Make Careful Study Before Buying Appliances

Take some time for careful consideration before making a purchase of a major appliance such as a drier.

In deciding whether to buy a gas or electric drier, first consider the cost of each fuel in your area. Also consider the use of gas or electricity in other appliances such as range, furnace and water heater.

With so many different types of fabrics and finishes available, it is important to have a drier capable of handling them carefully. There are two types of controls on the market: A manual control that is set for a certain drying time and an automatic one that shuts off when the load is dry.

For the most efficient, economical operation, a combination of direct air flow and heat around the drying chamber is best. A regular flow of circular heat dries evenly.

The cabinet of the drier should remain cool at all times enabling the unit to be placed anywhere without a temperature increase.

Zinc-coated steel offers the greatest protection against rust. The work surface on top of the drier as well as the drying chamber should be of porcelain enamel for smoothness and durability.

The lint filter should be located in front of the blower fan to filter all of the air. It should be made of a fine mesh like Dacron.

As a safety feature, the drier should stop within seconds after the door is opened. Also, if the cycle has been interrupted, it should be necessary to reactivate the start control in order for the drier to start again.

It is also very important when buying a drier or any appliance to check your warranty with the dealer.

More Apples

If members of your family are apple eaters, you're probably buying apples these days. Apples are harvested from mid-summer into fall.

crop until the time the 1971 crop came to market because of controlled atmosphere (CA) storage. CA storage means the temperature, humidity, and gasses are all regulated so that the apples actually hibernate. The rate of respiration slows down so the rate of maturing slows.

The cost of storage, whether controlled atmosphere or regular storage, adds to the cost of apples. So right now, before apples go into storage, is the best time to take advantage of the varieties available for the best price. It's the peak of the season.

Department's Cheney pumping station said divers have determined that there is no damage to the face of the dam below the present water level.

The reservoir has been lowered about eight feet to expose sections of the dam damaged by high winds last March. On Sept. 13, the outlet gates were opened and 550 million gallons of water per day was released until late last month when the outflow was cut in half.

Hall said the water will be held within a half foot of its present level until repair work is completed.

A $49,710 repair contract has been let with Mid-States Construction Co. of Wichita which has 30 days to complete the job.

The damage is in an area to the west of the outlet, in the vicinity of the old Ninnescah River Channel.

Chunks of the soil cement surface of the dam were torn loose by wind and wave action. The soil cement surface, a new technique in earthen dam construction, involves the mixing of blow sand with concrete and compacting with water on the face of the dam.

Gates will be closed when the repair is completed, but how long it will take to refill the reservoir is unknown.

POINTS TO CONSIDER WHEN COMPARING 3-POINT TRACTOR HITCHES

- Is it easy to use? Hooking up implements to the 3-point hitch of an Allis-Chalmers tractor is fast and easy. You can raise or lower the draft arms hydraulically from behind the tractor. And the telescoping draft arms can be extended to reach the implement you're attaching.
- Does it have a Traction Booster system? With an Allis-Chalmers 3-point hitch, when the going gets tough, the draft arms activate the Traction Booster system through a torsion bar. Part of the weight of the implement and work load is transferred . . . automatically . . . to the rear wheels.
- Is it attached to an Allis-Chalmers tractor? Any 3-point hitch is only as good as the tractor in front of it. So, to get the best performance from your 3-point implements, see our line of Allis-Chalmers tractors. Every Allis-Chalmers wheel tractor can be equipped with a 3-point hitch. Miles of Detail In 69 Farm Census

Kansas farms marketed over $1.8 billion worth of agricultural products in 1969, a gain of more than $643 million over 1964 sales, according to a report on the 1969 Census of Agriculture released by the U.S. Department of Commerce, Bureau of the Census.

During the same five-year period the number of farms in the state declined from 92,440 to 86,057 while the average size increased from 543.8 acres to 573.9 acres, and the average value per acre climbed from $121.55 to $158.78.

Of the total value of 1969 products, livestock, poultry and their products accounted for $1.24 billion, a gain of $513 million over 1964. Crops, including nursery products and hay, sold for $579 million in 1969, compared with 1964 sales of $448 million.

Classified by sales volume, the largest group of farms, 17,793, was in the $10,000 to $19,999 brackets. Sales of $20,000 to $39,999 were reported by 13,112, and 7,886 farms had sales of $40,000 or more.

Grouped by size, the greatest number of farms, 19,675, came within the 260-to-499-acre class, followed by 18,394 farms of 500 to 999 acres. There were 9,272 farms of 1,000 to 1,999 acres and 3,341 had 2,000 or more acres.

Individuals or families operated 59,955 farms. Partnerships operated 7,814 farms and 328 were operated by corporations.

Total production expenses for 1969 were $1.53 billion. Livestock and poultry cost $573 million, more than $306 million above 1964 costs. Feed for livestock and poultry amounted to $234 million in 1969, an increase of $76 million over 1964. Commercial fertilizers cost $73 million in 1969, up $27 million over 1964. Petroleum fuels and oil costs were $77 million in 1969, an increase of almost $5 million for the five-year period. The 1969 estimate of all farm machinery and equipment was in excess of $1 billion.

Hired farm labor cost $54 million in 1969, $15 million more than in 1964. The expense of contract farm labor in 1969 was $54 million, an increase over 1964 of almost $24 million.

The average age of farm operators in 1969 was 51.1 years, about 10 weeks younger than in 1964. There were 2,519 operators under 25 years and 14,760 were 65 or older. Work off the farm was reported by 43,708 operators and 21,147 of them worked 200 or more days at off-farm jobs.

Copies of the report for the State and for each of the State's 105 counties are available for 25 cents each from the Bureau of the Census, Washington, D.C. 20233.

Nebraska To Put Grain Alcohol Fuel To Bigger Test

Grain alcohol blended gasoline, its research, and possible future was highlighted at a market committee meeting between Great Plains Wheat, Inc., state wheat commission, and agriculture officials at the Kansas Wheat Commission office at Hutchinson.

Members heard Ray Rattiff, representative from the Nebraska Wheat Growers Association, outline their planned tests of alcohol blended gasoline which starts Dec. 1. The Nebraska legislature, taking the lead across the nation, recently passed a bill providing reduced tax on fuel containing a 10 percent blend of grain alcohol and no lead.

Rattiff said Nebraska was instituting the test because there is no exact data determining miles per gallon, motor wear, oil acidity, materials handling and other ramifications concerning alcohol blend gasoline programs.

The test, in cooperation with the Nebraska State Department of Agriculture, will use eight state highway department cars to start and will be expanded to 30 to 40 vehicles before the test concludes. Fueled at the highway department yards at Lincoln, cars will be driven by highway employees and accurate records will be kept. Engines of the vehicles will be disassembled at approximately 30,000 mile intervals to determine valve wear and cylinder taper.

The tests will last from eight to 12 months to cover all normal driving situations under varied climatic conditions. Use of state highway vehicles will be equivalent to five to seven years driving for the ordinary motorist, Rattiff said.

Unlike the test conducted by the Kansas Wheat Commission, Nebraska will be using 200 per cent ethyl alcohol. This is expected to overcome low mileage and carburetor problems encountered in the brief Kansas test.

Using a 200 proof grain alcohol, Brock said, "You shouldn't encounter any problems at all."

Although the Nebraska move makes the state the guinea pig for alcohol additive gasolines, Nebraska delegates pointed out other states mustn't sit back and wait; they must move to push state legislation similar to Nebraska.

"We have to have legislation for tax advantages to be competitive," Rattiff said. "Farmers are going to have to carry the ball too by using this gasoline."

The current situation appears to be advantageous for the wheat producers' program. Rattiff said gasoline cost is high and expected to go higher. A shortage of petroleum could boost prices still more.

Rattiff said most farm organizations including Farmers Union, National Farmers

Organization, wheat grower and other grain groups supported the program. However, Farm Bureau is remaining neutral, he said.

From research being conducted, it appears grain alcohol could become a byproduct of the process, thereby reducing costs further, he said.

Kansas 6th Rank In Farm Exports

Ten states, led by Illinois, accounted for 58 percent of the nation's record farm export value of $7.8 billion last year, says the Agriculture Department.

November 9, 1971

The 10 leaders had an export value of $4.5 billion during the year ended last June 30, according to an analysis published by the Foreign Agricultural Service.

Illinois farm exports totaled $655.1 million in 1970-71. The other leaders, in order, were: Iowa $591.9 million; California $555.1 million; Texas $553.9 million; North Carolina $431.6 million; Kansas $391.6 million; Minnesota $356.6 million; Arkansas $339 million; Indiana $331.6 million; and Nebraska $287.5 million.

More Competition For Soybeans From Foreign Oilseeds

Rising production of competing oilseeds in foreign countries is becoming more apparent as a reason for the Agriculture Department not taking drastic action to boost U.S. soybean output next year. The USDA says more soybeans are desirable and that hopefully farmers will produce 48 million acres next year, up about five million from 1971. Demand is still strong and the increase will not be too much to handle, officials say.

Department sources say 12 to 15 plans for adjusting 1972 feed grain acres were considered before clearance was given to the new program calling for a sharp cutback in corn and other feed next year.

Among the discards were proposals for substantially boosting 1972 soybean output, including limited additional plantings on feed set-aside acres and other devices. All were rejected, however, and the soybean strategy left alone.

Soybeans have not been subject to acreage controls, and the basic price support of $2.25 per bushel, set early in the Nixon administration, will be the same next year.

Demand for soybeans, including meal, has been so heavy in recent years that surplus stocks have been depleted and prices paid farmers well above the price support loan rate.

Mellow Old Crow Bourbon begins with men who love to work with their hands

Kentucky craftsmen made Old Crow famous. Back in 1835, our people figured out the formula that made Bourbon taste mellow, bottle after bottle, and later they handmade the first sour mash Bourbon.

We still use our hands in making Old Crow Bourbon.

May Revise Wheat Program To Limit Acres

The Agriculture Department is considering a major revision in its 1972 wheat program, including payments to farmers for taking extra acres out of production.

Officials announced the 1972 wheat plan last July 16 but did not include provisions for taking more acres from production than specified in the basic "set-aside" requirements.

