Report to President, Secretary of Aggriculture and Members of Senate and House, Sets forth Demands of Farm Organizations.

The unanimous report of the Na-tional Agricultural Conference, in which the National Farmers Union participated represented chiefly by National secretary, Edward E. Kennedy, was issued in Washington under date of January 18, directed to the President of the United States, the Secretary of Agriculture, and members of the Senate and House of Representatives. This report was not signed by the National Farmers Union, because the Farmers Union was not at that time a member of the National Agricultural Conference. However, at the conclusion of the deliberations of the Conference, the National Farmers Union subscribed to the Conference's program of resolutions and recommendations, petitions for membership in the Conference, and was elected to membership.

Although the report is rather lengthy, it is published in full in this issue of the Kansas Union Farmer, because it will undoubtely be referred to many times in the future development of the govenment's agricultural policies. This copy of the paper may be kept, therefore, for future reference.

The Report Below is the text of the report: Washington, D. C.

House of Representatives: Unanimous Report of the National Agricultural Conference, Washing-

January 16-17, 1936 organizations of America, requitted by last week's conference of farm leaders to further plans safeguarding agricultural welfare, hereby presents the following statement and appeals to you, and through you to the Am-

We first of all assert the unanimity of the organized farmers regardthe major objectives in the battle for "Equality for Agriculture' that has now been in progress for almost a score of years. We declare that in this long battle, our farmers have become fully convinced of the soundness and the justice of two principles that we have neither inclination nor authority to surrender or to compromise and to which we first of all direct attention. These two principles are:

1. The right of American farmers to be given machinery by which they can adjust supply and demand by legal means with something like the same effectiveness with which American industry adjusts supply and demand-but with provisions safeguarding consumer welfare against extending adjustment into scarcity.

2 The right of the American farmer to receive for his products prices which will give him average purchasing power equal to that he had in 1904-14.

Two Major Objectives We repeat that we have neither inclination to surrender or compromise on these two principles. For us to surrender them for government to deny them can mean only one thing namely, that the American farmer will be driven to economic chaos.

We have not advocated a policy of scarcity and of high prices to the consumer's hurt. We have advocated balanced abundance and just prices protecting the interests of both proucers and consumers. In a period of enormous surpluses such as faced us in 1933, any policy of genuine crop adjustment had to be downward. But in like manner, where crop deficiencies develop, adjustment should be upward. And consumer welfare has been safeguarded by providing that such reduction of surpluses as has occured should aim only at giving the farmer purchasing power equal to that he possessed in 1909-1914. In these years the farmer's price returns were certainly not excessive.

Details of Legislation This Conference has, not attempted to define the details of legislation. The leadership of the farm organizations represented, acting within the general principles here set forth, will be available to the Congress for this purpose. We are, however, in agreement as to the following basic prin-

We, therefore, recommend:
1. Agricultural Adjustment.

(a) Unity of action by all groups represented in this conference to secure expansion of outlets for farm products in both the domestic and foreign markets in such manner as would be beneficial to the domestic market and profitable to the producers of these products in net average

(b) The development by Congress of the most effective legal means for government to assist farmers in adjusting the volume of production to the demands of markets. We believe this can best be achieved through a comprehensive and well-coordinate

GOOD INV MENT IN PERMANENT INDEPENDENCE FOR FARM FOLKS

In rebuilding the independence of farm families forced on relief rolls by the depression, the Resettlement Administration follows a policy of quality and economy in constructing units for farmstead groups.

Because of the present emergency with respect to agricultural adjustnent, we have first of all referred board, J. M. Graves and M. B. Ebero our major objectives relating to hard, whose terms had expired, were that subject. Another principle for which organized agriculture has batled from the begining is the follow-

