Dr. Robert Hines of Kansas State University, superintendent of the sale, called for another animal to be brought to the ring as auctioneer O'Bryan announced a high bid.

CUNDIFF SPOT TOPS SALE

As Auctioneer W. W. O'Bryan barked out the bids, ringmen showed off a Spot boar owned by J. V. Cundiff of Manchester. It sold for $425 to Kohman Hog Farm of Abilene, the top price paid for either a boar or gilt at the second annual Kansas All-Breed Sale.

Into Winter With A Moisture Deficit

Soil moisture supplies in wheat fields in the western two-thirds of Kansas at mid-October were substantially below a year ago and moderately below average, according to the Kansas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service.

The sample tests this year indicated 3.96 inches of water available for plant use in the top 4 feet of soil. This was 34 percent less than at mid-October last year and 11 percent less than the 1960-69 average of 4.47 inches.

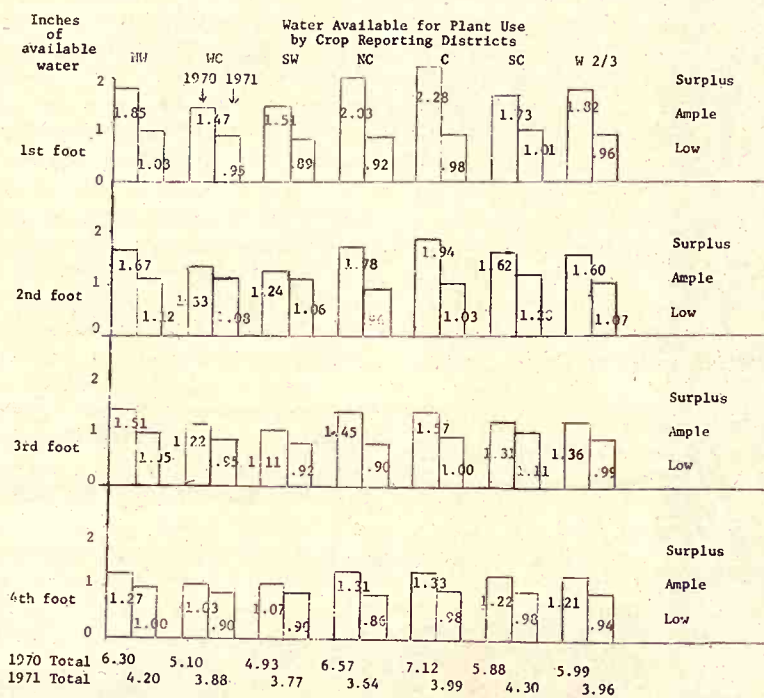

Medium textured soil at field capacity will contain about 8 inches of water available for plant use in the top 4 feet.

Available water for plant use in the first, second, third and fourth feet of soil this fall averaged .96 inch, 1.07 inches, .99 inch, and .94 inch, respectively, compared with 1.82 inches, 1.60 inches, 1.36 inches, and 1.21 inches, respectively, in October 1970.

Average depth of penetration of available moisture was 44.7 inches, compared with 46.4 inches last year and the ten-year average of 42.5 inches.

In all crop reporting districts the amount of soil water available for plant use was below that of a year earlier. In the north central and central districts with 3.64 inches and 3.99 inches, respectively, moisture declines from a year earlier were sharpest.

South central Kansas with 4.30 inches of available water had more moisture than any other district this fall, with the northwest area second with 4.20 inches.

The depth of available soil moisture this fall was considerably less than a year ago in the southwest, south central and north central districts and was greater in only the northwest district.

Seeding of the 1972 Kansas wheat crop got underway on a limited scale in western areas during the last week of August. Lack of soil moisture delayed seeding operations until mid-September in many localities but widespread rains later in the month caused wheat seeding activity to pick up throughout the State.

By October 16, about 95 percent of the wheat acreage had been seeded. Stands were mostly good with relatively little replanting necessary this year. At mid-October the average height of wheat plants in the western two-thirds of the State at 4.0 inches was considerably above the 2.1 inches recorded last year, and a ten-year average of 3.6 inches.

Soil moisture determinations were made at various depths throughout the western two-thirds of the State. These levels comprised the top 6 inches, second 6 inches, second foot, third foot, and fourth foot.

In the top 6 inches no soil samples were designated as very wet this fall, compared with 8 percent so designated last year. Three percent of the tests taken in the first 6 inches were recorded as wet with 95 percent moderately wet and 2 percent slightly damp.

For the second 6 inches none of the tests were very wet, 7 percent wet, 92 percent moderately wet and 1 percent slightly damp or dry, while last year 2 percent were very wet, 61 percent wet, 37 percent moderately wet and 0 percent classified as slightly damp or dry.

In the second foot 8 percent of the tests were wet, 90 percent moderately wet, and 2 percent slightly damp or dry.

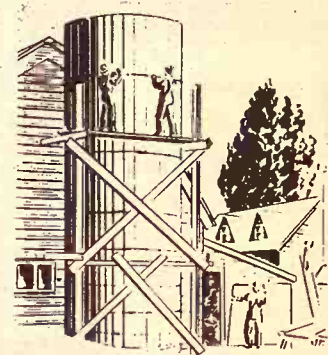

In the third foot 8 percent of the tests were wet, 80 percent moderately wet and 12 percent were slightly damp or dry, compared with 36 percent, 61 percent, and 3 percent, respectively, last fall.

In the fourth foot 8 percent of the tests were wet, 77 percent moderately wet and 15 percent slightly damp or dry, compared with last year when 28 percent were wet, 64 percent moderately wet and 8 percent slightly damp or dry.

Pork Producers Sale Top At $425

The hogs were better and the prices were higher than a year ago when the Kansas Pork Producers Council staged its second annual all-Council show and sale at Abilene. The top seller was a Spot boar owned by J. V. Cundiff of Manhattan. It went for $425 to Kohman Hog Farm of Abilene. The boar had been the grand champion Spot boar at the Kansas State Fair. In all 34 boars sold for an average of $188. The 54 gilts purchased from the sale ring averaged $120. For the head, the average sale price was $46.25.

Considering the weather, which kept some buyers away, it was an excellent sale," remarked Wendell Moyer, Extension swine specialist at Kansas State University.

"The first 10 boars sold averaged $267.50. Overall, the hogs were well received by the buyers, although we didn't have quite as many buyers as we had hoped for."

Judge Robert Perry of Bethel, Mo., who determined the sale order and which of the 151 head could be shown for sale, remarked that the quality of swine brought to this year's sale was much better than last year's.

Moyer said buyers are now recognizing the annual sale as an excellent opportunity to buy good boars and gilts rather than as a dumping grounds for purebred breeders.

The second highest price paid at the sale was $400 for a Yorkshire boar owned by Floyd Meyer of Palmer. Kohman also purchased this pig.

The top selling gilt was a Duroc owned by Claude Messner of Caney. The buyer was the show's judge, Robert Perry, who paid $300.

W. W. O'Bryan of Hiattville in Bourbon county was the auctioneer.

Delay Bumper Requirement For Smaller Cars

The Transportation Department has granted a 1-year delay in requiring some smaller cars to provide stronger bumpers, but reaffirmed its requirement that other new automobiles meet the higher standards by Sept. 1, 1973.

John A. Volpe, secretary of transportation, said he had denied requests by manufacturers for postponement of the compliance deadline beyond 1973.

Studies by the National Highway Transportation Safety Administration show that the benefits of 5-mile-an-hour rear bumper protection by the 1973 date will outweigh the added costs.

Because of special compliance problems, a delay to Sept. 1, 1974, was granted for one class of vehicle, Volpe said.

This class includes passenger cars with a wheel base of 115 inches or less, provided they are convertibles, vehicles with no back or hard tops.

All other cars must comply with the new standards by the 1973 date, Volpe said.

That deadline represents the second phase in a bumper-strengthening program that begins next Sept. 1.

On that date, all new cars must have front bumpers that can withstand a crash into a fixed barrier at five miles an hour, and rear bumpers that can absorb a crash at 2½ miles an hour.

The crash forces must be absorbed without damage to safety-related systems such as lights cooling systems, exhaust and fuel lines.

Poultry Industry Conference Next Week At Wichita

The 37th annual Kansas Poultry Industry Conference will be held in the Broadview Hotel in Wichita, Wednesday and Thursday, Nov. 3-4.

M. E. Jackson, Extension poultry specialist at Kansas State University, reports that experts on the program will examine poultry enterprise financing, poultry production and health problems, and poultry marketing arrangements and problems.

Registration for the event begins at 1 p.m., Wednesday. The official opening at 2 p.m. features William S. May, vice-president of the Federal Land Bank in Wichita. He will discuss "The Future of General Agriculture as a Banker Sees It."

Later in the afternoon, Wilbur Levering, Merchants National Bank of Topeka, will talk about "What To Do When Credit Fails." The day's program closes with meetings of the various branches of the poultry industry.

Thursday's educational session begins at 10 a.m. Dr. A. W. Adams, KSU poultry scientist, will discuss pesticide problems in poultry and eggs. Cliff Stewart of HiLine Poultry Farms, Des Moines, Iowa, will talk about corporate versus private enterprise in egg production.

L. W. Wilhelm of the Poultry and Egg National Board in Chicago will describe marketing orders with his organization. After lunch, there will be two panel discussions about (1) whether 4-cent egg contracts can survive and (2) about where the poultry industry will go in the future. A banquet at 6:30 p.m. will close the program.