Now, however, 1971 production has hit a new peak of more than 1.5 billion bushels. That, plus a carryover from earlier crops, point to a surplus next July 1 of at least 900 million bushels, compared with about 700 million this year.

If farmers grow as much wheat for 1972 production as some grower representatives say, the nation by mid-1973 could be headed for the biggest wheat surplus since the early 1960s when the stockpile was more than 1.4 billion bushels.

Agriculture Department officials would say only a revised 1972 program is being considered, including the possibility of paying farmers for taking more land from production than previously specified.

But pressure is growing for such a move. The National Association of Wheat Growers wants USDA to put extra curbs into effect, and Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., among others in Congress, is watching developments closely.

Gene Moos, president of the NAWG, says if additional cutbacks are not put into effect, farmers next year could have a new record output of 1.8 billion bushels from 55 million to 60 million acres. This year's production came from about 48 million acres.

The size of the winter wheat crop, already seeded for harvest next summer, will not be known officially by USDA until Dec. 22, when 1972 acreage figures will be released.

Meanwhile, Kansas producer representatives have told officials here that the state's winter wheat acreage for 1972 has been boosted by 20 per cent.

Under the government's new "set-aside" program, wheat farmers this year qualified for price supports and payments by taking 75 per cent of their total national domestic allotment of 13.3 million acres out of production. They could harvest as much as they wished on remaining acres.

The set-aside for 1972 was boosted to 83 per cent of a revised national allotment of 15 million acres, the maximum allowed by the 1970 Agriculture Act.

To get additional acres out of production, the most obvious remedy is to offer farmers payments for setting aside more wheat land. Cost estimates range up to $200 million or more for the additional payments.

Although too late for winter wheat planting, farmers who produce that type might be induced to tear up considerable marginal acreage next spring if payment incentives are high enough. Spring wheat producers, of course, would have ample time to plan 1972 production.

Long Mileage Now Showing On State-Owned Cars

With mileage readings reaching new highs on state-owned vehicles, Henry H. Knouft, state purchasing director, warns that reports of vehicle failures are on the upswing.

"Vehicle failure reports, such as blown engines and other mechanical problems, are reaching us in increasing numbers," Knouft said in a memorandum to all state agencies.

He termed the situation with the state's aging car fleet "critical" and urged agency heads to pay special attention to maintenance.

New car purchases were suspended for the current fiscal year because major car manufacturers eliminated the dealer assistance plan that had allowed the state to buy a sedan for the statutory $2,000.

When that assistance program was dropped in 1970, the state refused to increase the statutory ceiling and as a result no 1971 model cars were purchased, except for the Kansas Highway Patrol under special authorization from the Legislature.

In the past, the state has traded in cars every two years or when their odometers reached 50,000 miles. That policy has been abandoned.

"Many of them now are over 50,000 miles," Knouft said, "and probably a good many cars are in the 70,000 to 80,000 bracket."

Many other states are faced with the same problem that is puzzling Kansas government.

"A good many states are getting car pools," Knouft said, "and are doing like we're doing and buying anything until they get their dilemma."

Several state agencies in Kansas already are participating in a pool operation in Topeka and a legislative committee has introduced a bill on the subject for presentation to the 1972 Legislature.

"Because there are no provisions for buying new cars before the year, it should benefit everyone to preserve cars as much as possible. Therefore, we ask you to encourage your drivers to observe legal limits, watch oil levels, etc.," purchasing director cautioned.

State Budget Director James Bib said he is eliminating all requests for new cars from the 1973 budget requests "for the being." He said he is awaiting policy determination before making the final decision.

Knouft said the useful life of a state car is up to 70,000 miles. At that point, he said, repair costs tend to outweigh the benefits of replacement. "But, he added, 'We have cars running with 80,000 miles. They are still pretty good cars.'"

In his memorandum, Knouft urged agency heads to pay attention to preventive maintenance.

"Many state cars are 1968 or older. Consequently, consideration should be given to replacing antifreeze, packing wheels and similar services."

"Many of these maintenance items are not normally considered when cars are traded every years or 50,000 miles," he said.

LISTEN!

Listen to your body, not your tractor... and you'll discover a better way to farm.

Time was, more engine roar meant more engine power.

Not any more!

Your tired ear drums and aching back are a warning of UNNECESSARY abuse. Case has an answer.

Quiet comfort

You deserve the quiet—freedom from excessive tractor noise—quiet that only Case can give you. Can prolonged exposure to excessive tractor noise be harmful to your hearing? A Canadian study showed that one-third of the farmers in the 55-59 age group had hearing loss enough to have trouble understanding normal speech. In the same group, 60% of the larger farmers had reached that stage.

Can we prove that Case tractors are quieter? Impartial tests show Case Agri King tractors—with or without cab—to be quieter by far. You see the results in the chart below. . . your Case dealer has the official figures.

SOUND LEVEL AT OPERATOR'S EAR AT FULL THROTTLE AND 100% LOAD

WITH CAB		ALL OTHER TRACTORS TESTED
CASE 1170 TRACTOR	87 dBA	CASE 1070 TRACTOR	95 dBA

Note that noise levels with cab range from the Case 1170's 89.5 dBA (decibels) to a competitor's high of 97.5 dBA. Without Cab, the level ranges from the Case 1070's 95 dBA to a high of 99 dBA for other tractors.

Remember, just 6 extra dBA means twice as noisy. And the tests show noise levels up to 8 dBA higher for other leading tractors. In every power class, Case tractors recorded substantially lower noise levels.

How do we achieve this quiet comfort? The patented Agri King platform floats on 4 king-sized rubber bushings which absorb vibration and metal-to-metal transmission noise. The cab is Case-designed, Case-built—tightly sealed, acoustically lined, super quiet.

And comfortable! Your choice of 3 seats. A temperature-controlled cab, air-conditioned if you'd like. No more breathing dust and pollen—just clean, fresh air. But there's more to consider when you choose a tractor—much more!

LISTEN...

Big-cube power

More and more big power men are looking to big Case cubs to handle big jobs easier. Easier to get the work done, and easier on YOU. Bigger displacement Case engines that handle every job faster with plenty of reserve muscle. No strain . . . moderate engine speeds and long power stroke that result in tremendous torque—and an engine that lasts—and lasts.

A smoother engine, and more quiet by far. Official tests now show that lower rpm tractors are more quiet.

S-m-o-o-t-h power shift that delivers full power to the drawbar, matched non-stop to every job. And reserve power . . . up to 7.8 to 12.5% more in the new Agri Kings.

LISTEN...

Protection

Listen to your common sense that tells you your protection is mighty important—to you and your farm. Case guards you with 4-corner cab protection that supports the entire weight of the tractor on a complete roll-over. Exhaustive tests during Case cab development included as many as seven roll-overs with one tractor.

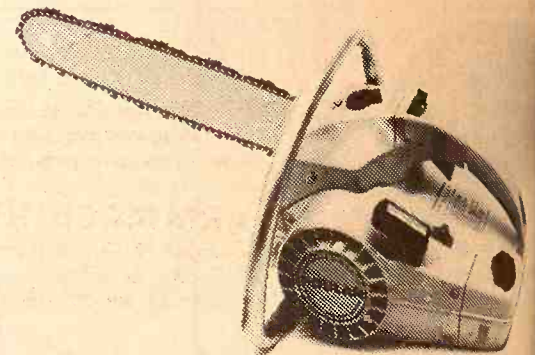

We designed the windows to pop outwards from roll-over impact. We added spillproof covers to prevent battery acid, fuel and radiator coolant from spilling in an upset—we use a seamless rupture-resistant nylon fuel tank.

Then buckle up! Protection doesn't work until you work at it, too.

Test drive the NEW Agri Kings. Make your next tractor a better place to LIVE! Your Case dealer is ready with a no-obligation demonstration. J I Case Company, Racine Wisconsin 53404

Electric Ranges Loaded With Safety Features

Many safety features are provided on a line of electric ranges to make the cook's job easier and more worry free.

For example, to prevent electric shock, ranges are grounded to the neutral at the factory. In case local electrical codes do not allow grounding of the neutral, a grounding screw is provided for this purpose on free standing and other model ranges.

In all but one model, signal lights indicate that surface cooking units are on and on most models, as surface units control knobs are turned on a bright red strip is revealed to indicate that the unit is on.

Oven shelves are provided with stops to prevent the shelves from being pulled completely out of the oven. The shelves also have a bar at the rear to prevent cooking utensils from sliding off the shelves. Storage drawers are also equipped with similar catches. Both, however, may be lifted out and removed. In fact, removal of the storage drawer allows for cleaning of the floor without complete removal of the appliance.

Drip bowls under the cooking surface units and the entire recessed top of ranges are designed to catch spills and prevent runovers. The oven walls are insulated to reduce heat loss and to prevent heat buildup on exterior surfaces. In addition, vents are vented through the right rear surface unit.

Controls are located out of reach of small children and their high position is above much of the cooking spatter area.

Removable oven doors can be lifted out only when the door is slightly open in the broil position. Once the door is removed, spring-loaded hinges are prevented from snapping back against the range. Oven doors are counter-balanced to stay in the open position when desired.

The windows in certain oven doors are made of tempered glass to prevent shattering and many of the ranges feature self-cleaning cycles.

Meat Tenderizers

Centuries ago natives in the tropics learned to tenderize meat by wrapping it in leaves from the papaya tree.

You may have bought some tenderizer recently because there are several preparations on the market. The active ingredient of these tenderizers may be papain, from the papaya, bromelin, from

Take a Habit-break

Buying from habit doesn't cut it any more. Not when you find out what the 1855 has to offer.

Compare us to whatever else you've been buying. Our 98 hp. is right at the top of the class in power. And in fuel economy. Official tests prove it.

Turbocharging? The Oliver's got it. But not most others in this power class. They save turbocharging for their bigger and more expensive models.

Price per horsepower? Add it up the way you actually buy the tractor you intend to live with. Our 1855 lets you have more of the things that get more work done. A little easier.

Things like Hydraul-Shift. With it, we avoid the power loss that's typical of infinite-speed transmissions. Yet we don't hold you down to 8 forward speeds.

