FOREWORD

The Wildcat scream—the scent of wet limestone after a soft spring rain—the face next to you in lecture—high notes from Matt's clarinet—the sleepy chill of a winter seven o'clock—a hand of bridge at the Union—the chime of a clock as you cram over coffee—the click of train wheels taking you to and from vacations—the odors of stale smoke the morning after a bull session. These things are Kansas State. Or are they?

These printed pages will help you decide—will keep your memories clear—will record the places you went, the way you lived, the people you saw, the feelings you had, the way you danced and the way you laughed, some things you learned—some things you have forgotten.

"The Hill" Called Home

IT REALLY isn't much of a Hill—you don't have to shift into second to make it—but then it's been called a Hill a long time and probably thinks it is one by now. Anyway, the slope of ground is not the important thing about this hill.

The important things are the people and buildings, the trees and curving walks. Signs all over the Hill tell you that the Kansas State College campus is one of the most beautiful in the country. Well, really, you don't need to be told. Look at the icy mist that hangs in the trees and bushes early on a snowy morning—at the bright green dip of the grassy quadrants—at the almost church-like windows of the library.

And this Hill deserves veneration. Nearly twenty-two college generations have studied on it, surveyed it, plowed it up, danced, walked and sat on it.

The Hill has almost become a city. It looks a little surprised at the way it has grown, but not displeased, and trying hard to push aside the mushrooming of barracks around its skirts. More feet pound its pavements in one semester than it ever thought it would suffer from in two years. Cars line up impatiently on its slopes and narrow drives, forcing parking lots to take over large stretches of lawn.

Despite the havoc unheard-of enrollments have wreaked, the Hill seems smug and complacent. It has its old books, blackboards, limestone arches and professors, and thoroughly regards itself as a fountain of knowledge for the youth of Kansas. Maybe the Hill is right.

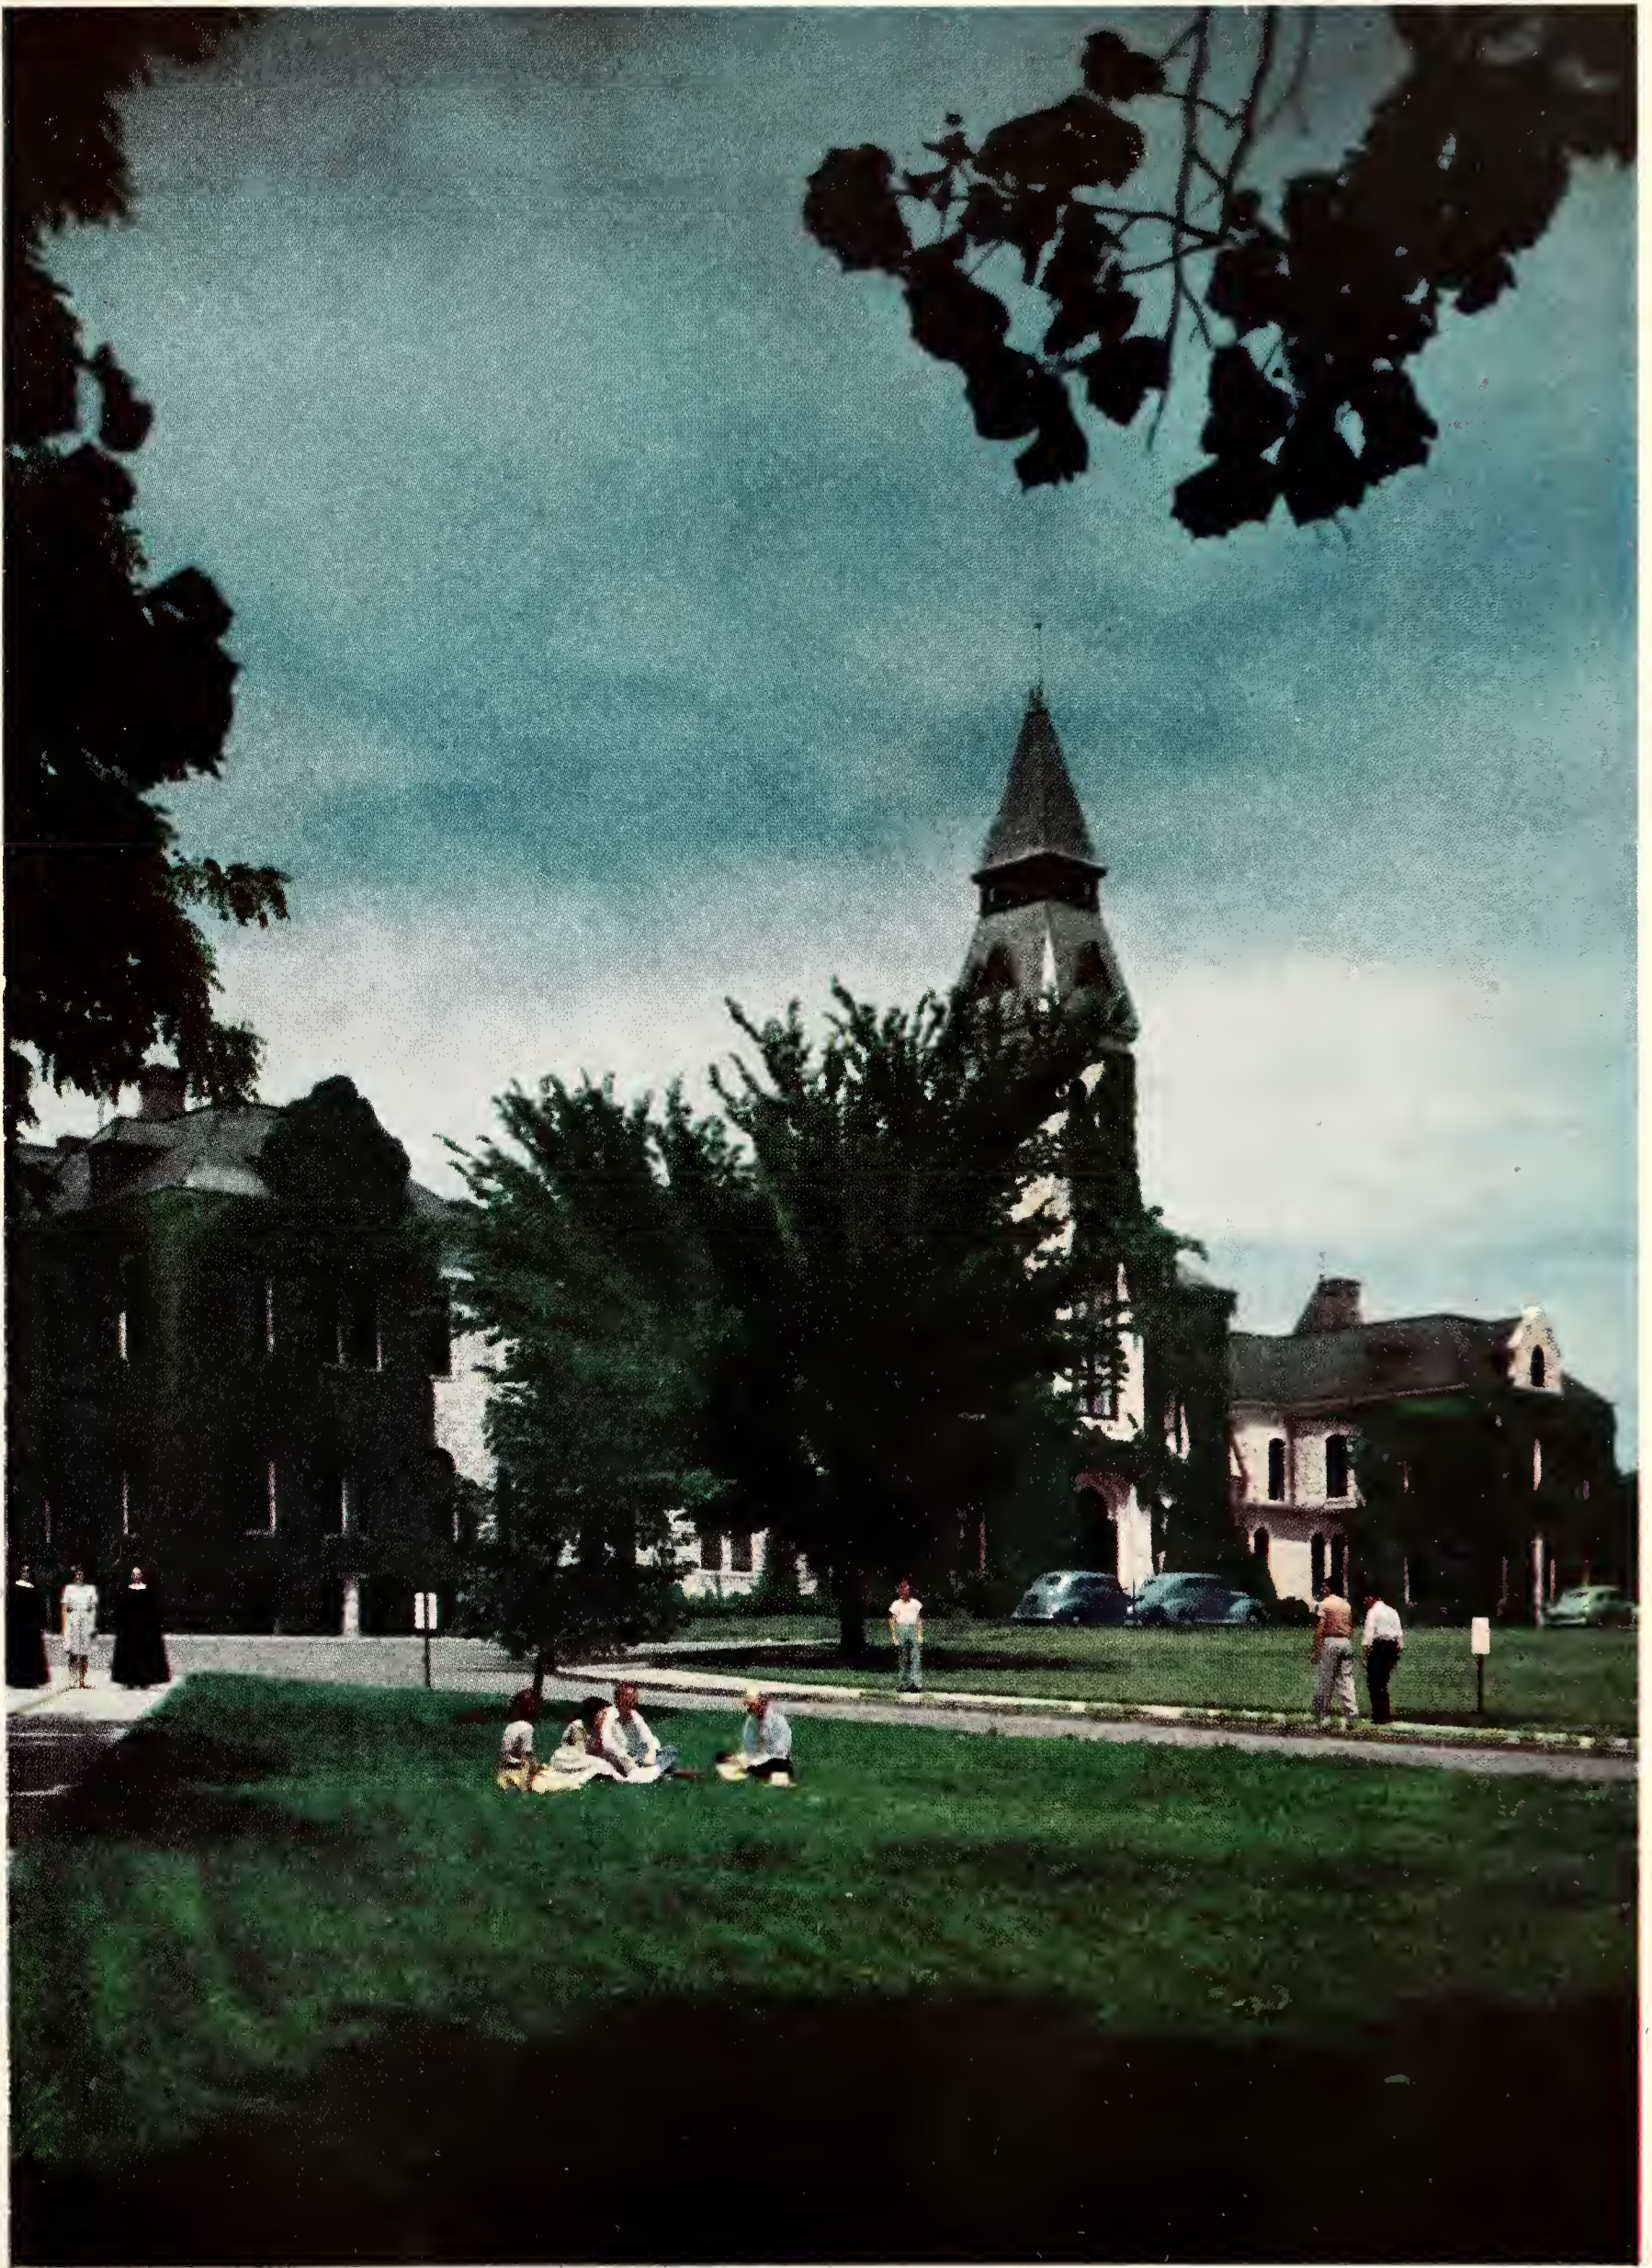

Twilight softens steel and stone--the whistle closes another day

Morning hours near Calvin Hall--on the south quad

Cloaked in age and ivy--old Anderson points heaven-ward

Fairchild tower--and the evergreens--weather another winter

Strolling--where the lawn dips away toward Willard Hall

Green, white and blue--glorify the east quad

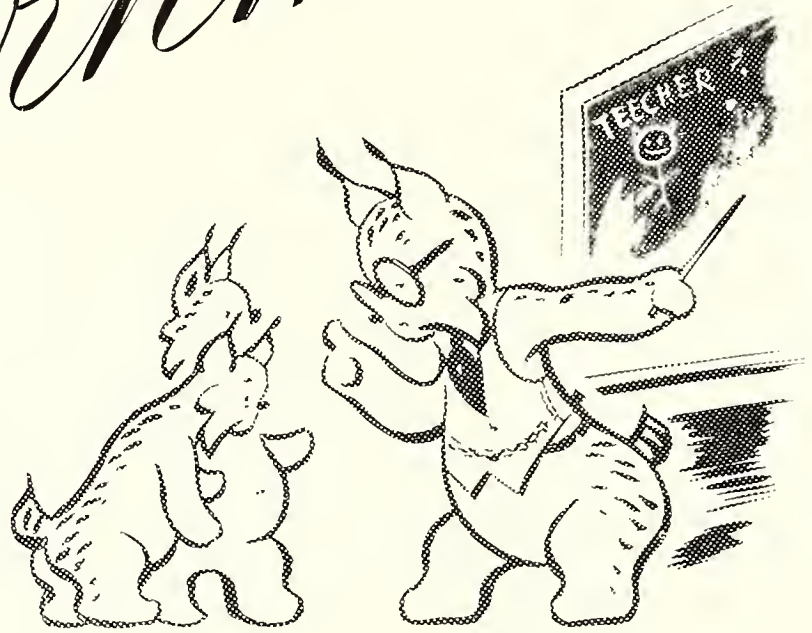

Warm sun--and a pause from Library study hours

A class at play--'neath the turrets of Nichols

Guidance And Government

I'M PROUD of myself—I'm an influence in the community, state, and even the nation. Maybe not all the credit belongs to me—I'll admit that others have helped me out here and there through the years.

Eighty-five years ago, I was just a hill. I have not increased much in physical stature, but then, to coin a phrase, you can make a mountain out of a molehill. I, and the people who govern me, represent tolerance, progress and knowledge. You can't say that for just a molehill.

The men, who for the major part, have made me into a mountain, are those fondly called the faculty. Among them, I have a few old friends who have been with me during my adolescence and throughout their lifetime. Those are faces I know best. Other men, young, brisk, capable, are beginning to take their turn at the helm and are spreading me out over acres of land and new fields of learning. They are pouring cement on my face and drilling holes in my bluegrass. I don't mind—such is the march of progress.

This past year, things have happened almost too fast for me, who am used to the deliberate pace of a commencement procession. The administration saw to the construction of a Student Health center, complete with staff and hospital, a temporary Student Union for cokes and smokes, classroom and office barracks to catch the overflow from buildings whose roots go deep into my soil. New courses were added, curriculums changed, experts brought to impart learning from their fields.

Lights burned through long winter evenings in my halls and offices while faculty and administrators untangled the snarls incident to caring for more than seven thousand collegians.

I felt the weary tramp of faculty feet after hard hours before a blackboard or over lab tables. Urgent research projects were carried forward under their direction. I sat and contentedly watched them, well-pleased. They were pretty well-behaved.

Of course, the government of the thousands who daily swarm over me is not left entirely in the hands of the faculty. The students have an effective self-government of their own. A Student Council largely regulates the off-campus lives of my men and women. (I use the words men and women advisedly.)

Maybe you'd like to know something about the system used by my faculty for school administration.

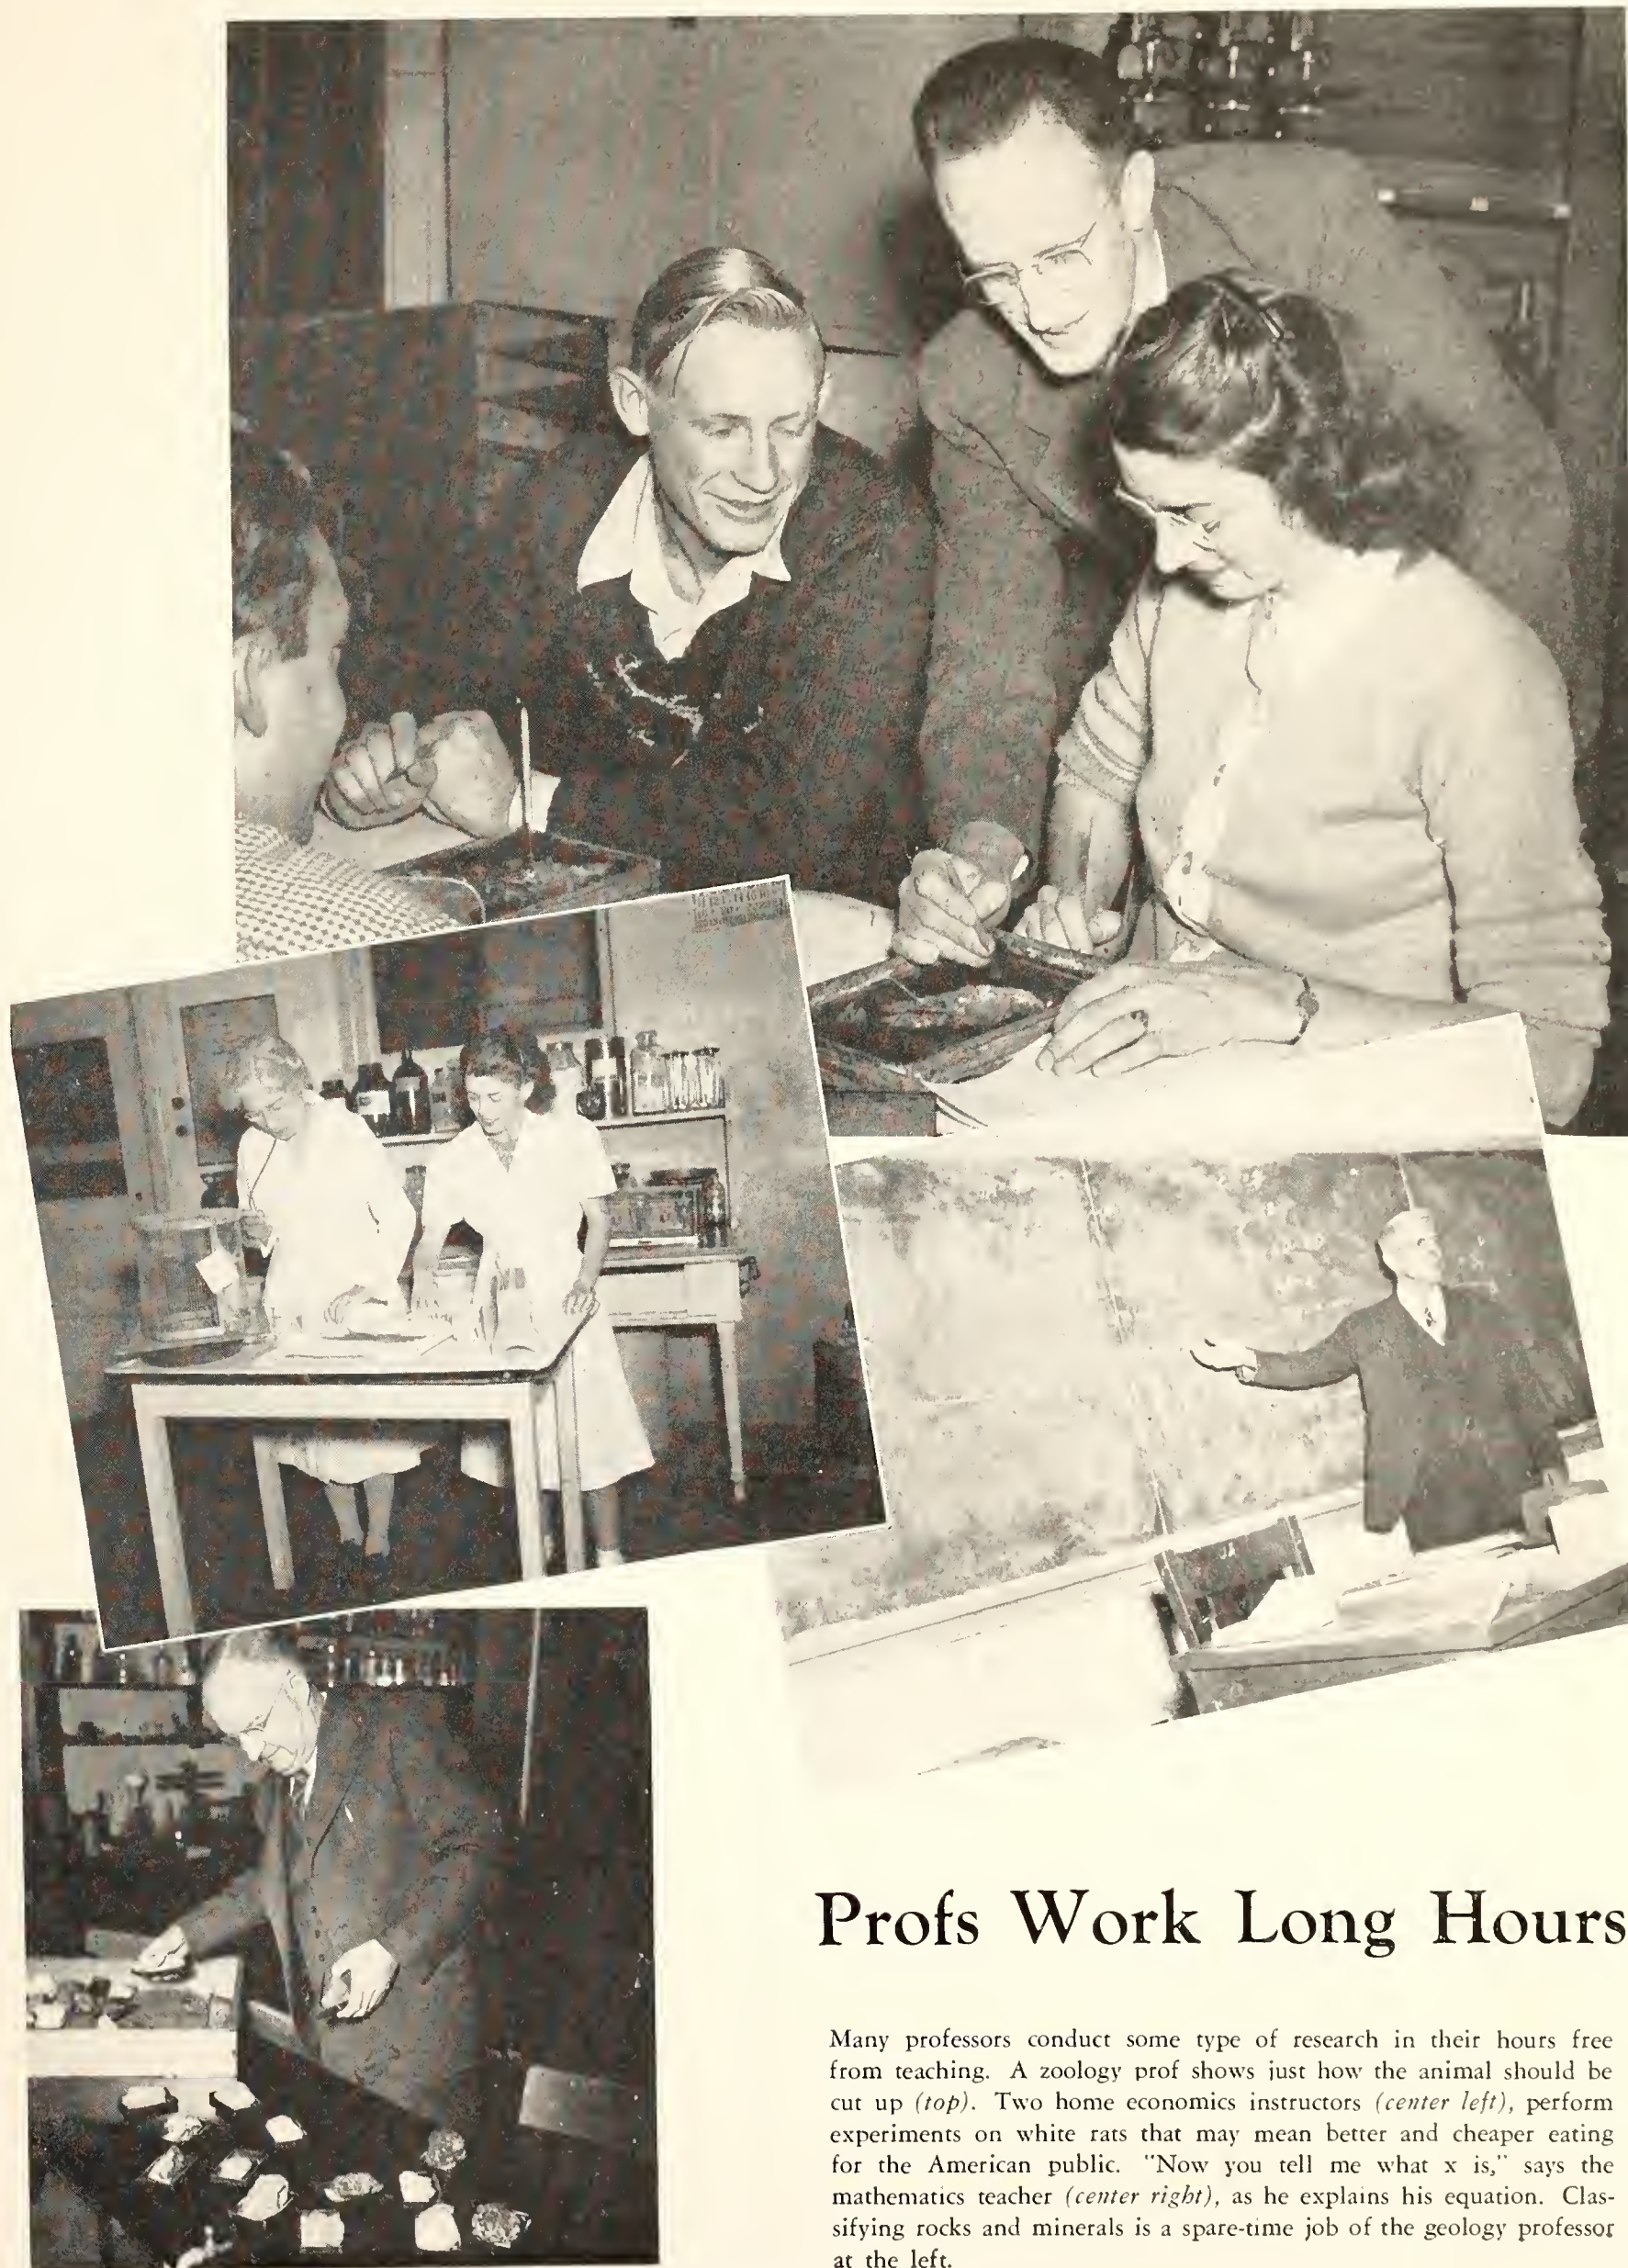

At the top are the governor, a legislature and a Board of Regents, many of whom I knew once as students walking along my paths. The chief man in residence responsible to these state officials is the President. Holding this position now is Milton S. Eisenhower. I have watched him grow and climb from the time he was a rambunctious fraternity pledge guarding the statue of William Alexander Harris till he became a national and international figure and the attractive though slightly balding man who guards the fates and destinies of the College.

Advising the President Eisenhower are a whole host of administrative officials and a Council of Deans. The Deans are nearly all old friends of mine. I've seen most of them rise through the faculty ranks, make names for themselves in their respective fields, and become prominent authorities.

Heads of departments hold authority over the sub-heads, associate professors, assistant professors, and lowest of all faculty members, the benighted instructors.

These are the people who guide my fortunes. But, of course, I provide the firm foundation for their footsteps. I am the Hill on which they depend for support.

Profs Work Long Hours

Many professors conduct some type of research in their hours free from teaching. A zoology prof shows just how the animal should be cut up (top). Two home economics instructors (center left), perform experiments on white rats that may mean better and cheaper eating for the American public. "Now you tell me what x is," says the mathematics teacher (center right), as he explains his equation. Classifying rocks and minerals is a spare-time job of the geology professor at the left.

SPC Forges Ahead

In a chartered bus enroute to Camp Wood, S. P. C. 'ers sang and told stories (left). More than 60 students went to the conference this year.

Registering upon arrival (center), students were assigned a cabin and given instructions on meal times. It was not all work or planning. The camp provided swimming (right), boating, horseback riding and archery. Following the conference, delegates returned to school for enrollment. In an all school assembly shortly after the beginning of the fall semester, SPC reports were delivered to the student body. More than half the recommendations of the group have been approved by the administration.

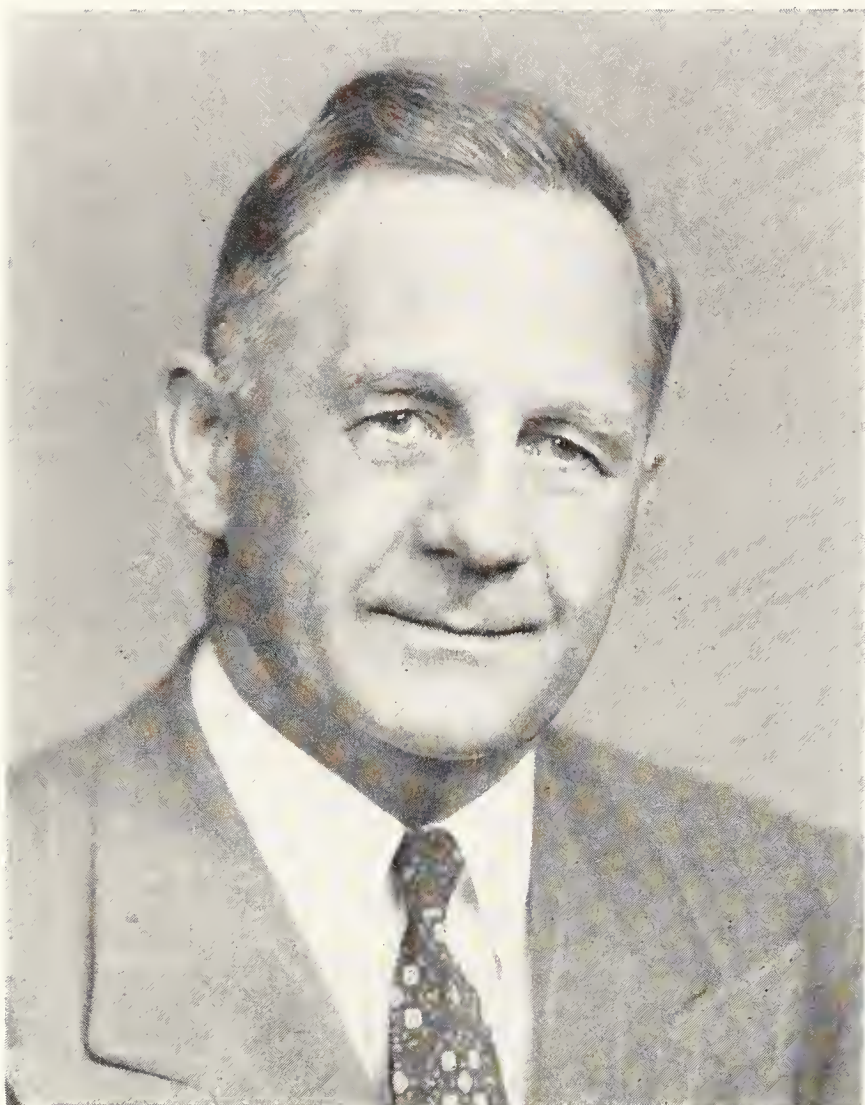

In Camp Wood Pre-School Conference

The Student Planning Committee, off-spring of the Student Council, held its second pre-registration meeting at Camp Wood this year to help re-form and revitalize school policies and curriculums. Working with faculty aid, the student committees made recommendations, many of which have been since enacted by the College administration. Each of the six sub-committees met individually.

One of the discussion groups meets (above). Nearly every campus organization sent a representative to the conference. Camp Wood made an ideal location for the three day event. Students are shown (left) assembling for an evening meal. Discussion group chairmen were; Jim Clinger, Dave Weatherbie, Intramurals; Dick Winger, Mae Weaver, Social and Recreational; Nadine Smith, Dick Finegan, Political Action; Ralph Salisbury, Public Relations; Loreta Stricklin, Dick Medlin, Student-faculty Relations; Deanne Dameron, Roy Harvey, Curriculum.

GOVERNOR FRANK CARLSON, of Kansas, a former K-State student, has long been active in state politics. He came to the campus several times this year as guest and speaker.

JUNE, 1914, Governor Frank Carlson of Kansas received a Farmer's Short Course certificate in agriculture, which was granted from this College.

His farm is located in Cloud County near Concordia. As an active citizen of Kansas, he has been vitally interested in the problems of the state and its people. He first served as congressman representing the Sixth Congressional District of Kansas, and now for several years as Governor of Kansas.

The Board of Regents, which acts as the highest authority for the eight state-supported schools in Kansas is composed of nine members and the executive secretary. This year in cooperation with the Kansas Livestock Association, the Board of Regents passed their approval for a Pasture Utilization Project to be under the supervision of Kansas State College.

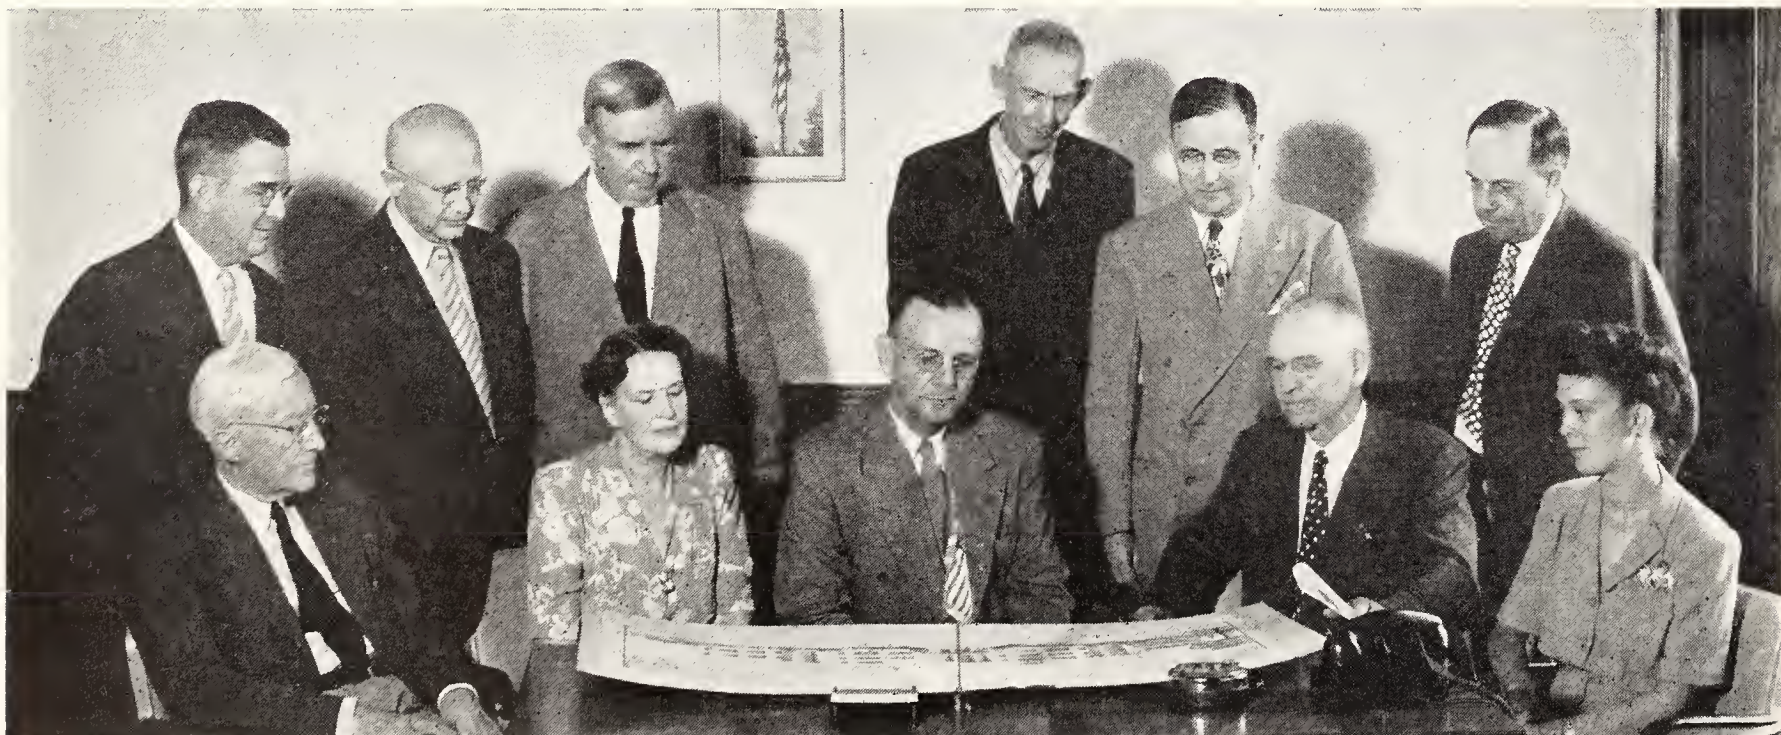

Purchased Land

This project included the purchase of the Donaldson ranch of approximately 1,143 acres near Manhattan, Kansas. It will be used for stock feeding experiments and pasture tests.

The members of the Board of Regents are Fred M. Harris, Ottawa; Lester McCoy, Garden City; Oscar F. Stauffer, Topeka; Jerry Driscoll, Russell; Dr. LaVern B. Spake, Kansas City; Drew McLaughlin, chairman, Paola; Grover Poole, Manhattan; Mrs. Elizabeth Haughey, Concordia; W. M. Kelly, Hutchinson; and Hubert Brighton, Topeka, executive secretary.

The Board of Regents is appointed by the Governor for a term of four years.

College Deans Direct

THE Deans of the College, highest ranking officials in their divisions, compose the Council of Deans, a largely legislative body. Most of the Deans have been with the school for a decade or more—some for a quarter of a century. They are directly responsible to the President for the activities of their divisions.

A. L. Pugsley, Dean of Administration, is Director of the Summer School and Co-ordinator of Veterans' Affairs. He also represents the President in his absence. Dean Pugsley is a member of Blue Key, Scabbard and Blade, Delta Pi Chi, and Sigma Tau.

Harold Howe, Dean of the Graduate School, is busy with school administration and with membership on many College committees. He is chairman of the Faculty Committee on Student Affairs, and a member of Phi Kappa Phi, Alpha Zeta, Gamma Sigma Delta, and Pi Kappa Delta.

New Dean

Only new Dean on the campus this year is L. C. Williams, Dean of Extension Service. He replaced Dean and Director Emeritus H. Umberger on June 30, 1947. Dean Williams graduated from the College and has been connected with the extension service since 1915.

Rodney W. Babcock has had long experience in the administrative system at K-State. As head of the General Science Division, now the School of Arts and Sciences, he has served the College for 18 years. Dean Babcock is a member of Phi Kappa Phi, Sigma Xi, Pi Delta Kappa, Gamma Alpha and Pi Mu Epsilon.

Dr. R. R. Dykstra, Dean of the School of Veterinary Medicine, is a well-known figure both in his position with the College and in research. A member of Sigma Delta, Phi Kappa Phi and Sigma Xi, Dr. Dykstra has been at the College since 1917.

A. L. PUGSLEY, Dean of Administration, handles much of administrative detail of the President's office, listens to problems of students and faculty alike.

DEAN HAROLD HOWE, of the Graduate School, is a tax expert, as well as an authority on education. He heads the Faculty Committee on Student Affairs.

L. C. WILLIAMS, Dean and Director of the Kansas Extension Service, took over his position following the retirement of Dean and Director Emeritus H. Umberger last June.

Programs and Policies of Schools

ANYTHING that pertains to the welfare of women students on the campus is the concern of the Dean of Women. Dean Helen Moore has efficiently dealt with problems that have arisen in this connection, from housing to regulation of college hours, since she came to K-State in 1940. Dean Moore is a member of Pi Lambda Theta and Mortar Board.

Twenty-eight years ago, R. A. Seaton, Dean of the School of Engineering and Architecture, came to this College as head of the engineering division. Dean Seaton is Chairman of the Kansas State Board of Engineering Examiners, a Lamme Medalist, a fellow of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, and a member of Sigma Xi, Phi Kappa Phi, and the American Society for Engineering Education.

As a member of the ag faculty, head of the Department of Agronomy, and finally Dean of the School of Agriculture and Director of the Agricultural Experiment Station, R. I. Throckmorton has been with the College for 37 years. Among the honorary societies of which he is a member are Phi Kappa Phi, Sigma Xi, Gamma Sigma Delta and Alpha Zeta.

Dean of Women, Miss Helen Moore, (bottom left) supervises and aids all College women in their living and problems. Outstanding in the field of engineering is Dean R. A. Seaton of the School of Engineering and Architecture, (bottom center). R. I. Throckmorton, Dean of the School of Agriculture, (bottom right) has served the College in various capacities for 37 years.

College Administrators Execute

C. O. PRICE (above), the President's right hand man, has been with the College for 28 years. The office of College Comptroller, A. R. Jones (below) is the newest in the administrative system.

SOME OF THE duties of the chief executive at Kansas State fall on C. O. Price when President Eisenhower is away on business trips. Mr. Price has been connected with the College for 28 years. Three College presidents have held office during Mr. Price's years on the campus.

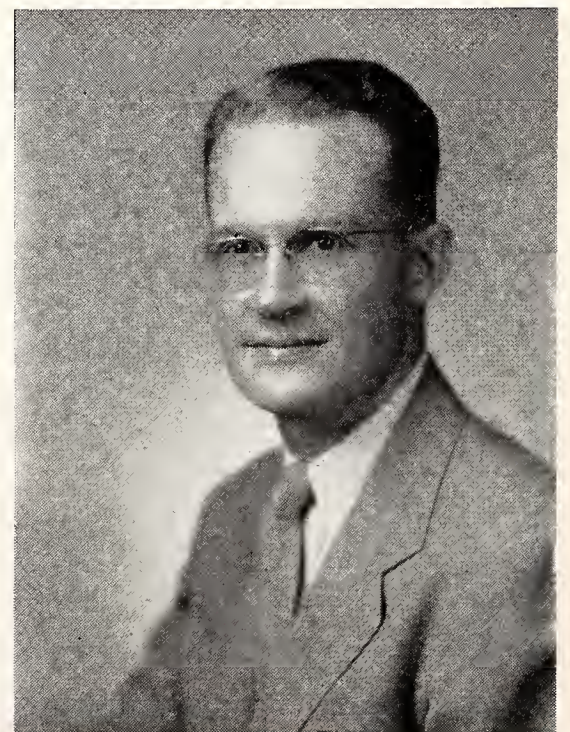

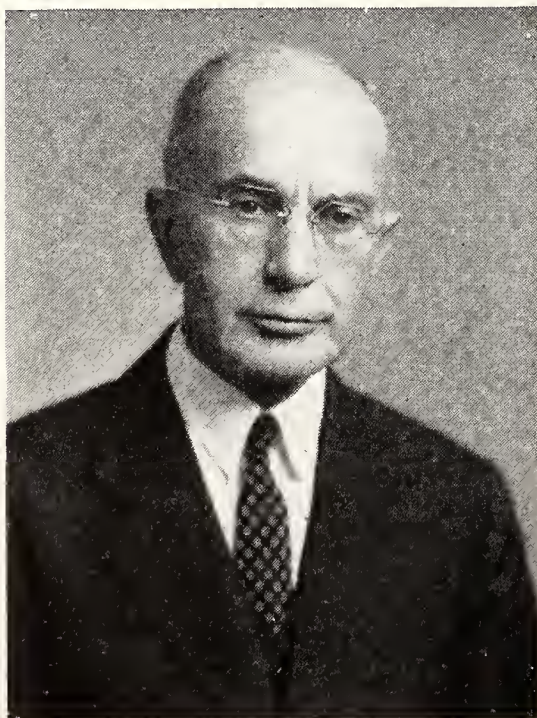

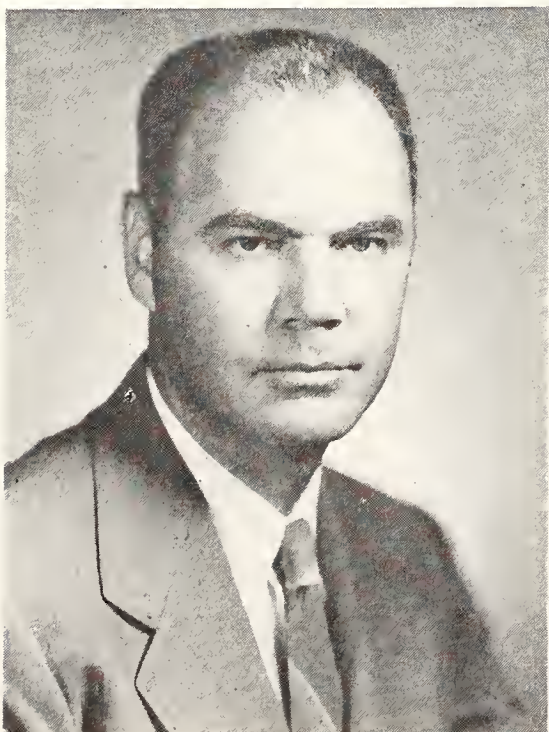

The office of College Comptroller is celebrating its second birthday this year. It is the newest office to be added to the Kansas State administrative system. A. R. Jones is the chief supervisor of the office.

The Counseling Bureau under the direction of Dr. M. D. Woolf takes charge of freshman orientation week, the freshman advisory program and the Veterans Administration Council. Dr. Woolf recently completed a book called Faculty Advisors Handbook.

Dr. F. D. Farrell, President Emeritus of the College, has completed his fourth Rural Institution Study and is now working on a study of rural churches in connection with rural community life. Dr. Farrell's research work is done in connection with the Experiment Station case studies of Kansas rural institutions.

The biggest physical change during the past year was in the Student Health department, under the direction of Dr. R. R. Snook. Barracks were converted into a new hospital adding 15,000 square feet of floor space and enabling the College to operate a 60 bed hospital with an excellently equipped emergency room. The hospital staff numbered over 25.

VOCATIONAL GUIDANCE and counseling, plus many other activities, fall into the hands of Dr. M. D. Woolf (lower left), head of the Counseling Bureau. Dr. F. D. Farrel (lower center) President Emeritus of the College is now working on case studies of Kansas rural institutions. The new, well-equipped student hospital is under the direction of Dr. R. R. Snook (lower right).

Policy, Keep Detailed Records

This year the Office of the Registrar, with Miss Eleanor Tibbetts at the head, put into effect a streamlined method of keeping all student records. Each record is typed and kept in a specialized cardex file which eliminates the handwritten ink records kept in the old ledger books.

Housing is the chief problem of the Veterans Service Bureau under the direction of Thornton Edwards. Through this department, married veterans and their families or single men are provided with living accommodations.

Kenny Ford, executive secretary of the Kansas State Alumni Association, this year was elected president of the Alumni Council. During his 20 years as secretary, the office has compiled a complete alphabetical, bibliographical and geographical list of all alumni of Kansas State. Miss Bonnie Woods was added to the staff as assistant alumni secretary.

Dr. J. T. Willard has served Kansas State in various administrative capacities for 69 years. Once Dean of Chemistry and Vice-President of the College, Dr. Willard has been College Historian for 11 years. He has written a history of Kansas State College.

Dr. S. A. Nock, Director of Admissions, supervised the enrollment of nearly twice as many students in 1947-48, which is to be his last year with the College, as he did 12 years ago when he first became a member of the faculty. Dr. Nock is an outstanding author in the field of education.

DR. S. A. NOCK, who is leaving the College this year, was Director of Admissions (lower left). College Historian, Dr. J. T. Willard (lower center), has been in executive positions of the College for 69 years. Kenny Ford, (lower right) executive secretary of the alumni office here, was elected this year as president of the Alumni Council.

Student Council Faces Vital Problems

NEARLY every phase of student activity has been examined during the past year by the Student Council or one of its subcommittees. Dozens of projects were put into effect, recommendations made and in necessary cases, disciplinary action taken.

The Student Council, as executive body of the Student Governing Association, is the highest student authority on the campus in matters of on-and-off the Hill affairs. Elected from their Schools to serve a term of one year from spring to spring, the Council members number nine. Schools are represented according to their enrollment.

Advisory body to the Student Council is the Faculty Council on Student Affairs, composed of representative faculty members. Members of the Student Council sit on many administrative committees throughout the College, try to maintain close touch with student opinion and meet faculty suggestions.

Several new projects were undertaken this year. The Student Planning Committee, an off-shoot of the Student Council, celebrated its first birthday with a preschool conference at Camp Wood where reforms and additions in six areas of student life were discussed. Those areas are: political and student government activities, social and recreational activities, intramurals and athletics, curriculum orientation and enrollment procedures; public relations; and student-faculty relations.

Becoming affiliated with the National Students' Association—an organization which represents all college students in the United States—was a major step for the Council. The N.S.A. works on a national scale to improve all phases of college life.

The Council also took a membership for the student body in the Chamber of Commerce of Manhattan. The purpose of this move was to improve relationships between students and townspeople. Through this membership, the group successfully backed a new city ordinance for sanitary regulations for restaurants and worked on recreational facilities and several other problems that jointly concern Manhattan and the students.

Under the banner of one of its subcommittees, the Student Planning Committee, the Student Council helped sponsor the Love and Marriage Series, a new group of programs designed to meet the need for love and marriage education among college students. It was set up temporarily on the premise that if enough collegians attended the series, a new course would be instituted beginning in the fall of 1948 to cover these subjects. With the advent of nearly every scheduled speaker, the auditorium was packed with K-Staters.

The group helped to finance and prepare the Temporary Student Union and suggested program and policies for the Union. Run by the YMCA and the Student Union Committee, the building provided recreational facilities which were badly needed by the College.

Other projects undertaken by the Council were the presentation of several programs and dances to introduce new students to Kansas State; the publication of the Student Directory and the K-Book; the supervision of the class officer and Student Council elections; the recommendation of students to be appointed to the President's All-College committees; the sponsorship of the Go-to-College teams which visited Kansas Towns to entice students to K-State.

AMONG THE MANY PROJECTS undertaken by the Student Council was the sponsoring of the SGA Varsities in the Avalon. These dances were held nearly every weekend. Guys and gals danced to the music of the best college band in the country, Matt Betton, for a minimum in price.

FACULTY COUNCIL ON STUDENT AFFAIRS: Mrs. Gladys B. Gough, Dr. Robert A. Walker, Dr. Maurice Woolf, Dean Harold Howe, Dr. V. D. Foltz, Rufus Cox, Dr. E. E. Leasure, Thornton Edwards, Miss Margaret

Council and Committees Advise Students

COMPOSED of 12 representative faculty members, the Faculty Council on Student Affairs works in cooperation with the Student Council in deciding matters of policy concerning the student body, and acts in a faculty advisory capacity to the Student Governing Association.

Headed by Dean Harold Howe of the Graduate School, the council is also the controlling body of several all-school committees, including the Committee on Fraternities and Sororities, the Student Activity Fund Apportionment Board, the Organization Control Board, the Academic Dishonesty Committee, and the Temporary Student Union Committee. These committees are composed of both student and faculty members, working together to solve problems that come within their fields of control.

Decisions of the Student Council are given the final O.K. by the Faculty Council in their regular meetings.