3. The farmer is entitled to a national credit and monetary system which will (a) provide credit to agriculture at the lowest rates possible consistent with sound financing policies, and (b) will provide an honest and stable currency to safeguard him against the fluctuations in monetary values which have bankrupt millions in the past. To this end the farmer insists upon the support and maintenance of our Farm Credit Administration and an enlarged degree of farmer-control of its operations. American agriculture, while demanding a monetary policy fair to debtors, has at no time favored a policy unfair to creditors. We have denounced unfair inflation as well as unjust deflation. We have repeatedly insisted upon monetary policies looking only to restoring price levels so that debtors will pay and creditors will receive the same real values, the same purchasing power, that creditors and debtors borrowed. And to promote justice and honesty between debtor and creditor, we furthermort insist upon à permanent monetary policy which will stabilize price levels and thereby prevent farmers from having to pay with 30c wheat and 5c cotton, debts incurred on a basis of $2 wheat and 25c cotton, or vice

To this end, the Conference unanmously adopts the following resolu-

The desire and objective of the National Agricultural Conference is that our monetary system be so revised and currency and credit so managed as to establish and maintain the dollar with constant purchasing power preserving the equity of contracts between debtor and creditor and avoid the dangers and losses that are inevitably involved in excessive and uncontrolled inflation or deflation. To accomplish this there should be established a "monetary authority" (by whatever name called) this monetary authority should be as largely as possible non-partisan and non-political; their tenure of office should be of such length as to protect this body from sudden change; the members, through pensions or otherwise, should be adequately provided for throughout life; and this authority should be directed by definite mandate from Congress under that section of the Constitution which directs Congress to "coin money and regulate the value thereof," to establish and maintain a unit of value (the dollar) with a contsant purchasing power; a monetary currency regulated on an index of basic commodities on their world price, considering gold and silver as commodities, and dealing with them in terms of their market value. Congress should vest in this "authority" the power to control price adjustments through monetary action by means of (a) repricing of gold; (Continued on Page Four)

WORLD WHEAT STOCKS GO

A marked reduction in the world supply of wheat between now and July 1 is in prospect, according to the Bureau of Agricultural Economics. 'Analyzing the situation in its January report on world wheat prospects, the bureau says that the sur-plus of wheat available for export and carry-over in Canada, Australia, and Argentina was about 140,000,000 bushels less this January 1 than last. With only a small surplus in Argentina and Australia, Canada has an opportunity to reduce her surplus stock to about normal size. Stocks in the United States are about unchanged from a year ago. Stocks in this country may be slightly less at the end of the season than at the beginning, and con-

COST OF PRODUCTION

That Basic Farmers Union Principle Upheld; Conference Sanctioned Secretary Kennedy's Participation in Committee of 13

As agricultural leaders and government officials in Washington coninue to wrestle with the problem of adopting a workable agricultural program to follow the defunct AAA, the National Farmers Union is cooperating fully with other farm groups n the situation,

Of course everything possible is being done to further the Farmers Union program, which is based upon cost of production. However, just what the final result will be is still a matter of conjecture.

President E. H. Everson of the National Farmers Union was called into the conference of farm leaders by Henry Wallace, secretary of agriculture. Mr. Everson in turn issued a call for the members of the National Executive Committee of the Farmers Union, together with state presidents of the Farmers Union, to come to Washington. The response was general, and all members of the executive committee were present.

The Farmers Union group gave endorsement to the National Secretary, Edward E. Kennedy, in taking part in the conference of a committee of thirteen, composed of farm leaders and others closely allied with agriculture. The Farmers Union conference chose five men to prepare a statement setting forth the Farmers Union's position with reference to the agricultural situation. The aims and purpose of the Farmers Union were set forth in a five-point statement This was on January 14, which was of a statement of the committee of thirteen. That statement was made January 11. A final report of the National Agricultural Conference, signed by leading farm organizations, and subscribed to by the National Farmers Union, was made on Janu-

After the meeting we partook of a fine lunch in the basement of the school house. We all enjoyed a nice social visit for about an hour or so. Mr. Meenan, who lives close to Clay Center, took me back to, Clay Center after the meeting.

Met With Pioneers On January 31, Mr. Lynn and I drove into McPherson county to attend a metting of Pioneer Local 656, near Marquette. We found the school room well filled with enthusiastic, earnest Farmers Union folks, including fathers, wives and children. In all there were about 100 present.

