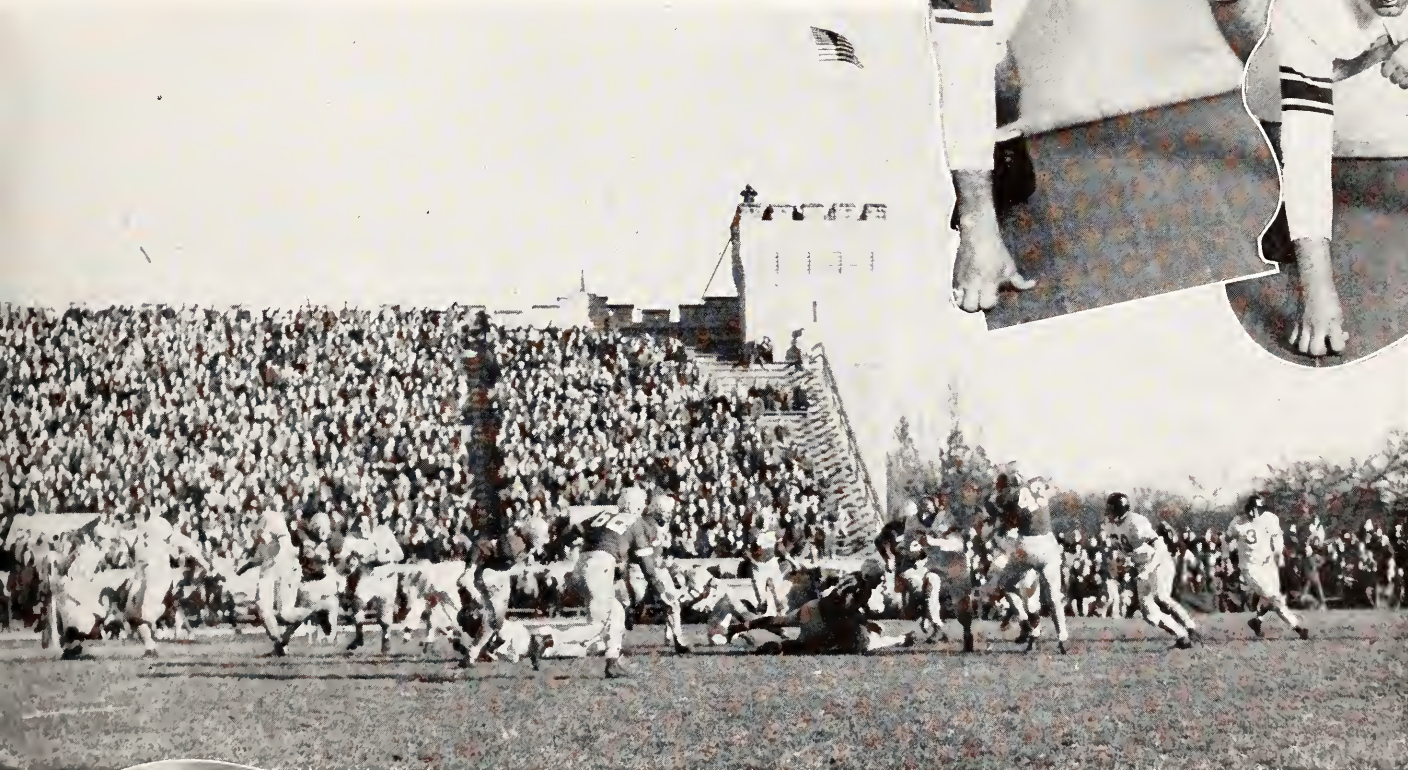

"Flying" Wildcats Wrecked

The Wildcats took to the air to travel to the west coast, but their football aerial attack bogged down as they lost to the San Francisco Dons 38 to 6 for their second non-conference loss of the season.

A fleet-footed halfback by the name of Forrest Hall spelled doom for the K-Staters as he led the Dons with four touchdowns in the five times he carried the pigskin. The Cats showed some flashes of brilliant football, but not until the fourth period could they push over for a score.

LARRY REID'S PASS CATCHING from an end position was amazing . . . specialty was one-handed stabs of aerials. Bob Fanshier (below), a pre-war lineman, returned to help the Wildcat forward last season. A San Diego, California, lad, LeRoy Dawson (below right), played either tackle or guard and did each equally well.

K. U. TACKLERS SWARM in on a Wildcat ball carrier (above). Darrell Bartley, a speedster at halfback (left), was capable of breaking up any game with a quick breakaway run.

Twice the Wildcat eleven drove within sight of paydirt in the last quarter, only to be denied by the strong San Francisco defense. The third time, the Cats took the ball on the Dons' 35. A pass was good for 12 and a second was good for 15 more. Then the Cats drove the ball to the two where little Harry Merriman carried it over for the score.

He's tall and dangerous on defense.

The Cats fell before New Mexico by a 14 to 7 count and were trounced by Arizona 27 to 8. The New Mexico game saw the Wildcats turn in one of their best performances of the year.

B Squad Makes Fine Showing

The Kansas State B team launched its 1946 grid-iron season by downing the Wichita B eleven 12 to 0 at Griffith Stadium.

The Bees lost their second game to a squad of experienced Jayhawkers at Lawrence 14 to 0. Kansas won the return game in Manhattan again by a 12 to 0 score. Journeying to Lincoln, the Wildcat B squad lost a hard-fought contest to the Husker Bees 25 to 14. The return game at Griffith Stadium saw the K-State Bees hold the Nebraskans to a thrill-packed, hard-fought tie, 14 to 14.

The Cat B squad blitzed the Wichita Shocker B outfit in the second game 26 to 0. The play of quarterback Ted Grimes sparked the Cats' play. Continuing their winning ways, the Kansas State B team trounced the Emporia State B eleven 14 to 0 for their third win of the season. The Cat B squad suffered its worst defeat of the season against a powerful Missouri eleven at Columbia 21 to 7.

The K-State junior varsity ran up its biggest score of the season when they trampled the Fort Riley Ramblers 76 to 0.

MUCH CREDIT GOES TO LUD FISER, B squad coach, for the team's fine record. Fiser, known for his offensive elevens, is also head baseball coach at Kansas State.

AFTER A FOUR-YEAR WARTIME ABSENCE, while serving as a naval officer, Jack Gardner, head basketball coach, returned to Kansas State to tutor the 1946-47 cage team to one of the best records in school history.

Fourteen victories in 24 games was the impressive record of the 1946-47 Kansas State basketball team as Coach Jack Gardner's cagers turned in the best "win-lose" mark of any Wildcat team of the past 20 years. The Wildcats finished in a fifth place tie in the conference but won 11 of 14 non-conference games.

Only three lettermen, Marlo Dirks, Bruce Holman and Dave Weatherby, were available for the squad when the season started in early December. However, Gardner took players with service team experience, molded them with the lettermen, and developed a smooth, fighting ball team. Rick Harman, 18-year-old from Hoisington, was the only member of the varsity team who had not been in service.

Best Cage Season

Kansas State opened its cage season with a varsity doubleheader in Nichols Gym by trouncing Washburn 47 to 27 and Fort Hays State 48 to 40.

The Wildcat squad took its first road trip of the season into Iowa and edged Drake 46 to 43 in a double overtime contest. The following evening the Purple and White lost a close one to Iowa's experienced team 54 to 41.

Score Major Upset

In the Big Six tourney at Kansas City in December, the Wildcats scored a major upset of the year in any sport by beating Oklahoma, pre-tournament favorite, 59 to 55 in the first round. Southern Methodist University, winner of the tournament, beat Gardner's gang 46 to 36 in the second round. However, the Wildcats rebounded to win from tall Arkansas, 56 to 41.

in 20 Years for Cats

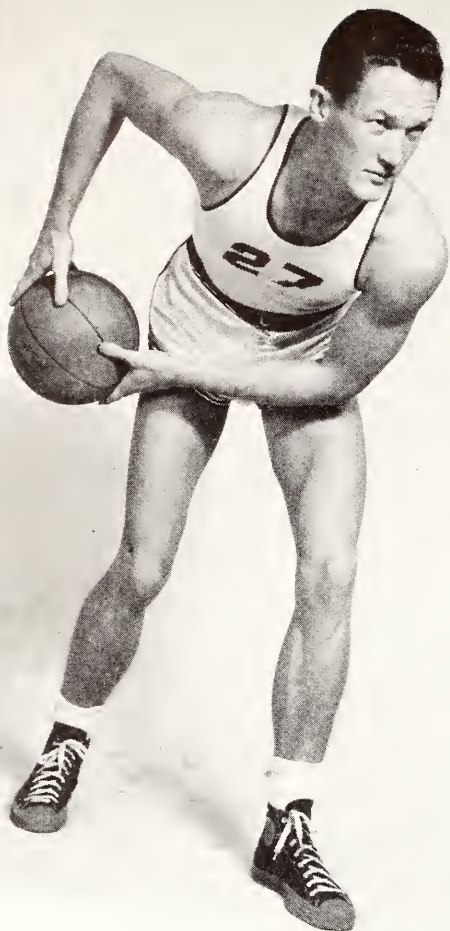

The Kansas State hustlers continued their red-hot winning pace by again downing Drake, this time 74 to 34, Wichita 48 to 41, Montana State 51 to 40 and Washburn 42 to 40. The one-sided win over Drake saw the Wildcats establish a modern Kansas State team scoring record for one game. The old record of 70 points was made by Fritz Knorr's 1944-45 team.

Harold Howey, brilliant forward (lower right), was third high scorer in the Big Six, averaging 11.9 points in 10 games. He also won all Big Six second team honors.

The K-Staters opened the conference season against Nebraska in Manhattan and won going away, 63 to 54. Harold Howey, rated by some as the fastest forward in the Big Six, scored 27 points to lead the Gardner team. Howey's mark was just one point short of the individual player's mark held by teammate Dave Weatherby and by Frank Groves, star center of the '30's.

Iowa State Stops

At Ames, Iowa, the Iowa State Cyclones surprised Jack Gardner's rampaging five and upset the Cats 51 to 40, to halt a six-game winning streak by Kansas State.

Four days later the Wildcats and the Missouri Tigers battled into an overtime period with the Bengals finally winning 43 to 42. Three thousand fans jammed Nichols Gymnasium as Missouri registered its third win and the K-State aggregation suffered its second loss in Big Six play.

AN OKLAHOMA PLAYER tips the ball as Rick Harman (8), Marlo Dirks (15) and Rollin Prather (21) try for the rebound. After 53 fouls and two slugfests, Oklahoma walked off with a 50 to 30 victory.

K-State Winning Streak

Fists flew in Nichols Gymnasium when the Oklahoma Sooners invaded Aggieiland and defeated K-State by a 50 to 30 score. The game featured two wild slugfests with members of both teams trading blows freely. Fifty-three fouls were called with the Cats receiving 28.

K-State jumped back into the win column by downing Rockhurst in Nichols Gymnasium 51 to 44. Harold Howey again led the scorers with a total of 15 points.

Kansas State dropped into the Big Six cellar as the Kansas University Jayhawkers won a thriller, 50 to 39, at Mt. Oread. For the first time of the season, Jack Gardner sent a zone defense against the foe, but the excellent long-range shooting of K. U. made the Cats switch back MARLO DIRKS, center, returned from service to win his third letter (above). Dave Weatherby (below) hit four important baskets to help beat KU.

Wildcats Gain Revenge

The Wildcats gained a revenge in Nichols Gym over Iowa State by hammering the Cyclones for a 43 to 30 victory. The Wildcats fought on even terms with the Cyclones for the first five minutes and then pulled away to a 20 to 16 lead at intermission. Harold Howey led K-State scoring with 10 points.

Kansas State hit its sixth conference snag when they traveled to Norman, Okla., and were defeated by the Sooners, 38 to 57. The K-State crew, playing a new shifting zone defense, kept the Sooners within range early in the game, but the shooting of All-American Gerald Tucker proved too much for the Cats. Rick Harman, flashy frosh, led Kansas State with 9 points.

Upset KU 48-45

History was made in ancient Nichols Gymnasium as the underdog Kansas State Wildcats triumphed over powerful Kansas, 48 to 45.

The triumph marked the first cage win over the Hawks since 1937 and snapped a 22-game string of victories by university teams. Keith Thomas was the hero of the night, as he poured in 16 points for the Wildcats. However, it was Dave Weatherby who kept Kansas State in the game with four field goals during the first half.

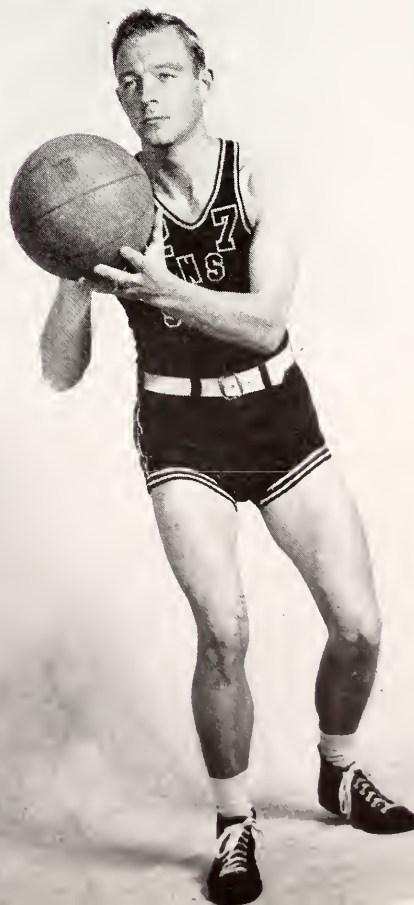

CLARENCE BRANNUM (20) GOES HIGH INTO THE AIR to get a rebound as Black and Schnellbacher (11) of KU can't quite make it. Lloyd Krone (above), splendid ball handling guard, played at Oklahoma before coming to K-State, Bruce Holman (below) finished three years of competition this season.

The score was knotted 21-all-at halftime, but the Wildcats came back to take a 31 to 30 lead after the rest period and they never relinquished their lead.

K-State handed Wichita its second defeat as the Cats scored a 60 to 41 victory over the Shockers.

Speedy Harold Howey's 23 points weren't quite enough as the Kansas State five bowed to the Nebraska Cornhuskers in Lincoln, 54 to 50. The game was nip and tuck all the way, but in the last three minutes the Wildcats committed 10 fouls trying to gain possession of the ball.

The Wildcats lost their season finale by bowing to a strong Bradley Tech five, 48 to 41, at Peoria, Ill.

Bees Take Eleven Wins

The Kansas State Junior Varsity showed local basketball fans that it could hold its own on the hardwood courts as they romped to 11 victories in 15 starts during the cage season.

Ken Mahoney, freshman from Dorrance, furnished thrills with his trick ball handling from the pivot post, and Glen Mitchum, quick-moving guard, was the Junior Cats' main scoring threat, scoring 130 points for the season. The long-range shooting of diminutive George Mann, guard, was also a threat. Joe Thornton, scrappy guard, was a stalwart in the K-State offense before joining the varsity squad.

Swimmers Cop Third

After four years of non-participation in inter-collegiate swimming competition, Kansas State returned to the pool to cop third place in the Big Six this spring. However, the tankmen failed to annex a single victory in eight scheduled meets.

With only two lettermen returning to his squad, Coach Cooney Moll had to build almost an entirely new team around Marshall "Smokey" Stover and Jim Leker.

Stover, who held the Big Six championship in 1941 in the 220- and 440-yard free style event, failed only once to take first place honors and that was in the Big Six meet when he bowed to Iowa State. Stover also carried the brunt of the diving competition for the Wildcats.

Bright spot among Coach Moll's poolmen was John Leitt, sensational freshman, who scored a considerable number of points in the 50-yard dash and the 60-yard free style events. John McGill, another freshman, set a new pool record in the 200-yard breaststroke event.

Wildcats Win Two

The Kansas State nine opened their season by traveling to Kansas University and splitting a doubleheader with the Jayhawks. The K. U. nine copped the first tilt 2 to 1, but lost the next one to the Wildcats 14 to 8 in a high-scoring contest.

The Jayhawks won the first game when Carl Shapely, Wildcat hurler, blew up in the eighth. Kansas State scored their 14 runs of the second game on 22 hits. In this contest Fillmore and Hart, although hit hard by the Jayhawk batters, bore down in the clutch to nip any uprising that K. U. started.

The K-State nine returned home to lose a hard-fought game the next week to the Ramblers from Fort Riley 2 to 1. The game was a night affair and was played at Junction City. Three weeks later, the Wildcats turned the tables on Fort Riley and chalked up their second win by a score of 6 to 5. This was the last game of the season that the Wildcats scored on the winning side of the ledger.

Two early season wins were the grand total for the 1946 Kansas State baseball squad. With 74 candidates answering the opening call early in the spring, prospects for a strong ball team were bright. However, only one former letterman was on hand for practice.

Sooners Blast Cats

The Oklahoma Sooners ruined the first home appearance of the Kansas State nine since before the war by taking both ends of a twin bill 10 to 2 and 4 to 2.

Jim Morrissey, Wildcat firstsacker, led the hitting for the K-Staters with three safeties out of five times at the plate. Bob Ives, Wildcat centerfielder, was next with hitting honors as he garnered two hits in four tries at the plate.

The Wildcats outthit the Sooners by collecting ten safeties to the Oklahomans' seven bingles, but the local nine led in errors 7 to 6. The Sooners scored two runs in the first inning, but the Cats came back in the last of the fourth to tally. The Kansas State final score was made in the seventh when Wendell Bell drove a long double to left and jogged home on Duane Patterson's hard triple to left. The Kansas State nine used three hurlers in the first game and Shapely went the route in the second.

K-State Cats Drop Three More

The Oklahoma Aggies moved into Manhattan and eked out a 3 to 2 victory over the Wildcats in a closely played ball game. An eighth inning up-rising by Oklahoma A & M, which saw the Aggies blast in three tallies, was the deciding factor. The K-Staters jumped into an early lead in the last half of the second inning when Bob Ives, centerfielder, lashed out a single, stole second and scored on John Zawatski's sharp base hit to left. On an overthrow, Zawatski moved to third and romped in to score the second run on Dayton D. Kern's hard hit down the third base line. Carl Shapely handcuffed the visiting Aggies until the fatal eighth inning. Hart finished the ball game for the Wildcats.

Still losing baseball games, the K-Staters tried hard to get back on the winning side, only to lose two hard-fought games to the Iowa State Cyclones at Ames 2 to 0 and 4 to 3.