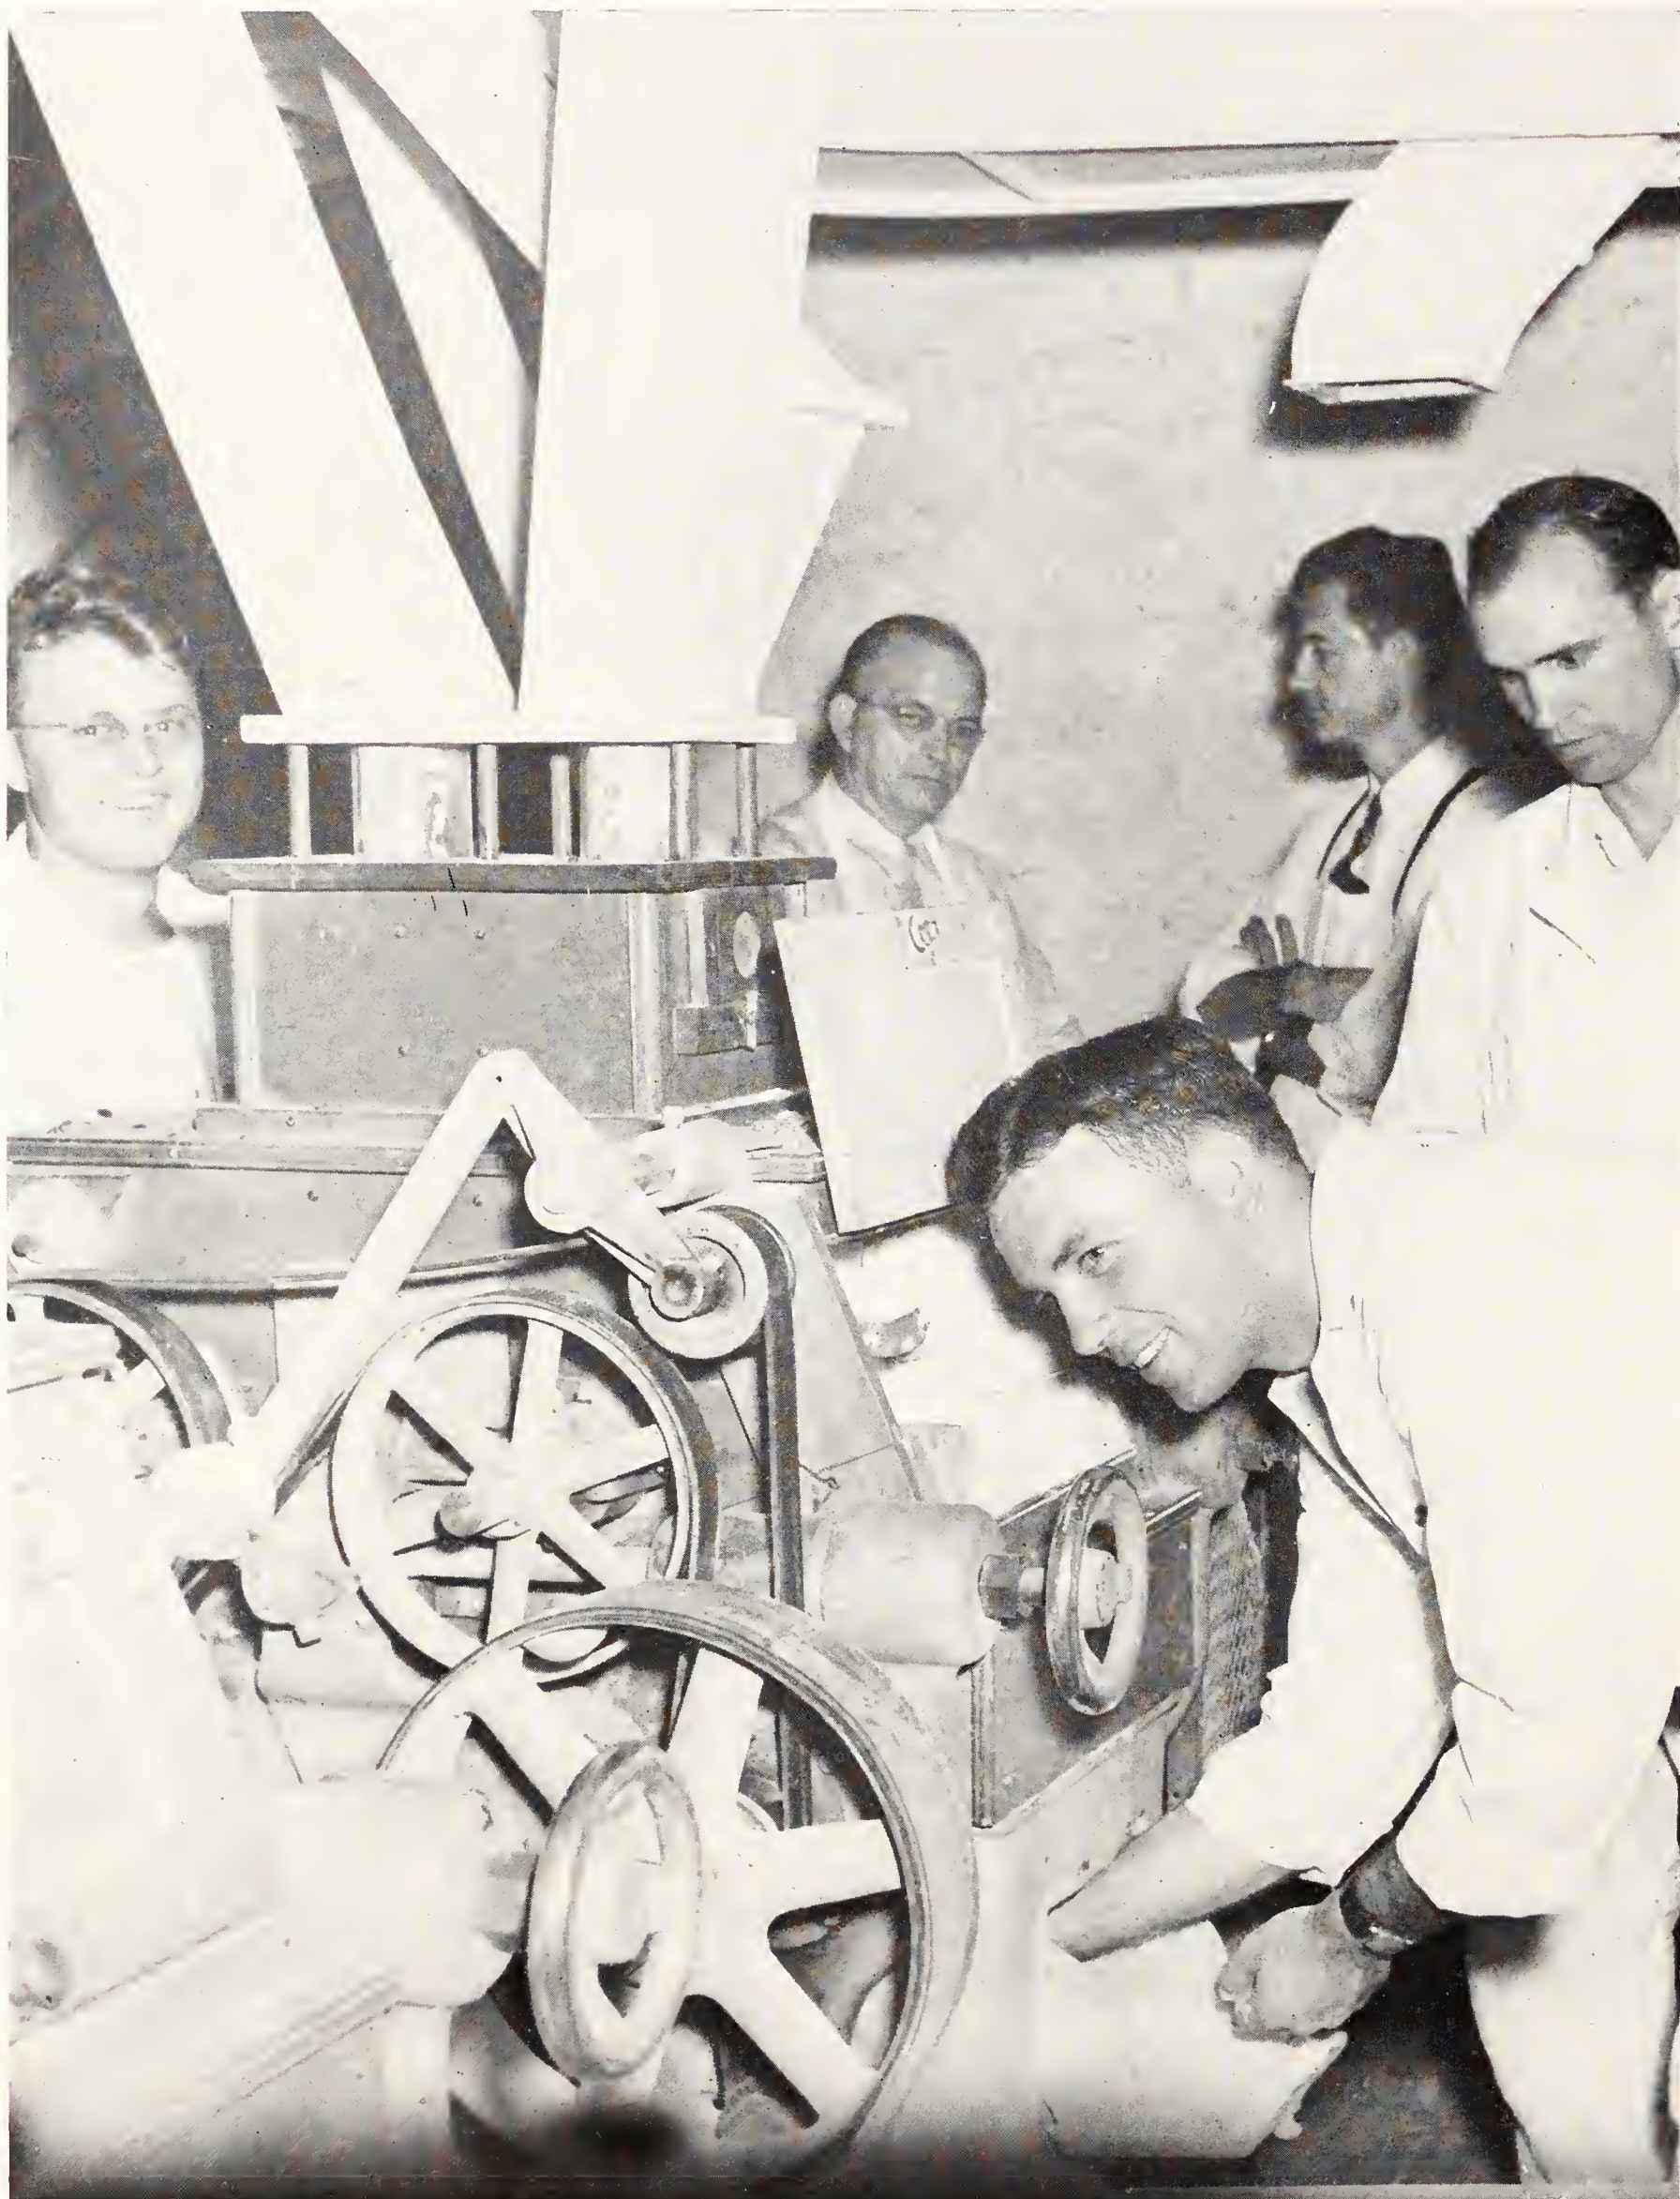

The Committee on Fraternities and Sororities is made up of the men's and women's panhellenic and interfraternity advisers and a student. The Student Activity Fund Apportionment Board, composed of three student and three faculty members, distributes the money to college organizations from the Student Activity Fund. The fund is received from a specified amount paid by each student with his fees as he enrolls. Through the years, the percentage received by each beneficiary is changed very little, in accordance with tradition and policy of the Board. The allotment may vary in normal times approximately as much as one per cent.

The Organization Control Board, headed by Thornton Edwards, is made up of two students and two faculty members. The Board keeps records of each campus organization, classifying them as departmental, honorary and professional, social and miscellaneous. Each organization must be recognized by the Control Board before it can take a full status as a College group.

The Academic Dishonesty Committee, a new panel set up this year to handle cheating cases by students, has successfully dealt with several problems this year and enormously cut down the amount of academic dishonesty among the students.

The Temporary Student Union Committee, having a large membership, directs and controls the plans and policies of the Student Union.

Milling majors gain practical experience in the mill owned and operated by the College. The only milling school in the country, and one of two in the world, it draws students from far-off countries, and from the wheat fields of Kansas. Three phases of milling industry are now taught which may prepare a student for research or the business world.

School of Agriculture

A BUILDING addition was made in the School of Agriculture with the construction of the long-planned research laboratory for small animals. Other changes occurred in the faculty, research projects and grants.

Enrollment in the School this year reached 1,246.

Prof. George Montgomery was promoted from Professor of Economics to head of the Department of Agricultural Economics, succeeding Dr. W. E. Grimes, one of the best-known men on the campus, who died May 23, 1947. Dr. C. O. Swanson, Professor Emeritus of Milling Industry, died on January 5, 1948, after 42 years' service at the College.

When the Research and Marketing Act became effective July 1, 1947, it became possible for the Agricultural Experiment Station to set up 14 new research projects. Grants from commercial firms and research foundations amounting to $113,000 are financing 43 research projects under the supervision of the Experiment Station.

Fellowships or scholarships available for students in agriculture include the Borden Company Fellowship which provides for two scholarships in dairy husbandry.

C. W. MULLEN, for 11 years Assistant Dean of the School of Agriculture, has long and faithfully served students enrolled in the curriculums in ag at Kansas State. He also works as assistant to Dean R. I. Throckmorton.

The Carl Raymond Gray fund is given by the Union Pacific Railroad Company for 4-H members and Vocational Agriculture winners. Kroger Company and the Sears Roebuck scholarship provide funds for 15 freshmen and one sophomore student.

In 1912, the Board of Regents created a new department at Kansas State College and called it the Division of Agriculture. July 1, 1942, the Division of Agriculture was permitted to use the title of School of Agriculture.

This fall marks the eighty-fifth year since the first ag courses were taught at Kansas State. The first dean of agriculture was appointed in 1908. R. I. Throckmorton, Dean of the School of Agriculture for the past two years, has been with the College for 37 years. And for the past 11 years C. W. Mullen has been Assistant Dean of Agriculture.

The first State agricultural hall was built in 1900 and a dairy building was added to the agriculture plant in 1904. Education Hall was the home of Kansas State agriculture for many years before Waters Hall was built in 1912. Waters is named for Henry Jackson Waters, the sixth president of the College.

Nationally Recognized

The School of Agriculture has become nationally recognized for the work done in various agricultural fields. Judging teams representing different departments of the College have consistently won honors in all sections of the United States.

The College owns several hundred acres of land which is used for experimental work and practical application of theories.

The only College in the United States to offer a degree in milling, Kansas State's Department of Milling Industry is supervised by Prof. J. A. Shellenberger.

The School of Agriculture has established a special two-year vocational training program, and set up a refresher course to meet the needs of the returned war veterans.

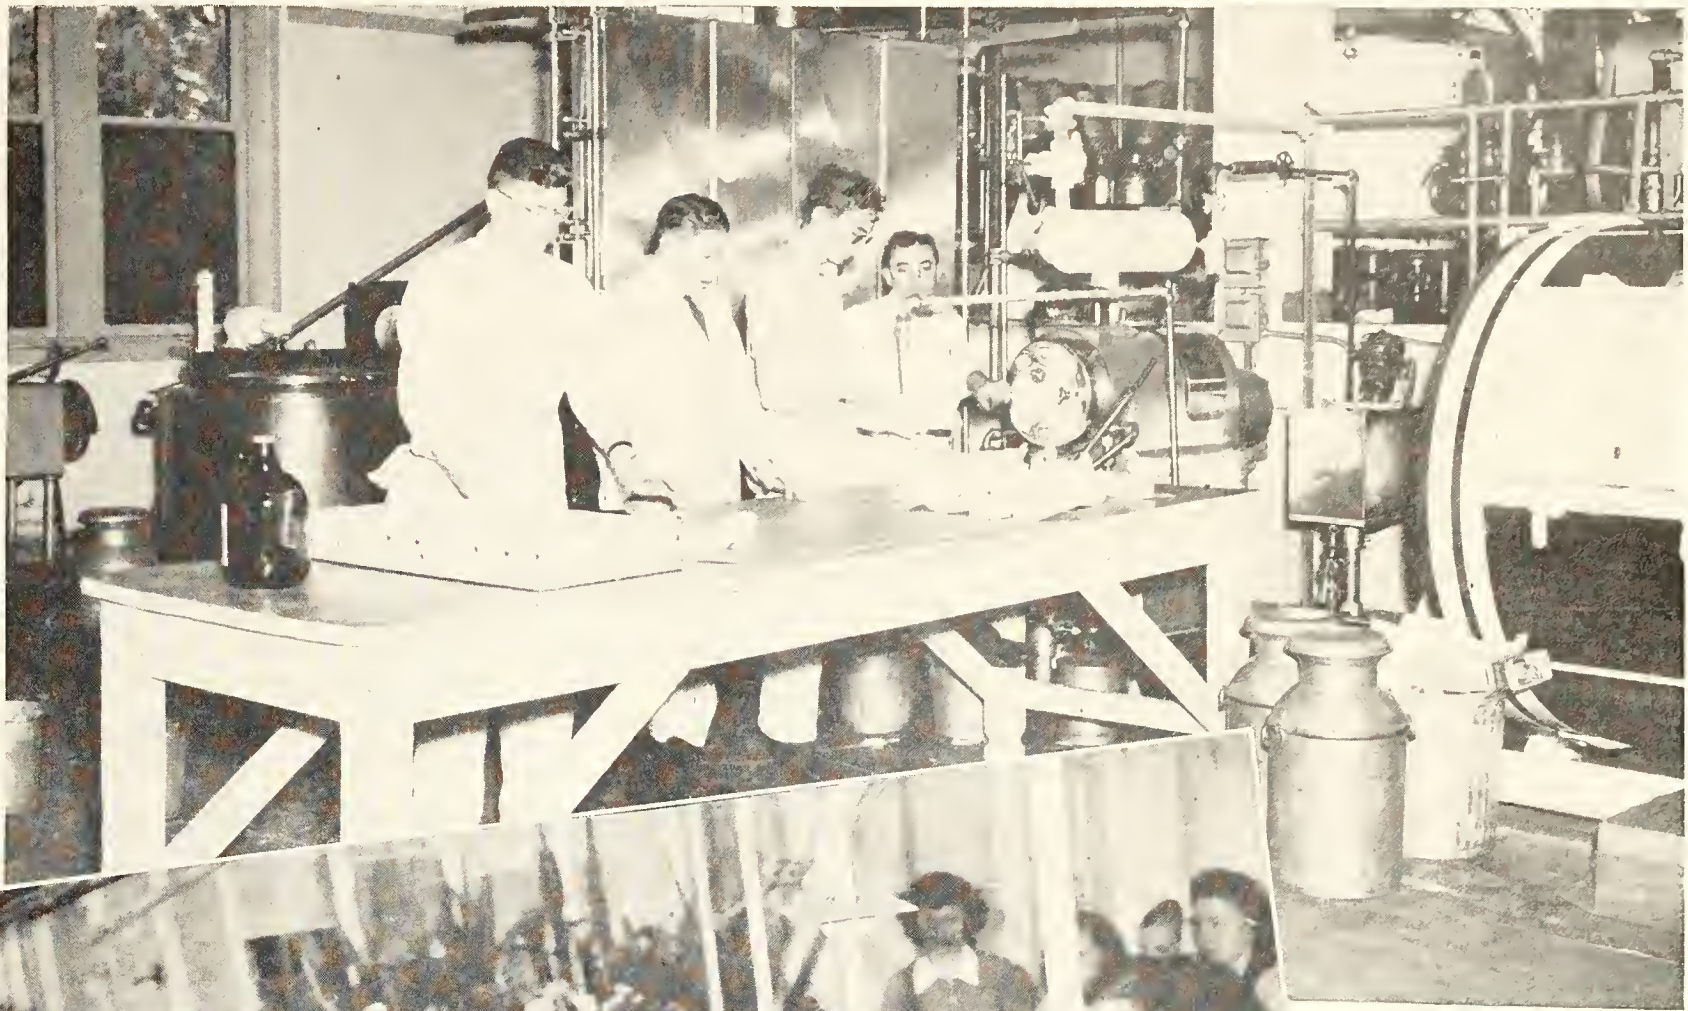

Department Division

The actual administration of the School of Agriculture is divided into seven departments representing almost every phase of agrarian operations. In addition to their major field of work, students in agriculture may choose electives in animal husbandry, agricultural economics, soils crops, dairy husbandry, horticulture, milling and poultry husbandry.

Several of the technical societies to which Dean R. I. Throckmorton and various faculty members belong are the American Association for the Advancement of Science, American Society of Agronomy, Soil Science Society of America, and Kansas Academy of Science.

CHARTS AND GRAPHS occupy the attention of students of agriculture economy (lower left). Heads are bent, answers compared, in this course, which appears to be no snap. Built in 1912, East Ag, or to be technically correct, the east wing of Waters Hall, has served for years as classroom and lab space for the ags.

Ags spend much of their time in labs covering all fields from sheep shearing to flower cutting. (Top) dairy students pack bricks of ice cream as the final process is completed. Flower arrangement is studied and practiced in the floriculture course (center left). The stock pavilion between the two wings of Waters Hall is the scene for sheep judging by animal husbandry students (center left). The fine points of butter churning are demonstrated to some ags as the golden load is removed from the vat (bottom).

Although Kansas State is basically a technical school, the arts are rapidly coming into their own with well-developed fields of study.

Above a student of organ shows off the result of a week of practice. Organ students get plenty of leg work.

Arts and Sciences

SECOND only to the School of Engineering and Architecture, Arts and Sciences hit the all-time high of 2,329 students this fall. This was approximately one-third of the total enrollment of the College.

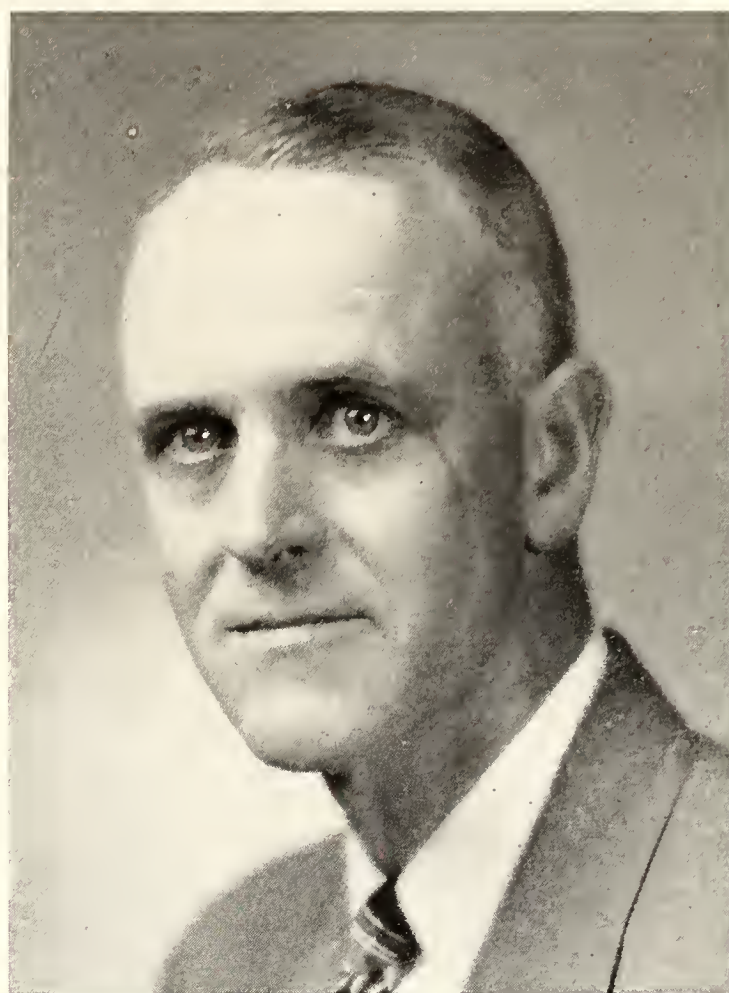

Kansas State, as a land grant school, supplies curriculums in the sciences and in professional and vocational subjects rather than classical studies.

And so, it is the main objective in the School of Arts and Sciences, to give this basic scientific and cultural training.

Office of the Dean

Rodney W. Babcock is Dean of the School of Arts and Sciences. He is aided by R. C. Maloney, holding the position of Assistant Dean. Dean Maloney is beset with such problems as constantly re-arranged schedules in the hands of students, chem labs cut in favor of Canteen labs, why you lack three hours to graduate, and all the book work involved in keeping track of the scholastic records of 2,329 students.

Among the many faculty changes throughout the School was the addition of Chester E. Peters who acts DEATH claimed several professors in the School this year. The faculty, as well as the students, miss the capable leadership and qualities of Dr. Waldo E. Grimes, who was head of the Department of Economics and Sociology; B. L. Remick, retired head of the Department of Mathematics; L. E. Hudiburg, Assistant Dean in the School of Arts and Sciences and teacher in the physics department; Prof. C. R. Thompson, of the economics and sociology department; and finally that grand old figure in Kansas State sports, M. F. "Mike" Ahearn, retired head of the athletics department.

Thurlo E. McCrady replaced Hobbs Adams as Director of Athletics on March 1, 1947. With the resignation of Sam Francis as football coach after Kansas State's most disastrous gridiron season, came the appointment of Ralph Graham as head mentor of the '48 squad. Graham is a former Wildcat football star, and came back to his Alma Mater after several years of successful coaching at Wichita University.

Department of Economics and Sociology, succeeding Dr. Grimes.

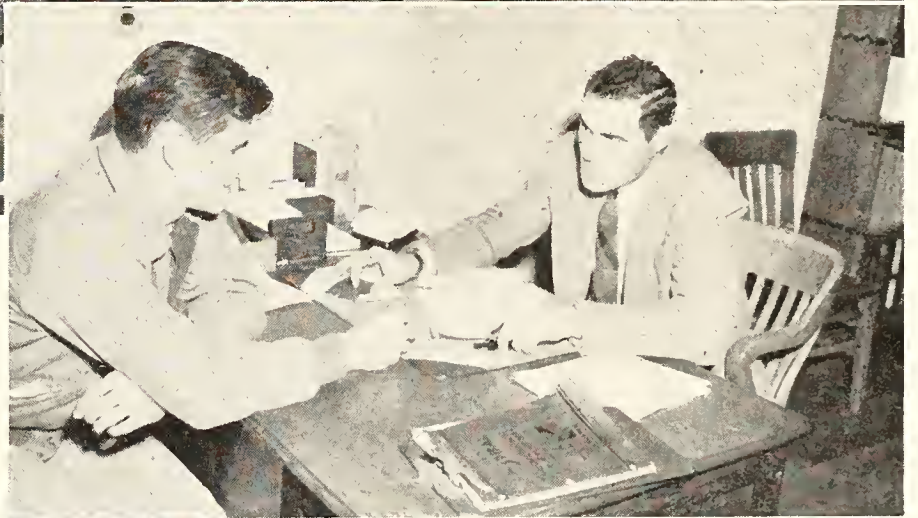

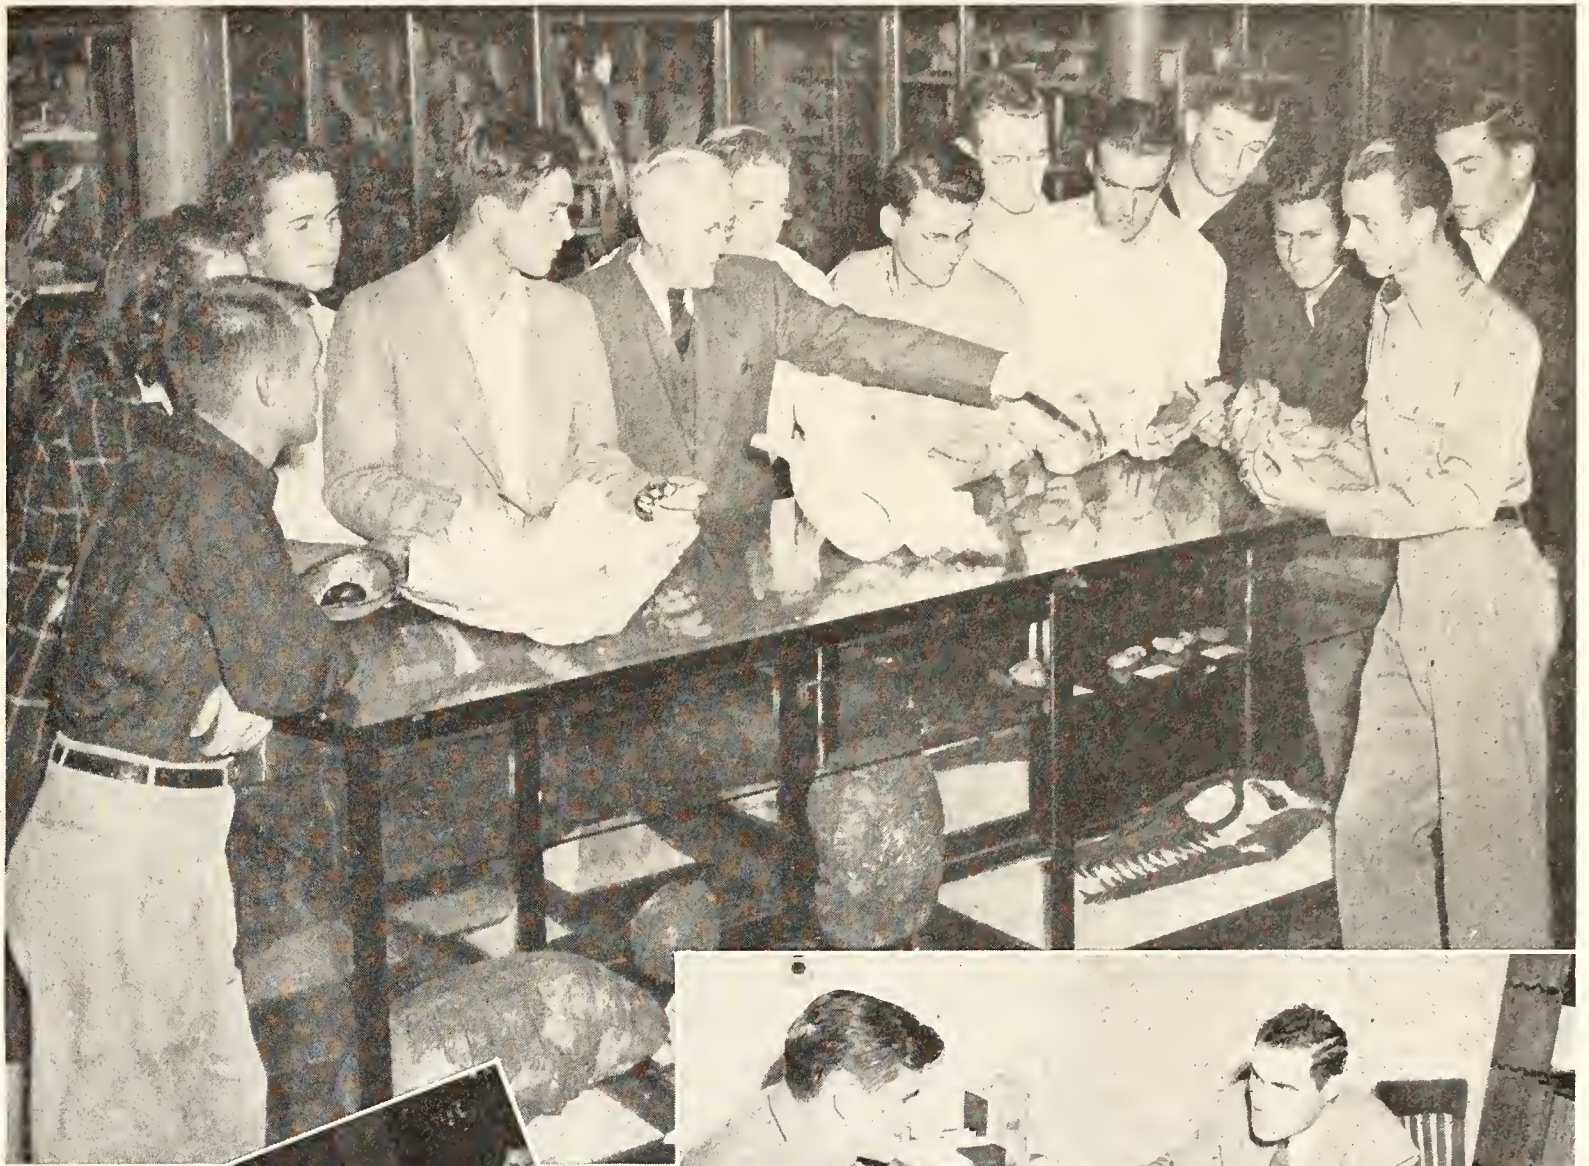

A course in Applied Geology, to be offered next fall, is the only curriculum change to take place within the School during the year.

Building additions were made to the division in the form of four barracks located east of Willard Hall and north of the green houses. Two of the double-story surplus Army Barracks are occupied by the offices of instructors in the School, and the two with only one floor are used for classroom purposes.

Research Done

Research work in the School of Arts and Sciences is carried on in cooperation with the School of Agriculture. During the past year, many research projects have been developed in connection with the two Schools.

As the post-war College returned to normalcy, academic and extra-curricular activities were in full swing. Organizations came to life with more vigor than ever before.

A wide range of courses, from History of Religion to Hematology is taught in the School of Arts and Sciences. A recitation class in Biology in Relation to Man goes to Fairchild Museum to inspect the shells of sea animals they have been studying (top). A student in a medical technician's course in pathology injects a dose while the class awaits the effect (center left). Assistant to the Dean of Arts and Sciences, Chester Peters, discusses a student's curriculum problems with him (center right). Anderson Hall was covered with snow most of the long cold winter (bottom).

Individual instruction is given to art students in the School of Engineering and Architecture. Careful consideration is shown to each student's effort, whether he has outstanding talent or not. Varied mediums are used in the art classes.

Engineering, Architecture

MORE thorough and intensified courses were given this year to all students in the School of Engineering and Architecture. The architecture curriculum was lengthened from four to five years for students to be graduated in 1952. The degree will become Bachelor of Science in Architecture, as differentiated from the former degree given in engineering.

From now on, there will be more work in electronics for the electrical engineer and more electrical engineering for the chemical engineer.

There were 17 promotions among the instructors of the division during the past year. Prof. Reed F. Morse replaced Prof. L. E. Conrad as head of the civil engineering department. Prof. W. H. Honstead took the place of Prof. Frederick Rohrman as head of the Department of Chemical Engineering.

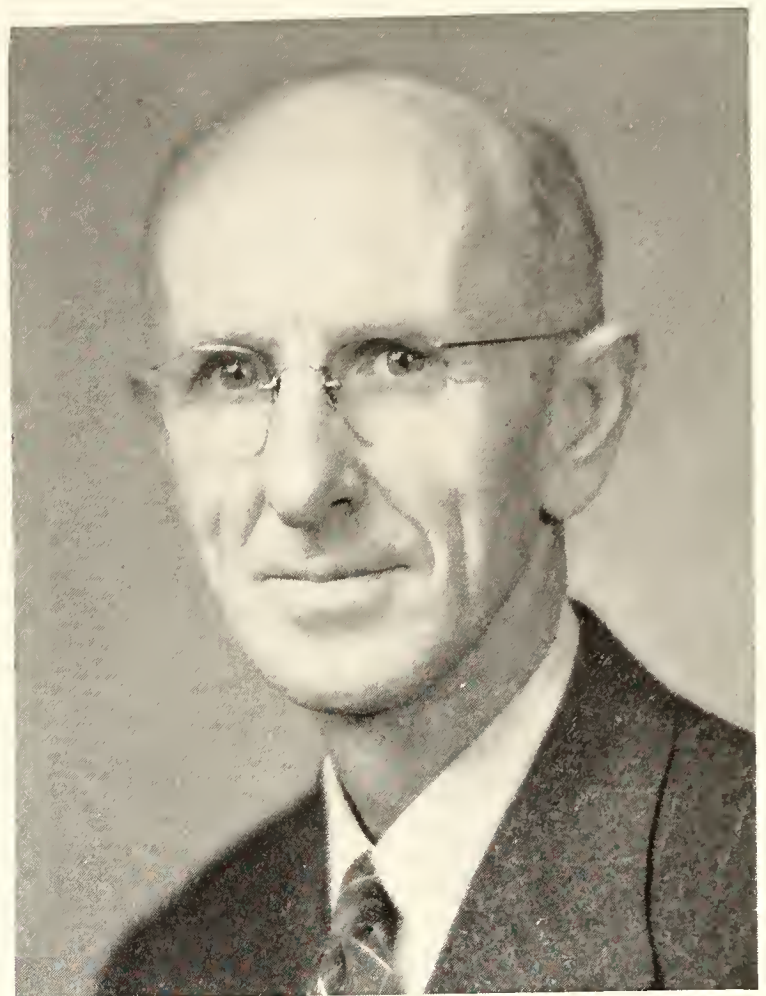

The entire school mourned the death of Albert J. Mack, a favorite professor in the mechanical engineering department. Professor Mack died October 25, while watching a football game in the Memorial stadium.

Enrollment Jumps

From an enrollment of 350 in 1913, the School of Engineering and Architecture has increased to 2,668. This is two and a quarter times as large as the previous maximum in the history of the College prior to last year. In the current year, more than 300 degrees will be conferred in this School.

After World War I, the enrollment rose rapidly until it reached about a thousand in 1925-26. Thereafter, it fluctuated between 100 and 1200 until 1941.

M. A. (COTTON) DURLAND, Assistant Dean of the School of Engineering and Architecture, has been connected with the College for a quarter of a century. He handles much of the administrative load for the largest School on the campus.

About 150 Bachelor of Science degrees and five Master of Science degrees were then conferred annually.

During the war, the enrollment in the School dropped to a low point of fewer than 200. With the end of the war and the influx of veterans, it rebounded sharply to reach a new all-time high which was approximately fourteen times as great as two years before.

Another project is the study of gravel and stone available in the Missouri River Valley to find suitable concrete aggregates for the Missouri River basin projects.

The use of electric welders on farms, heat pump methods applicable to farm home heating and cooling, and drying of chopped hay by forced ventilation are among the other research projects in the School of Engineering and Architecture.

During the past year, Dr. Gerald Pickett of the Department of Applied Mechanics was awarded the Wason Medal by the American Concrete Institute for the most meritorious paper of 1946 in the field of concrete research.

Cooperating with the Agricultural Experiment Station, the agricultural engineering department is studying various methods of applying water to crops for supplementary irrigation and the effect these methods would have on the yield.

Study Erosion

Another important project under way, is a study of the wind erosion of the soil and the mechanical problems and factors involved. This includes research on the effect of varying wind velocity, moisture content, and other factors which affect soil blowing.

Scholarships and fellowships available to engineering students are the Westinghouse scholarship in electrical engineering; the Lincoln Arc Welding scholarship in agricultural engineering; and the Consolidated-Vultee fellowship in mechanical engineering.

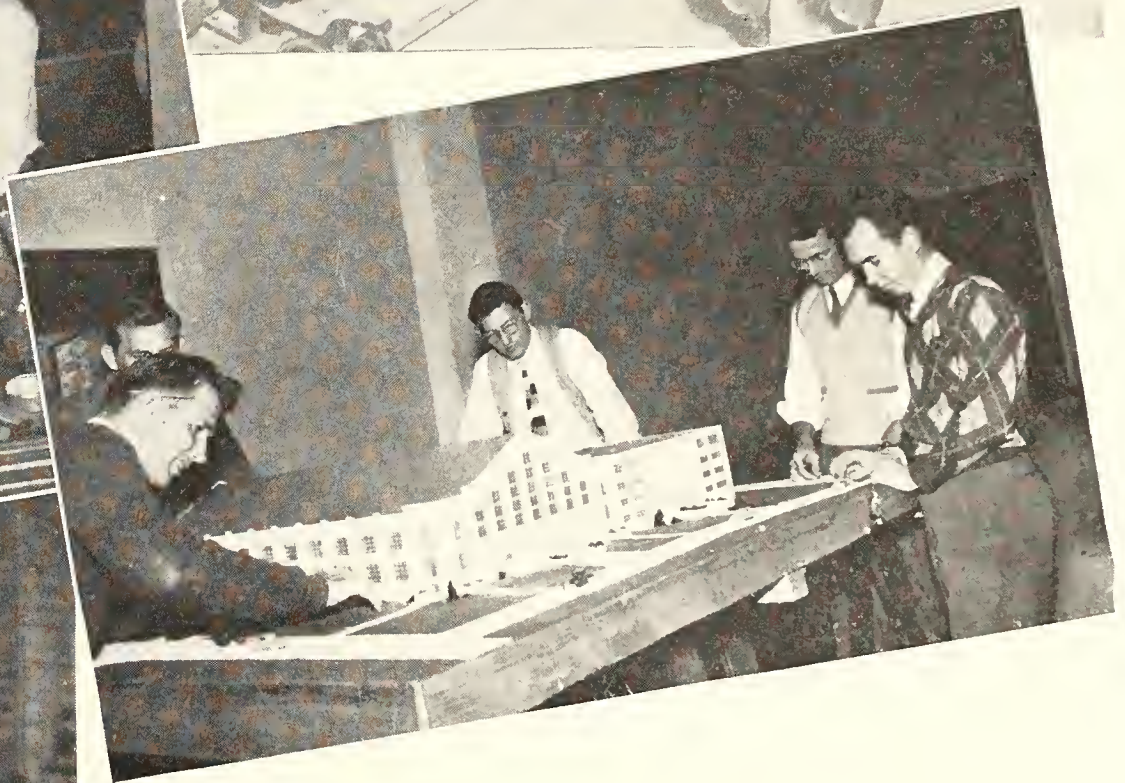

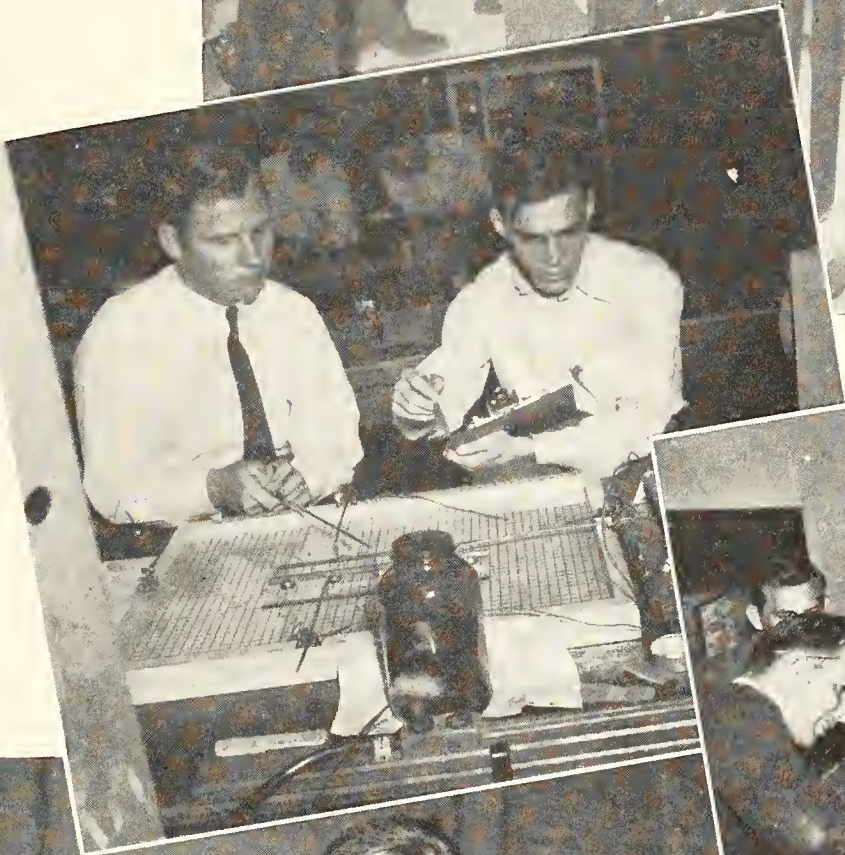

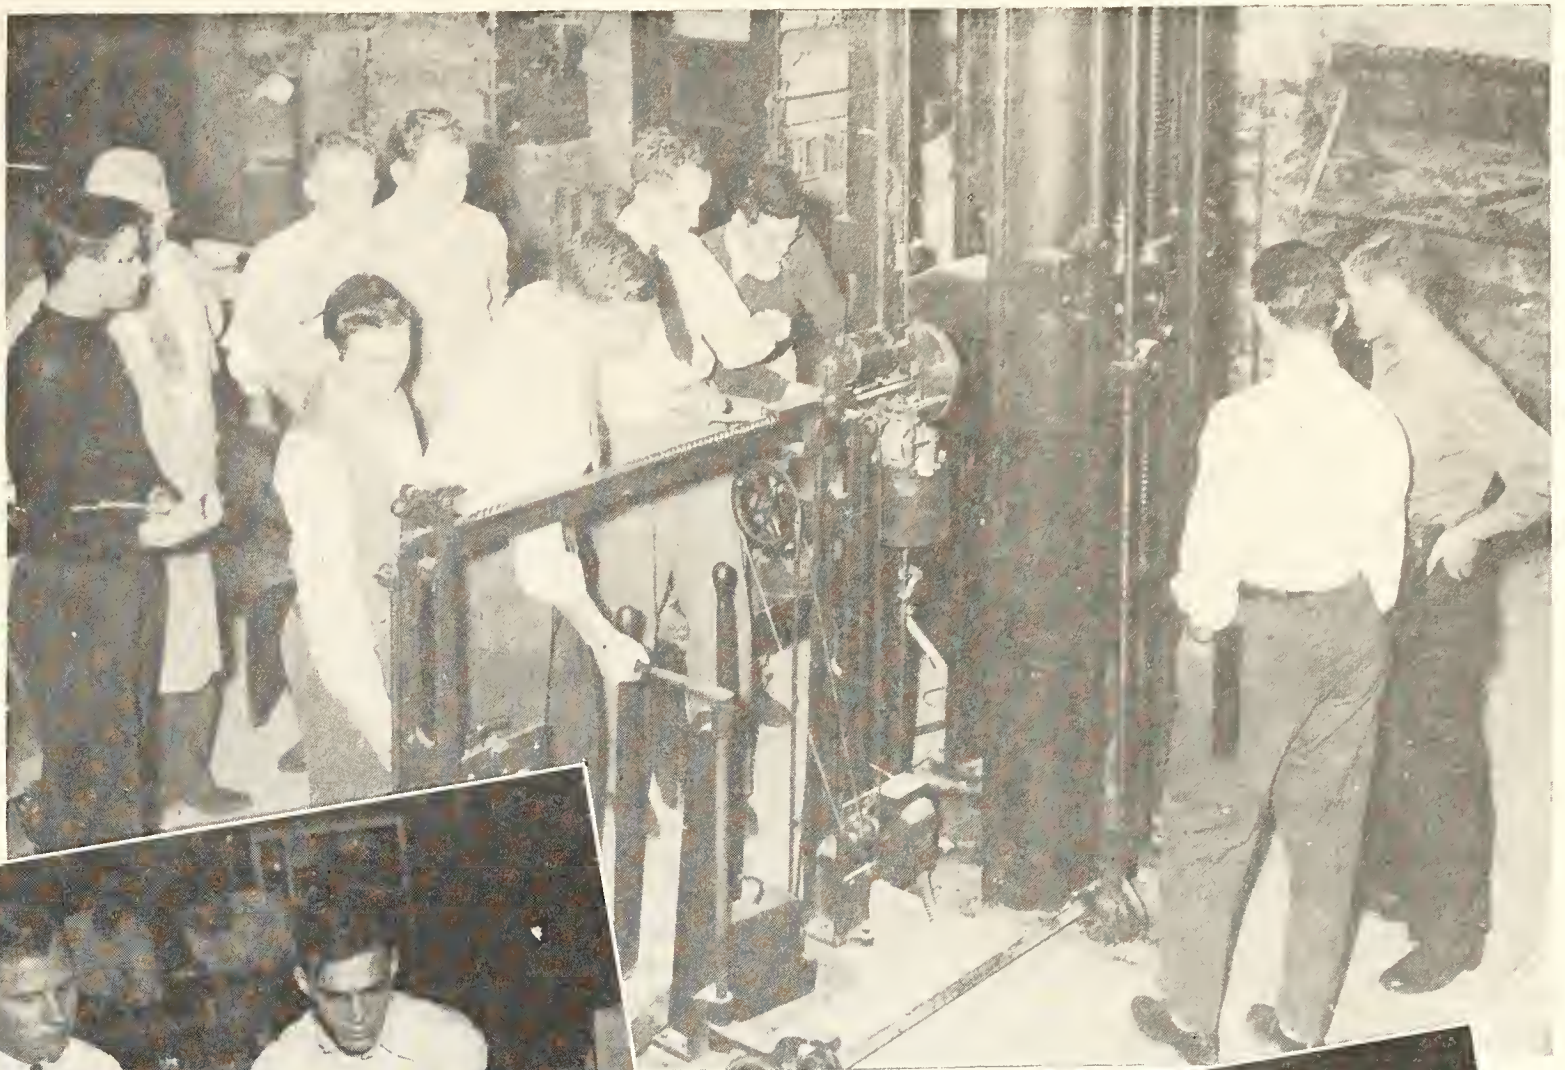

Engineering instruction at Kansas State began very early in the College's history. The act of Congress under which the College was established provided for the teaching of "such branches of learning as are related to agriculture and the mechanic arts."

In the early years, the instruction in engineering grew slowly, as did the College as a whole. Separate four-year curriculums were established as follows: engineering in 1897; electrical engineering and mechanical engineering in 1907; agricultural engineering in 1925.

School of Home Economics

FOR three-quarters of a century, courses in home economics have been offered at Kansas State. From one instructor, (who taught sewing, dressmaking and millinery) the school of Home Economics has grown to include seven departments, with more than 60 faculty members.

There are two objectives in training students enrolled in the School of Home Economics. The first is to help a woman become a better citizen and housewife through her general education in this division. Over 90 percent of the home ec graduates marry within five years after leaving school. Therefore, the instructors believe that the practical side of the field should be emphasized.

The second objective is to equip a student for the highly specialized and technical fields opened to graduates in home economics today.

Meet Varied Needs

Graduate and undergraduate courses are offered to meet the needs of those who plan to care for a home, those who wish to teach, engage in social welfare, enter some aspect of the business field, engage in dietetics or institutional management, become nurses or technicians, and those who wish to prepare for graduate study in phases of home economics.

Many students who feel sure their interest is in home economics, are at a loss on entering college, to know which curriculum to choose. Hence, guidance plans are included in the home economics program to help the student determine the special phase in which her individual interests and abilities may best function.

HEADS OF DEPARTMENTS OF THE SCHOOL OF HOME ECONOMICS—Miss Dorothy Barfoot, Art; Dr. Josephine Kremer, Household Economics; Miss Alpha Latzke, Clothing and Textiles; Dr. Lois Schulz, Child Welfare

DR. MARTHA KRAMER, Assistant Dean of Home Economics, helps solve student curriculum problems and aids with the administration of the School, among her other duties. She has been with the College for 18 years.

Dr. Lois R. Schulz is the new head of the Department of Child Welfare and Euthenics. Assistant professors added to the Department of Foods and Nutrition were Dr. Dorothy Harrison and Miss Dorothy Linn.

Enrollment in the School of Home Economics last fall reached approximately 667 students.

Extension plans include two home management houses, a duplex, and a single dwelling. New furnishings and equipment are ready for students and faculty who will occupy these houses in the fall of '48.

THE FINE POINTS of salad-making are being demonstrated to a foods class. Each group prepares a different type of salad and brings it before the class for approval or criticism. Such experiments may free future husbands of guinea-pig status.

Many important research projects are being conducted in the School of Home Economics. Dr. Beulah Westerman is directing research on the nutritional significance of the use of enriched cereals. This was made possible by a grant of $7,000 from the Williams-Waterman Fund of the Research Corporation of New York.

Dr. Leah Ascham is cooperating with the horticulture and physics departments on a project designed to study the effect of electromagnetic radiation on the absorbic acid content of plants.

Dr. Abby Marlatt is working in association with Iowa State College and Ohio State University on the project: "Nutritional Status of School Children as Influenced by the School Lunch Program."

Several of the research activities being done by Dr. Gladys Vail are the performance of eggs and egg products and their use in foods; the effect of frozen storage temperatures upon certain characteristics of meat; the effect of freezing and refrigerated storage on the quality of pre-cooked foods.

Honorary President

Miss Alpha Latzke was installed in June as national president of Omicron Nu to serve a term of two years.

Home Ec students will find that there are several scholarships open to them. Among these are the Sears-Roebuck Foundation home economics scholarships, the Kroger scholarship fund for home economics students and the Jessie Hoover Fellowship for graduate students.

This year marks the third of Dr. Martha Kramer's administration as Assistant Dean of Home Economics. She has been at K-State for 18 years. Dr. Kramer belongs to Phi Kappa Phi, Omicron Nu and Sigma Xi honorary societies.

Dr. Margaret M. Justin, Dean of the School of Home Economics is one of the nation's outstanding authorities of her field. She has written many home ec books and is a well-known speaker.

Preparing food for the masses of hungry students that descend upon the College Cafeteria at meal hours is part of the class work in a course teaching cooking of large quantities of food. Some members of a class are shown working at the right.

Those who wish to teach home economics upon graduation are given plenty of practical experience in either the Manhattan school system or that of a nearby community. At the left, a student teacher at the Manhattan High School, shows the class just how the dress should be fitted.

School of Veterinary Medicine

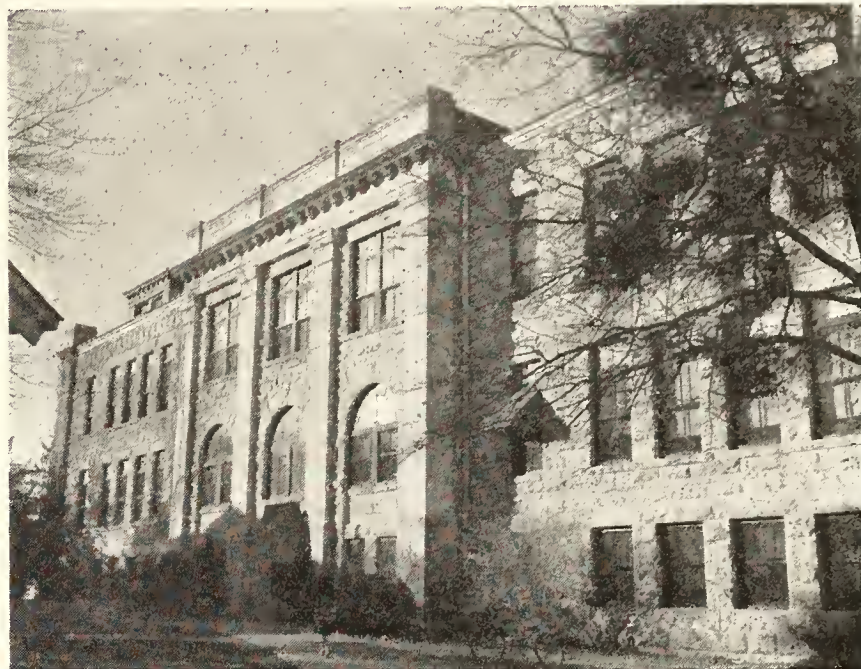

MANY changes in the curriculum of the School of Veterinary Medicine during the past year mark the passage from accelerated war-time schedules to a non-accelerated peace-time basis. Because of these curriculum changes, there are no fourth year students in veterinary medicine for the 1947-48 college year.

R. R. Dykstra, Dean of the School of Veterinary Medicine since 1919, is completing his twenty-ninth year at Kansas State College. Assistant to the Dean of Veterinary Medicine is Mrs. Maxine Caley.

Two hundred and two students are enrolled in the professional curriculum of Veterinary Medicine this year. Kansas State College can boast of having one of the 10 college schools of Veterinary Medicine in the country. The enrollment is limited to approximately 200 students by the Board of Regents, making competition very great in this particular field. A grade average of 2.5 was required for enrollment this year.

More Time Required

Effective September 1, 1948, the completion of two years of preveterinary work will be required in order to receive consideration for admission to the professional curriculum of vet medicine. These two years of preveterinary work and the additional four years in the professional curriculum lead to the two degrees of Bachelor of Science and Doctor of Veterinary Medicine.

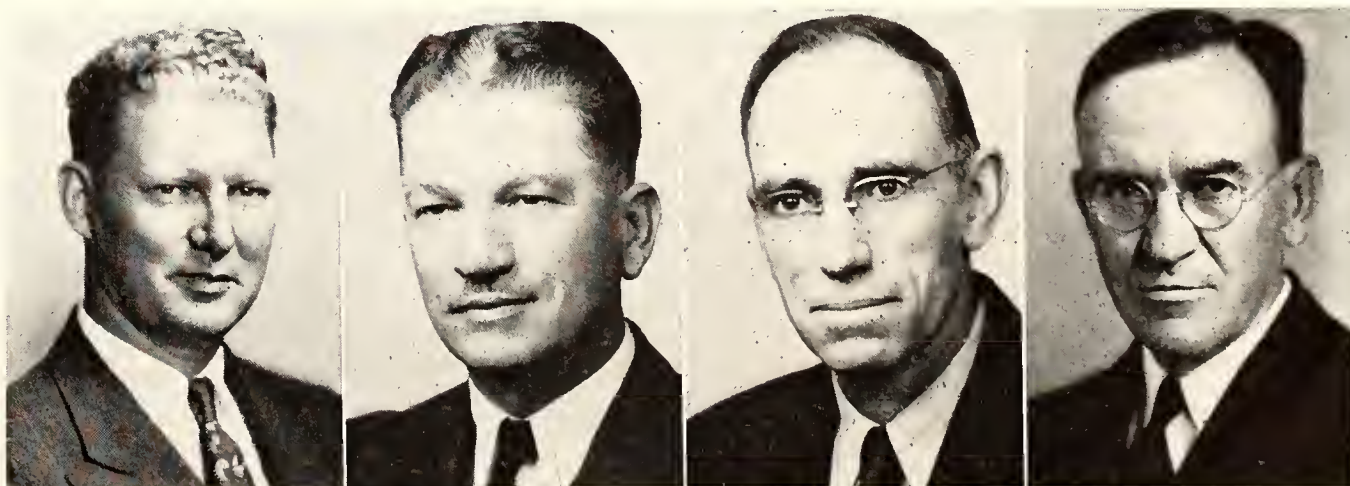

VETERINARY HALL, above, with the Vet Hospital, is the building in which most of the senior and junior vets take their classes. The Office of the Dean and other administrative offices of the School are located here also.

Among the changes in the staff of the Veterinarian School this year were resignations of Asst. Prof. F. H. Oberst and Assoc. Prof. W. W. Thompson from the staff of the Department of Pathology. Dr. J. W. Lumb is now Asosciate Professor in the anatomy department.

The National Cancer Institute, subdivision of the United States Public Health Service, has notified the School of Veterinary Medicine that the National Advisory Cancer Council has recommended a grant of $1,000 to be used for the project, "A Study of Biological Tests of Malignancy."

COUNTING VERTEBRAE on an animal skeleton, is an enjoyable task apparently to vet students who sit in a lab in the traditional white coveralls of the College vets. Struggling vet students claim horses have more parts than a television set.

A curriculum leading to the degree Doctor of Veterinary Medicine was established in Kansas State College in 1905. The first class received their degrees in 1917. Doctors of Veterinary Medicine graduated from K-State, including all classes from 1907 up to the present time, total 1,118.

A $300 award is given by the Borden Company Foundation to the senior student having the highest grades in the courses of the first three years of the professional curriculum in veterinary medicine.

Research Projects

Among the research projects now being carried on in the School of Veterinary Medicine are the studies of Brucellosis of Cattle; Malignancy Tests for Cancer and Other Tumors; Research of Anaplasmosis of Cattle; Disease of Feeder Cattle in Kansas; the study of Virus diseases of animals; and other experimental work concerning miscellaneous animal diseases.

In addition to teaching professional veterinary medicine in the "School of Bone-Cutting" there is research work done by the Department in cooperation with the Agricultural Experiment Station.