Mr. Lynn was first introduced by chairman Gustafson, and made the first talk. He also introduced me as the next speaker. I have heard of people talking until the cows come home, but this is the first time I ever talked to an audience until the lights went out; and then I kept on talking in the dark until the lights came back on again. Owing to some trouble with the Delco light system furnishing the lights for the school house, the lights would go off and come on again, but that did not interfere with the attention and interest of the Farmers Union folks of Pioneer Local.

After the meeting we all adjourned to the basement of the school house to eat cakes of all kinds and drink coffee. We discussed informally, the Farmers Union program and all the questions confronting the farmers at the present time.

.Young Folks at Meetings

Altogether both meetings of the week were very enjoyable and much worth while. I was impressed by the number of young folks attending ing conditions of agriculture. both meetings. It seems to me that if there ever

But it seems as though the last decision is very comparable to the one of March 6th, 1856, known as the Dredd Scott Decision, declaring by law that a negro was not a man, but a chattel; and we all know the distress that followed.

None of us want a return of that condition of national affairs. But we do want justice. And so it is up to us, the producers and consumers of pork and wheat, to make every effort in our power to let our representatives and senators in Congress, and our respective organization leaders, know that we do not approve of such a steal. It is not their money; it's your money and my money.

The WHY Of GOOD COFFEE

THAT is the one essential bev-Werage which makes or breaks the average American's day? Coffee, of course! We spend, as a nation, $300,000,000 a year for this delectable beverage, and yet a good many of us continue to grumble because we sometimes get coffee that does not taste right. There's a reason for this. The only coffee that makes a good brew is strictly fresh, and the only coffee that keeps strictly fresh until opened is that which is packed in vacuum cans.

There's a reason for this, too. When the coffee bean is roasted, a gas, called carbon dioxide, is found in its tiny cells. This gas is under such high pressure in the coffee bean that it forces its way out very rapidly for the first twenty-four hours after the coffee is roasted and ground. In about nine days practically all of it has left the coffee.

More Reasons Why

The roasted bean also develops an aromatic or volatile oil which contains the aroma or flavor of the coffee and forms that part of it which is so delicious in the cup. This aromatic oil evaporates from the ground coffee along with the gas.

The oxygen of the air is the great enemy of good coffee because its reaction with substances in the coffee develops that disagreeable flavor which makes us call it stale. It is to preserve the flavor and oils of coffee and to exclude the oxygen that it should be packed in va-

Coffee, so packed, is sealed in the can in a large machine called a vacuum closing machine which draws out the air and seals the cover so that no air can possibly get in, all this in one operation,

> When the first red clover came to America has never been determined, but it quite probably came as a stowaway. Records in the Bureau of Plant Industry indicate that the hold of the tiny vessel which brought the Pilgrims from Holland in 1620 may have carried a few precious bags of red clover seed, a crop that had been a standby in the "Low Countries" for many years. It is definitely recorded that a ship sent from Holland in 1625 carried, among other needs, "al sorts of seed."

Sir Richard Weston, a successful Surrey farmer who sought refuge from religious persecution in Flan-ders, returned with seed of red clover to England in 1645, where it was known as "English grass." A New namon, ½ cup butter, 11 cups sugar, "English clover grass thrives very 2 eggs, 1 cup sour milk, 1 cup fresh well." In 1670 Long Island produced "Excellent English grass . . United States Savings Bonds are sold on a discount basisfor example, a bond worth $100 at maturity can be bought today for $75. Unlike coupon bonds or other Government obligations, these bonds do not pay immediate interest, but constantly increase in guaranteed cash surrender value from the first year until they mature at the end of ten years, when their face value will be paid in cash. They may be redeemed at any time after sixty days from date of purchase at fixed prices. They are, therefore, not affected in dollar value by market conditions and are free from fluctuation. Approximately 997,000 United States Savings Bonds have been issued since they became available on March 1, 1935. Thesales total to January 1 of this year is approximately $270,000,000 maturity value—an average sale of approximately $1,000,000 for every business day.

The Treasury Department seeks to extend the ownership of this form of security in the belief that the purchasers will benefit from their investment and the Government itself will benefit through a wider distribution of its obligations.