A DIFFERENT LOOK IN FFA

The hair is still neat and the look remains country-fresh, but the national convention of the FFA at Kansas City last week left little doubt that Future Farmers have adopted modish long hair and sideburns.

The bluejackets are still ever-present, but one difference which appeared just a year ago is the presence of skirts, short ones, in the FFA midst. The organization allowed females to participate as delegates to the national convention beginning in 1970.

measured only a 530 decrease. But in a separate statement to the press, not to be released until the FTC, Ford said it made other tests which the noise levels had been reduced by 600 percent in the LTD. If the companies can't back their claims, the FTC can force them to halt the advertising.

Plan To Cut Army To Lowest Level In 11 Years

Some 65,000 officers and enlisted men will be released by next year, many earlier than normal, as the Army moves to cut its manpower to the lowest level, in 11 years.

Army officials said most of those to be released are in ranks and in which the Army is overstrength on men whose tours of duty are to end soon anyway.

There were indications, although the Army did not say so, that it would use the cuts to get rid of some deadwood, principally career enlisted men who have not been promoted above private first class.

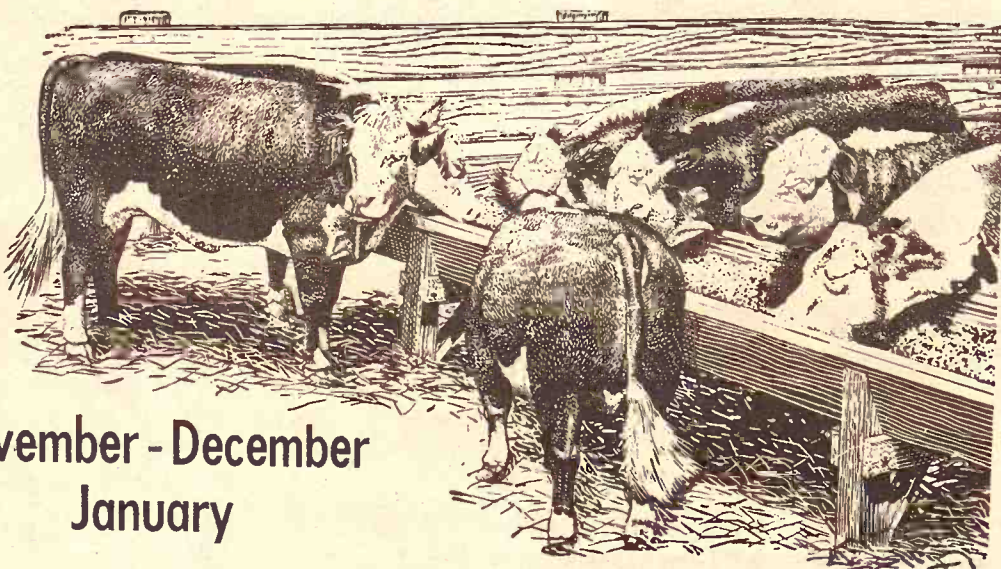

Some sergeants major and about 4,000 reserve lieutenants and captains also are due for release.

The Nixon administration has planned to reduce Army manpower currently 1,120,000 men, to 942,000 by June 30. But Congress has ordered a further cut to 892,000.

Current planning calls for a cutback to between 820,000 and 840,000 men by mid-1975, when the Nixon administration hopes the Army will be on an all-volunteer basis.

Pressed by new requirements from the Federal Trade Commission to back up advertising claims, Chevrolet and Ford have gone back to the drawing board.

Chevy, called upon to name the "109 advantages" which it claims for its 1971 Chevelle counted some items which it might have a little trouble not finding in its competitor's cars. Among them are new color combinations, head restraints, automatic chokes, keyless door-locking, and stamped steel door hinges.

Another advantage of the Chevelle, said Chevy, was that the company sells a full line of cars.

Called upon to back its claim that the LTD achieves a 600 percent reduction in noise, Ford backed down a little, said that a test

Athol Cites Marshall For Tax Load

ATHOL—Farmers pay more than 65 percent of all school taxes in Marshall County, Dale Lyon, Athol, Executive Director of Farmers in Kansas, said here last week at the annual meeting of How's Your Hearing?

Chicago, Ill.—A Free offer of interest to those who do not understand hearing has been announced by a non-operating model of the smallest Beltone aid ever. It will be given absolutely free to anyone answering this advertisement.

Try it to see how it is worn. The privacy of your own hearing without cost or obligation. It's yours to keep, it weighs less than a third of an ounce, and it's all at ear level. No wires lead to the head. These models are free, so we want you to write for yours. Again, we repeat, there is no charge, and certainly no obligation. Write to Dept. P-9913 Beltone Electronics Corp., 4201 W. Chicago, Ill. 60646.

the Marshall County Farmers Union in the Beattie High School Auditorium, Lyon declared that farmers in this county pay more than three times as much school tax as non-farmers.

"Farm real estate and personal property account for $27 million of a total $43 million of taxable valuation in this county," he said.

Also, farmers pay a great portion of the taxes on corporate-owned property through purchases to run their farms and homes, he said.

Lyon claimed a greater inequity was to be found in the schools themselves.

"They are only preparatory schools for further schooling in professions and vocations, far removed for the most part from the needs of regeneration in our own communities," he said. "They are not relevant to rural communities."

"Farmers are not only forced to pay an overwhelming tax burden to support education," Lyon said. "But are forced to let our children be taught that rural life is demeaning at best, and not the 'good life'."

Recently the Supreme Court ruled that property tax financing for schools in California is unconstitutional, Lyon told the farmers.

"Although the California case was based on the inequality of educational opportunity offered between property-poor and property-rich districts, we know now that equality of educational opportunity has some judgment factor involved," he said.

Lyon said if the property tax laws in this state were challenged from the taxpayer's inequitable position where inequities are mathematically calculable, he believes the chances would be very good for throwing out the school levy laws as unconstitutional in Kansas.

Some Sentiment For Long Delays On Social Security Rate Hikes

Scheduled increases in Social Security tax rates could be postponed until well into the next century if the Nixon administration adopts a new approach to financing the massive retirement program. Since the amount of income subject to the tax will gradually rise, the new approach wouldn't actually reduce annual retirement-tax payments for any but low-income workers. But it would drastically slow the present rate of increase. The current maximum annual retirement tax of $358.80, paid by employer and employee alike, would jump sharply to $706.80 in 1977 under an administration proposal pending in Congress. But the new actuarial approach could result in a maximum retirement-tax payment of only $478.80 in 1977, assuming the wage base on which the tax is levied rises gradually from $7,800 to $11,400 by then, as proposed by the administration. The key actuarial changes being considered by the Social Security Administration involve: • Operating the retirement fund with only enough reserve to pay one year's benefits, rather than seeking to accumulate gigantic surpluses. • Projecting future tax needs on the assumption that wages will rise rather than remain level for the next 75 years, the conservative approach currently in use. These changes could reduce to only about 4.2 percent the retirement-tax rate needed to finance the current level of benefits for the next 35 to 40 years, Social Security experts say. The present rate of 4.6 percent, which is levied on both employer and employee, is scheduled to rise to 5 percent in 1973. Using conventional forecasting methods, the Nixon administration last year recommended that Congress drop the rate to 4.2 percent for the next three years, then increase it to 5 percent in 1975 and 6.1 percent in 1977. (When the 0.6 percent medicare payroll tax is included, the total current tax rate is 5.2 percent, bringing the yearly maximum that can be withheld from a worker's pay to $405.60.) Now Social Security Administration experts are considering a more far-reaching revision in the tax schedule. If Nixon administration officials approve, Congress could be asked later this year or next to cancel the scheduled retirement tax increases and adopt a flat rate for an extended period. The big obstacle may be within the Nixon administration. Some Social Security experts insist it's better to err on the conservative side and keep tax rates higher than absolutely necessary to avoid any risk of miscalculation. On Capitol Hill, conservative legislators may also object. The idea that the government retirement program, like private pension plans, sets aside each worker's contribution rather than spends it right away has long been a popular part of Social Security mythology. But most lawmakers are likely to be receptive, for retirement-tax increases are never welcome. In the past, the lawmakers have often deferred scheduled rate increases for a few years, but have never had the opportunity to do it for decades. "It's very appealing politically," comments one Social Security man. The new approach is prompted by favorable demographic projections. The ratio of beneficiaries to workers is expected to remain stable until the year 2010. Only then will an increase in the numbers of retired persons relative to the work force produce new financing needs and another rise in the retirement-tax rate.

In practice, Social Security officials say, Congress has been following a pay-as-you-go policy. The lawmakers repeatedly postpone scheduled tax increases to avoid building big surpluses. Now, Social Security officials would like to openly adopt this policy. They insist that the retirement system need take in only enough money annually to cover current costs and maintain about one year's reserve, now amounting to $40 billion. The reserve would tide the system through slack economic periods when tax income falls and benefit costs rise as more workers retire.

Rates currently scheduled would ultimately produce a trust fund surplus of several hundred billion dollars, the experts predict. While these surpluses yield substantial interest earnings to the Social Security system, they aren't needed to pay benefits, if Social Security taxes continue.

There's no purpose in having such a big fund. I know of no one here who wants it," argues one Social Security technician. The government borrows the Social Security trust funds to finance other activities, and critics complain that payroll taxes are regressive; they hit hardest at low and moderate-income workers.

Even more crucial to the adoption of a low, long-term tax rate is abandonment of the current conservative method of forecasting future Social Security income and expenditures. Wages are assumed to remain level for the next 75 years, not because the experts really believe they will but because level wages provide a simple forecasting tool that affords a large margin of safety.