Instead, our Hydraul-Shift gives you the best of both worlds. Including 18 speeds. Normally, you run in direct drive in any of 6 basic gears. But whenever the going is easier, you just powershift up to overdrive for 20% more speed. When you hit that tough spot, you just drop down to underdrive for 20% more pull. Smooth. Sure. Efficient.

Now, you see why a lot of tractor buyers break their old habits. And raise their sights to Oliver the habit-breaker.

Extension Pitch For More Staff As It Talks Of New Programs

Future programs of the Kansas Cooperative Extension Service will place increased emphasis on social and economic development and quality of living, while maintaining a traditionally-strong service to agriculture, especially low income agriculture.

That is what Dr. Glenn H. Beck, vice president for agriculture at Kansas State University, said at the closing session of the 57th annual Extension conference at Manhattan.

As vice president, Beck supervises administration of agricultural teaching, research and Cooperative Extension programs of KSU.

More than 400 Extension agents and specialists from across the state attended the conference.

The need for a broader program direction by the Extension Service has been pointed out in several recent self-study and national reports, Beck said. "We estimate that the time devoted to social and economic development will nearly double in the next decade," he predicted.

The vice president for agriculture also believes that there should be a "fairly sizable" increase in Extension staffing for quality of living programs. "It is almost certain that there will be an increase in federal funds, but they will be earmarked for use on specific activities," he said.

Beck told the Extension faculty that there will be a "concerted move" to place more specialists in Area Extension Centers located throughout the state. "As we expand into more rural development, environmental improvement, and quality of living programs," he pointed out, "we believe that continued operation of an Extension office in each county will be invaluable."

Dr. Robert A. Bohannon, director of the Kansas Cooperative Extension Service, followed Beck on the program and explained some new organizational adjustments designed to help "Extension fulfill its educational responsibility to be an aggressive, sensitive organization that can act not just react to the challenges it faces."

At present there is one Area Extension Center located at Garden City, Bohannon noted, and four other Area Center locations are now under consideration. "These Centers will Bohannon also said that the new Extension Center for Rural Development, recently established at Kansas State University, will greatly expand the work presently being done by Extension's community and resource development section.

An assistant director, to be appointed as administrator for the new Center, will also serve as chairman of an all-University Council for Rural Development, named by Dr. James A. McCain, KSU president. The Council includes representatives from six KSU colleges.

In effect, Bohannon said, the Center will coordinate all the activities of the University in rural development, and will serve in a liaison capacity with government and private organizations involved in rural development programs and activities.

New Tone At NFO Convention

The NFO completed its state convention at Salina late last month with less news attention than has sometimes attended the meetings since the organization made its first move in Kansas in 1958.

But there were several signs that the National Farmers Organization has changed considerably since its early shrill, evangelistic days and is making real progress at its aims of economic equality for the farmer. Jerry Fetterolf, longtime state newsman now covering agriculture for the Wichita Eagle, noted "new maturity at the political level" in a headline.

One evident area was in the slate of resolutions adopted as NFO guidelines. All dealt with farm economics and legislation affecting agriculture. No social issues were brought up for resolutions at the convention.

The NFO growth showed in the size of the delegation to the convention. There were about 500 delegates, about 150 more than last year. The NFO by-laws call for one delegate for each 25 members per county. Though NFO officials continue to decline to discuss membership numbers, the voting delegation might indicate about 12,500 to 13,000 members.

Kansas now has 93 counties chartered in NFO, 10 more than last year.

Discussions generally centered around matters of direct concern to farmers. There was unanimous opposition to proposed legislation that would make it illegal to haul livestock to a central point for loading onto larger trucks. This would clearly affect numerous NFO "collection points" in the G&G area, as it would a common practice in the Flint Hills of using a common loading area to receive small shipments of cattle aimed for Iowa or other livestock-finishing areas.

Speaking at the Salina convention was national president Oren Lee Staley of Rea, Mo., who explained some major restructuring of the NFO into departmental units covering grain, livestock, communication, field staff, bargaining and administration. A former G&G farmer, Gene Potter, now of Illinois but once from Fort Scott, heads the livestock department.

Staley explained at length the NFO-developed system of C, D & D—collection, dispatch and delivery. He explained it this way:

• Collection is the ability of NFO members to put their grain, livestock or vegetable production in a given committed quantity and quality to a central location in a local area.

• Dispatch is liaison between marketing and bargaining experts in the headquarters office and buyers throughout the nation.

• Delivery is the current NFO ability to pick up a given quantity and quality at one location in the country and deliver it anywhere in the nation where the market is advantageous, at any given date.

Emphasizing this ability, Staley pointed out that all buyers of farm produce have built themselves traditional supply patterns dealing with individuals and when those supply patterns can be broken through collective bargaining we can get our price.

"Now we can collect produce from a local area, break those old supply lines, and deliver (market) our production anywhere in the United States," Staley said.

"In other words, we can scramble supply patterns just like you'd scramble an egg in a skillet," he added.

Traditionally, farmers marketed individually to a local elevator or processor, who in turn marketed his output in a traditional pattern, too. If this chain is broken by the original producers (farmers) control of prices goes back to the farm.

"It is the only method we have of obtaining cost plus reasonable profit from our production," Staley said. "Individual contract production will not do it."

before the President's Water pollution Control Advisory Board in Denver last week.

Huseman said Johnson's data on fish kills "was old 1966 information."

"Much has been done by feedlot operators since then," said Huseman.

He said statistics from the Kansas State Department of Health show that in 1968, the year feedlot licensing and pollution control regulations went into effect, fish kills from feedlots dwindled from 17 the previous year to only three.

"Feedlot operators are striving to reduce this to zero," said Huseman.

"We've come a long way from the old days when it was a commonly accepted procedure to construct a feedlot designed to flow into a stream.

"This is just simply not done anymore."

Huseman said there are 1,350 active feedlots in Kansas and that of these 1,105 are already in compliance with regulations. He said the feedlots that are in compliance feed more than 90 per cent of the cattle in Kansas.

"Compliance with the standards was not easily attained, and was reached after considerable investment by the feedlot operators," Huseman said.

"Kansas has been a leader in developing feedlot pollution regulation," Huseman said.

He said that of the 245 feedlots that are not in compliance, 175 still have control features still under construction.

He said actually, only four are not in compliance and the remaining few, about 70 have simply not been contacted and processed by the Department of Health.

He said the process of licensing and inspecting the remaining feedlots is continuing as rapidly as possible.

Revamp Would Put Farm Credit System Into Non-Farm Loans

This country's farm credit systems, a vast span of financial services for rural residents, would be completely revamped under terms of a complex compromise bill approved by the House.

Among innovations "to improve the delivery system of one of America's most unique banking institutions," Agriculture Committee Chairman W. R. Poage, D-Tex., said, is one to let the system venture for the first time into the non-farm credit field.

Through this plan, he told the House shortly before the legislation passed 331 to 19, there could be "limited non-farm housing loans to eligible borrowers in rural areas."

Eight members of Poage's committee had rejected such an idea, saying: "This diversion of farmer-contributed and farmer-owned funds for purposes unrelated to farming cannot be justified at a time when farmers are, themselves, suffering from an acute shortage of credit for agricultural purposes." This group was headed by Reps. Thomas Abernathy, D-Miss., and George Goodling, R-Pa.

The legislation is similar to that passed by the Senate in July. But there were major changes made by the House, so the bill was returned to the Senate for more action toward settlement of differences.

Among the revisions, the House deleted Senate authorization for low-priced housing because "this is usually associated with some subsidy," Poage said.

"These loans are not to be made to real estate developers or to finance real estate developments," Poage said. "and a non-farm borrower will not be granted such a loan for more than one dwelling."

The 116-page bill includes a series of compromises from among "divergent proposals advocated by individual federal land banks, by the Farm Credit Administration; and by various congressmen, Poage said.

The three-branch system includes 12 federal land banks, 700 land bank associations, 13 banks for cooperatives and a central bank for these, 12 federal intermediate credit banks and 441 production credit associations.

November 9, 1971

The bill provides that each of the three branches would be responsible for liabilities of the others. Federal land banks and production credit associations would be given power to make non-farm housing loans in rural areas—defined as communities up to 2,500 persons. Loans would be limited to 15 percent of the total outstanding loans in these areas.

The legislation also would limit the limit on land bank loans from 85 percent to 85 percent of the appraised value of the farms or ranches.

The bill would limit authority for financial related services available to borrowers to those needed for farm operations.

Country banks would be protected by a provision assuring obligations issued by the banks would be subject to the same regarding rate, amount, maturity as those imposed on member banks of the Federal Reserve Board.

FLBA's Hold 23rd Annual Conference Of Farm Land Mortgagees

The Federal Land Bank of Wichita recorded 23 per cent of the farm real estate mortgages during 1970 in Oklahoma, Colorado and Mexico.

William G. Plested Jr., president of the bank, said at the 23rd annual Kansas Federal Land Bank Association stockholders meeting that the mortgage loan volume in these four states was $40 million for the year.

He added that in the first months of 1971 the bank recorded 25 per cent of the amount of farm real estate mortgages and increased its volume another $42 million brought the loan volume to $678 million on June 30.

During 1970, he said, farm mortgage debt in the U.S. increased $1.1 billion. This 11 per cent increase compares with the total farm real estate debt record $29.5 billion on Jan. 1.

The 12 federal land banks in the United States provided 43 per cent of the total farm real estate mortgage volume during 1970 to a record $678 million.

Plested reported that Wichita bank loans outstanding at the end of 1970 were $678,670,000 in 1970, an increase of $58,400,000 over the year.

He also reported a reduction in loan interest rates during fiscal 1971. Rates dropped from 9 to 8.5 percent in November 1970, to 8 percent in March 1971, to 7.5 percent June 1, 1971.

Few Takers For Oats, Barley Stores

Rod Turnbull
K.C. Board of Trade

While most of the talk this fall in farm and grain circles is about the year's record-breaking crops of corn, wheat, soybeans and grain sorghums, a couple of others are causing problems to the government. These are the two feed grains, oats and barley.