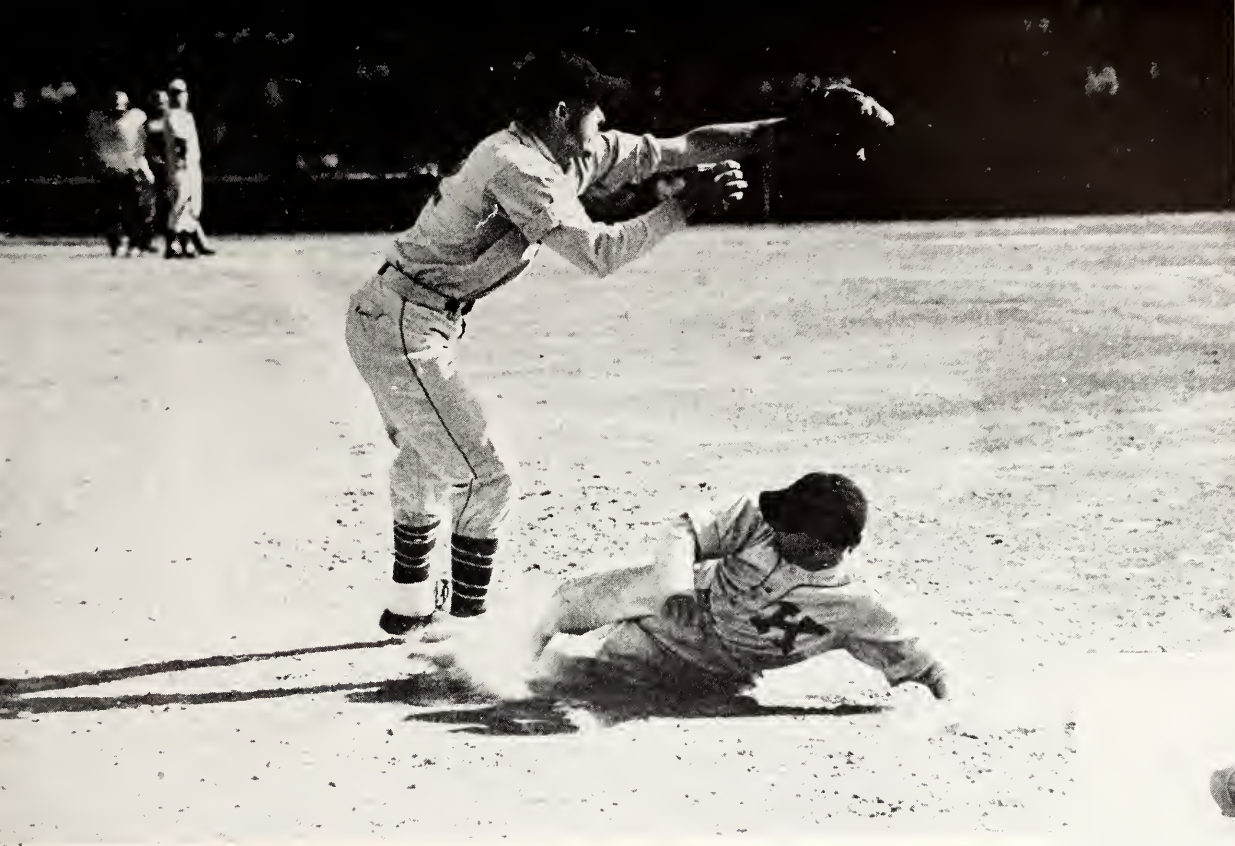

The first game was a pitchers' duel, with K-State's Carl Shapely matched against Iowa State's Ralph Theobald. Corby Hart went the distance in the second game of the doubleheader, allowing only six hits, but lost 4 to 3. In the first game, the Wildcats could only garner two hits. Iowa State counted its runs to win 2 to 0 in the last half of the sixth.

Jayhawks Take Two

The Kansas Jayhawkers invaded Griffith Stadium and trounced the Wildcats in both ends of a doubleheader 8 to 6 and 10 to 9. The Jayhawks jumped on Carl Shapely in the sixth inning to tie the score after the Wildcats had picked up an early lead. In the ninth, K. U. blasted relief hurler Corby Hart for two runs to win the ball game. It was the same ninth inning which gave the Kansas Jayhawkers the second and final game of the series. The two wins gave Kansas a three to one count.

Huskers Send Cats to

The Wildcats closed their disastrous spring season by receiving a twin drubbing at the hands of the Nebraska Cornhuskers by scores of 11 to 3 and 18 to 2. The Wildcat twirlers paraded to the mound in an effort to stem the powerful Huskers of Nebraska. The Cornhuskers won the first game by a 14-hit assault. The second game was like the first, with the bullpen having a steady run of visitors from the Wildcat bench.

Place High in Relays

The Kansas State outdoor trackmen opened their 1946 cinder season by placing in the famed Texas Relays, which took place at Austin, Texas, on April 6. The thin-clads of Coach Ward Haylett scored enough points to make a very impressive showing. The two-mile relay team, which included Peter Kennedy, George Leasure, Jim Cunningham and Art Hildebrand, clipped off the two-mile run in 8:09.9 to win first place in the event.

The Wildcat trackmen then journeyed to Lawrence to compete in the nationally famous Kansas University Relays on April 20 and came home placing in four main events to keep up their reputation gained in Texas. The two-mile team, again consisting of Kennedy, Leasure, Cunningham and Hildebrand, placed third. The sprint medley team came in with a fourth. Karl Kramer, Dick Fuller, Harold Kiser and Don Harr made up the four-some. George Sherman tied for the number two honors in the pole vault, and Harold Kiser came in fifth in the 120-yard high hurdles.

The K. U. Relays, annually one of the toughest meets for any team, found the Wildcats low in team standings but high in gaining experience for a green team.

JIM DANIELSON, broadjumper, puts in his bid for first place during a meet with the Kansas Jayhawks at Ahearn Field.

The Kansas Staters were improving at a steady rate. Lack of experience was the big obstacle which Coach Ward Haylett had to overcome in building his team. Addition of football players strengthened the squad greatly.

The Wildcat trackmen made their best showing of the year when they entered the Colorado Relays and finished a strong second. Colorado University, the host, won first in the meet on their home cinder path. The Haylettmen placed in nine events. Harold Kiser was the standout and ran on two placing relay teams and came in third in the high jump.

Big Six Cellar for Cats

In the final track meet of the year, Kansas State's thinclads finished in sixth place in the Big Six meet. Kansas won first with 117 points. Nebraska, Missouri, Iowa State and Oklahoma ended up in the above order. Leasure placed third in the mile; Danielson sixth in the broad jump and Cunningham was third in the 880 yard run.

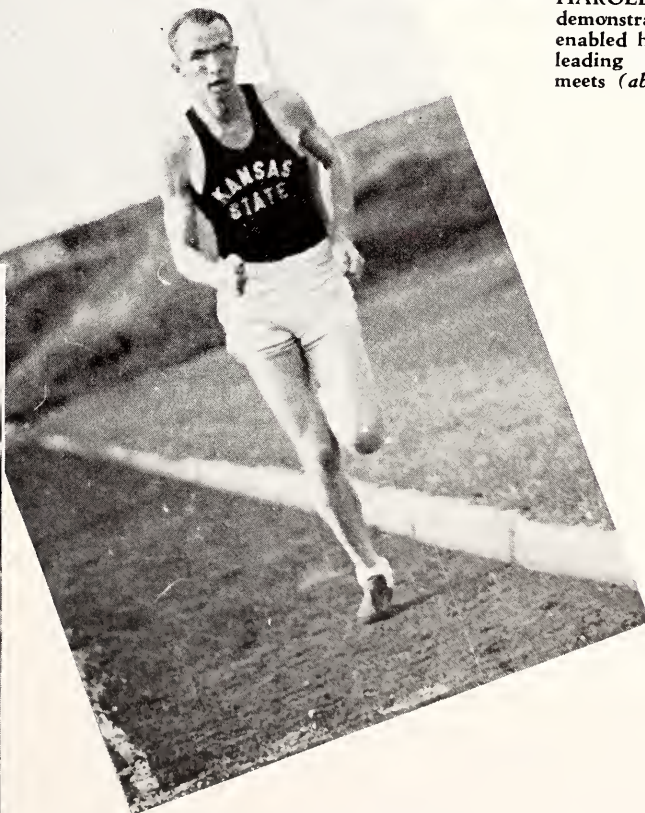

Coach Ward Haylett, nationally known for his outstanding track squads, brought along an inexperienced team at a rapid pace. Fourteen members of the outdoor track team received letters for 1946. Letter winners were Jim Danielson, Seth Antrim, Raymond Adee, James Cunningham, Richard Fuller, George Leasure, Ralph Hall, Don Harr, Art Hildebrand, Harold Kiser, Peter Kennedy, Karl Kramer, Ernest Nelson and George Sherman.

Kiser, Leasure, Kennedy, Cunningham, Kramer, Fuller and Don Harr were constant scorers on the track squad.

Two-Milers Second in Conference

DON BORTHWICK CROSSES the finish line in the two-mile race during the triangular meet with Iowa State and Kansas.

Ward Haylett's Kansas State two-milers had one of their best fall seasons as they won five of seven meets and placed second in the Big Six meet at Norman, Oklahoma.

The Wildcats scored 41 points to place second in a triangular meet with Oklahoma and the Oklahoma Aggies. In dual meets, the Sooners defeated the Wildcats, but K-State outran the Oklahoma Aggies.

The Wildcat harriers scored a triangular and two dual victories against Iowa State and KU. Don Borthwick took second place honors while Ray Adee and George Leasure placed third and fourth.

The Kansas State quintet scored its second victory as it outpaced the Nebraska Cornhuskers 29 to 26. Borthwick again placed second.

Kansas State continued its fast pace by garnering second place in the conference meet. The Wildcats, with Borthwick placing fifth, Ray Adee thirteenth, Jim Cunningham seventeenth, and Dave Van Haverbeke twentieth, ran up 63 points. Oklahoma is the conference champion.

Don Borthwick was elected captain for next year's two-mile track squad. Bright spot on Coach Ward Haylett's thinclad squad was David Van Haverbeke, freshman runner, who kept pace all season with the veteran cindermen. Ray Adee and Jim Cunningham were the only two members of the squad graduating.

Individuals Star in Indoor Track

Although handicapped by lack of indoor training facilities, the Kansas State track team opened its indoor season by placing in four events at the Michigan State Relays.

Rollin Prather, frosh star, copped individual honors by taking third in the shotput with a toss of 49 feet 4 $\frac{1}{4}$ inches.

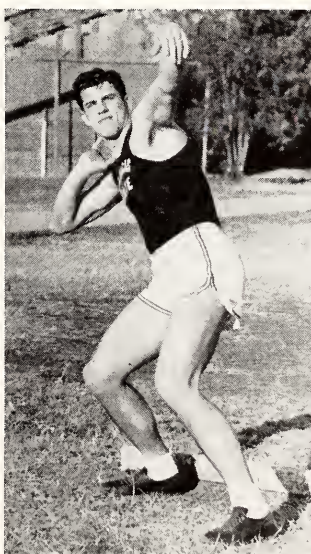

In their first dual meet of the indoor season, the thinclads fell to Missouri at Columbia 24 $\frac{1}{3}$ to 79 $\frac{2}{3}$. K-State's two first places went to Bill Stuart in the 880 and Harold Kiser, who won the broad jump.

The trackmen tackled Nebraska and came out on the short end of the score in their second conference meet 64 $\frac{2}{3}$ to 39 $\frac{1}{3}$. Harold Kiser took first in the broad jump and Prather again won the shotput event.

Coach Haylett's indoor trackmen placed fifth in a power-laden field of stars at the Big Six meet. Prather was the only Wildcat to finish better than third as he heaved the shotput for second place honors.

At the Colorado Indoor Relays at Boulder, Rollin Prather broke two shotput records and Harold Kiser, broad-jumper, and Bill Stuart, half-miler, won firsts as Kansas State unofficially finished second behind Colorado U. Joe Thornton won two seconds in the hurdles.

ROLLIN PRATHER (upper left), freshman shotput and discus star, was second in the Big Six indoor meet. He placed in nearly all major indoor relays. In early spring he won both discus and shotput at the Texas Relays, and broke records at Colorado Indoor Relays. Rodney McClay (upper right) was consistent point winner in pole vault and low hurdles events. Harold Kiser (lower left) jumped 23 feet 4 $\frac{1}{4}$ inches in the Colorado Relays to win and to set a new varsity record. Billy Stuart (lower right), a freshman half-miler, took first at the Colorado Relays, and placed in other major meets including a third in the Big Six meet.

K-State Matmen Win 10 of 17 Meets

The Kansas State wrestling team, participating in its first intercollegiate meets since 1942, opened its 1947 season with five straight wins during a road trip through the Rocky Mountain area. Then the Wildcats went on to finish the season with 10 wins and 7 losses.

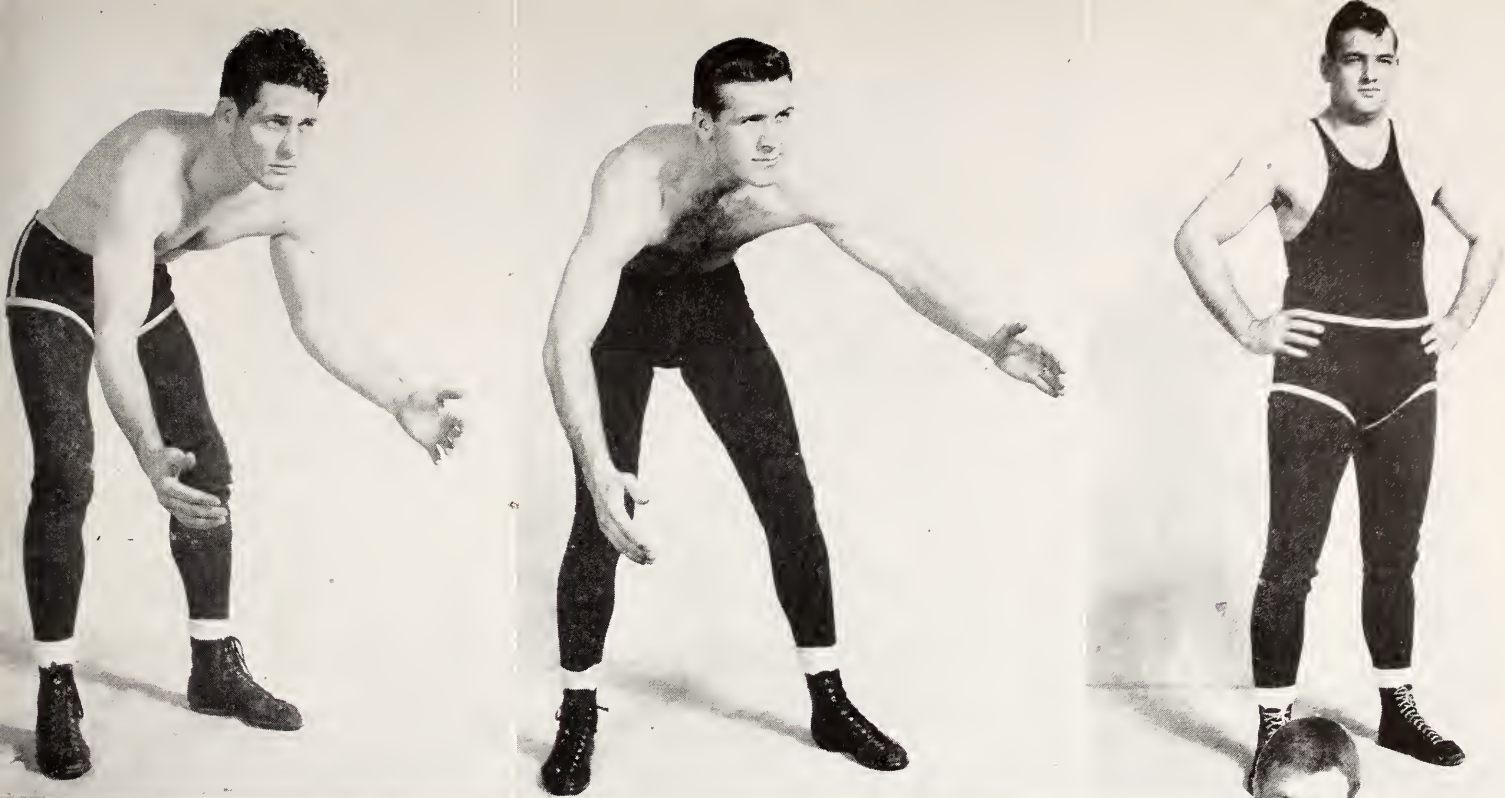

During the Rocky Mountain tour the Wildcat matmen defeated Denver U, Colorado State, Colorado A & M, Colorado U and Wyoming.

Coach B. R. (Pat) Patterson's matmen suffered their first loss in six starts when Oklahoma A & M, the defending national champion, scored a close 15 to 11 victory at Manhattan.

The Wildcats then suffered their second loss of the year when they were beaten by Iowa State at Ames 6 to 24. Nighswonger dropped his first decision in seven bouts and Stan Fansher remained undefeated in the 145 pound class. Bob Johnson and Fansher were the only Cats to win decisions.

Kansas State easily won its eighth match of the season outscoring Southwestern Oklahoma Teachers 20 to 7 at Manhattan. However, the Patterson team lost the two return matches to Southwestern at Weatherford, 13 to 14, and to Oklahoma A & M at Stillwater, 20 to 8. Central Oklahoma Teachers were downed 27 to 3 at Ada.

On a swing to the northern states, the Purple matmen beat Nebraska at Lincoln, 19 to 8, lost to Iowa Teachers at Cedar Rapids, 5 to 28, and Minnesota at Minneapolis, 12 to 14. They defeated Carleton at Northfield, Minn., 27 to 3, to complete the trip with two wins and two losses.

Back home, the Wildcats won their second conference meet in three starts as they took the Oklahoma Sooners into camp by a 17 to 9 count. Charles Nighswonger scored the only fall of the evening.

Place Fourth

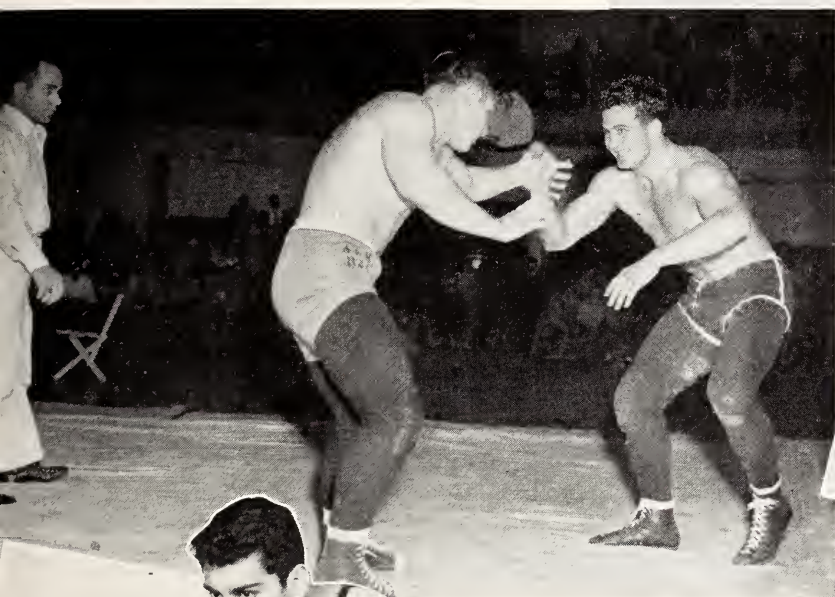

The Colorado Aggies avenged an early season defeat at the hands of K-State as they scored a 15 to 9 win over the Wildcats at La Junta, Colo. The Cats were without the services of three of their outstanding members. Nighswonger and Stan Fansher continued their high scoring pace as both grapplers won their respective matches. Wayne Coltrain, wrestling his first match for K-State, lost a close 2 to 1 decision. The trip was featured by special entertainment by the La Junta Chamber of Commerce.

in Big Six

The Wildcat wrestling team climaxed its season by winding up in fourth place in the Big Six meet at Ames. The Cats won one championship match, one second place and two third place honors in the meet.

