History In Kansas

See related pictures pages 4 & 5

In a picturesque Flint Hills setting the Ag Hall of Fame is hidden from the bustle of traffic on the Kansas Turnpike between Kansas City and Topeka. If you turn off at the Bonner Springs exit and head north you'll see signs guiding you to the living memorial to America's past, present, and future in agriculture and related industries.

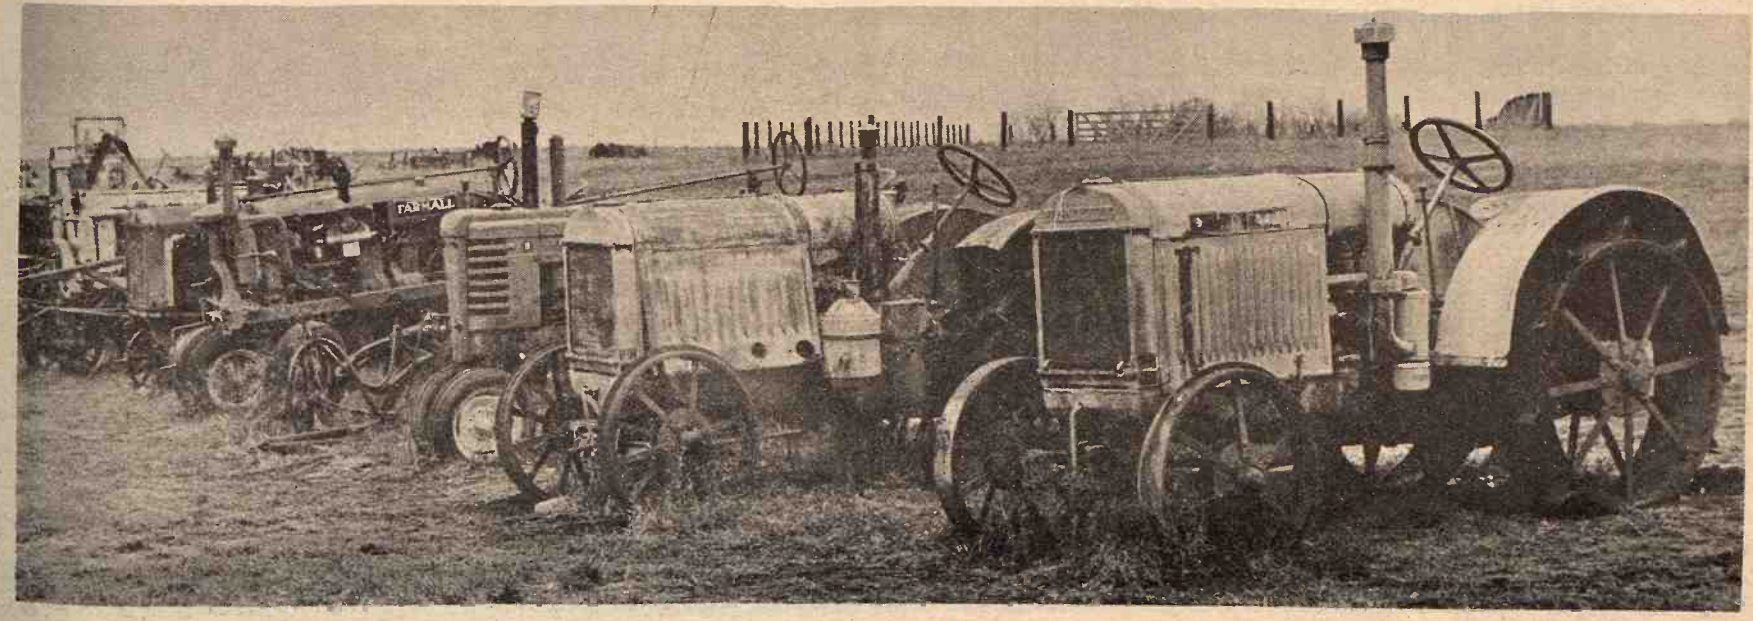

The Ag Hall of Fame was brought into being as a national educational and historical corporation in 1960 under a charter granted by Congress. It is a tax-exempt, non-profit enterprise administered by a Board of Governors of 188 members drawn from agricultural, ranching and business leadership throughout the country.

The center is privately financed through gifts from generous friends of Agriculture and admissions at the door. A comment from the receptionist indicated that the center had been operating mostly from admission charges because there had not been many donations.

The picture of the vintage tractors parked outside and the crowded buildings indicate the need for larger facilities to house these historic and valuable artifacts.

A projected plan contemplates the construction of ten buildings at a cost exceeding 12 million dollars. Of this plan only three buildings are receiving visitors while the others are only on the drawing board.

Features at the Ag Hall include replicas of a log cabin, black smith shop, general store, and doctor's office. Antique cars, steam engines, threshing machines, clothing, washing machines, canning exhibits, and a conservation trail highlight the visit which only costs a dollar.

Wheat Deal Shows Average American Knows Little About Grain Pricing

MANHATTAN — One of the few controversial conclusions that can be drawn from the recent U.S.-Soviet wheat deal is that the average American knows very little about grain pricing.

In fact, he probably knows far more about nuclear fission, space travel, or the rotary engine than he does about grain pricing — particularly export grain pricing of the kind involved in the sale of 420 million bushels of wheat to Russia. Perhaps least understood of all is the export subsidy the U.S. government sometimes pays to firms which export farm commodities.

Foreign sales of some surplus crops, such as wheat, cotton, and tobacco, are subsidized to make them attractive on the world market," says Roy Frederick, Extension Economist at Kansas State University, Manhattan.

"Until the sales agreement with Russia was announced, there was little interest in grain pricing or export subsidy payments outside the grain industry," he says. "Now, everybody seems interested."

The export payment program has been in effect since 1949. The underlying reason for it is the frequent difference between the domestic price level and a lower world price level. Without the payment program would not be competitive on the world market.

For two years prior to the Russian Wheat sale, the world price of wheat had been holding at near $1.63 a bushel at Gulf ports. The government export subsidy was aimed specifically at trying to stabilize world price at this level.

For example, on July 13 the export price for No. 2 hard winter wheat was $1.76 at Gulf ports. This price reflected domestic supply and demand conditions plus transportation to the Gulf.

The subsidy payment in this case was 13 cents a bushel — the difference between $1.76 and the $1.63 per bushel the government attempted to maintain as the export price.

When news of the sale spread, prices began to climb. This meant the difference between world prices and domestic prices widened. To make up this difference, the subsidy rose.

There apparently was no excitement over the 13 cent subsidy on July 13, but alarm set in as the impact of the Russian purchase sent the market soaring and broadened the spread between world and domestic prices. By August 10, the subsidy was pegged at 36 cents.

"This is when people started getting interested in grain pricing," Frederick says.

At the same time, it became increasingly evident that there was little competition for U.S. wheat in world markets. Wheat supplies in other exporting countries such as Canada and Australia had been exhausted.

Thus, it seemed feasible to drop the subsidy. This was done after exporters had applied for subsidies on sales already committed at lower world prices.

"Whether or not the subsidy payments are reinstated depends largely on the future course of supply and demand in world markets," Frederick says. "Increased competition from other exporting countries increases significantly in response to higher prices."

Southwestern Bell

Livestock Reporting Service. Included in the total sheep and lambs on feed were those being grazed on volunteer and seeded wheat pasture, and on aftermath in harvested corn, grain sorghum and sugar beet fields in addition to those in confined feedlots.

Of the sheep and lambs on feed November 1, some 89 percent were placed on feed during the months of September and October. Many of the lambs on feed in Kansas were shipped in from Texas, New Mexico, Colorado and Oklahoma. By weight, the sheep and lambs on feed November 1 were grouped in the following categories: Under 70 pounds, 40,000; 70-79 pounds, 36,000; 80-89 pounds, 20,000; and 90 pounds or over, 4,000.

Volunteer wheat made an unusually fast start this year and sheep were able to obtain early supplemental grazing. Seeded wheat later provided grazing along with aftermath in harvested corn, grain sorghum and sugar beet fields.

Sheep and lambs on feed in seven major feeding States on November 1, 1972 are estimated at 1,556,000 head. This is a 2 percent increase from the 1,519,000 head on feed a year ago. Increases in sheep and lambs on feed in Iowa, Nebraska, Colorado, and California more than offset declines of 20 percent in Kansas, 7 percent in South Dakota, and 3 percent in Texas. Of the seven-State total on feed November 1, an estimated 1,227,000 head were placed during September and October and 329,000 were placed before September 1.

The number on feed by weight groups and the changes from a year earlier are as follows: Under 70 pounds — 190,000 head, down 106,000; 70-79 pounds — 428,000 head, up 7,000; 80-89 pounds — 450,000 head, up 41,000; 90-99 pounds — 316,000 head, up 28,000; 100 pounds and over — 172,000 head, up 67,000.

WHO OWNS PCA?

Farmers who use PCA services. Farmers know more about their credit needs than anyone else. They are familiar with the local market conditions that affect their loan and repayment requirements. When a farmer borrows from his local PCA, he automatically becomes a member and voting stockholder of the association, so that he has a voice in adapting the service of his local PCA to meet local farm credit needs.

WHO RUNS PCA?

Stockholder-Members who know farmers' credit needs. The fact that each borrower owns stock in his local PCA assures that the association will be run by and for the benefit of its farmer members, through locally-elected boards of directors. These boards know what is required to farm successfully in their own localities, so they can fit lending policies to the particular requirements of individual farmers rather than trying to make farmers adapt themselves to unsuitable lending policies.

Corn, Soybean Yield Up If Weather Cooperates

The USDA issued its regular monthly crop report on November 9, showing moderate increases in the production estimates for both corn and soybeans. The new figures should be quite accurate. Even so, they were based on conditions at the first of the month, and there could be heavy field losses with both crops, especially soybeans.

For corn, the new estimate of the national average yield is 94.5 bushels per acre—8.6 bushels more than the previous record of 86.8 bushels set just a year ago. The figures for several states indicate much higher yields than last year. These states include Iowa, Minnesota, Michigan, South Dakota, Nebraska, and North Carolina.

CORN SUPPLY AT RECORD HIGH
The supply of corn for this marketing year is larger than in any previous year, when both the carryover amount and the new crop estimate are considered. The carryover on October 1 this year was estimated at 1,119 million bushels—69 percent more than the 663 million bushels carried over a year ago. (That was after the corn blight had cut production in 1970.)