Neither of these crops set new production records in 1971, although total yields were in the higher brackets for recent years. But the government owns substantial amounts of both—186.8 million bushels of oats and 30.8 million bushels of barley as of a recent day. These figures do not include inventories under the loan program.

The figure on government holdings changes with acquisitions and sales, but there are not too many takers.

Most of the oats and barley are concentrated in North Central states, Minnesota and North Dakota. The terminals with the largest amounts of each of these grains are Minneapolis-St. Paul and Duluth-Superior. On a recent day, elevators in Minneapolis-St. Paul held almost 46 million bushels of oats, and that is more of one kind of grain than was held by any other city in the United States. Records available at the Kansas City Board of Trade showed that on the same day, Kansas City elevators held more than 30 million bushels of wheat, which was tops in the nation on the bread grain.

Recently, the Commodity Office (CCC) of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service in Kansas City offered time after time, barley for sale from the Duluth-Superior elevators.

BILLY GRAHAM GROUP
EYES K.C. FOR 1973

The Billy Graham organization has its eye on the new sports complex at Kansas City with the possibility of holding a "religious crusade" there in 1973. The Rev. Grady Wilson, a Graham associate who was holding meetings at the Swope Park Baptist Church there last week, said the organization was holding a mass meeting in the 77,000-seat football stadium in 1973, as well as one in Rome.

More 4-Lane US81
Opens This Week

The new 6-mile section of 4-lane US81 from the Highway K-18 intersection north to near Minneapolis will be opened Nov. 4.

Gov. Robert Docking and other state officials will participate in the opening ceremony.

The new stretch is an extension of 4-lane US81 going north from the I-70 and I-35 W interchange just west of Salina. This means north-south travelers, by using US81 and I-35W, can travel through much of Kansas on 4-lane superhighways.

Gov. Docking will snip a ribbon where the new highway rejoins old US81.

Dodge City Closes
Its Board of Trade

The Board of Trade at Dodge City will be dissolved by action of officers, who say the organization has little activity.

Started in 1921, the Board of Trade at Dodge City has had several dozen brokerages operating within it. At one time the Board occupied an entire floor of a Dodge City bank building. Now only one company, Strong Grain, maintains its office in the building.

Grain companies have consolidated over the years and more brokerages centralized their offices in Hutchinson, Wichita or Kansas City.

Cattle Feeders Conference At

The latest research and management information will be discussed at the 7th annual Cattle Feeders Conference Nov. 11 and 12 in Wichita.

A battery of 12 speakers has been assembled to discuss everything from "KSU Feedlot Research" to "Pollution Control." Emphasized will be "business aspects of feeding cattle as opposed to ration formulation and health aspects," according to Virgil Huseman, director of KLA Cattle Feeder Service.

Keynote speaker is Joe Batten, management consultant, Des Moines, Iowa, who will speak at the opening session at 10 a.m. Batten has written five books on management.

Dr. Don Good, head of animal science and industry at Kansas State University, Manhattan, will report on feedlot research.

"Pros and cons of Warehousing Feedlot Cattle" will be discussed by R. Ham, Garden City; J. H. Estlin, Denver; William Baucus, Kansas City, and George Hunt of the Garden City Production Credit Association.

Robert Gadberry, vice president of Fourth National Bank & Trust Co., Wichita, will speak at the 7 p.m. dinner.

Second-day speakers are Frank Huseman, Sterling, Colo.; Dr. Edward Huseman, Texas A & M, College Station; Myron Paine, Oklahoma State University, Stillwater, and David Stroud, President of the National Livestock and Meat Board, Chicago.

More than 350 cattle feeders from Kansas and northern Oklahoma are expected, Huseman said.

Insurers Would Cut Rates On Cars With New Bumper Standards

Insurers who write about half the nation's auto coverage say they plan to cut collision rates later this month about 10 percent for 1972 cars that meet federal 1973 bumper standards.

Estimated savings to motorists could reach $280 million if the discount were offered by all auto insurers and if all automobiles registered in the U.S. met the federal standards, the insurers calculate. But so far the ranks of qualifying autos appear slim.

In Detroit, auto makers confirm that on request of the insurance companies they are currently running tests to see which, if any, of their 1972 models qualify for the discount. Only one automobile, the 1972 99E from Saab-Scania of America Inc., so far has qualified, and this was for a stricter 15 percent bumper discount offered by Sears, Roebuck & Co.'s Allstate Insurance Co.

But General Motors Corp. asserts that certain 1972 Buick models meet the federal 1973 bumper standards, and it is testing all 1972 models in light of the insurers' request. And Chrysler Corp., which also confirms it has been contacted by the insurers, said, "We have made substantial changes to improve bumpers on our 1972 models." The company spokesman declined to say whether tests indicate any Chrysler models qualify for the insurance rate discount.

The Insurance Services Office, which advises or sets rates for companies writing about 40 percent of the nation's auto insurance, said it is seeking regulatory approval for the proposed 10 percent discount and hopes it will apply to all policies written by member companies as of Nov. 24.

In determining which cars qualify for the discount, the organization said it will be guided by data it is requesting from the auto makers certifying which of their cars meet the 1973 Department of Transportation bumper standards. A spokesman said that so far no manufacturers have supplied certifying data but that he expects to supply some model information to member companies by the Nov. 24 target date.

Under federal standards, 1973 cars must have front bumpers that can withstand a crash into a fixed barrier at five miles an hour and rear bumpers able to withstand an impact of 2½ miles an hour without damage to safety-related equipment such as headlights, fuel and cooling systems and hood, trunk and door latches.

Allstate, which writes about 9 percent of the nation's auto coverage, has independently offered since last April a similar 10 percent discount for cars meeting these standards. An Allstate spokesman said none of the auto makers have applied for this discount, although the Saab model qualified last month for a 15 percent Allstate discount offered for cars that showed no damage on impact at the same speeds cited in the federal regulation. Allstate requires independent test data for its discounts.

Since collision premiums make up roughly half of the cost of insurance for late-model cars, the 10 percent rate cuts could mean a reduction of about $10 annually for a driver paying $200 a year for auto insurance.

The Insurance Services Office said that currently there aren't any statistics to support any particular discount, and if experience shows that improved bumpers result in a savings to insurers of more than 10 percent, the premium discount would later be increased.

Area Included In Small Post Office Closings

Fifteen small-town Kansas post offices have been closed over the past four months by the U.S. Postal Service as a result of the cost-reducing business approach to moving the mails.

The offices were closed simply because they were not bringing in enough revenue to justify their existence, according to Ken Nowling, mail processing chief for Wichita District Headquarters.

Nowling said the closed offices were costing the postal service $5,500 to $7,500 a year, while bringing in only $400 or $500 in receipts.

Postal customers will not suffer a loss of service because of the move, he added. "The people will receive equal or better service than they did before," Nowling said. "We did this strictly from a service and dollars and cents point of view. If we can't provide equal service, then the office remains open."

Kansas offices closed were:

Offices at Page City in Logan County and Traer in Decatur are scheduled to be closed Nov. 26 and feasibility studies are being conducted on nine other offices, Nowling said.

Most were replaced with rural carriers or contract branch offices, he said, which can provide normal services rendered by the post office.

"In many cases the service will be better," Nowling said. "People will get delivery sooner and have postal service brought right to their doors."

Nowling said many of the post offices were established at the turn of the century, when horse and buggy rural carriers were limited in the distance they could cover.

The major objection to removing the offices, he said, is the loss of identity in a community. When a post office is replaced by a carrier, addresses must be changed to the origin of the route.

"Community identity is very important to these people," Nowling said. "We know they don't like to lose the post office, but we must try to get something for our money. And they get equal or better service in the process."

Seven Get More Meat Imports

The Agriculture Department has announced an increase of 44 million pounds in the amount of meat seven countries can ship into the United States this year.

The increases: New Zealand, 10.8 million pounds; Mexico, 6.5 million; Ireland, 6.2 million; Nicaragua, 3.7 million; Costa Rica, 3.3 million; Guatemala, 2.1 million and Honduras, 1.4 million.

Officials said the increases are the result of other supplying countries not being able to furnish all of their 1971 quotas.

Most of the deficit, about 34 million pounds, is from Australia.

Work In Restoring Century-Old Farmhouse

One hundred and one years old and looking better every day?

Hard to believe, but true in the case of a farmhouse built of native wood and limestone. This home won its battle against time and nature and remains standing today about one mile north of Wamego.

Although the old house stood skeleton for many years it is being restored by a Kansas State University professor.

Making assets of liabilities and approaching life in terms of long range goals are two philosophies that make Robert Funsch, professor of horticulture and forestry at Kansas State University, unusual in comparison with most people.

Ecology, pollution, and conservation are modern problems that Funsch hopes the old house and eighty acres of pasture and farmland will help him solve. "Man will have to return to the land to help solve pollution and conservation troubles," Funsch explained.

Funsch has a game plan with a time table for tackling each task.

Remodeling a 101 year old home yourself takes time and determination because the rewards are slow in coming, Funsch said.

The combination of beauty and profit are vital goals in the Funsch time schedule. For example, he planted Nan-Kind cherry trees along the drive to provide beauty, a windbreak, and a supply of cherries.

A razed building in Manhattan provided limestone for a patio for the home. "The workmanship on the stone was beautiful and I didn't want to see it go to waste," Funsch said.

This pairing of beauty and usefulness will be continued in the pond that Funsch plans. The main body of water will lie in a lower section of the pasture and above it will be another pond that will serve as a settling basin. A pipe through the dam will be the release valve, letting cleaner water flow into the main pond, which also will be used for fishing and swimming.

An old feed lot near the house has been converted into a compost pile.

"The feedlot was a low area and water stood there. At first I was going to fill in the area but then I decided to make an asset of a liability by creating a compost pile. The organic material from the compost pile can be used in garden and later in the nursery I hope to build," Funsch said.