Develop Vaccines

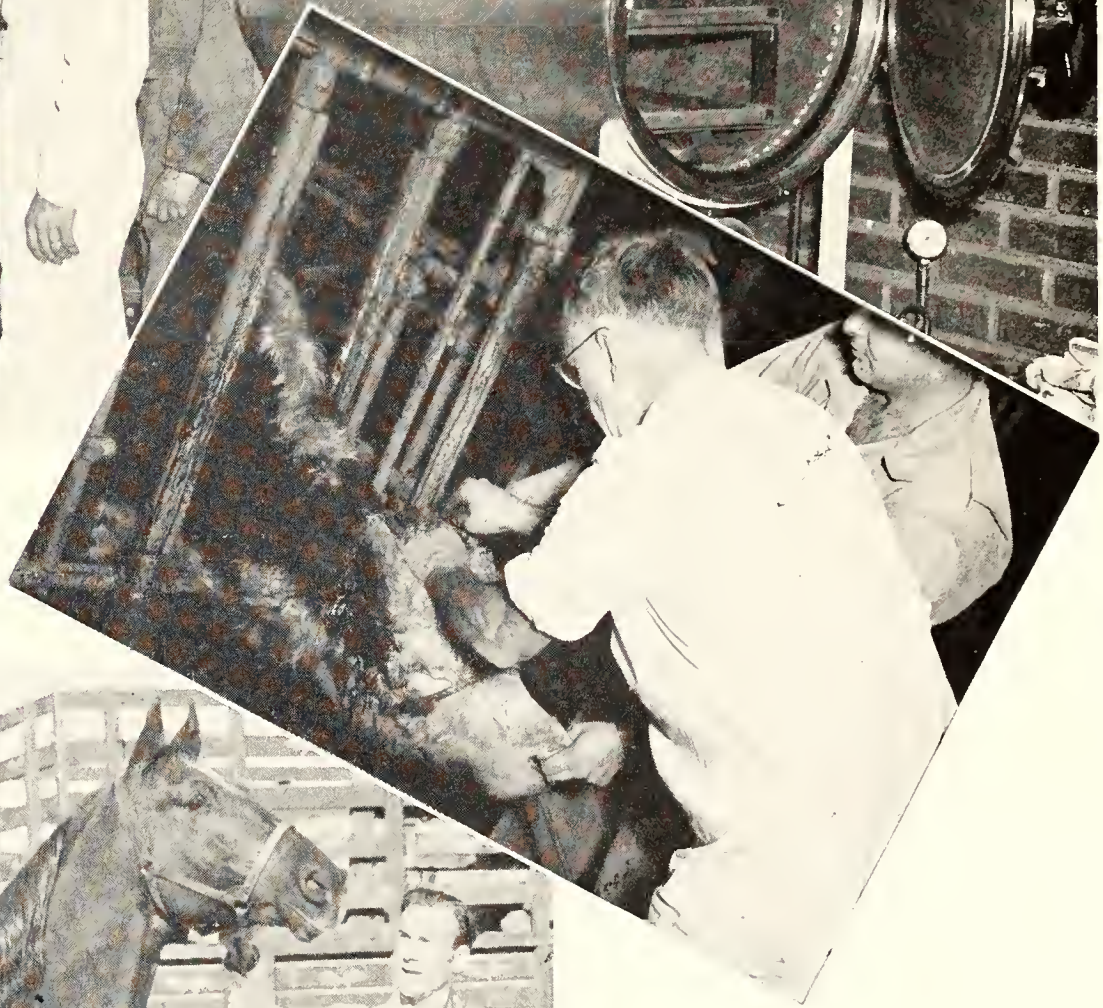

The department has to its credit much outstanding research. Listed among the most outstanding of its projects is the development of modern blackleg vaccines. The blackleg projects were started many years ago and are resulting in an annual estimated saving of nine per cent of the total calf crop in the entire southwest.

Patients in the Veterinary Clinic include all domestic animals ranging from horses to poultry. The department operated Clinic provides instruction and practice in the courses such as obstetrics, surgery and infectious disease. The Clinic is a non-profit organization, treating animals brought from surrounding farms and homes in Riley county and throughout the state, Kansas students receive precedence over out-of-state students in enrolling. There are several foreign students enrolled, who will carry their Kansas State degrees to their home countries in nearly every continent.

Large instrument sterilizers (above) are needed at the veterinary clinic, which handles more than 30,000 cases a year.

It takes strength as well as skill to de-horn cattle, as is demonstrated (above) by Dr. E. R. Frank of the surgery and medicine department. (Lower left) A vet student holds a well-groomed horse in show position for the camera.

The Kansas Extension Service goes to farm communities throughout the state by means of the central offices on the campus and district and county offices. Another service is performed for students and citizens through the Home Study Program, part of the staff of which is shown at the left.

Poring over blueprints that may make some farm more modern are members of the staff of the extension engineer.

Extension Moves to New Central Offices

FOR THE first time in many years, 1947 brought together in one building all central office extension workers. The new temporary quarters are located midway between Military Science and West Waters Hall. The only facilities of the Extension Service that are not located in this building are the publications unit, housed in the basement of Anderson, and the studios of Station KSAC, on the third floor of the gym.

The Department of Home Study Service had an enrollment of 2,155 students who were taking credit courses.

One outstanding development in physical properties was the installation of a new 5,000 watt radio transmitter with the 433 foot vertical tower, two miles due north of the campus. From the viewpoint of service to Kansas people, the new broadcasting equipment has increased the potential listening audience from 1,300,000 to 5,000,000 persons. Letters received from listeners, not only in Kansas, but from points throughout the Middle West, show the tremendous increase.

Umberger Retires

Until June 30, 1947, H. Umberger had been Dean and Director of the Kansas Extension Service, serving for more than a quarter of century. On that date, he relinquished his activities to become Dean and Director Emeritus. Professor L. C. Williams, a graduate of the College came to the extension service in 1915. Following the appointment of Dean Umberger on an Emeritus status, Professor Williams became Dean of the Division of Extension and Director of Kansas Extension service.

The state is the College campus through the extension service.

The primary objective of the service is to assist the rural people of the state in developing and conducting educational programs in which all may participate. All programs have as their major goals better living conditions and happier, more satisfying lives. These objectives are gained by the close individual contact that the Extension Service keeps with the residents of the rural communities.

Graduate School Changes Program

FOR A HIGHER DEGREE, these students work long hours in the graduate lab, a special room in Fairchild Hall. Courses leading to a master's are offered by 42 College departments. A Doctor of Philosophy degree may be obtained in nine fields here.

To Meet New Needs

PREPARING students for jobs in industry requiring highly technical skills is now recognized as the function of the Graduate School. Educational and research positions are now calling for preparation only received by those with considerable graduate training.

In lieu of these facts, the School has changed its program to meet the present-day needs of graduate students. Work leading to a Master of Science degree is offered by 42 departments at the College. The degree, Doctor of Philosophy, is offered in nine fields.

This year, there were 315 students enrolled in the Graduate School, with approximately 40 seniors taking some graduate work.

All graduate students may belong to the Graduate Club, of which Dean Harold Howe is sponsor. The chief activities of the club are social, and wives and husbands of graduate students may be associate members.

Officers of the club this year were James Hoath, president; Emilio Viale, vice-president; and Wilma Anderson, secretary-treasurer.

Supervisory Body

The Graduate Council is comparable to the Council of Deans in its function, in that it is an over-all supervisory body. Composed of faculty representatives from the various undergraduate schools and departments, the Graduate Council fashions the program of the Graduate School and formulates the graduate study policy for the College.

Harold Howe has been Dean of the Graduate School since 1945. Prior to that time, he was a professor in the Department of Economics and Sociology. For 23 years, his name has been prominent in the field of economics. Dean Howe participates in numerous student activities. Not only does he supervise the Graduate School, but as chairman of the Faculty Council on Student Affairs, he oversees the five subcommittees of that group. Departments offering major work for the Doctor of Philosophy degrees are Bacteriology, Botany, Chemistry, Entomology, Plant Genetics, Poultry Genetics, Milling Industry and Parasitology.

There Will Be a Meeting

NEVER, in all the time I've been a Hill, have I held up so many organizations. There are over 100 clubs recognized by the Organization Control Board. And what they all find to do I don't know.

People trample in herds to five o'clock meetings, and just when I've settled down for the night, they shuffle back all over me for after-dinner meetings. I get battered.

Take a tip from an old Hill—if you want to be what they call a wheel on the campus—if you want to walk to West Ag exchanging greetings with fellow students and faculty members — if you want to enter the Union or the Canteen and immediately spot someone to have a cup of coffee with—the solution is simple. Just join five or six campus organizations.

At least one of the hundred clubs should catch your fancy. There is an organization for every field that the human mind can grasp, from the Guild of Gabby Golfers to the Society for the Preservation of Monoliths on the Kansas State College Campus. If you fancy a particularly popular line, there are probably several groups which would welcome you as a member. Let me remind you, that this is quite new to me—it wasn't so very many years ago that the members of one literary society wouldn't speak to those who belonged to the other literary society. Clubs were very exclusive, membership select. Now the most important qualification for membership is an active interest in the group and a willingness to support its projects.

Since the war, my groups have had huge increases in membership. Nearly every club has doubled all previous records. This enlarges, not only the amount of dues collected, but the amount of knowledge that can be derived from a departmental or curricular group. Larger numbers permit the extension of the clubs' activities.

The organizations generally meet after the classrooms have closed their scarred doors. Faculty sponsors are inevitably on hand to guide the club through its extra-curricular endeavors. Some groups take inspection trips, some listen to speakers from industrial fields, some hold discussions, and nearly all have fall hayrack rides, and a picnic for members and dates in the spring. If you're lucky, you may get a Christmas hot tamale supper.

As might be expected, some of the organizations at Kansas State are very old—some are very new. The old ones have nice traditions, like a candlelight breakfast early on May Day. The new ones keep pretty busy being worthwhile, getting members, and collecting dues.

Some clubs have reached the efficiency of a well-oiled machine. Others are just getting their start. On the latter, you can play a part in moulding policies, gaining favorable publicity, and all the other odd jobs that confront those who would pioneer.

Every organization, large or small, young or old, has its officers. Officers, you know—those serious-looking people who tell everyone what to do, how to do it, and when. Those people you think you can rise above—until you finally get the job. You can show your friends, enemies and instructors that you have "leadership" and that you haven't been over-rating yourself all these years.

Just think how important you'll feel when you can say to those poor dopes who spend all their time loafing that you have a meeting, and much as you'd like to stay and chat awhile, you must be prompt.

That's the way to be a wheel. I know. Wheels roll all over this old Hill—and they're not all circular.

UNESCO Draws Interest of Many Students

The overseas unit of the Kansas State College UNESCO group found great interest among the student body in their plans for trips to Europe in the summer. Every campus organization sent a representative to the mass meeting of the branch of the United Nations Educational, Scientific, and Cultural Organization, above. Delegates from the entire state attended the UNESCO convention in Wichita in the winter. Shown at right is the evening banquet which closed the meetings.

Union Draws Crowds

Through summer months and late into the fall, work progressed on the temporary Student Union building, a reconverted Army Barracks. At last, in November, it opened, and students piled in for a cup of coffee and a chat (upper left). Carpenters and electricians worked through the summer on the interior of the Union (center left). Dean Pugsley and Student Council prexy, Don Ford, gave the Union a send-off at its formal opening (center right). (Lower right) the way the building looked to thirsty students early in the fall.

Demonstrate Skills During Hospitality Days

The week after the Easter Parade last spring came the Hospitality Days style review (above). The clothes pictured here are the result of tailoring classes, garment work and special projects. April 18 and 19 marked the seventeenth annual Hospitality Days sponsored by the School of Home Economics.

Demonstration of crafts (center), and painting (right) were events that drew much of the crowd during open house. Home economics high school students and teachers from all parts of the state come annually to visit the displays.

Virginia Olson Crowned Queen of Ags

Jeans and plaid shirts were brought forth for the first big dance of the year, the Ag Barnwarmer (above). Candidates for Ag Queen went through rugged tests of their skill as farm hands. They drove tractors (left), milked and pitched hay and horseshoes. Queen of the evening was Virginia Olson of Coed Court, being crowned (below) by Dean R. I. Throckmorton of the School of Agriculture. The princesses were, from left to right, Marilyn Bush, Betty Lou Williams, Katherine Lowell and Monita McNeill.

Campaigning by the fraternities for the coveted title of F.M.O.C. (Favorite Man on the Campus) for one of their members grew hot and hysterical in the final days before the Snow Ball. Signs, leaflets, sidewalk painting, and during-dinner skits at sorority houses were standard tactics. Sponsored by the Home Economics Clubs, the third annual Snow Ball became a big affair.

Langton Wins F.M.O.C. Honors

Man of the hour was Allan Langton, Sigma Phi Epsilon and top-notch basketball player. Langton comes forward to receive crown and scepter (top). Part of the campaigning was carried on by marching pledges with sandwich boards in the Student Union (center). Favorite Man Langton draws the center of attention after intermission at the Ball. Ag Committees Lead School Affairs

THE Ag Barnwarmer, presentation of "K" medals to all agricultural judging team members, and management of the Little American Royal were among the year's activities of the Agricultural Association. Membership in the Association increased 300 this year to reach a total of 1,200.

Students become members of the Association automatically when they enroll in agriculture. At their monthly seminars they meet to hear addresses by well known agricultural leaders.

Dean Schowengerdt was president; Howard Borchardt, vice president; Bill Haskett, secretary; and James Wood, treasurer. Barnwarmer manager Elmer Blankenhagen was assisted by Charles Nesbit. The Ag Student, published four times yearly, was edited by John Tasker. Assistant Dean C. Mullen was faculty sponsor.

In 1947, the Association members voted to amend the constitution to provide for an Agricultural Council. The Council, a policy making group concerned with inter-school affairs and student matters, is composed of 10 members. Each of the eight departments in the School of Agriculture elects its representative to the Council. The representative on the Student Council is automatically a member and chairman of the group. The Ag Association president is also a member.

Dick Warren was chairman of the Council this year. Sidney Jagger, ag economics, was vice chairman; and George Krause, agronomy, was secretary. Other members were Dean Schowengerdt, Ag Association president; Glen McCormick, dairy; Lester Crandall, ag education; Richard Eaton, poultry; Howard Lindholm, animal husbandry; William Richards, milling industry; and Ray Gulley, horticulture.

Judging Contest Sponsored by Club

THE Klod and Kernel Klub, agricultural organization open to students majoring in agronomy, was headed by George Krause this year. The club carried on several educational activities and held social affairs to give students and faculty a change to know each other better.

They helped the agronomy department sponsor the state high school crops judging contest. The club members judged the contest and awarded a medal to the highest individual and ribbons to the other winners.

They also sponsored the intra-collegiate crops judging contest held this spring. Prizes were given to winners of each of the three divisions—a section for students who had never had college training in crops judging, a junior group for students who had only beginning courses, and the senior division for majors in agronomy.

Prospective members were given a chance to meet the old members and the faculty at the annual Klod and Kernel steak fry in the fall. Later in the year, the club participated in a ping-pong tournament in competition with the other ag organizations.

Another activity was the float the group entered in the Homecoming parade in October.

Joe Schrader acted as vice-president; Ronald Livers was secretary; and William Haskett was treasurer. Prof. Harold Jones was the faculty sponsor for the club.

THE 120 members of the Block and Bridle Club have a three fold purpose. First, to promote higher scholastic standards among the students of animal husbandry; second, to promote animal husbandry, especially all phases of student work in colleges and universities; and third, to bring about a closer relationship among the men pursuing some phase of animal husbandry.

Any student registered in the collegiate course in agriculture of any university or who has signified that his major interest is in the field of animal husbandry, members of judging teams, professors, or specialists in the animal husbandry department are eligible for membership in the Block and Bridle Club.

James Collier, as president, was assisted by Charles Nesbitt, vice-president; Linton Lull, secretary; Douglas George, treasurer; Wilbur Howell, corresponding secretary; and Roland Weaver, sergeant-at-arms.

Activities of the club were the Block and Bridle Livestock Judging contest, the Little American Royal livestock show, the Animal Husbandry Feeders Day lunch, the Block and Bridle banquet the evening of Feeders Day, Block and Bridle dinner dance, the Vocational Agriculture Livestock Judging contest, and the Block and Bridle steak fry. A portrait gallery and a reading room were the special projects of the organization.

Millers Learn of Industry Opportunities

THE members of the Milling Association are students in one of the three curriculums of milling industry. The Association gives the students a chance to acquaint themselves with the industry and to learn of opportunities in the field.

At the seminars, held once a month, prominent men from the milling industry are speakers. Some of the speakers this year were Marion Buckley, sanitation engineer of the Rogers Milling Company in St. Louis; Dr. C. H. Bailey, Dean and head of the Department of Agriculture at the University of Minnesota; Frank Wichser from the College; Roy K. Durham, technical service director of the Millers' National Federation; and Paul Dittmore, technical editor of Milling Production, an industry publication.

Some of the members entered the annual essay contest sponsored by the milling department. Beginning this year, the contest will end in the next fall semester instead of at the last of the spring semester. This change was planned to give the participants the whole summer to work on their essays. The students must draw at least a rough sketch, preferably in detail, a model for use in a milling class to help make teaching easier and clearer. John A. Russell, the winner of the 1946-47 contest, drew the plan for a miniature mill. This year, the entrants will also be asked to build the model so as to be sure it is practical. The award is a subscription to a milling publication.

Officers of the Association this year were John Womack, president; Clifford Batten, vice-president; and John McCammon, secretary-treasurer. Prof. Arlin B. Ward was faculty sponsor.

Advance Interest In Ag Fields

THE OBJECT of the Horticulture Club is to promote good fellowship among its members and to advance interest in horticulture. It has been active for 28 years.

The 50 members of the organization are those faculty members and students who are in good standing with the College and have shown an interest in some phase of horticulture.

The Horticulture Club sponsored the pomology judging team and worked toward the improvement of the Marlatt farm and formal garden.

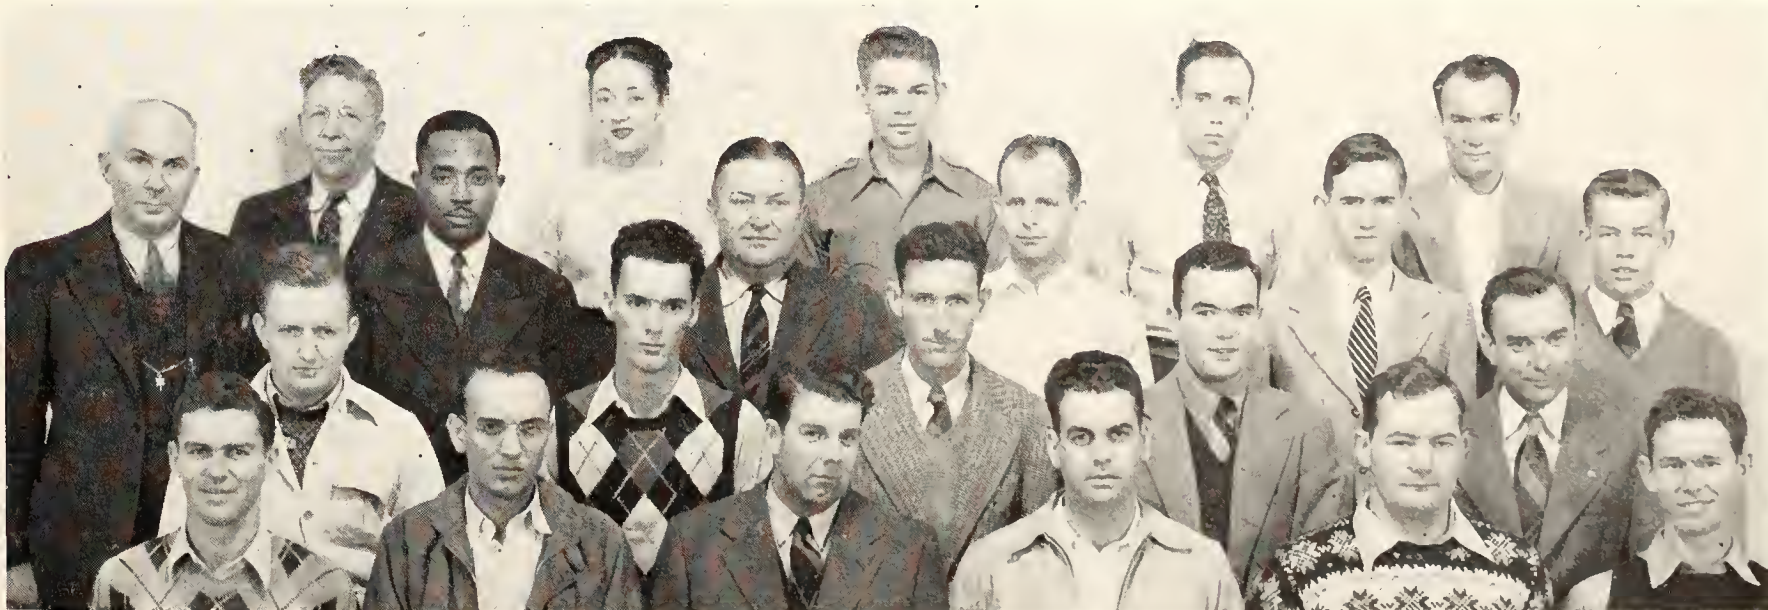

Kenneth Goertzen served as president, aided by Raymond Gulley, vice-president; Carol Hess Gulley, treasurer; and Lorna Gore, secretary.

Special Interests Bring New Clubs

A RODEO last spring was the first big project sponsored by the Chaparajos. The Club, in its second year on the campus, is organized for all students interested in riding. The roll of the group now totals more than 50 members.

The rodeo, an intercollegiate-high school show, featured saddle bronco riding, bare-back bronc riding, calf roping, bulldogging and rope spinning. The rodeo lasted three days. On April 8 and 9 the club competed with the Oklahoma A. and M. riding organization in a spring dual. The club also participated in New Mexico State College's rodeo. Members of the Chaparajos furnished music and other acts for the Little American Royal in the spring.

Dick Warren headed the organization. Sam Koury was vice-president, and Dick Jepson was secretary.

Founded last fall, the Plow and Pen Club is the organization for the benefit of the agricultural journalists on the campus. It is believed to be the first organization of its kind in the world. The club publicized major campus agricultural events this year and promoted high scholastic standards in the curriculum.

The group had 25 members, 18 of whom were charter members, including Prof. R. R. Lashbrook, and Prof. Elbert B. Macy. They met twice monthly to hear speakers outstanding in their field. For entertainment, the club members had a chili supper last fall and later on, a banquet with Prof. R. R. Lashbrook as speaker.

Philip Sanders was president of the club, Donald Alexander, vice-president. Norville Gish acted as secretary, Paul Gwin, treasurer, James Orton, reporter.

Agriculture Clubs Feature Speakers

RESearch on job opportunities in the field of agricultural economics has been the project of the Ag Economics Club this year.

A smoker during the fall semester gave prospective members and the club members a chance to meet each other. In the spring, the club steak fry, following a baseball game, was the big event.

Prof. George Montgomery sponsored the group of about 45 ag economics or ag administration majors. Officers for the fall semester were Emery Castle, president of the group; Glenn Allen, vice-president; Fletcher Riggs, treasurer; John Dotson, recording secretary; and John Schnittker, corresponding secretary.

The Agricultural Education Club for all students enrolled in ag education or planning to teach agriculture, had 85 members this year. The club assisted with the high school judging contests in agriculture and farm mechanics meeting held on the campus this spring, and also handled the two day meeting of the Kansas Association of Future Farmers of America. Off-campus speakers were featured at the six meetings during the school year.

Frank Carpenter was the president this year. Wayne Coltrain, vice-president; George Robinson, treasurer and Louis D. Emme, secretary. Prof. A. P. Davidson was faculty advisor.

4-H Expands In Size and Activities

CONTINUING to grow since its organization on the Campus in 1927, the Collegiate 4-H Club has steadily increased its activities and influence, as well as the size of membership.

The group, sponsored by the State 4-H Club department, began its existence at the College with 60 members, counted an enrollment of 475 last year, and this year 590 students have participated in club meetings and projects.

To become a member of the Collegiate 4-H Club, one must be a present or former 4-H member. The organization's purpose may be listed in three points: (1) To maintain contact with former 4-H Club members and rural students with a similar background of interests; (2) To make a contribution to 4-H Club work on a state-wide basis; (3) To make a definite contribution to Kansas State College.

President of the group this year was John Sjo, with Harold Dalbom, vice-president, and Betty Warren, secretary-treasurer.

Among the many activities and special projects of the organization was the contribution of $4,500 as maturity value in bonds for the Student Union, a choir stall in the all-faith chapel, and financial assistance in developing 4-H projects throughout the state.

Sponsors Programs in Special Curriculums

ANYONE enrolled in the School of Agriculture who is interested in dairying is eligible for membership in the Dairy Club. It is the purpose of this organization to promote better relations between the faculty and the student body.

The Dairy Cattle Judging Contest and the Dairy Products Judging Contest are sponsored by the members of the club. It is also a part of their schedule to assist with the Little American Royal in the spring. Farm and Home Week programs and the Future Farmers of America project complete the activities.

The Dairy Club was under the direction of Glenn McCormick, president; Jack Graham, vice-president; Arthur Beat, secretary; and Harry Mudge, treasurer.

Geology displays in Fairchild Hall, the compiling of a bibliography of geology in Kansas, and the sponsoring of the Williston Geology Club are among the activities of the one-year-old Sigma Gamma Epsilon, national professional college organization.

Last fall the fraternity visited Kansas University and attended the K.U.-K-State football game. In the evening they heard a talk by the former head of the K. U. geology department. Several members of the fraternity attended the National Convention of Sigma Gamma Epsilon in St. Louis this year.

Melville Mudge was president, Charles Bearman was vice-president; Wendell Johnson was secretary-editor; and Prof. J. R. Chelikowsky was secretary-treasurer.

Geology Club Reactivated in Fall

THE Williston Geology Club was reactivated last fall after having been incorporated into the geology fraternity, Sigma Gamma Epsilon, in the spring of 1947. The fraternity requires 14 hours of geology and a high academic standing for membership. So the geology club was continued in order that freshman and sophomore in geology not yet eligible to belong to the fraternity might have a club. It is sponsored by Sigma Gamma Epsilon and is open to any student majoring in geology.

The organization's purpose is to give the students a chance to learn about the opportunities open to them in the phases of the field, such as engineering geology and economic geology.

Kipper, county engineer; Prof. M. J. Harbaugh, speaking on the relationship between zoology and geology; Prof. B. B. Brainard, who discussed geology in engineering; and instructors and professors from within the department.

The organization is named in honor of one of the most famous graduates in geology from Kansas State. Officers in the club were Melville Mudge, president; Charles Bearman, vice-president; Wendell Johnson, secretary-editor; and Prof. J. R. Chelikowsky, secretary-treasurer. Prof Arthur B. Sperry was group sponsor.

Campus Organizations Set High Goals

THE HILLEL Foundation is an organization of Jewish students on the campus. The group met this year in Wesley Hall for discussion concerning contemporary world affairs and a study of their cultural heritage. Several of the religious holidays celebrated by Hillel members were the traditional Jewish New Year in September, the passover Seder, and the Purim festival in March.

The organization completed its second year at the College in March.

There were 35 members in the group, which had several social functions during the year. The important social affair was a Valentine buffet supper and dance for all members.

Bill Fiden held the position of president last fall. In the spring semester, Victor Kaufman was president. Other officers were Herbert Langer, vice-president, and Barbara Auerback, secretary.

The aim of the Student American Guild of Organists is to advance the knowledge and appreciation of organ-playing and of church music among society at large as well as among its members. The group is composed of students of organ under the direction of Prof. Robert Hays, a colleague in the larger group of the American Guild of Organists.

At one of the Guild's monthly meetings, Professor Hays played records to illustrate the tone of the organ. President Milton S. Eisenhower, of the College, and Prof. Luther Leavengood, head of the Department of Music, were guests. At other meetings, Professor Hays demonstrated various organ techniques to the members.

The president of the Guild was Corine Holm. Frank McCreary acted as vice-president and Jerry Gatz was secretary-treasurer. Several of the Guild members donate their time and talents at the organ in local churches.

Interest Groups Carry Out Programs

ALL students who have ever attended a summer session at Camp Miniwanca, Shelby, Mich., on a Danforth Scholarship are members of the Miniwanca Club. Most of the members were sent to the camp on recommendation of 4-H clubs and the Schools of Home Economics and Agriculture.

The sponsors of the organization—Mr. and Mrs. Loyal F. Payne and Mr. and Mrs. Merton L. Otto—have also attended the camp.

The club carries on the Miniwanca spirit and Mr. Danforth's program of mental, social, religious, and physical development for more abundant living. The members spend part of their meeting time singing camp songs.

Officers in the club this year were Bob Acre, president; Vada Walsten, vice-president; Norma White, secretary and treasurer; Jeanne Beezley, reporter; and Roger Wilk, song leader.

Membership in Orchesis is determined by interest and sincerity of purpose. There is an apprentice period of one month for those new to the club. The goals of the organization are to promote an understanding of dance as a creative art expression, and to offer those who are especially interested in dance an opportunity to extend their experience and enjoyment in the field by participating in cooperative group activity.

Pat Wilkinson headed the organization, assisted by Peggy McClay, vice-president; and Laura Pfeffer, secretary-treasurer.

Orchesis was reorganized on the campus this year after a two year period of inactivity. The club gave a program in cooperation with the music department and assisted other groups whenever dance was needed.

Meet To Discuss Major Subjects

MEMBERS of the Mathematics Club met the second Tuesday of every month to hear talks and discussions on phases of mathematics not presented in college courses. The talks, which were kept on the undergraduate level, were made by seniors and more advanced students.

The club gave mathematics majors and students from other curriculums interested in the science a chance to get acquainted with one another. In the spring the club members attended the annual steak fry.

The president of the organization last year was James Steward. Vernon Nyhoff was vice-president; Kathryn Leeper was secretary; and Phyllis Lou Johnson was treasurer.

The Kansas State College Entomological Club is the new name that was given early this year to the old Popenoe Entomological Club. No change was made in the activities or purpose of the club, which is organized for all those with a sincere interest in entomology. The 45 members met during the year to discuss entomology and related subjects.

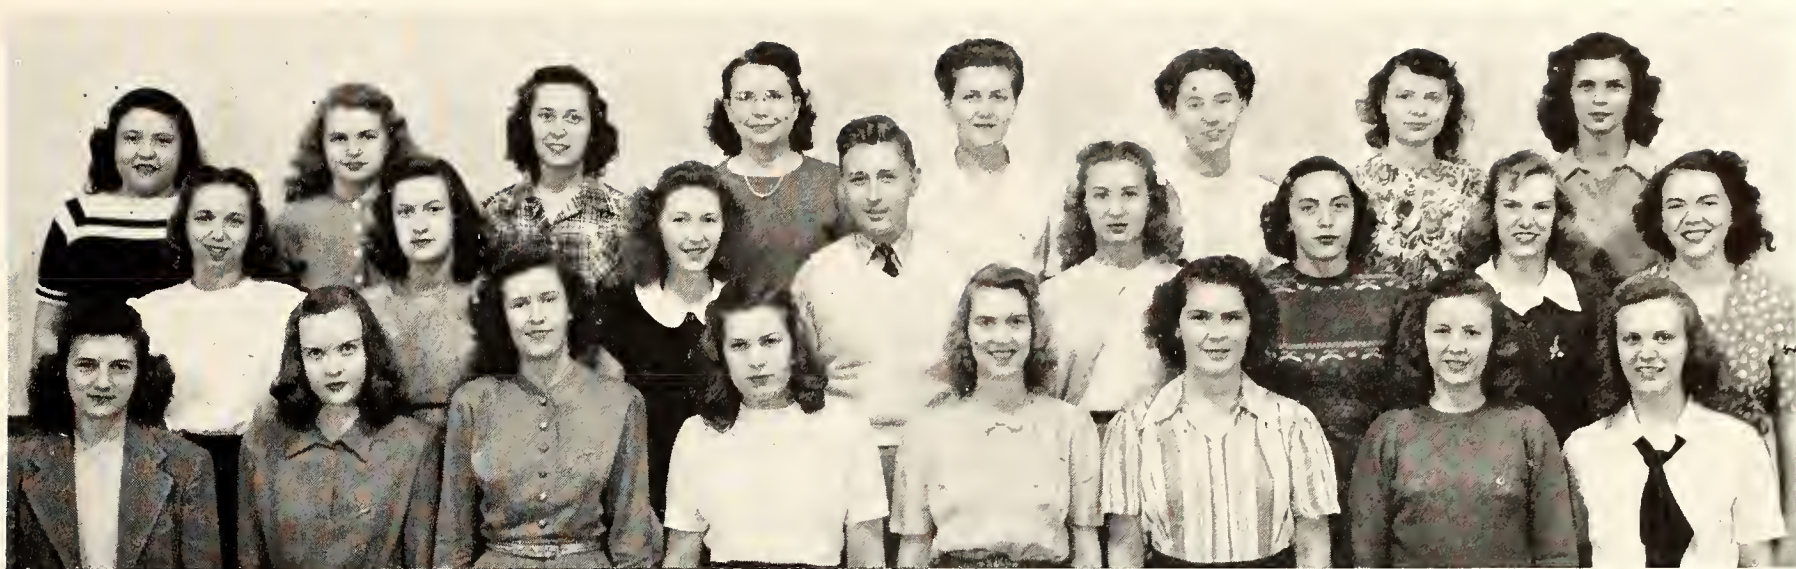

Sponsoring the Kansas Entomological Society and its journal was an important project. Special displays in Fairchild Hall were planned by the club. The group also was host to the meeting of Pest Control Operators.

J. O. Hubbard was president of the organization. Winifred Rhodes acted as vice-president, with Woodrow Franklin as secretary.

Plan Balanced Year's Activities

CHRISTMAS caroling and a spring picnic highlighted the year's activities for Promusica. This is an organization to promote the understanding and enjoyment of music and to provide an opportunity for those interested in music to meet socially.

The only membership requirement for Promusica is an interest in music. The programs of the club included all types of music from symphonies to boogie woogie.

This year the organization was under the leadership of Jerry Gatz, president; Gerry Beam, vice-president; Juanita Cooper, secretary; Mary Collister, treasurer; Anna Martin, program chairman; Juanita Silva, program co-chairman; and Georgi Gress, social chairman. Charles Stratton was the sponsor for Promusica.

The Kansas State Masonic Club is among the newer organizations on the campus and was recognized by the Organization Control Board at the beginning of the fall semester.

The 75 members of this club are Master Masons, affiliated with the College. Their purpose is to promote better fellowship among the Masons on the campus.

The Masonic Club program included coaching teams, educational programs, dances, stag parties, joint parties with the K-State Eastern Star Club, and assistance with Masonic funerals.

Business Club Travels, Has Picnics

ALL business administration majors are eligible for membership in the Business Club, which is organized in order that the students may become better acquainted. The 150 members met once a month this year to hear talks given by prominent business men.

Two picnics, in the fall and spring, honored outstanding students and were the social events of the year for the club.

In April, a group of the students including those who will graduate before June, 1949, spent two days in Kansas City on an inspection trip. They visited a number of business firms to get an idea of different types of economic activity.

Among these firms was the Board of Trade where they saw how transactions were carried out on the trading floor. The students also stopped at the Federal Reserve Bank.

Officers of the organization were Ralph Glotzbach, president; Louis Norris, vice-president; Jo Ann Jeffries, secretary; and Nancy Wilcox, treasurer. Prof. Edgar Bagley and Prof. Harry M. Stewart were faculty sponsors.

Promote Good Will Among Nations

THE K-STATE Cosmopolitan Club was in charge of writing and printing the Cosmopolitan Review, a quarterly paper which included articles from Cosmopolitan clubs all over the country. The local chapter was also responsible for planning the regional conference to be held next Christmas.

Angelina Lepori, from Panama, served as president of the Cosmopolitan Club the past year. She was assisted by Toni Darby, vice-president; and George Damiani of Palestine, treasurer. The faculty sponsors were Prof. and Mrs. C. H. Miller and Prof. and Mrs. M. D. Ramirez.

The organization had 60 members, almost twice as many as last year.

The special project of Club Cervantes was a publication for students studying Spanish. The organization sponsored Pan American Day, April 14, radio programs and social activities. The regular meetings included talks by Latin American students regarding their respective countries, Spanish and English movies about Latin America, and musical programs.

The 43 members of Club Cervantes are students who have nine semester hours of Spanish or the equivalent with an average grade of C or have a speaking knowledge of Spanish. Associate members need only to have shown an interest in Spanish.

Stir Interest in National Politics

THE purpose and membership requirements for the Young Republican Club are one and the same thing. This is the promoting of interest in the Republican Party on the campus and giving students an opportunity to participate in state and national politics.

Groups sponsored an open forum to discuss current political problems. It was a special project of the club to educate students concerning the registration laws. Plans have been made to open campaign headquarters in Rec Center next fall.

O. O. Vieux presided as chairman; Phyllis Evans, vice-chairman; R. I. Daly, secretary; and Howard Sparks, treasurer.

The Young Republican Club was inactive during the war, but was organized in 1946.

Members of the Young Democrats Club work to interest students in taking part in government through their party. At meetings twice a month, the members discussed political policies.

The group is a member of the state organization, Collegiate Young Democrat Clubs. Eight Kansas colleges now belong.

Charles L. Ryan, former president of the Washington Day Club, a state Democratic organization, was president of the campus group. C. H. Kongs was vice-president and Joan Aldous, secretary-treasurer.

Sports Interest Women's Groups

WOMEN majoring in physical education have their own organization, Phems. It is the goal of the group to promote interest and professional growth in physical education and good will and friendship within the department.

Monthly meetings alternate between a play night and outside speakers or professional projects. In the fall, members of Phems set out for a picnic, while their spring activity was a dinner honoring the seniors.

The 35 members of Phems were under the leadership of Marie Rock, president; Darlene Lygrisse, vice-president; Gloria Witt, secretary-treasurer; Jane Rogers, program chairman. Since the reorganization of Phems in 1944, Katherine Geyer has been the faculty sponsor.

The purpose of the Frog Club is to promote interest and efficiency in swimming for the college women at K-State. With this in mind, the group sponsors one special swimming event each year in the form of a play day or swimming demonstration.

The club is open to those women students who have passed the try-out and the improvement chart, and have shown active interest and sportsmanlike attitude in the Frog Club.

Margaret McClay served as president with Marie Rock assisting her as secretary-treasurer.

During the spring of 1947, the Frog Club held a swimming play day, entertaining women from the University of Kansas and Washburn University.

The Frog Club, organized in 1930, was inactive during the war, but since 1946 has taken an active part in campus affairs. A representative from Frog Club participated in the UNESCO organization.

Visitors Stream in Thousands

Miniature models, as well as life-size machines drew the attention of an estimated 25,000 persons at the annual Engineers' Open House this spring. Each year the sons of St. Patrick celebrate his birthday with a huge exhibition and dance. The Open House draws visitors from all parts of the state, and puts on display the newest advances in engineering for the public gaze. (Above) is a model of an oil field in the chemical engineering exhibit, and (left) is the winning exhibit of the Open House weekend, also from the Department of Chemical Engineering.

In the Department of Applied Mechanics, curious laymen watched the testing of concrete blocks (above) as they were subjected to an enormous amount of pressure. Fascinating as an airplane cockpit were all the dials and indicators. Catching the fancy of youngsters and adults alike was the beer bottle organ of the Department of Mechanical Engineering. Nozzles with compressed air of different pressures made the instrument tick, and containers of the mellow brew resulted in mellow tones.

To Engineers' Open House

Perennially popular are the hamburgers fried on dry ice, which are just as much fun to eat as to watch cooking. Besieged by customers, hungry after the arduous Open House tour, the exhibit developed into a concession. All departments in the School of Engineering and Architecture made elaborate preparations for the weekend and were aided by the Department of Military Science which also gave demonstrations and exhibits at this time.

Organizations Lead School Activities

THE Engineering Council is the coordinating and advisory board for all K-State engineering associations. It is the only unified body representing all branches of engineering.

A regular meeting of the Council is held once a year and special meetings are called when necessary. It is the duty of this group to deal with matters affecting the School of Engineering as a whole.

In addition to publishing the Kansas State Engineer, the special project of the organization was the revision of the constitution.

Loyd Peterson served this year as president of the Engineering Council, and he was assisted by Ernest Sellers, vice-president; Richard Finegan, treasurer; Earl Couchman, secretary; Richard Sizemore, Open House chairman; John Parks, junior representative; and Murlin Hodgell, editor of the K. S. Engineer. The president of each separate association in the department is also a member of the Council.

Alpha Phi Omega, fraternity for former Boy Scouts or those working with scouting, was reactivated at Kansas State College last fall for the first time since the war. The 35 members were busy all year with a variety of activities that included a Christmas Seal drive, Scout field day, Wildcat day last spring, Scout visitation for the Engineers' Open House, and a March of Dimes drive in February.

John A. Tweed was president of the organization this year. James Pattinson and Richard Hardy were first vice-presidents. John Honstead was historian, and Wyatt Silker was alumni secretary. Don Simmons acted as sargeant of arms. Wayne Sieh, R. O. Pence, and A. T. Edwards were faculty advisors and William H. Honstead was scouting advisor.

The annual smoker or party held by the members of the organization took place during the spring semester. AIEE sponsored an electrical exhibit as a part of the annual Engineers' Open House and also entered a float in the Homecoming parade.

The Student Branch of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers has 127 divisions in the United States. Meetings are held approximately twice a month. These organizations are a part of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, the largest professional electrical engineering organization at the present time.

REPLACING the American Institute of Architects, Student Branch, was the Student Architects Association, open only to seniors in architecture or architectural engineering.

Activities of the Student Architects Association included a one day inspection trip to Kansas City, a smoker with the faculty, an exhibition gallery, Homecoming float, and an Open House committee.

The organization was under the direction of Don Depew, president; Fred Johnston, vice-president; James Matthews, secretary; Donald Ransom, treasurer. Second semester leadership was assumed by Fred Johnston, president; Galen Low, vice-president; James Beckett, secretary; Don Ransom, treasurer.

The first major project of the newly organized Kansas State College Branch of the Institute of Radio Engineers was organizing, planning and executing electrical engineering exhibits during Open House.

One of the younger organizations on the campus, the Institute of Radio Engineers was granted a charter from the national organization this fall. Prior to the spring of 1947 the club existed only as the electrical engineering seminar. Any student enrolled in electrical engineering or related fields is eligible for membership.

John M. Bushnell, Jr., served as the organization's first chairman, with Robert E. Heline, vice-chairman; Gabe A. Sellers, Jr., secretary; and John F. Holloway, treasurer.

Annual Engineers' Open House

ORGANIZED to interest students in phases of engineering not covered by their college courses, the American Society of Mechanical Engineers met twice a month to hear speakers from industry or the engineering faculty.

In May, some of the members entered a contest sponsored by the regional A. S. M. E. in Tulsa, Okla. The entrants wrote papers on any field of engineering. K-State A. S. M. E. members have won this contest six times in the last ten years, with a member placing every year. Schools in competition in the contest are the University of Nebraska, University of Kansas, K-State, University of Oklahoma, Oklahoma A. and M. College, and the University of Arkansas.

Don Vickers was chairman of the mechanical engineering exhibit at Open House. He was also chairman in charge of the Homecoming float.

Every year, the Society makes an award to the member of the department judged most outstanding. Richard Fedell was given the award, the Kent Handbook Series, in 1947.

David Wilson was chairman of the A. S. M. E. the first semester. Mary Helen Rood was secretary and Frank Richards was treasurer.

Civil Engineers Have Full Program

THE Engineers' Open House was the big event of the year for the members of the American Society of Civil Engineers. George Mahoney was chairman and Edgar Johnson was faculty advisor of the civil engineer's exhibit. The main display was models showing different types of dams and their uses. The progress from beaver dams through dirt dams to multi-purpose dams for the storage of water and the control of floods was shown. Bob Muchow, Fred Peterson, Stephen James and Charles Smith were in charge of the exhibit. Displays of photogrammetry equipment—used for surveying by photography—and of other surveying equipment, were handled by Galen Dawson and Al Lindholm.

Sophomores in civil engineering were included in the A. S. C. E. this year for the first time.

The Kansas State A. S. C. E. is a student chapter of the national organization. The College chapter gives the students a chance to contact practicing engineers and to discover the opportunities open to them in their field.

The 210 members met the second and fourth Thursdays of each month to hear prominent practicing engineers. George Acree, former student in the civil engineering department, spoke at one meeting on the plans for the Harry S. Truman Bridge northeast of Kansas City.

Another speaker was Col. William Everett Potter, army engineer working on the Missouri Valley Basin Plan who discussed the plan with the members.

In October, the seniors and some of the juniors took an inspection trip to Topeka. They visited the city water works and the State Highway Department. The students inspected the widening and improvement of Highway 75 south of Topeka. The Santa Fe shops, largest in the world for the repair of locomotives, and the Goodyear Rubber Company were other stops on the trip.

Joint Meeting

The K-State chapter held a joint meeting with the University of Kansas chapter in March. Members of the society from over the state also attended the evening meeting and dinner. John Parcel, from a St. Louis firm, spoke to the group about the rebuilding of the Tacoma Narrows bridge in Washington, the third largest extension bridge in the world.

During the fall semester, George Mahoney was president; Dewey Young, vice-president, Paul Jorgenson, secretary; and Winston F. Littlefield was treasurer.

Engineering Societies Work Toward

SPONSORING the farm mechanics contest for high school boys during Vocational Ag Week was an important activity of the American Society of Agricultural Engineers this year. The society gave awards to the three high men in the contest.

Open House was a big affair for the society members too. Many A. S. A. E. displays and exhibits covered different phases of ag engineering. Exhibits on soil conservation were under the direction of Bernard Pierce, chairman. Farm structures and farm machinery exhibits were planned by chairman Don Miller and James Francis. Gene Bohnenblust was in charge of the rural electrification displays.

The A. S. A. E. gives an award to the ag engineer judged most outstanding during his freshman and sophomore years. Richard Newcomb won the award, a scholarship, in 1947.

The society met twice a month to hear addresses by prominent men in the field of ag engineering, or by faculty members in the department.

During the fall semester Dewey Bondurant was president. Walter Olson was vice-president and Francis Billiard was secretary-treasurer. Fred Bruenger was scribe.

Gene Bohnenblust served as president of the society during the spring semester, with Lewis Martin as vice-president, James Francis as secretary and treasurer and Alan Berndt as scribe.

The membership of the society increased by almost half, this year bringing the total to 69 persons. Prof. F. C. Fenton was sponsor of the group.

Professional Standards Promotion

THE AMERICAN Institute of Chemical Engineers, student chapter of a national technical society, has as its purpose, the fellowship and promotion of the professional standing of the members.

The society met once a month this year, to hear speakers, either prominent chemical engineers, or faculty members from the department, discuss technical subjects. At some of the meetings, they saw motion pictures of industrial projects in order to get acquainted with various phases of chemical engineering that are not covered in college courses.

The institute makes an award to the sophomore who had the highest standing during his freshman year and to the junior who maintained the highest standing throughout his freshman and sophomore years. The Handbook of Chemistry and Physics, the freshman award, was given to Oje C. Hasslet this year. Melvin Barb won the junior award, the Perry Chemical Engineer's Handbook.

Richard Medlin was president of the society during the fall semester, with Leonard Luehring as vice-president. Frank Fenton was secretary, Harvey Spencer was treasurer and Robert Schmidt was program chairman.

The second semester, James Gretzinger was elected president. Bob Meyer was vice-president and Ernest Pence was secretary. Melvin Barb served as treasurer and Robert Arnold was program chairman.

Prof. William H. Honstead sponsored the group.

Home Economics Leaders Busy

THE Executive Council of the Home Economics Club acts as a governing board for the five clubs that make up the Margaret Justin Home Economics Club, named for the Dean of the School. The Council is composed of the elected officers, standing committee chairmen, the chairmen of each of the five club groups and the club adviser.

Kathryn Brainard was president and Miss Margaret Raffington was faculty adviser this year. Mary Ann Weaver served as vice-president, Mary Jane Meili as secretary and treasurer and Mildred Hall as lecture board chairman.

Members of the Council who were chairmen of club groups were Mary Jane Meili from the Publicity Club; Clarice Cooper from the Service Club; Enid Keiswetter representing the Radio Club; Velma Weaver representing the Nursing Club; and Janice Carnahan from the Freshman Club.

Guiding freshmen in Home Economics during the fall semester is the work of the Home Economics Freshmen Counselors. There are no officers in the group but the vice president of the Home Economics Club is head counselor. Mary Ann Weaver was head counselor this year.

Chosen by a student committee for their ability to work with people and for their satisfactory scholarship, the counselors are selected and trained in the spring for their work the next fall. Miss Margaret Raffington, faculty adviser, directs the counselors.

Each of the counselors meets regularly with a group of freshman girls to aid them in orientation and with school problems.

With Projects and Guidance

HUNDREDS of high school girls from all parts of the state were guests of the School of Home Economics during Hospitality Days, April 16-17, this year.

Sponsored by the home economics clubs to show the type of work being done in the departments of home economics, many new phases of teaching and research were demonstrated. All home economics women have an opportunity to display their work to visitors from the campus and community and especially to the high school girls from over the state who attend the annual event. Teas, style shows, demonstrations and displays are planned for the guests. The Hospitality Hop marked the end of the celebration.

A steering committee composed of chairmen of all Hospitality Days committees planned the event and was headed by general chairman, Louise Mosier. Miss Margaret Raffington acted as general adviser to the steering committee.

The Home Economics Radio Club gives all women in home economics who are interested in radio a chance to write and broadcast their own scripts. This year the club sponsored a 15-minute program over KSAC on the second Saturday of each month. The program dealt with various phases of home economics. Some of the subjects were flower arrangements, nutrition and meal planning.

The club had 33 members this year and elected Enid Keiswetter as its president. Rosalie Germann was vice-president and Laberta Kugler was secretary and treasurer.

Any woman enrolled in home economics may belong to the club.

Home Ec Clubs Stress Service,

PUBLICITY for the activities of the Home Economics Club is in the hands of the 26 members of the Home Economics Publicity Club, under the direction of Miss Iva M. Mullen and Prof. Helen Hostetter. Twice a year the club publishes a booklet, The Betty Lamp, which describes the various activities of the Home Ec Club. The booklet is distributed among home ec women and is sent to high school girls throughout the state. The members also sell packets of recipes that they have collected from their courses.

Mary Jane Meili was president of the club this year and Loreta Stricklin was vice-president. Margaret Russel, and Kathleen Eyman were recording and corresponding secretaries.

This year members of the Home Economics Nursing Club traveled to Kansas City to tour the University of Kansas Medical Center. Membership in this organization is open to any student enrolled in home economics and nursing, and of the 49 students in that curriculum, 29 comprise the Home Ec Nursing Club. An exhibit during the Hospitality Days was sponsored by the Nursing Club.

A business meeting and program were held the third Thursday of each month.

The Nursing Club was headed by Velma Weaver, president; Dorothy Long, vice-president; Suzanne Swarner, secretary-treasurer; and Mary C. Brakebill, social chairman.

Information and Leadership Goals

MAKING curtains for the new Student Union was an important project of the Home Economics Service Club. The club also prepared layettes for the Foreign Friendship Service and did some work for the Red Cross. The club is open to any woman enrolled in home economics. Its purpose is to find and make use of opportunities for service.

Clarice Cooper served as president of the club with Helen Cazier as vice-president. Mary Jo Griffith was secretary-treasurer; and Esther Page was program chairman. Miss Ruth Gates and Miss Rita Powell were sponsors.

Any girl who is a freshman enrolled in the School of Home Economics is eligible for membership in the Freshman Home Economics Club. This club was organized in 1942 with the purpose of furthering interest in home economics and providing an opportunity for girls to develop and display leadership. Formerly a part of a larger home ec organization, the freshman girls formed a club of their own.

The Freshman Home Ec Club officers this year were president, Janice Carnahan; vice-president, Donna Gies; secretary-treasurer, Vera Mansfield; song leader, Ellen Johnson; and social chairman, Carol Croft.

Vet Wives Organize for Study and Play

TWO organizations for students' wives were on the campus this year—the Veterans' Wives Club which has been active since 1945 and the Students' Wives Educational Association which was organized last January.

Members of the Veterans' Wives Club were kept busy this year with several activities as well as their regular business meetings once a month. They had bridge instructions from Dr. A. G. Pickett and lessons in knitting from Mrs. Robert Conover. The club joined with the Students' Wives Education Association in sponsoring a handicrafts class where they did work with copper foil, leather tooling and textile painting.

In April, the 70 members met in the city park for a picnic. During the year they gave several parties for their husbands and families.

The Vet Wives Club also helped organize the baby lending library. Mrs. C. H. Faubion has charge now of the lending and exchanging of baby beds, chairs, pens and bassinets and other baby equipment.

Mrs. A. A. Foltz, Mrs. L. E. Melchers, and Mrs. C. H. Faubion are sponsors of the club.

The Students' Wives Educational Association was organized with the help of Miss Ellen Batchelor of the extension division, so that the wives might have instruction in the subjects they were interested in while their husbands were in school. The executive committee set up a program including instruction in interior decoration, making temporary furniture, child welfare, solving storage problems and in buying meats. Instructors from the extension division and from the other branches of the College staff taught the classes. Some of the members took a Red Cross home nursing course in the spring. The club is planning a nursery for the housing units this summer.

Membership in the association has risen to more than 125.

Officers in the association are Mrs. Wyman White, president; Mrs. William Langworthy, vice-president; Mrs. Benjamin Ray, secretary; Mrs. James Burgess, treasurer; and Mrs. Wallace Moyle, reporter. Miss Batchelor acts as sponsor for the group.

A.V.M.A. Sets Two-Fold Objective

THE K-State Junior A.V.M.A., a student branch of the American Veterinary Medical Association, has a double purpose. The first objective of the association is the professional development and technical training of its members. The second goal is concerned with the social and literary training of vet students. The society acts as a supplement to class work and academic activities.

Any student who is regularly enrolled in the four year professional curriculum in the School of Veterinary Medicine may be a prospective member for the Junior A.V.M.A. However, before students may achieve this classification, they must meet certain scholastic standards while enrolled in a pre-vet course in the School of Arts and Sciences. These students are not eligible for membership in the association. This year the society had 199 active members, but the group claimed no graduating seniors. The absence of a 1948 senior class was brought about by the transition from the speeded-up war-time educational program to the normal schedule.

Capable Officers

During the first semester the organization was under the leadership of Jacob D. Fortenberry, who served as president and was assisted by Leonard H. Winn, president-elect; Donald Crogan, vice-president; John P. Hughes, secretary; Tom B. Watson, treasurer; Ned W. Rokey, critic; and L. J. Barger, marshall.

Second semester Leonard H. Winn took over the presidency, with John H. Woolsey chosen president-elect; Sidney Marlin, vice-president; Harold P. Peffley, secretary; Tom B. Watson, treasurer; Bernard Mowery, critic; Ben R. Brake, marshall.

The regular activities of the Junior A.V.M.A. include meetings twice each month during the school year. Ordinarily the meetings are held in the evenings. The programs usually consist of an outstanding speaker of state or national repute who brings to the students a worthwhile message from the realm of professional work. It is customary for the senior veterinary students to bring to the underclassmen an account of their professional experiences as interns during the preceeding summer vacation.

Each program features something in the way of musical, literary, or other cultural entertainment. At intervals during the school year the Junior A.V.M.A. sponsors dances as a part of the social program. At the end of the spring semester the annual Junior A.V.M.A. banquet is held. Approximately 500 persons attend the traditional function. The yearly award of prizes for those who have shown academic excellence is presnted at this time.

Vets Initiate 60 Members in Fall

THE evening of October 8, 1947, the active members of the Kansas State College Junior Chapter of the American Veterinary Medical Association held initiation services for more than 60 new members. The ceremony, conducted by the upperclassmen, was impressive and worthy of the best traditions of this strictly professional group of college men and women. After the initiation, refreshments or doughnuts and cider were served with a general good fellowship meeting closing the evening session.

Founded in 1906

The Junior A.V.M.A., the popular name for the organization, was instigated as the Veterinary Medical Association on October 20, 1906, at a meeting of the veterinary medicine students in Room 51 of Fairchild Hall. The same year saw the Association firmly established under a state charter as a responsible association having fixed privileges and purposes.

During the 42 years the Junior A.V.M.A. has been active at K-State, it has progressed from a small, struggling group to a well-established campus organization. Ten of the charter members are still living, and most of them are active in some professional field. Three Kansas State Junior A.V.M.A. founders reside in Kansas.

COL. A. G. HUTCHINSON, (above) is the head of the Department of Military Science and commander of the ROTC detachment at the College.

THE Reserve Officers Training Corps has two purposes. The first is to produce junior officers who have the qualities essential to their progressive and continued development as officers of the Army of the United States. The second is to lay foundations of intelligent citizenship within the student and to give him such basic military training as will be of benefit to him and to the military service if he becomes a member of it. Each year more than 600 ROTC graduates from colleges throughout the nation receive commissions in the Regular Army and Air Force.

Serves Double Purpose

In order to become enrolled in the ROTC basic course, one must be a citizen of the United States not more than 22 years of age nor less than 14; one must be physically fit under Departments of the Army and Air Regulations; one must be accepted by the institution as a regularly enrolled student of the institution and meet specific technical requirements for enrollment in certain branches. Upon completing the basic course, a student enters the advanced course voluntarily. He must sign a written agreement with the Government to complete the advanced course, contingent upon remaining in school, and to attend the advanced summer camp at the time specified. Only advanced students may attend summer camp. Those going to the camps receive free transportation to and from camp, plus $75 per month while attending. Their board and room is also paid. The purpose of summer camp is to furnish a concentrated laboratory course in military science and tactics. Advanced ROTC infantry and artillery students at K-State will go to Fort Riley. The signal corps students will go to Fort Monmouth, N. J., and the air students will attend Lowery Field, Denver, Colo. Upon graduation from the advanced ROTC course, if the student's work merits the distinction he may be designated a Distinguished Military Student and thereby become eligible to compete for Regular Army or Air Force Commissions.

Year Marked By Changes and Additions

MILITARY instruction was first conducted at Kansas State College in 1868. Infantry and artillery units have been here for many years. In September 1946, an Air Force Unit was added, followed in September, 1947, by a Signal Corps Unit. The new post-war ROTC program has brought many changes in military instruction on the campus. Among these changes are the assignment of all basic students to a common course of instruction, revision and modernization of the advanced course, receipt of much new equipment, and a great increase in the number of graphic and visual instructional aids. Three moving picture projectors are furnished for the detachment by the Army. These are used often in the classroom for instructional film showings. Once every week a public movie is given in the Military Science building showing some of the more interesting and educational films of military science and tactics in operation. This year the War Department published the new Senior ROTC Manual, Volume 1, which was issued to basic students. Before the last war these manuals were not furnished by the government.