The USDA now estimates 1972 corn production at 5,400 million bushels, only 3 percent short of the record-shattering crop of 5,540 million bushels harvested last fall. This amount, plus the carryover, made a total supply of 6,519 million bushels—5 percent more than the record of 6,204 million bushels set just a year ago.

The USDA has forecast a total of around 5,300 million bushels of corn for this year. Of course, actual disappearance will differ from the government forecast, perhaps by as much as 100 million bushels either way.

It now appears that farmers will not be able to sell any large amount of the old corn they hold under loans at a profit this year. At the beginning of October, 515 million bushels of old corn were under resale loans. This included 290 million bushels of 1971 corn held on farms. At recent prices, farmers could sell this corn for delivery next July and make a profit of more than 20 cents a bushel. Most of the farmers who hold this corn seem to be waiting for a better deal. Some may get it.

ANOTHER RECORD SOYBEAN CROP

The official November estimate for soybean production is 1,351 million bushels—up 182 million bushels from the 1,169 million harvested last fall. Adding the carryover of 72 million bushels of old beans makes a total supply of 1,423 million bushels for this marketing year, compared to the 1,268 million listed a year ago. Such a supply would allow for a 10 percent increase in domestic use and exports.

NEW ESTIMATES ARE MORE ACCURATE

The new estimates should be quite accurate, because most of the farmers who reported to the USDA at the first of November had harvested some of their crops; thus, they had a good knowledge of actual yields per acre. In addition, the USDA had harvested its own "check plots." These are areas in farmers' fields selected by scientific methods to provide a representative sample of all fields.

Soft Mud Saves Tractor Accident Victim

James D. Vishnyske of rural Belleville suffered head lacerations and a cracked rib after a tractor he was driving turned over on him.

According to the Republic County Sheriff's department, Vishnyske had just pulled a pickup truck when the mud and soft shoulders of the road pulled the 1968 John Deere tractor off into a ditch along the road.

Reports indicate that Vishnyske's head was buried in the soil when the tractor overturned about a mile east and one and a half miles south of Republic.

"The soft mud in the ditch probably saved his life," said County Sheriff Bob Blecha. His brothers-in-law, Bill G. Frost and Jack E. Frost of Great Bend, Kansas, scooped the mud away from Vishnyske's mouth and nose enabling him to breathe," Blecha said.

Export Specialist Forecasts Booming Trade For Kansas Farmers

Kansas producers of red meat and grains should enjoy a booming market for their products in the next few years, speakers at an seminar said.

Looks good for wheat, but it better for livestock," reported S. Renaud, a foreign agricultural service specialist with S. Department of Agriculture. Renaud, assigned to the Mid-America International Agri-Trade Center at Chicago, specializes in agricultural products of the 12-MIATCO area.

Renaud's opinion was echoed by Leik, agricultural representative for the Export-Import Bank, Washington, who noted total gross sales will hit peaks every year for the next years.

He also offered a prediction of net profits, however, pointing out costs of production are sure to fall back on efficient management," observed Renaud.

There is a worldwide demand for men were speakers for a one-day agricultural export market seminar being conducted for Kansas farmers and stockmen.

His aim is "to alert small farmers to the possibilities of the resources available to them at various levels of government to aid in developing them, and to explain the process of exporting abroad," Renaud explained.

Kansas ranked seventh among the last year in export sales of agricultural products, with total of $365 million. The state's production of more than $24 million in agricultural commodities is expected to result in rapidly increasing exports, according to Roy Freeland, state secretary of agriculture.

There is "bound to be" a booming market for Kansas cattle, hogs, feed grains and wheat on a long term basis, "as long as you maintain a reasonable world prosperity and peace," predicted Renaud. "The people of the world want more protein."

Leik agreed, noting "This is the first thing people want to spend their money on. Generally beef."

And Renaud said, "I think the so-called feedlot operations are going to have a very good period ahead of them."

Leik noted even meat by-products "are becoming an important export item," with ready sales for beef tripe, for example.

Commenting on the recently concluded Russian wheat deal, Renaud said the significant point is that the Soviets "have decided to upgrade their protein diet," and are electing to buy U.S. grain even when there has been no severe crop shortage in their own country.

Noting the U.S. has 60 million crop acres out of use because of excess productive capacity, Renaud said "This increase this year is taking the productive equivalent of 10 to 12 million acres, and the increase in the fiscal year ending next July 1 is going to be the greatest net farm income in the history of the United States," suddenly increasing exports from $8 billion to $10 billion.

Kansas exports, for the 1971-72 fiscal year, include 202 million bushels of wheat, of a total of 317.3 million bushels shipped abroad. Other key exports are 60.6 million bushels of feed grains and 21.3 million bushels of soybeans.

Calling the Russian decision "a complete about-face," Renaud quoted Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Carroll Brunthaver, who termed it "a victory of civilization over organization." Brunthaver also observed Russia "has organized herself into diet deficiency."

China, which remains a basically agrarian economy, is expected to be a slower-developing market for U.S. agricultural products, but should react to the stimulus of Russian purchases, he continued. "China is saying 'Anything they can do, I can do better.' The thing we're betting on is that they're going to want a little bit better diet. One egg a family a year would be a tremendous market for feed grains."

Explaining the operations of the bank, Leik said it has done business with Yugoslavia "for quite some time," and last year was authorized to deal with Rumania. Last month they were authorized to do business in the Soviet Union, and last week in Poland.

"I think it's fair to say we're going to see a lot of activity with these four countries in agricultural products," he predicted. The Yugoslavs in particular are very interested in breeder cattle, of both beef and dairy types. The Czechs, too, want feeder cattle as do the Greeks.

"There's going to be a worldwide shortage of feeders," Renaud said, adding the U.S. and New Zealand currently are the only countries that can meet even part of this demand.

The Argentine, traditionally a large supplier of beef to the world market, lacks corn and feed concentrates to compete efficiently with U.S. beef, though their grass-fed animals "will continue to supply the market for hamburger, stew meats, this sort of thing."

However, he noted Argentina now has quotas on domestic beef consumption and is running short of cattle to meet total demand.

Japan, Singapore, Korea and

November 28, 1972

virtually all the western European countries are attractive markets for U.S. red meat products, the two government experts continued.

Africa has not been a good export market for U.S. products because countries there lack dollars, as do some South American nations. However, they said there is much activity in some selected countries, such as Algeria and — to a lesser extent — Nigeria. The U.S. is particularly interested in buying liquefied natural gas from Algeria, and discussions now are under way for Eximbank financing of ships and equipment to supply it, Leik said.

The IH V-8: Another reason why Red Fever has spread so rapidly.

First of all we built a tractor with all the features of our field-proved '66 Series tractors. Then we added IH V-8 power with the most advanced technology.

(For instance, this 550 cu. in. diesel engine has fuel injected to 4 cylinders under no or partial load conditions. Then to all 8 cylinders under load. This way you receive maximum fuel economy.)

But equally important we offered every modern safety and comfort feature—including one of the quietest cabs ever tested in official tests.

And you can equip this tractor with our most popular '66 Series option—shift-on-the-go Torque Amplifier—for maximum productivity.

Americans Returning To Simpler Living Style

Americans are returning to a simpler style of living. They are finding satisfaction in doing things by hand and are losing interest in complicated products and services which require care.

"What Americans want now in a home is comfort and a boost to the spirits," commented one home furnishings designer. "We may be coming into an era in which—the house will begin to get the attention it deserves. The people who make furnishings for homes will watch these changes in living styles and design for people the way they are in the 1970's and not the way they were 10 or 20 years ago."

Home should be much more than a place of shelter. Its furnishings should fit the interests and activities of the people who live in it. Products that reflect those interests give a home individuality. Americans want to use and enjoy the products in their home, but they don't want to have to give them a great deal of care to keep them new.

Floor covering offers a fine example of these changes in living habits. Rough textures are preferred because people find them more pleasing and informal. The popular textures include rough twist, stand-up plushes, and short shags. These carpets look well with most periods of furniture and go well with modern styles too. Some 50 to 55 percent of carpets now being introduced are of this texture type.

An outdoor carpet that satisfies American family needs has recently been developed. The carpet has a nonskid foam back so that it doesn't have to be hammered or glued into place. It can be moved inside during the winter months to be used in a playroom or basement. Its pile yarn resists fading and moisture. It won't rot or mildew. Flat, smooth yarns give it a grassy look and makes it easy to wipe up spills and stains.

Make your home a place to live in with pleasure. Search for the products that best meet your family's interests.

Two Methods For Sewing On Buttons

Two popular methods are used for sewing buttons on various garments.

Pin garment together with a proper lap, marking with a pin. Then position the button through the outer end of horizontal buttonholes or through the upper end of vertical buttonholes. Place the center of the button at this point.

When a button has no shank, place a heavy pin on top of the button. Then sew the button in place by bringing the thread over the pin. Finally, remove the pin and wind the thread around the stitches to form a stem under the button and fasten it securely.

Patent Leather Care

To keep patent leather shoes, purses or other accessories looking their best, store in a dry closet. Never put them near a hot radiator or where the cold will crack them.

Protect Plants From Dust

Cover your houseplants with dampened cheesecloth before you sweep or dust. It keeps the foliage dustfree.

Speedier Ironing

To speed up your ironing, use a wide ironing board so that the area that can be ironed at one time is increased.

Drawer Liners

Use old plastic placemats to line kitchen drawers and dresser drawers in which you store makeup.

Wheat Prices Induce Farmers To Check Futures Market

Rod Turnbull
Kansas City Board of Trade

The relatively high July futures price on wheat has induced many farmers to inquire as to how they can assure themselves of that price at harvest next summer.

Likewise, it has caused men in the grain trade to comment that if a farmer doubts the current July price will hold until next year's harvest, a doubt which some have expressed, he has the opportunity through the futures market to protect himself against a drop in values.

Of course, if a farmer uses the futures market to "hedge" against a drop in price on his 1973 harvested wheat, he at the same time foregoes the opportunity to get higher prices, should they prevail.

The very fact wheat farmers are asking questions about using the futures market to hedge against lower prices next summer indicates that in the past, it hasn't been a routine practice for them. It is true also that there are times when it would be of little or no advantage to farmers to consider hedging. As an example, when prices are at government loan levels there could be little for the farmer to gain by selling his grain for future delivery. The loan itself becomes a hedge or a floor against further price decreases.