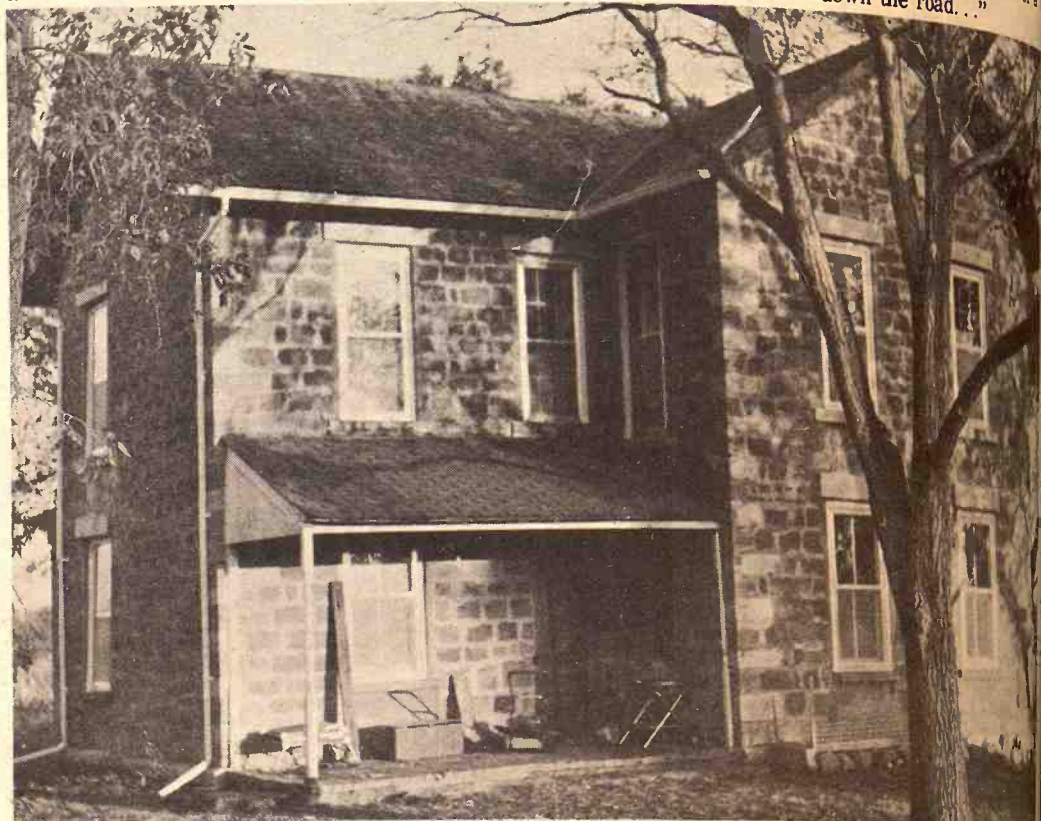

Underplanting with exotic trees that are valuable and can adapt to the Kansas climate is another of Funsch's projects.

"I am eliminating trees that are valueless and adding to the value of the land by establishing trees such as Red Gum, which have economic value; and Bald Cypress, which have good root expansion to hold soil along the waterway.

These trees have yet another value, since Funsch teaches courses and varieties of trees add to practical education. "I would never recommend anyone tackle a 101 year old house and attempt to remodel it. It is ready for a great deal of work. But the satisfaction is great. By the way, I know of a down the road..."

RESTORING CENTURY-OLD FARM HOME

A century old home north of Wamego is being refurbished by Robert Funsch, a Kansas State University professor of horticulture and forestry. "Man will have to return to the land to help him solve pollution and conservation troubles," Funsch says, and he is doing his bit to achieve this goal.

'Emotion Hurting Pollution Control'

The orderly process of managing pollution in Kansas is being hampered by exaggeration and emotion, Jack Lacy, director of economic development in the state, told a Topeka audience last week.

"If we allow legislation to be passed that is designed solely to protect the mass of humanity jammed into our metropolitan centers, you can expect such far-reaching laws to have their effect in every state, county, town and farm in the nation," Lacy told the Downtown Topeka Kiwanis Club.

Bridge Limits Could Cut Off Some Small Towns

The assistant state highway director has expressed "deep concern" for small Kansas towns which may have truck service curtailed because of a program which has dropped the allowable load limits on many bridges across the state.

R. L. "Dick" Peyton said "the situation is critical with respect to the economics of some communities. Some are nearly isolated as far as heavy truck service is concerned."

The executive director of the Kansas Motor Carriers Assn., Miss Mary Turkington, said the statewide truck transport organization is "really concerned about the problem."

She said the KMCA lists 246 Kansas communities "that are totally dependent on motor transport for hauling in all their commodities." She added there has been no survey to determine how many are affected by the reduction in load limits on some bridges.

A spokesman for the Highway Dept. said 95 bridges in Kansas have been posted so far for lower than legal load limits because of structural deficiencies uncovered by a recently inaugurated inspection program.

It was ordered by the federal government in the wake of some spectacular bridge collapses. The federal Dept. of Transportation, at the direction of Congress, adopted more stringent load-bearing requirements for all bridges in the United States constructed with any federal funds.

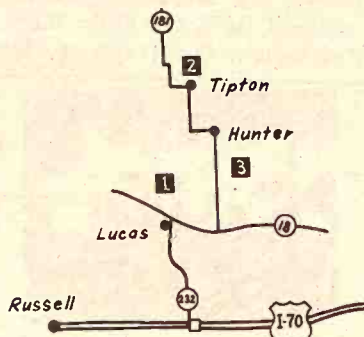

The program extends to county bridges in which federal funds were used, Peyton said, and he added, "We've got some problems with bridges on the state system but the counties are worse off because they haven't had the money the state has had to spend on bridge maintenance."

system.

The noon stop, to which field day visitors should bring a sack lunch, will be at the Charles Hollerich farm north of Tipton in Mitchell county. Hollerich has a 60-cow herd and milks through a double-4 herringbone parlor. He has a new 20x80 silo and an automated feeding system.

Final stop, at 2 p.m., will be at the Richard Errebo farm south of Hunter in Lincoln county. Errebo runs 100 cows and has a double-6 herringbone parlor. He runs an all-alfalfa forage program and has automated hay stacking equipment and an automated calf-raising

PARALYSIS DOESN'T STILL AUCTION CHANT

Paralyzed from his chest down, William Frederick of Chanute, 27, is trying to make it as an auctioneer.

Frederick's neck was broken in a feedlot accident when he was 21. "The first two years I didn't care whether I lived or died," he says. Helped by Congressman Joe Skubitz, who arranged for a stay at a rehabilitation institute at Chicago, Frederick became interested in becoming an auctioneer and set on paying his own way in that field.

Helped by Chanute auctioneers Don Marple and Frank Troutman, he has tried his auction cry briefly at three sales and says he practices at least an hour every day. He went to an auctioneers school at Fort Smith, Arkansas, last summer. "Auctioneering should be a natural for me," Bill says. "I've been around auctions and cattle all my life."

Finally Produce Cash For Topeka Fair Premiums

Payment of approximately $20,000 still owing on premiums for the Mid America Fair has been unanimously authorized by the Board of Shawnee County Commissioners.

Representatives of the Greater Topeka Chamber of Commerce met with commissioners to advance plans for paying the premiums.

County commissioners this year withheld the funds normally paid to the fair for premiums and said they would not make the payments until several points of contention between the Mid America Fair Assn. and themselves were settled.

Under the plan accepted by commissioners, the county and the fair association will pay that share of the premiums to the chamber which then will make out the checks and mail them.

The fair association, which normally would do the mailing and pay the postage, will be asked to provide the postage.

Comm. Maurice Towle said the county had an obligation to the winners but refused to allow the money to go to the fair association unless members agreed to provide a list of names to whom premiums are due.

Comm. John Hiller said he would be willing to provide the money direct to the fair association this year because he felt the county was obligated. However, Hiller said he feels that notification should be made at the same time that "this is it" since he opposes any future payments to the fair association for premiums.

Jim Tolin, commission chairman, said he felt the money should go through the chamber since the fair association had evidenced bad faith in the past by failing to provide premium lists as required by the lease.

FU Says Call Anti-Trust On Farming Giants

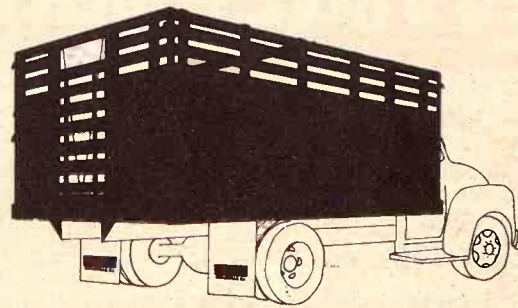

The National Farmers Union has called for the prosecution of corporate agricultural giants under the antitrust laws.

Dr. Weldon Barton, assistant legislative director, told the Senate subcommittee on migratory labor that a few immediate suits to break up production-processing-marketing conglomerates might head off a trend that threatens family farming.

"It has been demonstrated conclusively that family agriculture is as efficient or more efficient than corporate production units," Barton said.

The operation of vertically integrated corporations, he said, destroys the market system on which small farmers depend.

Pass On Surcharge On Imported Booze

WALKER CONTINUES AS NFO HEAD

Chris Walker, right, of Mayetta, was reelected head of the state NFO at the annual convention at Salina last week. Walker also continues as a national director of the National Farmers Organization. With him is Leroy Bower of Pittsburg, state secretary.

The state director of Alcoholic Beverage Control has announced the 10 per cent import surcharge will be applied to 13 brands of imported liquors in Kansas.

Director E.V.D. Murphy said the action had been withheld until wholesale inventories of brands imported prior to the Aug. 15 presidential order were depleted.

Murphy said other brands will probably be added to the list.

Tracy Moody, Wichita, first vice president of the Kansas Liquor Dealers Association, said the increase would range from nine to 13 cents a fifth, depending on the price of the liquor.

A fifth of J. and B. Scotch, for example, would increase in price from $7.21 a fifth to $7.32.

Moody said the increase would probably have little effect on liquor sales.