Because wages actually do rise, extra income is generated for the Social Security fund. Workers at higher wage levels also get benefit increases, because retirement payments are tied to wages, but as earnings climb, Social Security taxes take in about 40 percent more income than must be paid out in increased benefits.

Congress usually uses this surplus to liberalize benefits for all workers and to postpone future scheduled tax increases.

The new method being considered would forecast rising wage levels, perhaps at the rate of 4 percent or 5 percent a year. The surpluses to be produced years hence would be taken into account immediately to lower the tax requirements. Under this system, Congress can't depend on rising wages to produce trust fund surpluses, but must provide new tax increases for any benefit boost going beyond the rise in the cost of living. Benefit increases to cover cost-of-living rises would be provided by increasing the wage base.

Present law calls for the base to rise next Jan. 1 to $9,000, triple what it was when Congress created the Social Security system in 1935. Employers and workers started out paying a tax levy of 1 percent each. This rose to 1.5 percent in 1950, had climbed to 2.5 percent by 1959, and since then has more than doubled, when the medicare levy is included.

Still time to add $5 to $12
profit to each weaner calf you'll ship
this year

Those several weeks of stress and poor performance at weaning time could be turned into a time of good growth and extra income. Weaner calves on Purina Preconditioning Chow have proved it's possible to add 30 to 40 pounds of gain during this difficult period. More than two million rangeland calves have now been handled this more profitable way.

The Purina Preconditioning Chow program is so simple you can easily adopt it for this year's calf crop. You just feed Preconditioning Chow free choice for 21 to 30 days. Calves usually eat about 10 pounds per head per day; their gain should normally return $5 to $12 over feed costs. And because calves are better prepared for feedlot conditions, they are more valuable to the buyer.

Extra profit for the rancher, extra capability for the feeder. Can you afford to overlook these important goals? There is still time for Purina Preconditioning Chow—this year.

Carefully Choose Clothes To Conceal Figure Flaws

For the new fashions for fall, your last year's figure may need some help. Especially since proportion is so important for the right look.

But with a knowledge of your
conceal figure flaws, you can look as well-dressed as anyone else.

Trousers with trim tunics, long jackets, or mid-leg vests streamline heavy hips and stomach. However, the long skirt can cause problems for even the thinnest of girls. The skirt that clings from waist to mid-leg can reveal many faults.

To wear a long skirt, concentrate on making any bulges look smooth.
A hip-length top in a subtly contrasting color minimizes thickness at the waist. A belt slung loosely just below the waistline detracts too. If your waist and midriff are thick, create a slim line with long sweaters, jackets, vests or tunics that are slightly shaped at the middle. A belt can be worn loosely below the natural waistline. Suede and leather belts are best because they remain in position and don't bulk at the waist.

For the girl whose legs are less than lovely, pants are the ideal solution. Unfortunately, you can't wear pants all the time. A carefully planned skirt and top outfit will disguise some leg problems, such as heavy thighs or fat knees. But even this won't hide faults below the knees.

The best idea is to wear your skirts at a length which shows the best of your legs' shape. If your knees are good, don't be afraid of wearing short skirts. Sometimes, the amount of leg showing can make up for what is lacking in contours. Hiding isn't always the best answer for leg problems.

Shoes the same color as stockings de-emphasize heavy legs by elongating instead of breaking the line between legs and feet. Heavy calves will look slimmer in higher-heeled shoes because they slim and cause the calf to shape attractively.

A rule of thumb for flawed figures is to keep the colors solid rather than patterned. Subtle use of color can disguise many figure problems.

Apple Time

It's the season for apples — fresh, fall apples.

Fresh apples are not among the foods covered by the price freeze. So prices for fresh apples may fluctuate, depending on the supply and demand for them.

When local supplies are heavy during harvest, chances are that prices for fresh apples will be attractive in the coming weeks. Prices for fresh apples typically are more favorable during the local harvest than they are in the winter when storage costs increase prices.

Prices for canned applesauce and apple juice are frozen right now.
Although retailers cannot increase prices on canned applesauce until after the freeze price, they can lower them.

It is possible that canned applesauce might be lowered in price this fall season. There are heavy supplies on hand.

Brighten Shelves

If you're lucky enough to have an empty corner for sewing supplies, here's how you can make more use of the space. Drape lengths of fabric over extension rods, braced against either wall. Fabrics in colorful cotton prints can be used to curtain off corner shelves.

To give crisp new body to dark cottons, dip them in a weak solution of plain gelatin and water. Roll in towels to absorb excess moisture and press while still damp. They will keep a crisp finish through several wearings.

Install your electric water heater in or near the kitchen, bathroom or laundry room, where most hot water is used. This eliminates long, heat-wasting pipe runs that force you to drain off and waste cool water (that you've already paid to heat) before the hot water you want comes out of the tap.

Repair leaking hot water faucets. A leak of one drop per second adds up to 650 gallons of water a year that you pay to heat and then waste.

At last there is an anti-static sock for men. In terms of comfort and easy care, this means no clinging trouser legs and no lint after machine washing and drying.

The soil stays on the surface and foot comfort is increased because perspiration is absorbed. Of course, all hosiery should be washed after wearing.

The best way to keep the face in good shape and ward off the winter's damage is to follow a daily facial routine. First wash with a medicated cleanser, then splash on an astringent. Finally, use a moisturizer to keep the skin from drying. Stronger astringents and cleansers should be used for oily skin and a thicker moisturizer maybe even mayonnaise, for dry skin.

Place lollipops on a birthday cake instead of candles. When it's time to cut the cake, distribute the lollipops to young guests as favors.

Dress up your flower pots by wrapping them with aluminum foil. This gives them a gay decorative look as well as preventing water dripping through to furniture on which they rest.

One of the popular dressings we buy is French dressing.

French dressing is a mixture of oil and vinegar that forms a temporary or unstable emulsion. It is varied by kinds of seasons, variety of oil, and use of flavored vinegar by the processor.

The commercial French dressings you buy must contain not less than 35 per cent vegetable oil.

Seekers of clean air and wide open spaces apparently still are moving to Oregon despite a campaign by some residents — including the governor — to discourage new settlers.

Early this year, Gov. Tom McCall, in a nationwide television broadcast, told the rest of the nation: "Come visit us again and again. This is a state of excitement. But for heaven's sake, don't come here to live."

McCall said his statements were "an expression of hope that overpopulation and overindustrialization would not throw Oregon into the situation so many other states face today. Their overcrowding, population, lack of breathing space and overtaxed recreational facilities take the zest out of life."

The statements infuriated nonresidents. One wrote to call it "unmitigated gall." Others have written to say they'll live where they please.

Some Oregonians also are upset. Phil Bladine, president of the Associated Oregon Industries, said recently, "I'm quite unhappy over top state officials creating the atmosphere that Oregon is inhospitable, I talked to people from as far away as Georgia and they've asked me if it's true that Oregon doesn't want to increase its economic growth."

McCall says he has urged industry to locate in Oregon — he just asks them to use the existing state labor force and he warns them they'll have to abide by the state's tough environmental laws.

Still the people come. A Field Research Corp. survey published in July said nearly one-third of California's residents, many disillusioned with pollution and overcrowding, want to leave the state. First on the list of places they wanted to go was Oregon.

Oregon officials say the state's population is about 2,090,000. Since Oregon's area is 96,209 square miles this means about 22 persons to the square mile.

California's population in the 1970 census was 19,715,490. Its area is 156.537 square miles for a density of about 126 persons to the square mile.

New Herington Sale Barn Opens

HERINGTON—The first sale in the new sale pavilion of the Herington Livestock Commission, was scheduled for today, Oct. 26.

The new structure for an old sale barn is on the east side of highway 101, just south of Herington. The new building features advanced facilities including a covered sorting pen to the west of the sale pavilion.

Statements were made at the opening ceremony that over-industrialization of the region into the livestock business is a threat to the area's future.

Others have said that the new building will be a boon to the area's livestock industry.

produced almost $1 billion annually in cash receipts."

Much of the growth can be traced to the State's ample supply of feed grains, now getting an additional boost from new irrigated corn and sorghum acreage in western Kansas. Also, according to Pallesen, there are plenty of feeder cattle.

Of the State's 9,000 cattle feeders, survey questionnaires will be sent to all large commercial operators, and a scientifically selected sample of the others. Farmers' responses are confidential and only State totals will be issued.

Premiums From Mid-America Fair Still Unpaid

Six weeks after the Mid-America Fair at Topeka closed, premiums to prize-winning exhibitors still had not been paid.

Fair officials have expected that some $19,000 in unpaid premiums would be paid from funds from Shawnee county. But Shawnee county commissioners John Hiller and Maurice Towle indicated that they wouldn't authorize any such payment, at least until after November 1, if then.

Beset with decreasing income, deteriorating facilities, and a great deal of criticism from within Topeka, the Mid-America Fair board has had a series of disagreements with the county commission.

Fair association president Phil Gibson has even hinted that he might try to get $70,000 out of the county, instead of the $19,000 needed to pay the unpaid premiums, based on a 1915 Kansas law that provides for a one-fourth mill levy to pay a county agricultural fair. The lease that the fairboard has with the county also allows the fair to use the levy to improve the buildings and grounds, if it provides more cash than is used for premiums.

The lease between the Mid-America Fair and Shawnee county, which owns the fairgrounds, does not expire until 1986.

The Mid-America Fair had receipts of $166,000 in 1971, off more than a third from the $255,000 income in 1969. The fair had even less income in 1970 when it rained all six days of the fair.