But wheat futures prices now are above the loan. This makes it a new ball game. Prices can go up or down. Nobody can know for sure what will happen in markets determined by supply and demand. Futures prices are the best indication available of future values, because the people who are trading are putting their money on their judgment.

How then, can a farmer if he so desires to avail himself of futures prices — that is, in effect, sell his growing crop in advance of harvest?

Let's say that a farmer with a field of growing hard red winter wheat, is thinking right now he'd like to make sure he'd get, at harvest time next July, the July futures price presently posted at the Kansas City Board of Trade.

There are two ways this farmer can go.

One is to enter the futures market himself and sell wheat for future delivery. Under this plan, which is routine for merchandisers of grain, the farmer would, through a broker, sell 5000 bushels (one futures contract unit) for delivery next July. He would pay a brokerage fee at the Kansas City Board of Trade of $22.00, and would be required to put up a margin of 14 cents a bushel or $700.00. He would be required to keep this margin at 12 cents. Thus if the July futures price rose 3 cents a bushel, he'd be required to put up another 1 cent margin.

After harvest next July, this farmer would sell his wheat to his local elevator. Also at that time, he would buy back his futures contract. If the price on wheat had dropped by harvest time, the farmer obviously would have to take that price at the market.

However, the futures price likewise would have dropped and the farmer would be able to buy his futures contract back for less than he paid when he entered into it. His profit on his futures deal would approximately equal the difference between what the July futures price had been when he "sold" the grain on the futures contract and what he got when he actually sold to the elevator.

The second and probably more popular method for the farmer to follow would be to make a forward sale to his local elevator. In these circumstances, the elevator handles all the futures transactions. Not all country elevators want to do this. Therefore, if a farmer is determined to sell his wheat in advance and his elevator declines to cooperate, the only thing the farmer can do is go to another elevator.

Most elevators, however, are ready to handle such business and have printed contracts ready for such transactions. Such elevators on any day will tell a farmer what they are bidding on wheat for July (or September) delivery, based upon the prevailing futures prices, the normal handling charges and profit for the elevator, plus costs of entering into a futures contract. The elevator, it should be understood, when it contracts with the farmer to buy wheat will immediately sell that wheat for future delivery and it will have to deposit the margin requirement.

In essence, the contracts with the farmer will guarantee that the elevator will pay the farmer a stipulated price for his wheat when it is delivered at harvest. At the same time, of course, the farmer has guaranteed he will deliver a certain quantity of the wheat. One side of the contract is as binding as the other.

The question farmers nearly always ask is, "What happens if the day before I intend to harvest, I'm hit with a hailstorm and I don't get a kernel?"

The contracts cover this and other contingencies. Nearly every grain company or elevator has its own contract form, but they are similar in many respects.

Following are actual phrases taken from some contract forms available in grain offices at the Kansas City Board of Trade. One states:

"If this contract is not fulfilled at maturity, the seller shall notify the buyer on the day of maturity, what portion of contract remains unfilled. Unless time of shipment is extended by mutual consent . . . the seller shall be deemed to have defaulted . . . and shall be liable to the buyer on the unfilled portion of contract for difference between contract price specified and market price on date of maturity . . ."

Another plainly says: "Seller agrees that he will pay market difference between contract price and market price to buyer if for any reason he is unable to deliver the grain."

Another contract simply states that the farmer agrees to deliver the quantity of grain specified at the date specified. The assumption is, a spokesman for the grain company said, that the farmer will make a settlement if he can't deliver the grain from his own harvest, or that he will buy the wheat somewhere in order to make his delivery.

The point to be understood is that provisions are made in the contract situation in which the farmer is able to deliver the wheat and the contract to sell. As an example, suppose the farmer has contracted to deliver 5000 bushels in July, which he was to get $1.75 a bushel. Because hail has wiped out the crop completely, he has no wheat to deliver. Meanwhile, the market price has risen to $1.85. Under his contract he will be obligated to pay the difference between $1.75, or 10 cents a bushel, and $1.85, or 15 cents a bushel, a total of $500.00. On the other hand, if the market price had fallen to $1.65. In this case, the farmer could buy wheat to deliver and make $500.00.

The principal suggestion out of this discussion is that facilities are available for a farmer to sell his grain in advance of harvest or to protect himself if he has determined in his mind he would be satisfied with the price. The thing to do is to talk to the elevator operator or to the grain company and mine the exact details involved. Read the contracts offered.

Peak Car-Deer Collision Season

Fall is here and the deer are running. The Forestry, Fish and Game Commission has announced its yearly reminder to Kansas motorists that the deer-vehicle collision season is at hand.

For the first nine months of 1972, 765 road-killed deer reports have been received by the Commission, according to Bill Peabody, Emporia, Commission deer biologist. He predicted 1,200 to 1,300 will be reported by the end of December.

"With an expected 200 or more deer to be killed on the roads just in November, we are in the peak of the road-kill season," Peabody warned.

The biologist cited several reasons for the increased activity of Kansas deer which results in more of them crossing roads and being struck by cars.

"For one, November is the deer breeding season. Understandably excited the does and bucks increase their roaming over the countryside and across roads in search of mates," Peabody said.

He added that also this is the time when deer are moving to wintering grounds which are better protected from elements than their summer haunts.

"Another cause is that November brings the greatest number of hunters to the field. Both small game and deer hunters keep the deer from settling down.

"Coupled with the heavy auto traffic of pheasant and quail seasons and the Thanksgiving holiday, the potential for road-killed deer is even greater," he said. Dawn and dusk are the peak hours of deer movement.

Chiropractors Gain Medicare Role — May Lose Too

For seven years of ceaseless fighting, chiropractors have finally succeeded in getting themselves included in the multibillion-dollar Medicare program through a series of compromises that offers a view of the workings of Washington in compromise.

Cast of characters involves small but determined band of chiropractors, their patients, lobbyists for and against their cause, senators and representatives, federal officials, campaign contributions and tens of thousands if not millions of pieces of mail.

The drama that culminated with the signing by President Nixon of Public Law 92-603 on Oct. 30 also featured ideological allies taking opposing points of view and alliances between traditional enemies.

Yet after all the effort expended on this mammoth legislative tug of war, it appears that while the chiropractors have won the battle to have their services included in Medicare, they may have lost the war because the same act markedly restricts the treatments for which they will be paid and reduces their participation in the Medicaid program.

Thus the hoped-for windfall of $110 million a year that the chiropractors had hoped to gain by their inclusion in Medicare—which would about double their total national gross income—has been cut to $35 million. And because of the Medicaid changes this may not only vanish altogether but also may be less than they are now receiving from any federal program.

In addition, the new changes leave the chiropractors even more at the mercy of their enemies, the doctors of medicine who in the world of the American Medical Association regarded chiropractic as "an unscientific cult."

The series of events that finally led to the inclusion of chiropractors in Medicare started in 1965 when Congress was drawing up the Medicare program. This pointedly excluded coverage of chiropractic services from the health insurance program for people 65 and older.

Every Congress since then has seen senators and representatives introducing scores of bills aimed at achieving the chiropractors' goals. For example, in the 92nd Congress that just ended, 97 congressmen introduced a total of 72 pro-chiropractic bills. In the previous Congress 160 members introduced 91 bills.

From ideological right to left the sponsors ranged from Rep. John G. Schmitz, the California Republican who ran for president on the ticket of the American Independent Party, to Rep. Benjamin S. Rosenthal, D-N.Y., whose opposition to the Vietnam war helped focus the drive against Lyndon Johnson in 1968.

The chiropractors lobbying efforts were directed by Harry N. Rosenfield, a lawyer who two decades ago was a high official of the old Federal Security Agency. The forerunner of the present Social Security Administration.

Rosenfield represents the American Chiropractic Association of Des Moines, Iowa, which has a membership of 12,000 of the nation's 20,000 chiropractors.

Final Certificate Payment May Be Down To Seven Cents

Agriculture Department officials are seemingly at odds over how much wheat farmers can expect to collect in final payments next month for participating in the government's acreage "set aside" program.

Department officials had said the final payment might amount to 13 cents per bushel on a farmer's share of "domestic allotment" wheat this year.

Later, however, other officials said privately the actual payment might be nearer 7 cents per bushel. So-called "certificate" payments are made to participating wheat growers to bridge the gap between the July 1 parity price—$3.02 per bushel last summer—and the actual market average for the five months, July through November.

A spokesman said that the four month average—July through October—was about $1.61 per bushel and the final determination including November, was expected to be "close" to that figure. Thus, using the $1.61 figure as a prospective average, the total certificate payments would be $1.41 per bushel for 1972.

Farmers received a preliminary payment last summer of $1.28 per bushel on their domestic allotment 1972 wheat. Using the $1.41 formula, another 13 cents would be due in December when final payments are made.

Now, according to officials the five-month average will probably be higher than the $1.61 quoted earlier. That would mean a decrease in the final payment to growers from the earlier indication of 13 cents per bushel.

The November price average will not be published until Nov. 30, and the final payment rate will be announced shortly thereafter.

The payments are made only on a farmer's share of wheat grown on domestic allotment acres, land determined to be enough to provide 535 million bushels a year for U.S. food needs.

"Raccoon, skunk, muskrat, opossum, mink and weasel can be trapped only from Dec. 1 through Jan. 31. Beaver trapping season runs from Jan. 1 through Feb. 28. Coyote, badger, bobcat, red and gray fox can be hunted and trapped anytime of the year, while the season is closed year 'around on swift, or prairie fox, otter and black-footed ferret," said Little.

To trap and sell furs, Little said trappers must keep three main things in mind. "All trappers, regardless of age, must obtain a $1.50 trapping license. A trapper can have only 20 traps set at one time. And if trapping is conducted on another person's property, permission must be obtained from the landowner or tenant."

According to Little, trapping interest in Kansas has dwindled so that relatively few now sport. Where trappers bought licenses an average of only 2,000 have been purchased during the last few years.

"Trapping in not for the more people think it is a line every day, weather, chopping snow is just work."

Still, Little reports should harvest about 1972 year, muskrat probably most numerous. The fur year, he said, is subject but many feel coyote and pelts should bring a common and easy-to-kill is figured to range around pelt, he said.

Would Tighter Import Control Cause Beef Buildup?