The new drill field has been prepared and will greatly facilitate the instruction of drill formations and marching. Also basic students have been issued new dark green, officer-type uniforms this year. Last year, the advanced students were issued new uniforms, composed of a battle jacket and trousers, which they will be able to wear if called to active duty after becoming reserve officers.

Unit Rated High By War Department

The ROTC Unit at Kansas State was given an "excellent" rating by the War Department Inspectors on its accomplishments during the 1946-47 school year. This is the highest rating given by the War Department.

The building which now houses the ROTC detachment was completed a few years ago for the use of the military science department. It contains several offices, numerous class rooms, a large garage where the detachment's motor vehicles and large artillery equipment are kept, a rifle room where 500 M1 rifles are placed in their individual racks, and a spacious rifle range in the basement. The unit has converted one of the class rooms into a library where the students may relax and read or study whenever they wish to do so.

This year at Kansas State College there were 1,141 students enrolled in the ROTC course. Of this number, 970 were basic students and 171 were enrolled in the Advanced Course. Last year the combined total of basic and advanced students was only 523 indicating that there has been more than a 100 per cent increase over the enrollment of last year. Veterans get an automatic exemption in ROTC courses.

ROTC Sponsors Varied Organizations

THERE are many interesting and educational organizations sponsored by the ROTC detachment at K-State. Scabbard and Blade is an honorary military organization open to those students who have proved themselves outstanding in the advanced course. Pershing Rifles is the organization composed of basic students who do special drill formations. This is the first years this group has been active on this campus. The members of this organization wear distinctive uniforms.

The Cadet Officer's Club is comprised of advanced course students. Each year they sponsor the Military Ball, one of the principal social functions of the college. An Honorary Cadet Colonel and two Honorary Cadet Majors, one for each batallion, are chosen by the Officer's Club from a group of candidates submitted by organized houses and independent groups. Each company also chooses its Honorary Company Commander from the group of candidates. Last year the coeds honored by the ROTC passed under an arch of sabers to the front of the band stand where Colonel Hutchinson made the presentations. Music was furnished by Hal McIntyre, and Del Courtney was engaged for this year's Military Ball held April 9 in the gym.

All military students who are interested may try out for the ROTC rifle team. The best marksmen are chosen for the team to represent K-State. They shoot matches with ROTC rifle teams all over the United States. This year they have fired more than 80 matches, winning a very large per cent of those fired.

ROTC Staff Large to Meet Need

The following men are members of this year's ROTC staff: Colonel A. G. Hutchinson head; Lt. Col. Dean H. Eshelman Assistant for the Air Force; Major Sidney L. Cone Adjutant; Major H. E. Richards, Supply Officer; Captain Joe K. Murphy; Captain Edward Cleary; Captain Frederick G. Bohannon; Captain Manuel M. Price; Captain William J. Lynn; Captain Lewis A. Copeland; Captain Harvey A. Pearson; Captain Alfred F. Gallup.

Noncommissioned officers who served as assistant instructors include the following: M/Sgt. James J. Bolton; M/Sgt. Herbert W. Brodman; M/Sgt. John L. Lawrence; M/Sgt. George W. Thompson; 1st/Sgt.

Loren W. Garber; 1st/Sgt. Kenneth W. Holland; 1st/Sgt. Lloyd B. Hansen; T/Sgt. Thomas C. Cox; T/Sgt. Stanley F. Sawicki; T/Sgt. Roy E. Wilson; T/Sgt. Glenn F. Pursselley; S/Sgt. James Aufderheide; S/Sgt. Edward J. Brown; S/Sgt. Raymond C. Duval.

The War Department Ruling allowing former service men to enroll in the advanced ROTC course makes it possible for veterans of the second World War to continue their military training while attending college.

Many Kansas State graduates are now in the Regular Army or the Reserve Corps, particularly in the Infantry, Artillery, and Veterinary Corps. Commissions are awarded annually to selected graduates.

Plan ROTC Amateur Radio Station

ANY student may become a member of the ROTC Radio Club which has been activated this year. This organization operates in connection with the Kansas State College Radio Club, and the two groups hold joint meetings twice a month. These students are trained to send and receive code, operate radios on both code and voice, and may become licensed amateur radio operators upon satisfactorily completing their course of study. Plans are being formed to set up an amateur radio station near the Military Science building.

Each year the military science department participates in the Engineers' Open House celebration. A great deal of work and thought is put into the ROTC sponsored exhibits and demonstrations of up-to-date weapons and methods of warfare.

Band Re-formed

The ROTC band was re-formed this year under the direction of Captain Lewis A. Copeland. There are 38 members in this group which plays for official Army and Air Force functions.

Leading the Homecoming Parade, October 25, before General Dwight D. Eisenhower, was the Cadet Regiment headed by its all-ROTC band. This was the first time that any Army Chief of Staff had ever honored K-State with his presence. Another precedent was set on this occasion for it was the first time that General Eisenhower had ever reviewed an ROTC unit.

THE Associated Veterans of World War II was established at K-State in 1945. All those who served as members of the armed forces in World War II and were discharged other than "Without Honor" are eligible to affiliate with this organization. The group has 97 members.

It is the purpose of the Associated Veterans to be of service to the school and to all veterans. This year the activities of the club were directed by David Gorrell, president; Joe Mofett, vice-president. Dr. Maurice Woolf, also head of the Counseling Bureau, served as the faculty sponsor.

It was the Associated Veterans who established, promoted, and now supervise the Veterans Co-op which is located across from the northwest corner of the campus. It is a store selling groceries and other necessities on a cooperative basis and paying premiums to members.

The Blue Cross campaign for the benefit of all married students on the campus was another project of this organization. The Blue Cross can provide hospitalization and doctors fees for any member of the family who may become ill. This is done at a very low rate.

The Veterans Administration Guidance Center is associated independently of Kansas State College and is under the direction and jurisdiction of the Federal Government. L. W. Henning, Chief of the Veterans Center, has been head of this district since 1945.

It is the purpose of the Veterans Guidance Center to work with all veterans of the 13 counties in the north central Kansas district. Advice concerning vocational and educational planning and the selection of occupational work for all veterans in need of this assistance is given in the Center.

Those connected with the staff are: Lowell W. Henning, Chief and Vocational Advisor; Jerry B. Varner, Training Specialist; Vergil McIntosh, Training Specialist; William Burkholder, Contact Representative; and Glen Wycoff, Training Facilities Officer.

Spring Brings Queens

Queen of Pep, reigning over Hobo Day last spring, was Barbara Baker, shown at the dance, (center) at the end of the day's campus clean-up and festivities.

Men pitch in and work to clear the fences away for the new paved tennis courts on Hobo Day. The girls did their part by providing food and drink and a short break for the laborers.

In Special Recognition

PROBABLY more than 100,000 boys and girls, men and women, have hurried along my corridors, and of them, less than 10 per cent have been "honor" or outstanding students. Being a pretty old Hill, I take pride in being able to pick these students from the time they first set foot on me as freshmen. Once in a while I make an awful mistake.

Honorary societies were the first organizations to appear, not only on me, but on Hills even older than I. They have carried through nearly a century, providing loving cups and recognition for the young folks who show promise of becoming leaders in what commencement speakers think is the "outside world." To me, this is a nether world, from which my inhabitants seldom return. Yet I want them to go, especially those who gained honors here, because they are the ones who show the most promise of fulfilling my destiny in the "outside world."

Keys dangling from watch chains, necklaces and bracelets all signify that the wearer is a member of one of the higher orders—an honorary.

These organizations are spread through all of my five schools, from West Ag, over my crest to the gym. Most of them are professional and vocational groups, only four represent the whole College. All-school honoraries, some new, some old, some local, some national are Phi Kappa Phi, Mortar Blue Key and Prix.

Nearly all of the employees who step on me, that is to say, faculty, belong to more than one of the honorary societies. These are represented by the string of Greek letters which need not bother you following their names. In coming to me, they brought with them the tradition of honoring outstanding students, both in activities and scholarship, and created similar groups among my faculty and student body. Many great men are listed among the ranks of these organizations, some of them tramping on me every day, others passing over me at one time or another.

Entrance into honoraries is gained by hard work in my other organizations, which are not too difficult to obtain membership in, by high grades, and by a constant and persistent effort on the part of students to make me a real Hill among Hills.

The professional groups further the work in their fields, perform services for their schools and departments, oftentimes sponsor huge events such as St. Pat's Prom, the Homecoming Ball, and recognition dinners and smokers. They enlist the aid of other clubs in the departments for help in their projects and bring about finer relations between students and faculty.

All-school honoraries, although mainly for the purpose of recognition, conduct surveys, help in fund-raising campaigns and perform small but necessary duties for what they consider to be my general welfare. These groups are always trying to do nice things for me. If they make a little money on the side, I don't care. Usually they don't.

Proud parents have often told me that they know their sons or daughters must have learned something from College because they were "honored" by an organization.

Also, the sons and daughters may get a certificate which proves that they have been recognized for an achievement of great and ponderous worth. This can be handily tacked in a bedroom, buried in a pile of textbooks, or if the possessor is vain, framed in gold and hung over the family piano with the picture of great-grandpa at the Battle of Shiloh.

Anyway, I never see the certificates—what I see are the students. And I can tell you this—most of them deserve the recognition—they've given time and energy to me. This is my chance to give something back to them.

Engineers Choose Royalty

Crowning the Engineers' Open House was the annual St. Pat's prom. This year, Kansas State Engineers chose Martha Miller, Alpha Chi Omega, as St. Patricia and Dick Fedell, mechanical engineer, was chosen as St. Patrick. Skipper Hawkins and his Varsity Crew furnished the music for balloon-laden Nicholas Gym. Intermission found the chemical engineers holding the winning trophy for the outstanding display of open house. 1948 marked the twenty-fourth annual Engineers' Open House.

Honoraries often perform some necessary function for the school, as well as being groups of recognition. Above, Pi Delta Kappa, honorary speech and dramatics fraternity members discuss a new problem with faculty sponsor, Prof. Earl Hoover.

Sigma Delta Chi, in addition to its journalistic activities got a wire service for the Texas Mines versus K-State football game and brought hot notices to students at a sport varsity (top right).

Projects Occupy All-School Honoraries

THIRTEEN Kansas State men were honored this year by being chosen for membership into Blue Key, national honor fraternity for outstanding senior men.

Sponsoring the Homecoming Ball is the main project of Blue Key members each year. Because of the increased number of students, this year's dance was held at both the gym and the Avalon.

Leading the group this year was John Aiken, president. President Milton S. Eisenhower is their faculty sponsor.

Eight prominent senior women make up the membership of Mortar Board. Juniors are chosen in the spring on a basis of scholarship and outstanding leadership in campus activities.

In the fall, Mortar Board members conducted a campus opinion poll, aiding the administration. They held their annual scholarship dinner in March.

Nancy Diggle and Elizabeth Ann Drake were presidents of the group, first and second semester respectively.

A TEA HONORS those graduate and undergraduate students selected for the scholastic honorary, Phi Kappa Phi in the fall semester. This year it was held in Calvin Lounge following initiation.

Phi Kappa Phi

PHI KAPPA PHI, national scholastic honorary fraternity for technical schools, bestowed honors on 46 Kansas State students the fall semester this year. Members are selected on a basis of high scholarship and character, and candidates are elected in both semesters.

To emphasize scholarship in the thought of college students and to stimulate mental achievement by the prize of membership are the primary aims of Phi Kappa Phi. Membership is open to students of other honor societies and fraternities and to both men and women.

Phi Kappa Phi was established at this College in 1919. Dr. Mary T. Harman is president of the society.

Students and Faculty Nationally Honored

TWENTY-FIVE Kansas State students were honored this year by being included in Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges. This honor is national in its recognition of prominent students in every American university and college.

Selection of Who's Who members is based on scholarship and participation in extracurricular activities, with those honored chosen from the more outstanding students in each school.

Each year, Who's Who is published in book form. Its objective is to place the names of outstanding American students before the people of the business world, and before others who annually recruit graduating college and university talent.

In another, and perhaps more widely known book—The Who's Who in America honors this year went to: J. E. Ackert, dean emeritus of the Graduate School; R. W. Babcock, dean of the School of Arts and Sciences; H. L. Baker, head of the education department; Prof. Emeritus R. J. Barnett; Prof. L. D. Bushnell; L. E. Call, dean emeritus of agriculture.

Groups Aim for Scholarship, Service

WITH a membership of 10, Prix, the honorary organization for outstanding junior women, carried out another successful year of activities. Each year, members of Prix are chosen from the group of sophomore women who have achieved a high scholastic average, with special attention to their prominence in campus activities.

Prix girls, in their traditional black skirts, white sweaters, and red gavels, acted as monitors for the freshman orientation program in the fall. They helped with the aptitude tests, conducted tours of the campus, and in general, made the freshmen feel more welcome at Kansas State. Another project of Prix was a Silver Survey, conducted among the senior class women. The project was carried out under the leadership of Prix president, Patsy Davis.

Women chosen for Phi Alpha Mu, scholastic honorary, must have maintained an average of B or above in all their college work, and must rank in the upper 15 percent of their class. Thirty-one junior and senior women in the school of Arts and Sciences made up the membership of Phi Alpha Mu this year.

Each spring members of Phi Alpha Mu give their annual scholarship tea, honoring sophomore women for outstanding grade records. At this time, the Margaret Russell Scholarship Award of $25 is presented to the member with the highest average.

Phi Alpha Mu was organized at Kansas State in 1921, and since that time has worked to maintain its motto of promoting scholarship, good fellowship and interest in college activities. Heading the group this year was Phyllis Evans.

Select Outstanding Engineers

EPSILON chapter of Sigma Tau, National honorary fraternity for all branches of engineering, carried out another succesful year of activity.

Forty-six pledges, the largest pledge class ever to be elected into Epsilon chapter, faithfully performed all required pledge duties and were initiated during the first semester. These men were chosen from the upper one-third of the junior and senior classes. The selection is based on scholarship, practicality and sociability.

Sigma Tau honors three sophomore engineers with the highest scholastic averages for their freshman year. These awards of gold, silver and bronze medals to the first, second and third ranking students respectively, are presented at the annual spring banquet. The banquet is given for Sigma Tau alumni and for the spring pledge class by the active chapter. Loyd Peterson presided over the group this year.

"Keep the Steel Ring from Rust" is the motto of Steel Ring, honorary organization for junior and senior men representing all engineering departments.

Being original instigators of the annual Engineers' Open House, members of Steel Ring found themselves busy making plans for this occasion. Steel Ring selects the judges for Open House, and presents the trophy to the engineering department having the most outstanding exhibit. A tradition with the organization, is the publication of the Intake and Exhaust, a magazine dedicated to the faculty and students of Kansas State College.

This year, Steel Ring had a membership of 47. Dick Gorman acted as president. These men are chosen on the basis of leadership, personality and scholarship.

Professional Honoraries Active

PI TAU SIGMA members took an active part in the mechanical engineers' display at the annual Engineers' Open House. One of their most popular exhibits was a beer bottle organ constructed with steam nozzles blowing over beer bottle resonating chambers filled with water to different levels. Each semester, Pi Tau Sigma edits the Indicator Card, a publication about the activities of the mechanical engineering department and of Pi Tau Sigma.

An honorary organization for mechanical engineers, it has a membership totaling 60 this year. Members are selected on a basis of engineering ability, scholarship and personality.

John W. Shupe, president, led the group.

Forty actives made up the membership of Eta Kappa Nu, honorary organization for electrical engineers. These men, judged on a basis of scholarship and marked interest in the profession, are chosen from the upper one-fourth of the junior class and the upper one-third of the senior class in electrical engineering.

The chapter sponsored a float in the Homecoming parade and built an exhibit for the annual Engineers' Open House. As a service to the school, the organization pledged itself to install additional wiring and fixtures for the temporary Student Union building.

First semester president was Charles Slawson, with J. D. Skelton, former corresponding secretary, elected to succeed him second semester.

Ag Groups Set High Standards

THE professional agricultural fraternity, Alpha Zeta, started this year's activity with a fall smoker for those students scholastically eligible for membership in the organization. A similar affair was held during the spring semester.

Prior to formal initiation, prospective members of Alpha Zeta were seen on the campus wearing blue denim and carrying farm implements with them. The new members are chosen on their abilities of leadership and high scholastic standing, being selected from the upper two-fifths of their class.

Alpha Zeta has been on the Kansas State campus for 39 years. Leading the group as president this year was Floyd E. Rolf.

Alpha Mu, honorary milling fraternity, has the distinction of being the only chapter of the only milling fraternity in the world. Founded here in 1934, Alpha Mu has continuously worked to promote a closer relationship between its members and the milling industry.

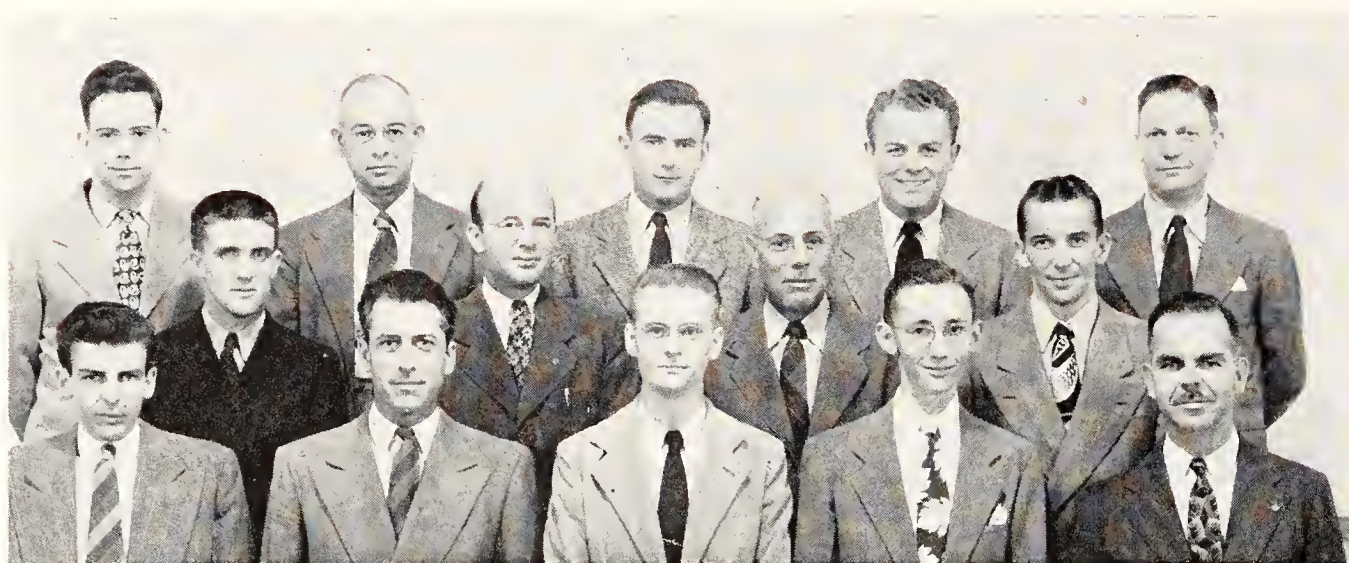

In the fall, Alpha Mu held its annual smoker for all members of the milling department. At this time the organization presented a key to the outstanding freshman in the department. Each spring, a banquet is given by the active chapter for Alpha Mu alumni and new members.

Presiding over the monthly meetings, where problems of the industry are discussed, Hal Ross was president. Prof. R. O. Pence is the faculty advisor.

Recognize Journalistic Achievement

OUTSTANDING men in the field of industrial journalism are honored each year by being elected to membership in Sigma Delta Chi, honorary and professional journalism fraternity. These members are selected for scholarship, as well as for their demonstrated abilities in the journalism field.

Sigma Delta Chi members are responsible for the wire-reports of games played away from home, which are announced at the varsity dances and in local theaters. Another project of the organization is publishing the annual April Fool's day edition of the Kansas State Collegian. The club did the catering this year for the Royal Purple Beauty Ball.

Sigma Delta Chi has been active on this campus since 1912, and at the present, has a membership of 19. The organization works to encourage and improve the standards and ethics of journalism throughout the nation. Roger Medlin was president for the year and

C. J. Medlin served as faculty sponsor.

Industrious members of Theta Sigma Phi made their honorary organization one of the most active groups on the campus this year.

Last fall, 11 Theta Sig members inaugurated their year of activity with a fall merry-go-round. On this occasion, the members escorted new women in journalism to the homes of the journalism faculty for a "get-acquainted" evening. Fall semester activities were led by Nancy Diggle, with Doris Brewer presiding over the group during the spring semester.

Theta Sig's most outstanding project was the annual Matrix Table banquet in March, which featured a prominent woman journalist as guest speaker.

Women journalism students are selected for membership into Theta Sigma Phi on a basis of scholarship, responsibility and interest in journalism.

Each year, Omicron Nu presents an award of $10 to the freshman girl with the highest grades in the School of Home Economics. Omicron Nu plays an active part in the Hospitality Days program and open house. Another project of Omicron Nu is the extending of tutoring service to those students who require extra assistance in their academic work.

Omicron Nu president was Mildred Hall, with Beatrice Tuggle as secretary.

Ur Rune, the Kansas State chapter of the American College Quill Club, is the only organization on the campus devoted to the promotion of creative writing among college students. Members of the Quill Club strive to set a high literary goal for students interested in creative writing.

New members of the Quill Club are chosen each semester from all departments of the College by manuscripts submitted to the membership committee. Each spring, Quill Club members combine their literary skill and publish a magazine, The Mirror. Many of the poems and stories are published in The Parchment, national publication of the Quill Club. Joy Reinhardt presided as Chancellor this year.

Discussions, Banquets Fill Calendars

ON FEBRUARY 12, members of Alpha Delta Theta, honorary organization for medical technology students, celebrated its second years as a national organization on the Kansas State campus. A banquet was held on the occasion, and Dr. Ralph G. Ball, Manhattan physician, was speaker.

Students selected for membership into Alpha Delta Theta must have maintained a C average in all courses of medical technology.

Regular business meetings were held twice a month, with brief talks and discussions given by those in the profession of medicine and allied fields. In October, Prof. C. A. Dorf and six active members attended the national convention of Alpha Delta Theta in St. Paul, Minn.

President of the group was Charlotte Dorf with Prof. C. A. Dorf and Dr. J. O. Harris as faculty sponsors.

Eighty Kansas State athletes who have earned a varsity letter made up the membership of the K-Fraternity this year.

On February 16, active members of the organization entertained their local alumni at a banquet. The regular K-Fraternity dance was held in March, and to end their social activities for the year a picnic was given for all the members and their guests.

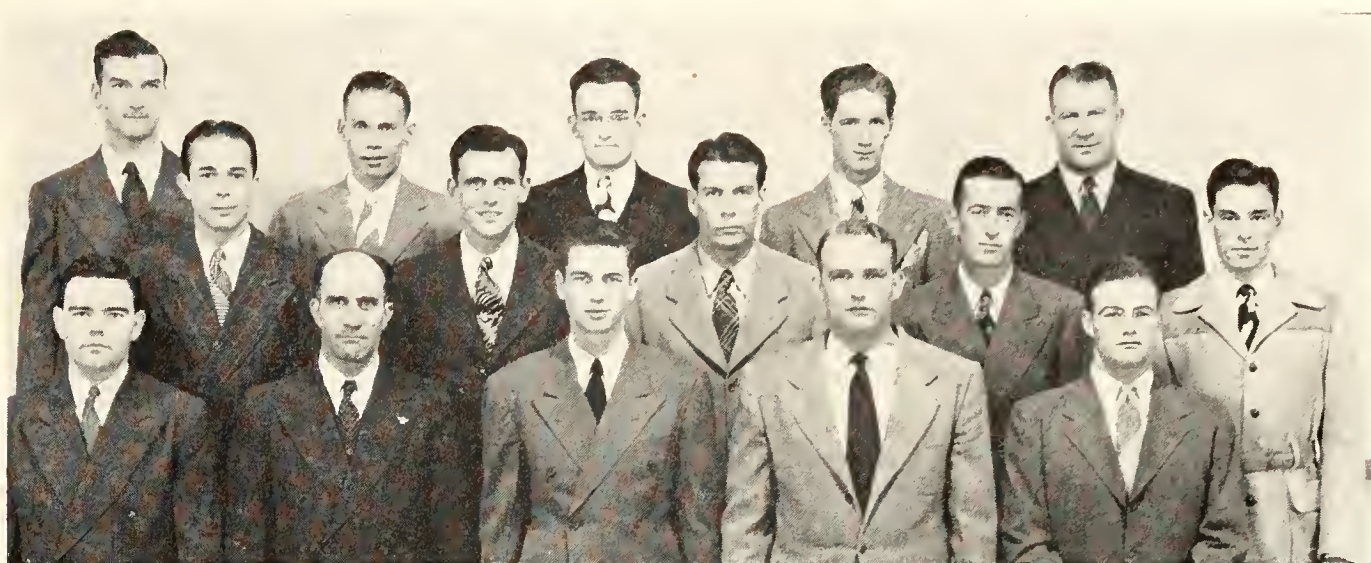

Dave Weatherby presided as president this year, with Mike Zeleznak and George Sherman assisting with the administrative duties. Faculty sponsors were Lud Fiser and Fritz Knorr.

Scholarship Is Honorary Group Keynote

PHI EPSILON KAPPA is the honorary fraternity for men students majoring in physical education. Membership in this organization is open to faculty members as well as college students. Students selected for membership are chosen on a basis of scholarship and character.

Eugene Snyder, president, led the group in many activities this year. Phi Epsilon Kappa celebrated its annual Founders' Day with a banquet for members and alumni, and held several parties in cooperation with the women physical education majors.

Once every year, the organization brings to the campus, a prominent speaker from the professional field of physical education to speak to all phys ed majors. Fritz Knorr and Prof. L. P. Washburn act as faculty sponsors for the group.

High-ranking junior students in the field of chemistry were honored this year by being selected for membership in Phi Lambda Upsilon, honorary chemical organization.

Students are chosen from three chemistry fields, including chemistry majors, chemical engineers and milling chemists. Selection is based chiefly on scholarship, and those chosen must have maintained a scholastic average of over two point.

Phi Lambda Upsilon held its national conclave meeting last summer at West Point, N. Y., and this chapter was represented by the president, Earl Couchman. Initiations were held during both the spring and fall semesters, and banquets were given after the ceremonies.

Each year, Phi Lambda Upsilon presents an award of chemical handbooks to those freshmen having the highest grades in chemistry and chemical engineering.

Foster Talents In Interest Groups

EACH year, Mu Phi Epsilon presents two public recitals, with only members participating. The presentation of a scholarship in music is another of the plans discussed by the group.

It is a national music sorority in the professional field and had 11 members this year.

The organization was busy with activities and plans throughout the school year. Norene Francis, president, led the group in accomplishing their projects.

National inspection of the chapter by the province governor took place January 13. After the day's activities, a reception and musicale were held at the Eisenhower home. Jerry Gatz was elected to the presidency for the spring semester.

Interest and scholarship in radio courses are Radio Guild membership requirements. This is an honorary organization for radio students.

As the main project for the year, members of Radio Guild worked to fulfill the qualifications for membership in Alpha Epsilon Rho, national radio fraternity.

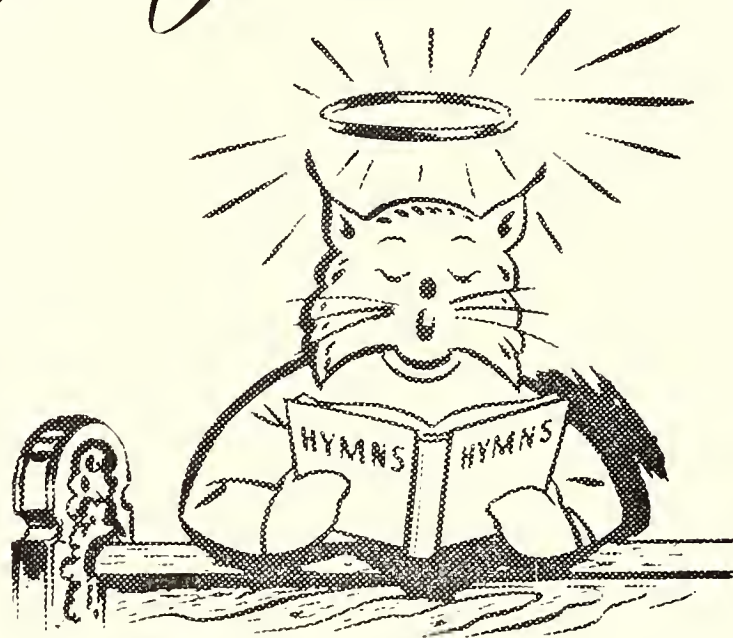

Regular business meetings were held twice a month and on these occasions, problems and current news in the field of radio were discussed. In December, the members of Radio Guild and their guests enjoyed a Christmas party given in the Flame Room at the Wareham Hotel.

Jim Heaton was president of Radio Guild and Barbara Bross was secretary.

Come All Ye Faithful

I NEARLY shook the auditorium right off my crest when I felt the prick of a shovel in my side slope. But when I investigated the matter, I decided that even a shovel prick can be an honor when General "Ike" throws a spadeful of you over his shoulder.

People had been running around driving stakes in that portion of my anatomy for a couple of months before the touch-off blow fell on October 25. Then a huge mechanical monster began taking giant-size bites out of my side where "Ike" had first wounded me. I got mad. In fact, I froze up. But when spring came and the gentle tread of moccasins replaced the stomp of GI boots, I gradually thawed out.

Immediately taking advantage of my softened condition, bulldozers and steamshovels again started to roll toward the scar on my side. Then I found out what all the commotion had been for a year or so among the religious organizations.

My employees were building a chapel—an all-faith Memorial Chapel, a place of quiet worship. The nation's favorite general, Dwight D. Eisenhower, had been honoring me and my veteran students and faculty when he turned the first spade for the memorial building.

Then I began to understand that I wasn't being tortured, I was being beautified. And any coed who sits in one of my initialed chairs can tell you there is a difference.

A harassed engineer dropped a blueprint on my face, and I discovered that the chapel—a lovely piece of architecture—will be built of stone dug from one of my brother hills. More, it will be erected, for the major part with money donated by friends of the college and the idea.

I have dozens of clubs with a religious purpose, and the chapel will be a boon to them. I've thought it over, and I guess it's O.K. with me if they want to dig a hole for a chapel in my side. Religious organizations have been with me a long time. Most of them are sponsored by denominations of Manhattan churches and nearly all could find counterpart organizations on other Hills.

They aren't stuffy, fire and brimstone clubs. Their members like to have a good time as much as anyone. But they have reverence and a sense of the spiritual, which, I fear to say, do not belong to all the seekers-after-knowledge that daily make cowpaths on my grass. Some of these religious groups are supported by as many as 500 members.

Their aims are generally fellowship and brotherhood, which are good enough for me. Some add service to their objectives, and clean, generous living is a purpose of all. They have picnics, hayrack rides, periodical meetings. Many of the organizations are Greek-letter groups which hold formal pledgings and initiations just as other fraternities and sororities. They all contribute something to me.

The largest of the clubs are the YMCA and the YWCA, or for those of you who haven't been on me very long, the Young Men's and Women's Christian Associations. They carry on extensive projects for the benefit of their members and the whole student body, and of course, for me. They often work in cooperation, they present skits, sponsor important speakers for all-College assemblies, provide discussion groups, vesper services, club publications and banquets and dinners.

Professors can sit on my steps and say this college generation is going to the dogs, but I personally, will never believe it as long as I can hold up unselfish student organizations like the ones I've been talking about.

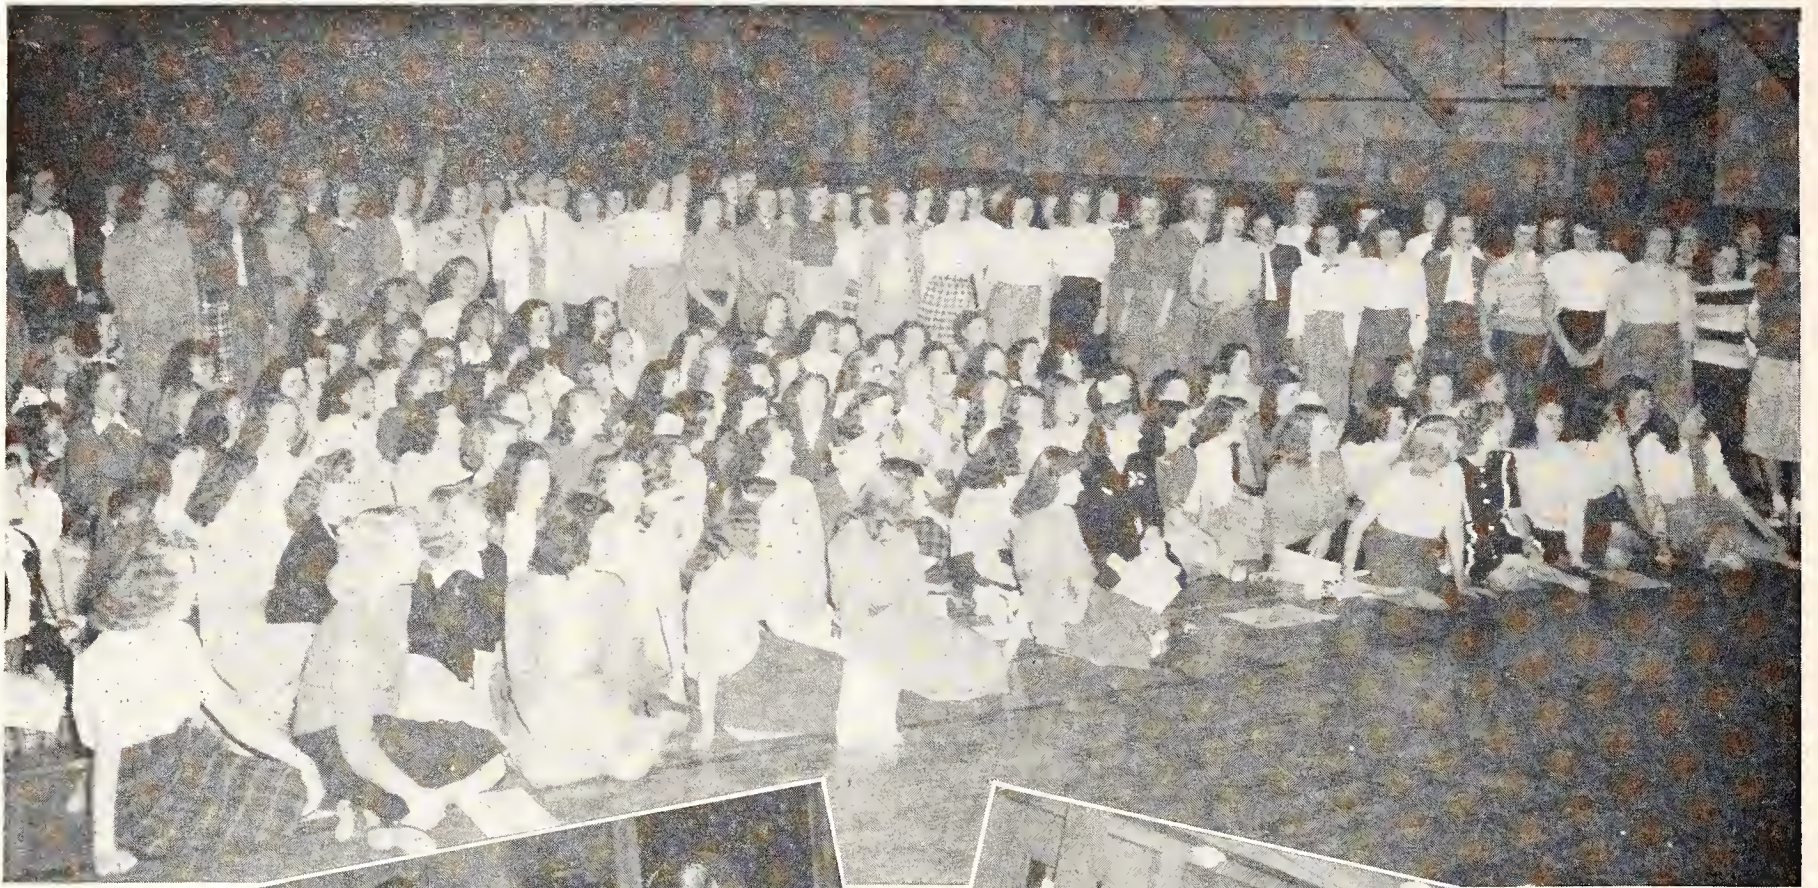

Crowds gathered for the auction part of the evening of the Y-Carnival. Faculty members were sold off the for menial tasks and duties at the sorority, fraternity and organized houses. Hottest bidding occurred on Dean Rodney W. Babcock, who offered his services as a houseboy to the ones who could pay the most money. Pi Beta Phi topped the ante and the girls were served one spring evening by the Dean of Arts and Sciences.

Bids Run High At Y-Carnival

A divorce court "to break up your frustration cycle" was another popular exhibit at the Y-Carnival, sponsored by the YM and YWCA. Students played bingo for prizes, wore paper caps and ate, which provided a true carnival atmosphere in the girls gymnasium.

The Y organizations, in addition to their essentially religious basis, see that their members and other students have a good time. Above are the YWCA big and little sisters at their annual fall get-together and mutual introduction party in the gym.

YW Has Party, Bazaar

Food, curios, jewelry, paintings and other miscellaneous items were sold to students at YW bazaar held in Rec Center. Booths were planned and kept by members of the interest groups of the organization.

Yw-Ym Activities

Bring Speakers Here

The leadership of the two largest campus organizations, YWCA and YMCA, were in the capable hands of Margaret Garrison (center), and Charles Engelland (bottom). With a total of almost a thousand members, the groups plan projects designed to provide recreation and a religious background for all students at the College.

WILLIAM E. (Bill) WEST, moved his headquarters from Anderson Hall to the new Student Union this fall. From here he directs his work as Executive Secretary of the YMCA.

YMCA activity began very early in the school year when this organization provided workers to help with the recreation program for Freshman Orientation Week. The opening week was also the date of the traditional Football Kickoff and Watermelon Feed for all freshman men, annual events sponsored by the organization.

The "Y" carried out its program in a new home this year. Offices were located in the temporary Student Union building. Here Wilbur Engelland as president;

"Y" Groups Cooperate

Larry McManis as first vice-president; Bob Weatherbie as second vice-president; Roger Wilk as third vice-president; and Harold Dalbom as recording secretary handled the executive matters of the "Y." Dr. Howard T. Hill was president of the Board of Directors.

The general program of Young Men's Christian Association featured weekly meetings, radio programs over KSAC, and intramural teams.

With Bill West as executive secretary, the "Y" offered assistance in solving personal problems. An up-to-date set of job information was on hand in the "Y" office and a part-time employment bureau was maintained to help students in locating temporary work.

One of the highlights of the "Y" year was the two-day Christian World Forum which was held in March and sponsored jointly by the YM and YW. The theme of the forum was "The Power of the Church." The guest speaker was the Rev. Robert S. Bilheimer of New York, who is Executive Secretary of the Inter-Seminary Movement. The forum opened with a banquet on Monday. On Tuesday Reverend Bilheimer spoke to a group on the subject of "Religion in Higher Education." Tuesday evening he addressed an audience composed of college students and townspeople in the College auditorium.

In April came the twenty-seventh annual Y-Orpheum, which challenged all organized houses to display their talent and showmanship.

In Active Planning

FOUR hundred women enrolled at Kansas State this year were members of the Young Women's Christian Association. Under the supervision of Miss Billie E. Parkins, the YW initiated several new activities.

The first was the organization of a Square Dance club with the cooperation of the YM. Every Thursday evening, a square dance class was conducted by a faculty member.

Another YM-YW project was the Friday-Niter Dance club. A series of six dances with a total admission fee of $1.50, was held in Recreation Center.

This year saw the introduction, by YW, of special leadership groups for freshmen. Under this program, all freshmen members formed a commission of their own to study the requirements for leadership in recreation and group singing. This freshman group also planned and presented a fashion show in November. The fashion review was given at the Manhattan Community house, and the town women were guests.

In the line of special events, the YW, in cooperation with the YM, was responsible for the appearance of several well-known speakers on the campus during the year. In February, Bayard Rustin, outstanding young Negro leader spoke in Rec Center on "The Effect of Prejudices."

Many Faiths Represented by

AN ORGANIZATION of campus religious organizations is the Religious Federation. It is composed of two representatives from each student church group, two from YWCA, and two from YMCA. These representatives work together to promote cooperative social and religious programs among the student groups.

Marvin Riggs was president of the group. He was assisted by Howard Lindholm, vice-president; Irvin Lanier, treasurer, and Rosalie Germann, secretary. L. F. Payne was the faculty sponsor.

The Religious Federation sponsored Religious Emphasis Week from November 16 to 20. The five days were devoted to campus religious activities. Dr. Morris Wee of Madison, Wis., and Rabbi Norton Fierman of Tulsa, Okla., led the special assemblies and discussions.

Kansas State Christian Fellowship began the year's special projects by giving a Temporary Handy Phone Directory to all students as they enrolled first semester.

Later in the year this group sponsored the first showing in the mid-west of the colored movie, "God Of The Atom" and the only showing in the mid-west of the colored movie, "God Is My Landlord."

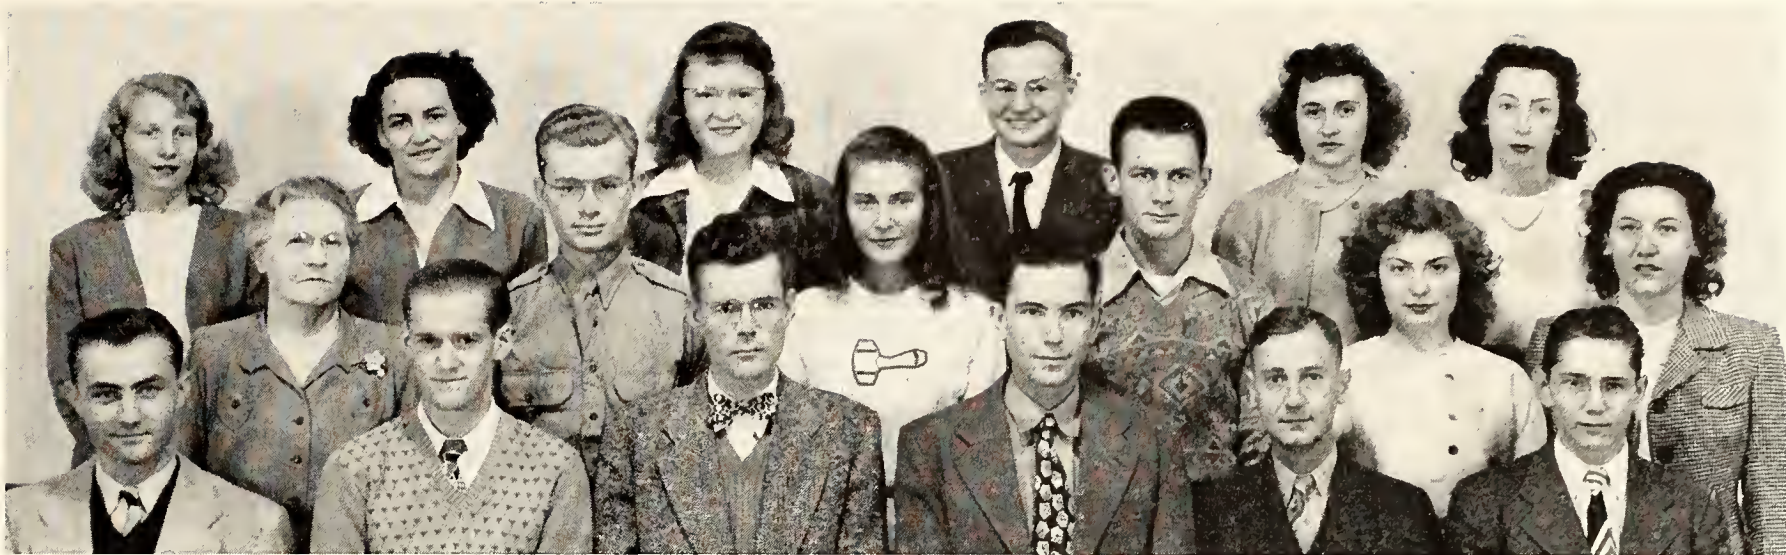

Gospel teams—composed of a speaker, song leader and special music—were sent by the organization to surrounding towns.

"To deepen and strengthen the spiritual life of members by prayer and Bible study" is the stated purpose of Kansas State Christian Fellowship. This year's officers were Bob Milburn, president; Bernita Skelton, vice-president; and Bob Schultz, secretary.

Campus Religious Organizations

THE Canterbury Club of St. Paul's Episcopal church had a year filled with many activities. The membership, which totaled 30, prepared and served a pancake supper to the public on Shrove Tuesday, before the beginning of Lent. The money received was given to the church as a Lenten offering.

During the fall semester Canterbury Club was host to the Canterbury Clubs of the Episcopal churches in Lawrence and Wichita.

First semester president was Roger Mitchell, while Bob Wilcox was chosen to lead the group second semester. Other second semester officers were: Ray Beaver, vice-president; Shirley Scott, secretary, and Marilyn Mills, treasurer. Faculty sponsor was Miss Emma Hyde.

Two hundred and twenty-five students form the membership of the Christian Student Fellowship. The purpose of this organization, which is one of the largest on the campus, is to reach every student of the Christian church and its affiliates with a vital interpretation of Christian fundamentals.

This organization has had a two-fold program during the past year. First was the support of an orphan in the Denver Christian Home for orphans. The second part of the program was the establishment of a student center near the campus.

C.S.F. officers were: Paul Eckstein, president; Irvin Lanier, vice-president; Marybelle Kidd, secretary; and Ronald Schreiner, treasurer.

Guide Students in Christian Living

“IN QUEST of the Best” is the motto of the Congregational Student Fellowship, an organization composed of college students of the Congregational church.

Each Sunday night the members of this group meet at the church for supper and a discussion period. Social activities were not lacking, as the fall semester brought picnics and a Halloween party. In December came a Christmas party complete with caroling and a visit from Santa Claus.

Louis Bender led the group as president. Other officers were Thaine Larson, vice-president; Harold Velasquez, secretary; Madonna Wooley, assistant secretary; and Dorothy Bettenbrock, treasurer.

The Baptist Youth Fellowship boasted an increase of 30 members this year to make the total 60.

Growing in personal Christian living, helping others to become Christians, practicing Christian citizenship, and developing Christian leadership is the four-point purpose of this organization.

A fellowship hour, lunch, and a discussion period comprised the programs of the Sunday evening meetings attended by this group.

Directing the activities of the organization was Bob Hays, president. He was assisted by Eleanor Hardin, vice-president; Kay Hasegawa, secretary; and Forrest Adams, treasurer. Floyd Sloat and Paul Torrence were faculty sponsors.

Church Sororities Provide Training

TO ESTABLISH and maintain a friendly relationship among women students of the Christian church is the primary objective of Kappa Beta, the national Christian church sorority.

Norma Magnus led the group in its social and religious activities to make the work of Kappa Beta a real means of Christian influence among women students. Other officers were Loreta Stricklin, vice-president; Neola Springer, treasurer; Dorothy Linn, recording secretary; and Jean McCallum Peck, corresponding secretary. The church sponsor was Mrs. Roy Cartee and the faculty sponsor was C. O. Price.

The 36 members of this organization worked throughout the year on special projects concerning the church program. Each girl spent time at the student center as hostess and the group worked together on seat cushions for student center chairs.

Training Methodist college women to be leaders in the church of tomorrow is the purpose of Kappa Phi, national sorority for women of the Methodist church.

One hundred and thirty-seven members of this organization attended meetings twice a month at Wesley Hall. A wide field of subjects was discussed at the meetings, and on several occasions, the group entertained well-known guest speakers.

The officers this year were: Marjorie Schowengerdt, president; Mary Liz Totten, vice-president; Dorothy Bebermeyer, recording secretary; and Mary Smith, corresponding secretary. Mrs. B. A. Rogers was faculty sponsor.

Lutheran Youth Active in Church

THE coldest night in September saw the beginning of this year's activities of Gamma Delta, national Lutheran fraternity. The occasion was a "Get Acquainted" wiener roast and song fest.

The Lutheran group also sponsored a religious seminar which played host to college students from four states—Oklahoma, Nebraska, Missouri, and Kansas.

At the national convention of Gamma Delta, Kenneth Bender, a representative of this chapter was elected national vice-president.

William H. Rossiter was president of Gamma Delta. Other officers were: Kenneth Bender, vice-president; Eula Mae Taylor, secretary; and Alfred J. Baden, treasurer. Faculty sponsors were William Baehr and the Rev. H. H. Frohn.

With a total membership of 75 college students, the Lutheran Student Association of the First Lutheran church, has had—a busy year.

In February the group was host to Lutheran students from nine other colleges in Kansas and Nebraska. The occasion was the three-day Midwest Regional Midwinter Training Conference for Lutheran students.

A hilltop near Manhattan was the scene of the Palm Sunday Sunrise Service, which is an annual tradition observed by the Lutheran students. One Sunday during the year the group entertained Lutheran students from Bethany College. Coordinators of the year's activities were Robert Heline, president; Georgine Bischoff, vice-president; Joan Georg, secretary; Jim Strohm, treasurer. Inez Ekdahl and Dr. Verne Sweedlun were sponsors.

Wesley Foundation Provides Fellowship

THE publication of a year book, The Wesley Wildcat, was just one of many projects completed by the Wesley Foundation this past year.

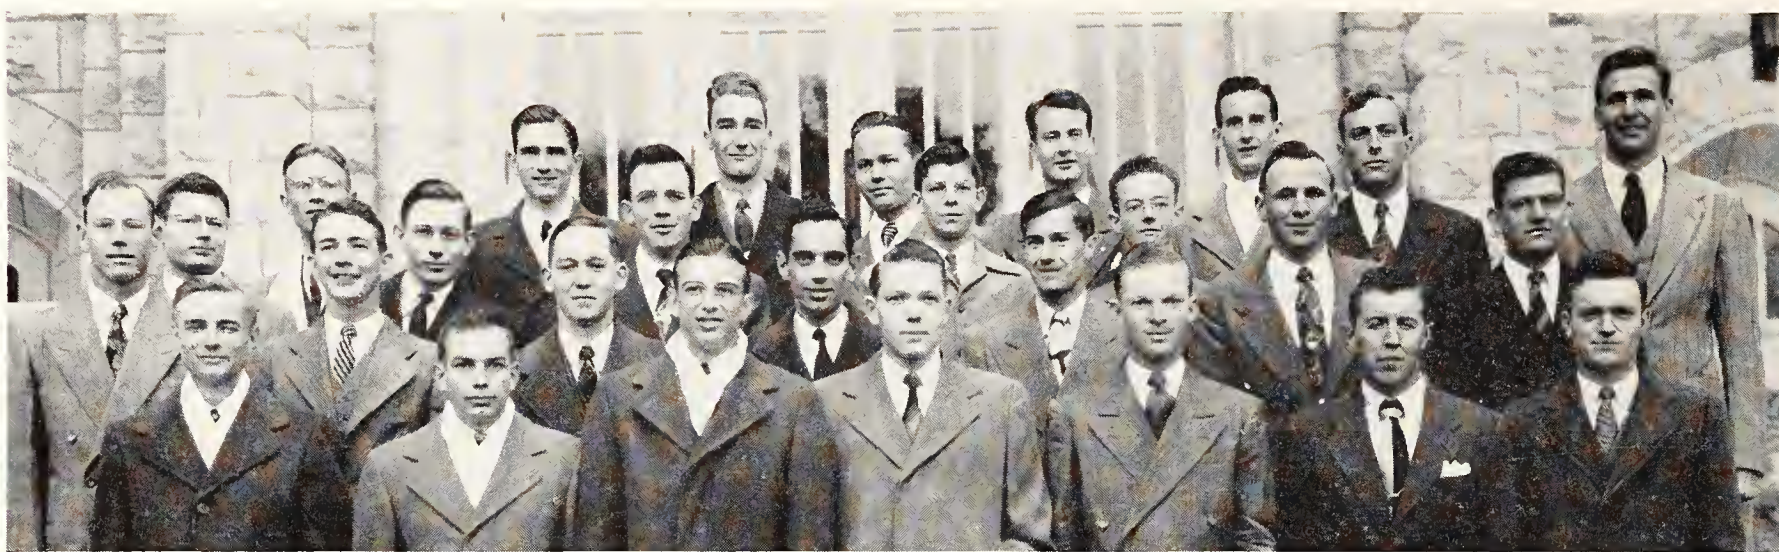

This organization was composed of Kansas State College men and women who had a Methodist Church preference. Its membership during the past year totaled 350.

There are meetings each Sunday morning and evening of the Wesley Foundation at which the members join together for religious inspiration and fellowship.

Edward McNaughton ably led the organization through the year's activities as president. Assisting him on the cabinet were John Lindholm, vice-president; Vernita Stoecker, secretary, and Merle Siegele, treasurer.

The weekly Saturday-nighter provided plenty of fun for the group, as it was the "home away from home" for the Foundation members. Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Rogers sponsored Wesley Foundation during this past year.

Church Groups Work for Fellowship

A WELCOMING picnic for freshman men marked the beginning of the first semester social activities for the Methodist Men's Club. This organization, which had a membership totaling 35, had the worthwhile purpose of promoting good fellowship and social relations among the Methodist college students.

The second and fourth Tuesdays of each month were meeting days for the men of the club to get together for varied programs. Sometimes they formed an audience for a book review. Foreign students spoke to the club several times and in March a discussion on Palestine was led by two students from that country.

Problems of the organization of the college church students were discussed at a joint meeting of Kappa Phi and the Men's Club in March. In the spring the two organizations enjoyed food and recreation at a picnic near Manhattan.

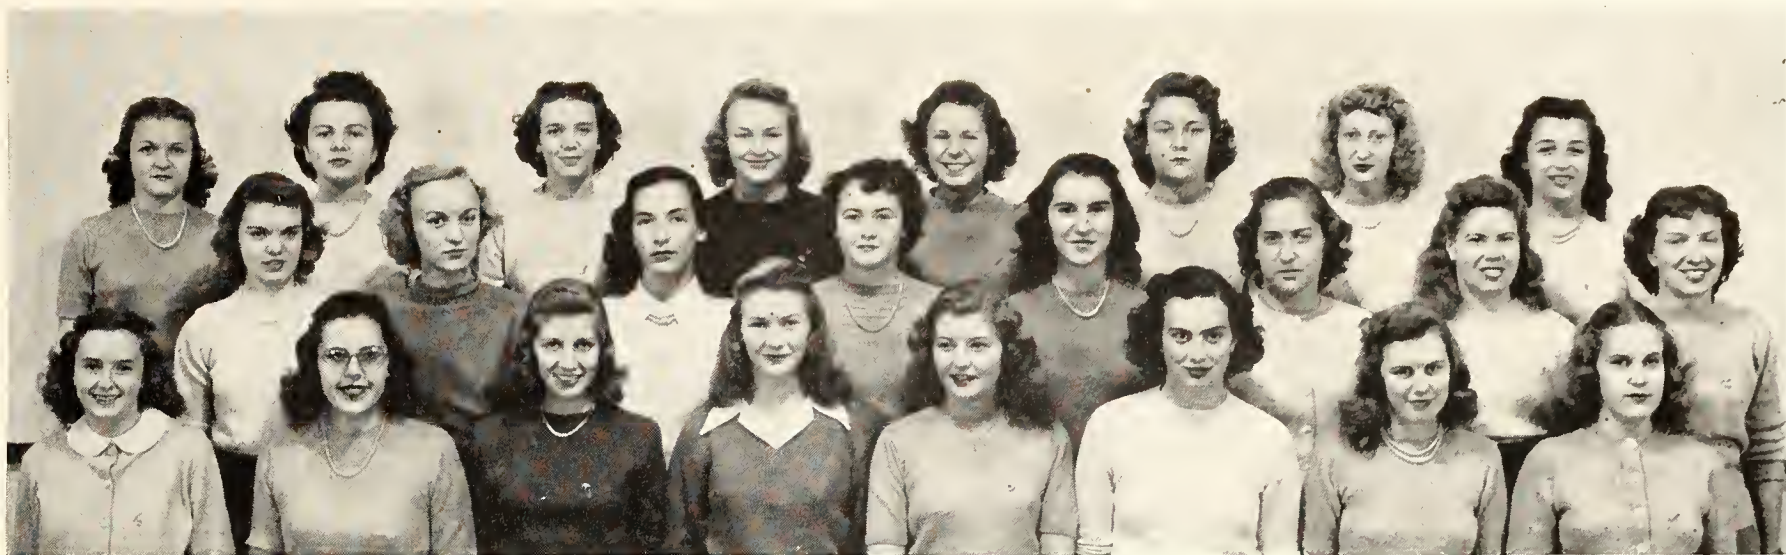

It was the aim of the College Fellowship, which is composed of students of the United Presbyterian church, to have a party a month. While this goal was not reached every month, the eighteen members did enjoy several hayrack rides in the fall, a Christmas gathering, and a party on Valentine's Day.

In addition to following the purpose of the organization, which was to help the young people of the church in finding the Christian way of living, the group carried out several projects. They contributed to the support of the United Presbyterian Negro Mission in California, and at Christmas time they helped pack a box for a mission Kentucky.