The 13 brands which will have the surcharge added:

Canadian Club, Six Year Old, 86.8 proof; Seagram's V. O., 86.8 proof; J & B Scotch, 86 proof; Canadian Lord Calvert, 80 proof; Kahlua, 53 proof; Windsor Supreme, 80 proof; Drambuie, 80 proof; Mateus Rose; Jamie '08 Scotch, 86 proof; Tanqueray Gin, 94.6 proof; MacKintosh Scotch, 80 proof; Joe Cuervo Tequila, Gold and White, 86 proof; and Black Velvet Canadian, 80 proof.

The newest sale barn facility in the G&G area is at Herington, where the Herington Livestock Auction held its grand opening November 2.

Owners Lee Remy and Joe Clemence are at left with co-owners Edward Tolle and Irvin Christensen at right. Snipping the ribbon for the grand opening ceremony were John Ivan, administrative assistant to Governor Docking and James K. Smith of the First National Bank of Herington.

Since Remy and his associates took over the barn, the Herington barn has had a major increase in volume. In the year ending in July 1971, the Herington barn had a 70 percent gain in cattle sold from the previous year. Sold there during the year were 26,800 cattle, good for 38th rank in the state among cattle auctions.

MAKE PURINA STEER FATENA YOUR 4% INVESTMENT

Only about 4% of a cattleman's total investment goes for feed supplement. While expenses for cattle, feed-lot facilities, equipment and grain are of primary importance, it's the 4% invested in supplement that often makes the difference in profits.

Purina Steer Fatena, available with stilbestrol and antibiotics, is built for fast gains when time means money. Its blend of protein, calcium, phosphorus, trace minerals and vitamin A is formulated for maximum feed efficiency on the belief that top production requires top ingredients.

Whatever your investment, you'll be counting on results from 100% of it. Don't cut the corner that could cut your profits. Make your 4% Purina Steer Fatena.

Dole Gets Into Rural Development Act

A small but determined group of Senate Republicans, tacitly encouraged by President Nixon, is challenging a bid by 1972-minded Democratic leaders over who will throw the bigger life preserver to rural America.

The confrontation is over rural development, a package of proposals in Congress designed to pump new money into small-town industry, bail out beleaguered farmers and divert future population growth to the countryside.

Three major bills, two in the Senate and one in the House, are the main artillery. Each basically involves creating new or expanded federal credit institutions with a wide variety of programs ranging from housing to farm ownership. Each would funnel hundreds of millions of dollars into rural areas. All are aimed at making small towns and the countryside better places in which to live.

The newest entry is a bill introduced by Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., calling for an overhaul of aid programs, including grants of up to $50 million a year to rural communities for carrying out approved development projects.

Sen. James B. Pearson, R-Kan., has generally been recognized as a leader in developing programs designed to aid rural areas and has been introducing rural redevelopment legislation for more than three years.

Features of several bills concerning farm credit and job development he introduced this year have been incorporated in the Humphrey-Talmadge bill. Pearson also took a leading role in forming the non-partisan Coalition for Rural America.)

Meanwhile Sen. Herman Talmadge, D-Ga., chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee, and Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., who heads a rural-development subcommittee, have proposed a federal network of regional banks to generate new capital in rural areas.

In the house, a measure sponsored by Agriculture Committee Chairman W. R. Poage, D-Tex., also calls for revising and expanding rural aid responsibility.

A basic question, at least between the Talmadge-Humphrey bill and Dole's proposal, is whether a new bureaucracy is required to carry out rural aid.

Talmadge, according to aides, is committed to the concept of a "rural development bank" to dispense federal assistance. Aides say the legislative challenge posed by the Dole bill has hardened Talmadge's determination to push for quick Senate action.

Senate sources say an important factor is the attraction Dole's bill has for Republicans who previously had been persuaded to go along with Democratic-sponsored rural development.

Capitol Hill aides who have watched Dole put together his bill in recent months claim the Kansas senator has not directly sought or received White House blessing.

Not Likely To Avoid Cut In Wheat Exports

MANHATTAN—The world's wheat producers and wheat trade have been on a roller coaster for the past six years, a spokesman from the U.S. Department of Agriculture said at the National Conference on Wheat Utilization.

"Adding up the pluses and the minuses, it is hard to see how we can avoid some reduction in our wheat exports this year from last year's level," said Clifford G. Pulvermacher, general sales manager of the export marketing service.

The three-day conference on wheat utilization was held at Kansas State University. Agricultural representatives from both the U.S. and Canada attended the seventh annual conference.

Pulvermacher labeled the 1970-71 wheat export year as the third best in U.S. history. A total of nearly 740 million bushels of wheat and wheat products valued at $1.2 billion were exported.

Lower wheat production in western and eastern Europe and in Canada was the major factor in the increased exports last year, he said.

This fall, "we are facing a considerably different situation," he said. The 1971 crop is estimated at a record 1.6 billion bushels, "but production in other countries is also increasing."

He added sales of feed wheat from the U.S., especially to the United Kingdom, are likely to be sharply reduced this season, partly because of better weather and higher price guarantees in the United Kingdom, and partly because of greatly increased competition from large crops in the Common Market countries.

On the positive side, Pulvermacher noted the growing demand in Japan for wheat, the export of 50 per cent of the 1970 spring durham wheat crop and 75 percent of the 1969 crop.

Many Using Adult Basic Education Program To Get Diploma Equivalent

More than 30 citizens of Manhattan, from all walks of life, are now tutoring in the Adult Basic Education program of this city. More than 200 have worked in the program since it was launched in January of 1967, some of them, including a KSU professor and a faculty wife, for four or more years. Some tutors are themselves graduates of the program and prove to be excellent instructors. They are familiar with the teaching materials and want to show their appreciation of the tutoring they have received here.

The success of the program has been due, in part, to the small number of students under each tutor and the rapport of students and teacher. The groups studying conversational English join forces every two months for a pot-luck dinner in one of their homes.

"So few things come free," commented one tutor, who herself recently earned the GED (General Education Development) certificate. "My GED cost me nothing but my time. Now I want to help others get their certificates."

"Got to keep ahead of my students, haven't I?," said one tutor with a shy grin as he left the Junior High School building, where classes are held. He had an arm load of books. He takes pride in preparing his students well for those GED exams. Most of the students will be taking the exams December 11 and 18.

The afternoon section, held in the First Christian Church, draws young mothers as tutors. Free child care is provided there both for tutoring mothers and for students with children. Several men, who work on night shifts, also attend this section.

For many students, mathematics is a difficult subject, a fact which worries one KSU professor-tutor. He likes very much an algebra textbook borrowed from the local school system. Textbooks are mostly those which have proved successful in adult education across the nation.

GED exams are administered in emergencies, as well as whenever a dozen or so students are ready to take them. One young woman from Dwight recently had to pass them before she could take a civil service exam. She is promised a job when she passes both. Among the 137 currently enrolled students, a large number expect to take all five of the two-hour exams on the December Saturdays now scheduled.

Tutors wait as anxiously as the students for reports on grades. If a student fails, they advise him as to when to try again and on which subjects to concentrate.

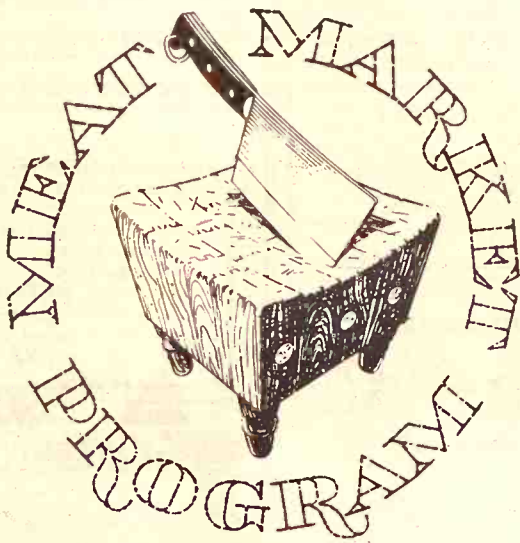

Through this program, 100 persons in this area have already earned the GED certificate, which is equivalent to a high school diploma. Another hundred will probably do the same by next June, when the classes close. This record would not be possible without the help of these volunteer tutors who have given a semester or more of time since the inception of the program.

fresh approach to pork profits

Litter Fritters, the freshest, most palatable pig pre-starter feed you can buy is here. Double-sealed in plastic to assure palatability and earlier dry food intake. Litter Fritters start young pigs on the road to profit in Co-op's all new Meat Market Program, the plan designed to produce better pork, higher profits.

Litter Fritters unique four-ply bag has two plies of polyethylene ... one sandwiched between craft paper walls to lock in freshness and flavor, the other bonded to the exterior surface to lock out contaminants.

And no pre-starter gets to infant pigs sooner with so much: Flavor, nutrients, Tylan + Sulfa medication, quality ingredients, easy-to-eat nugget form. Litter Fritters are rich in pure table-grade sugar and have high fat milk solids specially processed to preserve flavor.

If you have new litters on the ground, or coming soon, plan now to start them on Litter Fritters. When they reach 10 pounds in weight, switch them to the 10/30 Pig Starter Plan ... the second step in the Co-op Meat Market Program.

10/30 is specially formulated for pigs in the critical 10 to 30 pound range. 10/30 Plan feeds are the result of extensive Farmland Industries research and provide all the nutrients a young pig is known to require. Extra palatability and Tylan + Sulfa medication are built in. Plastic lamination on the bag exterior insures freshness and purity.

These profit-powered pre-starter and starter feeds are available at your nearby double-circle Co-op. And they're just part of the complete Co-op Meat Market Program, the way to better pork and a more profitable operation.

RECORD HIGH & LOW TEMPERATURES

The National Weather Service has compiled a list of the highest and lowest temperatures ever recorded at official weather stations in each of the 50 states.

The record high was 134 degrees set at Greenland Ranch, Calif., and the record low 80 degrees below zero at Prospect Peak Camp in Alaska. The high is near the world record of 136 degrees at Libya, Africa, but the low is far away from the record low of 126.9 below set at a Russian station in the Antarctica.

Every state has recorded at least one 100-degree reading and a below zero reading except Hawaii. The record low in Hawaii was 14 degrees recorded on top of a 10,000-foot mountain.