Beech Back In Black

One of the G&G area's biggest employers, Beech Aircraft, has bounced back after a woeful financial year in 1970.

The Wichita firm, which has plants in other G&G area towns as well, lost $7.7 million last year but the 1971 fiscal year shows a $4.6 million profit. Sales were down from the $169 million gross of a year ago, but the profit was up enough to pay the regular quarterly dividend and a one percent stock dividend, subject to the federal economic control program.

The exact amount of the profit was not disclosed, pending final audit. Beech has paid 93 consecutive quarterly dividends, including through 1970 when the large loss was felt.

Western Kansas Irrigation To Point Of 'Mining Water'

The rapid increase in irrigation in western Kansas, described as "phenomenal" by some observers, is seriously affecting the groundwater supply in parts of western Kansas and is causing increasing concern among irrigators and officials concerned with water resources.

Already, the water table is more than 90 feet lower than it was 30 years ago in one part of Grant County in southwest Kansas. Water tables have declined more than 50 feet over about 160 square miles in Grant County, more than 30 feet in a large portion of southwest Kansas and scattered areas in northwest Kansas, and more than 10 feet in 2,600 square miles of western Kansas.

If irrigation continues to expand at its present rate, some areas of western Kansas will deplete their groundwater supply within a few decades, some officials predict. Even before then, the lowered water level will be a serious problem over parts of western Kansas, they say.

The Kansas and U.S. Geological Surveys and the Division of Water Resources of the State Dept. of Agriculture monitor wells in western Kansas. The measurements are taken between January and March, just before the heavy spring and summer irrigation.

Dr. Ernest Angino, associate director of the Kansas Geological Survey, said, "They snap back during the winter months, but they come back at a lower and lower table every year."

"We're taking water from the aquifers (groundwater reservoirs) faster than they are recharged. In some places, we're taking water from them several times faster than they are being recharged. Kansas is mining its water."

Dr. Angino said it is dangerous to make predictions on future usage because present consumption rates may change due to revised irrigation practices or technology. But based on present consumption, he said, some areas will have serious water problems within a few decades.

Present activity among water resources officials in the state appears to be based on trying to make more efficient use of the available water and, if possible, slowing down the rate of usage; increasing the rate of replenishment of the groundwater supply, and eventually importing water from areas of the nation which have a surplus.

There appears to be little, if any, support for the contrasting idea that irrigation—which takes two-thirds of the water used in Kansas—should be discouraged in western Kansas and the High Plains should remain essentially a dry-land farming area. There obviously is profit in irrigation for western Kansas farmers, as is shown by the rapid spread of irrigation. This in turn leads to economic benefits for businessmen and municipalities in areas in which irrigation is practiced and for the state as a whole.

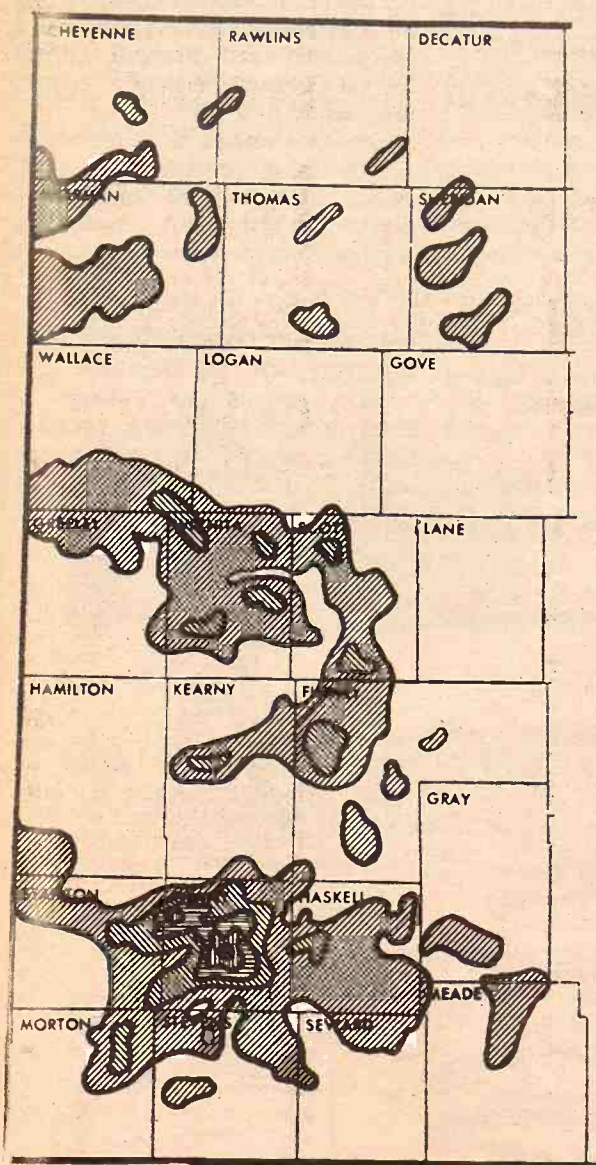

Much of the irrigation in western Kansas is for corn—and the yields which irrigation makes dazzle the imagination of those who are accustomed to yields in the east Kansas, the historic corn belt of Kansas.

In 1969, the yield in De Kalb County in northeast Kansas was 100 bushels per acre. It was 84 bushels per acre in Brown County. In 1968, it was 99 bushels per acre in Brown County and 105 bushels per acre in Sherman County in northeast Kansas.

Of the 10 leading Kansas counties for corn production, four are in western Kansas, according to the State Board of Agriculture.

Two years ago, a group of officials from Kansas State University, the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture, the Bureau of Reclamation, and

Some major irrigating areas in western Kansas are showing gradual declines in groundwater levels in the last 30 years. This map, from the U.S. Geological Survey, shows the decline in feet in water levels in 24 western Kansas counties. Measurements were first taken in 1940 in southwest Kansas.

BEST BARROW AT WICHITA SHOW

The market hog champion at the National Junior Livestock Show at Wichita was a 215 pound Hampshire shown by Rick Weir of Gueda Springs. Rick sold the champion for $567. He's a senior at Ark City High School and wants to go to K-State to study to become an architect.

Rurinerup was a Duroc-Chesterwhite cross shown by Noralle Nagel of Valley Center. She sold her barrow for $301.

AUCTIONEER MOVES TO SENECA

A new auctioneer in the Seneca area is Morris Pollman. Pollman moved recently to Nemaha county from McPherson. He is a native of Centralia. His folks, the George Pollmans, now live in Paxico. He is married to the former Roxie Hund, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hund of Paxico.

Pollman has done auctioneering in the Herington and Emporia areas, as well as near Clovis, New Mexico.

Court Won't Turn Over Iowa Law On Hog Slaughter

The Iowa Supreme Court has dismissed an appeal by three Iowa farmers disturbed over low pork prices who slaughtered more than 100 hogs without seeking approval of county officials. At issue, attorneys for the farmers say, is whether the hogs were shot and then buried in a ditch in an effort to force the price of pork upward.

The three farmers—Henry Steenhoek, Jesse Wright and Gary Wright—killed hogs in Jasper County, Iowa, March 26, 1968. They were charged with violating a unique state law requiring the approval of county health authorities for a livestock slaughter.

The farmers, denying they were trying to influence prices, contested the competence of county health officials to judge their motives. They argued the marketplace should determine whether they sell their products, not county authorities.

The Jasper County Court agreed with the farmers, but an appeal by the state to the Iowa Supreme Court resulted in a conviction. The defendants appealed directly to the Supreme Court, where their appeal was turned down unanimously and without comment.

Label Hamburger On Fat Basis

The several grades of hamburger that are usually designated on the meat counter as regular ground beef, ground chuck, ground round, and ground sirloin may soon be marked on the basis of their fat content.

Safeway Stores, the second largest grocery chain in the country, says it is going to start labeling hamburger as regular, lean, extra lean, and super lean. Regular lean will be about 25 percent fat and the leaner grades will drop 3 to 4 percent each, so that the leanest hamburger will be about 15 percent fat.

Safeway said it expects not significant difference in price when the stores go to the new labeling.

Some consumer groups have criticized such designations as "ground sirloin" on the grounds that local grinding was done with whatever beef was handy and with the cut shoppers thought were paying for.

SALE EVERY

Thursday

Again we had a very large run of cattle for our sale last Thursday, October 21 with all classes of cattle selling at steady to higher prices, with a real good demand for all classes of cattle throughout the auction.

We are expecting a large number of cattle for our sale this coming Thursday, October 28.

Please notice that we are holding a special Stocker & Feeder sale in conjunction with our regular sale. If you have cattle to sell, we feel as though this might be a good day to have them here, as we already have a good many special assignments which we feel sure will help draw some extra buyers.

If you are wanting to buy cattle, please plan to attend this sale, as we will have some of the best calves and yearlings that have ever been offered for sale through any auction. Because of the expected large run of cattle this coming Thursday, the sale will start at 11:00 a.m.

Following is a partial listing of the auction sales last Thursday:

PEDDICORD MOVE TO MONTANA

Tom Peddicord, one of the four Peddicord Brothers, of Wamego, has bought a 24,000 acre ranch in the vicinity of Billings, Mont., and with his family will move there about January 1.

Tom operated the dehydrating mill near Belvue, Kans., for the partnership. The Peddicord operations include a feed mill and elevator in Wamego.

Tom expects to feed 1000 head of cattle on his ranch, which mainly is range country. The ranch is about 50 miles north and 50 miles east of Billings.