Stan Fansher, leading individual Wildcat scorer, lost none of his national prestige as he walked off with the 145-pound crown. Bob Johnson won his first match, but tired in the championship match to lose a close decision. Iowa State finished in first place with Oklahoma, Nebraska and Kansas State placing in order.

K-State won all but one championship in the Missouri Valley AAU tournament held in Nichols Gym.

Fansher was the only matman to compete in the national intercollegiate meet and came home with fifth place in the national tourney.

Golf and Tennis Competition Renewed

M. F. "MIKE" AHEARN, golf coach, watches a perfect putt role into the cup. The jovial Irishman has had charge of Wildcat golf teams ever since the school's first team back in 1927. Only three times since then have the proteges of "Mike" failed to win at least half of their matches.

The 1946 golf team, the first since pre-war days, shot "better than par" during the dual season, but it landed in the "rough" at the Big Six meet held at Lincoln, Nebraska.

After winning seven out of nine dual matches, the K-State golfers were able to place no higher than fifth in the conference meet. Highlight of the dual season occurred when Jay Funk holed out in three on the eighteenth, a par four normally, to give the Wildcats a victory over the Oklahoma Sooners.

Netmen Take One of Seven

The Kansas State tennis team didn't fare out as well as the golfers as they were able to salvage only one victory from seven dual meets. The Wildcat netmen's only win came when they defeated the Nebraska Cornhuskers 4 to 2. Earlier in the season, the Huskers beat the Wildcats by the same score. Members of the squad were Ronald Billings, Robert Curry, Bill Ketterman, LaVerne Schmidt, Roy Sherrill and John Shupe.

Expand Men's Intramural Program

Men's intramurals reached full swing this year following years of relative inactivity during the war. Prof. L. P. Washburn again directed athletic activities for those who did not participate in inter-collegiate sports. The season started with 26 teams entered in intramural football, and a total of 451 students participated in the games. Winner of the Greek division and all-school champion in football was the team of Tau Kappa Epsilon, which won the playoff from the Jr. AVMA, Independent winners, 7-6 in an overtime game.

In the fall golf tournament, Independent Bob Funk won with a one over par. Shelton Marlowe, Bob Batt and Don Dickerson were Greek winners, each shooting a three over par.

Fifty-two teams entered and 684 men participated in the basketball tournament. The Independent Northwesterners won the school championship, defeating the Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity, Greek winners, 31-24.

There were no playoffs for the school championship in horseshoes. Greek singles were won by Harold Price, and doubles by Price and Robert Condon, both of Alpha Gamma Rho. Independent singles winner was Dale Martin, Jr. AVMA, and the Independent doubles winners were Lloyd Jenkinson and Harold Miller, representing the WFAC. Thirty teams competed in volleyball intramurals and Barracks 5 won the school championship, defeating the Greek champions, Beta Theta Pi.

PROF. L. P. WASHBURN is director of the men's intramural program, which provides a rounded program of athletics for men who are not participating in collegiate athletics.

Greek winner in table tennis singles was Dick Lindbloom, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, who defeated Bill Ketterman, WFAC, for the school championship. In doubles, Lindbloom paired with Sonny Chappell to defeat Ketterman and Roy Blook for the doubles championship. Fifty-five teams entered the doubles matches and 116 men entered in the singles.

ACTION WAS FAST in the play-off for the school championship in intramural basketball between Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity, winners of the Greek division, and the North-westers, winners of the Independent division. The North-westers won the game 31-24 and gained the championship title.

Delts Win '46 Season

To determine the intramural winners for the entire season, points are given to a team for each activity they enter; points are added to the score for wins, and a team loses points if they forfeit any games. The Greek 1945-1946 season was won by the Delta Tau Delta fraternity. Independent season winner was the House of Williams. Runnersup were Tau Kappa Epsilon in the Greek division and the Hubba Club in the Independent division.

Last spring, the tennis matches were not completed because of inclement weather. Independent doubles winners were John Lindholm and Bob Barber, WFAC. Greek singles winner was Dale Kirkpatrick, Delta Tau Delta.

In the softball league, the House of Williams, Independent winners, beat the Delta Tau Delta fraternity, Greek winners, for the school championship. Twenty-two teams entered in competition and 353 men participated.

Intramural softball games were played during both sessions of summer school, with eight teams competing each eight week period. WFAC won the first session in a playoff with the Raiders. Campus Courts won the second session.

BEST GOLFERS in the intramural tournament held last fall were Shelton Marlowe, Phi Delta Theta; Bob Funk, Independent; Bob Batt, Beta Theta Pi; and Don Dickerson, Delta Tau Delta. Marlowe, Batt and Dickerson tied with 3 above par for the Greek championship, and Funk, Independent winner, took the all-school championship with his one over par.

McKinney Replaces Geyer

All work and no play would make Jill a dull girl—so, she takes part in intramural sports. The many women who are not enrolled in a physical education course, plus those who are, get a well-planned athletic program through intramurals. Any woman student may take part. Activity takes place during the week, after classes. Teams from the various organized groups compete in the several sports offered during the year.

The women's intramural program has been directed by Miss Katherine Geyer, head of the physical education department, for the past 19 years. However, a new instructor is now in charge. Miss Kathryn McKinney, professor of physical education who came to Kansas State this year, was appointed head of intramurals second semester. Miss Eva Lyman, Miss Ruth Kriehn and Miss Dorothy Lawhead, instructors in the department, assist in directing the sports. Then, too, there is "Mom" Jones, the matron, who answers everybody's questions.

First semester this year the women played softball, competed in a posture contest and entered dancing competition. Basketball started soon after second semester began, but was stalled for a while because of the flu. Swimming and ping-pong tournaments were held simultaneously this spring, followed by volleyball and tennis. A tournament of tenniquits was scheduled at the close of first semester but was cancelled. This sport has not been used since before the war.

Last year's basketball tournament didn't wind up until spring. The Blitz Babes, an independent group of women who do not live in organized houses which have teams, won the title with a score of 22 to 16. The Alpha Delta Pi squad caged second place in the finals.

HAPPY AT HER WORK is Miss Katherine Geyer, head of the Department of Physical Education for women, and intramural director for the past 19 years.

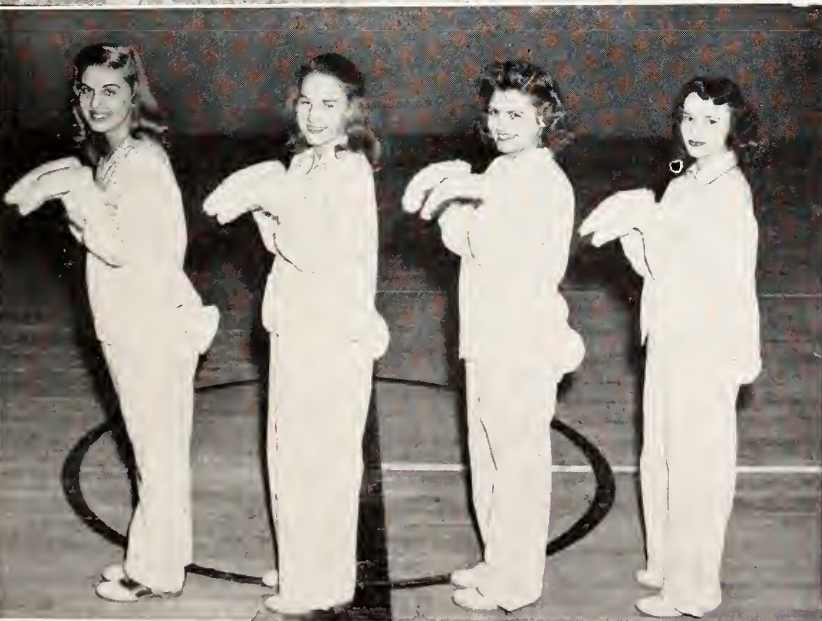

SOFTBALL CHAMPIONS this year are the Blitz Babes. Those in the victorious group are (back row) Louise Petrie, Rosemary Newman, Lavon Crawford, Norma McDowell, Pauline Reed, Helen Gilmore, Betty Gwin. (Front row) Jean Reneau, Jane Rogers and Bobby Calderwood.

Social dance honors went to Beverly Braekveldt and Barbara Howell of Chi Omega in last spring's intramural dance competition. The Pi Phi's (upper right) placed first in folk dancing. They are Helen Lawson Patty, Virginia Buster, Joan Myers, Ann Huddleston, Mildred Allison Duwe, Pat McKinney Howard and Irva Smith. Modern dancing was also won by the Pi Phi's last spring (center right). Nyla Olson, Pat McCrary, Doris Brewer, Mildred Allison Duwe, Joan Myers and Ruth Ann Wolf put on a "Shoo, Pi Phi" skit. The best tap dancers in the spring competition were Betty Wallace, Miriam Hobbs, Ruth Muirhead and Doris Collins from Kappa Kappa Gamma. Their soft shoe number featured night shirts and pandas.

KEIM'S KABANA (above) rated second in this year's softball tourney. Teammates are Ruth Kelling, Marjorie Roepke, Donna Lou Haag, Georganne Fowler, Merline Nutter, Marie Rock, Betty Lou Williams, Helen Taddicken, Corrine Gilchrist and Martha Westfall. Grinning over their volleyball victory last spring are Keim's Mary Rogers, Ethel Rogers, Merline Nutter, Donna Lou Haag, Marie Rock, Georganne Fowler, Corrine Gilchrist and Betty Lou Williams.

BLITZ BABES (below) went to second place in volleyball competition last spring. They are Rosemary Newman, Jean Reneau, Pauline Reed, Delores Krien, Genevera Newman, Jane Rogers, Louise Petrie and Lucille Bohling Harrison.

POSTURE QUEENS from Van Zile Hall are Marilyn Jones, Marian Hurst, Hannah Brown, Alice Schoebel, Norma Wyckoff and Mary Austin, who were members of the winning team.

This fall the sports program started off with an exciting softball tournament. Play was in round-robin fashion. The Blitz Babes came out ahead for the second consecutive year. Keim's Kabana, as last year, pulled into second place.

Last spring, Keim's Kabana won top honors in the volleyball tourney. After a slow start in the round-robin contest, the team gained way and defeated the Blitz Babes in a nip-and-tuck game.

There was close competition in the intramural posture contest this year. Van Zile and Pi Beta Phi teams tied for the first place title. Chi Omega and Alpha Xi women shared second place, while Keim's Kabana and Wesley Foundation rated third. From 20 teams only three women were given the "A" rating for their posture. They are Betty O'Neal, Billy Seward and Olive Brainard.

The Delta Delta Delta women seemed to possess their share of dancing ability this year. They won all of the dances which required group participation. A Kappa Kappa Gamma couple won the social dancing competition, however. In appropriate costume, the Tri Delts walked away with first in folk dancing. Their modern dancers, clad in leotards, ranked top. Dressed as bunny rabbits, their tap dancing team also came out ahead of its competitors. The teams entered in the contests are required to compose their own dances.

THE PI PHI SIX tied with Van Zile for first place in the posture contest. The winners are Betty O'Neal, Nancy Munger, Gwen Wilson, Thelma Jo Stedham, Joan Myers and Helen Lawson Patty.

BEHIND THE SCENES, Ruby Shields, Dale Berger and Shirley Peterson make up for their parts in "I Remember Mama."

Be ye actor, set designer, make-up expert, or prompter, these and other dramatic leanings qualify students for membership in the Kansas State Players. With

Flippo Heads Players

Elizabeth Flippo as president, the Players met monthly to discuss productions and calculate points earned for work on student plays, behind and on the stage. Twenty points are needed for membership in the National Collegiate Players.

Three productions during the regular school year, one in summer school and one-act plays meant a constant stream of rehearsals for the Players.

The first of the fall productions, John Van Druten's Broadway hit, "I Remember Mama," was presented on November 22 and 23 under the direction of Prof. Earl G. Hoover and his student assistant, Ben Stewart. Adapted from Kathryn Forbes' book, "Mama's Bank Account," the show won wide approval and numerous "one of the best in years" reports.

The play was presented from specially constructed stages within the main stage. Two primary and two side stages on rollers were designed by Professor Hoover, Stage Manager Kay Wortman and his crew. Thirteen scenes pulled in and out of the wings enabled the play to continue without pauses.

Properties were assembled by Natalie Herndon and her committee. Costumes of the 1900 period were rented from a New York company. Lack of collar buttons and shoe hooks were some of the worries of the costume crew under Mary Hensen. O. D. Hunt was in charge of lighting.

Six youthful actors portray their roles in a murder play so convincingly it leads to a police investigation in "Out of the Frying Pan."

Stage Mystery—Comedy

The spring production of the 1945-46 dramatic season was a mystery, "The Visitor," given May 3 and 4. Roy Drown directed the cast including Eugenia Beezley, Jim Gillespie, Virginia Harper, Helen Hammond, Dale Berger, Jerry Collins, Woodie Davenport and Ralph Schreiber.

"Out of the Frying Pan" was the summer school vehicle. In the cast were Robert McFadden, Carl Kish, Lucille Mote, Phyllis Martin, Patricia Barclay, Ronald Gray, Inez Strutt, Betty Fitzsimmons, Dale Berger, Craig Bracken, Bob Eschenburg and Jerry Brooks.

"Speak to me, Bud (Woodie Davenport)," pleads Joe Willard (Ralph Schreiber), as Ellen Wood (Helen Hammond) wonders if he is an imposter in "The Visitor," Mamma's Little Helper turns out to be Craig Bracken in "Out of the Frying Pan." As young Broadway hopefuls gather 'round, Craig explains his culinary triumphs.

"Mama" Makes a Hit

With a tongue-twisting mouthful of Norwegian accent, Shirley Peterson conquered and won an early fall audience as the star of "I Remember Mama," adapted from Kathryn Forbes' novel, "Mama's Bank Account." Portraying capably the lovable and understanding mother of a Norwegian-American family living in San Francisco, Miss Peterson led a polished cast through three acts of family life as narrated by Katrin (Kathleen Kerr), the oldest daughter, who aspires to be a writer.

Molly Hoover, five-year-old daughter of Director Earl G. Hoover, made her first stage appearance in the role of Dagmar, youngest daughter of the family. Ruth Pickett, a grade student, had the part of Dagmar grown four years older. Another first nighter was "Kilroy," who had the role of Elizabeth, the family cat. Christine (Mary Biberstein), Nels (Charles Walker) and Papa (Dale Berger) completed the family.

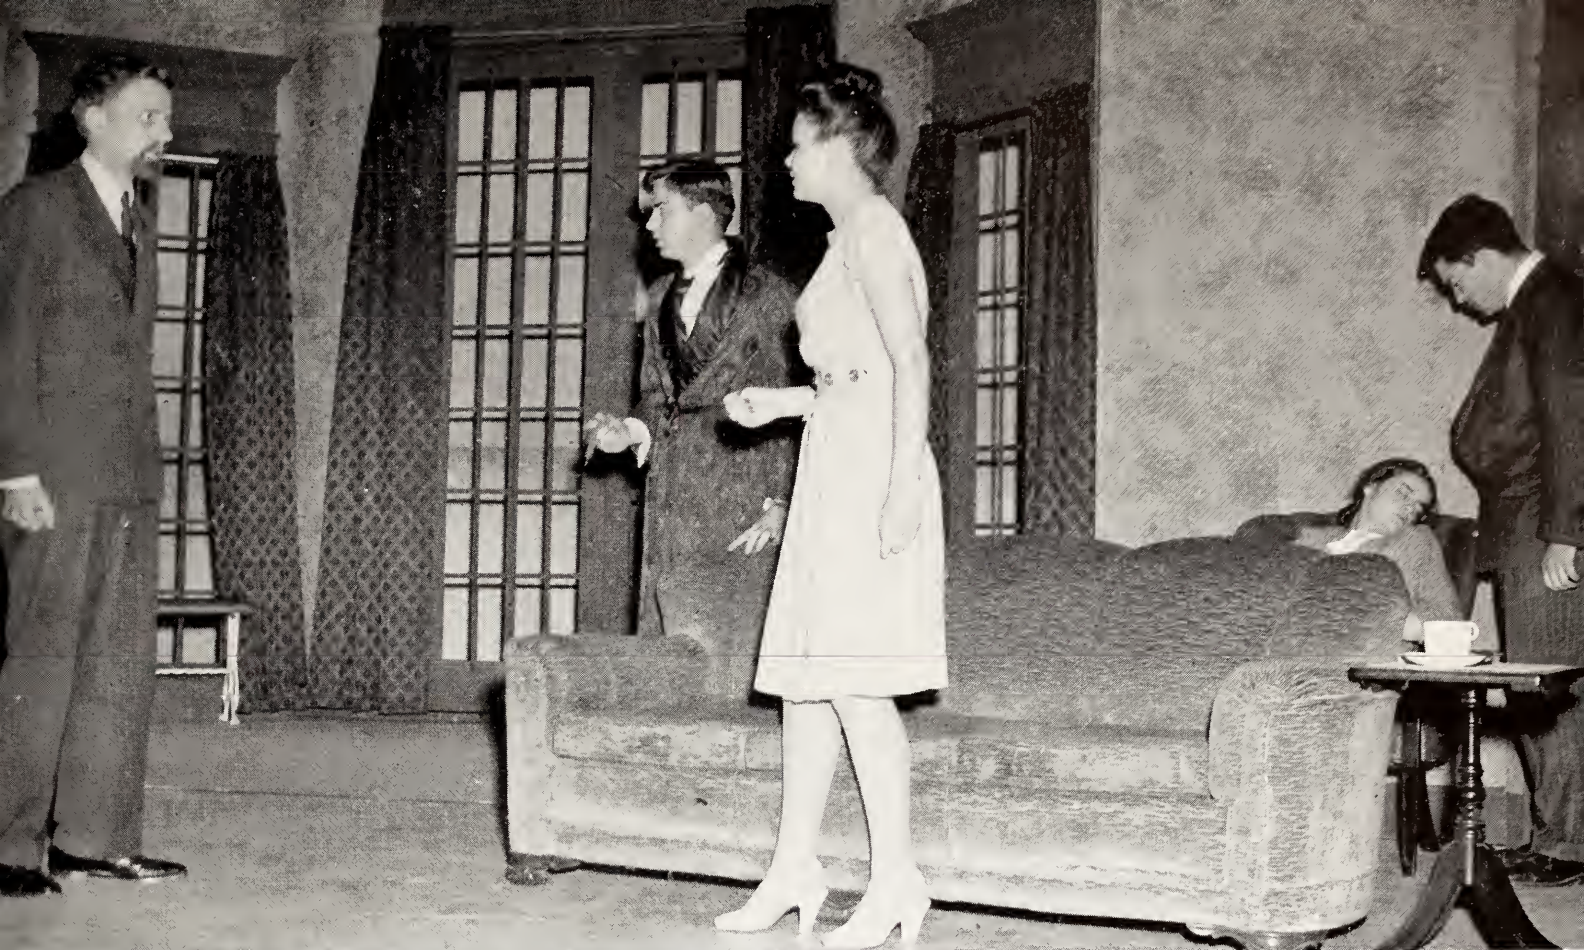

The Big Black Norwegian Uncle Chris (Marvin Altman) gave constant threat to Mama's sisters, Aunt Jenny (Ruby Shields), Aunt Sigrid (Janey Hackney) and Aunt Trina (Phyllis Blacksten). Bashful Peter Thorkelson (Wilbur Johnson) sought Trina's hand and a dowry from Uncle Chris.

