Irrigation Key To Corn Comeback

Is corn coming back as a major Kansas cash crop? Farm managers may watch the current growing crop with some special attention, for the 1967 crop was one of the three best crops since 1950, and there were signs that some areas of Kansas which had not planted major acreage to corn in 40 years were finding it a superior money-maker on irrigated land.

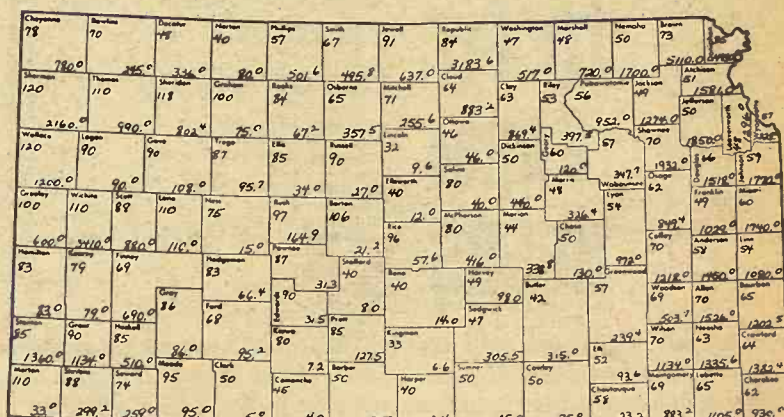

The total production in 1967 was exceptionally welcome in a year of declining income, but there are some modest signs that corn may be recovering its status as a general cash crop in the state.

The corn crop in the state last year was worth about $90 million, which still left it far short of wheat and grain sorghum as a cash crop but at least pushed it well ahead of soybeans and hay, which for a time appeared to be passing corn as income producers.

When Kansas first kept agricultural records right after the Civil War, corn was the major cash crop in the state and it wasn't until the 1880s that wheat rivaled. In fact it was about World War I before wheat became a more important cash source on an annual basis.

In the 1950s grain sorghum supplanted corn as the second largest cash crop and with the surge of soybeans in the mid-1960s it appeared that corn would likely be relegated to only area importance in the northeast corner and that soybeans would become the number three cash crop.

In addition, even tame hay output produced more dollars than corn in the years 1961-66.

The surge in corn output in 1967, despite some tough harvesting weather because of heavy fall moisture, came largely in increased yields, based on good growing conditions, continued improved hybrids, and a remarkable increase in the use of irrigated land for corn, especially in western Kansas.

The average yield in the state in 1967 was 68 bushels per acre, nine more than the previous record of 1965. Ten western Kansas counties averaged over 100 bushels per acre, and while this was limited to smaller irrigated acreages, some western Kansas counties are beginning to accumulate quite a bit of corn land. Sherman County (Goodland), for example, had 18,000 acres harvested for grain, and that is larger than the Marshall or Pottawatomie county acreages. Wichita County (Leoti) had 31,000 acres harvested, and that is as much as Atchison County, right on the Missouri river in the heart of the traditional corn country of Kansas.

Leadership in the state continued with Brown County (Hiawatha) which had a 5.11 million bushel output, giving it the number one position for the 11th consecutive year. Doniphan County, which had a major corn promotion going for the second year, came close to Brown, with 4.93 million bushels.

Before the wet fall hurt harvesting, some Doniphan county producers had talked of a 6 million bushel year.

Wichita county ranked third with 3.41 million. Rounding out the top 10 were Republic, Sherman, Shawnee, Jefferson, Johnson, Miami and Nemaha counties.

A total of 27 Kansas counties had a production of over one million bushels each.

The map accompanying this article gives yields and total production by county.

Counties with irrigated corn acreage recorded the highest average yield per acre altho some dryland acreage in eastern Kansas had yields at the same level as that achieved on irrigated land.

Sherman and Wallace counties, with average yields of 120 bushels per acre, had the highest yields, followed by Sheridan (Hoxie) with 118 bushels.