Ease Storage Limits On New Corn Loans

Farmers having trouble finding approved storage for newcrop corn now can qualify for government price support loans regardless of local warehouse availability, the Agriculture Department has announced.

Corn will be accepted at local elevators for price-support loans and then moved at government expense to terminals officials said. Until now, farmers were required to have their corn in approved warehouses before being eligible for loans.

Asst. Secretary of Agriculture Clarence D. Palmby said the emergency measure was designed to help producers who have corn eligible for loans but who do not have proper storage on their farms or at local warehouses.

Under this procedure, a grower could obtain a loan at his own county loan rate even though the corn will be moved by the government to normal terminal destinations for storage, Palmby said.

"The producer will not be liable for the cost of shipping the corn," Palmby said.

A record harvest, coupled with workstoppages at Eastern Gulf port have resulted in a backup of corn in the normal farm-to-market pipeline, Palmby said.

List North Central Stops For Dairy Field Day Nov. 15

Dairymen interested in seeing a variety of labor saving techniques, feed handling systems, and feeding and management programs being used by other Kansas dairy families will want to attend the north central Kansas Dairy Management Field Day, November 15.

The Kansas Cooperative Extension Service is planning and scheduling the program. There will be three different on-farm discussions during the day, at 10 a.m., noon, and 2 p.m. Participants should bring a sack lunch, but coffee, milk and dessert will be provided at the noon stop.

The first stop, at 10 a.m., will be the Gene Bland farm, 7 miles north and 1/2 mile east of Lucas in Osborne county. Bland has a 40-cow dairy herd utilizing a split-herd feeding system. He raises Winter Graze as part of his hay supply.

The luncheon stop on the field day is the Charles Hollerich farm, 2 1/2 miles north of Tipton in Mitchell county. Hollerich has a 60-cow dairy herd, with a double-4 herringbone milking parlor. He has an all-silage forage program, utilizing a new 20 x 80 silo and automated feeding system.

Bob Robbins, a dairyman from Paradise in Russell county, will be on hand at the Hollerich farm to explain a unique hay-making program.

Grass & Grain
October 26, 1971

The final stop at 2 p.m., will be the Richard Erbe farm southeast of State Center in Lincoln county. Erbe has a 100-cow dairy herd utilizing a double-6 herringbone milking parlor. He subscribes to an alfalfa forage program, and an automated hay-stacking equipment. Wilton Thomas, an Extension farm management economist at Kansas State University, said the stop on the tour will feature a substantially different program. Three Extension specialists, Dunham, Frank Overley, and McReynolds, will join with county agents in making comparisons on various aspects of the three operations.

Interested persons are invited to attend all or part of the field day.

LISTEN!

Listen to your body, not your tractor... and you'll discover a better way to farm.

Time was, more engine roar meant more engine power.

Not any more!

Your tired ear drums and aching back are a warning of UNNECESSARY abuse. Case has an answer.

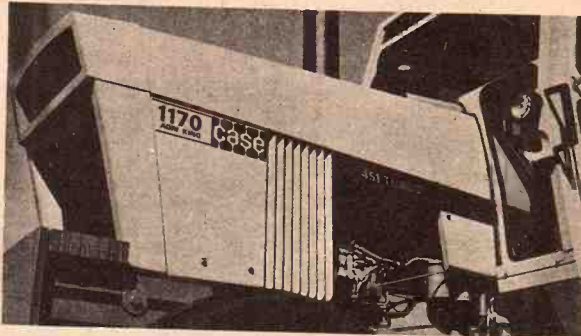

Quiet comfort

You deserve the quiet—freedom from excessive tractor noise—quiet that only Case can give you. Can prolonged exposure to excessive tractor noise be harmful to your hearing? A Canadian study showed that one-third of the farmers in the 55-59 age group had hearing loss enough to have trouble understanding normal speech. In the same group, 60% of the larger farmers had reached that stage.

Can we prove that Case tractors are quieter? Impartial tests show Case Agri King tractors—with or without cab—to be quieter by far. You see the results in the chart below. . . your Case dealer has the official figures.

SOUND LEVEL AT OPERATOR'S EAR AT FULL THROTTLE AND 100% LOAD

WITH CAB	ALL OTHER TRACTORS TESTED
CASE 1170 TRACTOR 89 dBA	97.5 dBA
WITHOUT CAB	ALL OTHER TRACTORS TESTED
CASE 1070 TRACTOR 95 dBA	99 dBA

Note that noise levels with cab range from the Case 1170's 89.5 dBA (decibels) to a competitor's high of 97.5 dBA. Without Cab, the level ranges from the Case 1070's 95 dBA to a high of 99 dBA for other tractors.

Remember, just 6 extra dBA means twice as noisy. And the tests show noise levels up to 8 dBA higher for other leading tractors. In every power class, Case tractors recorded substantially lower noise levels.

How do we achieve this quiet comfort? The patented Agri King platform floats on 4 king-sized rubber bushings which absorb vibration and metal-to-metal transmission noise. The cab is Case-designed, Case-built—tightly sealed, acoustically lined, super quiet.

And comfortable! Your choice of 3 seats. A temperature-controlled cab, air-conditioned if you'd like. No more breathing dust and pollen—just clean, fresh air. But there's more to consider when you choose a tractor—much more!

LISTEN...

Big-cube power

More and more big power men are looking to big Case cubs to handle big jobs easier. Easier to get the work done, and easier on YOU. Big-displacement Case engines that handle every job faster with plenty of reserve muscle. No strain . . . moderate engine speeds and long power stroke that result in tremendous torque—and an engine that lasts—and lasts.

A smoother engine, and more quiet by far. Official tests now show that lower rpm tractors are more quiet.

S-m-o-o-t-h power shift that delivers full power to the drawbar, matched non-stop to every job. And reserve power . . . up to 7.8 to 12.5% more in the new Agri Kings.

LISTEN...

Protection

Listen to your common sense that tells you your protection is mighty important—to you and your farm. Case guards you with 4-corner cab protection that supports the entire weight of the tractor on a complete roll-over. Exhaustive tests during Case cab development included as many as seven roll-overs with one tractor.

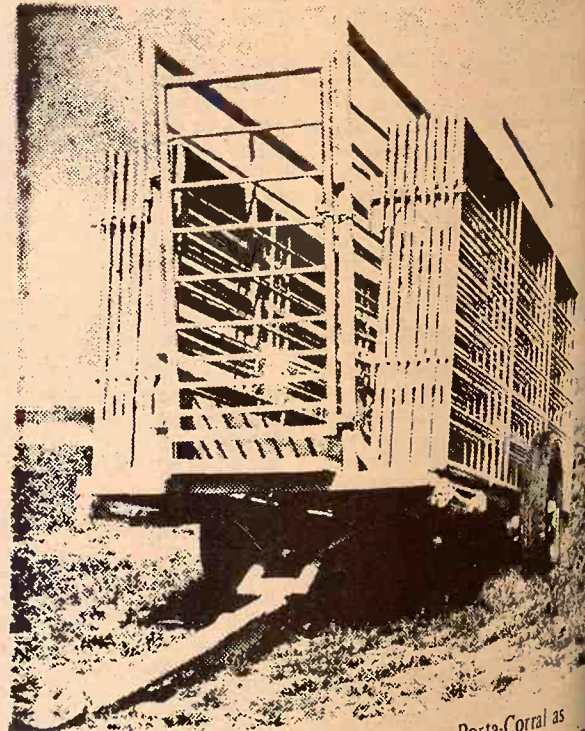

We designed the windows to pop outwards from roll-over impact. We added spillproof covers to prevent battery acid, fuel and radiator coolant from spilling in an upset—we use a seamless rupture-resistant nylon fuel tank.

Then buckle up! Protection doesn't work until you work at it, too.

Test drive the NEW Agri Kings. Make your next tractor a better place to LIVE! Your Case dealer is ready with a no-obligation demonstration. J I Case Company, Racine Wisconsin 53404

Business Not So Hot In West Of World, Show Trade Charts

October 26, 1972

The worldwide recession, spreading and getting worse, is strengthening the United States, bargaining position on foreign trade.

From West Germany to Tokyo, double-6 herringbone rolls are growing, national production is off and stock markets are falling. The recession is spreading even into under-developed countries whose raw-materials exports are bringing in less cash.

The recession is felt in America, of course. But it has less impact on this country's foreign trade. The United States puts only about 4 per cent of its national output into foreign trade. Germany, in comparison sells about a third of its production overseas.

This means that Germany and Japan must export if they are to get out of their recession. The United States, less dependent on foreign markets and suppliers, can get out of its jam by its own efforts.

The need to trade to live puts pressure on the industrial countries—except France—to strike a bargain with the United States to open the American market to easy imports.

"I don't think people realize how bad things are over there," said William Wolman, a vice president of First National City Bank in New York. "What is going on in the Common Market, for instance, would be called a recession anywhere else." And things could get worse unless they are repaired, in the view of E. Douglas Howard II, president of the Niagara Share Corp., a $100-million mutual fund.

Although the slowdown is most marked in the industrial nations of the world, it is felt by their neighbors and in the under-developed countries. As short-time working spreads in Germany, for instance, the foreign workers in that country have less money to send back home. This reduces the cash income of those countries who have sent their workers abroad—Yugoslavia, Spain, Portugal and the North African countries.

The countries producing the world's raw materials are nearly as badly off. Since Aug. 15, when President Nixon took economic steps that altered the world money system, prices of raw materials are down an average of 8 per cent.