Rosalie Germann was president, Corinne Taylor was vice-president, and Lucille Wendland was secretary-treasurer.

Presbyterian Students in Busy Year

PHI CHI Delta and Westminster Foundation are the two student organizations of the First Presbyterian church. Phi Chi Delta is composed of the women students, while Westminster Foundation includes both men and women.

The 35 members of Phi Chi Delta carried out a program this year filled with business and social functions.

In September, this group gave a welcoming picnic for freshmen women. Westminster House was the scene of the organization's Christmas party. March meant formals and the annual formal initiation dinner.

The March meeting of the group was known as the "sharing meeting." It was held at the home of one of the patronesses and everyone brought and read their favorite poem.

Betty O'Neal was the Phi Chi Delta president. She worked with the other officers, Barbara Baker, vice-president; Virginia Furlong, secretary; and Virginia Shrake, treasurer in leading the group.

Mrs. W. U. Guerrant was faculty sponsor.

Bible study and prayer, understanding the Christian faith, worship and service in the church, growth in Christian character, and stewardship were some of the objectives of Westminster Foundation.

Officers were James P. Wood, president; Thomas Jefferson, vice-president; Ruth Reist, secretary; and Mary Rohr, treasurer. The Rev. W. U. Guerrant was faculty sponsor.

Prepare for Future Church Leadership

TO HELP prepare the members for leadership in the church of tomorrow and to increase the fellowship among Baptist women students on the campus was the purpose of Theta Epsilon, the Baptist women's national sorority.

Marjorie Ewart led this group as president and was assisted by Maxine Blanchard, first vice-president; Dorene Burnett, second vice-president; and Pauline Fredrickson, treasurer. Miss Sella Harriss was the faculty sponsor.

The twenty-five members had as their overall program "Serving Christ." This theme was carried out through the different projects in which the Theta Epsilon girls participated.

The two principal projects were making Christmas toys for the James Street Mission in Kansas City and mending used clothing, which was sent to Europe.

The roll call of Sigma Eta Chi, the national sorority for women of the Congregational Church shows an increase in membership over last year and now totals 17. These 17 members have worked together throughout the year to further the spiritual development of students in harmony with education—which is the purpose of Sigma Eta Chi.

Sigma Eta Chi's president this year has been Vada Volkening. Carol Blecha filled the office of secretary, and Caroline Perkins served as treasurer.

One Sunday evening during Lent, Sigma Eta Chi sponsored the annual candle-light service known as Luchnokaia, at the Congregational Church. Against a background of music each member of the congregation lighted a candle from the seven candles representing the seven great guiding lights of the Christian faith, and left the church, each pledging a more consecrated life.

Newman Club Membership Shows Increase

A 30 PERCENT increase over last year's membership was the claim of Newman Club, an organization for Catholic students. The club now has a total membership of 650. There were 500 members last year.

On the first Sunday of every month, the Newman Club meets at a breakfast held at the Church. Following the breakfast, a meeting and a program are held.

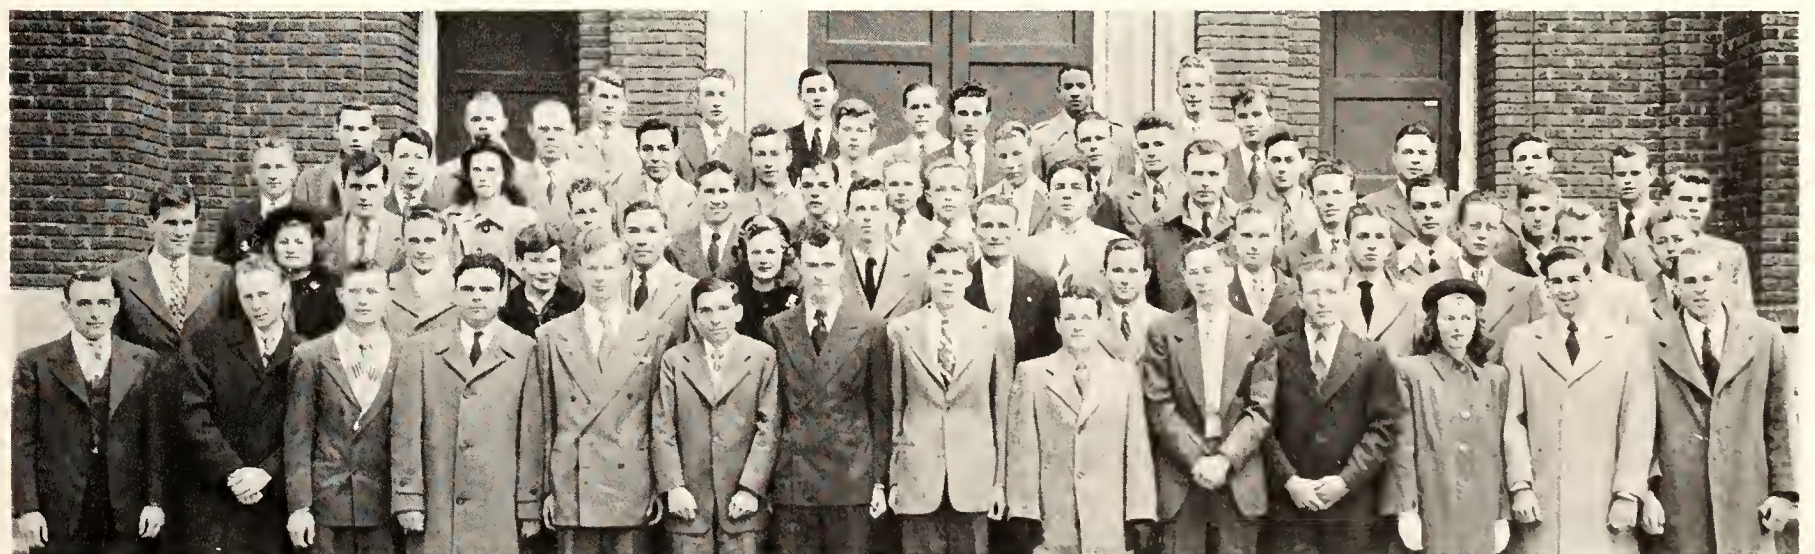

In cooperation with other college Catholic organizations in the state, the club sponsored the annual symposium. The symposium was a religious play which was presented in many towns throughout Kansas. The cast was composed of one member from each college's Newman Club.

Serving as president of the Newman Club during its past year was Larry Ryan. Kenny Winterscheidt capably filled the office of vice-president. Other officers were Jean Laughlin, secretary, and Leonard Taylor, treasurer. Sponsor of the Newman Club during the past year was J. P. Callahan.

Bed, Board and Brotherhood

COUNTRY Club Hill, College Hill, Fraternity Hill, hills everywhere about me — they're all brothers and sisters of mine. Sometimes I feel a little left out. When classes are over and janitors come, I lie and think of the gay times my students are having on other hills. And even though we are closely related, I sometimes envy my brother and sister hills.

Swishing formals at beautiful dances, gay informal parties, fumbling and clattering kitchen raids —even the long study hours. Gee, I'd like to have fun too.

I shouldn't brood though, and don't often. The hills help me and my students. These are the hills that house many of my students. House them, feed them, look after their welfare — and entertain them. These are the hills of my social organizations. There are the fraternities, sororities, dormitories, and independent organized houses.

Any student with the inclination can join one of these organizations which are so concerned with the life of my students. For the independents, there are Amistad and Amicossembly. For the Greeks, the governing bodies are Panhellenic and the Interfraternity Council — and for both, there are the houses themselves. They offer much in mutual interest, scholarship promotion, companionship and of course—recreation.

It has always been my own opinion (of course hills have opinions!) that my students learn almost as much while spending their college years on these brother hills as they do on me. It is on these related, social hills that they learn to get along with their fellows and apply to advantage all the knowledge they gather from me. They tell me, this is the fundamental purpose of the social organizations.

I like fraternities and sororities and independent houses. They can laugh at themselves and yet remain intensely loyal to themselves. And they flatter me a little. Just look where they are. True, most of them are on other hills, but they still stay close to me. They completely surround me. And they back me up—just watch some student forget me. These social organizations send the strays right back to me—to my library study rooms to brood over their forgetfulness. We get along fine.

A few of the social groups even prefer me to the other hills. I provide housing for members of several dormitories for independent students. There are Van Zile Hall, East and West Stadium Dorms, and Moro Courts—commonly called “Splinterville.” In addition, I house the nurses, the firemen, the night-working seniors at the vet hospital — and more than 600 student couples and their children.

In these homes of the married veterans I have heard the squall of newborn babes, the clank of washing machines and the gay back-fence gossip of a residential district. There are more than 500 children living on me now—and less than a dozen of them are old enough to start school.

Single men living in my housing are in Moro Courts, West Stadium or the Hospital Annex. Single women live in East Stadium or in Van Zile Hall. There is one more dormitory for single girls — a remodeled apartment house called Waltheim Hall—and it is only one block to the south of me.

On second thought, I guess I really don't envy my brother hills. Rather, I guess they envy me. You see, I am really the center of all activity.

Independent Dances Gay

Holiday seasons mean parties for independents, and with every weekend a holiday . . . well . . . Campus Courts mothers and children celebrate Christmas with a gathering around the huge tree (top).

1944 in response to a growing need for unified social activity among Independents.

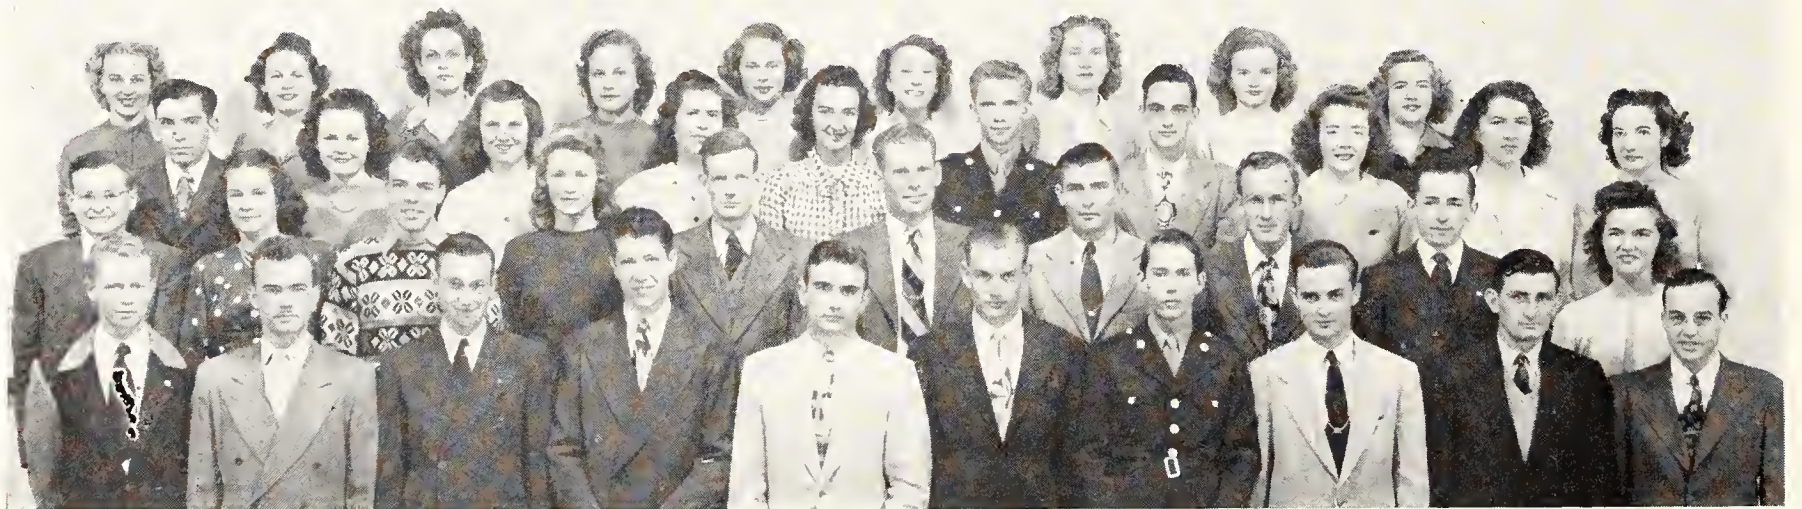

Open to both men and women, the organization was formed to provide for the social life and recreation for students not living in an organized house or social fraternity. It also aims to present to these students important school problems in order that they may take an active part in the life of the College.

Amistad's leaders for the year were: president, Art Blanchat; vice-president, Dale Bohnenblust; treasurer, Faye Converse; social chairman, Gail Morrison; membership chairman, Lewis Fairbanks.

The biggest event of the year for Amistad was the Princess Prom, a semi-formal dance which they sponsored.

Amicossembly Aims at Creating Friendliness

THE PURPOSE of the Amicossembly is to unite all independent women who live in organized houses. Creating friendliness among the students and helping freshmen women to become better acquainted with campus activities are also part of the program in Amicossembly.

This year the president and social chairman of 13 houses made up the Amico Council. Those included in Amicossembly are: Arcadia, Chatterbox, Clark's Gables, Coed Court, Crippen Inn, Hills' Heights, Keim's Kabana, La Fiel, Maison-elle, Moore th' Merrier, Pal-O-Mie, Skywood Hall, Tramalai.

Officers are: Betty Nordyke, president; Mickey Prather, vice-president; Darilene Hague, secretary-treasurer.

Sponsor Social Activities

Amicossembly sponsored a picnic this fall for all the independent women. A mixer was given at the beginning of the spring semester. The Amicossembly Council can boast of its own constitution and by-laws which were written in 1944.

Among the future plans toward which the Amico Council is working, is the addition of more organized houses into the assembly. Eight girls must live in an organized house before it may be accepted into the organization.

Mrs. Robert King is the faculty sponsor for Amicossembly this year.

Regular meetings of Amicossembly are held the first Wednesday of each month. This assembly gives the houses an opportunity to work out their problems together and take part in activities at Kansas State as a group.

Amicossembly was organized in response to a growing need for unified social activity among Independents. It is serving its purpose successfully.

Van Zile Hall

TWENTY-TWO year old Van Zile Hall, named for Dean Emeritus Mary P. Van Zile, is the only permanent women's dormitory on the campus. Opened in 1926, it has housed approximately 3,000 women since that time. Built to accomodate 130 women, it has operated with 170 during the past two years.

The dining room at Van Zile is under the direction of the Department of Institutional Management with a dietician in charge.

Miss Dorothy Hamer, director of women's housing at Kansas State, is housemother for Van Zile. Jean Helfrey was president this year.

Represented by Glendeen Link and Dorothy Stover, Van Zile won the doubles in tennis. This hall won first place in the swimming meet and participated in posture, volleyball, basketball, and table tennis contests.

"Gypsy Caravan" was the theme of the annual fall formal held at the dorm on November 21. It was attended by about 200 couples.

Independent Women Contribute to

LOCATED at 1222 Bluemont, Arcadia has been an organized women's independent house for five years. Mrs. Grace Friel is housemother and Dalena Currier served as president for the group this year.

The nine women of Arcadia are active in many organizations. The group is a member of Amico-assembly this year. Dorothy Barber is a member of the College band, and other members are in the Freshman Home Economics Club.

Arcadia had a scavenger hunt at the house on Halloween for all members and their dates. They also had a Christmas party, after which they exchanged gifts and went caroling.

Chatterbox, located at 526 North 14th, is the home of seven Kansas State coeds. They have been an organized independent women's house for six years. Frances Brenner was president this year.

Each of the members of Chatterbox was honored with a birthday party and Mrs. Spealman, housemother of the group, was entertained at Thompson Tea Room in honor of her birthday. The girls had their annual Christmas dinner and gift exchange before going to their individual homes for the vacation. They had a line party in the spring for the women and their dates, after which they held open house at the Chatterbox.

Chatterbox members were active in many organizations, such as Alpha Delta Theta, Phi Kappa Phi, Omicron Nu, and the Kansas State Players.

Campus and House Activities

WITH Laberta Kugler as their president and Mrs. Edith Clark as housemother, the ten girls who call Clark's Gables their home, have had a year filled with activities.

Members are active in the Collegiate 4-H Club, YWCA cabinet, Christian Student Fellowship, and the Home Economics Club. They have a student representative in UNESCO and are active in Theta Sigma Phi, Phi Alpha Mu, Kappa Phi and have been recognized by freshman Phi Kappa Phi.

The big event of the social year was a Christmas dinner and party at the house, which was given for the girls by Mrs. Clark. The coeds took an active part in the Homecoming celebration by entering a float in the parade competition.

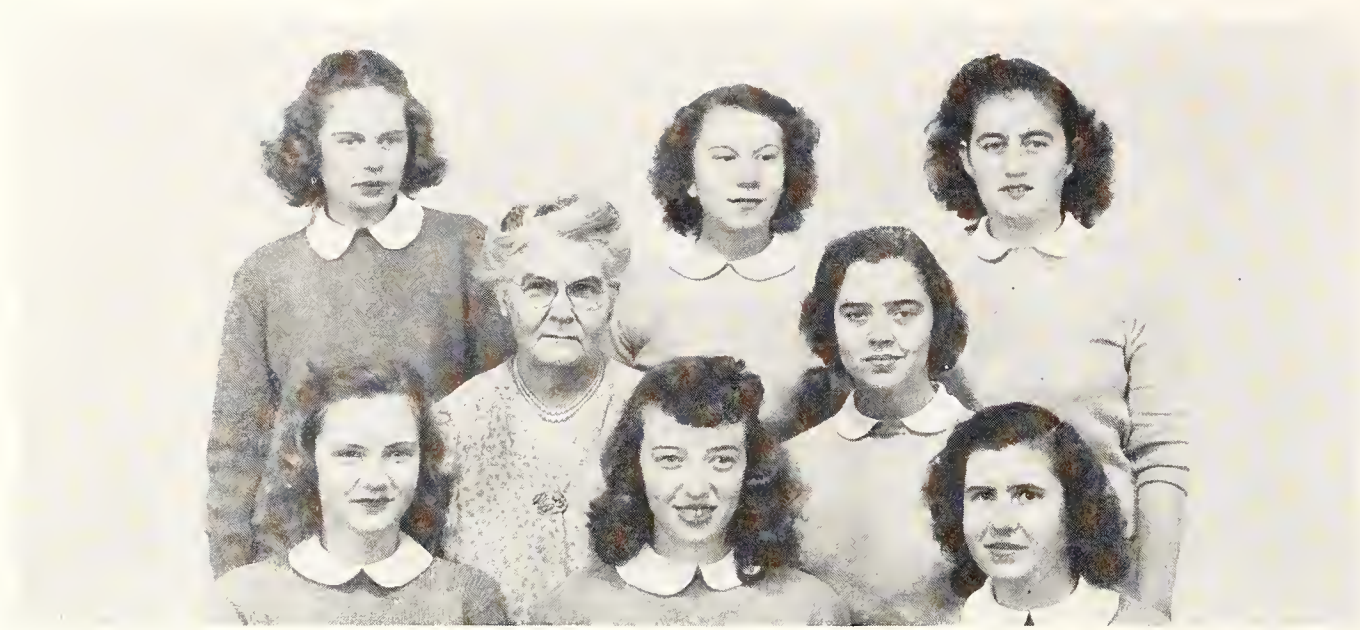

Highlight of the social season at Coed Court was the traditional candlelight breakfast and gift exchange the Sunday before Christmas vacation. Following the breakfast, the girls, accompanied by their housemother Mrs. Pearl Power, attended church as a group.

Other social functions of the house included a Christmas party at the house on December 13, for the girls and their dates. Thanksgiving was celebrated with a dinner, and Hallowe'en with a party.

The home of 11 Kansas State women, Coed Court was presided over by Myrna Jean Adee. Outstanding among the women was Virginia Olson, who was hailed as Ag Barnwarmer Queen in October. Other members are active in 4-H and were recognized by freshman Phi Kappa Phi.

Holidays and Birthdays Festive

“BELLES and Beaux” was the theme for a semi-formal Christmas party held at Crippen Inn for the girls and their dates. Other social functions this year included a weiner roast early in October, a Halloween party at the house, an annual Christmas dinner and grab-bag and several after-hour parties.

Small but cozy, Crippen Inn is the home of seven Kansas State coeds and is managed by Mrs. V. S. Crippen. Nancy Dewey, who was elected president for the first semester, was married at Christmas and Nelda Barclay took over leadership of the organization.

Members of Crippen Inn are active in Orchesis, K-State Players and the Club Cervantes.

Since 1942, when Mrs. W. H. Hills converted her house at 1423 Fairchild into rooms for Kansas State women, 21 coeds have annually called this their home.

This year, with Mary Smith as their president, the members of Hills Heights were active in Omicron Nu, Who's Who, A Cappella Choir and had a member as secretary of the junior class.

The coeds of Hills Heights entertained their dates on a hayrack ride in October and at a formal spring party. They celebrated Christmas with a party and gift exchange for the girls at the house.

One of the larger of the women's independent organized houses, some of the members participated in women's sports through independently organized intramural teams.

Glenna Mae Baker is president this year and Mrs. L. R. Keim is housemother for the group. Among the outstanding students of Keim's Kabana are Georganne Fowler, treasurer of Mortar Board, and Marjorie Roepke, a member of Phi Alpha Mu.

The highlight of the social season at Keim's Kabana was a Christmas party and gift exchange held at the house. Earlier in the fall the women and their dates had a picnic at Sunset Park.

The women of La Fiel are active in many campus organizations. Among them are the Purple Pepsters, the Service Club and the Eastern Star Club.

Other social events included a hayrack ride for members and their dates early in October.

Balanced Social and Scholastic

HOLIDAYS received attention in the proper spirit at Maison-elle. Hallowe'en was observed by a party at the house, which was attended by the girls and their dates. A formal Christmas dinner was held for the girls at Maison-elle, which was followed by a gift exchange. Hearts and more hearts marked the theme in a Valentine house-party in the spring.

Residents of Maison-elle, located at 1706 Laramie, were active in intramurals through independently organized teams.

The 14 girls living at Maison-elle are also members of such organizations as the Cosmopolitan Club, various home ec clubs, the College band and the 4-H club.

Dorothy Bebermeyer served as president of the organization and Mrs. Mattie Cassity as housemother.

Since 1943, many Kansas State women have called Moore th' Merrier their home away from home. This year, 14 more coeds will do the same. Guiding these girls as housemother is Mrs. T. H. Moore and the president for the year is Ruth McCrerey.

On the social side, the women entertained their dates with a bowling party in December. Prizes were awarded for both high and low scores. Christmas songs and mistletoe created an atmosphere of gaiety. Other social events included the annual Hallowe'en party, the Thanksgiving feast and a Christmas dinner and party. Moore th' Merrier is located near Aggieville at 1404 Fairchild. Members were active in intramurals and other all-school activities, including home ec clubs, YWCA and 4-H.

Life is Aim of Organized Houses

A YEAR filled with social events and scholastic achievement is claimed by the women of Pal O'Mie. Thanksgiving was celebrated by a dinner at the house, served on the Sunday before the holiday. A formal party was held for the coeds and their dates during the Yuletide season. The annual Christmas breakfast and gift exchange was held the Sunday before the holidays.

House meetings at Pal O'Mie are presided over by Neola Springer, president. Mrs. Lillian Fuller is house-mother for the 11 girl members.

Among the other organizations in which Pal O'Mie girls are active, are Phi Alpha Mu, Alpha Delta Theta, Omicron Nu, Sigma Eta Chi and Prix. Several have been recognized by freshman Phi Kappa Phi.

Skywood Hall is the home of 11 Kansas State women under the supervision of Mrs. Neil Swanson, house-mother. Darilene Hague is president of the house, which is located at 1719 Laramie.

Social events at Skywood Hall were started this year with a Hallowe'en party which was attended by all members and their dates. The girls celebrated the holiday season with an evening dance at the Hall. Now a tradition for Skywood girls, all graduating seniors were honored with a breakfast at the Wareham Hotel.

Skywood Hall members were active in both the home economics club and the Kansas State College Marching Band. One of the members was a Drum Majorette for the band.

Promote Welfare of Members

BEFORE the war, Tramalai was an organized rooming house for men. It was converted to house women when temporary dormitories were built for the men and the shortage of women's housing became acute.

Tramalai, located at 1418 Fairchild, was the College home of 16 women last year. Lois Baldwin served as president of the group and Mrs. T. H. Cousins was the housemother.

Highlighting the fall social season for Tramalai residents was a picnic at Sunset Park, which was attended by all members and their dates. Christmas dinner was a memorable occasion, followed by a gift swapping under the tree.

Tramalai members belong to several campus organizations, among them the Collegiate Chapter of UNESCO and the Home Ec Social Club.

Operating with a newly organized alumni association, the House of Williams has become the only organized independent men's house at Kansas State.

Organized to promote scholastic, social and athletic activities, the House of Williams stresses the promotion of each individual rather than the group as a whole.

Members of the house are prominent in Sigma Tau, the College band, 4-H and intramurals. Members participated in intramural basketball, volleyball, football, table tennis, softball, track and horseshoes.

The activities of the House of Williams included numerous social functions throughout the year. One of the events was an open house for the alumni at Homecoming.

Mrs. Katherine Williams is housemother and Roger Hecht served as president.

Panhel Sponsors New Workshop Day

WOMEN'S Panhellenic at Kansas State College launched a new program this year. They engineered many projects, assisted the administration, revised rushing rules, both for the summertime and rush week and held a workshop day.

This workshop was sponsored by Panhellenic for all the sororities on the campus. Mrs. Ruth Schmelkin, Panhellenic adviser from the University of Nebraska at Lincoln, was guest speaker and supervisor for the workshop groups. Members of City Panhellenic, the group for town women belonging to Greek organizations, acted as moderators.

The afternoon was started with six officers from the sororities gathering together in the Lucinda Harris Memorial Temple to discuss their mutual problems. The officers which represented the groups were the president, house manager, rush captain, pledge trainer, scholarship chairman and social chairman. Later in the afternoon, after the workshops had met, all members of the sororities congregated in the auditorium to listen to a summary of the values of the workshops. At this time, Mrs. Schmelkin talked to the women concerning new trends in fraternity programs, the Panhellenic spirit, and what she thought had been gained in the workshops.

Women's Panhellenic is composed of a junior and senior representative from each sorority. It is their constant effort to strengthen the Panhellenic feeling among all Greek organizations, as well as among fraternity members and non-members. These women act as the governing body of all sororities.

Interfraternity Council and Panhellenic sponsor Interfraternity Sing, a song contest held each spring with all sororities and fraternities competing for top honors. Winners of the trophies in 1947 were Kappa Kappa Gamma and Beta Theta Pi.

One of the projects undertaken by the group was the support of a child in one of the countries of Europe.

Mary Alice Wolf, Delta Delta Delta, was president of the group for the past year, and Miss Dorothy Hamer, Assistant Dean of Women acted as Panhellenic adviser.

Frat Councils Add New Members

ONE of the first acts of the Interfraternity Council was to ban the giving of corsages by fraternity men. The long-discussed problem of hour dances and their relative success was again taken into consideration, and the system was re-organized.

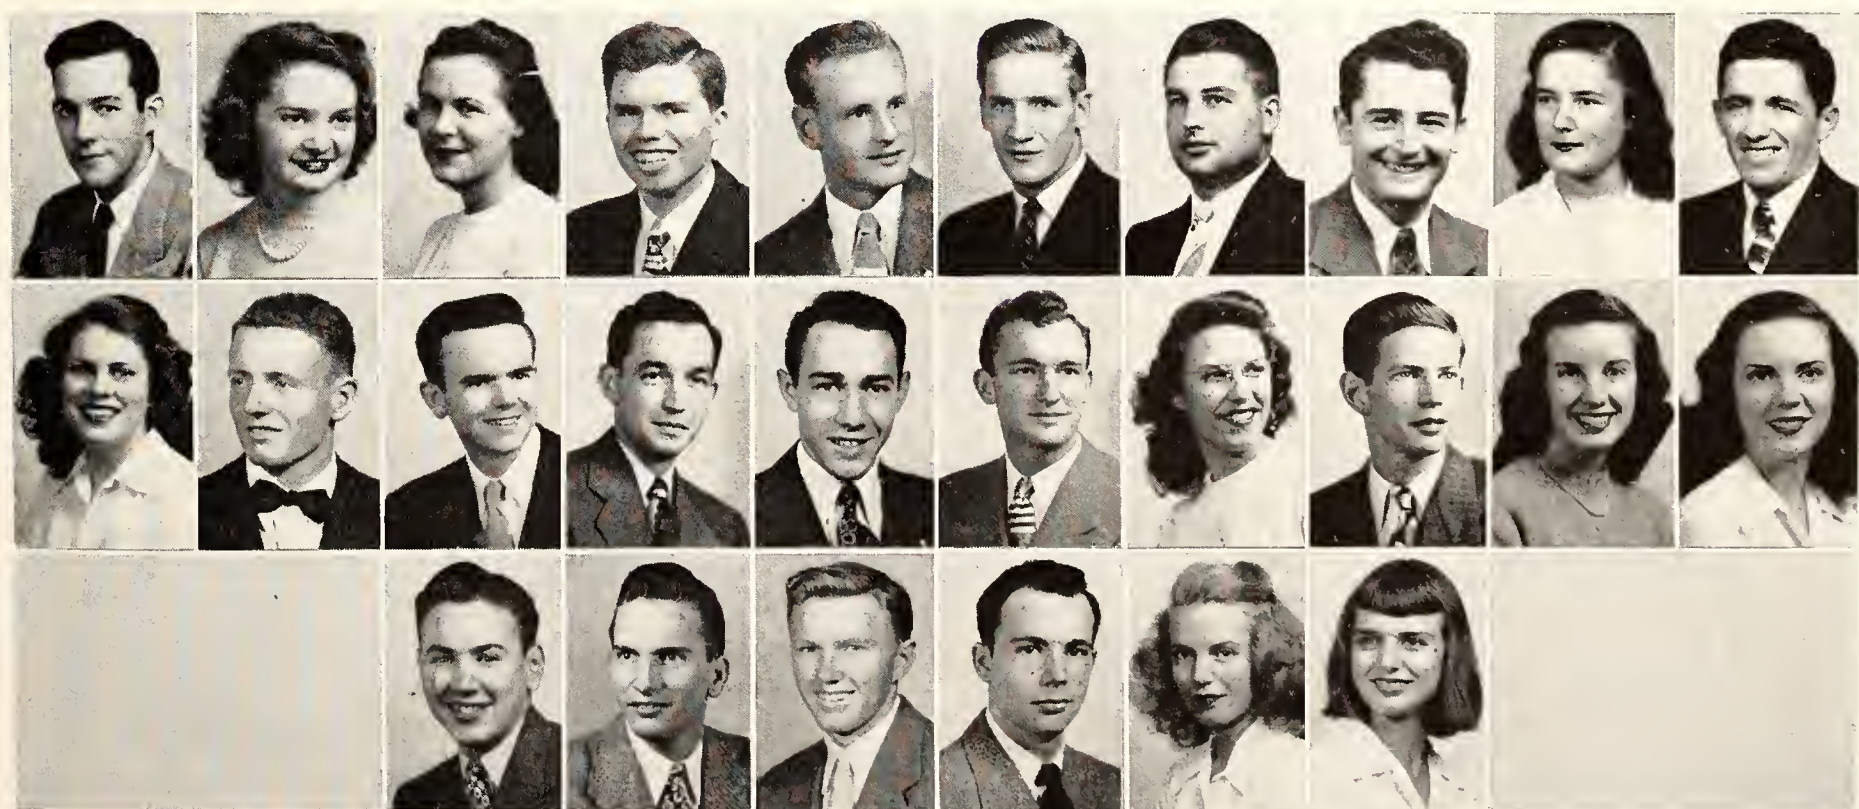

Delta Sigma Phi was admitted into full membership, with Kappa Alpha Psi an honorary member, and Lambda Chi Alpha retaining probationary membership. The Council met twice monthly alternating among the fraternity houses. Each group sent one representative. Claude Howard, Phi Delta Theta, head the organization, and Dr. V. D. Foltz was faculty sponsor.

Project of the Interfraternity Pledge Council the past year was the IPC Ball, held February 6 at the Avalon. The purpose of the IPC is to cement friendliness among the fraternity and sorority pledges. Jim McCausland, Delta Tau Delta, acted as president this year and Miss Golda Crawford was faculty sponsor.

And Cheers Challenges

I'VE ALWAYS thought rather kindly of myself. I've considered myself a well-rounded Hill, producing great men in nearly every field. But for a while there, I was beginning to develop an inferiority complex about my ability to provide a steady foundation for my employees and athletes on the testing ground of sports.

In football especially, my students battled on through the mire of defeat — but they hadn't plowed over the goal line in Memorial Stadium enough times in the last two years to win a single game on me—or any other Hill, either for that matter. Don't get me wrong, I wasn't blaming anyone but myself.

Then along came Jack Gardner's "Cinderella Kids" and I felt as big as Mount Whitney. They bolstered my ego. They raised my spirits and lifted the dark brown fog that had been hovering over the attitude about athletics among both my students and faculty.

The basketball five just missed hitting the top rung of national prestige, and filled country-wide papers with tales extolling my glory. That's the sort of thing I like to see. Girls and boys fought amiably for tickets to holler their lungs out for the team—they queued up for whole afternoons to be assured of a seat at evening games.

They jammed the Student Union to get direct broadcasts and whooped it up with every basket. They marched triumphantly to the train station to meet the team returning from games played on other Hills. The players and coach were the heroes of the hour.

Stakes are again being driven into my side, and this time I welcome them. They denote the actual beginning of the field house for which K-Staters have paid and prayed for years. If the size of the thing is any indication, it's going to be a beauty. The war, shortage of materials and high prices have held up construction of this field house since the years the money was first appropriated. But somehow, I'm beginning to picture high tiers of bleachers filled with fans, every man a wildcat. All this, plus the money that townspeople and alumni will bring in when I have room to seat them.

Although golf, swimming and tennis teams were continually outclassed by superior competition, my baseball fortunes steadily climbed. Lud Fiser's batmen battled nip and tuck for the championship last spring. The Iowa State Cyclones blew the Cats from the top rung to third place with their sparkling victory in the last loop contest. The Wildcats' 16 wins in 22 outings salvaged some cheer for both me and the team.

I was genuinely lonesome when one of my great men died late in the winter. Michael Ahearn, past Director of Athletics, had always been one of my closest friends. He understood me and was a great credit to me. It will be a long time before there is another like him.

Football coaches have whirled across my face so often in the past few years that I had no sooner felt their spiked shoes in my tender grass when they were gone to greener Hills. They all tried hard to bring me out of the depths of football doom, but none in recent times succeeded. I'm looking forward with every confidence to the new season with Ralph Graham.

Now that I've said all this, and balancing the picture up, it seems that between total wins and losses in all fields of sports, I've remained pretty average—but try to tell that to either my football or basketball rooters.

Howlingly happy K-Staters rushed Coach Jack Gardner off his feet (above) after the K.U. game played at Lawrence. The one-point victory was the signal for mass demonstrations, a 1:30 a.m. night declared by the Dean of Women, and a surging, pushing, clamorous crowd besieging the President and the president of the Student Council for a school holiday. The game cinched the Big Seven basketball crown, besides being a thrilling triumph over the school down the river.

Fans Go Wild As Gardner And Boys Come Home

Victory-starved Wildcat fans roared their lungs out for the basketball team on its return from the invitational pre-season tourney in Kansas City. ENERGETIC THURLO McCrady, 40 year old athletics director, in his first year at K-State has helped develop an athletic program that is definitely on the upgrade. He is a frequent speaker at high school banquets.

Heading the athletics staff is Thurlo McCrady. The Director completed his first year at Kansas State in March. "Mac" is determined to do his part in putting the Wildcat sports program on a plane comparable to those of other conference schools.

The most important coaching appointment was the one that brought Ralph Graham back to his alma mater. Graham was a three-sports star at Kansas State in the early thirties. He was all Big Six fullback and led the conference scoring for three years. In 1932 he was the nation's second high football scorer. Graham came to Kansas State after three successful years of coaching at Wichita University. Emmett Breen and John Crawley are also former Wildcat grid stars.

AT THE END of the 1948 spring semester, the Kansas State Athletic Council hoped it had placed Wildcat athletics firmly on their way to rehabilitation. During the 1947-48 school year, the Council made five appointments and approved three others. The newest additions to the K-State sports family appointed by the Council are Ralph Graham, head football coach; Fred Winters, freshman basketball coach; Leon Reynard, SMILING FRED PARRIS directed K-State sports publicity to an all-time high. Under his guidance, Wildcat sports received nation wide press association, news photo service and radio coverage. He doubles as radio news and journalism instructor. Frank Myers (right) had one of his busiest years as business manager of athletics as the Wildcat basketball team played before 175,000 people. He handled ticket and financial problems.

Ted Warren also came to Manhattan from Wichita where he served as assistant to Graham. His job, which brings him into contact with alumni leaders and high school talent over Kansas, is a progressive Kansas State athletics movement.

Fred Winters came to Kansas State from the West Coast. The freshman basketball coach is a former University of Southern California star. Besides working with future varsity material, Winters assists Head Coach Jack Gardner and serves as basketball scout.

The saddest moment of the sports year was the death in February of M. F. Ahearn, director of athletics emeritus and golf coach. "Mike" was Kansas State's most successful football coach. His 1910 team is the only one in K-State history to win as many as nine games. His 1906 team was the first to defeat Kansas University.

Benny York, a former golf captain, was appointed golf coach.

Grid Season Disastrous

FOR THE second successive season Kansas State's football team failed to win a game. The school ended the 1947 season by losing its 26th consecutive contest. This long victory drought is more extensive than that of any other major college team in the country.

The 1947 season was unique in that it was the third attempt in as many years for a different coaching staff to lift the fortunes of the fall sport from the lowly depths to which it had sunk.

Five conference opponents amassed a total of 157 points while limiting K-State to 27.

FORMER ALL-AMERICAN Sam Francis was Kansas State's third football coach in three years. The hard-working former Nebraska fullback's resignation was accepted by the Board of Regents at the end of the season.

Francis was faced with the problem of designing a scoring machine from material that was sadly lacking in fast backfield men. As the season wore on it became apparent that any chances the Wildcats had for victories were in throwing up a stubborn defense and hope for the fortunes of good breaks.

Francis was credited by the majority of his players as being a hard worker and a fine fellow.

TWELVE THOUSAND FANS saw the first Kansas State night football game. Although hopelessly outclassed, a stubborn Kansas State team held the classy Oklahoma A and M Cowboys to 12 points.

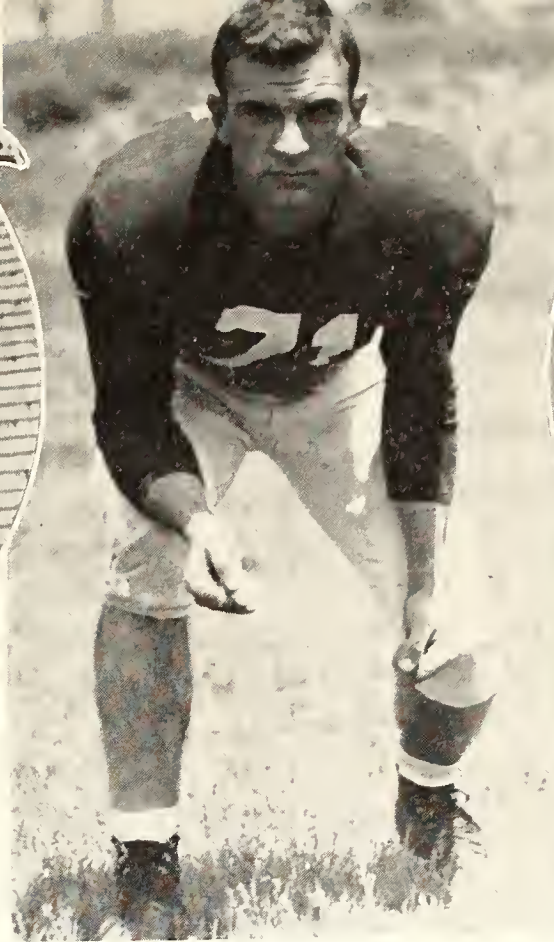

Wildcats Meet First Defeat

Oklahoma A and M opened the season by defeating the Wildcats 12 to 0 at Manhattan in the first home night game played by a Big Six team. From the opening kickoff the Aggies dominated the offensive play. They scored first early in the game. Their last touchdown came in the second half.

Kansas State made five first downs and ended the evening with a minus two yards rushing. A touchdown pass, Bill Church to Larry King, was nullified by a penalty. Dave Schirmer, Vern Converse and Ed McNeil, backed up by the rest of the line, thwarted several potential Cowboy scores.

LARRY KING, (left) veteran end, leaps high to snag a pass. Harold Bryan, (lower left) a mainstay in the Wildcat backfield, did most of the team's punting. Sparkplug Dana Atkins (bottom center) moved up to take over quarterback duties midway through the season. Vic Jones (lower right) played a lot of fullback when he was not on the injury list.

At Hands of Non-League Teams

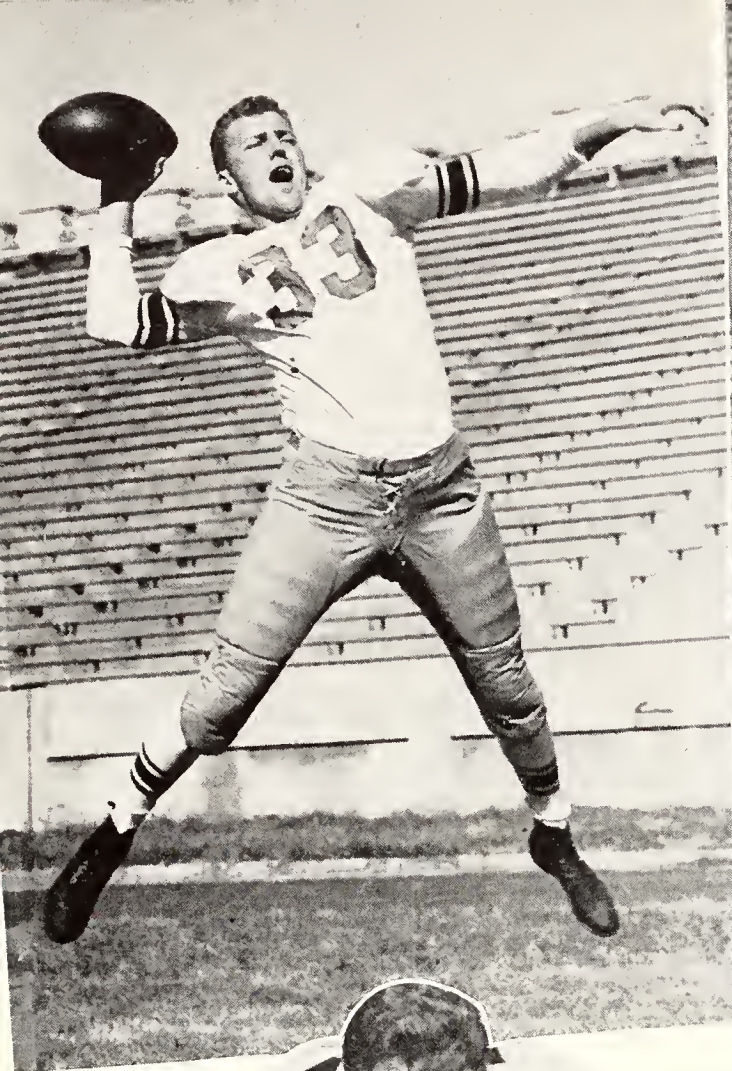

An underrated Texas Mines team ran over the Cats 20 to 6 at El Paso. The Miners ran up 23 first downs and 532 scrimmage yards to four first downs and 155 yards for the Wildcats. Ted Grimes scored the K-State touchdown.

Kansas State matched touchdowns with New Mexico at Manhattan. The lack of a place kicking specialist was the difference in the 20 to 18 game.

Jim Stehley tallied the first touchdown against the Lobos on a beautiful 28 yard run. Clever footwork, not speed, wove the elusive fullback through the New Mexico secondary. Bill Church's last period passing was another feature of the Cat's offensive show. He completed four straight passes, the last going to Wendell Pollock for a score.

TEXAS MINES BIG GUN Ed Smith reels off the yards before being hemmed in by K-Staters Webster (33), Jones (52), Church (29) and Romero (45).

Team Fights Losing

A tremendously powerful Boston College eleven trounced Kansas State 49 to 13 at Boston. The Wildcats won the admiration of 21,000 fans when they refused to quit and came back to notch two fourth quarter touchdowns. Tom Christopoulos scored both counters. He took a long pass from Bob Curry for the first one and went over from the one yard line for the other.

The Missouri Tigers swamped Kansas State under a deluge of tricky laterals 47 to 7 at Columbia. The Wildcats went for naught on the ground, and Bill Church's passing was the main feature of the Wildcats offensive show. He ran up 165 aerial yards and hit 11 of 28 flips.

A PACK OF WILDCATS BRING down a New Mexico Lobo in the close night game. The final score was 20 to 18.

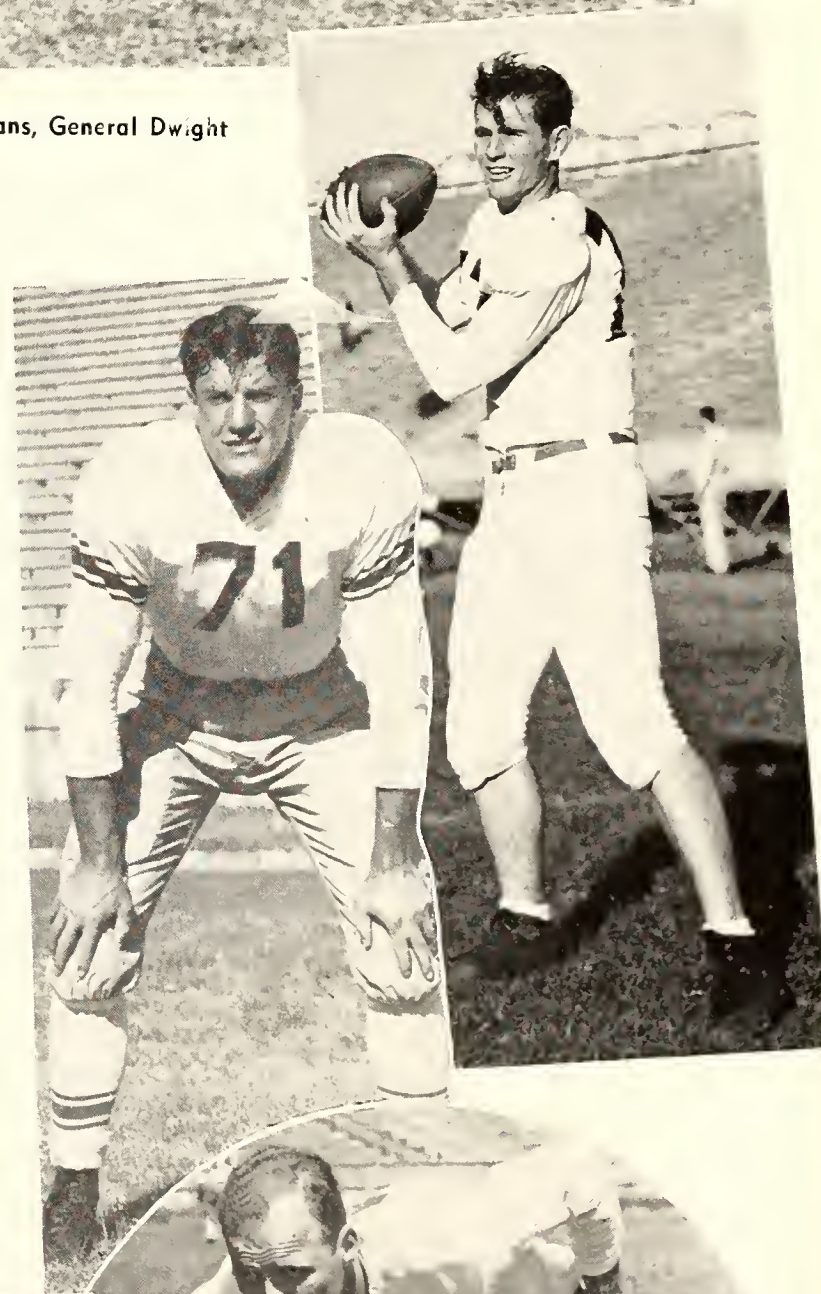

HAROLD BRYAN RUNS UP YARDAGE against Nebraska in the Homecoming tilt before 17,000 fans, General Dwight D. Eisenhower and other dignitaries.

Battle in Early Season

Inspired by a large Homecoming crowd, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and the superb play of little Dana Atkins, the underdog Wildcats put up a great battle before going down to Nebraska 14 to 7. They kept 17,000 fans screaming and Nebraska Coach Bernie Masterson jumping for the entire game. Two breaks aided the Huskers in their victory.

Jim Stehley scored the game's first touchdown on a twisting 51 yard jaunt. Atkins' quarterback play was perhaps the best individual Cat performance of the season. He lugged four Nebraska punts upfield for 69 yards, and halted a potential Husker touchdown drive by intercepting a pass. His spirit and offensive drive headed the Cats goalward on several occasions, but each time the heavier Huskers withstood the assault.

CLARENCE BRANCH (upper right) was the best all-around Kansas State end. Rollin Prather has promise of becoming a great end (center right). He was named to Boston College's all-opponent team. Huck Heath (lower right) won his fourth varsity football letter at a tackle position. Heath played with Bill Melody (lower center) in the Mo-Kan bowl game at Kansas City. Melody, a transfer from South Dakota State, was a smart defensive center.

Cats Routed By Jayhawks

Kansas State fans who traveled to Lawrence to witness the annual intra-state rivalry between Kansas University and the Wildcats, saw the worst football exhibition put on by a Wildcat team in years.

The conference co-champions hardly got a workout during the 55 to 0 rout. Besides running up the lopsided score, the Jayhawkers didn't allow the sloppily geared Kansas State offensive to penetrate into Kansas territory until the final quarter, and then the Wildcats went into the forbidden land via 15 yards paced off by the referee. The bitter defeat culminated a dark, dismal day for players and fans alike.