Limiting beef imports on a quarterly basis, a plan which has received attention from the cattle industry and some members of Congress, would result in a U.S. buildup of herds and lower prices for producers by 1980, according to Agriculture Department economists.

The prediction is included in a study by the Economic Research Service of a number of possible alternatives to the existing apparatus for restriction of beef imports.

Current controls, provided under a 64 quota law, were suspended by President Nixon last June for the remainder of this year. The door has opened to more imports, mainly from Australia, in an effort to curb meat price increases.

No decision has been made, according to USDA officials, on whether the quotas will be suspended in 1973. The basic law, however, is still in effect and can be used at the discretion of the President.

Producer representatives, mainly the American National Cattlemen's Association, have objected to the present quota mechanism which uses an annual adjustment of quotas based on domestic beef production. In recent years, imports have been equal to around 7 or 8 percent of the U.S. cattle output.

Economists set up theoretical "models" using recent cattle market prices, ran the information through computers and arrived at what they said might happen under possible alternative plans.

One such plan involved use of quarterly quotas aimed at setting beef imports for the entire 12 months at 6.4 percent of the U.S. domestic beef output the year before.

The idea, according to supporters of the quarterly plan, is to forestall heavy seasonal imports which can cause U.S. cattle prices to slump.

Europe Biggest Market For US Soybean Growers

The European Economic Community, collectively the biggest foreign market for American farmers, will continue as a big purchaser of U.S. soybeans at least through 1980, says the Agriculture Department.

Last year, the Foreign Agricultural Service says, EEC countries used a record amount of oil seeds and meals, and a record share of those items—61 per cent—came from American farms, mostly soybeans and meal.

Although yearly gains in European requirements are not expected to match the increases of the last decade, the demand for the products by 1980 is expected to be substantially larger than now.

Spreading imports evenly over an entire year, goes the argument, will lessen chances for price breaks.

According to the 10-year projection—theoretically beginning in 1970—the number of cattle sold for slaughter and prices would be little affected during the early years. Steer prices, however, would begin to rise slightly by 1974.

But ranchers, encouraged by tighter control of imports, would begin to build up cow herds in response to improved market prices for steers. That would reduce the supply of "nonfed" beef—from cows, mainly—and help perpetuate improved prices generally for a time.

By 1978-80, however, the beef cow inventory theoretically would average 1.7 million head larger than without the change from the present import quota program.

The economists, commenting on the cattle situation under the quarterly quota plan, said prices for both fattened and nonfed beef cattle would average about $1.50 per hundredweight lower than now.

"The strategy resulted in slightly lower cattle prices during the latter years of the decade," the report said.

LARNED—It may be a trend has not yet been spotted, Arnold, public relations director of Larned State Hospital, is reporting the 178 new admissions to the mental hospital in October. The number was in keeping with the record-breaking rate of 178 in September and 163 in August. Larned State Hospital serves 17 western Kansas counties, only two of which do not have county health facilities.

"We are getting into some of an upward trend," Arnold said. National statistics on admissions to state mental hospitals are 15 months old, Arnold reports, so he did not know if the sudden increase was indicative of any national trend.

Arnold said that while most believe state mental hospital populations are on the rise, Larned's is 740, higher than before.

The increase is making it difficult for the small number of staff to provide adequate care, Arnold said. An average ward has only one psychiatric aide for more than 100 patients, he said.

Arnold said he believes there are several factors for the rise in admissions. Thirty to 40 percent of recent admissions are persons with problems relating to alcoholism. The rate was 15 to 20 percent a year the rate was 15 to 20 percent, Arnold said. He also cited the increased number of school counselors and more highly trained mental health workers who are able to spot personal mental problems and refer them to the hospital.

Although two centers for children were started in 1971, Arnold does not see added facilities as a reason for the influx of more patients.

EARNED—It may be a trend that has not yet been spotted, Ralph Arnold, public relations director for Larned State Hospital, said in reporting the 178 new admittances to the mental hospital in October.

The number was in keeping with a record-breaking rate of 183 in September and 163 in August. Larned State Hospital serves 52 western Kansas counties, only two of which do not have county mental health facilities.

"We are getting into some kind of upward trend," Arnold said. National statistics on admittances to state mental hospitals are usually months old, Arnold reported, and he did not know if Larned's sudden increase was indicative of a national trend.

Arnold said that while most people believe state mental hospital admissions are on the decline, Larned's is 740, higher than ever before.

The increase is making it difficult for the small number of staffers to provide adequate care, Arnold said. The average ward has only one psychiatric aide for more than 25 patients, he said.

Arnold said he believes there are several factors for the rise in admissions. Thirty to 40 percent of all admittances are persons with problems relating to alcohol. Last year the rate was 15 to 20 percent, he said. He also cited the increased number of school counselors and more highly trained ministers who are able to spot persons with mental problems and refer them to hospital.

Though two centers for youth children were started at the hospital in 1971, Arnold does not see added facilities as reason for the increase of more patients.

FARM BUREAU REPRESENTATIVES

They were among more than 1,200 members representing the 105 county Farm Bureaus of Kansas at the three-day meeting where organizational policies were adopted, outstanding members honored, and officers elected for the coming year. Kansas Farm Bureau is the state's largest general farm organization with a membership of 90,989.

Farm Prices Predicted To Remain High

HAYS—Farm prices should stay at about current levels through most of 1973, members of the Kansas Wheat commission attending the annual meeting were told. That's about 10 percent above last year on all farm products, according to Frank G. McKnight, associate general sales manager of the export marketing service of the Department of Agriculture.

The major factor is increased export of U.S. farm products.

"Exports of U.S. agricultural commodities are expected to total $10 billion for the year, the first time in our history we have ever reached that long-sought level," McKnight said.

"Prices received for all farm products are averaging about 10 percent higher this year than they did a year ago, and farmers should be able to look forward to prices near the current high levels through most of 1973."

At least some of the export bonanza comes to Kansas. McKnight said Kansas farmers will account for about 200 million bushels, or one-fifth of the record wheat export of over one billion bushels with a value of more than $2 billion. The Kansas share of the export will exceed $300 million, he said.

"Your total Kansas agricultural exports should approach a half billion dollars, placing you among the first half-dozen states, both in agricultural exports and in total farm income," he said.

James R. Good, vice-president of Continental Grain Co., New York City, one of the export firms which concluded the massive wheat sale to Russia, agreed with the optimistic outlook for exports.

He said demand in Asia "looks extremely bright" next year and that he expects Russia to be a steady customer for hard and white wheats from the U.S.

"Guessing the needs of China is the most difficult of all areas," he said. "Our information is fragmented at best as to actual needs and clouded by political consideration."

Good was critical of the "the general news media" for "Monday-morning quarterbacking" the Russian grain sales.

In other reports, John Brethour, a Fort Hays Experiment Station researcher, described research in using wheat as a major portion of cattle ration. So far, he's found the hard red high gluten wheats—the same kind most desirable for milling and baking—to make the best cattle feed.

Adding 3 ounces of bicarbonate of soda to a daily ration of 23 pounds of wheat has brought daily gains of more than 3 pounds, Brethour said.

Dr. Wayne Henry, research director for Far-Mar-Co., the Hutchinson-based cooperative, described work in separating wheat kernels into basic components. It's been a success but industry has not yet begun to exploit the potential of wheat gluten and other components in a serious way, he said.

Kansas Blue Cross, Shield Receive Enrollment Honors

Kansas Blue Cross and Blue Shield received highest enrollment honors among all Blue plans in the nation, with four plaques awarded for enrollment achievement.

The annual national enrollment conference for Blue Cross and Blue Shield plans was held in San Antonio, Tex. Wayne Johnston, state enrollment director, accepted the awards for the Kansas plans.

Both Kansas Blue Cross and Kansas Blue Shield received first-place awards for having the greatest percentage in enrollment related to plan area population in all 74 Blue Cross plans and 71 Blue Shield plans in the nation. In addition, both Kansas Blue Cross and Blue Shield received first-place awards for attaining the largest percentage enrollment gain in the $500,000 to 1 million category.

Kansas Blue Cross had a total net gain of 89,621 subscribers and Kansas Blue Shield's gain was 95,577 subscribers.

The period for which the award was made was July, 1971 to July 1972. At the end of that period, Blue Cross subscribers in Kansas totaled 776,863, and Blue Shield 777,030.

This represents 42 percent of the population of the 103 counties served by Kansas Blue Cross - Blue Shield.

Exercise Program Can Reduce Heart Attack Deaths

middle-age men prone to have heart attacks engage in exercise programs they may reduce the risk of sudden death from the disease, researchers reported.

A study involving 196 sedentary, coronary-prone men, ages 40 to 59, showed that a three-times-a-week exercise program reduced the incidence of "skipped" heart beats.

Dr. Henry Blackburn of the University of Minnesota reported the study at the annual scientific

Grass & Grain

November 28, 1972

sessions of the American Heart Association.

The research was in collaboration with the Laboratory for Human Performance Research at Pen-sylvania State University.

Coauthors of the report were Drs.
Henry L. Taylor, Burt Hamrell and Doug Thorsen of Minnesota and Ellsworth Buskirk and W. Channing
Nicholas of Pennsylvania.

"Skipped" beats, or premature ventricular heart beats, have been found to precede fatal disturbances in heart rhythm, particularly ventricular fibrillation.

In this condition, the heart fails to pump blood because of erratic, uncoordinated beating of the main chamber.

The men in the study showed an increasing frequency of "skipped" beats when subjected to treadmill exercise.

Half then participated in a three-times-a-week exercise program for 18 months and the other half continued their sedentary life.

At the end of the trial period, the two groups were tested after treadmill exercise, and those who had participated in the exercise program developed fewer "skipped" beats.

It was further found that more of the men in the training program who regularly had "skipped" beats when resting lost them.

The conditioning also increased the amount of physical stress to which the exercise group could be subjected before the unusual heart beats appeared.

Blackburn said, "the results are not firmly conclusive" because the number of men tested so far is too small. But he added that the study does suggest that exercise conditioning might benefit men endangered by this heart ailment.

Not all skipped beats indicate danger, Blackburn observed.

Election Results Point To Change In House Agricultural Committee

Now that the smoke has cleared from the election it is evident that certain changes in Congress will have a definite effect on the interests and in some cases, in the effectiveness of representation of the livestock industry.