Lagging industrial activity is reflected in the stock markets of the richer nations. Since Aug. 15 stock averages have declined in every country except Britain. They are off 13 per cent in Japan, 9 per cent in Germany and 7 per cent in Italy.

Even France, which exports only a small portion of her production to the United States, is not entirely immune nor safe. Though her relative independence of trade helps her, unemployment is the worst in recent years and French wages are rising twice as fast as prices. This means trouble unless the disparity can be reduced.

Country by country, here is how the world's trading partners are faring:

- West Germany—New orders are tailing off, workers are being put on short time, jobless rolls are growing. The revaluation of the mark and the U.S. import surcharge has hurt the exports industries such as automobiles and steel.
- Belgium—Price-control officials are fighting to keep down the cost of living, but there are no controls on wages. "It seems likely there will be trouble in store," says the Financial Times.
- France—Things are pretty good and may stay that way if consumer prices do not rise
- Italy—"The economy is well on its way into a recession," says one observer. Strikes have cut industrial production by a third, unemployment is the highest since World War II and growth rate this year is expected to be zero.
- Britain—Inflation and industrial stagnation are squeezing the country and unemployment is the highest since 1945. Manufacturing goods production is the same as a year ago.
- Japan—The government had already put in measures to control inflation when the U.S. trade restrictions were put on. The U.S. and Japanese actions worked in tandem to turn the economy down. The government has just changed its predictions of growth from a rise of 10 per cent to only 5 per cent for this year. There is a shortage of labor in many fields but restrictions in textile exports are expected to cost many jobs.
- Africa—The countries relying on oil are all right, but most of the others are suffering from low prices for their raw materials.
- South America—Budding industries are feeling a slow-down, in

Wheatgrowers Ask Cut In Acreage

The Kansas Association of Wheat Growers said it is asking Secretary of Agriculture Clifford M. Hardin to take steps to get producers to cut wheat acreage.

Don Crane, president of the association, said it is asking the Department of Agriculture to enact immediately a voluntary acreage diversion payment program for wheat that would induce producers to retire acreage in an amount that would bring production more in line with demand.

The association's resolution said all indications point to a vast increase—approximately 20 per cent—in wheat acreage for harvest in 1972.

Crane said this would add to an already price-depressing wheat situation would wreak havoc with the producer and agri-business income throughout the state and the entire wheat production sectors of the country.

Big Decline In Alfalfa Seed

Alfalfa seed production for 1971 is estimated at 600,000 pounds clean seed, 44 percent of the 10,800,000 pounds produced in 1970, according to the Kansas and Livestock Reporting Service. Annual production during 1960's ranged from 2,125,000 in 1967 to 11,250,000 in 1968. Alfalfa seed was harvested in Kansas this year from 60,000 acres compared with 108,000 acres last year.

The average yield per acre is forecast at 100 pounds, the same as last year. This compares with a range from 70 to 125 pounds in 1960's.

The average beginning response to que date was August 27, one week earlier of last year.

Carryover of all old crop seed on Kansas farms on June 1 is estimated at 3,672,000 pounds, more than double that a year earlier.

United States Alfalfa seed production is estimated at 126.3 million pounds clean seed, 10 percent less than 1970.

Acres of alfalfa harvested in the U.S. is estimated at 512,000 acres—21 percent of last year's 651,600 acres. The average yield per acre is estimated at 16 pounds, compared with 21 pounds in 1970.

Harvest began later than last year in 10 States, was the same in 3 States and was earlier in 3 States. Average dates of harvest ranged from August 14 in Texas to October 14 in North Dakota.

Carryover of old crop alfalfa on June 30, 1971 is estimated at 42,624,000 pounds (32,465,000 dealers and 10,168,000 by growers). A year earlier carryover was 26,651,000 pounds (22,138,000 dealers, 4,492,000 by growers).

The initial supply (production carryover) is indicated by 168,902,000 pounds—up from 167,010,000 pounds a year ago. Imports of alfalfa seed for the year ended June 30, 1971 were 54,000 pounds compared with 18,000 pounds the year before. Exports for the year ended June 30, 1971 were 20,969,000 pounds compared with 16,610,000 pounds a year earlier.

More Subsidy To Cut Back Feed Grain Supply

Big Decline In Alfalfa Seed

The Nixon administration announced last week a program that will raise farm subsidies by $600 million or more next year in an effort to head off surplus production of corn and other feed grains.

Secretary of Agriculture Clifford Hardin estimated the cost of the program at $1.5 billion compared with $1.2 billion this year. However, an additional $250 million could be spent in federal payments if farmers elected to reduce output.

Alfalfa seed was the most important item in the administration's offer to reduce output.

The record 1971 corn crop of 5.4 billion bushels, nearly one-third more than last year, brought about the new program. Hardin pointed out that the corn blight which cut the crop failed to materialize this year and the yields per acre of corn are a record.

In response to questions, Hardin said that the new action would be consumers of a continued dependable food supply and that federal payments to farmers are "partially a consumers' subsidy." He noted that corn and feed grains were the raw materials for meat.

Alfalfa seed production was estimated at 128 million pounds of clean seed, 10 percent less than last year.

Acres of alfalfa seed in the U.S. are estimated at 512,000 acres—21 percent less than last year's 651,000 acres.

The average yield per acre was estimated at 3,700 pounds compared with 3,800 pounds last year.

Harvest began later than in 10 States, was the same in 3 States and was earlier in 1 State. Average dates of harvest ranged from Oct. 14 in Texas to Oct. 14 in North Dakota.

Carryover of old crop alfalfa seed on June 30, 1971 is estimated at 42,624,000 pounds (21,312,000 bushels) compared with 26,651,000 pounds (13,325,500 bushels) a year earlier.

The initial supply (including carryover) is indicated at 168,902,000 pounds—up from 167,010,000 pounds a year ago.

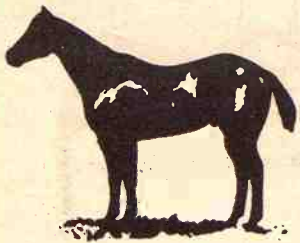

Imports of alfalfa seed the year ended June 30, 1971 were 54,900 pounds compared with 100,000 pounds the year before.

The year ended June 30, 1971, 20,969,000 pounds compared with 16,610,000 pounds a year ago.

Warden Defends Law That Allows Home Visits By Prisoners Near Parole

State penal director Robert Woodson has returned the fire of critics who have faulted him publicly for his handling of the recently-implemented home visitation program for prison inmates.

The program has been "a total, 100 per cent success," Woodson asserted.

The state director of penal institutions also said he is tired of being criticized, first by liberals who charged him with keeping too tight a reign on the program and now by conservatives who "intimate we're turning loose a bunch of murderers. 'What we need are some realists,' Woodson declared.

The state penal director also said he does not plan to offer any proposed changes in the statute which authorizes the home visitation program.

"I'll provide all the justification I can to the institutions committee. I hope to convince them it's a good, modern, effective piece of penal reform.

"A decision will have to be made by them (the legislators) on any changes in the home visit law."

Most of the criticism has come from State Rep. Duane "Pete" McGill, R-Winfield, and has centered on three inmates serving life sentences for murder who were permitted to make home visits.

McGill, a member of the influential House Ways and Means Committee and a member of a special panel on state institutions, said he thinks the home visit program as operated by Woodson has strayed far beyond the scope the Legislature intended when it passed the bill last session.

Woodson said of the three convicted slayers permitted to visit their homes, one will become eligible for parole in April 1972; the second will be eligible for parole in November, 1975; and the third will be eligible for parole in May, 1976.

"I don't think a lot of people realize it, but the new criminal code makes a man serving a life sentence eligible for parole after 15 years," Woodson said.

"That means the inmates who will become eligible in 1975 and 1976 will have served 11 and 12 years respectively in prison.

"These men had excellent work records and good disciplinary records. Those facts mean they probably would make parole when they became eligible.

"It's the ones who have been locked up 15 years who will have the greatest trouble adjusting," Woodson said.

"Home visits one or two times a year for four or five years before their release will be most beneficial."

Woodson noted all three have been on trustee status, and that all three have been transferred to work details which are part of the honor camp system the state Penal Institutions Dept. operates at several of the federal reservoirs around Kansas.

Honor camp inmates are supervised and watched at all times, but are not in confined areas.

"If the Legislature wants people who are sentenced to life to be ineligible for parole at any time, then it can change the law," Woodson declared.

He also noted that "between a dozen and 20 persons convicted of murder are turned loose every year" after completing their sentences or being paroled.

"We have 119 inmates in the institutions serving time for murder. Letting three of them make home visits is hardly turning them all loose," the state penal director asserted.

The program has been in operation since July 1, and since its implementation there have been a total of 72 home visits by 59 individual prisoners.

Woodson said the number of prisoners permitted to make home visits constitutes less than 3 per cent of the total penal system population of 2,050 inmates.

The state penal director also said that 82 per cent of the 59 inmates who were authorized to make home visits were less than one year away from becoming eligible for parole. McGill also had criticized the release for a home visit of an inmate convicted of attempted rape. Woodson said Friday the inmate would go before the State Board of Probation and Parole in December. Woodson said neither the sheriff nor county attorney nor judge in the home county of the inmate sentenced for attempted rape objected to the man being permitted to make a home visit in correspondence with Penal Institutions Dept. has local authorities before a prisoner receives final clearance to make a visit. The law permits selected prisoners to make up to three separate home visits per year totaling no more than 10 days duration for the three visits.

Change Signs On Turnpike Gas Stations

The Kansas Turnpike Authority has made changes in the operation of the six service stations along the turnpike.