The highs and the lows in the G&G area are: Kansas—121 degrees near Alton, July 24, 1936, and 40 below at Lebanon, Feb. 13, 1905; Nebraska—118 at Minden, July 24, 1936, and 47 below at Camp Clarke, Feb. 12, 1899.

18% Of Farm Output Now Directly Marketed

More and more farm products are bypassing traditional commodity markets and instead are heading straight for the consumer via production and marketing contracts—portending as many changes in agriculture as the advent of the tractor.

By arranging in advance for the sale of their produce, farmers don't need to worry from day to day about fluctuations of demand or what the price might be at selling. These and many more details are worked out in negotiated agreements that give farmers a reliable prediction of their income.

The contracts also encourage growers to concentrate on improving production techniques, rather than spending effort to outguess the market as to when to sell to get the best price.

On the other end of these contracts are food processors, canners, meat packers, wholesale distributors and supermarket chains. They benefit by knowing far in advance exactly the cost of their raw materials. Moreover, they can write into the contracts such specifics as the size of containers, quality standards and even the hour they want the raw foodstuffs delivered to their plants or warehouses so that they can operate at peak efficiency.

Not surprisingly, these mutual benefits have helped speed the growth of agricultural contracting in recent years.

In 1970, estimates Paul E. P. Roy a Louisiana State University economist, around $9 billion of commodities were produced in the U.S. under some form of contracting, amounting to 18 percent of the value of all commodities marketed that year, according to the government.

That breaks down into about $1.5 billion in crops, nearly 8 percent of the value of all crops marketed in 1970, and $7.5 billion in livestock, 25 percent of all livestock receipts.

Roy figures that this is twice as much contracting as there was 10 years ago, and that contracting could account for 15 percent of all U.S. agricultural output by 1980.

Some other observers are even more optimistic, including Kenneth Hood, head of marketing research and development for the American Farm Bureau Federation, whose affiliates negotiate hundreds of such contracts. In the next 20 years, he says, "more than 75 percent of our production and marketing will be governed by contracts, formal or informal."

Even if the conservative estimate turns out to be closest to the truth, that big an increase is bound to send repercussions rippling far beyond the Farm Belt.

Commodity futures trading could be reduced, for example, because producers and processors with contracts would have less need to hedge their production or inventories.

Similarly, dealers, merchandisers and others that make their living handling commodities en route from field to factory may find themselves catering to a shrinking market.

Contract farming is nothing new. Orange County, N. Y., dairymen began bargaining a price for their milk in 1883, and Eastern U.S. vegetable growers started about the same time to make contracts for acreage. During the World War I, farmers in California and Utah organized to bargain collectively with fruit and vegetable processors.

But the big growth in contracting has come since World War II, partly for many of the same reasons that are contributing to the steady decline in the number of farms and farmers, and the steady increase in farm size and mechanization.

"Farmers are in trouble," says Roy at Louisiana State University. "The costs of farming have been increasing, and prices aren't high enough to insure good profits. Many farmers are having trouble getting credit, too."

Roy concedes that these adversities have been partly offset by the government's assuming much of the farmers' risks through subsidies and low-cost loans. In the future, however, Mr. Roy says, "less of the risk will be assumed by the government. Farmers can't shoulder it alone, so they will need to pass it on to others. Also, in order to get credit they will need an assured market for their production at a definite price, which is another reason more farmers will turn to contracting."

Many already have. Practically all of some commodities, such as broiler chickens, is grown or marketed under contract.

Other estimates of the percentage of total production that is contracted are: sugarcane and sugar beets 75 percent; citrus fruit 65 percent; other fruit 20 percent; fresh vegetables 30 percent; potatoes 35 percent; dry beans and peas 25 percent; cotton 15 percent; tobacco 5 percent; fluid milk 95 percent; turkeys 50 percent; table eggs 25 percent to 30 percent; hogs 5 percent to 10 percent, and lamb and mutton 25 percent.

Major grains such as corn and wheat are conspicuously absent from this list. That's because they, along with a few other non-perishable commodities, have well regulated and organized markets in which the producer has several outlets for distribution, University of Illinois marketing specialists say.

The growth of contracting has been and will be greatest in commodities that have sharp price swings along with unpredictable fluctuations in supplies and demand, the specialists say.

Contracting arrangements vary widely. At one extreme are the contracts that give the processor most of the management say-so and compensate the farmer mainly for his labor. These agreements are common in the broiler industry, where the big processing concerns supply baby chicks, feed and so on from their own facilities to farmers who merely tend the birds to market

At the other extreme are marketing agreements whereby farmers and buyers can deal with whom they want, but such matters as price and product quality standards are agreed upon in advance.

Marketing orders, such as for milk and certain fruits and vegetables, that have been established under authority of the federal government, are the most common form of this looser contract. Under a marketing order, producers can prevent erratic flows to market, or support the agreed-upon price by reducing supplies in primary market channels or by blocking an influx of low-quality produce.

Currently, Congress is considering bills that would broaden farmers' bargaining authority to negotiate binding contracts with processors. And some companies are new wrinkles in contracting. Allied Mills Inc.'s lease-

November 9, 1971

Under this agreement, Leases sows to farmers, who buy their hog feed from the method is said to reduce mers' capital investment breeding stock—farmers keep pigs farrowed by the rental and to boost Allied's feed sales increased labor costs and poor business.

U.S. Steel Loss Is First Since '59

Income, however, for the first nine months of the year was off only slightly from 1970—$108.1 million compared with $108.5 million in 1970. Per-share earnings remained at $2.

U.S. Steel thus joins two other major firms, third-ranked National and sixth-place Jones & Laughlin, in announcing quarterly and nine-month losses.

Edwin Gott, U.S. Steel's board chairman, blamed the loss basically on three things: the company was forced to shut down nearly all of its facilities during the threat of a strike in August, "staggering" costs resulting from the United Steelworkers new labor contract, and a lag in orders while customers use up inventories.

Gott said the quarterly loss was the first for USS since 1959 when the industry was locked in a prolonged labor strike. The company recorded sales in the third quarter of just over $1 billion. Sales for the first nine months were about $3.8 billion.

Shipments for the first nine months of 1971, Gott said, were 15.8 million tons, compared with 16.3 million tons in 1970.

Offer Big Grass Areas For Sale In Australia

Vast pastoral leases in Australian "never never" country are being offered for sale.

Interest in foreign control of Australian land has been heightened by the current offer to the public of 900,000 units of common stock in Gunn Resources and Exploration Inc., headed by Australian Sir William Gunn. The issue, at $7 a share, is nearly a third interest in Gunn Resources, which has five large properties in the North.

Money raised from the new issue will be used to pay off a loan and to develop these properties, Gunn has said he could not raise sort or money for such development in Australia.

Up in the "top end" of Australia there's much good beef country with high tropical rainfall. Over years, the Commonwealth government has leased Northern Territory land to the people it thought would be suitable settlers on virgin land.

Corn Supply Far Exceeds Needs

The carryover of old corn was slightly smaller than some people expected. But that did not change the outlook, since the supply of corn far exceeds any possible needs during the year ahead.

The USDA calculated stocks of old corn on hand October 1 at 665 million bushels, down from 999 million last year. The carryover included 425 million bushels held on farms, compared with 569 million on farms a year before. Supplies at mills, elevators, and warehouses were 216 million bushels, down from 318 million. And corn owned by the CCC at bin sites on October 1 was 25 million bushels, compared to 111 million in 1970. (The CCC also owned about 75 million bushels of the corn that was stored in elevators and warehouses.)

Other Feed Grains

Stocks of old sorghum grain on hand October 1 totaled only 91 million bushels, down two-thirds from the 246 million on hand a year earlier. Oat supplies were estimated at 1,097 million, practically the same as a year before. And barley was listed at 495 million bushels, up slightly from the 489 million reported last year.

Stocks of the four feed grains combined totaled 50.6 million tons, down from 64.2 million tons a year ago. These stocks did not include the new crops of corn and sorghum grains. They did, of course, include the 1971 crops of oats and barley.

The amount of wheat on hand October 1 was reported at 1,876 million bushels. This was 4 percent more than a year before, and the largest supply for the date since 1963. Domestic use and exports are expected to take about 1,025 million bushels by next July 1, leaving about 850 million bushels for carryover on that date.

Corn Situation And Outlook

Of the 665 million bushels of old corn carried over on October 1, nearly half was under price support. The CCC owned 99 million bushels, and farmers had 203 million bushels under resale loans. This left 363 million bushels of "free" corn in the carryover stocks.

The most important fact in the corn outlook is that the new crop is much larger than the requirements for domestic use and exports. In early October, the USDA estimated corn production at 5,400 million bushels. Use and exports will probably total no more than about 4,700 million bushels. Most of the difference, around 700 million bushels, will be placed under price-support loans and delivered to the CCC next summer.

If farmers put enough corn under loans, say around 900 million bushels, prices will rise sufficiently to allow farmers to redeem some of this corn and sell it at a profit. At best, however, only a relatively few farmers—maybe one out of five—will be able to sell at a profit. The big majority of farmers who put corn under loan will deliver it to the CCC, or resale it, next summer.

Lightning Rod Frauds Hit Elderly Farmers Frequently

A lightning-rod fraud aimed at the state's elderly farmers is described as "one of the most cruel" ever investigated by the Kansas attorney general's office.

The scheme capitalizes on scare tactics and has cost Kansans $60,000 by conservative standards in the past two months, Asst. Atty. Gen.

Lance Burr, head of the consumer protection division says.

Some of the division's cases "are just unbelievable," Burr said, with victims being sold shoddy lightning rod systems for 40 to 50 times what they are worth. In most cases, the bilked person already had a system that worked perfectly well.

The racket is "unconscionable," he said, adding that virtually every complaint has involved a victim in his late 60s or older. About 90 per cent of the 25 official complaints (Burr believes many more cases have gone unreported) have been from farmers.

The elderly people defrauded "are the very ones who can't afford this type of thing," he said. "This is one of the most cruel (examples of fraud) that we've come across."

Perpetrators of the scheme—an estimated 15 persons are working the state—use several different sales pitches, Burr said. "They tell you they put lightning rods on your house several years ago and that they're back to see if everything's OK," he said, "or that they are back in town to update your warranty."