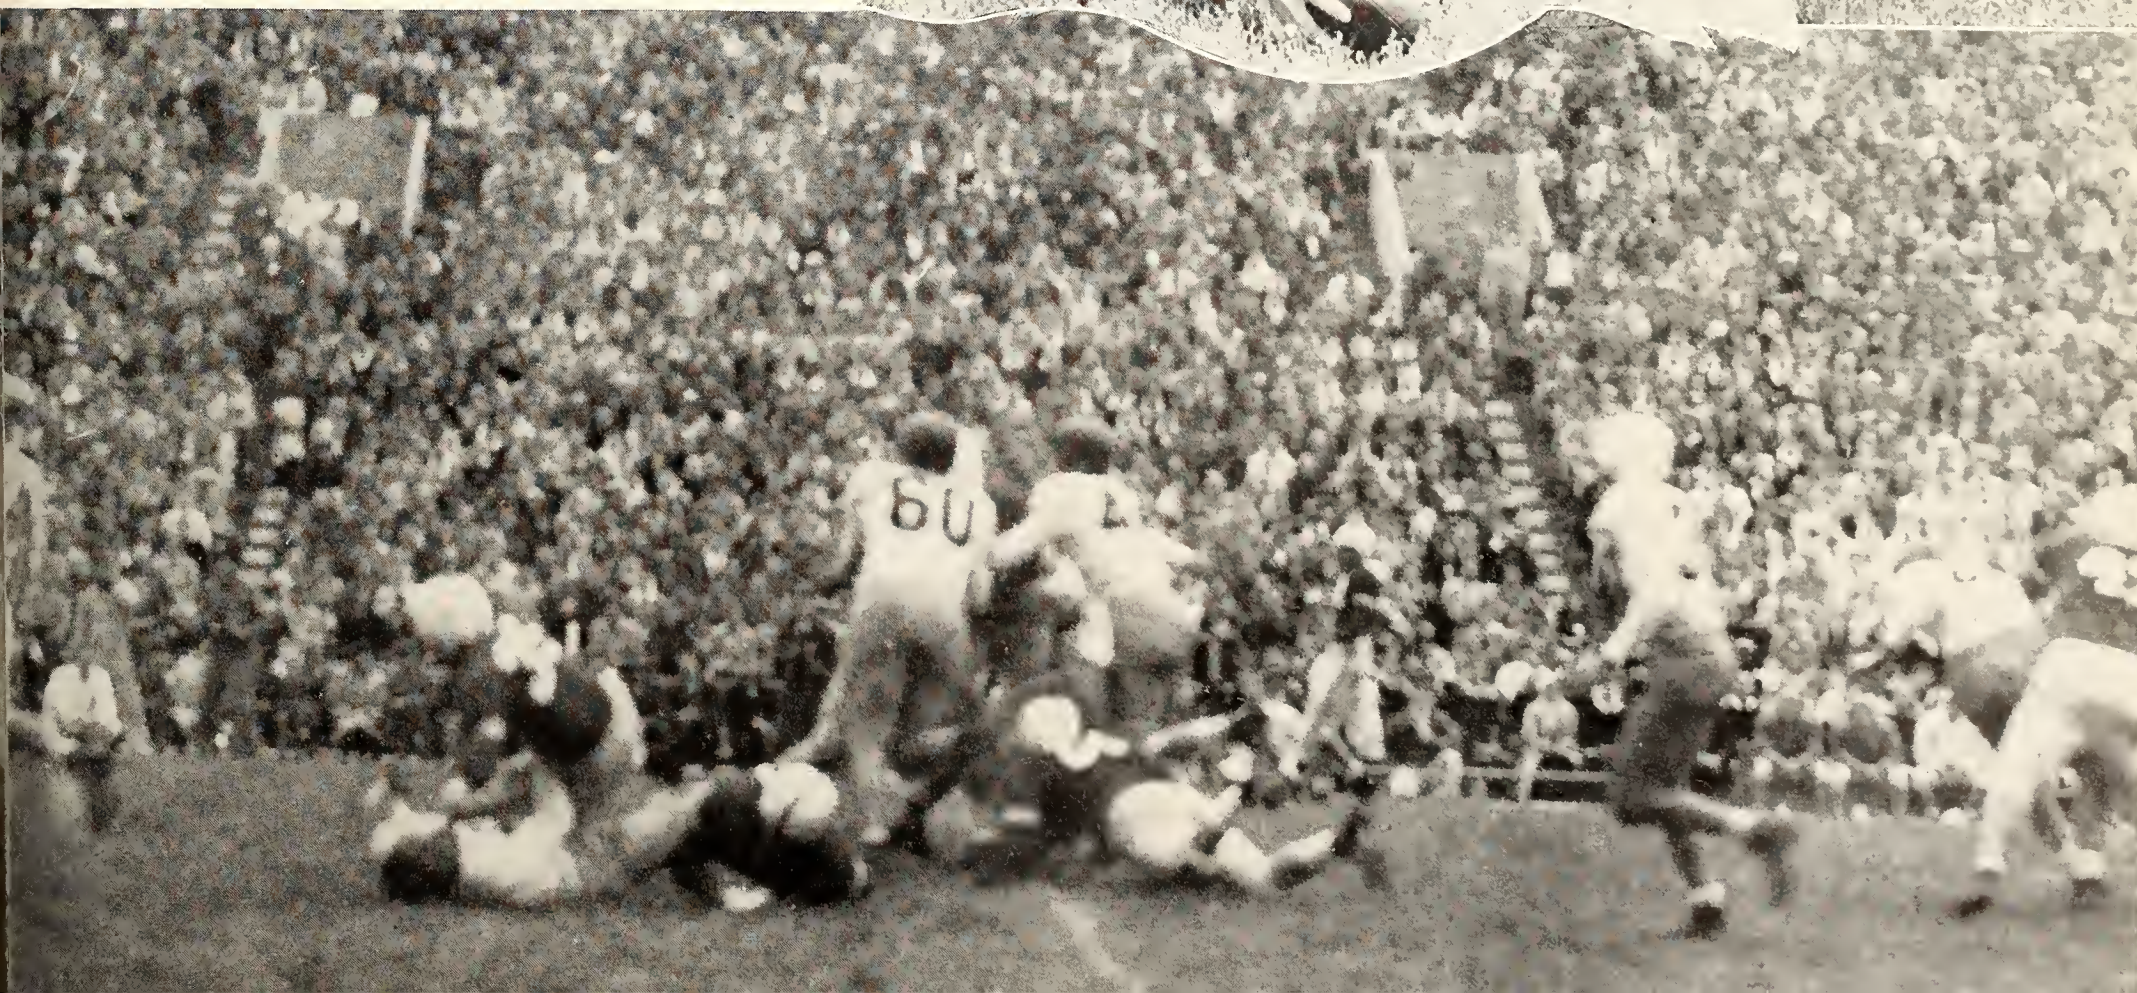

Give Sooners Full Afternoon

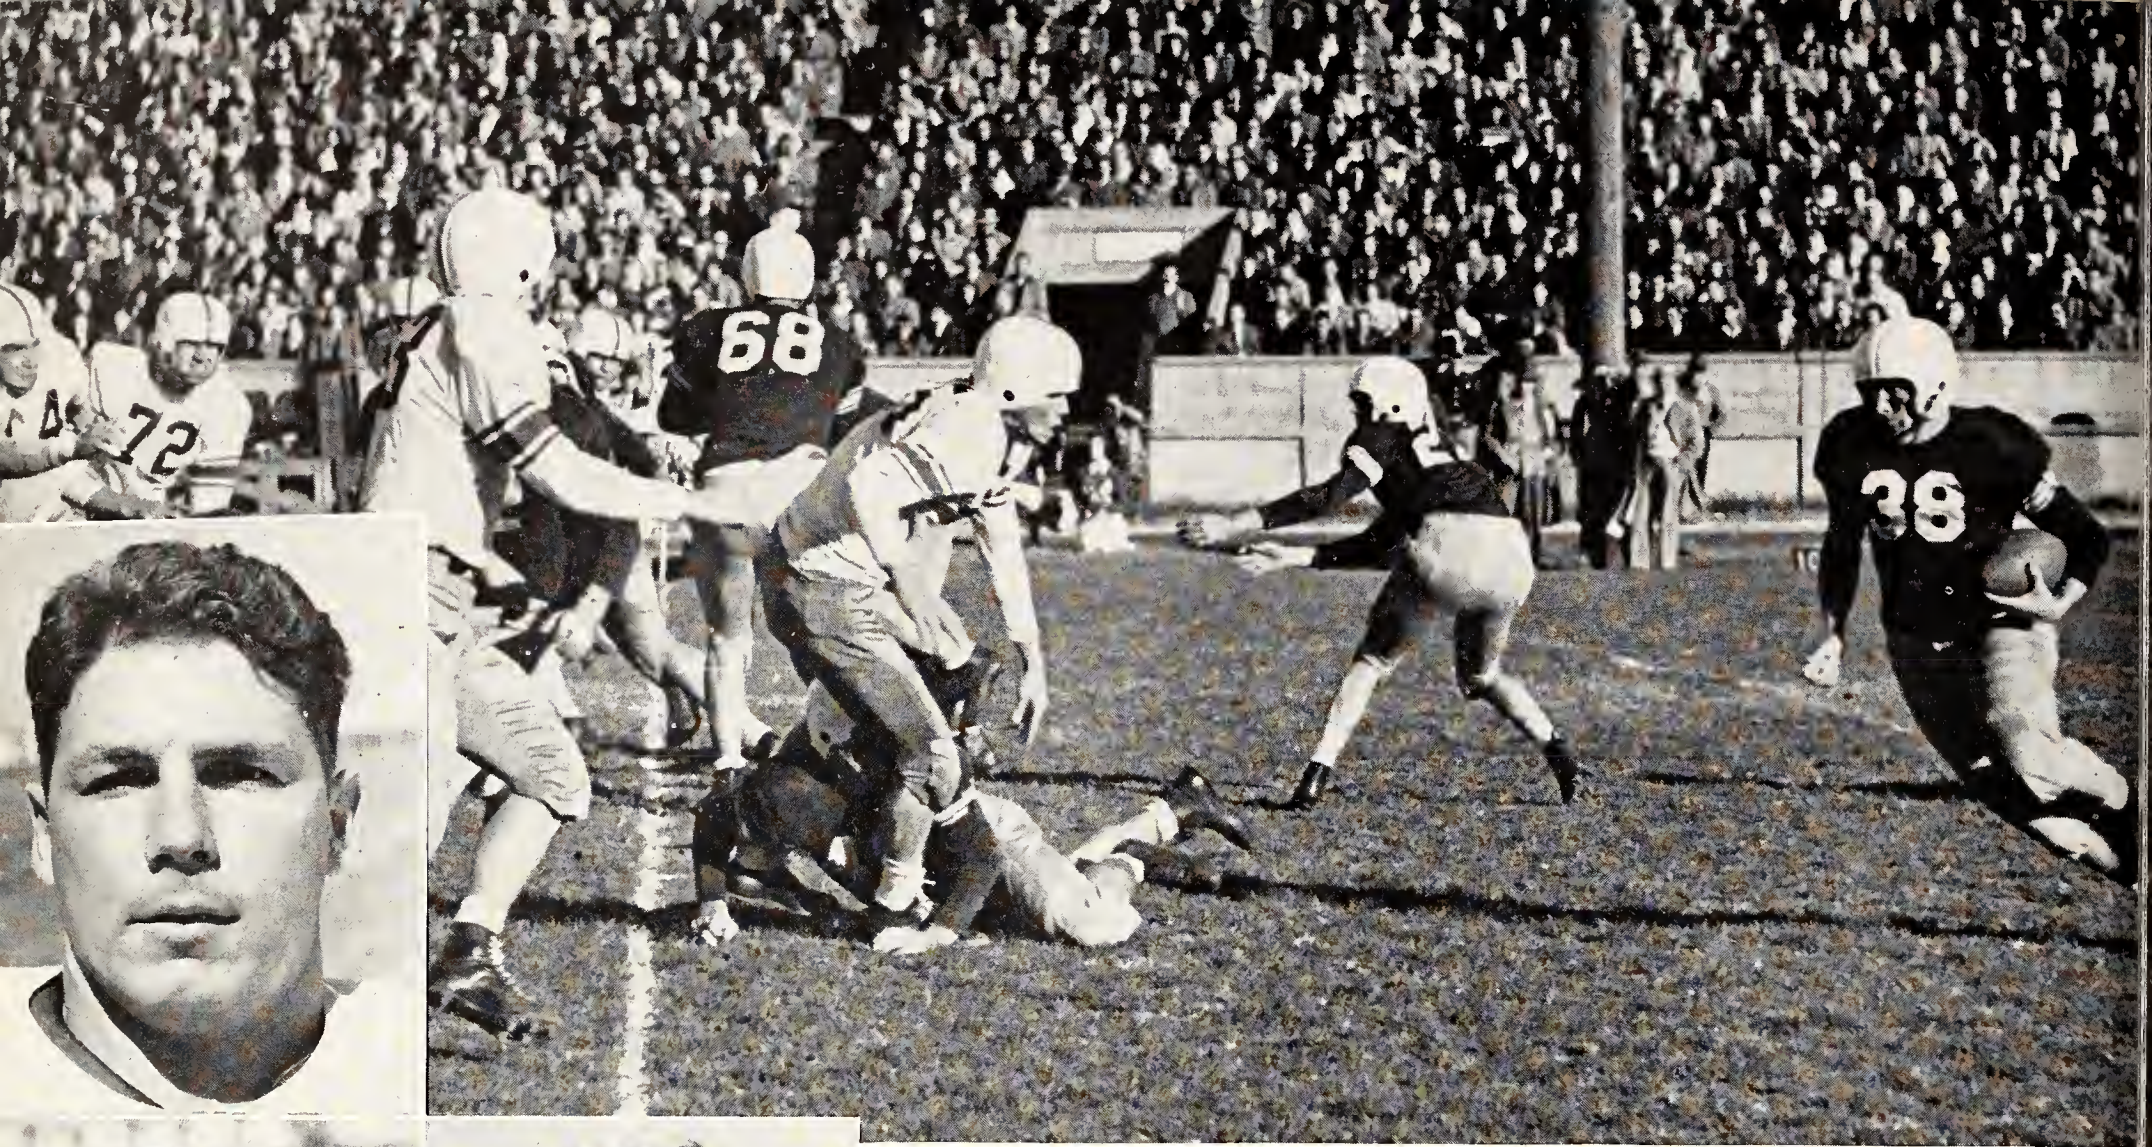

Following the Lawrence massacre, the Wildcats pulled themselves together and met the Oklahoma Sooners, holders of the other half of the title. The contrast between the K. U. performance and the battle put up by the Cats against the Sooners was comparable to black and white. Although bowing to Oklahoma 28 to 13, Kansas State played its best game of the season. In losing to a greatly superior club, the Kansas State team captured the respect of 12,000 fans and 35 Sooner football players.

Kansas State scored the first touchdown of the game when Dana Atkins hit Clarence Branch with a pass. The Sooners stormed back to tie the score immediately, then gradually went into the lead.

The last Kansas State touchdown was scored by Branch on one of the trickiest plays shown by the Cats all season. With a double flanker formation set up with Branch, Christopoulos, and Bryan wide, Atkins took the ball from center and lateralled far across the field to Bryan, who heaved 45 yards to Branch in the clear.

GALE LEHMANS (top) was a good defensive back. Ray Romero (center right) started season as fullback, moved to guard where he stood out. Center John Conley (right) was a tough, plucky line backer. (Far right) guard Ed McNeil, who suffered an early season ailment came back late to bolster the line. (Below) . . . one of the few times a K.U. back was stopped for no gain.

Drop Into League Cellar

The Wildcats closed their conference play against Iowa State at Ames. Going down 14 to 0, Kansas State dropped into the cellar for the third straight season. The condition of the playing field was extremely poor. An all-night snow blanketed the gridiron and forced workmen to scrape the field before game time. Soon after the opening kickoff the turf was turned into a quagmire.

Iowa State scored its first touchdown after recovering a third quarter fumble on the Kansas State four yard line. The Cyclones moved 52 yards on two pass plays for the other counter. Harold Bryan's kicking stood out for Kansas State. Offensively the Cats picked up a skimpy 43 yards to 242 for the Cyclones. The loss of Atkins by a severely cut leg early in the contest darkened Wildcat hopes for a win.

The Cats traveled to Gainesville, Fla. to drop their tenth game of the season and the school's twenty-sixth straight. The 'Gators from the University of Florida nailed the lid on the miserable season with a 25 to 7 smash.

Several members of Lud Fiser's frosh squad which battled the varsity on even terms weekly, offered hope for better football years to come.

Pepsters Enthusiastic in Successful Year

PEP and enthusiasm flowed high this year as the Purple Pepsters, K-State's chapter of the national organization Phi Sigma Chi, turned on the speed that made 1947-48 the most successful year in the history of the chapter.

Beating leap year to the punch, the girls took the boys to the annual Pepster's Gold Diggers Ball, an all-school affair. The highlight of the evening was the crowning of Bob Dunlap as King of Pep.

The Pepsters also sponsored a new attraction to the campus, the Heart Throb Ball, on Valentine's Day. Bob Rogers was crowned King of Hearts during the night's festivities.

Their big project was buying new sweaters for the organization. This was financed by the group through several money-raising activities.

The members chartered buses for trips to the Nebraska-Kansas State basketball game at Lincoln and for the NCAA district basketball play-offs between Oklahoma A and M, and Kansas State in Kansas City, Mo. The Purple Pepsters also played an important part in the successful "Gifts for Gardner and the Boys" drive in the spring.

Headed by Naomi Fralick, president, the officers of the Purple Pepsters led a well-organized group of 72 members which did not fail to back all activities in the interest of college pep and varsity teams.

Sports Spotlight on K-State as Cats Capture

WINNING 20 of 24 games during the regular season and 2 of 4 post season games, the Kansas State basketball team brought the College national sports recognition. The highlight of the season was a sensational last-half victory over Kansas which brought Kansas State its first basketball championship since 1919. This Cinderella season, by a team that finished in a tie for last place in the conference the season before, amazed sports experts, and was a blessing to the sinking athletic spirit at the College.

After winning three early season games against Rockhurst, 52 to 37; Culver-Stockton, 55 to 34; and Texas Christian 75 to 17, the Cats gave indications of the great season ahead when they whipped highly touted Indiana 61 to 53 at Kansas City.

Later the same week after beating Indiana, the Wildcats returned to the Kansas City boards and captured the pre-season Big Seven Tournament.

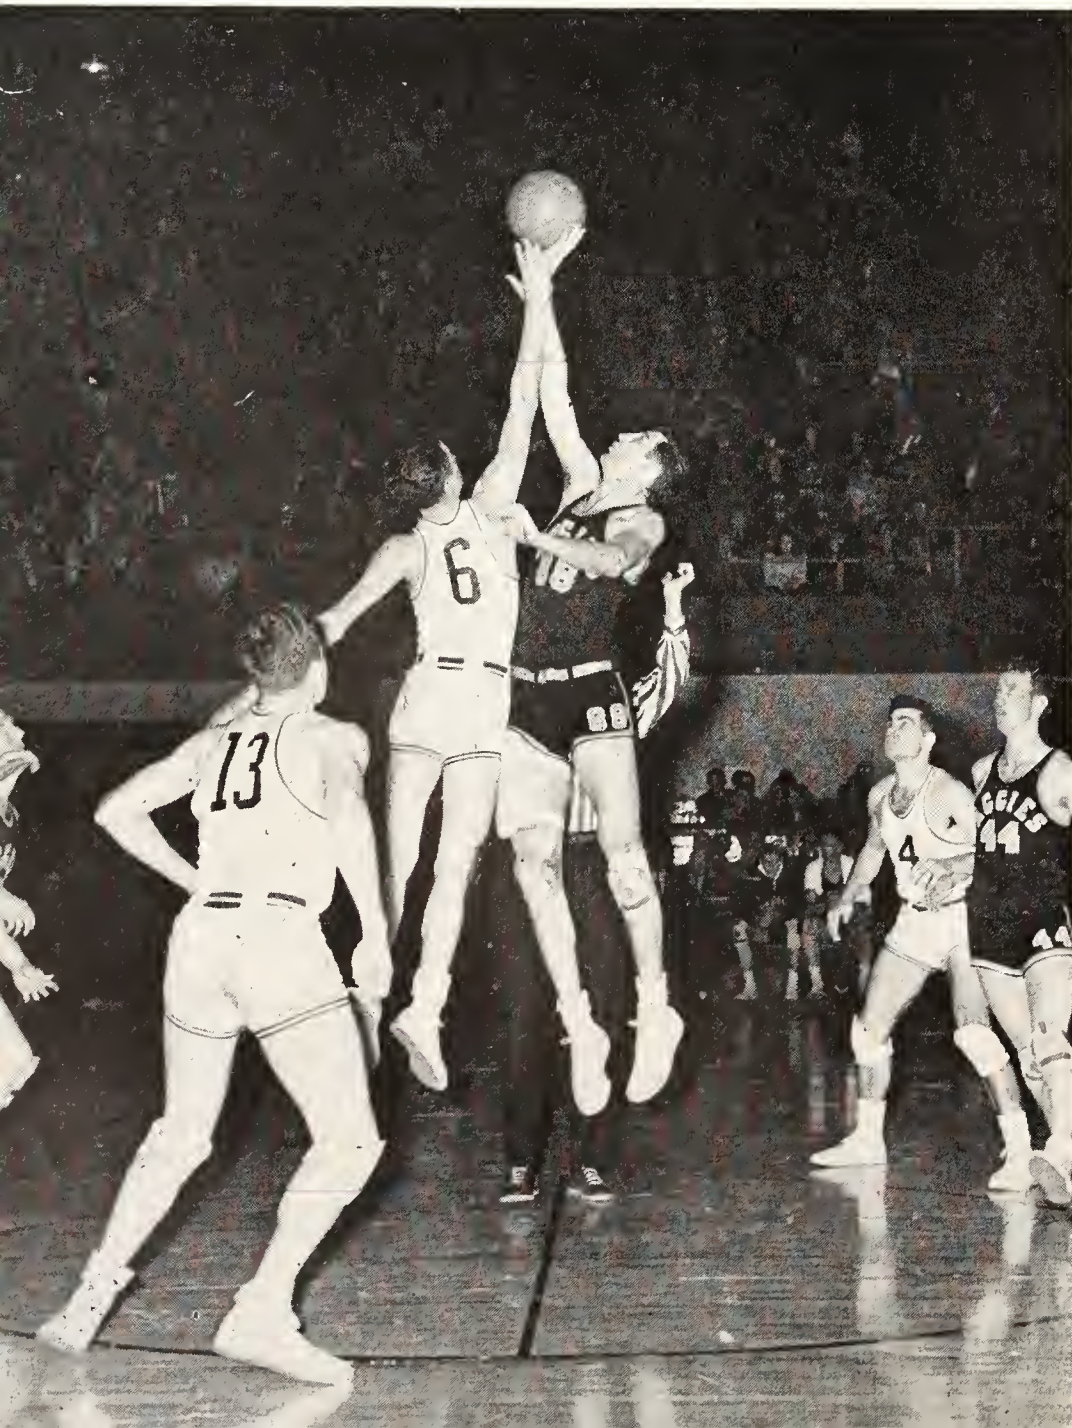

After trailing Oklahoma most of the first half, the KANSAS STATE upset Oklahoma A and M to win Big Seven tournament. The Wildcats' 50 points was the second highest total accumulated against the defensive-minded Cowboys in the last 10 years.

JACK GARDNER brought Kansas State its best basketball season in history during his fifth year at the school. Gardner turned down lucrative offers to remain at the Wildcat school.

Cats took over in the last canto and moved on to win their first tournament game 55 to 48. Kansas was no match in the semifinals, falling 56 to 42. The fast moving purple and white giant-killers felled mighty Oklahoma A and M 50 to 43 to win the championship. Sportsmen took a look at the week's basketball results and were amazed to find that K-State had beaten four of the nation's top teams.

BILL THUSTON (right) played in nearly half of the Wildcats' games as a reserve forward. He has two more years of competition.

Big Seven Crown--Place Fourth in Nation

BEFORE departing on their eastern holiday swing, the Cats warmed up against Ft. Hays with a ragged 60 to 32 victory.

Harold Howey with 14 points and Clarence Brannum with 13 led Kansas State to a close 47 to 45 decision over tough Canisius College in Buffalo.

From Buffalo the Cats moved on to Philadelphia to win their tenth straight game, beating St. Joseph College, 59 to 44. Jack Dean with 11 counters, Brannum with 10 and Rick Harman with eight paced the fast running Wildcat crew before the Convention Hall crowd. After the St. Joseph's game, Associated Press named K-State the nation's number one team.

Awed by 18,000 Madison Square Garden fans, the Wildcats had their victory string snipped rudely by Long Island University 65 to 47. The nervous Midwesterners found themselves trailing 32 to 22 at the half. Overcoming the "garden fever" K-State raged back to take a momentary 38 to 36 lead, but faltered in the stretch. Howey and Howard Shannon with 12 and 11 points respectively led the Wildcat attack.

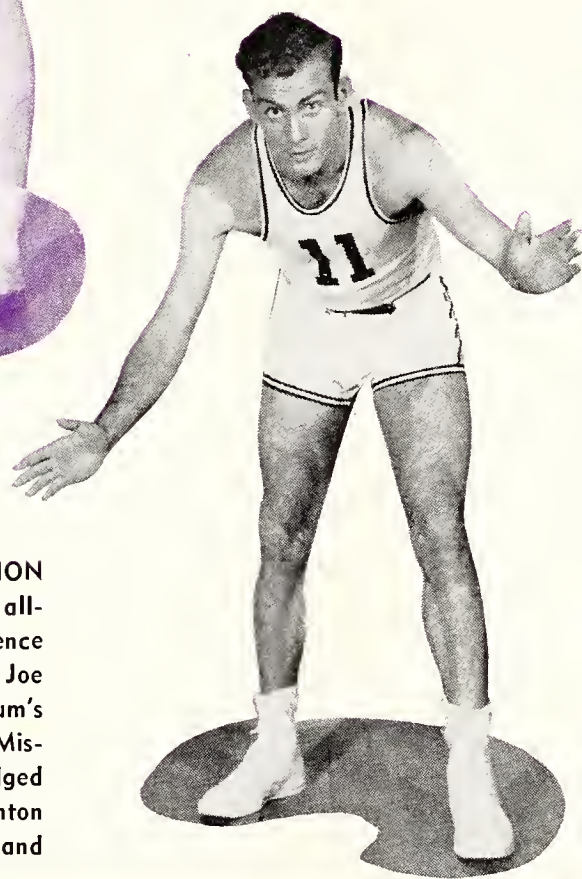

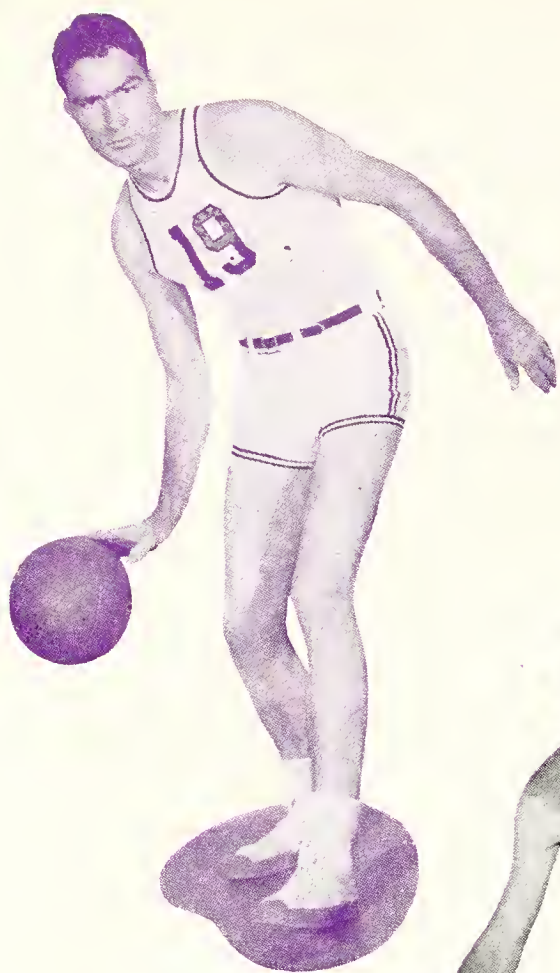

TYPICAL OF hustling Rick Harman's rebounding work was this action against St. Joseph's. Howard Shannon (above) was Kansas State's first all-America basketball player as selected by the Helm Foundation. The all-Big Seven guard hit all of his last 33 free throws for an unofficial national mark. His swift, smooth playing—shooting baskets in mid-air—awed Wildcat fans.

"Cinderella Kids" Show Fast

WINFIELD'S CONTRIBUTION to K-State basketball was all-Big Seven center, Clarence Brannum, (top left) and Joe Thornton (right). Brannum's last-second heave beat Missouri, and his free throw edged Kansas at Lawrence. Thornton was the squad humorist and spark plug in tight places.

The Wildcats opened their conference campaign with a 65 to 51 victory over Colorado in Nichols gym. The first half was all K-State. With their fast break working perfectly, the Wildcats moved out to a commanding 37 to 13 intermission lead. The second period was dominated by the Buffs. They poured in 38 points to 28 for Kansas State. The cold Wildcats went 11 minutes before scoring their first field goal of the second half. Rick Harman was high scorer for Kansas State with 16 points.

After leading only 24 to 22 at the half, the Cats turned on their famed speed to run away from a stubborn Iowa State team 61 to 42 at Manhattan. The K-State scoring column was divided equally between five men. Jack Dean, Howard Shannon and Lloyd Krone netted nine points. Howey got eight and Harman seven.

All around the conference, the basketball critics were starting to agree that K-State was championship bound.

THE WILDCATS opened their bid for Big Seven honors with a 65 to 51 triumph over Colorado in Nichols gym.

Performance at Mid-Season

The Drake Bulldogs came to Manhattan for a non-conference contest. After a close, cold first half paced by Jack Dean's accurate two handed shooting, the Cats ran on to a 56 to 45 triumph.

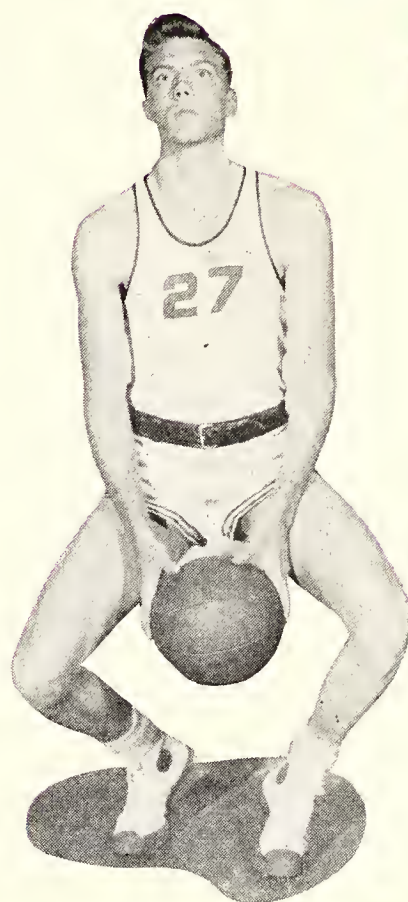

Road trip victories over Nebraska and Colorado moved the Wildcats up to first place in the conference race from which they were never dislodged for the remainder of the season.

Kansas State was near perfect in its 64 to 45 Nebraska win. The Wildcats hit nearly 45 percent of their field goal attempts. Harman came in with 12 points, Shannon 11, and Howey nine.

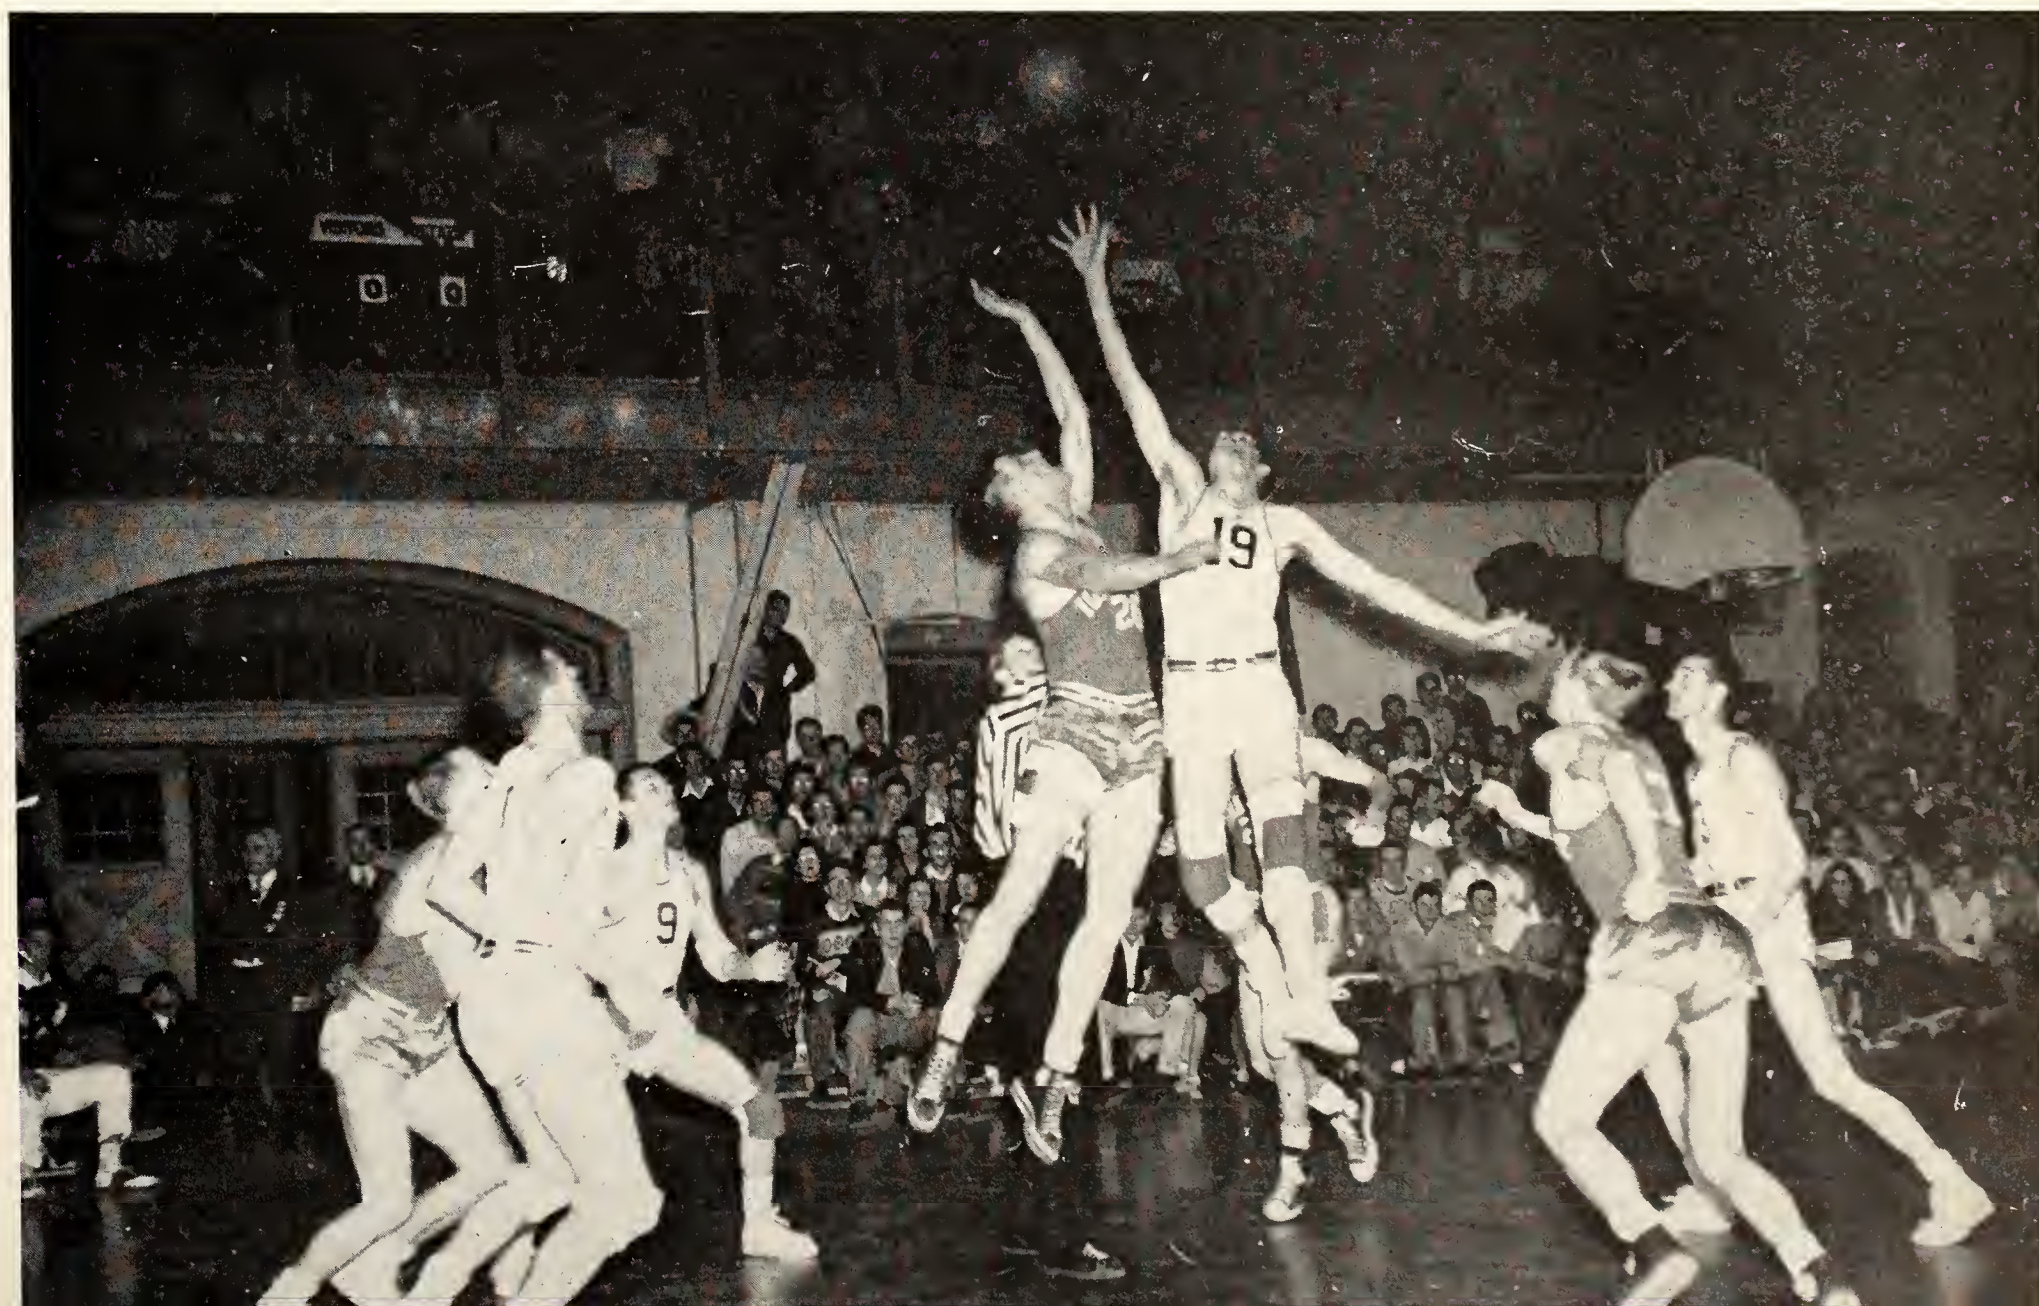

At Boulder, the Wildcats met a greatly improved club in their second game of the season with the Buffs. With Clarence Brannum leading the way with 14 points, the Cats came through with a narrow 50 to 44 victory over the Rocky Mountain outfit.

Wildcat players came home with a warning that Colorado would be the toughest team in the league in the future. They were.

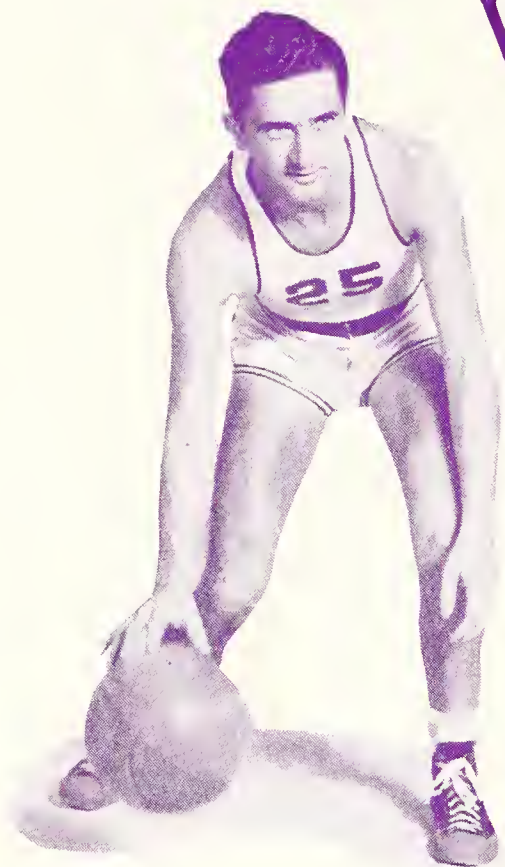

AFTER A TIGHT first half, the Cats pulled away to whip Iowa State at Manhattan 61 to 42 for its second conference win.

Wildcats Blow Hot and Cold In

JACK DEAN (top left) was a dependable defensive and floor man. He found his basket eye in post season games to give the Cats a boost in NCAA play. Despite the presence of Clark and Brannum, Ken Mahoney (right) broke into more than half of Wildcat games as a center.

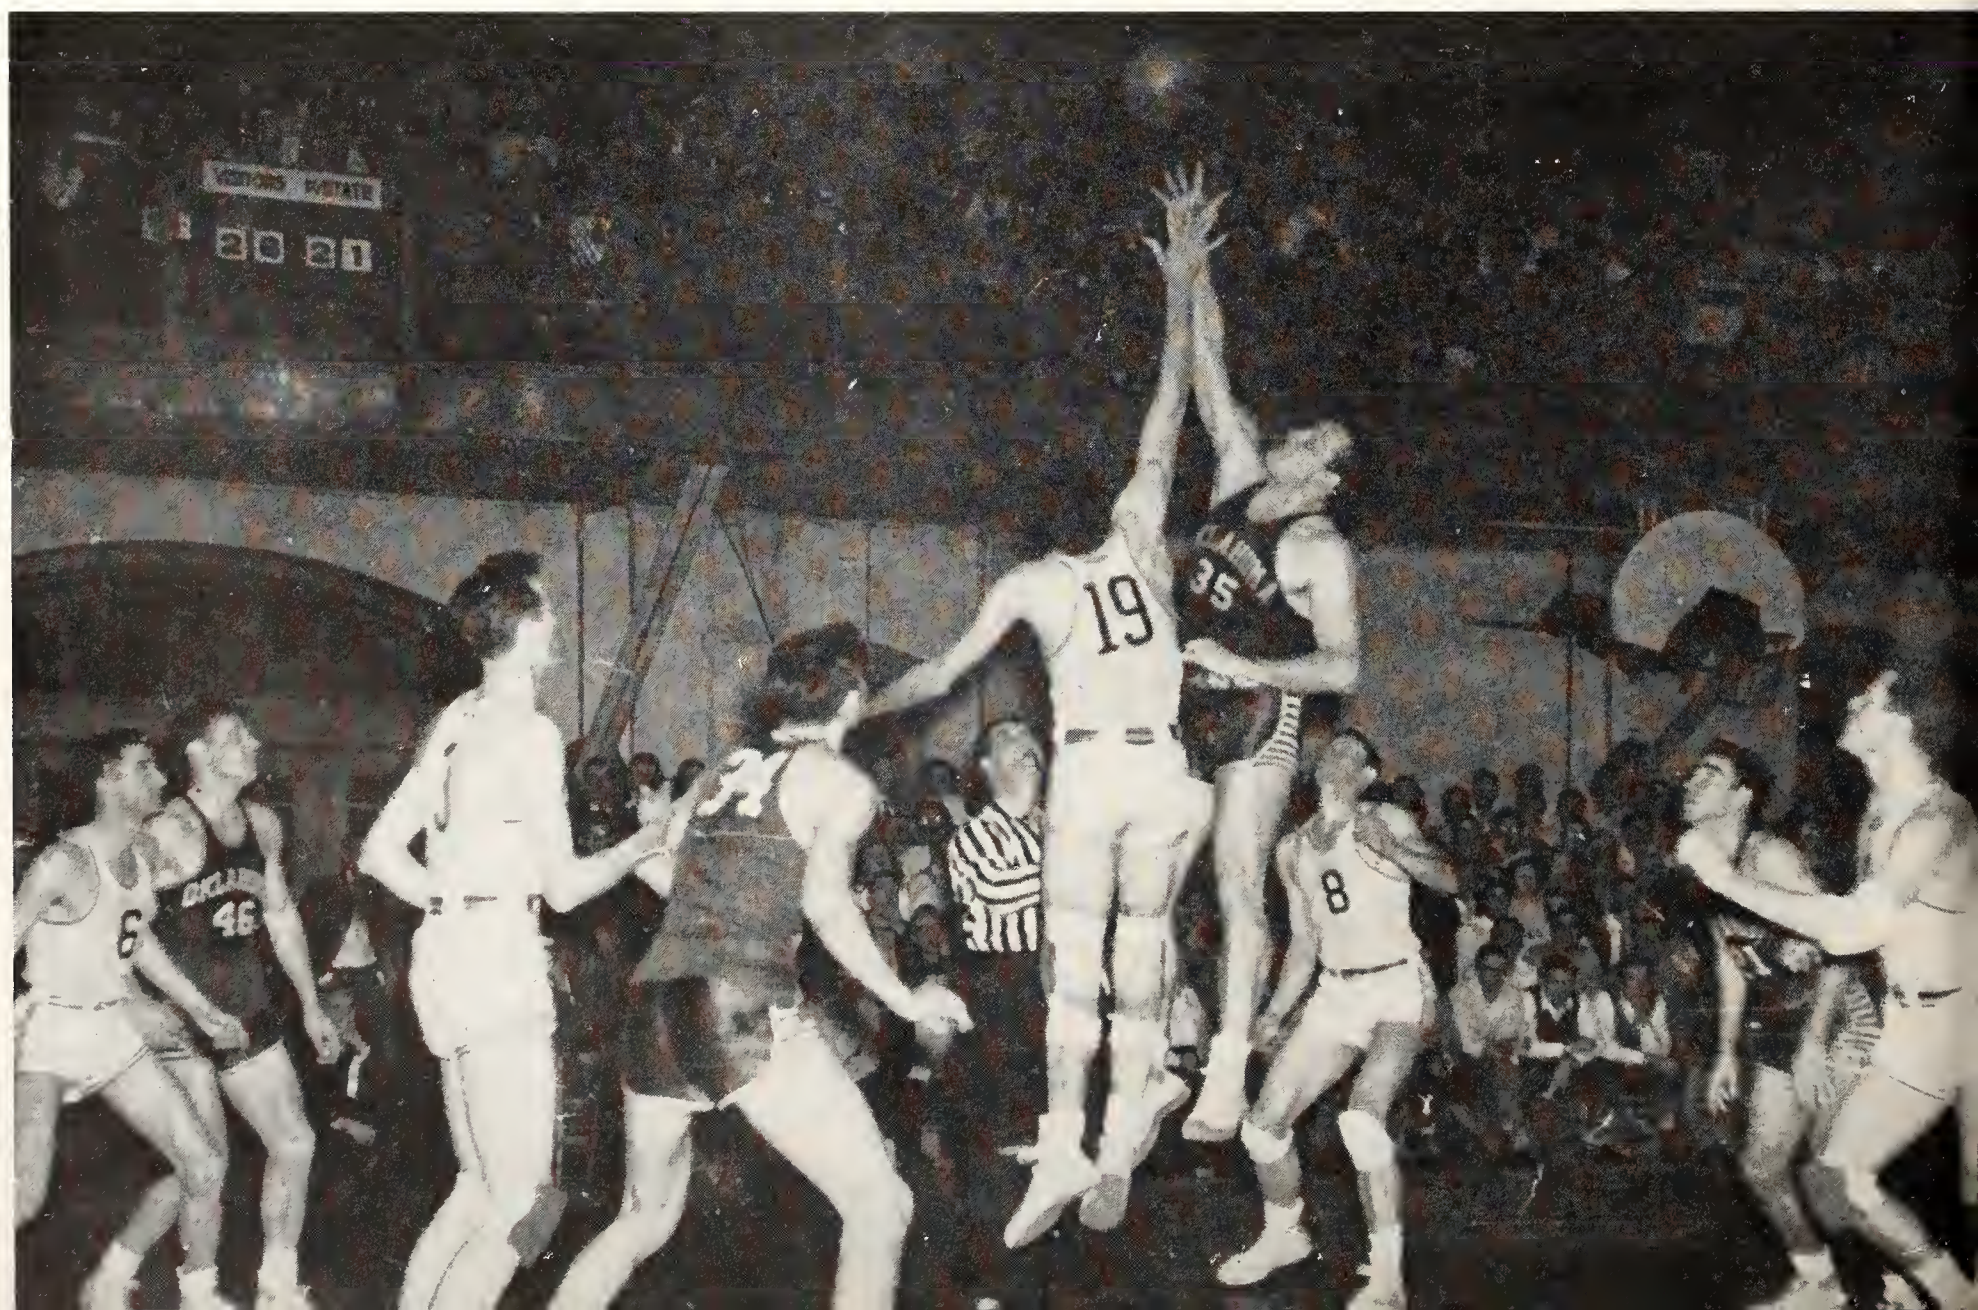

The inconsistent Missouri Tigers had a torrid night beating Kansas State at Columbia in a 48 to 46 thriller. It was the Wildcats' second loss of the season. Jumping Dan Pippin couldn't miss the basket as he pocketed 24 Missouri points. At one point in the last half the Tigers had a 39 to 27 edge. Howard Shannon hit 13 K-State points and sparked the late drive which nearly brought victory.

Oklahoma threw the conference race wide open with its thrilling 49 to 47 victory in Nichols. Lefty Paul Courty, who sifted 20 points for the Sooner's, hit the winning basket from outside the free throw circle with six seconds remaining after Hal Howey had just tied the score at 47 all with a free throw. Ward Clark, reserve center, racked 10 points to pace the Wildcats. Both teams were cold at the free throw line with Oklahoma hitting 13 of 24 flips and Kansas State 13 of 22. Clarence Brannum played a superb defensive game.

The fans, packed into Nichols Gymnasium were kept jumping throughout the game, which brought the first taste of defeat to K-Staters on their own boards.

THE OKLAHOMA SOONERS was the only team to beat Kansas State at Manhattan. Courty's one handed last second shot beat the Cats 49 to 47.

Jayhawk and Missouri Clashes

It was a big night February 18 in Nichols gym. The Wildcats smeared the Kansas Jayhawks 48 to 29 to increase their lead in the conference. But even more important to the students the first taste of revenge against talkative Dr. "Phog" Allen, K.U. coach who raised the question of Clarence Brannum's eligibility, was satisfied.

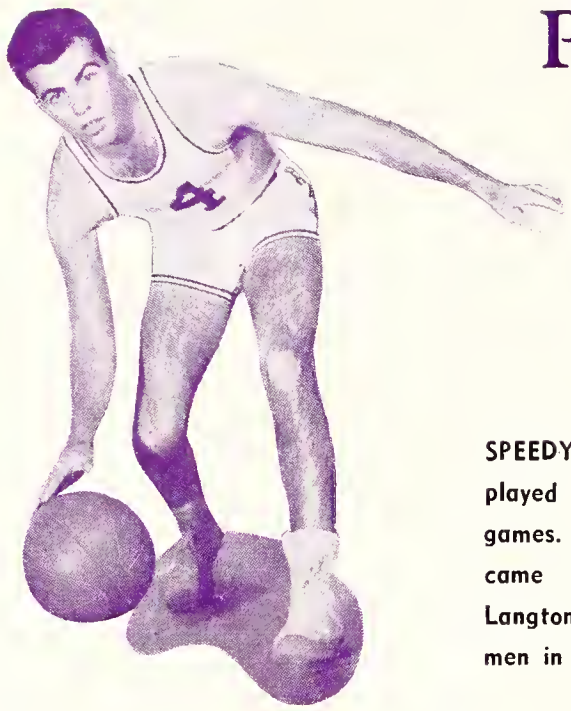

K.U. tried a stalling type of offense early in the game. The ball-controlling Jayhawkers shot at the hoop only three times the first half. Kansas State played along at the K.U. tempo and left the floor with a 14 to 9 lead. After the rest period the Wildcats began running, and K.U., before hardly knowing what had happened, found itself far behind. The Birds went 10 minutes of the second half before scoring their first field goal. Harman led the scoring with 13 points. Shannon, while limiting Otto Schnellbacher, star K.U. forward to six points, contributed 10 points to the Cat scoring ledger.

THE MISSOURI GAME at Manhattan was featured by three baskets in the last 12 seconds. Brannum's last second goal gave the Cats a 55 to 53 victory.

RICK HARMAN was the conference's most promising sophomore. He was chosen on several all-conference teams. Hard working Rick finished second in team scoring. Bob Johnson (below) played in two games, shot twice and scored two goals.

Purple and White Players Scrap for SPEEDY GUARD Al Langton played in all Kansas State games. Most of his 92 points came at crucial moments. Langton was one of the fastest men in the nation.

KANSAS STATE traveled to Ames to take its sixth conference victory from Iowa State by a narrow 55 to 49 margin.

When Missouri came north for the second meeting with K-State, the game turned out to be one of the most exciting contests in Manhattan in years. The hectic 55 to 53 win on Clarence Brannum's late one-hander moved the K-Staters farther out in front of the conference pack.

As in the contest earlier in the season at Columbia, the Cats again found themselves trailing Missouri at the half. They came back strong the second period with Harman spearheading the drive to go into a 26 to 25 lead. The Tigers caught fire and went back into the driver's seat where they stayed until Brannum put K-State ahead again 51 to 50 with two minutes remaining.

Missouri tied the score on a free throw. During the last 12 seconds, three field goals were made at opposite ends of the floor. Howard Shannon started it off with a neat pivot shot, from the side putting K-State back in front 53 to 51. But the smooth Pippin came back to knot the count with a long one-hander from just inside the center line. His goal cut the net with four seconds showing on the clock.

With an overtime period almost certain, the Cats grabbed the ball out of bounds, raced down the court with Brannum shooting his goal a split second before the gun went off. The perfect shot, in the air before the gun went off, barely rustled the cords.

"PHOG'S" STALL backfired at Manhattan as the Wildcats thrashed K. U. 48 to 29. Jack Bell (below) saw little action but added rebounding strength when in the game.

Narrow-Margin Victories Over League Teams

IT TOOK three substitutes teaming with regulars Howard Shannon and Rick Harman to turn back a speedy Nebraska team in Nichols. During the first half, the Huskers used a fast break to roll to a 28 to 18 lead. For the first time during the season, Coach Jack Gardner broke up his regular five to start a second half.

Dave Weatherby, senior forward, scored 10 points to wind up his home playing career. Relief guard Al Langton sifted 10 and sub center Ward Clark banged in eight to help pull the Cats out of the fire in their last home game of the season. Harman was high scorer with 14 points. The scrappy forward played a brilliant floor and rebounding game. Shannon scored 10 points and played a top defensive game.

Clarence Brannum's free throw in the closing seconds of the K.U. game at Lawrence gave Kansas State its first basketball championship in 29 years. The toss culminated one of the greatest second half comebacks in the history of Kansas State basketball. The Wildcats were seemingly hopelessly behind 32 to 16 at the half. Shannon, Harman and Weatherby sparked the late rally.

JACK DEAN drives in to poke at the basket against the hapless Jayhawkers. Jerry Patrick (below) saw little service, but was a scrapper when in the game.

WARD LEE CLARK was good enough to play regular if Brannum hadn't been around. He played in every game, and turned into one of Gardner's best replacements.

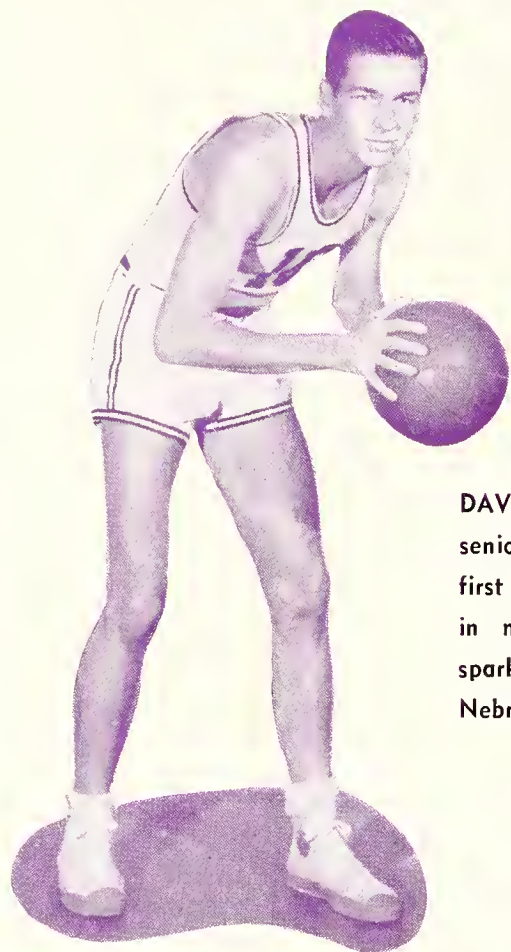

With an NCAA playoff bid already in its pocket, Kansas State closed its regular season by dropping a 56 to 52 game to Oklahoma at Norman.

Clarence Brannum and Howard Shannon were unanimous choices on most all-conference selections. Harman and Howey were prominently mentioned on many first and second team choices. Shannon went on to win all-American recognition.

Basketeers Push Through NCAA

DAVE WEATHERBY, the only senior on the squad, was the first four-letter basketball player in modern K-State history. He sparked last half attacks against Nebraska and Kansas.

KANSAS STATE met Oklahoma A and M in a play-off game at Kansas City to determine the fifth district NCAA representative. Paced by Shannon with 16 points, the Cats threw the Cowboys for the second time during the season, 43 to 34. Kansas State never relinquished the lead, and the Pokes were able to tie the score but twice early in the contest.

Favored in the western NCAA playoffs at Kansas City, the Cats easily moved past Wyoming 58 to 48 in the first game. But Baylor's Bears won the right to meet Kentucky in the New York finals by coming from behind in a great last half to beat Kansas State 59 to 52.

The Wildcats lost third place in NCAA play 60 to 54 Holy Cross at Madison Square Garden. The Crusaders used a fast break more effectively than any previous Wildcat opponent to roll to a 36 to 24 halftime margin. Kansas State won the favor of the New York crowd by putting on a determined second half drive which fell just short of victory.

Early in the season, until the victory run was broken by L.I.U., the Cats ranked first among the nation's teams. During the past two seasons, Kansas State has won 24 of 30 non-conference games.

HARD MOMENTS were given the Cats by the Nebraska Cornhuskers until late in the second half. Rick Harman scored 13 points during the last half drive. The Huskers went down for the second time in succession against the hard-hitting Wildcat crew which won 56 to 49.

Playoffs To Take Second in West

Fred "Tex" Winters, freshman basketball coach, built one of the best freshman aggregations in K-State basketball history. The frosh gave the varsity a close game in a mid-season exhibition. Outstanding future varsity prospects include Ernie Barrett, Ed Head, Walt Way and Jack Stone.

HAL HOWEY, high scorer last season, developed into an outstanding team player. While playing a brilliant floor game, Howey found time to end year as team's third high scorer.

Competition Tough

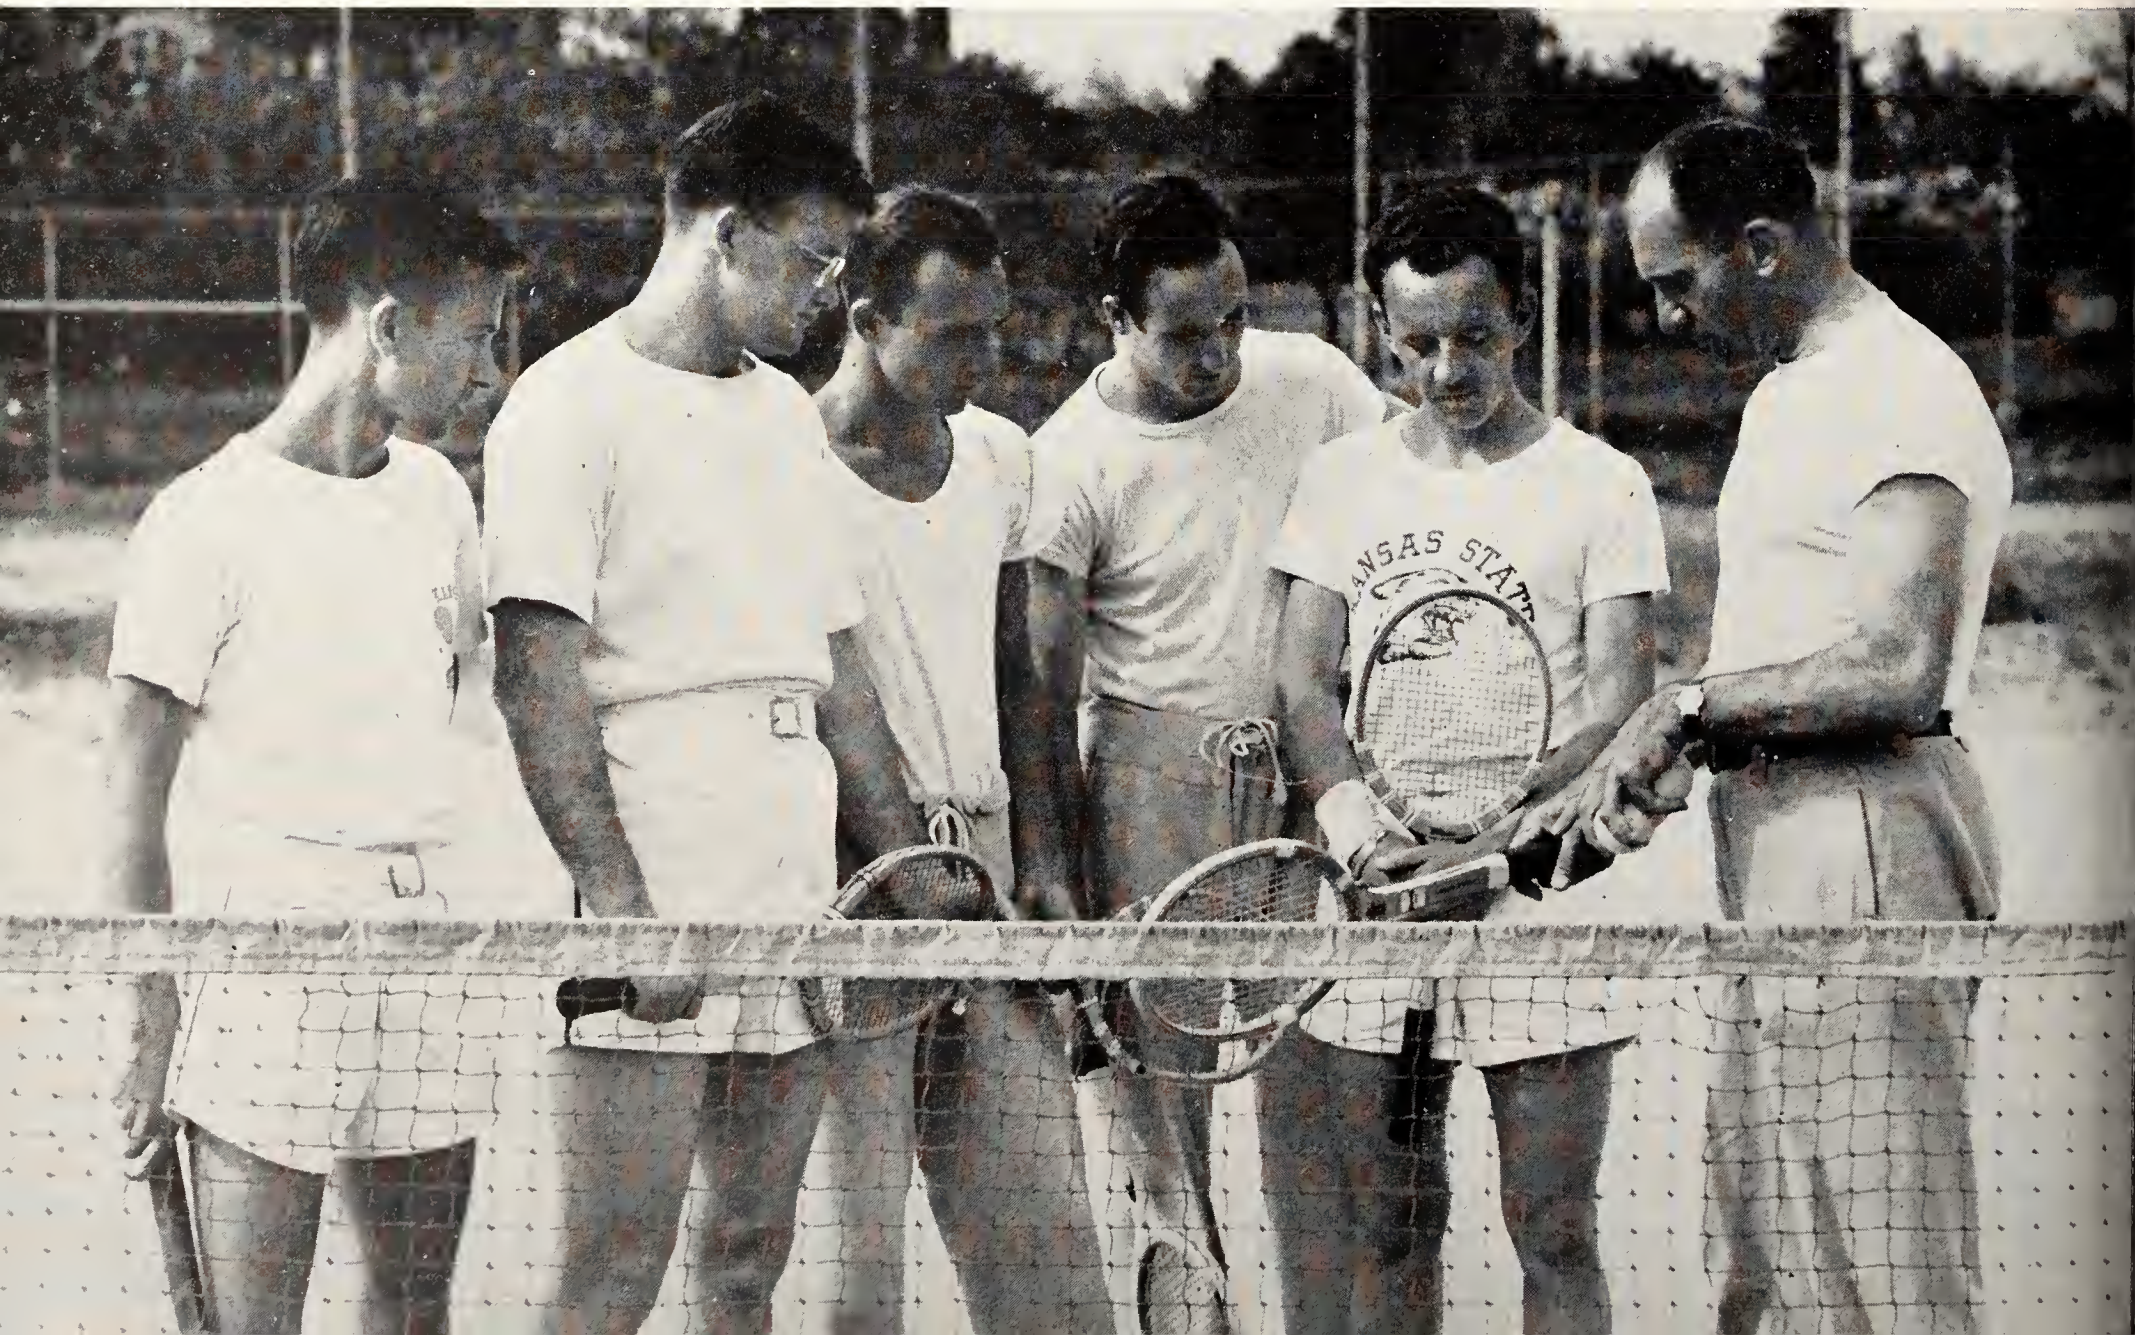

ALTHOUGH coming through with a better record than in 1946, the Cat tennis team could win but four of 11 meets. In conference play, "Cooney" Moll's netmen downed Nebraska, and outside the loop they defeated Emporia State twice and Iowa Preflight. They finished in fifth place in the conference standing.