Under a new five-year contract, a Turnpike announcement said, Standard Oil Co. will operate stations at Belle Plaine near Wellington and at Emporia, Topeka and Lawrence while Mobil Oil Co. will operate the Towanda station near El Dorado and Phillips Petroleum Co. will operate the Matfield Green station in the Flint Hills.

For the term of the five-year contract just concluded, Mobil operated stations at Lawrence, Topeka and Belle Plaine, Sinclair at Towanda and Matfield Green and Standard at Emporia.

The Turnpike opened to traffic Oct. 25, 1956, and in the 15 years of its operation nearly 97 million vehicles have driven over 5.25 billion miles, it, L. W. Newcomer, chief engineer, said.

October 26, 1971

When a 16-mile stretch south of Wellington is completed, 81 miles of the tollway will have been paved this year, Newcomer said.

PROMOTING LIMOUSIN

The G&G area's leading advocates of the Limousin cattle breed are Ben Price Jr., his wife Ruth, and H. A. McCoy. The Price-McCoy ranch near Reading, in Lyon county, will be host to a Limousin field day November 6. They'll have on display about 300 cattle that have been crossbred with Limousin bulls, as well as "Kansas Colonel," billed as the first purebred Limousin bull in the United States. Price-McCoy and five other ranchers recently bought "Kansas Colonel" for an undisclosed price.

The Price-McCoy got into the crossbreeding business with exotic bulls four years ago, and settled on the Limousin, a rusty-gold breed that comes from southeastern France, as their choice.

Price has been a good-sized breeder of purebred Angus and started the crossbreeding program with a base herd of 150 Angus cows. Now they have 300 head of brood cows, including both commercial and purebred Angus, commercial Herefords, black whitefaces, a few Brown Swiss, Red Holstein-Angus, and Hereford, Red Holstein, Red Angus and Shorthorn crosses. The Price-McCoy operation has about 3000 acres of grassland.

State Now Operating Federal Fish Hatchery

The oldest federal hatchery in Kansas, Farlington national fish hatchery, is now the property of Kansas.

The transfer from federal to state control became effective Sept. 1 although the Kansas Fish and Game Commission received the deed to the property in July.

The hatchery was obtained at no cost to the state and has a replacement value of about $800,000. Only costs involved will be those needed to operate and maintain the facility.

"The hatchery will continue to be operated in a similar manner as that conducted by the Bureau," said Roy Schoonover, Pratt, chief of the Kansas fisheries division. "We will continue to use it for production of largemouth bass, channel catfish and bluegill for stocking of farm ponds, lakes and reservoirs."

"We believe this transfer will benefit Kansas fishermen since all production will be used to stock waters in Kansas and will not be used to meet stocking needs in other states," Schoonover explained. As operated by the Bureau, about one-third of the hatchery's annual production was used to fill requests by federal hatcheries in other states. Farlington hatchery also supplied fish for stocking of farm ponds and lakes in northeast Oklahoma.

Placed in operation in 1949, the hatchery features 26 ponds but has additional land where more ponds can be constructed. The 153 acres on which the facility is located was donated to the United States Government in 1939 by the chamber of commerce of Fort Scott, Girard, and Pittsburg.

As part of the transfer agreement, Kansas will now handle all farm pond stocking in Kansas. Previously the Farlington hatchery and the Cedar Bluff hatchery, the only two federal hatcheries in the state, supplied some fish for farm pond stocking.

Bob Hiland, hatchery superintendent, will continue to work at the facility through September. Hiland has been stationed at Farlington since 1948 and later will be transferred to another federal facility.

Training Camp For Livestock Judges

Most Kansans are well aware of the effort to recruit high quality athletes for university sports programs. They probably know little about the effort expended to recruit highly competent students into the state's number one industry — the livestock and meat industry.

Kansas State University's Department of Animal Science and Industry annually hosts a training session for university livestock judging teams from across the nation who participate in the national collegiate livestock judging contest at the American Royal in Kansas City.

This training session proves invaluable in recruiting topnotch graduate students into KSU. "At the same time, it provides a valuable educational experience for the young men and women," enthuses Dr. Don Good, head of the department.

This year 16 college and university teams worked out at KSU on Friday before the national contest in Kansas City on Saturday. They also met KSU faculty members and toured KSU animal research facilities.

Teams at the judging workout were Michigan State University, Virginia Polytechnic Institute, Purdue University of Minnesota, North Dakota State University, South Dakota State University, Panhandle A&M College, Oklahoma State University, Texas A&M, Texas Tech, Abilene Christian, West Texas State University, Iowa State University, University of Kentucky, University of Missouri, and Western Illinois University.

Good points out that "the students on these teams are tops scholastically. They've demonstrated their ability to work hard to achieve. They are the future leaders in our industry. In addition, they meet the public well, which is another essential quality."

"With their leadership qualities, they're also more likely to enter graduate school. History shows that judging team members do become the industry leaders when they get out of school. We think this program helps get some of the best to attend K-State. In fact, we've got faculty members and graduate students here now who prove it does."

The facts bear out Good's observations. In the last 2½ years applications for graduate training in the department have skyrocketed, with 325-350 applications. The number of graduate students actually in school has risen to more than 30 and is limited "only by shortage of funds."

"With so many applications, we have a chance to be more selective in accepting graduate students. By screening for only the best, K-State's prestige in the livestock industry grows," Good emphasizes.

Wayne Williams, a senior member of the South Dakota State University team, is one student who decided to apply at K-State after participating in the training session.

He is a superior student who spent last summer as a student trainee for the Ralston Purina Company.

Williams says he "likes the faculty, students, campus, and animal science facilities at KSU. Everyone seems friendly and genuinely interested in the students."

Good sees the recruitment of graduate students from judging team ranks as just another indication of the value received from the minimum investment higher education makes in support of these teams.

He thinks the benefits from judging teams today, when their value is under question by some groups, may be greater than in previous eras when the teams had widespread support both on and off campus.

"I've seen so many livestock industry leaders come from the ranks of judging teams that to me the arguments against such teams seem shallow and the efforts of their detractors misguided, especially in view of the industry's more than $1.5 billion annual contribution to the Kansas economy," Good concludes.

Most Red Clover Seed In 8 Years

The Kansas 1971 red clover seed crop is expected to total 1,725,000 pounds, largest in 9 years, according to the Kansas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service.

Production was indicated at nearly double last year's but still far short of the State's record crop of 4,000,000 pounds in 1947.

Acreage of red clover seed for harvest this year is estimated at 15,000 acres, one-third more than last year and largest since 1965.

Yield per acre of clean seed is forecast at 115 pounds, well above last year's 85 pounds and highest in records dating back over 50 years.

The average date of the beginning of harvest this year was August 23, earlier than in recent years.

The Nation's 1971 red clover seed crop is expected to total 44,474,000 pounds. This would be 10 percent below last year's production of 49,265,000 pounds and 2 percent below the 1969 production.

932 Case tractor, 68 model big diesel, hydraulics, power steering, air conditioned cab, 18.4x34 tires, new $4800

Looks like the People's Coalition for Peace & Justice are going to march again, but Dick won't be home again as usual. Feds wouldn't give 'em a permit so they are going to march anyway. Motto is they are going to serve an eviction notice on Dick & Pat at the White House.

1964 Case 830 tractor like new condition, Eagle hitch, big tires, power steering, wide axle, etc. Only $2899

Too bad they didn't put a woman on the bench. Would have been interesting to watch — instead of nine old men. Still think they should be forced out at 72 instead of a roost of honor. Dick says they need fine lawyers there. Would be better if they tried couple plain farmers. Rather late.

Farm Hand stacker, hay basket, manure fork, hay fork, all for $239. Self-leveling.

Model A Ford running gear, no body, no fenders, no motor $39.99

Essex body, '28 model, dig it out at only $29.99

Model A Ford motor, stuck tight $29.00

Ancient two holer. Will shell & stack cobs $19.99

1928 Model Buick in absolutely deteriorated condition .. $99.99

Good 300 IHC high wheel tractor, would trade for good 4 wheel std. jeep.

1963 Model Case 930 Comfort King tractor, PTO, new tires, diesel, 1963 model $2999.99

Looks like all our best do-gooders out traveling. Spiro went to Greece. Too bad he didn't stay. Connelly over in Vietnam helping straighten out their finances, one man election, etc. Kissinger over in China trying to find a place for Dick to stay when he goes.

XT Allis 190 — a good tractor we have rebuilt completely. Take less than last week.

New 970's & 1070's to sell at cost. Call for price. Still selling all plow parts 15% off.

900 Case diesel tractor — a bargain $1499.99

Average Farm Now 574 Acres Latest Ag Census Shows

Results of the 1969 U.S. Farm Census just released show Kansas farmers marketed more than $1.8 billion worth of products in 1969, a gain of $643 million over 1964, while the number of farms in Kansas declined by more than 6,000.

There were 92,440 farms averaging 543.8 acres in 1964 in the state. By 1969, the number had decreased to 86,057 while the average size had increased to 573.9 acres. Average price of land in the five-year period went from $121.55 per acre to $158.78 per acre. Figures are not compiled for 1970.

For Kansas, livestock, poultry and their products accounted for $1.24 billion in sales, a gain of $513 million over the 1964 figures. Crops, including nursery products sold for $579 million in 1969, compared with $448 million five years earlier.

There were 17,793 farms totaling sales volumes in the $10,000 to $19,999 bracket. Sales of $20,000 to $39,999 were reported by 13,112 farmers and 7,886 farms had gross sales of more than $40,000.