Other members of the cast were Bill Rossiter, Helen Hammond, C. J. Hartory, Robert Kelley, Rebecca Lamoreaux, Elizabeth Wilcox, Ralph Folgelman, Rosemary Leonard, Kenneth Jennison, Louise Beim, Lavon Crawford, Elizabeth Flippo and Kenneth Rowland.

A WORRIED MAMA (top) is temporarily stopped in the hospital corridor, but she eventually manages to sneak by the nurse. (Left) Elizabeth, the cat, makes a remarkable recovery and five-year-old Dagmar, played by Director Hoover's daughter, carries her in to Mama. Death Stalks Indians

A murderous parody of a nursery rhyme provided thrills and chills in the Kansas State Player production of "Ten Little Indians," a mystery drama by Agatha Christie. The play had a two-night stand, February 28 and March 1.

Indian Island welcomed ten week-end visitors who were promptly accused by a mysterious voice on a phonograph record of serious crimes. As the drama unfolded the unknown executor dealt out death to each guest. One by one the ten symbolic plaster Indians on the mantel toppled to the floor.

Sole survivors of the nightmarish week-end were Phillip Lombard (William Scott) and Vera Claythorne (Helen Hammond) who deduced the murderer was the insane Sir Wargrave (Max Hollinger). The cast also included Marvin Altman, William Rossiter, Edgar Engelken, Beverly Pribble, Herbert Langer, Paul Kuckelman, Virginia Christopher and Robert McFadden. Director Earl G. Hoover was assisted by Kathleen Kerr.

HELEN HAMMOND AND WILLIAM SCOTT question Max Hollinger as Marvin Altman stands by the latest "Ten Little Indians" victim, Beverly Pribble (top). Beverly Pribble finds herself suspected of murder and closely questioned by fellow suspects (center). Only six people remain alive on Indian Island. Therefore, the murderer has to be in this group (right).

Record Enrollment in Radio Courses

Boasting a record enrollment of over 150 students in the radio section of the Department of Speech, classes were opened in new radio fields. Guided by Mr. and Mrs. Richard Mall, instructors in speech, the students are taught the principles involved in the presentation of radio programs.

With the larger enrollment it was possible to obtain a greater amount of air time for student programs. Also, the listening audience of the College station will be greatly increased according to the new KSAC license which authorized the quadrupling of its power.

Included on the passing parade of student programs were "Wildcat Sports Parade," "What's New," "Radio Workshop," and "The World Today."

KSAC, owned and operated by Kansas State College, shares radio time with WIBW of Topeka. The station is operated by the Extension Division, with L. L. Longsdorf as station and publicity director. Grant Salisbury is program director and is assisted by Dick Cech. Operating the control room is chief engineer Bernard Holbert, who is aided by Mrs. Holbert and student assistant Daniel Reed.

RADIO STUDENTS CONDUCT and transcribe special events interviews in Rec Center (below). These interviews are carried on all over the campus and at the Canteen. College students are asked to express their views on questions of current importance.

Tucker Ranks First in Debate Tourney

With a record turnout for the debate and forensic team, Dr. Howard Hill, head of the Department of Speech, was able to field a complete team to represent K-State. Assisted by Mrs. Marian Mull and Miss Ann Allison, Dr. Hill looked to the future by teaching the fundamentals of debate to all of the aspirants.

The question of the day, "An Anglo-American alliance against Russia to prevent further expansion of territory and influence" presented the debaters with a question of world importance. Debators Phyllis Johnson, Shirley Mann, James Tucker, John Tasker and Leonard Banowetz were chosen to represent the College at the Missouri Valley Debate Tournament held at the University of Arkansas. Banowetz was also selected as Kansas State's representative in extemporaneous speech and oration.

High honors for the year went to James Tucker when he was ranked first speaker of the negative debate teams in the Missouri Valley Tournament, and four of the five other K-State debators also won on the negative teams. One out of five won on the affirmative.

Active once again on the campus was Pi Kappa Delta, national honorary fraternity for forensics. Sponsored by Dr. Hill, the organization encourages forensics among college students. New members this year were Phyllis Johnson, Shirley Mann and James Tucker.

College Orchestra and

"New" is the keyword describing the College Band. Headed by a new director, Jean Hedlund, the band has expanded to new proportions. In addition to being a good marching group, it has developed into an excellent concert band as well.

Director Hedlund came to Kansas State from Iowa, where he had served as the marching band director for the Naval Pre-Flight school. He is an instructor in the music department.

Clad in the traditional wine and gray uniforms, the band helped students get into the swing of things at pep rallies, football and basketball games throughout the year. The versatile group also made many appearances in parades, concerts and other campus activities.

With their twirling batons and vivacious steps, the strutting drum major and drum majorette added another colorful feature to the band picture.

The organization participated in the annual Spring Concert given in May during National Music Week, together with the A Cappella Choir and the Glee Clubs.

Band Expand Activities

The small College Orchestra of last year has expanded into the College-Civic Orchestra this year. The new title was assumed when several townspeople—high school students, housewives and businessmen—joined the orchestra.

Under the direction of Prof. Luther Leavengood, head of the Department of Music, the orchestra brought a greater enjoyment and appreciation of music to students and townspeople.

Among its many activities, the College-Civic Orchestra presented a program March 18, with Charles William Stratton, associate professor of music, as the featured soloist.

During National Music Week in May, when schools and organizations throughout America paid homage to music and its creators, the orchestra participated in a concert given together with the A Cappella Choir and the Glee Clubs.

Although the orchestra has grown to a membership of approximately 50, plans are being formulated for the orchestra to expand into a still larger organization.

DRUM MAJOR and exhibition twirler with the K-State band is Danny Ryan.

Leavengood Directs A Cappella Choir

A concert during Religious Emphasis Week marked the first public appearance of the A Cappella choir this year. When the Ways and Means Committee of the Kansas Legislature visited the campus in February, the choir took a part in the program in their honor.

At the solemn and traditional Christmas Vespers, the A Cappella choir caroled to an audience that overflowed the auditorium.

Climaxing the activities of the choir was the concert given in conjunction with the Glee Club and Orchestra during National Music Week in May.

The 85 members of the A Cappella choir are selected from the student body as a whole and represent many departments of the College. The choir is under the direction of Prof. Luther Leavengood.

Glee Clubs Plan New Activities

The College Women's and Men's Glee Clubs have warbled melodiously throughout the year to bring enjoyment to an audience of students and townspeople.

The College Women's Glee Club, directed by Miss Hilda Grossman, associate professor of voice, participated in the annual Christmas Vespers and Easter Chapel. The songsters also presented half-hour radio programs over KSAC. There were approximately 40 women students in the group.

Plans for next year may include "a little operetta," Miss Grossman disclosed.

The Men's Glee Club, with its membership totaling in the sixties, participated in the annual Spring Concert, held in the College Auditorium April 21, and sang at the traditional Easter Chapel. J. Forrest West, associate professor of music, is the director of the Men's Glee Club. Mr. West stated that a tour is being planned for the group for next year.

Student Publications Board Granted

PROF. RALPH LASHBROOK, head of the Department of Journalism, is chairman of the Board of Directors of Student Publications, Inc.

Student Publications, Inc., is the new name for the Board of Student Publications which was granted a charter in Kansas as a nonprofit-making organization.

Prof. R. R. Lashbrook, head of the Department of Journalism, is the chairman of the Board of Directors. Other members of the Board are Prof. H. W. Davis, Prof. C. J. Medlin, Betty Carr, JoAnn Stoecker and Patt Fairman. The Board of Directors consists of two faculty members appointed by the President and three student representatives who are chosen by the student body each spring during Student Council election.

The duties of the Board of Directors of Student Publications, Inc., is to elect editors and business managers of The Collegian and Royal Purple and pass on all contracts in connection with these publications.

Any student in College who can meet the scholastic requirements is eligible for a position as editor or business manager of either publication. Students are selected on the basis of previous experience and personal qualifications.

Gold "K" keys are awarded to staff members of The Collegian and the Royal Purple by Student Publications, Inc. Students receive these awards on the merit of work they have done on the respective publications.

THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS of Student Publications, Inc., discuss plans for Kansas State publications. The members are Betty Carr, JoAnn Stroecker, Prof. Ralph Lashbrook, Prof. C. J. Medlin, Prof. H. W. Davis, Patricia Fairman.

Charter as Corporation

Thirty-six members of the Royal Purple and 18 members of The Collegian staff received "K" keys this year. Six students received awards for work on both publications. The presentation of awards was made at the annual Publications Banquet which was held at the Country Club in May.

Awards for work on both publications were made to Nancy Diggle, LeRoy Allman, Doris Brewer, Barbara Bross, Shannon Nickelson and Marjorie Setter.

C. J. Medlin is the Graduate Manager of Student Publications. "Chief" advises the staffs of The Collegian and the Royal Purple and takes care of the business and advertising angles.

Report KSC News

College news outlets besides student publications are the Industrialist, the News Bureau and the Kansas Magazine.

The Industrialist is the official college newspaper and is edited by Prof. R. R. Lashbrook, head of the journalism department. He is assisted by Mrs. Jean McLain, Fred Parris and Ted Peterson. The paper is published weekly and serves as a source of campus, alumni and class reunion news. A column entitled "Among the Alumni" gives information of former students and graduates and is written by Kenney Ford, Alumni Secretary.

Another important news source is the Kansas State College News Bureau under the directorship of Prof. R. R. Lashbrook. Ted Peterson is in charge of gathering the material; Fred Parris is sports publicity director and Arleta Barber is the secretary. The Bureau serves as a clearing house for information about the College. Releases are sent to the three major press associations and individual local newspapers. Wire press coverage of campus events and the distribution of mats and pictures about the College is handled by the Bureau.

Poems and prose about or by Kansans and former Kansans appear in the Kansas Magazine. The staff of the magazine is headed by Prof. R. W. Conover of the English department. Professor Lashbrook is chairman of the Kansas Magazine board.

Collegian Published in Summer School

The staffs of The Kansas State Collegian were busy during the hot summer months putting out a weekly four-page newspaper.

For the first time in the history of the College, the Collegian was published through two sessions of summer school. Editor-in-chief Nancy Diggle worked both sessions directing the paper's editorial policy and compiling stories to fill the columns.

During the first session of summer school Mrs. Marie Webb served as assistant editor; Helen Simmons, society editor and Wilma Lisher, copy desk editor. The business staff was headed by LeRoy Allman, business manager, and Marjorie Setter, assistant business manager.

The second session of summer school brought a change in the editorial and business staff of The Collegian. Nancy Diggle remained editor-in-chief but DuWayne Grimes became assistant editor; Bill Christian, sports editor; Mrs. Jean Gibbs McLain, copy desk editor and Harriet Wooley, society editor. On the business staff, LeRoy Allman retained his position as business manager, but Yvonne Sturgeon was the new assistant business manager.

During the first session of summer school "Watson's Wisdom," a column by Gerald Wexler, appeared weekly.

THE KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN was guided through two sessions of summer school by capable Nancy Diggle (above). A shortage of reporters made editing the College newspaper a difficult job.

Collegian Published

Beginning with the fall semester The Collegian returned to its pre-war status and was published twice a week. Due to a shortage of news print the paper had to be published in two printing shops. The Tuesday edition was printed at the Mercury Chronicle and the Friday edition came out of the Tribune News office.

The arrangement of having The Collegian printed in two places proposed difficult problems for the editorial and advertising staffs. It was impossible to use the same format or family of type for the paper; therefore the two papers took on a different appearance.

Another problem that confronted the staff was the fact that stories could not be held over from one issue to the next because the paper would be printed in a different shop. The news print shortage also made it impossible to print more than a few six-page papers during the school year.

on Bi-Weekly Basis

The advertising staff of The Collegian, guided by LeRoy Allman and assisted by Marjorie Setter, didn't have any trouble getting ads during the fall semester. The only trouble they had was limiting the amount of advertising copy they could use in one issue.

The Collegian reporting was done by students in industrial writing, advanced reporting and collegian journalism courses. Since the paper was published twice a week the students had to dig twice as hard to get news.

Some of the important running stories of the fall semester were the formation of campus political parties, Manhattan Artist Series, Homecoming, Memorial Chapel fund, and the Veteran's commissary. The top stories of the year were both in the sports world, when the underdog K-State basketball team defeated the Oklahoma University team at Kansas City and when Hobbs Adams resigned as athletics director and head football coach.

One of the most popular features of the first semester Collegian was the humor column "Some Might Like It," accredited to the fictitious Harold Roth, but written by Ted Peterson.

ADVERTISING AND OTHER BUSINESS MATTERS on The Collegian are taken care of by LeRoy Allman (above), the business manager during the first semester.

STORIES FOR THE COLLEGIAN are pounded out by journalism students in the typing room of Kedzie Hall. Reporters visit all departments of the College getting material for copy.

Collegian Editorials

THE ADVERTISING STAFF of the second semester Collegian was headed by business manager Marjorie Setter.

The second semester Collegian with a circulation of approximately 7,000 among students and faculty members, continued on its twice-a-week basis and was still printed on Tuesday at the Mercury-Chronicle and on Friday at the Tribune News.

A change in The Collegian took place in the editorial and business staffs. Jack James was appointed editor-in-chief to succeed Helen Peterson, first semester editor. LeRoy Allman was selected as assistant editor and Doris Brewer was appointed to take care of the society news in the column entitled "Social Whirl." Dick Dodderidge continued the sports column "Chalk Talk," which was later turned over to John Huenefeld. Gordon Wilson, Yvonne Sturgeon Allman and Douglas Gary made up the remainder of the editorial staff. The business department of The Collegian was directed by Marjorie Setter during the second semester. Roger Medlin was appointed as assistant advertising manager and other members of the advertising staff were Ralph Salisbury, Barbara Kellogg, Marjorie Setter and Ruth Knight.

The top running stories in the second semester Collegian were the Royal Purple Beauty Ball, the Engineers' Open House, St. Pat's Prom and the flu epidemic. Some of the single top stories of the spring semester were the record enrollment, new KSAC transmitter and Kansas State's defeat of the Kansas University basketball team which resulted in a student holiday. The most humorous edition of the Collegian was the April Fool paper sponsored by Sigma Delta Chi, national honorary fraternity for men in journalism.

For the twenty-sixth year Kansas State journalists went to Topeka to put out the Kansas Day edition of the Topeka Daily Capital. The staff was headed by Helen Peterson, editor; Jack James and Tess Montgomery, associate editors; Nancy Diggle, city editor; Dick Dodderidge, sports editor, and Doris Yeoman, society editor. A staff of twenty other K-State journalists covered beats, wrote all local stories and prepared editorial features. Many of the features printed were stories K-Staters wrote which originated in their home towns.

Letters to Moe in Royal Purple Show

THE PLANNING AND ORGANIZATION of the 1947 Royal Purple was done by editor Tess Montgomery, who chose the theme, appointed the staff, checked copy and directed the editorial staff.

In the 1947 Royal Purple, letters addressed to Moe and signed by Archie describe to the K-Stater, who remembered the campus as it was before the war, the changes that have taken place at the Alma Mater since his time.

Tess Montgomery, editor, highlighted the annual with views of the changes, new students and plans that will soon be Kansas State history. The introduction and division pages carry out the theme of Archie's tale to Moe. Archie, in real life, is Paul DeWeese, business manager of the Royal Purple.

The yearbook has many more pages than in the recent years of paper shortages, and it carries a complete story of campus events, organizations and classes in pictorial review. Pages of color pictures provide bright spots that had been lacking from the book for several years.

The 1946 Royal Purple, edited by Dorothy Cochran, received an All-American Honor rating from the National Scholastic Press Association. This was the eleventh consecutive year that the Royal Purple received the highest award given by the N.S.P.A.

This year's annual contains four sections, directed by four members of the editorial staff. The administration section was headed by Virginia Gingrich; activities section, Dorothea Ward; organizations, Shirley Baker, and class section, Eva Willmeth. Editors of the divisions chose capable students to gather and write copy for them.

Changes in Campus Life

In addition to the editorial staff, a large office crew spent many hours working in the Royal Purple office, indexing, typing picture identifications, issuing picture receipts and doing general office work. Office workers were directed by Tom Moreen, office manager, who also planned the decorations for the 1947 Royal Purple Beauty Ball.

The soliciting and selling of advertising, distributing the yearbook and arranging for the Royal Purple Beauty Ball were planned by Paul DeWeese, business manager, and a staff of capable assistants. Assistants to the business manager were Max Lingafelter, Marjorie Setter and LeRoy Allman.

The pictures that tell the story of the changes in Kansas State life were taken by Shannon Nickelson and his photography staff, Walter Warren, assistant photographer, and Doris Brewer, who made appointments and arranged the schedules for pictures.

Besides the regular photography used in the Royal Purple, small sketches illustrating phases of campus life are used on the division pages and in the story to Moe.

THE ADVERTISING on the pages of the Royal Purple and the preparations for the Royal Purple Beauty Ball were supervised by business manager Paul DeWeese.

Collegiate 4-H Publishes Annual

A resume of 4-H Club activities at Kansas State and throughout Kansas is written up in Who's Whoot, the 4-H yearbook, a project of the Collegiate 4-H Club.

The book features club activities, state 4-H leaders and outstanding state and national 4-H winners.

Approximately 2,000 copies of the publication were distributed to schools, libraries and farm families throughout the state. The annual is financed by advertising and money paid by each county for material about their clubs and leaders on the county page. Advertising is obtained from firms all over Kansas.

The editor-in-chief of Who's Whoot is Lola Warden of Jetmore. Lola is a senior in Home Economics and Education. She was on the staff of the publication last year.

A new method of electing staff members for Who's Whoot has been inaugurated. Formerly, they were elected by the Collegiate 4-H Club. This year the present staff of the yearbook and J. Harold Johnson, state 4-H club leader, will choose next year's staff. Another new policy that was adopted this year is to give the editor of Who's Whoot two hours of credit in industrial journalism.

staff. In this way the publication ordinarily has the benefit of experienced personnel.