In either case, Burr indicated, there is almost invariably a reason, usually very questionable, to actually replace the existing lightning rod and charge you again.

A slight variation, as Burr described it, often occurs when the lightning rod men "comes by to say they are simply out examining rods and installations" and will inspect your house for $3.50. If they do approve the system, Burr said, they then alter your check from $3.50 to $350.

Typically, he said, a salesman will

November 9, 1971

ask if the man of the house is home. "If he is there, they'll usually leave. . . they want to talk to a woman; they can scare her easier. The scare tactic is brutal and at the point, Burr said. A person is that if he doesn't replace

Bull Test Station Sale Next Week

BELOIT—Cattlemen interested in buying performance tested bulls will get their chance when the Kansas Bull Test station holds its first sale. The sale will be at 12:30 p.m. Nov. 17 at the Mitchell County fairgrounds, Beloit.

Dr. Keith Zoellner, extension beef specialist at Kansas State university who helped set up the station and assists in evaluating performances, says "the bulls have grown rapidly throughout the test."

There are 131 bulls on test. Approximately 70 will meet the performance criteria necessary to make the sale. Breeds and crosses represented are Angus, Hereford, Charolais, Shorthorn, Milking Shorthorn, Simmental crosses, Murray-Grey crosses and Limousin crosses.

The bulls were weighed 56 days and 112 days after being put on feed. At 56 days, all the bulls on test averaged 3.37 pounds of gain per day. At 112 days they had averaged 3.31 pounds per day.

At the end of test all bulls will be weighed. Their rate of gain, weight per day of age, and an index number computed from gain and weight per day of age will be determined. The approximate upper two-thirds of each breed or cross will be eligible for the sale. Those meeting sale requirements will be electronically measured for backfat thickness. All performance information will be available at the sale.

The Kansas Bull Test station is sponsored jointly by the Kansas Cooperative Extension Service and the Kansas Livestock Association. The test is conducted at the Beloit Valley feedyard east of Beloit.

November 9, 1971

Some Figures Point To Early Arrival Of Zero Population Growth

At a time of wide concern that the population is growing too fast, three important new reports show the rate of the nation's population growth is turning rapidly and dramatically downward.

In addition to an abrupt but short-term plunge in total births, the new reports gave strong evidence of longer-range reductions in birth rates.

If such reduced rates persist, they would result in a population as much as 30 million smaller than the 300 million widely predicted for the year 2000. The population now is 207 million.

Some authorities already have begun to talk of a "birth dearth" and a "baby bust."

But several leading population experts warn that the possibility of a population "bomb" still remains.
They cite historical swings to show that the trend can turn up as fast as the current trend is turning down.

The three new reports disclosed
the following findings:

• There is a rapid and sharp drop in the number of children women intend to have, according to the 1970 national fertility study.

Women in their late 20s who married in their early 20s, for example, now expect to have an average of 2.53 children.
Demographers regard this as a startling drop from the 1965 figure of 3.03. This change alone, involving only married women, would mean notably slower population growth.

• At the same time, there is a striking increase in the number of young women who stay single, according to a Census Bureau survey.

• For the fifth straight month, total births in August fell below the total for August of 1970, according to a new compilation by the National Center for Health Statistics. This is the steepest such decline since 1947.

Most experts discounted this plunge mainly as an inevitable, short-term result of recession conditions. But in July and August, the number of births dropped so low that the resulting fertility rate

now grazes the symbolically significant figure of 2.11.

This is the number of children per woman that would, in 70 years, produce zero population growth. For July and August, the figure is about 2.2, the lowest since mid-depression years when it was about the same.

Survey Says One In 50 Drivers Legally Drunk

About one of every 50 driver's spot-checked by Alcohol Safety Action Project teams in the Kansas City area would be presumed to be intoxicated under Missouri law, it was reported at a meeting of the project advisory board.

Preliminary results of the survey and a household survey indicate few surprises and generally good cooperation by the public, said Dr. George Beitel of Midwest Research Institute, which conducted the surveys.

The surveys, through interviews and Breathalyzer tests of unidentified participants, are designed to provide statistics for the projects 2.2 million dollar program to reduce alcohol-related traffic fatalities. It will go into operation here Jan. 1. "We stopped 1,050 persons," Dr. Beitel said, "and had the co-operation of about 90 per cent. Persons who turned us down by and large were in a tremendous hurry and the co-operation improved as our techniques improved."

Dr. Beitel reported interviewers found that 83 percent of the drivers admitted they drink; 60 percent of those had had a drink within the preceding 12 hours; 30 percent of all drivers had a measurable blood alcohol content (B.A.C.); 4 1/2 percent had more than .10 B.A.C. and 2 percent showed more than .15 B.A.C., the legal definition of intoxication in Missouri.

Higher blood alcohol content was found between 1 a.m. and 3 a.m. rather than in early evening, but the number of drinking drivers were about the same on all days of the week, he said.

Turnpike Aims At Safety Changes

Frank W. McDonald, chairman of the Kansas Turnpike Authority, says it is embarking on a program to improve safety characteristics of the Kansas City-Oklahoma toll road.

He said the improvements were recommended as the result of a study made by the Turnpike's traffic and safety consultants.

McDonald said improvements will include added guard rail protection at some high accident bridge pier and abutment locations.

November 9, 1971

Some of the safety recommendations are in operation, McDonald said.

He said these include lowering of the speed limit, roadway surface improvements and modernization of lighting and signing facilities as replacements are needed and funds become available.

"As in all our improvements, we are guided and limited by funds available for work on a priority list," McDonald said. "The Turnpike is unique in that of all interstate, state and county highways in Kansas, it alone is not eligible for receiving federal highway safety funds."

McDonald said heavy steel exit sign posts and light poles located at interchanges, which have a high probability of being hit by vehicles out of control, are to be systematically replaced by break-away posts. He said some breakaway light poles have been installed as replacements.

He said other sign posts are being removed from the shoulder where possible and replaced 40 feet from the edge of the pavement.

Continue Vet Study On Dairy Disorder

The head of the food animal section of the Kansas State University Veterinary Hospital, Manhattan, is conducting an on-going study begun in August, 1969, to help the state's dairy herdsmen's pocketbooks.

Dr. J.L. Noordsy, professor of surgery and medicine in the KSU College of Veterinary Medicine, is keeping a watchful eye on abomasal displacement which has become an increased concern among dairy herds.

This disorder, which can result in an estimated economic loss of $90-$150 per head in production, medical, and surgical costs, has several clinical signs including decreased food consumption, lower milk production, and rapid weight loss.

"If the disorder is left uncorrected, the affected cow may eventually die," says Dr. Noordsy. He is studying cases of the disorder as they come into the Veterinary Hospital. Many of dairy cattle are confined in relatively small spaces indoors and do not get enough exercise. "It's a little premature to say what will happen so far as research endeavor is concerned. The study will go on another year to determine ways of preventing this before we make any recommendations," he said.

Farmer Sweats, Produces, and Consumer Benefits

Administration farm officials are speaking out on what they as consumer advantages created record feed grain production this argument used is that surpluses are better for the country shortages and that the alteration would mean soaring consumer food prices and reduced profits of important grocery items.
before the latest attempts is a
by Undersecretary J. Phil Campbell who told a home-state conference at Atlanta, Ga., that farmers are suffering now because of a feed shortage.
The 5.4 billion bushel corn crop harvested this fall, he said, has driven down market prices at the expense of producers. But in doing so, Campbell said, farmers have helped prevent sharp rises in retail food costs.

"Corn blight in 1970 caused a short feed grain crop, as much as 600 million bushels under our needs," he said. "If that situation had repeated in 1971, a very severe economic burden would have been imposed on the American people at the retail level."

However, Campbell said, blight damage was slight this year. That, along with the best Corn belt growing weather on record, resulted in bumper yields.

"Consumers are getting the benefit of the courage, determination and expertise of American farmers in preventing a feed grain shortage in the form of reasonable prices for red meat, poultry and eggs," he said.

"As too often happens in our economy," Campbell said,
"everyone benefits financially from the productivity of our farmers except the farmers themselves. This is one inequity which must be corrected if farmers are to survive."

The Agriculture Department announced last month a 1972 feed grain program aimed at curbing excess production of corn, sorghum and barley by requiring participating farmers to "set aside" 25 per cent of their feed acreages with an option to idle additional land.

"If American consumers want a continuing abundance of high quality food, they will have to pay prices that give agricultural producers a fair return," Campbell said.

"I seriously doubt there are any consumers in the United States who want farmers to produce a shortage," he said.

"I suppose the dream of every farmer is to have a few years of shortages of certain crops in order to have a steady run of net profits."

Union Shift Allows Big Feed Grain Sale To Russia

Government and business officials, cheering labor's help in resolving a lengthy Iron Curtain trade impasse, say a multimillion-dollar U.S.-Soviet feed grain deal could yield a cornucopia of diplomatic and economic benefits.

The Nixon administration's surprise disclosure of plans to sell nearly three million tons of American corn, barley and oats to the Soviet Union for cash, with agreement by big U.S. maritime unions to load the ships, was applauded by influential agriculture leaders on Capitol Hill.

In New York, sources said the bulk of the feed grains will come from the Midwest corn belt—thus cutting heavy surpluses from a bumper crop and firming up prices—and would be shipped through Great Lakes ports in foreign flag vessels.

The Agriculture Department, reporting this single sale is equivalent to more than 15 percent of all U.S. feed grain exports last year, calculated the deal's value at the about $135 million, compared to the $100 million-plus worth of wheat shipped to Russia in a controversial 1963-64 arrangement.

But there was speculation the feed grains plan—involving two million tons of corn, 600,000 tons of barley and 300,000 tons of oats to be delivered by next July—could clear the way for sales up to $185 million.

One of the companies involved, Continental Grain Co. of New York, had $140 million worth of sales through the deal said its president Michael Fribourg.

In Minneapolis, Fred M. Seed, president of Cargill, Inc., the other firm involved in the deal, praised the government and unions for settling an eight-year impasse over shipment of grains to Russia.