There were 3,341 farms having more than 2,000 acres; 9,272 which had 1,000 to 1,999 acres, and 19,675 which had 260 to 499 acres.

Corporate operations in the state in 1969 ran 328 farms. Individuals or families operated 59,955 farms and partnerships another 7,814 farms.

Expenses on Kansas farms continued to increase. Total production cost in 1969 was $1.53 billion. Livestock and poultry cost was $573 million above 1964 costs. Feed for livestock and poultry tallied $150 million in 1969—up $27 million from 1964. Petroleum and oils cost $77 million in 1969, an increase of $11 million over 1964.

Hired farm labor had increased to $54 million by 1969. Contract farm labor had increased by $24 million to $54 million by 1969.

Average age of farm owners was 51.1 years, about 10 years younger than for 1964. Some were 65 or older. Only 2,519 were under 25. Farmers who worked time off the farm totaled 4,244. 21,147 of them working more than 200 days at jobs off the farm.

Winter Haircut For Cows To Save Time, Money

Dairymen will find that it takes less time and labor to keep cows clean this winter if they give their animals a haircut.

With clippers in hand, follow these steps as outlined by Extension dairymen at Kansas State University:

—Clip the tail and bob the switch so that it clears the ground about four inches.

—Clip the entire surface of the udder.

—Clip the belly and hocks. Then make a "mark line" from the navel to the thurl on both sides. Do this by holding the clippers on edge with the bottom blade toward the cow's head.

—Clip the flanks and thighs by running the clippers up from the hock to the mark line.

—Clip up the backbone to help control lice.

Clipping is no substitute for washing the cow's teats and udder before milking. Even when cows are neatly clipped, they should be washed with water containing a good sanitizing solution before each milking.

New USDA Plan Aims To Retire More Feed Grain Acres

The Nixon administration's plan to curb corn and other feed grain output next year will not increase the cash farmers get per acre for taking unneeded land from production. It will, however, enable them to draw larger total payments from the government in return for taking more land from crops than they did in 1971.

The Agriculture Department announced basic details of the new plan last week. It calls for taking out feed grain production next year at least 38 million acres, more than double the 18.2 million retired in 1971.

Total costs of the 1972 feed program are estimated at least $1.8 billion and as much as $2 billion or more, compared with $1.2 billion this year.

But while total government costs will go up, farmers individually will not get any more from the government on a per-acre basis than in 1971, based on an average formula used by USDA.

The 1972 program involves two and possibly three steps. The first is qualifying requirement that a farmer must "set aside" or take from production 25 per cent of his feed grain base acreage. It was 20 per cent this year.

Officials say ideally, if farmer sign up equals 1971, about 28 million acres of the 1972 set-aside goal will be retired under the first step.

Another 10 million acres is possible—and only possible—under a new second step, an option giving a farmer the opportunity to set aside an additional 10 per cent of his base.

Farmers will be given a third option of adding still another five or ten per cent to their 1972 set aside.

That will be accepted by the USDA on its terms, based on the response in the first two steps and what officials decide next spring is the final goal for idling feed land next year.

A key to converting payment figures to a per-acre basis is the department's decision to increase supplemental price support subsidies on corn next year to 40 cents a bushel from 32 cents in 1971.

Those payments are made to farmers who qualify for the program by agreeing next year to set aside 25 per cent of their feed grain base acreage from production.

Corn is used as the standard for computing payments, but the principle also applies to sorghum grain and barley, crops which draw less subsidies because of their lower feed value.

The Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, which administers the program, uses a formula which translates average yields and the payments into an average national rate per acre.

That rate for a farmer idling 25 per cent of his corn base next year is $64.80 per acre, the same as for 1971 when the set-aside was 20 per cent.

Here is the way officials say the system works:

The Agriculture Act of 1970, which set up the current feed program, says farmers are to be paid 32 cents a bushel for average yields on half of their corn base.

For 1971, the department multiplied the 20 per cent set-aside requirement by 2.5 in arriving at the 50 per cent mark. The 2.5 then was multiplied by the 32-cent payment, resulting in a formula figure of 80 cents per bushel for corn.

The 80-cent mark then was multiplied by the estimated national average corn yield of 81 bushels per acre, resulting in an average payment this year of $64.80 for land taken from production.

For 1972, the set-aside was raised to 25 percent, with a multiplier of 2.0 used for determining the 50 per cent level.

But two times 32 cents is not 80 cents so the ASCS had to boost the rate to 40 cents in order to keep payments equal to 1971's average of $64.80 per acre.

In other words, according to ASCS officials, the higher rate of 40 cents is not a boost of windfall proportions to farmers, but a requirement under the law for payments at a specified level.

Farmers can gain in basic corn payments for 1972 through higher adjustments in their per-acre average yields, but not because of a liberalization in the government's subsidy formula.

The second step, involving optional acreages retired by farmers for payments, includes a similar formula but at a reduced rate of 52 cents for corn. The same 81-bushel average yield will be used for determining national rates.

Under the optional plan, the formula translation is simple: 52 cents multiplied by 81 bushels for an average payment of $42.12 per acre for corn land taken from production.

There was no optional or additional feed grain land diversion in 1971, but there has been in the past. Officials said a change for 1972 is that the 52-cent payment rate will apply universally.

In previous plans, the rate varied according to local county price support loan levels. The change is expected to provide larger benefits for the optional acreage in the Corn Belt where county loan rates historically have been lower than in some areas of the country where corn was in deficit supply.

Magistrate Court in Topeka.

Bill Gonser, Clay County sheriff, said Helen Thorpe of Morganville, a small town northwest of Clay Center, notified him she had received a letter threatening her with injury if she failed to deliver $1,000 to "the restaurant where you eat." Gonser said Miss Thorpe has eaten regularly at the Jiffy Inn Cafe.
He said the letter was postmarked
Oct. 17.

Working with investigating officers, Miss Thorpe delivered a paper bag containing a package to the restaurant Thursday, the sheriff said.

The package inside the paper bag was treated with an invisible dye, commonly known as "thief powder," which turns green when it comes in contact with moisture, Gonser said. He explained the dye makes the perspiration turn green and colors the skin.

Officers watched as Miss Thorpe completed delivery of the package, which contained no money, and Seelig was nabbed before he left the restaurant.

The extortion attempt is the first in the memory of law enforcement officers in Clay County. Authorities said a motive for the attempt hasn't definitely been determined.

Blacks At 11% Of Total U.S. Population

The Census Bureau reports a black population of 22.6 million in the 1970 survey, about 11 per cent of the people in the United States.

The government says it has taken the most accurate census ever, although some black groups have contended their race was undercounted.

The bureau issued a report
Tuesday also giving this other breakdown of the population by race: white 177,748,975; American Indian 792,730; Japanese 591,290;
Chinese 435,062; Filipino 343,060;
and all others including Koreans,
Hawaiians, Aleuts, Eskimos, Malayans, Polynesians, 720,520.

THE TRACTOR WINNER WAS LARRY WILSON

I am writing about your cover story and inside pictures on the front of "Grass & Grain", October 19, of the Riley Fall Grain Show.

My husband was one of the tractor pullers in the hot rod class. He won first place, as I understand it, and when we read your issue it said nothing about it. It gave first place winner as Gene Williams of Riley, and I don't feel this is fair when he was second place.

Dale Ott of Lamont was third place winner in this class also. Just thought I'd let you know it wasn't the way it was and my husband would like credit where credit is due.

Guard's Manpower Shortage Shows At Salina

SALINA—The decreasing pressure of the draft on young men and a resultant decline in National Guard enlistments is jeopardizing the future of Salina's 891st Engineering Company of Kansas National Guard, Sgt. Harold E. Jackson, recruiting sergeant has warned.

The 166-man company would lose federal recognition if its strength falls below 80 per cent and is not recouped during a probationary period; or it would immediately lose recognition if it drops to 60 per cent, according to Sergeant Jackson.

Loss of recognition would mean company members would not be paid their salaries (totaling $24,191 a quarter) for drills and $33,847 for 15-days of summer camp.

The unit is 12 men short. Projections indicate losses by March 1 will increase the shortages to between 54 and 66 men.

Sergeant Jackson said if the unit falls below 80 per cent it would be put on six months probation. If the 80 per cent strength mark were reached in the period, loss of federal recognition would be prevented. A loss of the 66 men would put the company's strength at just one per cent above the 60 per cent mark which would cause immediate loss of recognition.

Sergeant Jackson said efforts will be made to retain men whose enlistment are expiring and a recruiting drive is planned.

"The draft law was extended but the pressure is off," said Sergeant Jackson. "President Nixon is winding down the war; the Army is reducing manpower and we just don't have guys knocking on our door the way we used to."

Sergeant Jackson said the guard is "in trouble in other places, too."

Exotic Bulls On Display

Kansas cattlemen interested in the new exotic beef breeds being introduced into this country will have a chance for a first hand look at purebred bulls and crossbred calves during a special exhibition and educational program in Manhattan's Cico Park (Riley County

Fairgrounds) Saturday, October 30

Charles Michaels, manager of the Kansas Artificial Breeding Service Unit (KABSU) which is sponsoring the event, reports that purebred Simmental, Limousin, and Maine Anjou bulls will be on display, plus several other exotic breed crossbred calves.

Registration will begin at 9 a.m. In addition to the bull display, speakers who have seen the breeds in the past will discuss the pros and cons of each one and cite proper formation from Canada and the Netherlands. A Dutch lunch will be served on the grounds.