Because of the two-year lapse in publication during the war, the Engineer was forced to start with an inexperienced staff. In spite of this, Jess Boughton and Lloyd Durow, editor and business manager, not only saw the Engineer meet each deadline, but gain its reinstatement as a member in good standing in Engineering College Magazines Associated after its first edition.

Highlighting the year's activities was the ECMA's national convention in Chicago, attended by staff members Raymond Schneider and John Green, who were later elected to serve as editor and business manager for the second semester. With experience gained from previous editions, the Engineer improved steadily during the year, and once again, as in former years, is a contender for national honors as an outstanding publication for student engineers.

The Engineer, financed by local and national advertisements and an apportionment from the engineering seminar fee, is sent to many high schools, colleges and manufacturers, as well as to each student in the engineering division. Positions on the staff are open to all students and the features are written by the students. The editor and business manager are elected by the staff annually.

JESS BOUGHTON AND LLOYD DUROW discuss policies of the Kansas State Engineer, official publication of the engineering school. They served as editor and business manager, respectively, for the fall semester.

Returned to the campus after almost two years of idleness due to the war was the Kansas State Engineer, official student publication of the School of Engineering and Architecture. Upon student initiative, the reactivation of the publication started last summer when a group of engineers met with Assistant Dean M. A. Durland and Prof. Linn Helander, faculty sponsors, to formulate plans for the fall issue.

The Engineer, published eight times yearly, is edited, managed and published by students in engineering. Since the average engineer rarely studies in the field of journalism, a new staff member must gain his knowledge and experience through the guidance of upperclassmen on the

Ag Publications

Published on the campus for 21 years, the Kansas Agricultural Student was the spirit and center of news for the ag students. Forced into retirement in 1943, a wide gap was left in the activities of the "Aggies." But now, with the start of the new era in post-war education, the Ag Student has once again taken its place among campus publications.

Published four times yearly by the students of the School of Agriculture, the Ag Student serves not only as an additional reference for students in process and technical reports, but also to unify the students in the division and advance the interests of agriculture.

Elect Editors

Each student in agriculture has a voice in the government of the publication since the editors are elected each semester by the Agricultural Association, an organization to which each ag student gains membership when he enrolls. The Association was fortunate in finding two capable men to shoulder the responsibility of the reactivation. Selected for the fall term were Lewis Schafer, editor, and Floyd Rolf, business manager.

Elbert Macy, experiment station editor, served as faculty advisor throughout the year. John Tasker was elected to serve as editor for the second semester and Floyd Rolf continued as business manager.

CAREFULLY EDITING COPY for the Kansas Agricultural Student, publication of the Ag school, are John Tasker, second semester editor, and Floyd Rolf, year-long business manager. Both positions are filled by election from the Agricultural Association.

Since the magazine is a student publication, it presents an opportunity for the individual to gain actual experience in the field of journalism in writing, editing or managing. The ag student became partially self-supporting in the past few years by accepting advertisements, both national and local. This is supplemented by funds from the seminar fee.

The publication, however, not only serves the individual student, but many others. In addition to the copy furnished each student in agriculture, over 600 copies are sent to high schools and vocational schools throughout the state to provide current information for their students.

Train to Defend Peace

COLONEL A. G. HUTCHINSON took over the command of the College R.O.T.C. this year. He replaced Major Delos Taylor, who had headed the corps since 1944.

Under a new and enlarged staff, including all veterans of World War II, the Reserve Officers' Training Corps at Kansas State turned toward postwar plans for training officers. A new type of training was necessary, a method that would prepare officers for the new Army, a highly mobile, hard-hitting, scientifically equipped force. New equipment, some tried only in the last days of combat, and some proven only on the testing grounds, is being provided. Rockets, recoilless weapons, and self-propelled guns are only a small part of the equipment that is scheduled to arrive. The latest intelligence reports are available to acquaint the future officer in types of battles.

A veteran of 30 years' service, Col. A. G. Hutchinson assumed command of the Corps upon Major Delos Taylor's return to civilian life. Experienced in this type of work, Colonel Hutchinson surrounded himself with a staff composed of officers and noncommissioned officers, most of whom have seen service overseas and in combat in the war. On his commissioned staff are Major Chester Conrad, and Captains Sidney Cone, Silas Barton, Lewis Copeland, Ralph Murphy and Joe Murphy. Serving on his noncommissioned staff are Master Sergeants James McAdams and James Bolton, First Sergeant Kenneth Holland, Technical Sergeants Roy Wilson and Glenn Purselly, and Sergeant James Aufderheide.

Corps Sprouts Wings

Keeping pace with the modern era, K-State sprouted wings in September, becoming one of the first colleges to receive an air corps unit in the postwar expansion of R.O.T.C. Under this branch the student officer may specialize in Aircraft Maintenance, Engineering, Armament, Supply, Communications, Transportation, Meteorology, Personnel Administration, or Statistical Control. In his final year the cadet officer may also receive some actual flight training.

The well-established Infantry and Anti-Aircraft units continued to expand also. With the doughboy now a highly trained technician, additional time is needed to train him throughout his own branch and in the use of artillery and tanks. The rapid advancements in the use of radar in detection and firing keep the AAA unit busy the year around. Procurement of additional units for the corps in Veterinary Medicine and the Signal Corps may materialize in the coming year. Should this become a reality, the group will then include five branches.

Cadet Officers Resume Command

Under the new War Department ruling allowing former servicemen to enroll in advanced R.O.T.C., the Corps is once again led by the Cadet Officers. A far cry from pre-war days, many of the Cadet Officers are combat veterans with long years of service behind them.

After remaining dormant for the greater part of the war, Advanced R.O.T.C. was reactivated at Kansas State in the spring of 1946 when the Interim Program was put into effect. This program was created to bridge the changes in training for the Reserve Officer from the pre-war to the post-war plan. Having served its purpose, all future advanced students will enter under the new program and the Interim will be carried until those men who enrolled in it have been commissioned.

Under the new plan further inducements will be offered to qualified men so that during the years to come a high standard of officer material will be produced. Additional training to be offered in summer camps and better pay are but a few of the attractions offered to the future reserve officer so that he will keep in a high degree of training after graduation.

Due to the advance in scientific warfare during the second World War, a complete revision of training for the future officer was necessitated. Under the ever-changing problem of tactics and material the new program must fit an officer to be flexible for the changes and for a precise knowledge of weapons and their use. With this mission, the Cadet Corps is being molded into a group of men who will have the qualities and attributes essential to their progressive and continued development as Officers.

Busy Years for Basics

Benefiting by the experience of the Cadet Officers, the men enrolled in Elementary R.O.T.C. can expect to receive excellent training under the new program. The first two years of training are now classified as Elementary and upon successful completion of them the student becomes eligible for Advanced and eventually for his commission.

In his first two years the student becomes acquainted with the organization, administration, and history common to all branches of the service. He learns to drill, to handle individual weapons, and to work as a member of a crew on larger weapons. These years must provide a thorough background for the student to qualify for advancement.

In modern warfare the vast knowledge of all arms of the service that is necessary presents a difficult task for the instructors, but one that is carried out quite successfully.

During the week the Corps can be seen drilling under the command of the Cadet Officers and non-commissioned officers of the Corps. However, this is but a fraction of the time that is spent in training. Regular classes and lectures and outside assignments keep the cadet busy. There are gun drills to be learned and practiced.

Queens Reign Again

Along with the many hours of training, the Corps still finds time for their own honorary organizations. Returning to the campus was Scabbard and Blade and the Cadet Officers Club.

Once again the Military Ball highlighted the year for all the Corps with the traditional selection of the Honorary Cadet Colonel to reign as queen.

The summer of 1947 will see the re-establishment of the summer camps for the students of advanced R. O. T. C. Although the places have not as yet been designated, the Cadet officers will be sent for six weeks each summer to a camp to receive training in their selected branch.

RGANI

DEAR MOE:

So you want to know what goes with the old small talk club we organized at the Palace Drug? I hate to tell you this, Moe, but that club is dead. Smothered to death by too many more official organizations.

Wherever there's room to sit down there's an organization. The place crawls with organizers. There is talk of declaring open season on anyone with a subscription blank.

It isn't necessary any more to shout, "Let him in, he's a member!" He has to be. It's a natural.

They started by reactivating all the organizations as far back as anyone could remember. When those ran out, new reasons were found for weekly meetings around a light bulb.

Fraternities and sororities scurried all over the place pledging new members. When they finally counted noses they found that either they had too many members or somebody had too many noses. The largest number of students in the history of the College were living in Greek houses. All but one of the frats got their houses back. Some of the fraternities were inactive during the war, but all of them are going strong now.

Church groups grew to the point where church buildings appeared to have been built too small. A branch of one church was established in the Sosna theatre building in Aggieville to accommodate the church-going crowd until the new All-Faith Memorial Chapel to be built on the campus is open for business.

Then came politics. Parties were formed, reformed and discarded. Independents and Greeks joined forces in the All-College Party. That didn't last long. They soon broke into the usual party lines. Party platforms promised everything short of the goose of golden egg fame. After all the hubbub, less than a third of the student body voted. Offices were split about 50-50 between the two parties left in the running.

A committee for planning campus activities was formed. Their goal—to light the flame under school spirit. They asked for funds to make a trip to a nearby summer camp where they could set the fire in pleasant surroundings. "Funds?" someone said, "That's money!" and the flame was lighted.

A veterans' organization cropped out practically overnight. Two vets got together and bingo, they had 1,100 members on their roll. More are joining all the time. They hold forth bi-weekly in Willard Hall, in that lecture room where you learned that the chemical sign for heat was the Greek letter delta.

This vet outfit got up in arms about the cost of living (as who didn't), but they did something about it. They formed a co-op grocery store. Sold shares on the thing to finance it. Now they have a full-fledged store which cuts the monthly grocery bill some.

Since more than half of the married vets have children, the organization started a nursery school down on North Fourteenth. The children are left there from 1 to 5 in the afternoons. It gives the women time to work to supplement that meager 90.

Every outfit from the Block and Bridle to the Society for the Preservation of Barber Shop Quartettes was reactivated. Reconversion might have been slow in the nation's industry, but as for organization here at school it was a blitz.

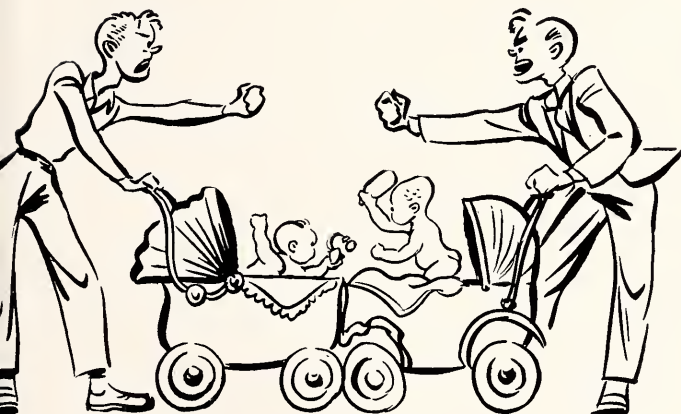

You will be glad to hear that there are still a few organizations not recognized officially by the College. Some gather at Slim's, some at cokeries. Others at just any place where eight good men can sit at a table and try to make an inside straight.

Of course each department on the hill had their own exclusive organization. Since you speak Spanish you will be a potential member of Club Cervantes. They meet every now and then and try to pin down the meaning of que. Since we have sudamericanos enrolled here, the group has international aspects.

The Wampus Cats and Purple Pepsters carried on in their usual manner. There were times when they may have received more house for their cheer-leading than the school's football team for their not-leading. They introduced card tricks to the cheering section this year. You know, where everyone holds a large colored card, a coke, a program and a half-eaten hotdog and then at a signal tries to juggle all items and come out with the card right side up on top their head. I'm afraid whatever we were trying to spell out may have looked more like scrambled hotdog, hamburger, coke and so forth.

I guess you can come on home any time, Moe. I've found you a room at Sixth and Colorado. It isn't much, but you can call it home. You're not proud.

Amistad and Amicossembly Provide

To 120 Kansas State students, Amistad, an organization for Independents living in unorganized houses, has a meaning of friendship.

First organized in 1944 in response to a growing need for unified social activity among Independents, Amistad has successfully fulfilled this purpose for the past three years.

Open to both men and women, the organization was formed to provide for the social and recreational welfare of graduate and undergraduate students who were not living in an organized house or social fraternity. It also aims to present to these students the important "all-school" problems in order that they may take an active part in functions, promoting the progress and development of the student body.

Acting much the same as an organized house, Amistad's leaders for the year were: president, Saul Narotsky; vice-president, Philip Haims; treasurer, Raymond Hogg; and secretary, Charlotte Knight. Faculty sponsors were Miss Margaret Raffington and Prof. F. A. Kummerow.

A Halloween Tacky Party held in Recreation Center started the ball rolling for the year's social activities. November, with its beautiful harvest moon and starlit sky, made perfect decorations for Amistad's hayrack ride and weiner roast. The Christmas formal held in Thompson Hall was complete with lighted trees, tinsel, rhythm by Vaughn Bolton's orchestra and mistletoe!

Social Activities for Independents

For the 200 Kansas State women living in Independent organized houses, Amicossembly functions as a social and campus activities governing body.

Composed of the president and social chairman from each of the 14 Independent women's houses, Amicossembly held meetings the first Wednesday of each month. The meeting place rotated among the houses which are members of the organization. Amicossembly gives the houses an opportunity to work out their problems together and take part in campus activities as a group.

Regular elections are held in May for the succeeding year. This year's president was Georganne Fowler of Keim's Kabana. Norma Thompson of Clark's Gables was vice-president and she was succeeded by Laura Belle Overley of Hill's Heights at the end of the first semester. Betty Nordyke of Arcadia was secretary-treasurer. Miss Jean Hummel was faculty sponsor.

Campaign for Housing Facilities

Most of the work of the organization was focused this year on increasing the number of organized women's houses on the campus.

The Villa, 1635 Laramie, was newly organized. The urgent need for women's housing was chiefly due to the fact that many rooms occupied by women during the war years were taken over by returning veterans.

The purchase of the Waltham apartments by the College helped relieve the situation, but facilities for women's housing will probably remain scarce until more college dormitories are built.

Provides Social Activities

Midweek hour dances were held in Rec Center before the Christmas holidays. The women and their dates danced to the music of Bob Armstrong beneath an array of kites, balloons and streamers at the spring formal in early March at the Avalon ballroom. Special feature of the evening was the crowning of the W. G. O. C. (windiest guy on campus), James Fitzgerald. A man from each Independent house was nominated and entered in a balloon-blowing contest. The first candidate to break the balloon became the winner and the windy owner of the W. G. O. C. title.

Members of Amicossembly, in carrying out the Homecoming spirit, worked together to transform Clark's Gables for the decorations contest. From behind cornstalk blinds Wildcat hunters took careful aim at Jayhawks. It was "Open Season on Jayhawks."

To keep the treasury in working order, the women sold sandwiches and cup cakes at organized houses one evening during the first semester.

ONE OF THE ORGANIZED HOUSES for Independent men, the House of Williams, provides not only living quarters but also club-like recreation facilities (left).

Organized Houses

RESIDENTS OF COED COURT (left) shame their housemate as they call attention to the five minute phone limit. Many organizations limit the length of conversations to give each woman her chance to get the all-important calls.

WOMEN OF THE SHANTY (right) take time out from their studies for a cup of coffee and a short bull session. These moments of rest and relaxation often form a greater part of college memories than actual class periods.

Provide Recreation

NEWLY ORGANIZED THIS YEAR, Alles Kaput was formed by this group of men (right) who were mostly veterans of the European theater. Gathering around the piano (below right) women of Keims Kabana brush up on their singing before they hit the books. Practicing Home Ec, a group of women living at Moore Th' Merrier prepare a bedtime snack (below).

College Increases

Answering the call for more student housing, Kansas State's only residence hall on the campus, Van Zile, opened its doors this year to 169 women, instead of 150, as before.

Representing "the prize of the East," India, Van Zile took its place in the ISA.

Residents of the Hall have pledged a window for the All Faith Memorial Chapel.

Jeanne Greenwalt served as president for the fall semester, then turned the gavel over to Jane Engle for the spring term. Miss Dorothy Hamer was house director.

Dorm Facilities

To help relieve the women's housing situation, the College purchased the Waltheim apartments, 1436 Laramie, in late summer to be decorated and used as a women's dormitory. After several busy weeks of converting from apartment to dorm, its doors were opened to 78 Kansas State women.

Arranged in suites, housing six students each, the former living room is now a combination study and bedroom. Kitchens were converted to dressing rooms.

The reconverted Waltheim Apartments house 78 college women.

New officers chosen at the semester were president Jane Foster and her assistants Clarice Hammond, Betty Jo Dick and Alice Mae Tomlinson.

Members of Organized Houses Take Part

According to the nine Kansas State women living at Arcadia, one of the smaller Independent organized houses, the prevailing atmosphere is exactly opposite Webster's meaning of its name, "peaceful and quiet."

Betty Nordyke guided the activities of the house as president, and Mary Mellenbruch served as her assistant.

Miss Grace Friel celebrated her fifth year as housemother to the women living at 1222 Bluemont.

In cooperation with Clark's Gables, these women represented Egypt in the International Security Assembly. By pooling their information the students were able to "keep abreast of the times" in this country.

On the lighter side of college life, Arcadia was entertained by Alles Kaput with a caroling party before the Christmas vacation. Each girl wrote a letter to Santa which was read at the Christmas house party.

The twenty women living at La Fiel, 1707 Laramie, were guided this year by Florence Cyhel as president and Mrs. E. E. Rogers as housemother.

First organized as an independent women's house in 1941, the name "La Fiel" was derived from the Spanish word meaning "The Faithful."

During the fall semester the social calendar was filled with the Halloween masquerade party, hour dances, and the "White Christmas" formal dance.

The spring semester found the women busy planning an open house for the other Independent women's organized houses on the campus. Late April brought the spring formal given by La Fiel.

At Homecoming, the side yard of La Fiel was converted into a graveyard for the KU team. Each player on the starting lineup had his "resting place."

in Activities on and off the Campus

Named because of its location high above the street at 1719 Laramie, Skywood Hall housed twelve college women.

Fun, frolic, apple bobbing, dancing and refreshments were all a part of the gay Halloween Party for the women of Skywood Hall and their dates. The piano served well as a ghost, draped in sheets with the "keys" showing for his teeth.

Before leaving for the Christmas vacation the members joined in, and with the help of all, had a holiday dinner complete with place cards which were angel "images" of guests.

Not to neglect the serious side of college life, members of Skywood Hall took an active part in the ISA. Representing Norway, they had a seat on the Economic and Social Council, and on the Security Council.

Women of the Hall and their "houseparents," Mr. and Mrs. Neil Swanson, attended church as a group at the Sosna Chapel several times during the fall semester.

Betty Lou Winget served as Skywood Hall's sixth president, aided by Ruth Tichenor and Esther Page.