M. F. "Mike" Ahearn's coaching of the 1947 golf team culminated 44 years of successful leadership in Kansas State athletic circles. The "grand old man" of Wildcat athletics died in February following an extended illness.

The golfers won three, tied one and lost eight meets. They finished last in the conference. Jay and Bob Funk paced the field in the Cat's 14½-3½ victory over Washburn. Don Bishop carded low medal in both Emporia State meets. The Hornets went down 17½ to ½ and 14 to 4.

Bats Boom for 16 Wins

FROM the largest turnout in Kansas State baseball history, the new diamond skipper, Coach Lud Fiser, built a club that successfully smashed its way through 16 of 22 games to third place in conference standings. More than 170 aspirants answered the first call for practice.

The Wildcats bested Oklahoma A and M 6 to 5 in 11 innings south of the Kansas border, in the first game of the season. Jack Dean hurled an eight-hit masterpiece, shutting out the Cowboys in the last nine frames. The Okies evened the series the following day when they battered three K-State pitchers for an 18 to 10 decision.

The bats boomed against Oklahoma City University to the tune of a 10 to 3 triumph. Dana Atkins and Dave Bremner paced the 11-hit attack with home runs.

The most resounding victory of the trip came at the expense of the Oklahoma Sooners. Wildcat hitters combed Oklahoma pitching for 17 safeties to give pitcher, Jack Dean, his second win, 20 to 6.

Good Record on Mound

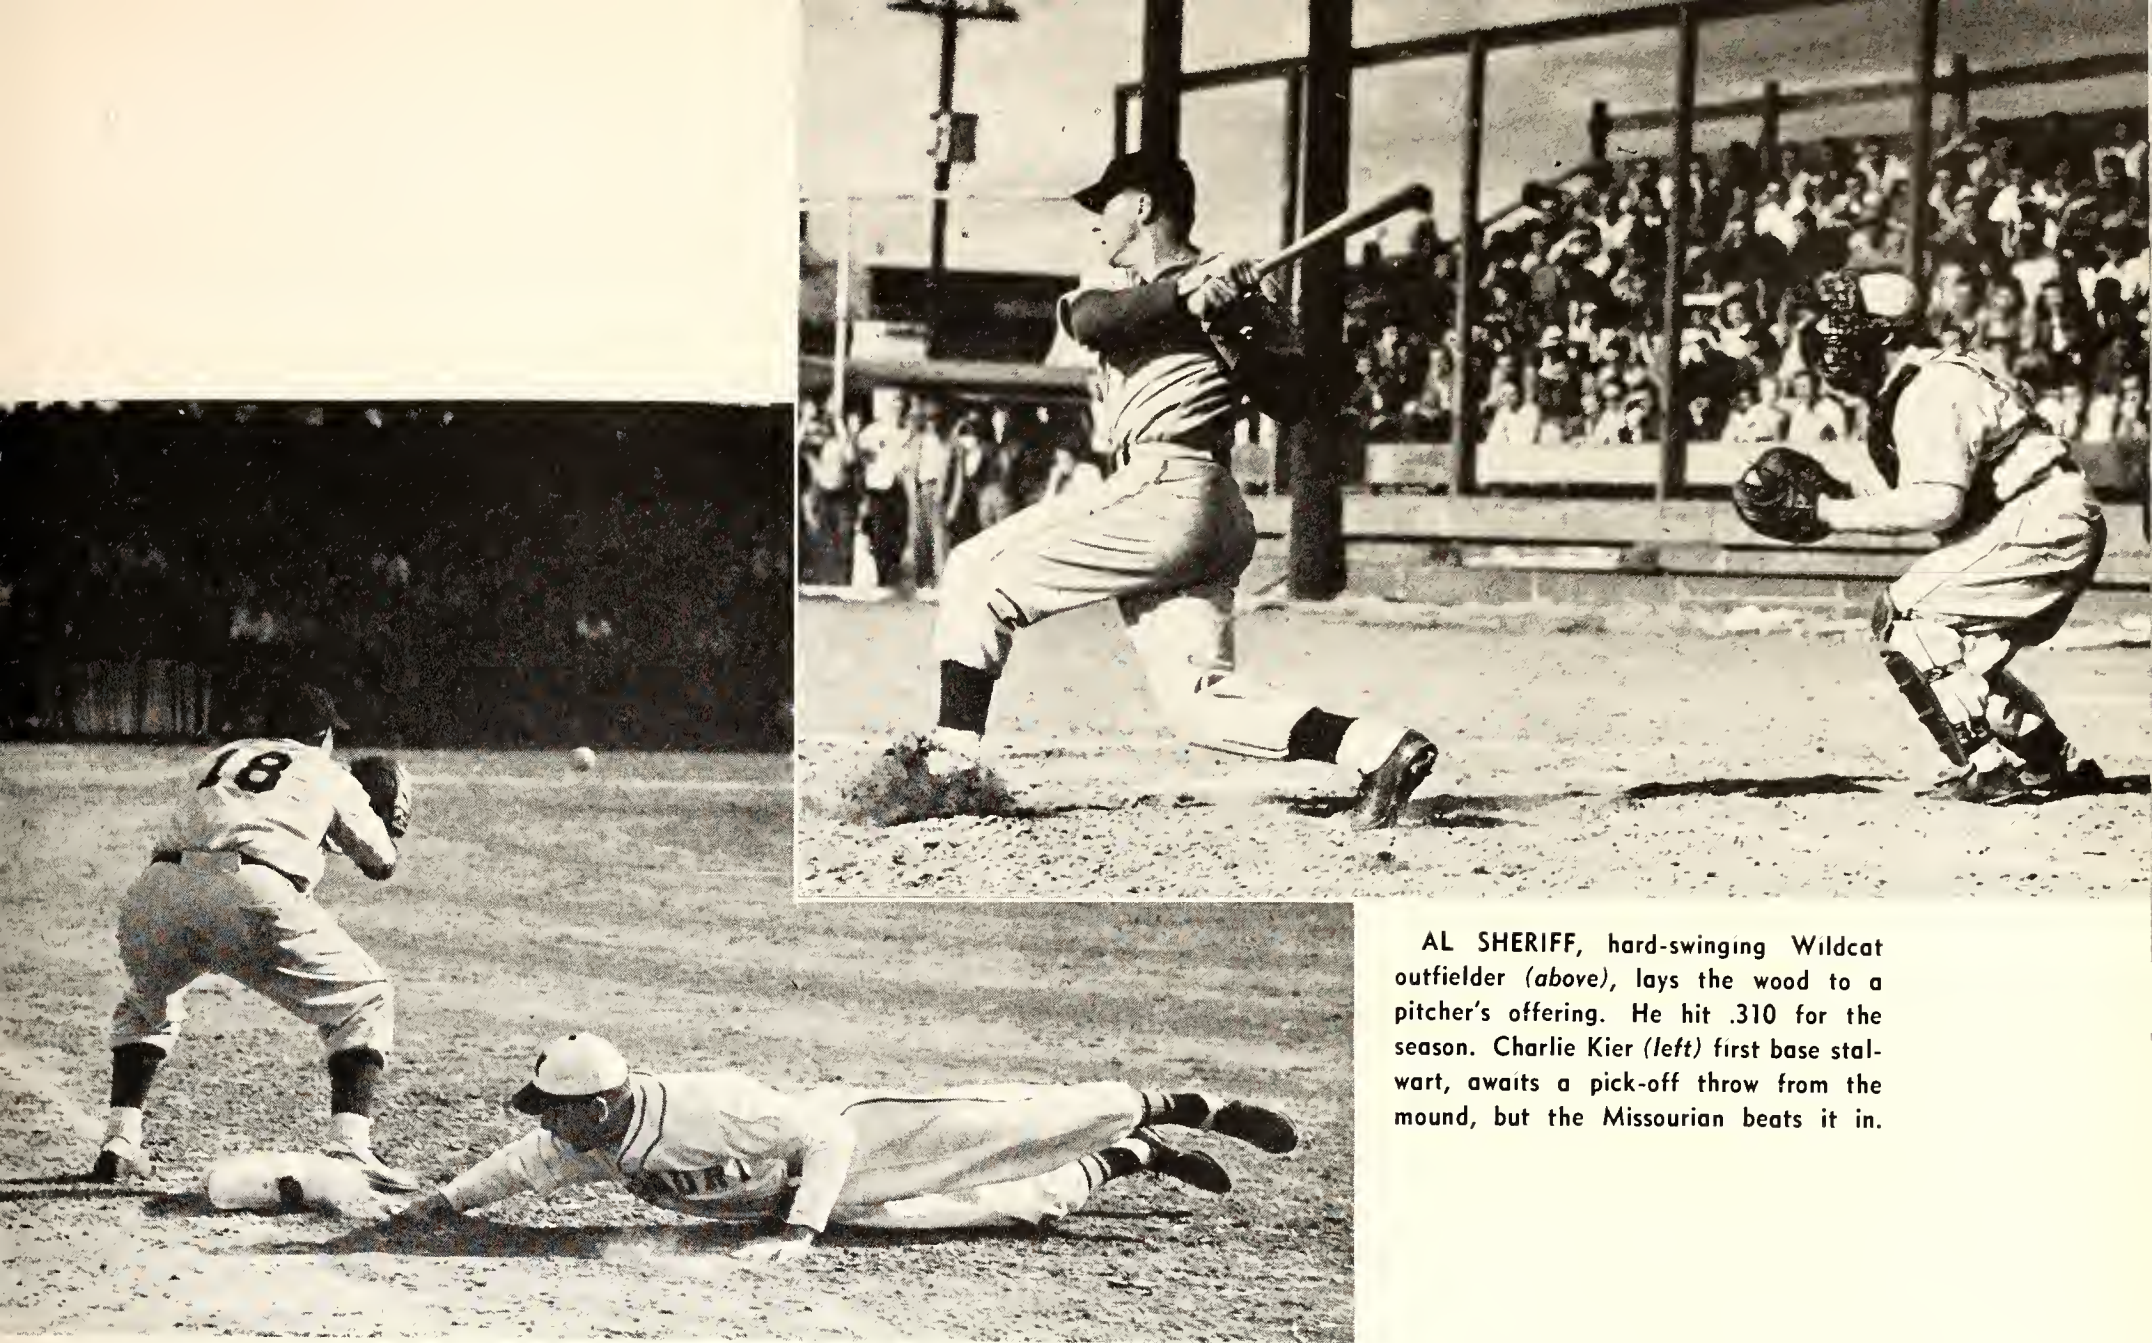

HURLER of the season was Jack Dean, who threw five wins and one loss for the best pitching record in conference play. Jack Bell, other Wildcat ace, struck out 41 conference batters.

Bow to K.U. in Play at Lawrence

THE CATS played their two worst games of the season against Kansas at Lawrence. The Jayhawkers took advantage of sloppy Kansas State defensive play to take both ends of a twin bill, 9 to 8, and 3 to 2.

K.U. went into an early lead in the opener, scoring two runs after two men were out in the second inning.

K-State came back with five tallies in the third. Chew singled home two runs, and scored with Atkins on Charlie Kier's triple. Kier scored on Al Sheriff's hit.

The Wildcats increased their lead in the fourth frame when Atkins scored on a K.U. error after tripling Bartley home. Atkins added the last run in the sixth inning. The fiery second baseman hit for the fourth straight time, stole second, moved to third on a wild pitch and scored on an outfield fly.

Forges Ahead

Meanwhile, K.U. scored four times in its part of the fifth inning, again after two were out. They tied the count at 8-8 in the sixth, using two Cat errors. The Hawks punched across the clincher in the last inning with a hit, stolen base, sacrifice and another hit.

Big Jack Bell pitched four-hit ball for the Cats in the finale, but his faltering mates handed K.U. three runs. In the last inning, with K-State leading 2 to 1, the Hawks used two hits and three errors to score twice.

The Wildcats whipped Kansas Wesleyan 7 to 1 in their home debut. The sluggers pounded out five extra-base hits, headlined by the home runs of Keith "Kite" Thomas and Charlie Kier and Al Sheriff's screaming triple. Four hurlers limited the Coyotes to four scattered blows.

Duane Holder was credited with the Coyote win, his second of the season. He pitched the first three innings allowing no hits and no runs. Bill Springer followed Holder for three innings, Al Fillmore took over for two and Bob McClure worked the ninth. A capacity crowd of 2,000 people saw the night game.

TOP RELIEF PITCHERS were Al Fillmore (left) and Bernie Zawatski. Fillmore, a fireball thrower, rounded into shape late in the season. Zawatski is remembered for his brilliant relief role against Nebraska. Each won two, lost none.

DANA ATKINS, hustling second baseman (below), moves around third to score against the Jayhawks. Atkins hit .300 in the conference and fielded .912.

Trounce Tigers Here and

BOUNCING back into the Big-Six title race, the Cats trimmed Missouri 4 to 2 and 4 to 3 at Manhattan. The double win moved them into a tie with Oklahoma and Nebraska for the league lead.

Jack Dean set the Tigers down in the first game with six hits, notching his third pitching triumph. The Missourians utilized the lean hurler's early wildness to score once in the first and again in the second inning.

Run for One

K-State got one back in its half of the second canto on some wild base running. Sheriff reached first on an error. He went all the way home when the Tiger second baseman took the shortstop's toss, missed the bag and threw wild to first base on an attempted double play.

Larry Gryskiewicz drove two runs home with a fourth inning single, and Sheriff singled Thomas across in the eighth to end the scoring.

Revenge Jayhawk Defeat

Kansas Wesleyan was edged 1 to 0 in a return engagement at Salina. Brilliant fielding sparked the play of both teams. K-State scored its run in the sixth inning on Dave Bremner's double and Dale Carr's single.

The Cats traveled to Topeka and took Washburn University by a 15 to 2 count. For all its scoring K-State tabbed the Ichabod staff for only 10 hits, but 16 Washburn errors turned the night into a comedy. Dana Atkins led the swatters with two hits in six trips. Bremner banged a triple and Thomas doubled for the only extra-base hits.

Revenge for the waiting Wildcats was granted when K.U. invaded Manhattan. The Hawks were dumped 12 to 10 and 3 to 1.

Lead In Ninth

In the first game, the Cats went into the last chucker with a seven run lead, but nearly blew it when the Birds counted five times on three hits and two errors.

Dependable Jack Dean was credited with the win, however, Bill Springer had to go to his aid in the ninth inning to squelch the uprising Hawks.

Jayhawker batsmen were at the mercy of Jack Bell in the second game. The righthander whiffed 12 and yielded but 3 safeties. In the fifth inning, the Wildcats went after a precious run the hard way. Atkins singled went to third on a bunt and went home on Chew's squeeze tap. The wins kept the Cats on the tail of the Missouri Tigers, who had batted into the conference lead.

Wildcats Set Back as Huskers Win One

NEBRASKA Cornhuskers moved into Manhattan for a two-game stand right behind K.U. The Huskers dealt the pennant-reaching Cats a severe setback when they took the first game 5 to 4. K-State came back with an 8 to 4 decision the following day.

The Nebraskans hammered a worn-out Kansas State mound staff for 14 hits in the opener. "Kite" Thomas blasted a home run in the first inning to give the Wildcats an early lead.

Jack Dean started on the hill in the finale, but was off form with just two days rest after his K.U. stint. Bernie Zawatski took over in the fifth and shut the Huskers out for the last four rounds. Offensively, it was Dale Carr day. The hustling shortstop hit two home runs. Atkins drove two mates across with a triple and a single.

Rout Two Teams

K-State played host to Washburn and Ft. Riley in two successive night games. Both contests turned into routs, and were finished before nearly empty stands. Washburn went down 13 to 3 and Ft. Riley bowed 23 to 5. Kier homered twice in the Washburn game. Ted Grimes smacked two round-trippers against the soldiers, one in the sixth inning when the Cats tallied 11 times.

In the all-important battle at Columbia against Missouri, K-State went under 2 to 0. Both Tiger runs were unearned. Jack Bell tossed a neat six-hitter, but couldn't get support from his teammates either in the field or at the plate. Bell's mound opponent limited the Wildcats to three scant hits, and was helped along by five Kansas State errors.

Finish Season Third

Reliable Jack Dean pitched the Fisermen to a 10 to 6 win in the first game. Kier's grand slam homer in the first inning highlighted the contest.

The second game was the season's thriller. The Wildcats were behind 2 to 1 when Kier hit, what looked to be a certain home run, with one man on base in the last of the ninth. Cheers turned to open-mouthed amazement when the Cyclone right fielder jumped and snatched the drive just over the top of the wall. He returned the ball to first base doubling Thomas off and ending the game. Instead of on top, the Cats wound up in third place in the final standing.

Whip Buffaloes

The Wildcats entertained Colorado University for two games to close their successful season. The Buffaloes went down 11 to 9 and 9 to 3.

ging mates rang out 14 hits.

Al Fillmore, lanky fireballing righthander, held the Buffs to five hits in the season's finale. Al Sheriff collected three hits in four times at bat, one being a home run.

Three regulars hit .300 or better for conference play. Don Chew came through with .333, Kier with .317 and Dana Atkins an even .300. Kier, who was elected honorary captain, drove 15 runs in during conference games. The speedy Cats pilfered 29 bases in 12 loop tilts.

Haylett's Thinclads Place High

COACH WARD HAYLETT, right, confers with his assistant last season, Ed Darden, former hurdle star. Haylett completed his twentieth year as track tutor at K-State this season.

KANSAS State's 1947 outdoor track team won two of four dual meets, placed high in the Texas Relays, Colorado Indoor and Colorado Relays, and culminated the regular season by finishing fourth in the conference meet.

During the summer, K-State track men placed third in the Missouri Valley AAU meet, although they were not representing the College. Rollin Prather starred in the June Big Six Southwest Conference meet by winning firsts in the discus and shotput. He threw the discus 153 feet and the shot 53 feet, 2½ inches—the best toss of his career to date. Later he won second in the discus in the National Collegiate meet at Salt Lake City with a throw of 155 feet, a new school record.

Coach Ward Haylett's thinclads impressively opened the season with the Texas Relays at Austin. The Wildcats ranked sixth among the 17 teams competing. Prather won scoring honors for all competitors, winning first in the shot put and first in the discus.

Prather Stars for Cats

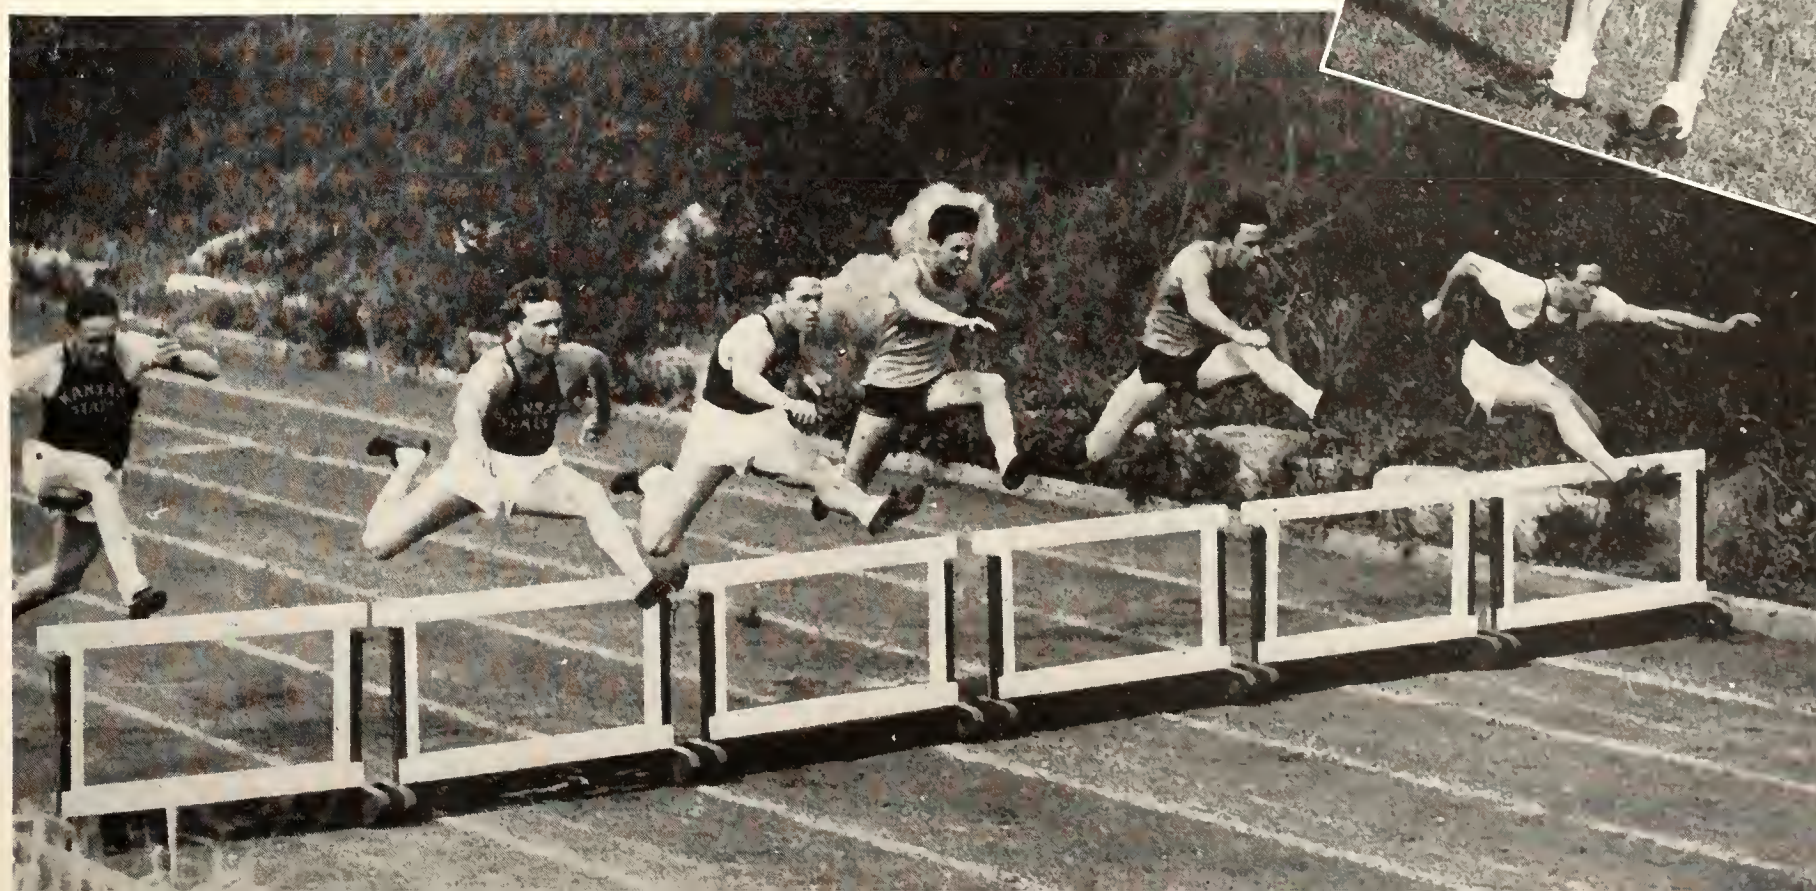

THE WILDCATS surpassed their Texas showing at the Colorado Indoor meet. Again Prather was the stand-out. He threw the shot 51 feet, $3\frac{3}{4}$ inches and whirled the discus 147 feet, 5 inches for new meet records. Harold Kiser covered 23 feet, $4\frac{1}{2}$ inches to win the broad jump and set a new Kansas State record. George Sherman tied for first in the pole vault, and Stuart and Hildenbrand finished first and second respectively in the 880 yard run. Team scores were not kept, but Kansas State unofficially copped second place.

Stalled By Aggies

The Oklahoma A. and M. Cowboys beat the Wildcats $87\frac{1}{2}$ to $43\frac{1}{2}$ in a dual meet at Stillwater. Prather smashed the meet record with his toss of 153 feet with the discuss, won the shotput and placed third in the javelin. Al Langton tied for first in the high jump and Kiser won the broad jump for other top K-State performances.

At the K.U. Relays, Prather won second in the shotput and third in the discus for the best Wildcat showing. Rodney McClay tied with six others for first in the pole vault, Bill Payne finished fifth in the decathlon and the spring medly team took fourth.

ROLLIN PRATHER promises to become a great weight man (top). He was the season's high scorer and set a new Kansas State discus record at 155 feet when he won second in the NCAA meet at Salt Lake City. Don Harr (top right) was a valuable distance runner. Jim Danielson (middle) scored his share of points in the broad jump. Bill Payne (lower right) was a high jumper on the Wildcat outdoor team. He placed fifth in the decathlon at the K.U. Relays. Rodney McClay, second from left, starred in the hurdles, dashes and pole vault (bottom). He tied Big Six records in the 220 lows against Iowa State.

Win Second in Relays

For the second successive season the Wildcats finished second in the nine-school Colorado Relays. Prather again was the star. He shattered the meet record in winning the discus, 147 feet, 5 inches, and also won the shotput. Joe Thornton topped the 120 high hurdles field and Kiser won the broad jump. The mile relay team placed second.

JIM SEAY, left and Don Borthwick were among the best in the long distance runs (top). Seth Antrim passes the baton to Bill Stuart in a relay against Wichita (middle). Art Hildenbrand (lower left) was a "find" in the 880 last spring. George Leasure (bottom) rated high among long distance stars.

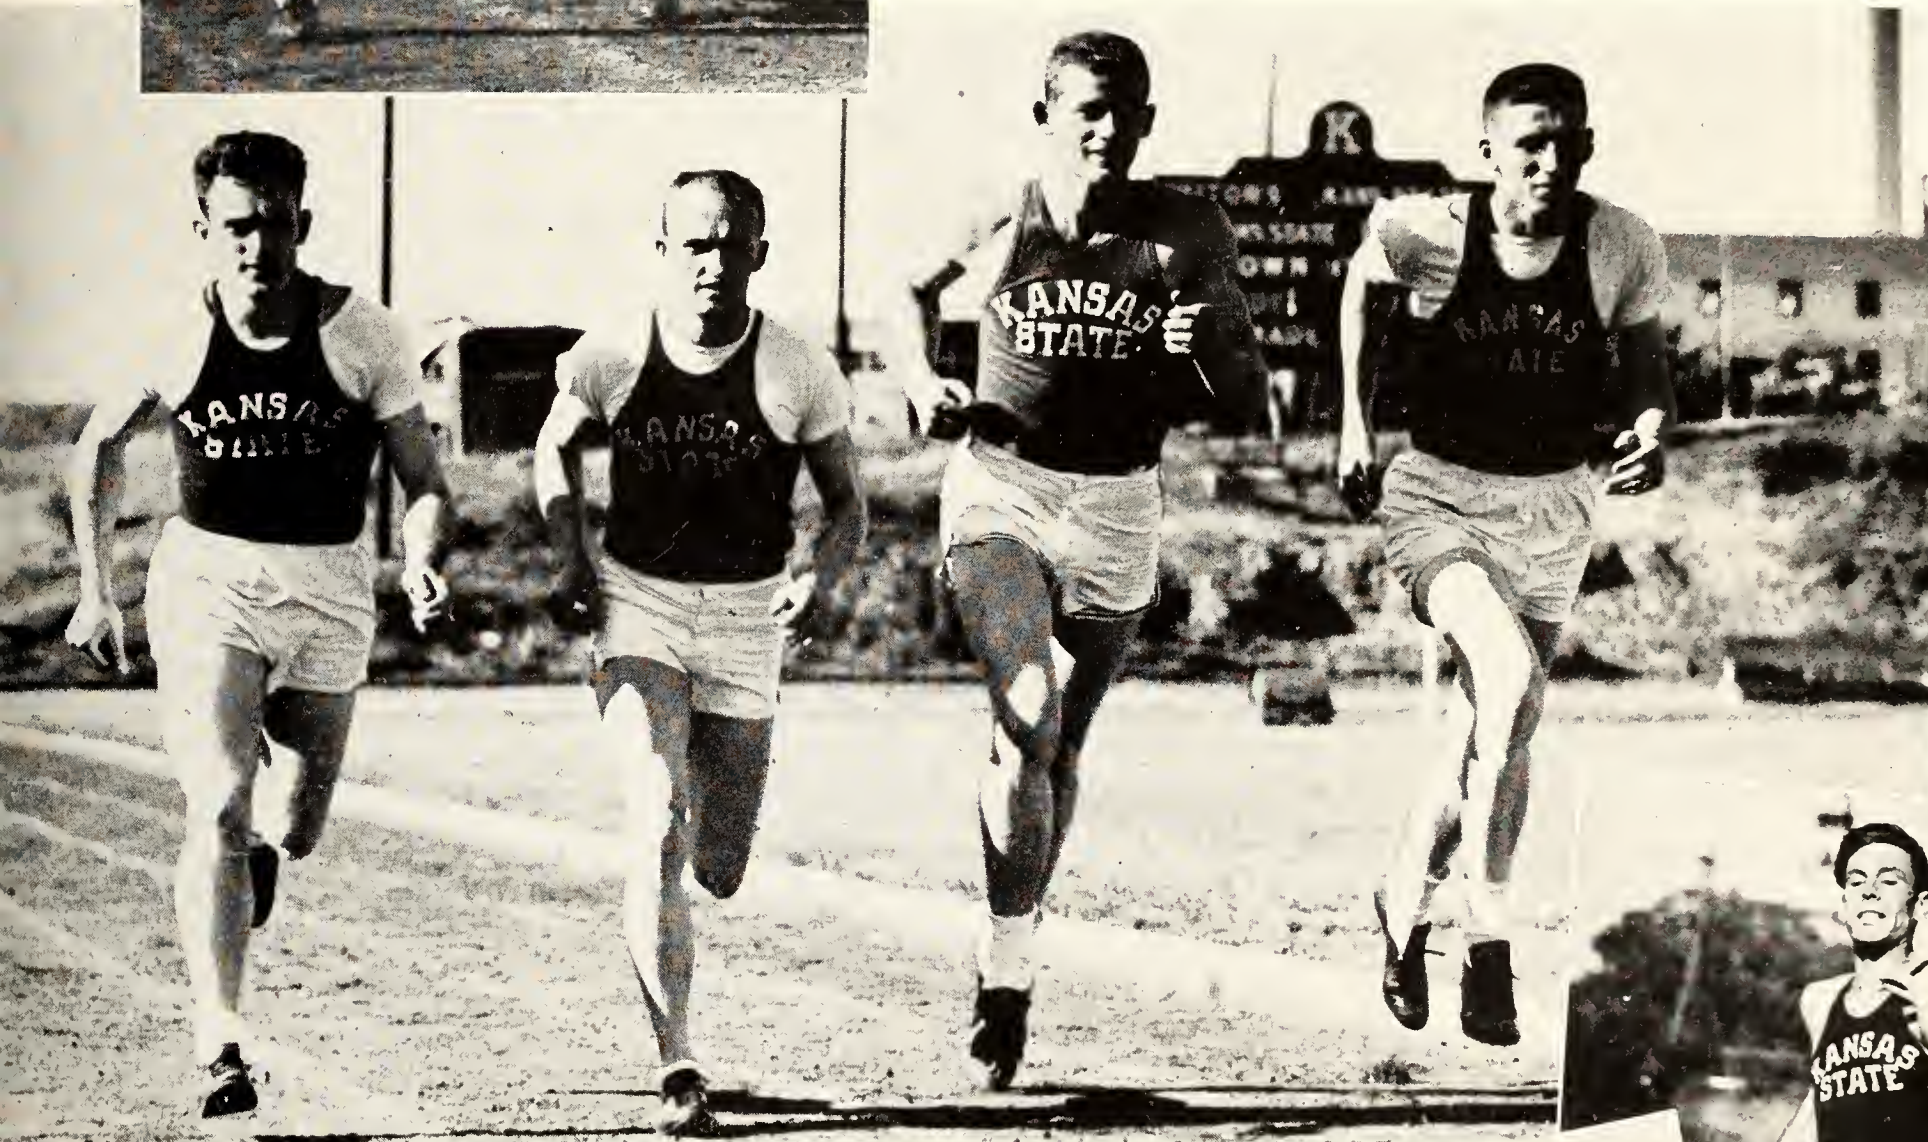

K.U. swamped K-State 86 to 45 in a dual meet at Lawrence, but the individual star was a Wildcat. Rod McClay took a first in the 100 yard dash, skimmed the 220 yard lows for another first and tied for the top position in the pole vault. Prather was close behind with first in the shotput and the discus.

Whip Wichita Here

IN THEIR only home meet of the season, the Cats whipped Wichita University 107 5/6 to 23 1/6. McClay and Prather tied for high point honors with three firsts apiece. Wichita's only first was a tie in the high jump.

The Iowa State Cyclones fell 85 to 46 to the Wildcats in a dual at Ames. McClay flew over the 220 yard timbers in 23.8 seconds to tie the Big Six record. Prather was high scorer with 15 points, followed by McClay with 13.

Missouri won the conference meet. Nebraska was second, K.U., third; K-State, fourth; Oklahoma, fifth; and Iowa State, sixth. Prather won the shotput and garnered second in the discus. McClay was third in the century and 220 yard lows, Leasure third in the mile and Borthwick third in the two mile.

JIM BUCK (top) has that "sweet feeling" as he brushes the tape in the Wichita 880. He also won the event in the Iowa State meet. Buck was one of Coach Ward Haylett's most reliable performers.

BILL STUART (middle) goes into the tape first in the 440. Stuart won the 880 in the meet with Kansas. He was also a member of the Wildcat mile relay team.

GEORGE SHERMAN (far left) knocks the cross bar down in the pole vault event against Wichita. He went on to win the event. Sherman tied for first in the pole vault against Kansas and won it in the dual with Iowa State.

JOE THORNTON (bottom) was a top hurdle man. He won the 120 yard high hurdles at the Colorado Relays. A pulled muscle prevented Joe's participation in the conference meet.

Individuals Star in Indoor Track

NO INDOOR facilities, late snows and cold weather gave Kansas State's indoor track team little time for workouts before entering competition. The Wildcats finished fourth in the Big Seven this year.

Rodney McClay, placing consistently in the low hurdles, dash and pole vaulting events, was high scorer for the varsity with 33 points. McClay won second honors in the low hurdles at the Big Seven Indoor Track Meet at Kansas City, Mo.

Rollin Prather broke three indoor records in the shotput event.

Two Wildcat Matmen Win Big

LEON REYNARD guided the Wildcats to fourth place in his first year as a Kansas State coach. A former Kansas State mat star and Big Six champion in 1938, 1939, and 1940. Reynard coached at Colby High School before returning to Kansas State. As a captain in the U. S. Army, Reynard won the Pacific Area All-Service Wrestling Tourney.

KANSAS STATE'S wrestling team, under their new coach, Leon (Red) Reynard, finished the 1948 season with three wins, one tie and eight losses. The team placed fourth in the Big Seven wrestling meet at Boulder, Colo.

Big Six 145 pound champion, Stan Fansher, captained the Wildcat grapplers during this season.

Verle McClellan won the conference crown in the 136 pound class.

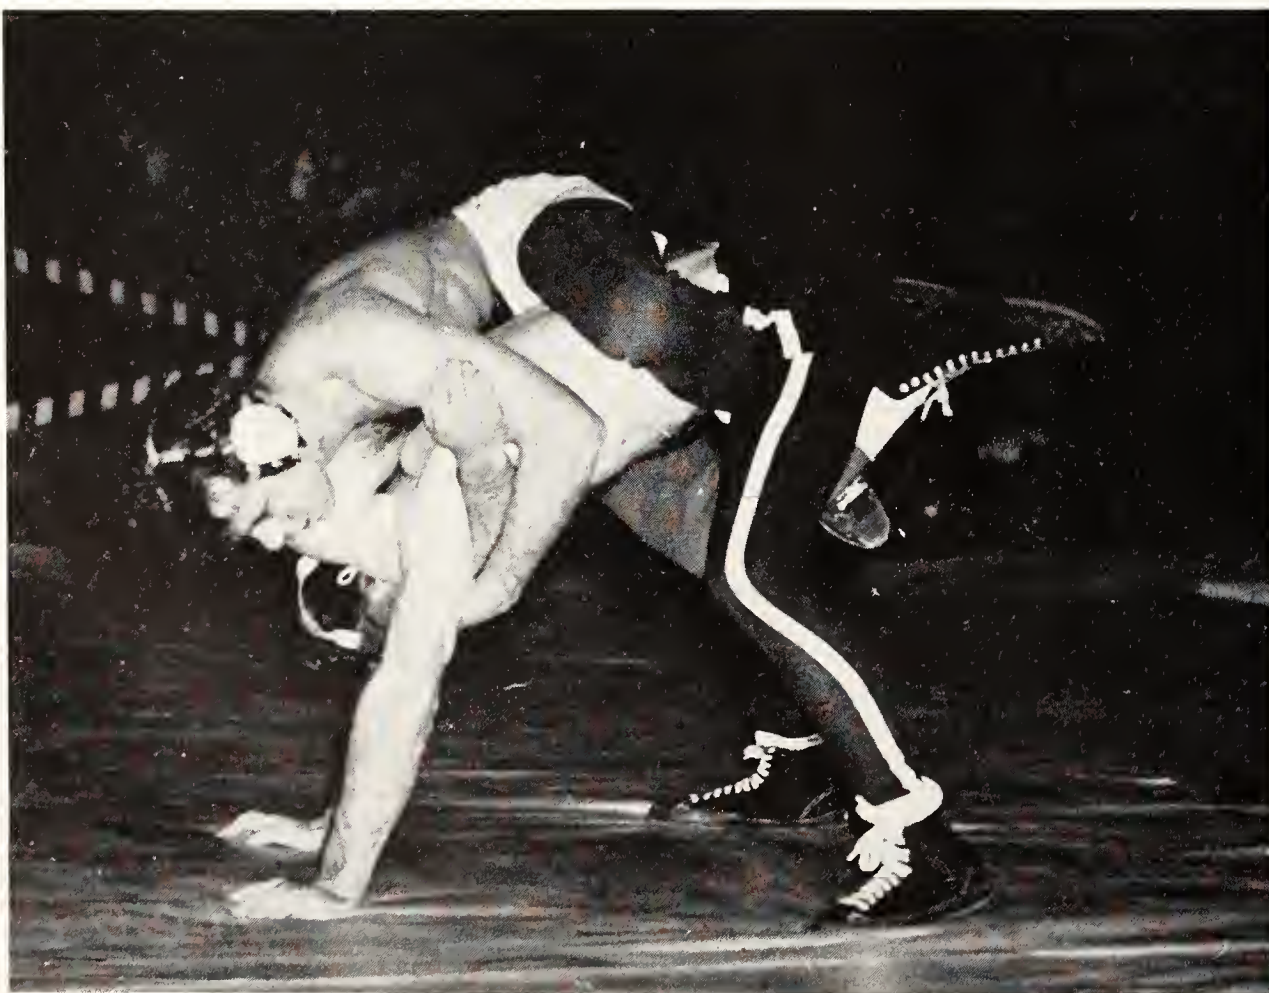

CHARLES NIGHSWONGER has worked his Nebraska University opponent into an off-balance position, resulting in a Nighswonger victory and Kansas State matmen got off to a slow start in the 1948 season by dropping a pair of dual meets to Oklahoma University and Oklahoma A and M. The defeat at the hands of the Sooners was by a slim 16-14 margin and saw the Wildcats give the Sooners some rough moments. Hess won his bout by scoring the only fall.

Captain Fansher was the lone Kansas State winner against Oklahoma A and M as the Wildcats were soundly defeated 29-3. It was the 52nd consecutive win in dual meets for A and M.

Coach Reynard's Wildcat wrestlers came up with a pair of improved performances when they inaugurated the 1948 home schedule in Nichols Gymnasium. The Wildcats wrestled Colorado State Teachers College to a 12-12 tie and then, the following night, pinned Colorado University with a 23-3 beating. Charles Nighswonger, Verle McClellan, and Joe Blanchard turned in victories in both matches. Dean Hess again scored the only fall. Verle McClellan and Charles Nighswonger wrestled their first matches of the 1948 season.

Kansas State points. Nighswonger played an important part in the Wildcats 1948 season.

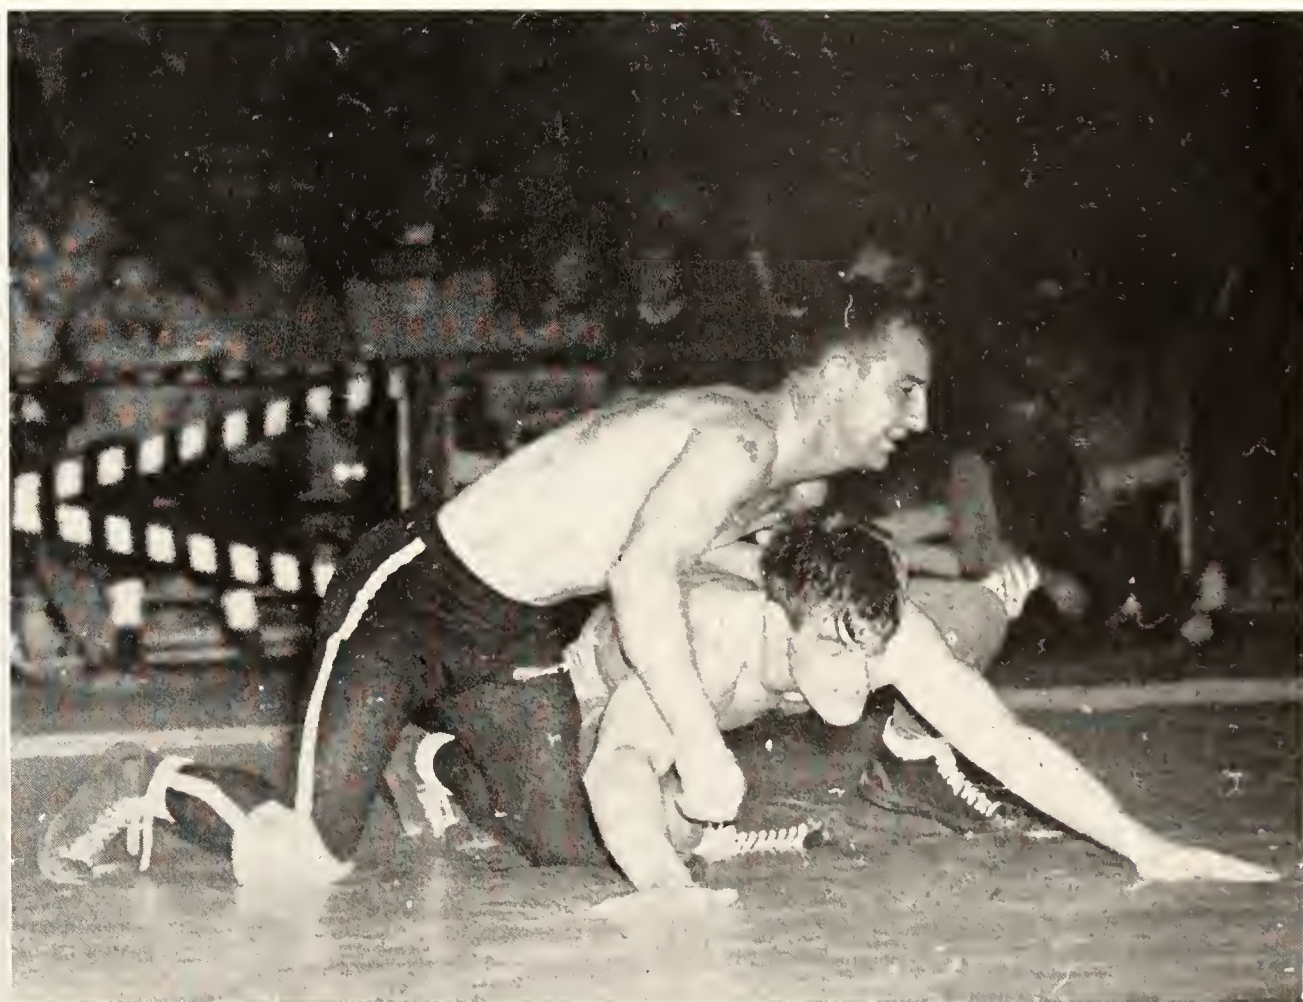

Six Championship Crown

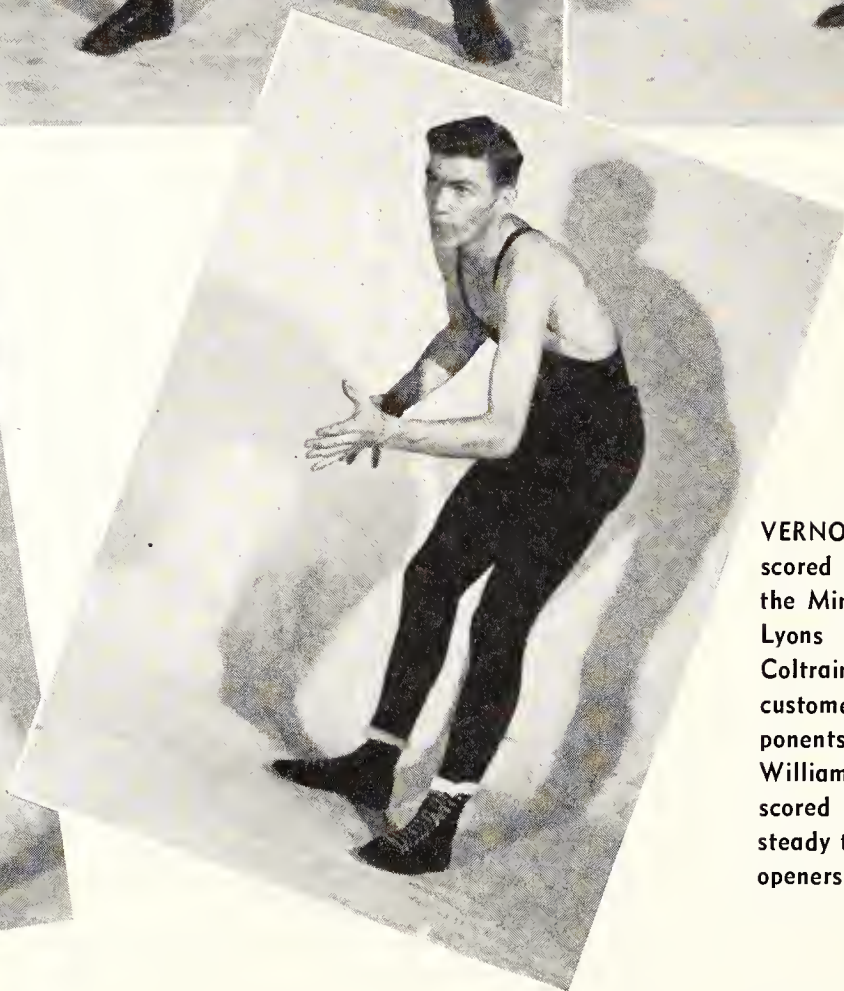

With Charles Lyons and Joe Blanchard winning the final matches of the evening, Kansas State's matmen came through with a thrilling 14-13 victory over Colorado A and M in the Wildcats third home engagement. Kansas State was trailing 13-8 as the 175 pound contestants stepped to the mat. Thirty minutes later, Lyons and Blanchard had disposed of their foes and Kansas State had won 14-13.

The Wildcat eastern tour resulted in three defeats. Ralph Fallwell, 121 pounder, was the only Kansas State winner as the Wildcat matmen fell before the Navy at Annapolis. The Navy topped the Wildcats by a 31-3 score. Kent State was next to deal out a Kansas State defeat by a score of 20-6 and powerful Michigan State's wrestling squad scored a 27-2 victory over the journeying Wildcats.

DEAN HESS (Left center) scored the only falls when the Wildcats lost to Oklahoma and won from Colorado University. Joe Blanchard (Bottom left) had a good chance to win the Big Seven heavyweight championship but broke his leg in his second match of that meet. Blanchard was a consistent winner for the Wildcats.

Finish Fourth in Conference

Iowa State out decisioned Kansas State at Nichols Gym 17-13, and Oklahoma A and M ended the home season by crushing the Wildcats with a 29-3 score, McClellan winning the only match.

Oklahoma, Nebraska, and Iowa State, respectively topped Kansas State at the Big Seven meet. Verle McClellan and Stan Fansher were the two Big Seven champions for Kansas State. Both were second time winners.

Meet Fancy Competition

SUFFERING a disastrous season, Coach C. S. "Coony" Moll's Kansas State swimmers showed lack of experience this year and finished deep in the Big Seven cellar.

A tidal wave hit Kansas State when Texas A. and M. swamped the Wildcat tankmen by a 59 to 23 margin in the season opener. The Texans put on a brilliant display, capturing first in every event, while establishing five new pool records.

The Wildcats were host to Kansas University and lost by a 48-3 count. Kansas State's lone winner was John Leitt in the 60 and 100-yard dashes.

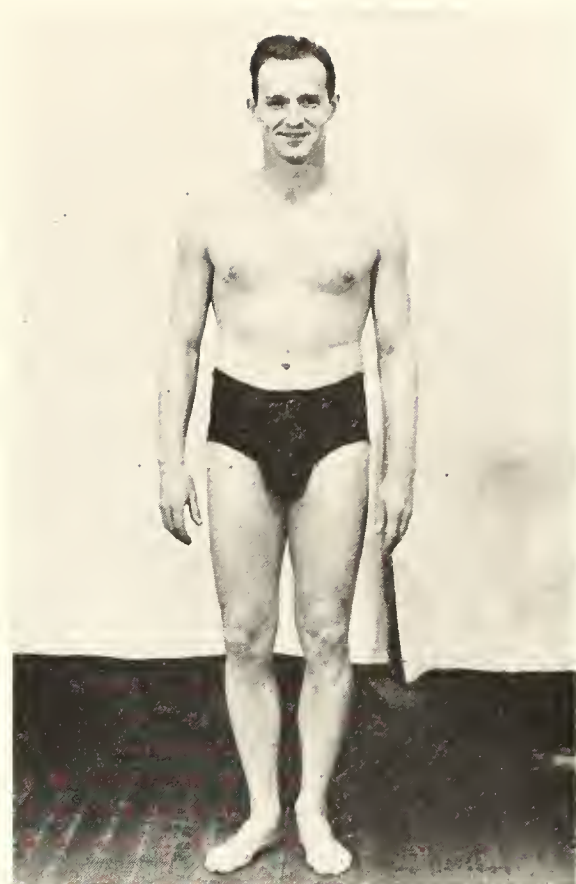

Kansas State invaded Sooner-land and lost to Oklahoma by a 59-35 score.

Colorado University set a 150-yard back stroke pool record when they dropped the Wildcats by a 56-28 score. Gillespie was the only Kansas State first, winning the 400-yard free style.

A scant ten points gave the Nebraska swimmers a 47-37 victory over Kansas State at Lincoln. Nichols, Leitt, and Gillespie won firsts.

Journeying to Lawrence, the Wildcats lost their second match to Kansas University by a 48-36 total.