According to a recent American National Cattlemen's Assn. news release "many changes are coming in the House Agriculture Committee." Representative Graham Purcell (D-Tex) will not return to chair the subcommittee on livestock and grains, as he was defeated.

Under Purcell's direction hearings earlier this year on beef prices brought the cattlemen's story into better public understanding.

No set procedure determines who will chair a subcommittee but in the informal selection process Washington Democrat, Tom Foley may well take the chairmanship.

Purcell was defeated by Bob Price (R-Tex) who is also a member of the Agriculture Committee and the subcommittee on livestock and grains.

Democrats Out

Altogether, six Democrats are leaving the House Agriculture Committee. New York Democrat

John Dow was defeated along with Purcell. John McMillan (D-S. C.) washed out in a primary election while two men retired — Tom Abernethy of Mississippi and Watkins Abbitt of Virginia. Then Arthur Link of North Dakota left Congress to run for and win the governorship of his state.

These changes, which skim the top of the committee roster, make Rep. Frank Stubblefield (D-Ken) ranking party member and next in line to the chairman.

Chairmanship is still firmly held by veteran Bob Poage of Texas. While membership in the committee has numbered 36, Poage, who would like to see a lower, more manageable number, wants to hold it to or below the current 28 members.

ANCA also noted that there is little to the rumor that the subcommittee on livestock and grains might be divided into two subcommittees. They say, "It is not likely that Poage will divide livestock from feeds, although there is an outside chance that a separate subcommittee might be set up for wheat."

Republican losses to the committee numbered two. Page Belcher of Oklahoma announced retirement

RETIRING FLB PRESIDENT

William G. Plested, Jr., president of The Federal Land Bank of Wichita, has announced that he will retire from active duty on January 31, 1973.

Plested joined the Federal Land Bank as an irrigation attorney on June 1, 1929, "to gain a few years' experience in title examinations in the Land Bank." He has been with the Federal Land Bank for over 43 years, serving in the Land Bank legal department and then as general counsel for the three Farm Credit Banks before his election as president of the Land Bank in 1958, which he has held for the past 15 years.

bringing Charles M. Teague of California to the ranking GOP position.

Also on the Republican side was the loss of Iowa's John Kyl who had been re-districted and was defeated for re-election.

Senate Surprise

The Senate Agriculture Committee was dealt a surprise when in the Senate race Jack Miller, Iowa, top-ranking Republican on the committee went down in defeat. Miller has also served on the crucial Finance Committee which deals with taxes and foreign trade.

GOP's next-in-line to Miller is George Aiken of Vermont, then Milton Young of North Dakota, Carl Curtis, Nebraska and Bob Dole of Kansas.

These men have corresponding GOP stature on other important committees. And since the agreement last year that two such jobs should not be held by one man, the man taking over the high-ranking agriculture post would yield the equivalent job of his other committee. "Speculation is that the top GOP spot on the Agriculture Committee will be filled by either Curtis or Dole," ANCA said.

Other vacancies on the committee have placed George McGovern of South Dakota in the third ranking spot. This has come about by the recent death of Allan J. Ellender (D-La) and the defeat for re-election of B. Everett Jordan of North Carolina, a Democrat.

Herman Talmadge of Georgia is expected to continue as chairman while number two man on the Democratic side is James O. Eastland of Mississippi.

FmHA Announces Kansas Allotments For Fiscal 1973

The Farmers Home Administration announced that the allotments of loan funds to Kansas for fiscal year 1973 have now been completed and that Kansas will receive a total of $44 million.

State Director Morgan Williams said $20 million has been allotted for farm loans, $17 million for development loans.

Williams said this allotment is million higher than Kansas received in fiscal year 1972 and is the ever allocated to Kansas. The funds should enable the Farmers Home Administration and its lenders, through joint loans, to provide over $65 million into the Kansas economy in fiscal 1973. Most of the $44 million in funds is borrowed in the money markets by the Farmers Home Administration.

Digs and loads silage up to one ton per minute

Unmatched for speed and efficiency. There's no "fooling around" when the ENSILOADER goes to work in a trench silo. The rugged, exclusive, patented reel that digs right in and removes several tons of silage with each cut. Loose material is then rapidly transferred into the feed box.

All of this takes only seconds! And with just one operator. No hand loading, no extra labor cost.

Better quality and more palatable feed is delivered to the feed box, due to the tested action of the ENSILOADER reel and loading system. There's a minimum of compaction and lumping.

Rugged, all-steel construction means less maintenance. ENSILOADER is built to stand heavy feedlot duty, yet is precisely engineered to give flawless performance.

ENSILOADER is designed to mount on many different makes and models of farm tractors; and is unconditionally guaranteed to do the work for which it is designed.

Farmers Union Director Says Nixon Weakening Management Programs

Ruben L. Johnson, Director of Relative Services, National Farmers Union, Washington, D. C., said that "Nixon Administration is responsible for the weakening of present and future programs are laying the groundwork for weakening of supply management programs in new farm legislation to be drafted next year." Johnson told members of the Kansas-Hodgeman County Farm Union that farmer support of supply management provisions of commodity programs—wheat, feed grains, cotton and others—will be a mandate to continue supply management provisions in the new farm bill. The present commodity programs for wheat, feed grains and cotton authorized by the 1970 Agricultural Act expire at the end of 1973. "A major legislative effort of Farmers Union will be to alert members of Congress to the dangers of legislation that would phase out present commodity programs."

Former K-State Vet Sued By Race Horse Owner

MANHATTAN—A former Kansas State University veterinarian has been sued for $20,000 in damages in Riley County District Court for losses suffered on a race horse.

The suit against Dr. R. S. Titus, Panama City, Fla., was filed by Art C. Vigare, Lawrence, Kans. Vigare claimed his horse, Secret King, had to be destroyed after having been treated at K-State's Dykstra Veterinary Hospital. He alleged the horse was taken to the hospital Sept. 3, 1971, for treatment of a tendon problem which developed shortly after the animal participated in a race at Omaha.

Vigare alleged the horse's right foreleg became so deformed he could not put the foot down in a normal position and as a result couldn't walk in an unencumbered manner and was incapable of racing. The horse was subsequently put to death in Wichita.

Corn Demand To Exceed Crop

Record exports and rising consumer demands for more meat, poultry and dairy products are expected to drain off an unprecedented 5.5 billion bushels of corn in 1972-73, the Agriculture Dept. says.

That is more corn than farmers are expected to harvest this year and about 200 million bushels in excess of what USDA experts believed in September would be required for the year ahead.

"The feed-grain situation for 1972-73 includes an ample supply, prospects for increases in domestic consumption and exports, a modest drop in the season-end carryover and stronger prices," the department said.

Exports are expected to utilize a record one billion bushels of the nation's estimated supply of 6.5 billion bushels of corn in the marketing year ending next Sept. 30. The total includes 1.1 billion carried over from earlier crops.

The new export projection is sharply higher than the 875 million bushels estimated in September and exceeds by far the 796 million sold overseas last season.

Nearly 4.1 billion bushels will be needed as feed in the United States, up from less than 3.9 billion last year, the department said in a preliminary feed-grain report.

Corn for food, seed and other uses will require the balance of the 5.5-billion total expected to be consumed, the report said.

Last season, when farmers produced a record corn crop of more than 5.5 billion bushels, exports and all other uses required less than 5.1 billion.

Looking ahead to a year from now, when a new crop is being harvested, officials said the carryover of old stocks will be about one billion bushels. Although down from this year's reserve of 1.1 billion, it would be the largest since Oct. 1, 1969.

Lawn Winterizing Assures Peak Condition In Spring

Hold it! Don't put that garden hose and lawnmower away yet. Winter may be just around the corner, but if you want a pretty lawn next spring, now is the time to do something about it.

Larry Leuthold, Extension horticulturist at Kansas State University, says that though grass is winter hardy, there are some winterizing procedures that will insure lawns are in peak condition when the next growing season arrives.

First, check the height of your grass. "The argument arises each fall over whether to finish up with a short mowing or a tall mowing going into winter," he says. "Short mowing before winter deprives the roots of some of their natural protection. Save this practice for early spring."

On the other hand, leaving the grass too tall results in matting and a potential disease problem. "The best practice is to mow it the same height or a little higher than usual," Leuthold advises.

A second winterizing note deals with the value of "winterizing" fertilizers that have come on the market in recent years.

"These fertilizers are high in phosphorus (one of three main fertilizer elements)," Leuthold explains, "and research indicates plants growing in soil that is definitely lacking in phosphorus will be less winter hardy."

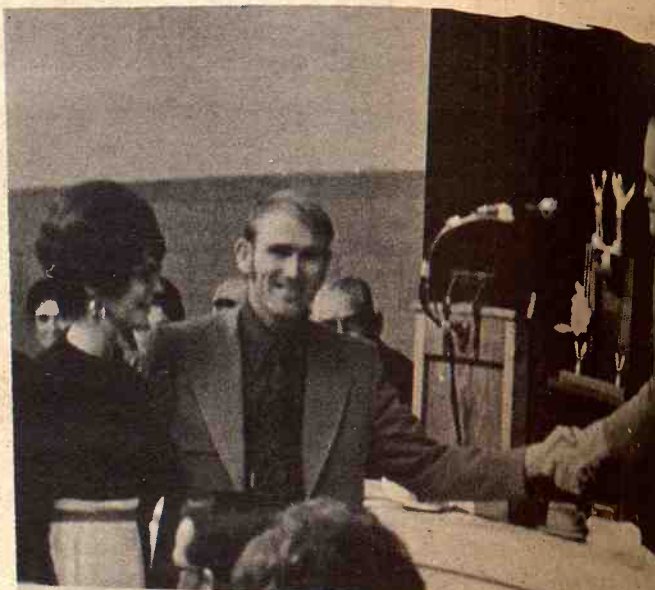

Many Kansas soils are low in phosphorus and are improved by its application. However, Leuthold recommends a soil test first, since an over abundance of phosphorus can result in a tie up of other elements such as iron and zinc.

The horticulturist has a word of caution for people who put off leaf raking until the last leaf has fallen.

"Leaves should be raked before they accumulate because they can smother grass... especially during wet weather," he advises. "Disease formation is also favored under wet leaves."

When the grass starts turning brown, most people start turning off the sprinkler. As a final reminder, Leuthold urges continued watering going into the winter, "unless mother nature does it for you."