Rising to the urgent call for women's housing, The Villa, located at 1635 Laramie, was organized at the beginning of the fall term. Here 16 Kansas State students work and play together.

Representing the small country of the Netherlands, The Villa took its part in the ISA.

From Halloween to Easter, the

From Kansas State students from Peru, the members of Maisonelle received first-hand information concerning the political, economic, and social conditions of that country whose name they carried in the International Security Assembly.

A dinner honored Bruno Linares and Sergio Cuculiza, Peruvian students, who discussed their country with members of Maisonelle.

Working together, the women of Maisonelle had fun making the Homecoming decoration showing the Wildcat drowning the Jayhawk.

Guided by Margaret Mustard, president, and Thelma Sexton, assistant, the students at 1706 Fairchild had as their housemother Miss Mattie Cassity.

Living only a few blocks from the campus, the

The members, in blue jeans and ski sweaters, enjoyed a picnic supper and line party to the theatre at the beginning of the fall term.

Other social activities during the first semester were the Homecoming tea and the annual Christmas dinner.

In the fall and spring, the women of Tramalai stage badminton contests and when driven inside during the cold winter months, they practice bridge.

Mrs. T. H. Cousins is housemother to the group, and Lois Baldwin is president of the house, which received its name from a song. Other officers are Virginia Reist and Margaret Oehrle.

Weekly meetings were held to brush up on the happenings of Rumania, the country which the group represented in the International Security Assembly.

Holiday Spirit Provides Party Themes

Collecting records, swing and classical, is the hobby of the eight women living at Chatterbox, 526 North Fourteenth. Many evenings are spent with their dates and friends listening to the latest hit tunes.

After wedding bells rang early in the first semester for prexy Rosemary O'Brien, Frances Brenner took over the gavel for the group.

Mrs. Alice Spealman was housemother for this group of Independent women.

With the opening of fall term and Halloween season came a scavenger hunt for the members and their dates. Before the Thanksgiving holidays a candlelight dinner was held. The second semester brought a Valentine party, spring dance, and line party to the theater.

The women of Chatterbox represented Argentina in the ISA.

Coed Court, one of the first Independent houses organized at Kansas State, opened its doors at the beginning of the school term to 13 College women.

Residents of the Court at 1417 Leavenworth have as their housemother Mrs. Pearl Power.

Election of officers in the fall made Minerva Cadwell president, Myrna Jean Adee and Lorene Smith her assistants.

Miss Helen Elcock was dinner guest and the group leader of Coed Court during Religious Emphasis Week.

Iran was represented by the members in the International Security Assembly.

The Sunday before the women departed for the Christmas holidays, Mrs. Power entertained the members of Coed Court with a traditional Christmas breakfast. After gifts were exchanged, the group attended church.

Named in honor of the housemother, Mrs. W. H. Hills, Hill's Heights provides a college home for 22 women.

This house carried the name of Bulgaria in the International Security Assembly. Weekly reports on political, social, and economic conditions of this small country were given in order to keep the members abreast of the times.

Music is the favorite pastime of the students—the piano and record player serving as the center of activity.

Not to neglect the social side of college life the women entertained with a formal tea for all organized houses in October. Other social functions of the year were a hayrack ride, mid-winter formal dance, Valentine party and spring formal.

This year's officers were Laura Belle Overley, president; Mary Jean Lorson, vice-president, and Mary Smith, secretary-treasurer.

Clark's Gables, located at 812 North Manhattan, was headed by Jean Guthrie as president and Mrs. Edith Clark as housemother.

The twelve members of this house are all active in church organizations and although there are nine denominations represented, the evening devotions, held several times weekly, were greatly enjoyed.

The back yard provided the setting for the fall picnic. Superstition was the theme for the party on Friday, December 13, at which dates were entertained. Good and bad luck omens combined with Christmas decorations created an atmosphere of gaiety.

Taking an active part in campus activities, Clark's Gables joined with Arcadia to represent Egypt in the International Security Assembly.

A replica barbecue pit filled with roasted "Jay-burgers" brought third prize in the women's division of the Homecoming decorations contest to the 24 students living at Keim's Kabana, 1623 Fairchild.

In the fall the women spent many afternoons practicing softball and as a result won second place in softball intramurals. Third place in the posture contest was awarded the team representing this Independent house.

On the lighter side of college life, the women entertained their dates with a hayrack ride at Halloween and a dance at the house. They were hostesses at an hour dance for barracks No. 5 in the early fall and old Santa himself made it to Keim's Christmas party. A beautiful spring evening made a perfect setting for a formal dance which brought their social season to the close.

The members of this house were active in the ISA program and together they represented the Holy Country of Palestine.

Keim's Kabana, named in honor of Mrs. L. R. Keim, housemother, was guided by Mary Wylie as president.

The fifteen women of Moore Th' Merrier, 1404 Fairchild, represented Spain in the International Security Assembly.

Social activities began in the early fall when the women entertained their dates at a house party. The party, first planned as a picnic, was driven inside when Old Man Weather shed a "bucketful of tears." A regular Thanksgiving dinner was served at the house before the women left for vacation and home Thanksgiving celebrations.

Moore Th' Merrier, first organized in 1943, was governed by Alta Mae McClaren. Directing the women was Mrs. T. H. Moore as housemother.

Another of Kansas State's small organized houses is the Shanty, at 513 North Delaware.

The women of the Shanty, which is only a step from the campus and a two-minute jaunt from Aggieville, were guided by Phyllis Fuller, president, and Mrs. Carl Tague, housemother.

In the fall and spring when the weather permitted, the nine women of the Shanty rented bicycles, took a picnic lunch, and toured the countryside around Manhattan.

A Halloween party began the year's social activities and the birthday parties held after hours proved an excellent opportunity for the women to practice singing. At Christmas time the members had a party and gift exchange. Several evenings each week after closing hours the girls chatted and played cards over cups of coffee.

The Shanty chose to represent Luxemburg in the International Security Assembly.

The Irish friendship of Pal-O-Mie, Independent women's organized house located at 324 North Fifteenth, has been known on the campus since the house was organized in 1939.

Housemother for the 10 Kansas State coeds living there is Mrs. Lillian Fuller.

A favorite pastime with the women of Pal-O-Mie is knitting. Many of the sweaters, socks, and scarves in their school wardrobe are the result of the use made of their spare minutes.

Social functions for the year included a formal Christmas dance at the house. In commemoration of Washington's birthday, a buffet supper was held for the women and their dates, followed by a line party to the show. With spring came weekend picnics and a spring formal.

Leaders of Pal-O-Mie were Achsah Prather, president, and her assistants, Neola Springer, Phyllis Barr, and Carrol Ramsey.

Alles Kaput and Klimek Hall Join the Named after the popular men's magazine, Esquire House, located at 1211 Laramie, was home to 13 Kansas State College men.

First organized as an Independent men's house in 1945, the group was led this year by Dick Fedell as president. Mrs. George Gregg was housemother.

Highlighting the social events of the year was the Christmas formal. Given jointly with the House of Williams, the party was held in Thompson Hall the day before Christmas vacation officially began.

Taking to the fresh air and sunshine, the men took an active part in football, softball and tennis intramurals. Then in the winter came basketball contests.

Playing their part in the International Security Assembly, the men of Esquire represented the country of Mexico. They had members on both the Security Council and the planning committee.

The annual pie-eating contest, which is held in early fall, was entered by every member. Crowned "King Pie Eater" was Norman Woolgar.

Since nearly all of its residents are veterans who served in the European theatre of war, the words Alles Kaput were decided upon for the name of the newly organized Independent men's house. Heard many times from the Germans, the words have as their meaning, "all is lost."

Heralded as its first president was Jared Barker. Byron Whitehouse succeeded him as president for the second semester. Mrs. Robert Macininch was housemother to the sixteen men living at 1224 Bluemont.

Along with the duties involved in organizing an Independent house, the men found time to enter in College intramurals by fielding a team in basketball.

A dance for the women of Arcadia highlighted the social activities.

Ranks of Men's Independent Houses

College men living in the House of Williams, men's organized house at 1126 Bluemont, took fourth place in the men's division of the Homecoming decorations contest.

Keeping the ball rolling was Reed Larson as president, with Marvin Snyder as his right-hand man. Their housemother is Mrs. Katherine Williams.

The nineteen men of this organized house exhibit their athletic inclinations by taking an active part in football and basketball intramurals.

In the International Security Assembly the house represented the small country of the Far East, Korea.

Searching for a possible means of increasing dormitory space for returning servicemen, the College hit upon the idea of converting the northeast stadium into a men's dorm. The program was started last spring and the stadium was ready for occupancy by the beginning of the summer school term.

Milton Puziss handled the duties of president for the hall, while Luther Wilcoxson, Charles Lindsey and Otis Gilliland served as his assistants.

Lacking the facilities to entertain in their own quarters, the Hall was host to the women of Pal O'Mie, Chatterbox, and La Fiel at an hour dance held in Rec Center.

Klimek Hall is the first permanent men's dormitory on the Kansas State campus.

Govern Greeks

Outside of their function as governing bodies of Greek organizations, Panhell and Interfrat Council this year sponsored Interfraternity Sing, held the first week in May. The custom, renewed for the first time last spring, is planned as an annual event.

Interfraternity Pledge Council is the governing body for all Greek pledges. Officers, elected by the Council members who represent each fraternity and sorority, were headed by the president, Bill Christian.

Offices in the Panhellenic Council are rotated among the sororities each year. Patty Piffer served as president first semester and was succeeded by Eda Mae Hancock in the spring.

Representatives of the 16 fraternities at Kansas State make up the Interfraternity Council. Officers are elected by the group and this year Roy Harvey served as president.

Alpha Chi Omega

70 National Chapters

President: Phyllis Landau

Gamma Zeta established 1917

This year Kansas State extended welcome to Alpha Chi Omega, the ninth national sorority to colonize on the campus. First founded at DePauw University in 1885, the sorority has 69 other national chapters.

Sent to K-State to colonize the sorority's new chapter, Gamma Zeta, were Gwen Row, University of Nebraska, and Edith Levedahl, Northwestern University. Upon their arrival they discovered six Alpha Chi alums ready to offer assistance for the tasks ahead.

With eyes open for prospective wearers of the lyre, Edith and Gwen spent many afternoons during the fall semester "coke rushing" at the Can. The pledge class grew until at the end of the first semester 18 coeds were wearing the scarlet and olive green pledge ribbons of Alpha Chi Omega.

The problem of a chapter house is a difficult one—and one that will take time to solve in view of the present housing shortage, but members hope to be in their house in time for rush week next fall.

Busy building the infant chapter, the Alpha Chis did not have much time for other group activities. Glory came to the chapter when one member was named a Homecoming queen attendant.

In mid-March the members combined their efforts to put on their first social function. At this time the Alpha Chis held their Paradise Prom at the Country Club. Inviting other sorority and fraternity members to be their guests for the evening, they opened "Pearly Gates" for dancing beneath cotton clouds.

The chapter was installed on March 21. National officers, together with sorority members from Kansas, Nebraska and Baker universities, came for the occasion. Guests were housed by other sororities on the hill.

That weekend was filled with activities—formal pledging, initiation of the 15 charter members and a formal dinner at the Wareham Hotel. Four hundred guests extended best wishes to the new chapter at a tea at Van Zile Hall.

The chapter house of the Alpha Xi's is at 601 North Delaware.

Alpha Xi Delta celebrated its twenty-fifth year on the Kansas State campus with a dinner held at the chapter house in April.

Prominent in campus activities, the group represented Poland in the ISA, took part in intramurals, Y-Orpheum, and contributed $500 for a stained glass window for the Memorial Chapel.

Active on the campus, two members of Alpha Xi were recognized by the College Who's Who and others held the presidency of Prix, an office on the Student Council and the lead in a College play.

Wearers of the "quill" transformed the chapter house into a Winter Wonderland for the Christmas formal. Dancing to the rhythm of Matt Betton, Alpha Xis entertained at their annual Rose Formal.

Balloons, holly, formal and mistletoe set the scene for the Christmas party held at the chapter house. The Circus Party proved a huge success and all the circus characters were there in costume.

Second place in the women's division of Homecoming decorations went to the Alpha Deltas. Prexy Bonnie Woods was crowned Saint Patricia at the Engineers' "St. Pat's Prom" and Ruthetta Maxwell was attendant to the Royal Purple Beauty Queen.

With members on the World Court, Security Council and Economic and Social Councils, this sorority represented France in the ISA.

The red brick house at the foot of the hill on Laramie Street was transformed into a barnyard scene for Homecoming. With the theme "Watch Cow College Give KU the Bird" the wearers of the "X and horseshoe" took first place in the women's division of the Homecoming contest.

Dancing 'neath a ceiling of sparkling snowflakes for their Winter Wonderland formal and in an atmosphere of white carnations for the annual Sweethearts Ball held in May, the Chi Os kept life from becoming all study.

The Ag Barnwarmer Queen and a Homecoming princess were royal members of the sorority.

Representing the country of Sweden in the ISA, Chi Os kept up on recent world happenings.

To the trophy shelf was added another item—the Stoolman Vase, the national Pi Beta Phi award for the second most outstanding chapter of the fraternity.

The wearers of the wine and blue took first place for the best car decorations in the Homecoming parade with its white chrysanthemum effect made from a convertible, chicken wire, paper napkins and imagination.

A golden arrow girl was attendant to St. Patricia at the Engineers St. Pat's Prom in March, and two others attended the Corn Queen in the fall.

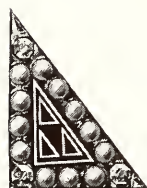

The Pi Beta Phi chapter house is located at 505 Denison.

Founded in 1904 at the University of Michigan

Twenty-six Chapters

President: Leonard Wood

Local chapter established 1913

The Acacia house is located at 340 N. 16th.

With the fall semester came old and new members of Acacia fraternity ready to reactivate their chapter and resume their activities on the hill.

To all corners of the campus they scurried to compensate for the war years, during which the fraternity was discontinued at K-State. The president of A. V. C., the junior class treasurer, and several committee chairmen were Acacia men. The whole fraternity was active in men's intramurals.

Bright lights gleamed through the windows of the attractive white home of Acacia as fraternity members played host to guests at a tacky party, an Indian party, a buffet supper and dance and a Christmas party. The spring formal dance was in May. Open houses with all sororities rounded out the social season.

The AGR chapter house is located at 421 North Sixteenth.

Alpha Gamma Rho has claimed during the year a definite share of campus activities. Fraternity members participated in the Masonic Club, Block and Bridle, Alpha Mu, Agricultural Economics Club, Collegiate 4-H, Tri-K, and held offices in the Dairy Club, Geology Club, Agricultural Education Club and YMCA cabinet.

The AGRs took time out from studies and activities to indulge in many social functions. Both formal and informal affairs, which included a sport party in the fall, a Homecoming dinner-dance, a Christmas party, the annual Pink Rose formal dinner-dance in February and the Founder's Day banquet in March, were on their social calendar.

ATO members entertain rushes at a dinner at the Wareham.

Members of Alpha Tau Omega are planning to have a new modernistic house, built of native stone, by next fall. Although without a home this year, honors, activities and social functions give proof that the ATOs have been busy on the campus.

The presidencies of the Geology Club, K Fraternity, Sigma Tau, American Society of Mechanical Engineers and Pi Tau Sigma belong to ATO men. Fraternity members also claim the editorship of the Ruptured Duck, a Student Council office and have won football and track letters.

Among the many ATO social activities were a Frontier Party, White Tea Rose Formal and several informal affairs at the Country Club. Bi-monthly dinners were also held in the Gold Room of the Wareham Hotel.

500 Sunset, Sadie Hawkins Day, November—the Betas started their social calendar for the year with a 'Lil Abner Party. In January, the Betas and Phi Dels went stag to dinner and took their dates dancing afterwards at the Biad Party in honor of the Miami Triad. The annual "Pig" dinner-dance was held in February.

Homecoming added to the Beta trophies the first place cup in the men's division for decorations. A locomotive with steam puffing, whistle tooting and wheels rolling, ran across the Beta lawn on the "Wildcat Line" to crush the KU Jayhawk.

Active in intramurals, the Betas won the Greek golf championship and were in the Greek football finals.

Farm House members kept the ball rolling at a fast pace on the K-State campus this year.

The Kansas Chapter played host to the National Bi-annual Conclave in November. This meeting was brought to a climax by a dinner and semi-formal dance at the Hotel Wareham. Several informal house parties, a Mother's Day dinner, Sister's Day dinner, and the Spring formal in April at the Avalon filled the Farm House social calendar.

Extracurricular activities among the Farm House men kept them busy, too. Members held the offices of chancellor and chronicler of Alpha Zeta, the presidency of YMCA, Collegiate 4-H Club, Tri-K Club, Dairy Club, Horticulture Club, Agriculture Economics Club, and the vice-presidency of the Block and Bridle Club.

Future plans for the fraternity include the construction of a new house just west of the Sig Alph house when materials become available.

Farm House men reside at 1409 Fairchild.

Last spring the Phi Deltas placed first in the Interfraternity Sing with their "Drums" song. Using the song as basis for their Y-Orpheum skit this year, the men of the "sword and shield" walked off with the grand prize. The trophy went to the Phi Deltas after a flipped coin broke a tie with the Sig Alphas. The coin that landed with the head side up is now mounted and hanging in the trophy room of the Phi Delt house. "Drums through the Ages" showed the development of drums from primitive times to the present day.

Dinner at the Flame Room and dancing at the Community House offered entertainment for Phi Deltas and their dates at the annual spring formal.

The Phi Delt chapter house is located at 508 Sunset.

Under the supervision of Director Billie Parkins, the Young Women's Christian Association has become an organization of 350 women and has progressed with a plan for the consolidation of the YW and YMCA.

The two organizations have worked as one this year on such interest groups as racial equality, economic justice, world relations, political effectiveness, Christian heritage, Bible study and community service.

Patt Fairman served the YW as president, Georgine Bischoff was vice-president; Betty O'Neal, secretary, and Gladys Goff, treasurer. Chairman of the Y Council was Betty Ann Drake.

The threefold purpose of YWCA is expressed in the organization's motto, "We unite in the desire to realize a full and creative life through a growing knowledge of God. We determine to have a part in making this life possible for all people. In this task we seek to understand Jesus and follow Him."

As part of its wide program of service the YW co-operated in sponsoring the Christian World Forum, Love and Marriage Series, and Religious Emphasis Week at Kansas State this year. Several of the assembly speakers who came to the College during the year were sponsored jointly by the YW and other organizations.

YW social activities included a Thanksgiving party, a weekly coffee hour and a bi-monthly dime dance, all sponsored jointly with the YM. The Christmas Bazaar and Y-Carnival netted funds to finance varied activities. Profits from the YM-YW Variety Show, an individual talent contest, will be used to send a large Kansas State delegation to the Rocky Mountain Regional Student Conference this summer.

The Leadership Council, of which Georgi Gress was president, is a group within the Y which receives special training in the psychology of leadership and organization.