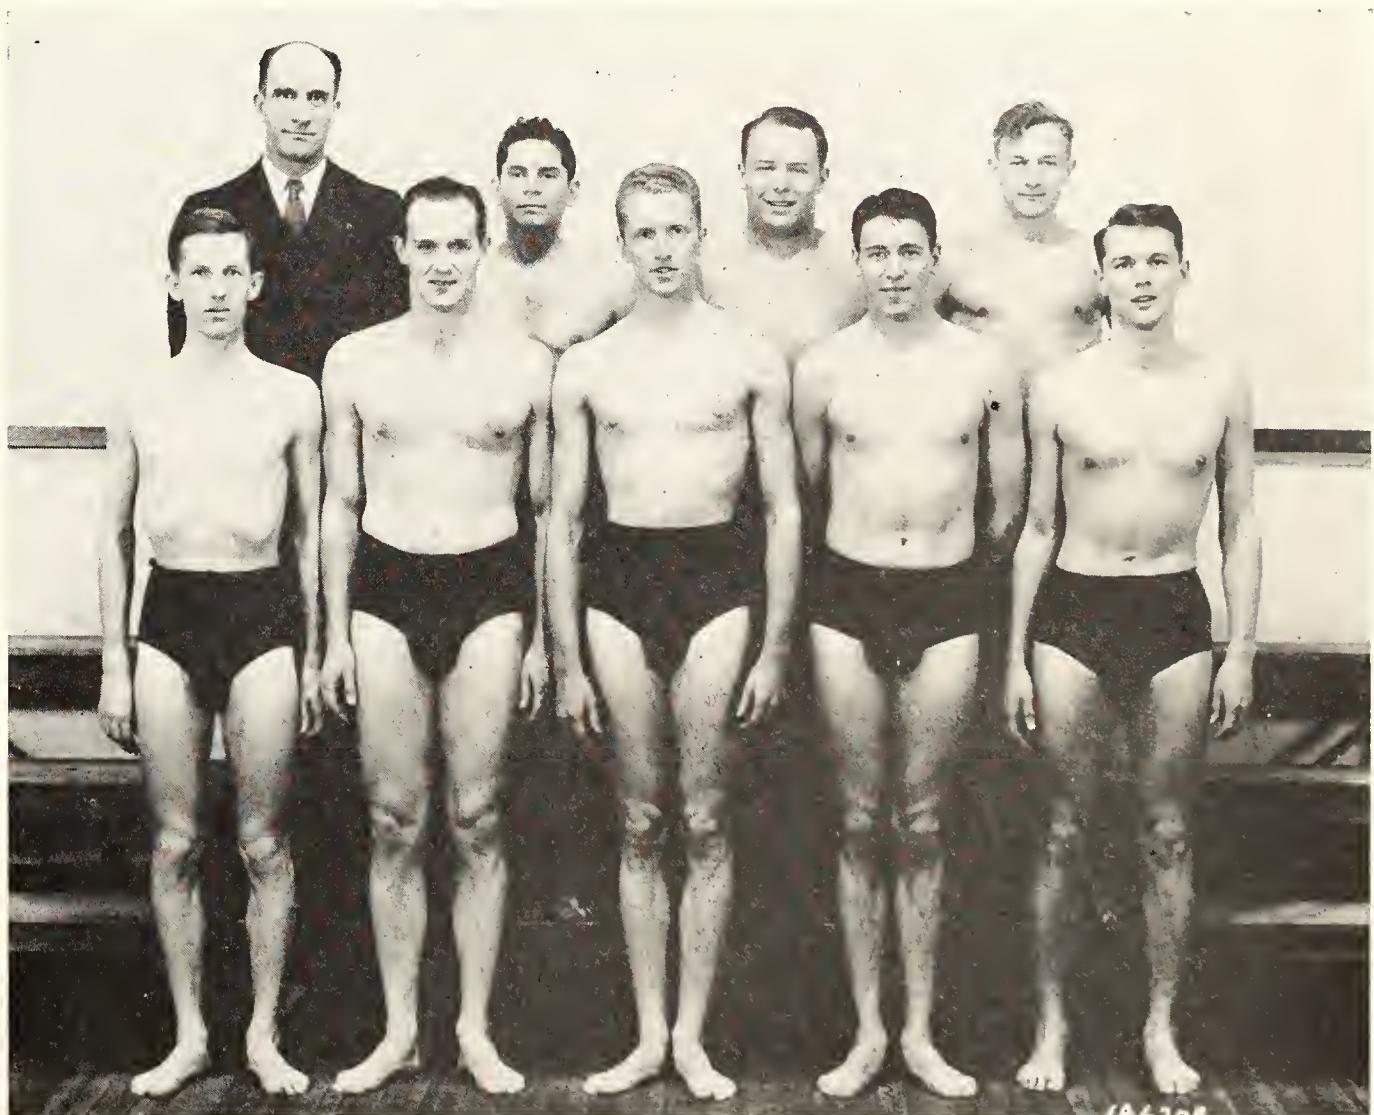

A 67-17 dubbing was given the Kansas State team by Iowa State swimmers at Nichols Gym. The Wildcat tankmen lost the final dual swimming meet of the season when Nebraska came to Kansas State and squeezed by a close 43 to 41 victory. Leitt and Gillespie each won a pair

PROF. L. P. WASHBURN directed expansion of Kansas State intramural program for the 1947-48 season. Facilities were expanded this season and will be expanded more next season to all students to enter intra-collegiate sports.

2000 Men in Intramurals

MORE than 2000 men participated in nine different athletic activities on 1947-48 season of intramural sports at Kansas State. Intramural facilities were expanded under the direction of Prof. L. P. Washburn.

Tau Kappa Epsilon was the all-school winner of last year's program. Ten received letter sweaters for being the high point men in last year's competition. Lettermen were Carl Anderson, Earl Chappell, Harold Hay, Marvin Hoffman, Richard Lindbloom, Richard Lill, Roy Sherrell, Charles Watkins, John Woolsey and John Lindholm.

In touch football, Greek winner, Sigma Phi Epsilon, lost to the Independent Pems for the all-school title. Sigma Phi Epsilon topped the Greeks in basketball but lost to the Independent Set-Ups for the all-school title.

Harold Price won the Greek horseshoe singles and teamed with James Wood to place Alpha Gamma Rho the winners. Dale Martin, Jr. AVMA, won the Independent singles. Leonard Jennison and Roy Sherrell, Pems, took the doubles.

Don Dickerson, Delta Tau Delta, won the Greek golf championship. Howard Ladd, Pems, was the Independent winner.

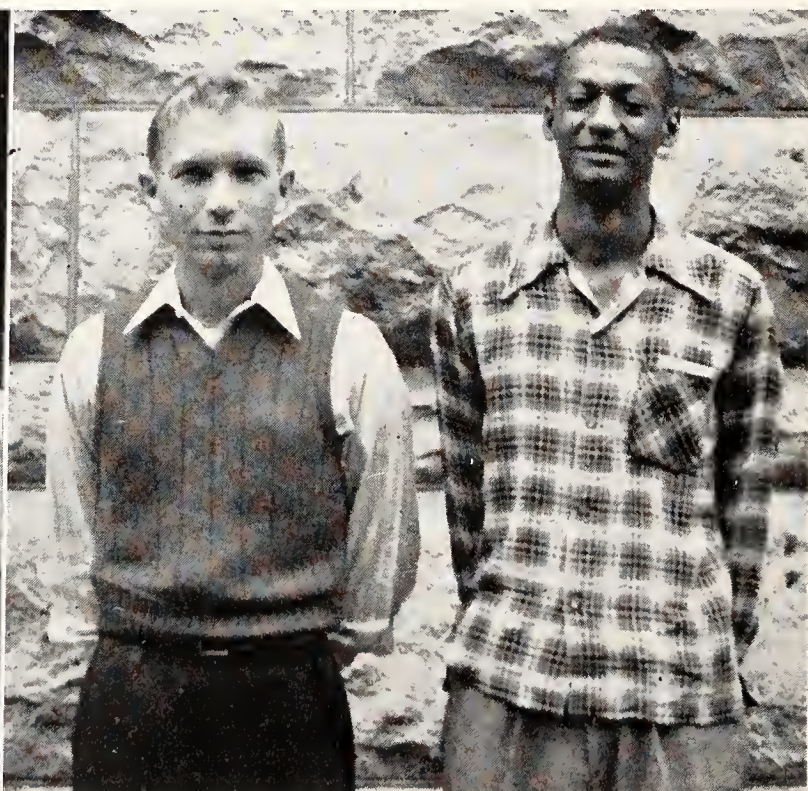

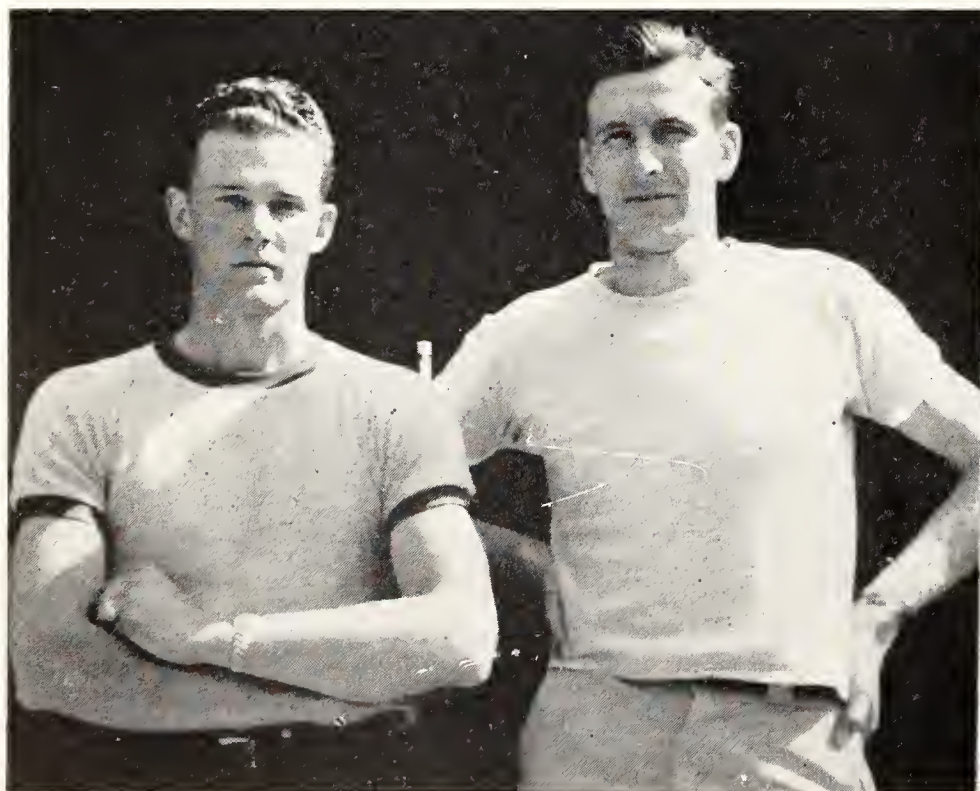

Arthur Froog, Independent, won the all-school table tennis singles title. Ty Powers and Jim Neumann, Phi Delta Theta, were doubles winners. All-school tennis singles title was won by Marvin Hoffman, Tau Kappa Epsilon.

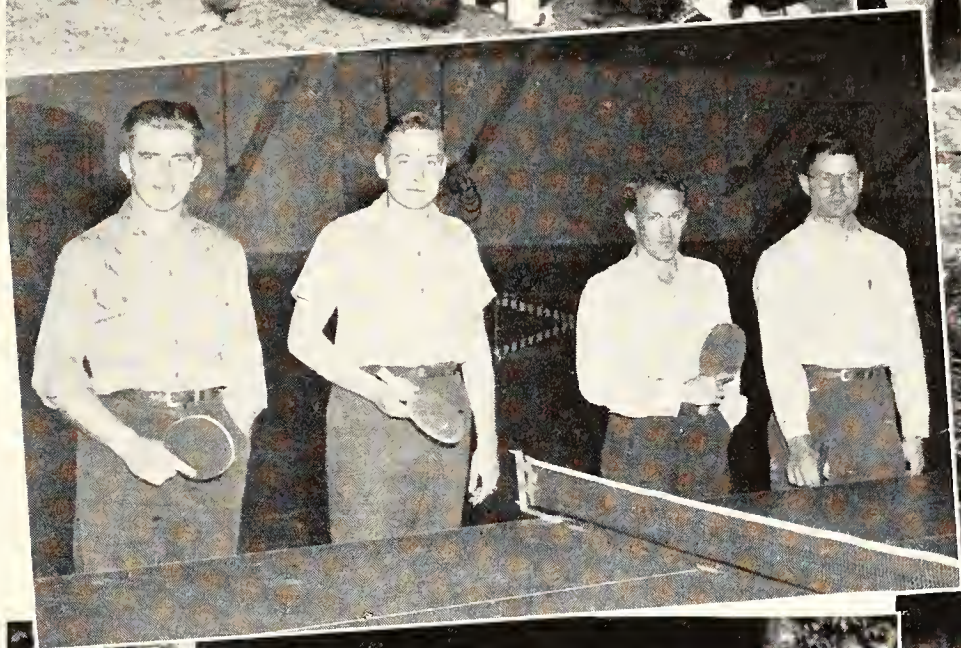

Beta Theta Pi won the all-school title in volleyball by a forfeit game from the Pems.

Tau Kappa Epsilon scored 58½ to the Sigma Phi Epsilon's 58 points to win the Greek track title. The Northwesterners won the Independent championship.

IN HER SECOND YEAR as director of women's intramurals, Miss Kathryn McKinney acts as supervisor of the sports. She is a professor in the physical education department and replaced Miss Katherine Geyer a year ago.

Take Part in Intramurals

ALL WOMEN enrolled in physical education and many who are not, may participate in the intramural program offered by the physical education department. Director of the organized sports is Miss Kathryn McKinney, professor of the department. Miss McKinney has finished her second season in the head position of this activity.

The sports offered include volley ball, tennis and table tennis, posture contests, and swimming in the fall. Basketball, softball, modern, social, and ballroom dancing and a second tennis tourney follow up in the spring season.

Girls from various organized houses on the campus

enter the competition. Presentations of awards were banned several years ago by the faculty. The original intention was to provide enjoyment for the girls, and with this basic principle, there is no need for an award.

The volley ball, swimming, basketball, tennis and table tennis tournaments were not finished until late in the spring last year. The Blitz Babes, an independent group of girls who do not represent any organized group, took first place in two sports, volley ball and swimming. Clovia won top honors in the basketball contest and Merline Nutter walked away with the tennis tourney. Mary Hodgson won the table tennis championship from runner-up, Shirley King.

This fall the Blitz Babes again were tops in the volley ball competition. The fall tennis games were again won by Merline Nutter, singles, and Dorothy Stover and Glendeen Link, Van Zile Hall, the doubles. Swimming followed the tennis with Van Zile Hall out in front. The winners of the posture contest were: Alpha Delta Pi. first; Chi Omega, second; and Pi Beta Phi, third. Shirley King took the ping pong title in a nip and tuck battle with Mildred Reisner. The Kappa Deltas won the basketball championship for the year in the late spring.

A THREE-WAY TIE for first in the annual posture contest showed carriage and poise among women of three social sororities. Two of the

Time Out For Talent

NOW, I may not look very artistic—but don't let appearances fool you. It's hard for a Hill to look artistic, or even intelligent, for that matter. But I have paid my tribute to the Muses—and the goddesses of several other activities that some people may not consider art.

I've got splotches on my grass left by over-zealous scenery painters. And the lost chord is floating between the Auditorium and the Gymnasium. Printers' ink dries in the breezes that blow across my face in the spring.

My students put in a lot of time and effort to make me appear cultured, as well as cultivated. The ether above me hums with their voices going out over KSAC to the people of the state. The rock under me trembles with a burst of song from one of the choirs. The ones who walk on me murmur about the news in today's Collegian. And the sheep and cows in my barns bleat and "beller" under the kind hands of student judges.

Opportunities are offered on me to allow anyone with talent to bring his light from under the bushel. And those with the enthusiasm, but not the ability, are gently encouraged from pursuing their activities on other Hills.

This year, for the first time, black-shod marching feet pounded across my slopes and gridiron to lilting tunes. The Kansas State Marching Band executed fancy figures on my bluegrass, and even in my snowdrifts. Choirs raised their voices to the blue skies above me in old hymns, and then took out for a week in the state to convince girls and boys that they ought to spend four years on me.

My dramatists tackled several classics during the nine months—even Shakespeare, and, much to my surprise, came out crowned with Thespian laurels. New, modernistic forms of scenic background startled and pleased audiences, who roared their approval of the Players' efforts. Hours were spent by directors and coaches correcting the tiny mistakes that haunt amateurs.

Blue and red pencils scratched across the tops of embattled journalistic tables, striving to make an art out of the difficult business of producing newspapers and yearbooks. Making layouts, having headlines just the right length, putting out a publication with which both the students and faculty remain happy.

Many of my organizations and departments have publications, widely circulated in their fields. For the most part, the people who work on these papers and yearbooks are not journalists professionally—but the smearing of printers' ink constitutes a pretty good disguise. They put out good, workman-like jobs and, as my administration loves to say, disseminate information among the people.

If you don't think judging the merits of animals is an art—you are dead wrong (of course, I'm not speaking of the beauty queens now). Sheep, cattle, poultry and crops which for the most part are raised on me, are all judged by students from the agriculture school. They can tell good forms from bad ones.

But the thing I like best about all this art and talent is that every bit of the time devoted to my glory is donated. Students and faculty put in free hours producing something worthwhile in the fields of liberal arts, for no pay, no credit, no recompense but the fun they have, and the fun they give to me and all my other employees and students.

Play Is Spring Success

UNDER the able direction of Prof. Earl G. Hoover, the Kansas State Players successfully stage three plays each year. Student directors, stage hands, and prop people give much-needed help.

The Players' spring (1947) production of Rudolph Beiser's The Barretts of Wimpole Street, was said to have been the best play ever presented in the College auditorium.

The role of Elizabeth Barrett climaxed the last performance of Kathleen Kerr. Dale Berger and Craig Bracken were other stand-bys for whom the play rang down the final curtain on the Kansas State stage.

delicate speeches from The Barretts of Wimpole Street, (below) presented in the spring of 1947.

With a fun-loving, if inexperienced, troupe of student actors and actresses, the summer production of Jean Kerr's "Our Hearts Were Young and Gay" was presented on July 25.

The two lead parts, Cornelia Otis Skinner and Emily Kimbrough, were expertly portrayed by Shirley King and Louise Beim, attractive members of the Kansas State Players.

The play concerned the adventures of two young ladies enroute to Paris—on a different ship than that taken by their parents. The student version of the whole situation was a source of amusement for all.

Give Summer Comedy

Although Miss King was a newcomer among the players, she portrayed the part of Cornelia Skinner like a veteran. She appeared—in accordance with the role—absolutely brainless.

Miss Beim was a natural for the part of Emily Kimbrough, a farcing and frivolous type of role which in order to be effective had to be either a complete success or a dismal failure. The author himself could have imagined no more frivolous character than Miss Beim's Emily.

land, Carl Kish, Harold Dutton, Bob Farmer, Ted Farmer, Max Hollinger, Alice Dawson, Dee Taylor, Jason Spinnett, John Haines, Joe Adams and Bob Kaspar.

Dramatists Plunge into Shakespeare

Never before in the history of Kansas State College has a group of Players attempted a Shakespearian play. Director Hoover announced last fall that the first play of the season would be "Twelfth Night".

and hope the finished product looks like the idea in mind. Members of the crew work on the new type of setting used in Twelfth Night.

Present "Pygmalion"

As something entirely different in scenery and atmosphere characteristics the Kansas State Players' spring production of Pygmalion by George Bernard Shaw left little to be desired.

Pygmalion is the story of one man, Henry Higgins, henpecked by his housekeeper, and kept a social untouchable by his mother. His genius in phonetics forces him to deal with all of mankind as if it were an animal in one great scientific experiment. Garth Grissom moved through the heavy lines of Higgins with ease and sense of timing that is usually attributed to veterans of the stage.

Eliza (Rebecca Lamoreaux) is a product of the slums who is literally forced upon society as a duchess after taking phonetic lessons from Higgins. But after being lifted from the gutter to the throne, she becomes an uncontrollable human being instead of a guinea pig in a scientific experiment. The play is complicated by the question of what is to be done with Eliza after she has been given the means of becoming a woman of the world, indebted to everyone for her social position.

Of the not-to-be-forgotten parts in the play was Fred Kramer as Papa Doolittle of the undeserving poor. Robert Richey and Profesor O. D. Hunt maintained their individual reputations for fine scenery and expert lighting.

GARTH GRISSOM, as Higgins, explains his motives to Bill Anderson as the Colonel while Rebecca Lamoreaux as Eliza listens in this scene from

Kansas State College Judging Teams Place High

AFTER a lapse of five years due to the war, two intercollegiate contests in grading and judging crop products were held this year. The crops judging team, led by their coach, J. W. Zahnley, professor in the agronomy department, ranked third among the seven competing teams at the Kansas City National Collegiate Grain Judging Contest held at Kansas City, Mo.

Travel to Contests

Traveling farther afield (many judging teams go all over the country) the crops judging team attended the International Collegiate Crops Judging Contest held at Chicago, Ill. At this contest the team ranked fourth among the seven competing teams.

The Dairy Cattle Judging Team, although not attending many contests, did go to Waterloo, Iowa in September to compete in the National Intercollegiate Judging Contest.

Led by G. H. Beck, associate professor of the dairy husbandry department, the team walked away with no trophies. They placed last in the contest.

Juniors Place High

Several junior judging teams came out with prizes this fall. Traveling to various parts of the nation these junior teams brought home the trophies to stack in the big cases in West Waters Hall.

Among these was the Junior Livestock Judging Team with six members, coached by Don L. Good, instructor in the animal husbandry department.

Out of many teams competing, the Junior Livestock judging team placed first at the contest held in Denver, Colo., this fall. Other junior teams placed first in their contests.

Judging teams offer practical experience to ag students and membership is honorary, that is, students try out for places on the judging teams. Kansas State was always held in high reputation in contests which they have entered throughout the nation, coming out with many firsts and cups.

in Agriculture Contests Across the Country

OTHER judging teams won the respect of groups from other colleges and their judges.

The Meats Judging Team competed in two intercollegiate contests. They went to the American Royal Meat Judging Contest at Kansas City, Mo., and the International Meat Judging Contest at Chicago, Ill.

This team ranked eighth among 10 competing teams at Kansas City. At Chicago, they ranked twelfth among 16 teams competing in the event.

The Meats Judging Team was coached by David L. Mackintosh, associate professor of animal husbandry.

Win K. C. Honors

The Livestock Judging Team led by coach F. W. Bell, professor in the Department of Animal Husbandry, entered two intercollegiate judging contests. High honors were theirs at the American Royal at Kansas City, Mo., in October when they ranked second, with 17 college judging teams in the competition.

At the International Livestock Exposition which was held in Chicago, Ill., in November, the Livestock Judging Team placed eighth in the field of 30 colleges attending and competing in the event.

The Poultry Science Club was represented by the Poultry Judging Team at the twenty-third annual Intercollegiate Poultry Judging Contest at Chicago in December.

K-State rated sixth among 17 teams. The rotating trophy that has been in circulation since 1934 has been won twice by Kansas State College Poultry Judging Teams.

Judge Home Contests

In addition to the many out-of-state and intercollegiate contests entered by the judging teams, some of the departmental clubs in the School of Agriculture sponsor judging contests and practice on home grounds. These include not only the college groups, but contests are also held during the Little American Royal and the Future Farmers of America weeks for boys of high school age. Attendance at the home shows this year filled the livestock pavilion to capacity.

THE A CAPPELLA CHOIR, composed of 85 members is selected from the entire College student body by the director, Prof. Luther Leavengood during tryouts conducted at the beginning of each semester.

Climaxing the year's activities of the Choir was the A Cappella tour, made in April. The Choir sang in high schools in the east central part of Kansas.

Glee Club Gives Programs, Serenades

WITH a total of 60 Kansas State students as members, the Men's Glee Club, under the direction of J. Forest West made its first appearance at the groundbreaking ceremony for the new Memorial Chapel. This occurred during the fall Homecoming festivities, which were attended by General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower on October 25, 1947.

During the year, the Men's Glee Club participated in two serenades. First was the Christmas all-College assembly, which was followed by the Christmas Carol serenade. In this serenade, the Glee Club toured all the organized women's houses and rendered Christmas Carols to appreciative audiences.

It is the custom of the Glee Club to hold a second serenade in the spring.

An annual Spring Concert is also part of the activities of the Men's Glee Club. To help publicize their concert, the Glee Club conducted a one-day tour to schools, both in the city of Manhattan and neighboring cities and communities.

The Men's Glee Club has taken an active part in several local functions. Among these, was singing for the Sigma Eta Chi initiation last fall. Sigma Eta Chi is a women's church group.

The aim of the Glee Club, is to promote, not only an interest in music, but more technical training and an appreciation of the enjoyment of singing.

Their accompanist is Patricia Nelson.

Band Split into Three New Groups

FOOTBALL fans will long remember the Kansas State Marching Band this year for the numerous stunts performed under the direction of Jean Hedlund during the football season. At the conclusion of the season, the total band membership of over 100 was divided into two units, the Varsity and Concert Bands.

Orchestra Draws Capacity Crowd

THE 50-piece College-Civic Orchestra under the direction of Prof. Luther Leavengood, is continually striving for a larger membership, but even though its group is small, it has contributed much in musical enjoyment to students and townspeople.

The Orchestra made its first public appearance of the year in a winter concert held in the College Auditorium on January 20.

The program consisted of the "Concert Grosso Number Eight" for two violins and cello solo with string orchestra, by Arcangelo Corelli; the overture from the "Magic Flute," by Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart; "The Walk to the Paradise Gardens," by Frederick Delius; Rumanian folk dances of "Joc cu Bata", "Braul", "Pe Loc", "Muciumeania", and "Maruntel", by Bela Bartok; the "Jamacan Rumba" by Arthur Benjamin; and the first movement of the "Symphony Number Five in E Minor, Opus 64," by Peter Ilyitch Tschaikowsky.

Accompany "Messiah"

"Messiah," given March 21 in the College Auditorium.

The "Messiah" featured soloists from over Kansas, and the bass soloist was J. Forrest West of the Kansas State College Department of Music. Other singers came from Lindsborg and Kansas City, and sang the parts of coloratura, soprano and tenor. This was the first year in which an attempt has been made on the stage of the auditorium to present such a coordinated performance between a choral group and an orchestra. The "Messiah" performance drew an audience of more than two thousand students and townspeople.

The final appearance of the College-Civic Orchestra was during Music Week, when they joined with the rest of the music organizations on the campus in devoting the seven days to the promotion of music.

The orchestra's main contribution to music week was the accompanying of several young artists in a program of concertos and opera arias. Among these were Concerto No. 24 in C minor for piano and orchestra, by Mozart; Symphonie Espagnole for violin and orchestra, by Lalo; Concerto in A minor Opus 16 for piano and orchestra, by Grieg; and Duet "La ci darem la Mano", from "Don Giovanni," by Mozart.

JOURNALISM STUDENTS are the broadcasters in the class in Radio News. The class writes the scripts concerning news on the campus for the daily five-minute show. Above, taking their turn at the mike are Elaine Howenstine and Jim Orton.

TWO NEW studios and a new control room are boasted this year by the radio section of the Department of Speech. An extensive remodeling program done early this year made station KSAC the most modern training station in Kansas.

With 160 people enrolled in radio classes, all script writing, directing and actual production was done by students on many radio programs including "What's

To prepare students for positions in commercial radio work is the aim of the radio section. Students can either major or minor in radio at KSC. F. Virginia Howe and Vernon McGuire are the assistant professors.

High honors were won by members of the K-State Debate Team when they placed second at the sixteenth annual Forensic Tournament held at St. John's College at Winfield. The team also placed second in the province of 33 schools at the Pi Kappa Delta Regional Tournament at Colorado A and M.

Other tournaments attended were the Debate and Discussion Conference at the University of Nebraska, the Missouri Valley Forensic Tournament at Kansas University and the Spring Forensic Tournament at the University of Texas.

4-H Publishes Annual

A LARGER county page, more news about 4-H activities throughout the state and the Collegiate 4-H Club and a bigger advertising section than ever before, made this year's Who's Whoot larger and better than ever.

Who's Whoot, 4-H Club year book, is an annual project of the K-State club. It features club activities, state 4-H leaders and outstanding state and national 4-H contest winners.

Who's Whoot has over 90 county pages and the size has increased from last year's 128 pages to more than 200 this year. The yearbook is financed by advertising and money paid by each county for material about their clubs and leaders.

The editor of the book this year was Virginia Grandfield, of Wichita. Virginia is a senior in home economics and was assistant editor of last year's book.

The entire staff of the 1948 edition was chosen by the staff of last year's book, with the assistance of J.

Staffs Publish Vocational Periodicals

THE Kansas Agricultural Student has completed its 23rd year of publication. Published four times yearly the magazine is distributed to all students in agriculture and to high schools throughout the state. It is financed by advertising solicited by the staff, and by funds allotted from the Ag Seminar fee.

The editors are selected each semester by the Agricultural Association, and organization to which each ag student gains membership upon enrolling. The staff has remained the same this year, with the exception of the photographer, Shannon Nickelson. He was succeeded by Harold Ray. Selected for editor was John Tasker, and Melvin Cotner was named business manager. Prof. E. B. Macy, experiment station editor, served as faculty advisor throughout the year.

The magazine is divided into five departments, each with an associate editor in charge. These departments include such sub-titles as Enginalumne, Engineeing, Enginuts'nbolts, Enginiffties, and Enginextras.

Aside from the important and educational feature material and the departmental information, an unusual assortment of witticisms add a personal touch to the magazine. Every student in engineering receives a copy of the publication.

Release News

Lowell Brandner was introduced last fall as the News Bureau Assistant. Arleta Barber is the secretary. Together, they send campus news to the three major press associations and to individual newspapers all over the state. The bureau also makes all arrangements for wire coverage of big events and acts as host to visiting newsmen. Pictures of all major events are distributed with the news stories.

Publish Magazine

Members of the College faculty make up the staff of the annually published Kansas Magazine. The board of directors (left) pass on all material submitted to the book. The magazine prints the best submitted material by Kansas authors and poets, along with outstanding work by Kansas artists. Prof. Ralph Lashbrook heads the board. Prof. R. W. Conover is editor. When published, the magazine is distributed through bookstores and news-stands in all parts of the state.

Inform Alumni

Journalism faculty members, and the staff of the Alumni Association, prepare and publish the bi-monthly Kansas State Industrialist, official organ of the College and the Alumni Association. The newspaper features news slanted for alumni interest. Big items in the Industrialist's columns this year were the drive for a new Chapel in commemoration of K-State war dead, and the champion Wildcat basketball team's conquests.

PROF. RALPH LASHBROOK, head of the Department of Journalism, is chairman of the Board of Directors of Student Publications, Inc.

THE Board of Student Publications plays an important role on the campus. The editor and business manager of the Collegian and the Royal Purple are chosen by this board. The board also approves the budgets of the various publications, determines the size of each publication and approves all major contracts.

The board includes three student members and three faculty men—Mae Weaver, Hardy Berry, John Shupe, Prof. H. W. Davis, Prof. E.

T. Keith, Prof. R. R. Lashbrook, chairman. The student representatives are elected by the student body each spring at the time of the annual election.

Applications for editor and business manager of each publication may be made by any student in the college who meets the scholastic requirement. In selecting students for these positions, the board considers experience, personal qualifications, and length of service on the publication. Gold "K" keys are awarded by the Student Publications, Inc. to those staff members of the Collegian and the Royal Purple who earn them by doing outstanding work on the respective publications.

Forty-four members of the Royal Purple and 23 from the Collegian staff won "K's" this year. Three students received keys for their work on both of the publications. The awards were presented at the annual Publications Banquet at the Manhattan Country Club on May 11.

Students receiving "K" keys for their Royal Purple work were: Martha Adams, Shirley Hill, Marilyn Davis, Barbara King, Barbara Kellogg, Jim Curtis, Ruth Muirhead, Duane Patterson, Darrell Cowell, Nancy Maunger, Hary Henson, Joann Blackwelder, Carolyn McNabney, Jean Holmgren, Virginia Bryan, Catherine Merrill, Mary Frances Cooney, Nannette Soper, Don Hueben, Carol Bates, Frances Callahan, Mary Frances Zink, Don Gray, Bob Hudelson, Shirley Nichols, Rod Keif, Maxine Keesling, Deloris Montague, Joanne Brewer, Gwen Wilson, Connie Armitage, Ann Thackrey, Betty Hink-

Awards for work on both publications were made to Darrell Cowell, Jim Clinger, and Ralph Salisbury.

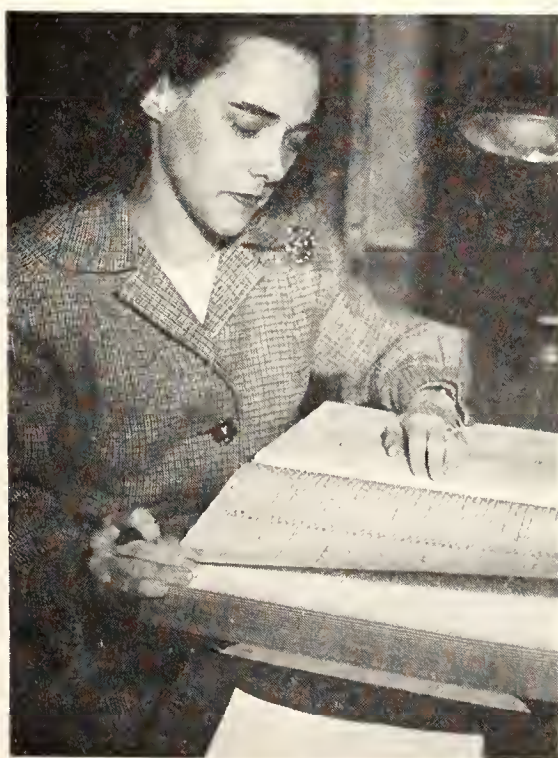

Graduate Manager of Student Publications is C. J. Medlin. "Chief," as he is known in Kedzie Hall, gives sound advice to the staffs of the Collegian and the Royal Purple. In addition to advising the editorial staffs, he works closely with the business staff on both advertising and circulation.

Mr. Medlin's right hand girl is Pat Grentner Zeleznak. Answering the questions of bewildered newcomers to Kedzie Hall is part of her job. Pat assists in running the student publications' business office.

The Student Council delegated the authority of publishing the Student Directory to the Board of Student Publications this year. Mrs. Eva Ward was appointed editor by the board and started work last summer.

PAT GRENTNER ZELEZNAK (left) handles much of the business management of Student Publications and also serves as Professor Medlin's secretary. Pat ends her last year here as her husband, Mike, is graduated this semester. More than 175 pages of Student Directory were compiled, edited and published this year under the guidance of MRS. EVA WARD (right). All work on the Directory was completed in less than two months.

COLLEGIAN LEADERSHIP during the summer term was in the hands of Yvonne Sturgeon Allman (left), who previously spent two semesters at the copy desk. In spite of shortages of paper and staff, Yvonne put out a good paper, with attractive make-up and wide news coverage.

BUSINESS MANAGEMENT was headed by capable Marjorie Setter, (right) who also headed the department during the spring semester of the previous year. Marge was equally solicitous of single line ads and half page screamers.

Husband-Wife Combo Heads Summer Collegian

The Kansas State Collegian is the student newspaper—student written, student read and student owned. Like the Royal Purple and the Student Directory, The Collegian is controlled by Student Publications, Inc., a corporation supported by activity fund apportionment and advertising revenue. The bi-weekly Collegian is published on Tuesdays and Fridays, with copies available for all students who have paid their activity fee.

During summer months when enrollment was slightly lower, the Collegian was published on a weekly schedule only. There were fewer student reporters, making the entire editorial staff double at writing along with their copy and proof-reading duties.

Summer editor Yvonne Allman assumed a unique role when appointed by the publications board. She was editor, while her husband, LeRoy Allman, was assistant editor. Sports editor during the summer term was Lewis "Johnny" Johnson, with Peg Knight Thackery handling the society columns. Advertising revenues were solicited and collected by business manager Marjorie Setter and assistant Roger Medlin. Marjorie completed her second term as business manager of the Collegian.

THOSE GOLDEN K-KEYS were distributed to the outstanding students contributing to student publications in 1946-47, at the annual Publications Banquet. Also selected, was the editor who made the biggest "boner" during the year. Helen Peterson won the dubious distinction.

ABLE MANAGER, ROGER MEDLIN (left) handled advertising contracts and other business details for the Collegian during both fall and spring semesters. In addition to running the crew of ad salesmen, Roger did all the layout work and page make-up of the ad sections on every paper.

LE ROY ALLMAN, fall semester editor (right), was an all-around newspaper man. He wrote many of the big stories, edited the copy—and even did much of the back-room shop work. Upon graduation, LeRoy accepted a job as managing editor of a county weekly newspaper.

Allman Edits, Medlin Manages Fall Collegian

LeRoy Allman assumed leadership on the Collegian during the fall semester, but didn't quite get, even with Yvonne. Mrs. Allman received her diploma upon completing her summer school editorship, so the tables were not completely reversed.

Among the many big stories covered by the fall Collegian, were the hugely increased enrollment, the Homecoming visit of General Dwight Eisenhower and the more controversial recommendations of the Student Planning Committee. Among these were the ban on corsages at all dances and the proposal to change the

The positions of editor and business manager on the Collegian are appointive, by the Board of Student Publications.

FLOYD SAGESER, editor of the Collegian during the spring semester, was formerly assistant sports editor and general reporter. Before assuming the top position on the Collegian, Floyd was undergraduate correspondent for a daily newspaper. The Collegian blossomed under several screaming headlines during the spring term as the Wildcat basketball team knocked off victory after victory.

Big stories for the spring semester reporters were, of course, headed by the events surrounding basketball contests. Among there were lines which formed five hours early for games, statue tintings and sundry comments on the eligibility of Dr. Phog. Also receiving major coverage were the newly instituted series of College-sponsored lectures on Courtship and Marriage and campus politics.

Kansas State journalists took their annual turn on a big city daily when they wrote and edited the Topeka Daily Capital on Kansas Day, January 29. Students in all journalism classes wrote state-coverage stories in advance and outstanding students were selected by a faculty committee to make the Topeka trip. There they covered the Kansas Day political meetings, society, sports and the regular beats, as well as doing the actual desk work.

EDITOR of the Collegian during the spring term was Floyd Sageser, industrial journalism junior. He was capably aided by two assistant editors, Darrell Cowell and Mae Weaver. Tom Leathers, assisted by Don Alexander and Bill Krause, was head of the copy desk. Sports editor Norville Gish and Pete Engelken, his assistant, exhorted the virtues of a sports writer's dream team—the champion basketball squad. Society columns were carefully compiled by Janie Hackney.

Completing his fourth semester on Collegian business staffs, Roger Medlin was again in charge of the advertising purse-strings. Bill Mall, also with several

New Features in Royal Purple

ONCE again the Royal Purple makes its debut with a purple and white cover. A new feature of the book is its division into chapters—11 of them, each carrying out the themes of the Wildcat and the "Hill."

Edited by Virginia Gingrich, the 1948 Royal Purple contains 448 pages of organizations, class pictures and campus events. This is a 32 page, increase over last year's book.

Work was started on the annual last spring—pictures were taken and layouts made. Printing and engraving contracts were then let. The opening and division pages were drawn up and nearly completed in the fall.

Tom Moreen, business manager, and Virginia attended the National Scholastic Press Association convention in Minneapolis, Minn., in October. While there, cover samples were examined and several brought back for selection by the Board of Student Publications. Prof. C. J. Medlin, graduate manager of Student Publications, was an instructor of the year book school at the convention.

During the following months, the remaining pictures were taken by the photography staff and one-fourth of the book was sent to the Capper Printing Company by

All of the pages were at the printers by the middle of April. Engraving of pictures was done by the Burger-Baird Engraving Company of Kansas City, Mo. The book, whose cover is purple and white, was bound by Charno of Kansas City.

The 1947 Royal Purple, edited by Tess Montgomery, received an All-American Honor rating from the National Scholastic Press Association. This was the twelfth consecutive year that the Royal Purple received the highest award given by the N.S.P.A.

Editorial and Business Staffs

WHEEL AROUND KEDZIE, Ralph Salisbury, RP assistant editor, took a whirl at nearly everything there was to be done on the book. Salisbury was also one of the more prolific writers for the Collegian.

ALL volunteer workers, the editorial staff members of the Royal Purple used up many free hours dog-trotting around the campus in search of new information.

Led by Ralph Salisbury, Assistant Editor, who did everything from scheduling pictures to writing late copy, the staff began to click as the first of the second semester rolled around and there was something to write about.

A jack-of-all-trades on the book, Ralph was an indispensable source of enlightenment and hard work. Other chapter editors blanketed the copy desk with pages from all sections of the book, came back and read proof on their section.

Chosen for their ability to write and their dependability to put across a thought in writing, the chapter editors capably fulfilled the requirements.

Spend Many Hours on Book

Business staff members were office manager, Jim Clinger; advertising manager, Milton Eisenhower, Jr.; and advertising staff, Loren D. Compton, Bob Larberg, and Benny Stewart.

Together, they sold the 24 pages of advertising appearing in the book, laid out and made up these pages, read proof on them, and checked them with the advertisers.

Responsible for securing sufficient and competent office help for the huge job of filing, indexing and typing was Jim Clinger. About 30 volunteers worked both semesters for at least two hours a week at the detailed office jobs and turned their energies to the Beauty Ball, held in February.

The advertising staff collected over $1100 in local advertising, plus letters they wrote to out-of-town advertisers.

Moreen, as business manager, was in charge of all photo receipts issued for class individual pictures and the group organization pictures, and the scheduling of these. Prices were set in accordance with costs, and frequent notices were published in the Collegian reminding students of deadline dates to have their pictures taken.

The business manager also signs all contracts with printing, engraving, cover and binding companies.

In the files kept in the Royal Purple office, is the card of each student who enrolls in school. These are checked by the business manager and his staff to assure that those who are entitled to a book, under the present program, get one in the spring.

Pictures for Annual from Five Photographers

SEEN AT ALL SCHOOL FUNCTIONS the man with the camera, Walter Warren, head Royal Purple photographer, turned out prints and enlargements of college activities. He was assisted by Morris Briggs. Other pictures were taken by Floyd Hanna of the illustrations department, Lawrence Blaker of the Studio Royal and Prof. E. T. Keith of the journalism department.

PICTURES rolled out of darkrooms toward the Royal Purple office from early spring last year to early spring this year. Complete coverage of a calendar year in the 1948 Royal Purple was thus made possible.

Head photographer for the RP was Walter Warren, electrical engineering student. His assistant was Morris Briggs. Developing and printing their own pictures, the two turned out hundreds of prints and enlargements.

Special Pictures

Special pictures were taken by Floyd Hanna of the College illustration department; Lawrence Blaker, of the Studio Royal; and Prof. E. T. Keith of the journalism department. Mr. Hanna Scheduled and took all group pictures appearing in the book. Mr. Blaker's studio handled all individual pictures such as in the class sections, and portraits. Most of the photographs used in the sports section were taken by Professor Keith.

A few pictures were purchased from other schools, mostly of sports events, and a few faculty members and student contributed photographs to the book. Foremost among these was Prof. L. B. Olmstead of the agronomy department who took some of the beautiful snow pictures and baseball scenes.

Beauty Holds Sway at Royal Purple Ball

TWELVE hundred persons danced beneath streamers and dimmed lights on February 9—the night of the Royal Purple Beauty Ball. Six hundred couples caught their breath as intermission came and the names of the queen and her attendants were announced.

Almost a semester earlier, the business manager had begun to fret about the Beauty Ball, and about how the queen was to be chosen. With the help of his staff, he settled upon Samuel Goldwyn as a logical person to know a beautiful girl when he saw one.

A letter was written. Weeks passed. Finally an answer came, saying in effect that Mr. Goldwyn would be "most honored" to act as judge.

The big night came. The gymnasium—ball room was beautiful, with decorations in a Valentine theme.

About 11 o'clock, Business Manager Tom Moreen came to the microphone with the announcements the crowd had been waiting for. "Third attendant," he drawled, "is Nina Peck, of Waltheim Hall."

A little more stalling, a little more suspense and petite Jo Best of Waltheim Hall, was announced second attendant. Screams went up from Waltheim residents when they found that both their candidates had placed among the royalty.

First attendant was Ann Uhlrickson, Delta Delta Delta, Moreen announced. More screams.

Goldwyn Picks R. P. Beauty Queens

1041 NORTH FORMOSA AVENUE
LOS ANGELES 28

January 21, 1948

Dear Mr. Moreen:

It is obviously difficult, and possibly unfair, to attempt to judge the charms and accomplishments of any group of young ladies from their photographs. The judge, in such circumstances, is confronted by the unhappy knowledge that he is making a selection without any opportunity to estimate the poise, carriage, personality, and many of the other attributes which are the essential components of beauty. He must also face the fact that the skill of the photographer may in any given case throw him completely off the track, resulting in his doing an injustice to one or all of the young ladies involved.

Admitting these hazards, I am nevertheless accepting the invitation of the Kansas State College Board of Student Publications, and risking, what I hope will not be mass indignation on the part of the student body, by making a selection purely on the basis of the photographic evidence submitted.

After due consideration, but still handicapped, I have made a choice with which I hope the student body will agree.

I wish to extend my compliments to all the young ladies whose photographs were submitted, and my congratulations to the Kansas State College for having such loveliness to adorn its classrooms and campus.

Sincerely,

Mr. Thomas K. Moreen
Board of Student Publications

After several weeks of head-scratching the staff of the Royal Purple asked Samuel Goldwyn, one of the biggest names in the motion picture production business today, to judge the merits of the Royal Purple Beauty Queen candidates. Whether or not this busy man would assent was a question mark in the minds of the staff, but it only cost three cents to send a letter.

Goldwyn, who picks the Goldwyn girls, some of the most widely known beauties in show business, agreed, and chose the queens you see on the preceding pages.

Samuel Goldwyn's life story closely parallels that of Horatio Alger. He came to the United States from Warsaw, Poland, and began his career here by working in a glove factory at three dollars a week. He soon improved his lot, however, and started in on the ground floor of the rapidly rising new industry—motion pictures. His career from this point is a well-known story to the American public.

The Parchment

The Parade

IF IT were really possible for a Hill to be blue, I would be. I get that way about this time in the spring of every year, and frequently in the middle of the winter, too, when my oldest and best friends among the students leave me for other Hills with hardly a backward glance.

I've done a lot for these kids, they owe me plenty. I've trained them for the great new world the faculty is always talking about. I've given them a good education, a good time, a good professional reputation. Of course, they have done something for me too. I rest assured that our feeling is mutual.

They have done their part in scarring my chairs and tables, scuffing my floorboards, wearing paths across my well-thatched top, painting campaign signs on my sidewalks. They've found plenty about me to gripe about—my employees, my facilities, even the lay of my land.

But on the other hand—they've worked for me. These seniors have entered into discussions in my classrooms, contributed their time to my organizations and activities, and regularly fed me with their tuition. Then too, they are good advertisements for me when they go into the "great beyond" of other hills.

Each one forms a small chapter in my life, and I in theirs. I always remember them, and it's like spring when I feel their step on me in later years. But, here, I'm getting sentimental.

Many of these who are leaving me now, I will never see again, and that's what makes me sad.

They go on and make a life in which I have no part. Sometimes, I think they don't love me anymore. But I like to watch them take their first plunge into the cold waters of life "outside," and then I know that at times they wish they could come back and re-live the "care-free" days on the Hill.

I have every confidence in these children of mine. They have great potentialities for making a success for themselves and for me. And, of course, I have developed these potentialities. It is my way of paying my debt for existing among other hills.

There is much they have learned on me—not only technical knowledge, but perhaps a little wisdom of the ways of mankind. I know. Who could know better than I? I have watched their growth for four or more of their most formative years—and for some for over a decade. Those who went to war and then came back to me I particularly welcome, yet I do not hesitate to open my gates to set them free from my physical confines.

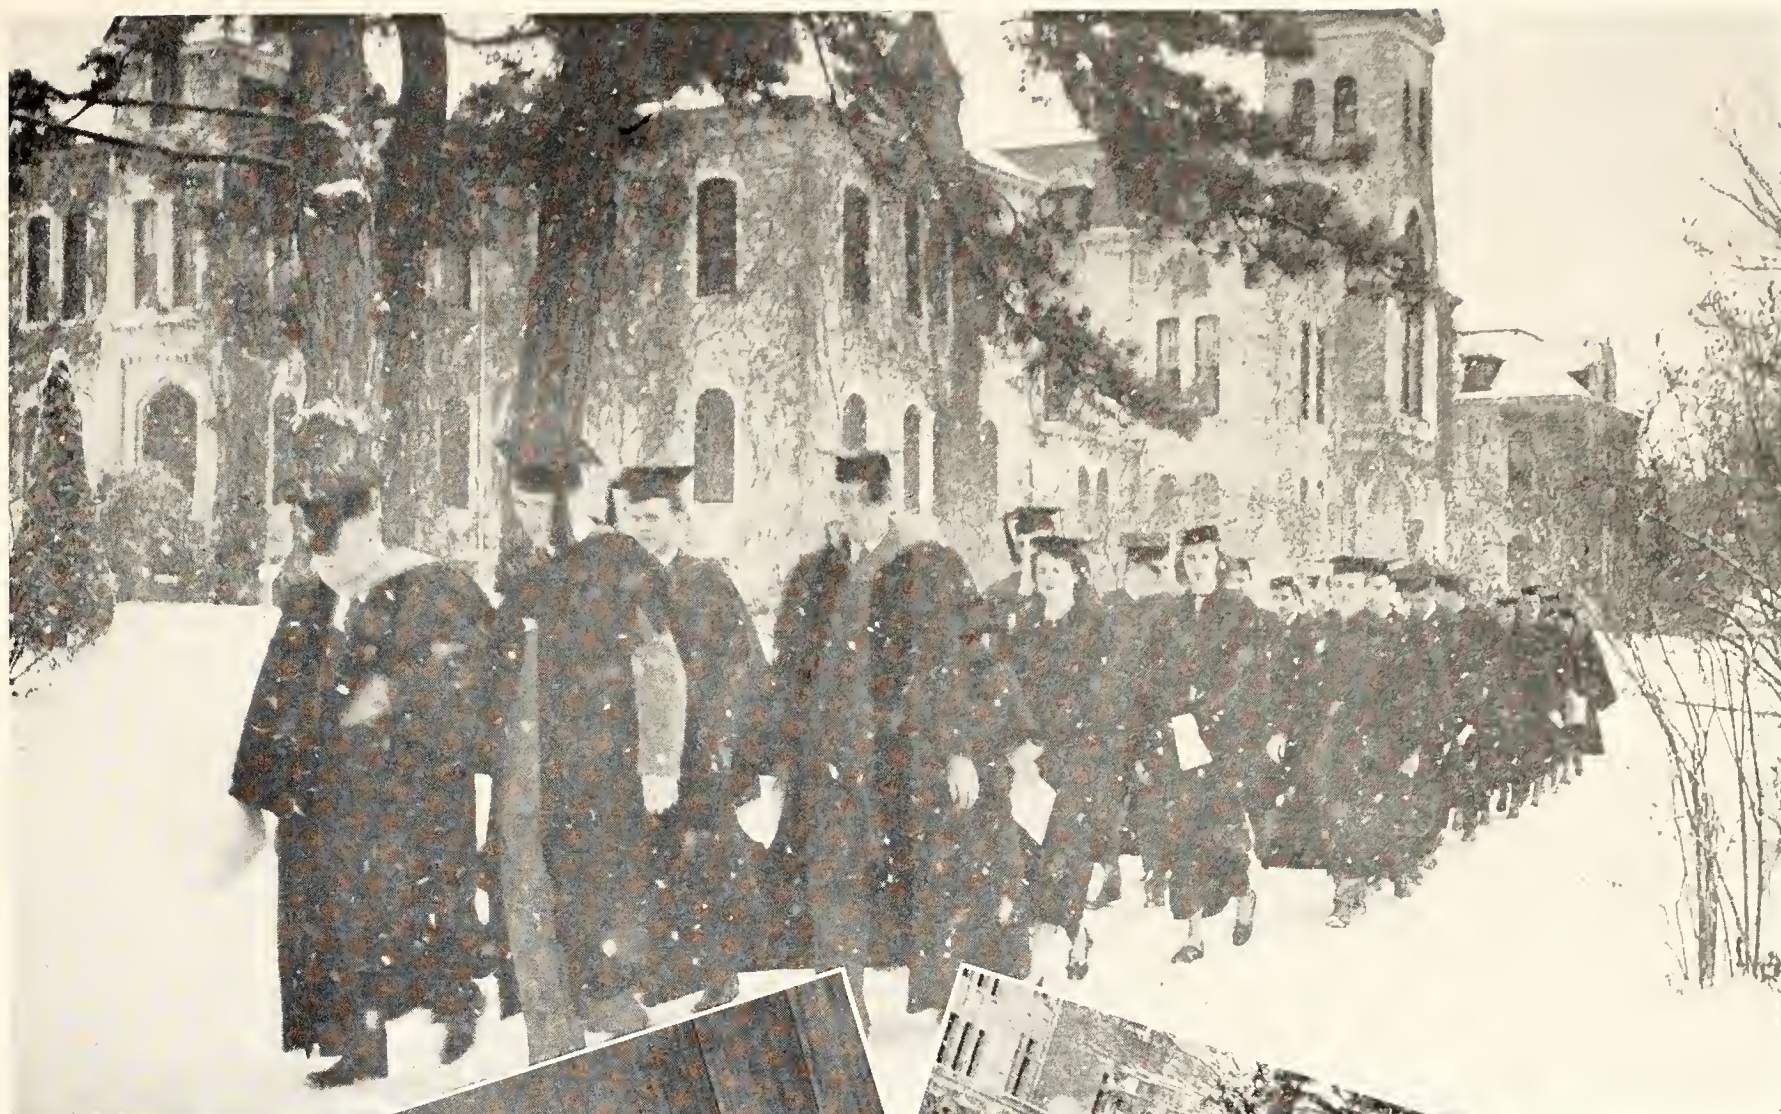

Some already have children of their own whom they will turn back to my care some day, and this is the thought with which I content myself in their going.

I can already hear the strains of "Pomp and Circumstance" echoing from wall to wall of the stadium, and feel the stately tread of the commencement procession. I can see the black mortar boards set squarely on knowing young heads, and some heads not so young and not so knowing.

I can hear the roaring exhortations of the speakers, pushing my students to endeavors beyond my power to visualize, and the soft "thank you's" as diplomas are pushed into waiting hands in an assembly line of black caps and gowns—and feel the quiet tears of parents, who are losing the same thing I am.

Well, that's life. There will be a new crop next year, and the year after that, and I will hate to lose them, too. But one thing—for them, I may be out of sight, but what they have learned from me will never be out of mind.

Over two hundred seniors took that last long walk from Anderson Hall to the Auditorium in a heavy snow the last day of January (upper center). President Eisenhower congratulates a new Bachelor of Science as Deans look on (center left).

240 Degrees in Snow

Junior class officers for the school year were (upper left) Iris Reed Smith, secretary; Betty Rich, vice-president; Howard C. Wood, president; Mary Ann Burgwin, treasurer.

Class Officers Guide All-College Groups

Senior class officers were peacefully elected in a surprisingly quiet campaign during the fall semester. Managers for the senior sneak day, gift to Kansas State from the 1948 seniors, and other senior affairs are: Irvine Gandee, president; Mildred Hall, treasurer; Jane Hackney, secretary; Dave Schirmer, vice-president.

This year's freshman class officers were Ann McMillan, secretary. Dean Van Valkenburgh, treasurer; Rex Stone, president; Gene Ackerman, vice-president.

Progressing-to a Certain Degree

THE LIFE, the spirit, the courage of an old Hill like me comes from only one source—its undergraduates. They are the ones whose voices raise to a roar at a touchdown or boo a referee, the ones who wash over me like a tide, fill my rooms with their ceaseless questions and laughter.

They are the public, who praise me if things go right for them and bitterly shout their disapproval if things go wrong. People all over the country have taken their turn at writing about what goes on on the Hills of today. Sometimes I see these articles and have a good chuckle. No one can see the whole picture of what my students do, think or feel except me. I am their foundation, their counselor and their guide toward the future.

Being a rather silent Hill, I won't attempt to tell you the attitudes—the many complexities of those who make up my population. You probably wouldn't believe me, anyway.

Sometimes, I get a little tired of the never-ending tide of youth that sweeps across my face. They chatter timelessly about who has a date with whom, why they got a B instead of a C, whether or not they should sneak out of library, and what the old so-and-so did when they cut his class.

They talk about their best friend, beer, the nitrogen cycle, the jawbone of a dogfish, the amount of sleep they got, the term paper that is due tomorrow, how many times they've been in love, the break-down of the washing machine, the word for garage in Portugese, AC and DC currents, who paid for the cokes last night, the works of Thomas Dekker, and what they did — or didn't do — in high school.

The stretch out on my grass to study or sleep between classes. They sleep in classes. They throw cigarettes all over my face and they talk about me behind my back—but I forgive them.

I have a generous nature—if you don't believe it, take note of all the punishment I have taken for the last eighty-five years. I have a solid rock constitution and a heart of limestone.

Sometime, they'll be glad I was here, those underclassmen. Someday, they'll learn to appreciate my true beauty, grace and wisdom. I realize gratitude is not a universal virtue, but one time they'll be grateful to me.

Some of these underclassmen stay a long time—some only a semester. The way I always look at that is, if they don't like me, I don't like them either. They can take me just the way I am or get off. A few get off.

But, in spite of all this, I am happy to see the dawning of each day, with drowsy students trudging back to me. Glad to feel their feet knocking aside blades of grass or slipping on my icy sidewalks. Glad to hear the grinding of pencil sharpeners, the scratch of pen on paper—even the soft snore during a comprehensive lecture.

These who are here now are the counterparts of all the tens of thousands who have gone before. They are alike, and yet they are different. They are my friends, and yet they condemn me. They are my students, and yet they do not listen to my teaching. They must learn for themselves.

But, I must give underclassmen this much credit—they have made me what I am today. I would never be able to do so much for students of today had not their predecessors done as much for me. I get along with them pretty well. For that matter, I have to. Were it not for their presence, I might be just another cornfield.

Underclassmen Perform Duties

Home ec girls cast their ballot (center) after the raucous campaign for class officers. The Commonwealth and All-College parties boasted progressive platforms and torchlight rallies for their candidates.

Fall Registration Early

Just inside the door is the end of the first line. Here dean's cards are received, (center left) and K-Staters move on to fill out information cards.

Assigning Is Long Job

Veterans queue up for the extra lines involved in G. I. Bill red tape (upper right). Here, on the second floor of Anderson, they separate from the rest of the crowd to go through a process all their own.

"I'm sorry, but that class has just been closed," are familiar words from the assigners' tables (center). Students and instructors ponder over schedules and hours for the coming semester.

Checks change hands across the desks of the cashier's office (lower left) as students pay fees and tuition.

Finished For A Semester!

Checkers hunt for assignment errors, keep part of the double-handful of papers collected during enrollment (upper left).

"Oh happy day!" shouts coed as she passes the portals of the final door with assignment, activity book and a few days of freedom before classes begin.

Activity books are handed out (lower right) in exchange for receipts from cashier. Students eagerly wait to see the numbers on the tickets and how the games have been apportioned between the odd and even books.

Freshmen struggled with aptitude tests in the freshly painted auditorium in the scorching-hot week before classes began in the fall.

Orient Frosh in Pre-School Week