Five years ago who would have guessed that 100-bushels corn in fairly significant acreages would be grown around Goodland, Hoxie, Colby, Hill City and LaCrosse?

In the central third of the state, 14 counties had yields of 80 bushels or more.

In the major northeast corn producing section of the state, Doniphan County had the highest yield with 85 bushels per acre, followed by Brown with 73 bushels. Eleven eastern Kansas counties had yields of 65 bushels or more.

Ranking first with acreage of corn harvested for grain was Brown with 70,000 acres, followed by Doniphan with 58,000 acres and Republic with 37,900 acres. For the state, corn was priced from 1.06 million acres, three percent more than harvested a year earlier but 11 percent below average. In addition, Kansas farmers harvested 240,000 acres for silage, and 24,000 acres were harvested for forage.

Major acreage of corn for silage or forage was counted in Cheyenne, Scott, Wichita, Finney, Haskell, Seward, Jewell, Dickinson, McPherson, Marion, Rush, Saline, Harvey, Douglas, Franklin, and Miami counties.

With good early summer moisture and the increase in irrigated acreage, it is possible that Kansas farmers will be increasing corn land, and it is possible that a 100 million bushel crop or a $100 million cash income could be reached again.

The state hasn't had a 100-million bushel crop since 1932, when the price dropped to 27 cents. There has been only one $100 million crop since 1928, that in 1950 when the price was around $1.40 to $1.50. The acreage that year was more than double the current corn land in cultivation, but the yields then were only about half what they are now.

What might prevent then another $100 million crop is price, currently in the $1.10 to $1.15 range.

Few farmers will miss that "if" for it is price that seems to be preventing everything for farmers these days.

Rising Interest Rates Limit 'Safe' Farm Debts

MANHATTAN — Higher interest rates are limiting the amount of debt many Kansas farms can safely carry, reports a Kansas State University economist.

Farm debt loads are higher now than ever before. But you can handle less debt safely at higher interest rates unless the repayment period is lengthened or the project yields a higher return, says Wilton B. Thomas.

Three factors influence the debt carrying ability of a farm business. These are: length of repayment period, rate of interest, and farm earnings which can be used to make principal and interest payments.

Thomas uses this example to point out the importance of length of repayment period. Assume that your farm business has sufficient income so that you can pay $6,000 annually for monthly interest and principal payments.

If the repayment period was 10 years, you could carry a debt of $45,031. For a 20-year loan, you could handle a $83,395 debt.

The economist illustrates the impact of higher interest rates by comparing the approximate total payments for principal and interest on a $10,000 loan for various interest rates and time periods.

Assume you borrowed $10,000 for one year. At six percent interest, you would repay $10,330 in principal and interest. At seven percent, the repayment would total $10,380.

Extend the length of the loan to 10 years, and the principal and interest payments would total $13,332. At seven percent, the total would be $13,930.

On a 20-year loan, repayment would total $17,190 at six percent or $18,610 at seven percent.

The project for which money is borrowed has a great deal of influence on the total load that can be carried, Thomas says. Many long-term loans, such as those for real estate and machinery, require that principal and interest be paid from net earnings.

In contrast, loans for feeder livestock are repaid from gross returns because money invested in feeder steers is recovered when the animals are sold.

Thus, you might buy fifty or fifty-five 700-pound steers for $10,000. When marketed at 1,100 pounds, they may return $15,500 of which perhaps $4,700 will be expenses, $10,000 principal, and $800 payment for management and risk. The principal and interest would be repaid from the gross returns.

If you obtained a $10,000 long-term loan to buy land, you would have to make the payments on principal from the net proceeds of the business. If the loan required average annual principal payments of $1,000 — a $10,000 loan for 10 years, for example — the land would have to provide $1,000 net income each year to meet the principal payments.