Members of the YW Advisory Board are Mrs. Fred Parris, Miss Nancy Reid, Mrs. Opal Hill, Miss Abby Marlatt, Mrs. L. R. Quinlan, Mrs. R. I. Thackrey, Mrs. R. F. Gingrich, Mrs. C. T. Brewster, Mrs. Ward Keller, Mrs. L. E. Hobbs and Mrs. John A. Erickson. Mrs. Milton Eisenhower, Miss Helen Moore, Mrs. Mary P. VanZile and Patt Fairman are ex-officio members.

Expand Service Projects

Although the chief aim of both the YMCA and YWCA this year was a unified program of service, the 800-member YM has continued several projects of its own during the past year.

With Bill West as executive secretary, the YM sponsored intramurals teams and a weekly radio broadcast. Y-Orpheum, a competitive acts show, was one of the organization's projects. Y-Orpheum gives campus organizations a chance to compete for coveted trophies by the presentation of individual skits.

John Aiken, last year's FMOC, became YM president, replacing Marvin Norby, who had held office for several semesters. Other officers were Dean Schowengerdt, first vice-president; Dick Stockman, second vice-president; Dale Gillan, third vice-president; and Loren Cline, secretary.

The regular meetings of the YMCA vary considerably from week to week. The Cabinet meets weekly to plan the activities of the YM. Association meetings are scheduled once a month, as are joint association meetings with the women's group. At these meetings the usual procedure is to start with group singing, followed by special music, devotions, a special speaker, and questions and discussion. Games, dancing and often refreshments complete the meeting.

Speakers who have addressed the members of the YMCA during the year included Dr. Homer P. Rainey, Dr. J. Everton, Col. Ora J. Cohee, Dr.

WILLIAM E. WEST, executive secretary of the YMCA, new to the campus this year, came to Kansas State after serving in the Army Medical Corps, psychiatric section.

Joseph B. Bittler, Miss Ruth Seabury, Dr. Edgar DeWitt Jones and Dr. Arthur L. Miller.

Activities sponsored jointly by the YM and YW included Dime Y dances, joint cabinet meetings, association meetings and parties, and joint interest groups.

Additional projects have been the weekly coffee hour, the Christmas and Easter all-College assemblies, Y-Forums on Love and Marriage, and labor and dinner forums.

The Individual Variety Show last fall was under the dual sponsorship of the two organizations. The two Y groups will cooperate to send delegates to a regional conference at Estes Park, Colo., this summer.

Federation Represents All Faiths

To the Religious Federation come representatives of all church groups on the campus to plan coordinated social and religious life for student members. The Council is the executive body composed of two members from each student church group, two from the YWCA, and two from the YMCA. A faculty committee and an advisor from the Manhattan Ministerial Union work with the Religious Federation Council. This year the faculty group consists of Chairman Loyal F. Payne, Randall Hill, Fred Parrish and Miss Margaret Raffington. Ministerial advisor was the Rev. C. R. Davies of the Episcopal Church.

Four Union meetings of all groups represented in the Federation were held this year. Interracial problems were discussed at the first session. The other three were devoted to Religious Emphasis Week, Christian World Forum and the World Student Service Fund campaign.

November 3 to 7 marked Religious Emphasis Week this year. Coordinator of activities was guest speaker Dr. William H. Alexander, youthful pastor of the First Christian Church in Oklahoma City and one of the leading radio ministers in the Southwest. "Are You Living?" was Dr. Alexander's thesis for the five-day conference which included two all-College assemblies, numerous afternoon forums, and private audiences with Dr. Alexander. The forum on marriage proved so popular the gathering migrated to the women's gymnasium in preference to the smaller Calvin Lounge. One of the more obvious results of Religious Emphasis Week was the organization of evening meditation periods in several student houses.

"Why Bother With Religion?" asked Dr. Edgar DeWitt Jones, minister emeritus of the Central Woodward Christian Church of Detroit, Mich., and guest speaker during Christian World Forum February 27 through March 2. Religious Federation was co-sponsor with the YMCA, YWCA and the Manhattan Ministerial Union of the World Forum.

Religious Federation was an active group this year as it sponsored a variety of afternoon and evening functions. A series of afternoon discussion groups were arranged to give members an appreciation of other religions. Foreign students explained various religions to the Federation.

For the first time the Federation established an international intercollegiate correspondence system. Members of the Federation obtained names of students on foreign campuses and wrote to them.

Mid-week meditations in Illustrations Hall were arranged by Federation members. Programs consisted of music, prayer, poetry and silent periods.

Council officers this year were Marjorie Knostman, president; Bob Milburn, vice-president; Helen Otto, secretary, and Donna Oyster, treasurer.

Dinners, Parties and Picnics Provide

An even half-hundred women turned to Phi Chi Delta, church sorority for Presbyterians, for inspiration and opportunity to serve this year. "The glory of life is to love, not to be loved; to give, not to get; to serve, not to be served," they were told as they attended twice-monthly meetings. Programs at the meetings included movies on Mexico, lectures on living fully and being charming, and sharing of favorite poems.

December was a festive month for Phi Chi Delta women with a Christmas party following a formal initiation dinner at the Wareham Hotel. Dinner tables glowed in the green and yellow colors of the sorority, and initiates were marked by the yellow roses they wore.

Phi Chi Delta was steered by President Pat

McCrary, and Mrs. W. W. Guerrant as faculty sponsor.

Twenty college students formed the backbone of the Young People's Christian Union of the United Presbyterian Church this year. Meeting every Sunday evening, the group shared in suppers, worship services, and discussions.

At Christmas the group carolled and visited the Jolly Old Folks Home in Manhattan. Once a month the Y. P. C. U. has a party, including such events as an April Fool's party, a Valentine's party, or a hayrack ride. A sacrificial meal was designed to raise money for the group's pledge to the World Student Service Fund.

Mrs. Mary Jane Wendland served as president this year and Miss Margaret Newcomb sponsored the group.

Social Interest for Religious Groups

Hillel Foundation members celebrated the first anniversary of the founding of the organization in March with a party at Wesley Hall. The 35 members met twice a month for religious discussions and celebrated several traditional holidays during the year, such as the Jewish New Year in September, the Day of Atonement, and the Passover Seder. In March the Purim festival was marked by a mock broadcast of the story of the Feast of Ester.

High point of the meetings came when one member debated the Palestine question with an Arab student with a third college person presenting the American point of view. The women of Keims Kabana, representing Palestine in the ISA, were guests at this meeting.

Officers of the group included Eliah Bloom, president; Stanford LeRoy, vice-president; and Victor Kausman, secretary-treasurer. Sponsor was Dr. Fritz Moore.

Debates, discussions of current and local affairs, and worship services comprised the weekly Sunday night meetings of the 35 members of the Congregational Student Fellowship this year. Outstanding debate of the year was one concerning the Palestine question. Guest debaters were a Jewish student and an Arab student.

At a March meeting, members of Sigma Eta Chi, Congregational women's group, held a candle-lighting worship service known as the Lucknakia. Folk dancing and Christmas carolling occupied other meetings of the organization.

First semester president was Mike Burns, and second semester president was Barbara Drayer.

Church Sororities Do Service Work

Sigma Eta Chi, national sorority for women of the Congregational Church, did not consider it a jinx that their organization consisted of thirteen members this year. Mrs. Mary Holland Call was the faculty sponsor for the group. It was Mrs. Call who, with the assistance of the Rev. Charles Brewster, founded the Iota chapter at Kansas State in 1944.

Meetings of the sorority were scheduled for every first and third Tuesday of each month. President Virginia Grandfield presided while the chaplain, Barbara Drayer, led devotions and the secretary-treasurer, Pat Vasey, read the minutes. Other officers were Vada Volkening, vice-president; Dalena Currier, corresponding secretary, and Shirley Freienmuth, editor.

The motto of Sigma Eta Chi is "Her Candle Does Not Goeth Out By Night," the colors are blue and silver, and the flowers are the Columbia rose and blue larkspur.

The Christian Church sorority is called Kappa Beta and has presented its forty-eight members with interesting programs and speakers throughout the year. Mrs. Opal Hill, Miss Adell Ringstrom, national sponsor, and Prof. Robert A. Walker of the Institute of Citizenship were among the guest speakers. Mrs. J. David Arnold was the sponsor and Dona Dean Olliff was president.

The Kappa Beta theme for the year was "Bible Women," and this theme was carried out through panel discussions and special speakers. The city alumnae entertained the sorority women at a meeting in the fall. Main projects of the 1946-47 season were raising money for the Colorado Christian Home for Children and a Sitters-In project which provided a night watch over the children of ex-G.I.'s of the Christian Church.

Local Groups Have National Affiliations

The Lutheran Students' Association, back to its pre-war level of membership, worked during the year toward the organization's aim, "To strengthen Christian students in their faith through use of the Bible, regular church attendance and student fellowship through LSA."

The local organization is united with a worldwide Lutheran Students' organization which sponsors scholarships for students in all countries.

James Neilson led the LSA as president. Vice-president was Ernest Nelson and secretary was Margaret Alice Johnson. Robert Heline served as treasurer.

Faculty sponsors for the student organization of the First Lutheran church were Miss Inez Ekdahl of the Alumni Office and Dr. Verne Sweedlun of the History and Government Department.

Thirty-six students who attended a "Get Acquainted" party sponsored by Gamma Delta, national Lutheran fraternity, joined the organization. Other activities of the group during the year included a Christmas party and a caroling party.

This social program supplemented bi-weekly meetings on Sunday evenings. These meetings, which began with a supper, included a program and business session.

The Rev. H. H. Frohn, pastor of St. Luke's Lutheran Church, was sponsor for Gamma Delta. Officers were Kenneth R. Bender, president; William Petrich, vice-president; Jean Grauerholz, secretary, and Enas Hansen, treasurer.

MEMBERS OF WESLEY FOUNDATION gather in front of the Methodist Church which is headquarters of the group.

Wesley Foundation, Kappa Phi and

"A home and church away from home" is Wesley Foundation, whose membership is open to all students but is composed mainly of Methodists. More than 550 students were attracted to the youthful group this year, and all efforts were centered around the funds campaign for the $100,000 Wesley Foundation Student Center to be erected at the south gate of the campus. The Center will include an assembly hall for social activities and dinners, a chapel for worship and weddings, a lounge for study and informal fellowship, a library of religious books and magazines, and offices for directors.

A series of student forums relating to current topics of national and international importance aroused the interest of members this year. The relation of such economic, social and political prob-

Seven "New Student Dinners" early in the fall typified the hospitality of Wesley Foundation members. The traditional "Saturday Nighters" at Wesley Hall provided the "home away from home" setting as Foundation members folk danced, dined, picnicked and assembled for hikes. A Christmas party and a graduation party for seniors filled the social calendar.

Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Rogers sponsored Wesley Foundation, 75 per cent of which is composed of men, a sizable increase over war year enrollment.

The council of officers this year included Bob Barber, president; Lynn Alford, vice-president; Judy Gardner, secretary and Bob Leonard, treasurer.

WESLEY FOUNDATION has a membership of over 550 students. More than 300 regularly take part in the group activities.

Men's Club Are Methodist Groups

What men in the Church may do concerned the 35 members of the Methodist Men's Club this year. Meeting every second Tuesday, the group discussed this, military conscription, interest spots of the Holy Land and life in Palestine.

Leisure hours found the men organized as the Wesley Foundation Athletic Club and competing in men's intramurals.

President of the group first semester was Dick Danford, and second semester, John Lindholm.

"We must be the world we want," decided the Methodist women of Kappa Phi, and proceeded to build the year's programs around this theme. The group held rummage sales and sold Christmas cards to raise money for the $150 pledge it made to the Wesley Foundation building.

One fall and one spring meeting were devoted to pledging and initiation. When the spring service was completed, the women were whisked away to the Hawaiian Room in the Church where patronesses had prepared a dessert of Hawaiian tang.

Louise Darby served as president, with Mrs. B. A. Rogers as sponsor of the group.

Religious Groups Sponsor

Thirty-five Baptist women students joined in the friendly circle of Theta Epsilon this year to participate in Christian activities and social life.

At Christmas, children in the Bethel Neighbor Center in Kansas City, Kan., played with toy animals stitched by Theta E workers. Christmas also found the women relaxing around a table stacked with waffles, prepared by pledges.

A rush tea and breakfast, formal pledging, a senior farewell picnic, a Mother's Day tea, and a formal initiation banquet gave Theta E women a whirl at social activities. "Nautical" was the theme of the initiation banquet. The walls were disguised with fishing nets and weird sea animals.

President for this year was Helen Lawson Patty. Sponsors were Miss Stella Harriss, Miss Alice Geiger, and Mrs. C. L. Briggs.

Baptist Youth Fellowship members built the year's programs around five points: growing in personal Christian living, helping others to become Christians, serving through missionary world assistance, practicing Christian citizenship and developing Christian leadership.

Weekly Sunday meetings included a fellowship hour, supper and discussion programs threaded with these five ideas.

Once a month members gathered for social fellowship. Movies on Mexico, caroling, mixers, a banquet during Youth Week and a barnyard party were among the year's events.

Service projects included pledges to the Memorial Chapel and the Baptist World Mission Crusade. Sponsors this year were Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Sloat. Bob Milburn was president.

Active Youth Programs

The roll call of the Bishop James E. Wise Chapter of the national Canterbury Club listed names of 80 Episcopalian students this year. Meeting every Sunday night, the versatile group included a Bible study and discussion class, a supper, and a business meeting complete with a speaker.

Faculty sponsors were Miss Emma Hyde, Bill West, Wayne Sieh and Robert DuBois.

To open the fall semester college students were cordially summoned to the annual Student Reception to learn of the Canterbury Club. In December the active group braved the weather for a hayrack ride and chili supper.

First semester president was Frank MacCreary, while Roger Mitchell took the reins second semester.

Rechristened this year is the Disciple Student Fellowship, formerly called the Christian Youth Fellowship. With a membership of 125, the D. S. F. undertook to fulfill the theme of the year, "Lord, We Are Able."

Forums, interest group sessions, worship services and vespers were alternated with recreation programs on Sunday evenings.

Orvan Gilstrap headed the organization this year. Roy Cartee was group sponsor.

Newman Club Sponsors Retreat

Catholic students swelled the ranks of the Newman Club until this year's membership tripled last year's enrollment. More than 500 students shared their experiences and thoughts at monthly meetings. Procedure at these morning assemblies included mass, communion, breakfast, a short business meeting and discussions led by the Rev. E. J. Weisenberg, S. J., of St. Mary's College.

In February a three-day retreat was attended by more than 400 members. The club was represented by last year's president, Dick Stockman, in the 10-college play-symposium on marriage. The symposium toured to each of the 10 colleges represented and, in March, was presented at the Manhattan Community House. It was open to the public, thereby giving them an opportunity to hear the many-sided discussion of marital problems.

Two faculty members, M. F. Ahearn and J. P. Callahan, devoted time to the organization as sponsors. Officers of Newman Club are Bill Richards, president; Jim Kilkenny, vice-president; Ray Letourneau, treasurer and Mary Taylor, secretary.

Phi Kappa Phi Emphasizes Scholarship

Twenty-three students were awarded the highest honor the College can bestow, when they were elected in the fall to Phi Kappa Phi, national honorary scholastic fraternity. Qualifications for membership are based on high scholarship and character. Not more than ten per cent of each school of the College may be elected to the fraternity.

The students in the 1946 summer session were elected to membership with the candidates of the fall semester.

Phi Kappa Phi was founded at the University of Maine in 1898 by Dr. A. W. Harris, then president of the University. It became national through his efforts and those of the presidents of both Pennsylvania State College and the University of Tennessee. The first regular convention was held in New Haven, Conn., in November, 1900. The growth of the society was slow at first, but now it is extending rapidly. At the present there are fifty chapters.

The primary object of Phi Kappa Phi is to emphasize scholarship in the thought of college students, to hold fast to the original purpose for which it was founded, and to stimulate mental achievement by the prize of membership.

This society stands for unity and democracy of learning, and membership in it is open to members of other honor societies and fraternities, and to both men and women.

Phi Kappa Phi was established at this College in 1919. Serving as president for the organization is Dr. F. D. Farrell, with Dr. M. C. Moggie as vice-president, Miss Florence McKinney as secretary, and Dr. A. L. Goodrich as treasurer.

Candidates are elected to Phi Kappa Phi in both the spring and fall semesters.

Who's Who Honors Campus Leaders

Thirty-one students from the Kansas State campus were ushered into Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges this year. This honor follows a plan of national recognition for outstanding students in each American university and college.

Who's Who members are selected carefully and are the outstanding personalities in their respective schools. The emphasis of selection is placed on scholarship and participation in extracurricular activities. The required qualities for nomination and final listing are character, scholarship, leadership in college activities, and the possibility of future usefulness to business and society.

Who's Who is published in book form annually. Students who receive this honor are listed in the publication with a short biography of their achievements. Included in the book is a survey of the opinions of these representative students on questions of national and international importance. An analysis of current trends in student interests along lines of literature, music and entertainment is included.

The main purpose of the publication is to place the names of outstanding students in America before the people of the business world and others who annually recruit college and university graduates.

Of the 31 selections at Kansas State College, 26 are new this year. The remaining five were chosen last year and so were listed automatically this year.

Those students listed for the second time were Merle Eyestone, Patt Fairman, Lois Meisner, Stanley Stuart and Ruth Hodgson.

Prominent Students Receive

Members of Mortar Board are the senior women at Kansas State who have weathered the four-year storm and remained tops in scholarship and leadership.

One of the chief projects of Mortar Board is to recognize and honor underclass women for the same qualities. At Mortar Board's annual Scholarship Dinner in the spring, 93 junior women who had the 1.8 average to make them scholastically eligible for Mortar Board were honored.

The names of three freshmen women, Mrs. Mae Weaver, Margaret Seaton and Elsie Shubert, were engraved on the Mortar Board plaque. The women tied with a straight A average.

Other activities sponsored by the organization included the chrysanthemum sale and float at Homecoming.

Margaret Parker headed the group as president, Jeane Greenawalt was vice-president, Frances Ewart, secretary and Ruth Hodgson, treasurer.

Blue Key, national honorary fraternity for senior men which was reactivated last fall, began the year's program of service by sponsoring the Homecoming Ball. The annual dance climaxed the week-long Homecoming celebration, pepped up this year with a victory theme to honor returned servicemen. In connection with the ball, Blue Key sponsored the election of Homecoming Queen Phyllis Lou Johnson.

The thirteen members elected to Blue Key on the basis of leadership in campus activities and scholastic rating, plan other activities designed for service to the College.

The organization in which membership is one of the highest honors offered to men at Kansas State chose President Milton S. Eisenhower as its sponsor. Student leaders were Don Moss, president, Raymond Adee, vice-president and Jess Boughton, secretary.

Recognition for Achievements

Prix is an honorary organization which recognizes prominent junior women on the campus, and this year, twelve members were chosen on the basis of quality, dependability, initiative, potentialities, activities and scholarship.

As work projects for this year, members of Prix conducted a Silver Survey, and took an active part in the Red Cross drive on the campus.