He says grass roots are alive and need water even though they died down.

Is this extra effort worth it? Leuthold thinks so. "Although these few small details will insure that your lawn will be in condition next spring when the long winter is over," he says.

of pasture and range feed showed some general improvement during the month of October.

Most South Central and Western states experienced greatly improved pasture conditions from a month ago. In California, the best condition of the season for that state was reported at 62 percent, up 14 points from October 1. This was the first month this year that California was not the lowest of the 48 states.

Pasture and range feed condition on November 1 for all 48 states was 81 percent of normal, one percentage point above last month and four points above the 1961-70 average for the date. While prospects favor fall and winter grazing in most areas, condition was two points below a year ago.

Nixon To Trim Farm Subsidies 25 Per Cent

The Nixon administration, alarmed by a record $4 billion in subsidies to farmers this year, hopes to trim those payments by as much as 25 percent in 1973.

Such a reduction, possibly by $1 billion in payments for cotton and livestock feed grains, would help hold down expected increases in the Nixon budget for the fiscal year beginning next July 1.

The farm subsidy cutback was indicated Thursday by Agriculture Department officials who described possible alternatives for livestock feed grain controls next year.

Asst. Secretary of Agriculture Carrol G. Brunthaver, said 1973 proposals for financing feed programs were estimated to cost between $1.1 billion to $1.5 billion.

This year, in an effort to curb corn production, the feed program payments to farmers were about $1.9 billion. Wheat payments in 1972 are estimated at $853 million, and cotton at $815 million, making a total of approximately $3.6 billion.

Next year's wheat program is expected to cost tentatively $874 million, a slight rise from 1972, but cotton will be down sharply to an estimated $704 million.

If feed grains are cut to $1.1 billion, the total for the three crops is likely to be less than $2.7 billion in 1973.

Other farm-aid programs, such as payments for conservation, wool and sugar are adding about $400 million, making a record total this year of $4 billion. In 1971 the comparable mark was $3.1 billion.

A major goal for next year is to encourage less cotton and more corn and soybeans, officials said.

Except for cotton, depressed this season by a much larger crop, prices for the crops have been much higher than usual. The big reason is a soaring export market, including massive grain and soybean sales totalling $1.2 billion to the Soviet Union.

Officials predict U.S. farm exports for the year ending next June 30 will be a record $10 billion, up one-fourth from the previous high set last season.

Final decisions on the 1973 feed program—which will indicate the expected spending level—will not be announced until later this month, Brunthaver said.

The $4 billion in farm payments for 1972 is $200 million more than the previous mark in 1969.

The Agriculture Department said it has at least three possible plans under review for 1973 feed grain operations, each aimed at some expansion in plantings of corn and soybeans.

Farmers under each would be encouraged to put some of their crop land—taken from production under federal setaside programs in 1972—back into these crops.

Officials said that under the alternatives 1973 corn plantings might total between 68.2 million and 70 million acres, compared with 66.8 million seeded for this year's crop.

Assuming the yields will be down from 1972 record estimates, officials said such acreages would be directed to balancing production with 1973-74 requirements estimated tentatively at 5.4 billion bushels.

Under the tentative plans, soybean farmers might be expected to increase plantings next spring to a range of around 48 million to 53 million acres, compared with 46.4 million planted for 1972.

Multiple choices for farmers to set aside feed grain base acres could be provided, officials said. The effect would be directed at a reduction in the amount of land taken from feed production this year, about 38 million acres idled under the 1972 program.

Soybean demand is expected to continue high through next year, both for domestic and export markets.

In a report issued by USDA economists, the record 1972 soybean crop of 1.35 billion bushels is expected to gross farmers $4.4 billion, another record and about one-fourth larger than the 1971 crop value.

Farm prices of soybeans currently are averaging $3.25 per bushel, $1 per bushel over the government's floor price or support rate of $2.25.

Wheat Experts Leave Skeptical Farmers

Kansas farmers listened to officials involved in the Russian wheat deal at the recent Annual Wheat Commission Meeting in Hays. Some gained insight on the wheat export picture but many left wondering about the future.

A few wheat producers, like Alvin J. Dortland of Gorham, were skeptical of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, export company and marketing association speakers.

Dortland said, "They tell you all that good stuff, but it won't make any difference (in coming years). I think they're just average guys who maybe got to see a little more than me or you. It (the wheat market and farming) is still a gamble and they don't know what will happen."

Other producers felt more like Ken Herrman, manager of a Hays grain elevator, and Joe J. Volmer, a member of the wheat commission board.

Herrman and Volmer, who farm near Pratt, thought the high level talks gave them insight to the wheat export picture and left a good impression with the audience at Hays.

Joe L. Luecke, producer from Hays and a visiting member of the executive committee of the Kansas Wheat Growers Assn., criticized Frank G. McKnight of the USDA for "bragging" that 1972 annual farm net income of $18.8 billion is the highest since a record of $17.1 billion in 1947.

Luecke contended such a gain has been more than wiped out in real value by inflation and the rising costs of mechanized farming. He said income would have to go higher to make farming attractive to young persons.

Luecke said he is disappointed because, although the administration espouses the "hands-off-farming" he likes to hear, the authorities never seem to support legislation to help farmers develop a system to control wheat supplies.

Luecke said farmers already own cooperative grain elevators and have their own marketing associations for expert help, and all that is needed is legislation to tie it all together to make it workable.

McKnight, who is associate general sales manager of the Export Marketing Service, said farm support in Congress will be necessary when the Agricultural Act of 1970 expires at the end of 1972 to continue the administration's voluntary set-aside concept on crop acreage, maximum market orientation and general hands-off policy on regulating farmers.

Volmer said if farmers had been accustomed to organizational help they would not have been surprised by the Russian wheat trade. "Halow kept telling us it was coming," he said.

Joseph Halow, executive vice-president of Great Plains Wheat Inc., an export promotion association for wheat producers, said it was known the Russians would need some grain back in 1970.

He said the Russians have promised their people more meat in the current five-year-plan and they can't do it without foreign feed grains. Wheat is used as a feed grain in Russia, he said.

Halow said information on the current Russian need for wheat as human food was sketchy before the deal because of limitations on American travel in Russia and a Russian tendency to hold out in hopes their own crop would make it.

Halow said Great Plains visitors to Russia saw thousands of acres of new wheat planted for the first time on frontier land.

But the wheat was only expected to make maximum yields of three bushels to the acre and Russian transportation to the area is badly limited, Halow said.

Halow agreed with other experts present that expectations for exports to Russia and other countries next year appear good.

Halow warned farmers that a hands-off policy by government on wheat wouldn't be good. He said in nearly all nations wheat is regulated or controlled by government making it a highly "political" crop.

McKnight told the commission meeting that charges made against USDA on the Russian deal during the election campaign were false and unheeded of general benefits to the country as a result of the trade.

James R. Good, vice president for Continental Grain Co. of New York, accused politicians and the news media of "Monday morning quarterbacking" on the wheat trade. He said export companies are inhibited in profit-taking on the deal because of the tie-up of transportation at ports waiting for ships to load the grain.

McKnight outlined benefits to the country because of the Russian wheat trade. He said, "The added export market helped increase the value of farmers' crops this year by nearly $1 billion."

"It (the deal) created at least 30,000 new U.S. jobs, both on and off farms."

"A $1 billion increase in wheat exports results in additional economic activity amounting to $1.5 billion for a total economic gain of $2.5 billion."

"Large stocks of grain in this country are being reduced to reasonable levels."

"The Soviet sales have cut the net cost of the farm program to taxpayers approximately $200 million by increasing the value of government owned grain, cutting storage costs and reducing payments under the set-aside programs this year, and probably next year, as well."

"The sales were made in free and fair competition with other exporting nations through the use of export payments that have been used in our wheat program ever since 1949. The large volume of these sales has enabled us to eliminate these payments for the present."

"Since all payments will be made in dollars, the sales will add approximately $1 billion to our balance of payments for the year."

Good since June 10, 1971 should be regarded as an "Independence Day" for agriculture. On that date President Nixon rescinded the 50-50 American flag shipping requirement on dollar sales to Russia and removed grain from the special license category for shipment to eastern Europe, Russia and China, Good said. He said the action removed incumbrances to make sales in Communist countries possible.

Good said demand for Kansas hard wheat looks good for 1973 in Asia. He said the Australian crop now being harvested is reduced by drought and the Australians have warned Japan to expect a million ton reduction in wheat supply.

Good and McKnight expect Communist countries' wheat needs to remain in question. They believe an important export door has been opened but bloc countries will try to plant more wheat.

Good said the Russians probably will remain steady customers for white and hard wheats shipped from Pacific ports because even Russian exporters from the Black Sea can use the inland rail system. Both men said Chinese needs will be most difficult to assess.

"Stumbling Block"

Good said aid supplies of wheat probably will continue increasing to Indonesia, Bangladesh, Southeast Asia and Korea.

Good believes the U.S. will recapture the wheat market from the Australians on the west coast of South America. He said wheat supplies also have fallen in Brazil because of frosts.

He said, "Egypt will suffer from the Australian shortage, but the major stumbling block is the United States' tough but appropriate stance on credit."

Good said the Common Market's drive for self sufficiency will hurt U.S. exports to Europe.

McKnight said neither Russia nor Australia is likely to have as poor a crop next year. He said Canadian officials, in view of rising wheat prices, expect as much as a 20 per cent increase in wheat acreage this spring.

Good urged farmers to take advantage of current futures estimates to hedge a part of year's crop on the futures market and "lock in a guaranteed investment."

George A. Wiles has been named president of The Federal Land Bank of Wichita effective February 1, 1973, in an announcement made today by Sherwood Johnson, chairman of the Farm Credit Board of Wichita. Wiles will succeed William Plested, Jr., who will retire January 31, 1973.

Wiles came to the Federal Land Bank January 1934. He has served the bank in various capacities throughout the years, first in the General Files, then as a planning investigator and operations analyst, in which capacity he brought out changes in operations resulting in more economical handling of the large volume of business in the bank at that time. He was named supervisor of the Credit and Records Section in 1950. ulcers, diabetes and kidney diseases. Some people, he noted, also mistakenly believed that Vitamin E improved virility.

Actually, Olson said, the only type of disease found to benefit from large doses of Vitamin E is a cardiovascular ailment known as intermittent claudication.