The aim of Prix is to create a more rounded educational life by promoting fellowship, leadership and character growth. During the first semester, Mary Brass led the group in setting forth these ideals and Charlotte Dorf was elected to the presidency for the remainder of the year. Patricia Piffer acted as secretary-treasurer, and Patricia McCrary as marshal. Miss Abby Marlatt is sponsor.

With 112 active members this year, K-Fraternity became one of the leading organizations on the campus. Membership is limited to Kansas State Athletes who have earned a varsity letter.

For the first time since the beginning of war, K-Fraternity renewed the old custom of selling freshman caps. The jaunty purple and white caps were donned by freshmen boys in the fall and for several weeks they were a common sight on the campus.

Parties were sponsored by the group both in the fall and spring, but the annual alumni-active banquet was the social highlight for members of K-Fraternity.

This year, the "prexy" of the honorary frat was Clarence Heath. Harry Merriman and Guy L. Sharp aided him with his executive duties. Frank L. Myers was sponsor of the group.

Spirit Rides High With Pepsters—Cats

With their battle cry, "Every Man a Wildcat," the pep clubs at Kansas State set out to prove their right to leadership in the postwar college. Organizing pep rallies, parades, and pep sections was not enough this year. Under the capable leadership of their presidents, Mary Lou Boyd and Don Ford, the Purple Pepsters and the Wampus Cats found new worlds to conquer.

The Purple Pepsters, a chapter of the national organization, Phi Sigma Chi, by their pep and spirit gained campus fame. Led by Mary Lou Boyd the pepsters were outstanding in their work. Once again the shoe was on the other foot when the girls took the boys to the Pepsters' annual Gold Diggers' Ball. Highlighting the evening was the crowning of Don Ford as King of Pep.

Pi Epsilon Pi, better known as the Wampus

Cats, started two new traditions on the campus by growing beards the week preceding Homecoming and initiating their own Wildcat Day. Climaxing the day with a Hobo Dance, Prexy Don Ford presented the Queen of Pep trophy to Pauline Flook, retiring president of the Purple Pepsters.

Working together, the clubs laid their plans last spring to rebuild the spirit on the campus. Not only did they present the entire plans for Homecoming, but they were instrumental in carrying them out. For the first time the cheerleaders were elected by the clubs. During the summer months they wrote the yell books and sold them during the football season. The surprise of the year, however, was the card trick display sponsored by the clubs and used for the first time in the school's history at the football games.

Cosmopolitans Sponsor Feast of Nations

Kansas State is the college home for many students from foreign countries. The Cosmopolitan Club offers an opportunity for these students to work with the students of this country, and combine their efforts in working for world-wide brotherhood and friendship. Under the leadership of their president, Howard Furumoto, the Cosmopolitan Club has carried out its program and has had a successful year with an increase of 25 members over last year's total.

Social functions reached a new high this year, and highlighting these activities was the "Feast of Nations" banquet. At this affair, open to all students, fancy dishes from many foreign lands were prepared by Cosmopolitan Club members. Other dinners for the members were held during the year and several picnics were given in the fall and spring.

Renewing friendships made at the beautiful Camp Miniwanca in Michigan is the purpose for membership in the Miniwanca Club.

Every year, fellowships and scholarships are granted by the Danforth Foundation to a freshman and junior student from the School of Home Economics and the School of Agriculture and to a representative of the Collegiate 4-H Club. Training in leadership is offered at these summer sessions in Camp Miniwanca.

Fall, winter and spring parties were included in social activities for the year. Mary Edith Pryor served as president of the group, with Shirley Freienmuth as secretary-treasurer.

Election Stirs Political Interest

Two new organizations appeared at Kansas State during the year as a result of the political interests in the 1946 election. These, the Young Democrats and the Young Republicans Clubs, held pre-election dances, gave banquets, and sponsored speakers and discussions in an attempt to interest students in taking a part in government through their particular party. The two clubs were joint sponsors for a pre-election debate between gubernatorial candidates Frank Carlson and Harry Woodring.

The Young Republicans held a pre-election dance in Recreation Center on November 2, following a banquet in honor of Governor and Mrs. Andrew Schoepel and Rep. Albert Cole. Several members attended the State Collegiate Young Republicans Convention in Topeka, and also the State inaugural ceremonies on January 13. On Kansas Day, representatives of the K-State Club attended a dinner in Topeka, where they heard the Honorable Harold E. Stassen give an address. O. O. Vieux served as chairman and was assisted by vice-chairman Phyllis Evans, who was also State vice-chairman.

The Young Democrats Club of Kansas State was activated on October 6, with sixty-five members. During the pre-election campaign, the Young Democrats gave two banquets. The first on the night of the Woodring-Carlson debate in honor of the Democratic candidate for governor, Harry H. Woodring. The second banquet was given for the women voters of Riley County with Mrs. Harry H. Woodring as the speaker. A pre-election tea dance and rally was held in Recreation Center. Sherman Lampl and Harry Blaylock served the Club as co-chairman, with Joan Aldous as secretary.

New Spanish Club Organized

Club Cervantes, honorary Spanish society, adds its name to the roll of new organizations on the Kansas State campus. The object of this organization is twofold: first, to promote the study of Spanish and Latin-American culture and a better understanding between the Spanish and English speaking peoples; second, to profit by the social and cultural advantages derived from the familiarity with and the frequent use of the Spanish language.

Sergio Cuculiza presides at the business meetings which are followed by a social hour with a talk or discussion in Spanish. Professors Manuel D. Ramirez and Fritz Moore are faculty sponsors of the group.

Social plans included two banquets, given in connection with the initiation ceremonies for new members. Plans for a shield symbolizing the organization are being made.

To encourage literary effort and criticism is the aim of Ur Rune, Kansas State's chapter of the American College Quill Club.

The members of the club published their magazine, The Mirror, in the spring. This publication is made up entirely of literary material written by members of the club. The Parchment, published by the national organization, included many stories and poems written by K-State members.

Miss Ada Rice was sponsor of the group until November, when she was granted leave of absence from the College and Richard C. Maloney, assistant dean of Arts and Sciences, took over the responsibilities.

Miss Rice had been sponsor of the Kansas State Chapter since its origin. Chancellor is Florence Cyhel, with Prof. H. W. Davis as vice-chancellor.

KSC Endowment Association Aids

One of the largest and most active organizations on the Kansas State campus is the Collegiate 4-H Club. With 350 members, this organization aids and promotes the well-being of former 4-H Club members. Merle Eyestone presided over the Club for the fall semester, while Dean Schowengerdt took up the gavel for the remainder of the year. At this time, Norma White was elected secretary and Howard Borchardt, vice-president.

The Collegiate 4-H Club holds its regular business meetings on the first and third Thursday evenings of each month. These bi-monthly sessions are usually preceded by social dancing and other forms of recreation. During the spring semester, each year, a committee is chosen to select the outstanding senior boy or girl in Collegiate 4-H.

At the beginning of the fall semester, members of Collegiate 4-H undertook the project of promoting the State 4-H Camp at Rock Springs Ranch. The members believe that rural youth of Kansas must have a better opportunity to develop their talents and interests in leadership, agriculture and homemaking.

Plans for the encampment call for such improvements as a dam for the lake, roadways, sewage and water systems. These improvements are prerequisites to other necessary improvements, including a dining hall, health center, recreation building, living quarters, main lodge, stables and farm buildings.

The Kansas State College Endowment Association is cooperating with the State 4-H Camp committee and is serving as the organization through which the camp is being financed. A program for obtaining funds for a modern swimming pool is now under way. 4-H members have a long-range view of the development plan and will continue, step by step, to provide for the building program.

Another project undertaken by members of Collegiate 4-H is the publication of the Who's Who. Acting as editor for this state-wide 4-H publication is Lola Warden. All the activities undertaken by the Club members are not work, though. Social functions of many types are given during the year. The Christmas holiday season was highlighted by an annual dinner-dance. The dinner was served in the Methodist Church, and after dining, the group adjourned to the Flame Room of the Wareham Hotel to dance to the music of Matt Betton's orchestra. Also on the social calendar was the annual spring formal at the Avalon. A picnic at the 4-H Rock Springs Ranch climaxed the social activities for the year.

Miss Elsie Border and Mr. J. Harold Johnson, State 4-H Club leaders, served as sponsors for the group.

Two New Groups Are Organized

Radio Guild made its debut on the K-State campus this fall. With Lewis Johnson as president, the 25 members made a successful start as a college organization and carried out a full schedule of activities.

The pre-Christmas holidays were highlighted by a dinner party at Keck's on December 17. In the spring, Guild members made a trip to Kansas City, Missouri, to visit the radio stations there. Mr. and Mrs. Richard Mall, both faculty members of the radio department, are sponsors of the group.

Another organization new to the campus is the K-State Masonic Club. The 59 members are Master Masons who by employment or enrollment are directly affiliated with the College.

The first meeting of the Masonic Club was held on October 8, 1946, and on December 6 the constitution was ratified and 32 of its organizers became charter members.

From the first, the group has taken an active interest in the activities of the College. They sponsored a campaign to maintain the beauty of the campus by preventing the development of "cow-paths" which were becoming numerous across the campus lawns. Plans for coaching teams and for educational programs are included in the purposes of the organization. Stag parties and dances were sponsored to promote better fellowship among the Masons on the campus.

Presiding over the organization was Morris Dilworth. Sponsors of the group were Dr. J. C. Bates and Prof. C. F. Lewis.

Vets Build Cooperative Commissary

Boasting over 1,000 members, the Associated Veterans of World War II continued their attempts for better living conditions for students and members of the faculty. In an effort to bring lower prices to this group the Association built a cooperative commissary, which was incorporated for $20,000. Stock was sold to all veterans and faculty members and the holders were allowed deductions in prices. Headed by Lloyd Nothern, the commissary opened in the fall and has become the example for many other schools.

Added to the meetings this year were forums and round table discussions, while on the lighter side, many social activities were sponsored by the Association to supplement College activities. Highlighting the year was their winter formal with the music of Joe Sanders and his orchestra in a picturesque setting of Comic Wonderland.

Active the calendar year, Ellis Stackfleth served as commander during the fall semester and Reed Larson during the summer and spring semesters. Dr. M. D. Woolf was selected as faculty advisor.

Veterans' Wives Organize Club

Heading the U. S. Government's Veterans Administration Guidance Center at K-State, Lowell W. Henning acted as the liaison officer of the government with the school. Through this office a continuous flow of information kept the veteran on the campus informed of the changes in policy of the G. I. Bill. All student veteran claims were handled through this office and directed into the proper channels.

The Veterans' Wives, a club formed by the wives of student veterans, filled the year with a varied program. Classes were offered to all in bridge, a project which proved popular with the married couples on the campus. Instructions in knitting also were offered to the wives. The club sponsored a year-long drive for Overseas Relief and operated the Veterans' Nursery. Monthly meetings were devoted to business and social functions.

Mrs. Jacque Engel was president of the club during the first semester and Mrs. June Sizemore served during the spring semester. Mrs. Milton Eisenhower served as sponsor.

DEAR MOE:

Si, muchacho, we still have ze clase de Espanol. I am fully aware that you never passed Spanish II. Don't worry. You can try again when you get here.

Boy, with 6,500 students and an estimate of a thousand more for next year things are going to be rough. Even now classes are conducted in every nook and cranny on the campus. During fair weather it was not an uncommon thing to see gray-thatched professors encircled with students seated under trees on the campus. Actually conditions were not as pressed as a casual observer might have been led to believe—that was only the prof's idea of a treat for the class. Somehow or other they manage to get all of us under roofs for our daily recitations and lectures. How they will do it with another thousand is hard to imagine.

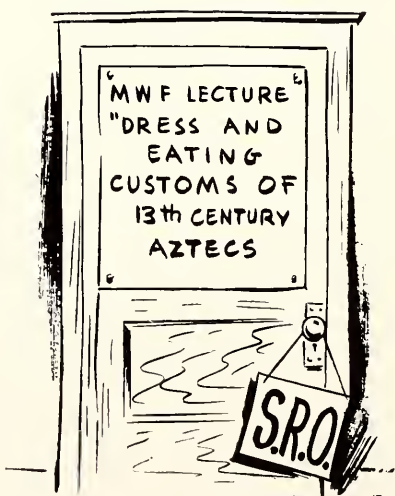

We have 101 permanent classrooms and 114 laboratories. According to President Eisenhower these facilities were not enough with a 4,100 enrollment. He says that each class is 50 per cent larger than sound educational standards should permit. Although I know your attitude and views on educational standards, I thought you might be interested. Some day, Moe, you'll wish you had learned to appreciate life's higher side.

Just to give you a rough idea, that 6,500 enrollment figure is about three times the enrollment of last year and half again as many as any previous number.

Radio classes have been held in the Canteen, and we've heard of speech and editing classes at other out-of-the-way places. Those cases were more matter of choice than necessity, however.

With so many more classes and so many more professors to teach those classes, office space is at a premium. Believe it or not they even remodeled old Fairchild Hall. That may seem like sacrilege, but it's true. They moved a partition back a few feet to provide room for one cubbyhole office. For days I couldn't walk by the spot without bowing my head in shame. Somehow it seemed indecent, like altering Grant's tomb. Old Fairchild has stood unchanged for so many years that the oldest professor isn't sure but that Coronado built it.

They moved in some more Army barracks to be used as office space and classrooms. All the veteran students are a little leary of them. That may come under the heading of basic training "shakes."

As you know, the only place large enough for a big formal dance on or near the campus is the gym. One night in January the Home Ec's were having a dance, a basketball game was scheduled, and Patterson's groaners were having a wrestling match. That's the way advance notices billed the thing anyway. In the end the athletics politely gave way to the girls. For awhile we were all imagining touching little scenes of gaily bedecked young ladies dancing serenely about, carefully avoiding hook passes and hammer locks.

Well, that's what comes by our not having a fieldhouse.

Speaking of large classes, we have one with 600 students. It meets in the auditorium four days a week. A public address system carries the well-chosen remarks of the lecturers to the farthest corner, but that rapier-like "listen-or-else" gaze is lacking.

The Institute of Citizenship courses, originated here last year, were fairly popular this year. The K. C. Star gave them a play, calling them "revolutionary educational practices."

We had 7 o'clocks. They were scheduled for the sake of educational efficiency, whatever that is. I am only certain that they were not my idea. It's dark at 7 in the winter, and I have never believed in night school.

Since classroom space is taxed so heavily, it is not uncommon to have an 11 o'clock on the upper floor of the cafeteria with aromas of roast beef and French fried potatoes all around. That may have little significance to you now, but wait until you find yourself there after skipping breakfast to make your first class. It is the nearest thing to a torture pit that the modern worshippers of academic knowledge can devise.

There is another little item of late afternoon classes which I will only mention in passing. I would advise selling those golf sticks, Moe.

Please understand, Moe, I'm not trying to discourage you. I am only trying to prepare you. After all, when these little things nettle you, you can always remember those first weeks in "the services."

ARCHIE.

SENIOR CLASS OFFICERS elected in the fall after a stirring campaign are secretary Betty Carr of the All-College Party; treasurer Joyce Crippen of the Commonwealth Party; vice-president Mary Hodgson and president Merrill Werts, both of the All-College Party.

This year the senior class sponsored two sneaks, one in the winter for the mid-year graduates and the regular one in the spring for K-Staters who receive their sheepskins in June. However, the sneaks were open to all seniors.

The upperclassmen walked out for the first time on January 23, celebrating the coming graduation of 200 students in February. The holiday included an afternoon jam session, with juke box, at the Avalon, and a return to the ballroom in the evening for a dance with Matt Betton and his music makers, and refreshments of cokes and doughnuts.

Werts Heads Seniors

Dave Dallas, manager of the Griffith theatres, opened the Sosna Theatre and entertained the sneaking seniors with movies.

As their gift to the College, seniors pledged to buy a window for the All-Faith Memorial Chapel, which is to be constructed on the campus in memory of the many K-State students who fought in World War II, and of the 200 who gave their lives.

The class pledged $500, with prices of windows ranging from $5 to $1,500. The $500 will be approximately a dollar apiece from each senior graduating in June. The pledge was made at the class meeting held the first week in December. Sneak plans were discussed at the same conference.

Class officers were elected through a primary and general election on November 12 to serve a full year. Merrill Werts headed the class as president, with Betty Carr, secretary, Joyce Crippen, treasurer, and Mary Hodgson, vice-president.

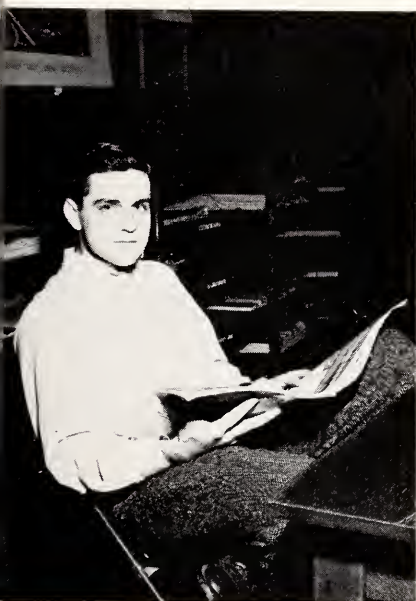

Prominent seniors shown on the next page and throughout the senior class section were chosen by the dean and two student representatives of each school. Nominated first by the representatives of the individual school, the selections were then voted on by the committee made up of representatives of all schools.

CLAPPING AND SINGING to the tune of "Fight, You K-State Wildcats," seniors take time out at the Sneak Dance held at the Avalon first semester.

AFTER A FIERY BUILDUP, class elections went off with surprising calm as the Commonwealth Party took 10 of the 16 offices. Three of these were uncontested positions, which means the contests were split seven to six, giving the Commonwealth Party only a slight edge over the All-College Party. Straight-party balloting was evident as all freshman and sophomore offices went to the Commonwealth Party and all contested junior and senior offices went to the All-College Party. Freshman class officers (left) are Sherwood Smith, vice-president; Esther Page, secretary; Hardy Berry, president; Nelson Ober, treasurer.

THE VOTE IN THE CLASS ELECTIONS was light despite the interest that went with campaigning. The School of Home Economics reported the heaviest vote with approximately 60 per cent of the students going to the poles. This was offset by the low percentages of other Schools. Less than 33 per cent of the College students cast their ballots. Sophomore officers (above) are Carol Mudge, treasurer; Clarice Cooper, secretary; Tom Walker, president; Marvin Snyder, vice-president. Junior class officers (right) are Leonard Wood, treasurer; Mike Zeleznak, vice-president; Walter Robohn, president; Marjorie Knostman, secretary.

Remember the story of Dorothy, Toto, the Cowardly Lion, Tin Woodman, and the Straw Man in their search for the Wizard? Each had his own personal problem for the Wizard to solve. To-day, though times have changed, people still need help. So it's good to know there's a modern "Wizard" as close as your nearest electric switch. For a few pennies a day this present-day Wizard, who calls himself your electric servant, will time your alarm; wash your clothes; help prepare your meals; or bring you top news and radio entertainment!