The major usefulness of the vitamin in therapy, Olson said, is in treating Vitamin E deficiency, a relatively rare disorder in human beings.

With rare exceptions, the daily diet provides all the Vitamin E needed by the body—about 20 milligrams—he said, noting that some persons who prescribe the vitamin for themselves take as much as 1,000 milligrams a day.

Unlike some other vitamins taken in large doses, Vitamin E does not have any adverse effects, he said, probably because it is not easily absorbed in the body.

40 TO 60 DAYS OF DRY WEATHER

I have a friend in Cape Charles, Virginia, Mr. Ted Owens, who has a reputation for weather modification. He just finished a plan for some Canadian farmers who were so well pleased that they sent him $700 instead of the $300 agreed upon.

As a last resort, on Nov. 22 1 ordered 40 to 60 days of dry weather from this man for this midwest area to start not later than Dec. 10.

You are sure it can't be done? Well maybe not. Sixty years ago your parents were sure that they would never see TV pictures in their living room and 20 years ago you were sure man could not land on the moon.

I hope that he can do it.

FARM MACHINERY FOR SALE

Watch out for the do-gooders in Topeka. They are trying to do away with the present county system & hire County Managers out of Topeka. We practically have that in Marion County now.

Seems the special committee of the Legislature wants to do away with the county commissioner form of government. Write your favorite do-gooder & tell them to take it easy with our freedom.

Used set of freedom bells, need ringing, $599. One big brass, 1 big cast.

930 Case diesel tractor, very clean 62 model, #2450. Politicians have too many privileges. Recently read where Judge So & So let Mr. Bennett off for speeding, said he was on legislative business!

End of wars may be at hand, West Point being spooked from outer space. Used Brady chopper, 12', 1000 RPM shaft, quite good, $649. Used 800 Case 14' combine, $895, has newly rebuilt engine, this alone worth the price.

Dick down to N.Y. tryin' to get ole John & Martha back. Wonder who really shot her in the Butz. Phone rates going higher & service poorer. Should let Bell run the postal service. They could have their servicemen deliver mail and phix phones.

Indians having a bit of trouble as usual. We should go to their aid. Have good portable White sewing machine, not used, will trade gun or school size bell, etc.

Used 931 Case tractor in like new condition, $4999, must be sold this week or take less. Used 1030 Case tractor, new tires, 3000 actual hours, barely broke in. 1000 Case combine, 16' header, could be a really good buy.

Still looks like Verne Miller is real sneaky to do away with bingo especially since many older people were enjoying it so much. Write Mr. Miller and say so.

Our local city officials called in an engineering firm to evaluate our town and they said it was in a hell of a mess. Downtown buildings about to fall down & houses near to nothing. Imagine hiring someone to tell you this. Used walking drill like Granpa used to sow between corn rows, JD, like new, $49.99.

'Tis said Kissinger is being built up as a sex symbol. Even nude center in some magazine. Don't know what we would do now without Henry.

This week only with our low hour 970 used tractor with cab will throw in $1400 riding mower tractor, 12 HP size, all $6999.

All Of Our Used Tractors Are Pre-Owned
5 bottom 16" Allis 3 pt. semi-mounted plow like new $695.
830 Case diesel tractor, Eagle hitch, near new rubber, $2350. Will throw in C Allis for same price, complete deal $2350.

Our trains still roll through hauling wheat to Russia. Wonder how long it will continue. Anything to help the economy and make the "rich" richer. 800 Case tractor, good set tires, row crop, Eagle hitch, new paint, $1495.

6 dump rakes, all will dump, $129 for all. Antique horse type road grader $69; 1030 Case tractor, 3 pt. hitch, real clean tractor $5250. D19 Allis tractor, new overhaul, near new tires, special low price $2545.

At the present rate of tax increases in small towns, most are doomed to fall by the wayside. Very late Case 4 bottom 16" plow, lists now at $1300, this one only $649.

Have several Blair feed wagons left in stock. Some free delivery.

Steer Prices Sink To Record Low For 1972

Average prices of choice steers at Omaha, an important indicator of how the cattle business is doing, are the lowest in a year, according to Agriculture Department statisticians.

For the week ended Nov. 16, the Agricultural Marketing Service (AMS) reports, choice slaughter steers brought $33.50 per hundredweight, down 37 cents from the previous week.

It was the first time on the Omaha market in a year that steer prices were so low. A year earlier, in the week ended Nov. 18, 1971, the average was $33.71 per hundredweight.

Since last November, Omaha steer prices have risen and slumped several times, but in none of the declines did the price average run below a year earlier, according to AMS records.

Also, the Omaha steer price rose to an average of $36.19 for all of last February, settled during the spring and then spurted up again in June and July before its current slump.

Robert L. Fischer, director of the BMB Company, Incorporated, was elected 1st vice-president of the Farm Equipment Manufacturers Association during the trade group's twenty-second annual convention in Atlanta. Over 500 representatives, member and non-member companies were in attendance.

There was some improvement late September and in October heavier marketings this fall kept the downturn going.

Last July the Omaha steer was around $39 before it fell. That means a 1,000 pound steer in mid-November would produce nearly $60 less than peak last summer.

Steer Prices Sink To Record Low For 1972

Average prices of choice steers at Omaha, an important indicator of how the cattle business is doing, are the lowest in a year, according to Agriculture Department statisticians.

For the week ended Nov. 16, the Agricultural Marketing Service (AMS) reports, choice slaughter steers brought $33.50 per hundredweight, down 37 cents from the previous week.

It was the first time on the Omaha market in a year that steer prices were so low. A year earlier, in the week ended Nov. 18, 1971, the average was $33.71 per hundredweight.

Ford Tractor Chassis Donated to Kansas State

MANHATTAN— The Kansas State University agricultural engineering department has been given a Ford tractor chassis by the Farm Equipment Division of Ford Motor Company.

The machinery is for educational purposes—practical instruction and actual working aid for students—Lynn Sison, representative of Ford Motor Company.

Sison cited two requirements an institution must meet: a certain number of required class hours in which the chassis will be used and a certain number of students in the program.

K-State is one of many schools which has received Ford gifts. Last year 285 such gifts were made to high schools, technical schools, and universities.

The chassis, worth $4,751, is a three cylinder 201 CID gas system with an 8-speed transmission. Bob Burns of Burns-Salisbury Inc., Manhattan, Ford tractor and equipment dealer, is the local sponsor of the program.

The chassis will be used in the farm power classes at KSU. It can be broken down into three sections, engine, transmission, and rear axle. This allows more detailed study of each working section.

Students will use the engine for tune-up practice, practical use of test instruments, and carburetor-adjustment training.

"The unit will be put on wheels so it can be used for classroom demonstrations and tested by a dynamometer. The dynamometer is used to simulate a load on the engine to determine the rated horsepower," said Earl Baugher, assistant professor of agricultural engineering.

K-State received a similar gift from Ford several years ago.

STATE AG ENGINEERING GIFT
A Ford tractor chassis valued at $4,751 has been given to the Kansas State University department of agricultural engineering for instructional use. Present at the recent official presentation of the chassis are, from left, Earl Baugher, an assistant professor of agricultural engineering; Dr. William H. Johnson, head of the K-State department of agricultural engineering; Lynn Sison, representative of the Ford Motor Company; and Bob Burns of Burns-Salisbury Inc., Manhattan, Ford tractor and equipment dealer.

Cycle Helmets Fail To Meet Safety Standards

An independent laboratory has tested 54 different models of motorcycle helmets for the government and found 46 failed to meet the industry's own performance safety standards.

The eight models that did comply with the standards passed tests on withstanding crash impact, penetration by a steel dart and strength of the chin strap for helmet retention.

Despite the 85 percent failure rate, no recalls are planned because the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration lacks authority to order such moves for any products, either helmets or cars. While presently there is no federal helmet standard, NHTSA has proposed one that would go into effect March 1, 1973.

Manufacturers that failed to meet that proposed standard would be subject to civil penalties of $1,000 a violation up to a maximum of $400,000 and could be enjoined from selling the helmets that didn't measure up.

Forty-four states (with the notable exception of California), plus the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico require motorcyclists to wear helmets.

Cropland Program Opens Private Land To Public Hunting

About 30,000 acres of private lands in 40 Kansas counties are open to public hunting this fall through the Cropland Adjustment Program (CAP).

CAP was a voluntary program for farmers administered by county Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service County offices in 1966 and 1967. It provided an incentive payment for farmers to divert cropland to conservation uses for a period of five to 10 years.

Additional payments were made to farmers if they opened their CAP lands to the public. Such CAP lands, open without having to ask permission, can be used only for hunting, fishing, trapping or hiking. Other uses are prohibited and may lead to prosecution under trespass laws.

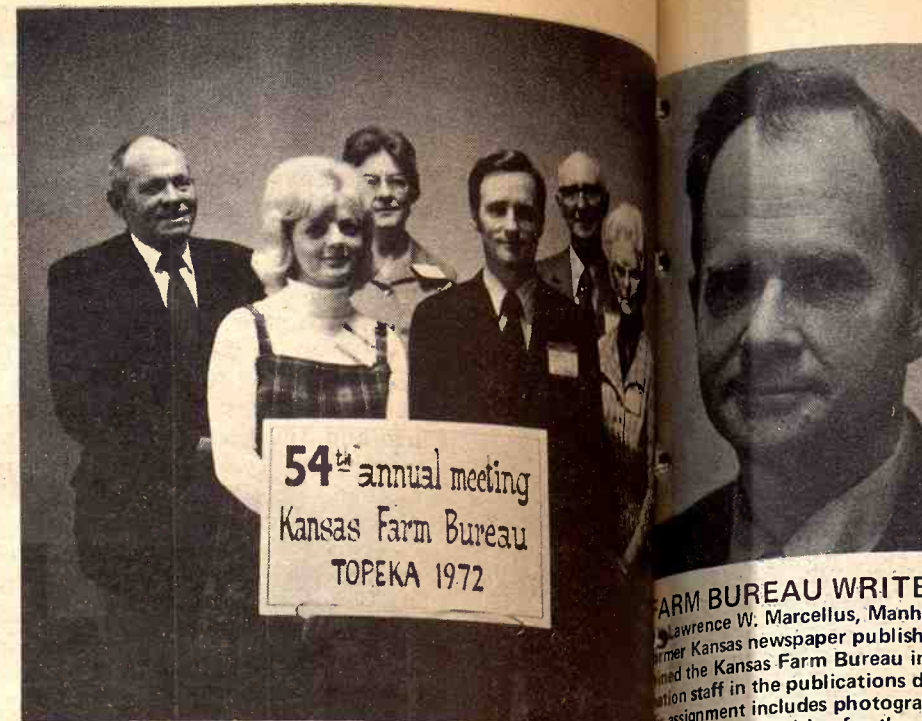

Hunters will find all CAP tracts, which vary from 40 to 600 acres, are well marked with blue and white "Public Hunting Area" signs. Vehicular traffic is prohibited on all CAP lands and wildlife cover will vary from one tract to the next depending on the program level chosen by the cooperator.

A listing of the CAP lands in Kansas can be obtained from County ASCS offices or from the Kansas Forestry, Fish and Game Commission at Pratt.

Q&A On Firewood

QUESTION—What kind of wood would burn best in my fireplace?

ANSWER—It depends on the type of fire desired, say Extension foresters at Kansas State University. Pine wood, for example, will burn fast, start easy and is good for an atmosphere type fire. Oaks and

FARM BUREAU REPRESENTATIVES

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bergsten, Green, Kansas; Mr. and Mrs. Lester Frey, Manhattan and Mr. and Mrs. Mike Jones, Leonardville (front row) represented the Riley County Farm Bureau at the annual meeting of Kansas Farm Bureau in Topeka November 1972.

They were among more than 1,200 members representing 100 county Farm Bureaus of Kansas at the three-day meeting where organizational policies were adopted, outstanding members honored and officers elected for the coming year.

Kansas Farm Bureau is the state's largest general farm organization with a membership of 90,989.

maple, on the other hand, will burn for a long time.

These species will work best if they are split. Elms burn hot with a lot of flames, but they will burn out rapidly. Trees of the hickory family such as pecan, walnut and the hickories themselves, are a favorite because of the aroma they produce. In addition, they start easily and burn with a medium heat.

QUESTION—I plan to use my lightweight chain saw to cut up firewood for my fireplace. Could you give me some hints?

ANSWER—Stop the engine between cuts when changing your position or when carrying the saw from one place to another. When changing, grasp it firmly in one hand and carry it at your side with the cutting bar facing backward, remind KSU foresters.

Look out for nails, wires, or metal taps in the logs. Be alert when the chain saw motor is running. The noise can drown out warnings of voices or other signs.

Don't pour gasoline into a hot engine, spill the fuel, or smoke while fueling. Avoid wrapping the engine cord around your head or neck. Have a firm footing and be sure you are standing on a level surface before starting. Place the saw on the ground or other firm surface before starting.

It is best for the novice to attempt cutting down trees. When cutting up brush, limbs, be alert for flying chips and twigs from the turning chain.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bergsten, Green, Kansas; Lester Frey, Manhattan and Mr. and Mrs. Mike (front row) represented the Riley County Farm Bureau annual meeting of Kansas Farm Bureau in Topeka. They were among more than 1,200 members of county Farm Bureaus of Kansas at the three-day meeting. The meeting was held to discuss organizational policies were adopted, outstanding officers elected for the coming year. Kansas Farm Bureau is the state's largest with a membership of 90,989.

Maple, on the other hand, will burn for a long time.
These species will work best if they are split. Elms burn hot with a lot of flames, but they will burn out rapidly. Trees of the hickory family such as pecan, walnut and the hickories themselves, are a favorite because of the aroma they produce. In addition, they start easily and burn with a medium heat.

QUESTION—I plan to use my lightweight chain saw to cut up firewood for my fireplace. Could you give me some hints?
ANSWER—Stop the engine between cuts when changing your position or when carrying the saw from one place to another. When changing, grasp it firmly in one hand and carry it at your side with the cutting bar facing backward, remind KSU foresters. Look out for nails, wires, or metal taps in the logs. Be alert when the chain saw motor is running. The noise can drown out warnings of voices or other signs. Don't pour gasoline into a hot engine, spill the fuel, or smoke while fueling. Avoid wrapping the engine

State Land Judging Teams Earn Trip To International Contest

Ten Kansas 4-H and FFA teams have earned a trip to the International Land and Range Judging Contest to be held next May 3 in Oklahoma City.

The teams won their spurs by scoring high in district contests sponsored by Kansas State University, Kansas Farm Bureau, Farmland Industries, the State Department of Vocational Education, Soil Conservation Service, and local county Extension agents.

"The purpose of these contests is to help youngsters increase their appreciation of the land," explained Harold Harper, Extension soil conservation specialist at K-State.

Participants are taken to a pre-selected plot of land, given a score sheet, and asked to determine if the should be planted to agricultural crops, used as a pasture, or used for purposes other than agriculture. Land class factors such as surface texture, depth of soil, slope, and erosion must be considered.

A new feature was added to district contests this year. It involved the suitability of a given site for housing construction. The homesite contest is not included in the international judging event, but Harper said he expected it to be added by 1974.

A 4-H and FFA team was selected from each district. Each team was comprised of four members, with the top three scorers of each team eligible for the trip to Oklahoma City. The winning teams: Southwest: FFA, Ness City chapter (Keven Stout, Roger Goodman, Rod Kraft); 4-H, Ford county (Allen Vogel, Dale Vogel, Roger Agur).

Northeast: FFA, Frankfort chapter (Joe Howell, Larry Jacobson, Jon Feldhausen); 4-H, Geary county (Charles Lee, Ralph Lee, Robert Boller).

Northwest: FFA, Atwood chapter (Doug Wood, John May, Kevin Holle); 4-H, Wallace county (Debbie Lewis, Kay Pilger, Larry McWilliams).

South Central: FFA, Chapman chapter (Jeff Wilson, Greg Anderes, Ray Marston); 4-H, Barber county (Mike Cline, Jim DeGreer, Anne Cline).

Southeast: FFA, Prairie View

United States After Larger Wheat Market

Canadian wheat producers likely will face stiffer competition from the United States for a share of the World Market, the president of the National Association of Wheat Growers in America, said.

Eugene Moos of Edwall, Wash., told the Chamber of Commerce the U.S. government's decision to drop the export subsidy indefinitely, makes wheat marketing "an open ball game."

"As a result," he said, "Americans will have to increase production." The relaxation of international relations between the United States and other countries such as the Soviet Union will mean a "tougher" fight from Americans for world markets, Moos said.

"Canadians and Australians can no longer consider the Soviet Union and China their private reservoir for wheat exports," he added.

He said he hopes Canada and the U.S. can reach agreement on grain policy to make wheat production a cooperative, rather than a competitive, effort.

State Forester Emphasizes Diversity

Harold Gallaher, Kansas' first state forester, became the first Midwesterner in several years to be elected president of the National Association of State Foresters at its recent fall meeting.

Under Gallaher's direction, the KSU Extension Forestry Department has developed a widely diversified forestry program—one which Gallaher expects will be greatly emphasized in the future.

"Due to the need for lumber there will be a lot of emphasis on tree planting in the next several years," said Gallaher. "In the next 30 years, if the country produces anywhere near what is needed, it is going to have to come from small farmers like we have here in Kansas."

Gallaher said Kansas' traditional prairie wheat state reputation has made it difficult to convince the timber products industry that the state has a valuable timber resource. He said many landowners also overlook the value of their timber as a resource.

Gallaher said, however, interest in trees has increased tremendously statewide since the invasion of Dutch elm disease, which, in some cases, has threatened total destruction of community shade trees.

A community forestry program begun last year in Kansas with a federal grant is scheduled to become the pattern for a national program.

"We first proposed 10 community comprehensive plans. At the end of the first year, we had 115 communities that had programs started, instead of 10. What brought it on was this shade tree problem," he said.

Another program started in Kansas in 1963 is being used nationally by the Army Corps of Engineers and Bureau of Reclamation. It is a vegetative management program carried out by the Extension forestry department on reservoir projects.

"We're working on 13 reservoirs this year," said Gallaher. "That was started on Wilson Reservoir in 1963. Missouri, Oklahoma, Iowa, South Dakota, Colorado and Nebraska are not starting similar programs."

He said high usage of the reservoirs for recreation is making it necessary to have a continual vegetative management program. He said compaction of the earth alone in high use areas around the reservoirs is causing vegetation problems that may lead to eventual rotation of usage areas to allow reestablishment of vegetation.

Management will be the key byword of Kansas foresters in future years, with emphasis on continual new plantings and research for genetically superior strains of walnut, cottonwood and pines for Christmas trees, Gallaher said.

"The emphasis is on timber management, culling and removing inferior species. What we are shooting for is to double the plantings in the next few years. What we'd like to do is come up with a walnut tree that we can go to the mill with in 25 years (it now takes 40 to 50 years to produce a walnut sawlog) and we think we can do it."

"If we can get this one walnut tree that we think is a superior tree, so we can tell the landowners here's a walnut tree you're not going to have to wait on so long, I think we can really see some development," Gallaher said.

He said the research is underway by his department and will be greatly enhanced by a climate-controlled hot house to be built next year with federal funds adjacent to the 4-year-old department headquarters. It is to be patterned after an experimental hot house built in Colorado, in which carbon dioxide content of the air is controlled.

Through the KSU Extension tree distribution program established in 1957, Gallaher said more than 20 million trees have been planted on 240,000 acres. The Christmas tree program begun under Gallaher's direction in the late 1950s has attracted more than 100 commercial growers, who are planting about 400,000 trees annually. Gallaher says there is a market for 500,000 Christmas trees.

Gallaher's department initiated a rural fire protection program which has expanded to 285 rural fire districts protecting 40 million acres of the state. About 12,000 volunteer firemen have been recruited in the districts. The program also provides a training course for the volunteer firefighters and helps them acquire surplus military vehicles.

Gallaher said about 1,500 military vehicles have been converted to fight rural fires in Kansas. Gallaher said 3,041 fires burned 133,660 acres causing an estimated damage to crops and improvements, machinery of $2,347,417 in the first 10 months of this year.

Of the National Association of State Foresters Gallaher heads said:

"The major objective of the association is to get better management of the more than 1 billion acres of forest, about 1 acre per landowner, under private ownership. This is the acreage the nation is going to depend upon the next few years for our lumber supply."

He said the association is working closely with Congress to develop helpful legislation for development of forest resources.