In summary, the debt load a farm can carry is determined by the "Three R's." There are:

- Returns — the profit which the project will make.
- Repayment capacity — or total income which provides the means of servicing the debt load after family living expenses and farm operations expenses are paid.
- Risk-bearing ability of the farm family and the business which they operate.

Propose Tax On Oil And Gas

TOPEKA — Phoposals were made to a special legislative committee for a franchise tax on natural gas shipped out of Kansas and for a severance tax on oil by Rep. Harriet Graham (D-Wichita).

The committee, composed of House and Senate members, under the chairmanship of Sen. Frank Hodge (R-Hutchinson) is studying the state's tax structure.

Problems involved in assessing oil- and gas-producing properties for taxes in the various counties were outlined previously to the committee.

Mrs. Graham said the problems mentioned would be eliminated under her proposal for a severance tax in lieu of property taxes on oil production.

She suggested collecting tax at the state level at five per cent of the gross value of oil produced, then sending it back to the counties.

The franchise tax on gas shipped out of Kansas also should be put at five percent, Mrs. Graham proposed, estimating this would bring in about $13 million a year.

If the state is going to take over more of what has been local financing, it will have to move into new tax areas, she insisted.

Mrs. Graham, the only woman member of the House, was questioned sharply on the severance tax proposal by several committee members.

Rep. Richard C. Loux, D-Wichita, a member of the committee, supported her proposal. He said the addition of a five percent tax would leave the price of Kansas gas shipped out of the state well below the national average, because gas companies contracted for gas from the Hugoton field in the 1930s and 40s. In addition, Loux said, the companies can purchase it under these contracts which are considerably below the national average.

Mid-June Crop Prices Dip Slightly

TOPEKA — According to the Kansas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service, mid-June prices received by Kansas farmers were slightly below a month earlier, with lower crop prices more than offsetting small gains registered by livestock and livestock products.

The all-farm products price index stood at 228 percent of the 1910-14 base period, down one point from mid-May and nine points below a year earlier.

Moderate price declines were noted for wheat, barley and hay, white oats, rye and sorghum grain declined only slightly. The price of hogs increased moderately with beef cattle, chickens and eggs showing slight gains.

The all-crop price index at mid-June was 150 percent of the 1910-14 base, down six points from May and 24 points below a year ago. Wheat prices averaged $1.23 per bushel, down six cents from last month and the lowest since 1943.

The livestock and livestock products price index as of mid-June stood at 317 percent of the 1910-14 base, up five points from a month earlier and nine points above June last year. Hogs averaged $19.10 per hundred weight, up 90 cents from May but $1.90 below June last year. Steers and heifers brought $25.50 compared with $25 a month earlier and $24.50 last

July 9, 1968

June. The dairy products price index at mid-June was 304 percent, unchanged from May but 24 points above June a year ago.

Missouri Experiment Comparing Carcasses Of 3 Breeds, Crossbreds

Which is best, Hereford, Angus or Shorthorn? Or Charolais?

The arguments, of course, are as old as the livestock industry, and any livestockman can give you good reasons why his choice is best.

In these days, not only is there competition among breeders of purebred cattle but among crossbreds. Commercial feeders often find they can get better gaining steers on crosses — the contend hybrid vigor shows up.

In an effort to answer some of the questions being asked and to substantiate or refute some of the claims being made, the University of Missouri is running a rather elaborate experiment on a big farm that it owns at Spickard, Mo.

On this farm, Hereford, Angus and Charolais cattle are being raised and fed both as purebreds and as crosses of each of the breeds.

At its recent Beef Day on the campus at Columbia, livestock specialists reported the crossbreeding study to date shows no one cross or breed is superior to all others for most carcass traits.

However, more data still is needed to draw definite conclusions regarding any trait, breed or cross. The experiment was started in the fall of 1965 and the third crop of calves is on the ground.

Reporting on results to date, livestock specialists said purebred Charolais steers had heavier slaughter and carcass weights, less fat trim, a larger percentage of retail and primal cuts, and more bone, but lower carcass conformation grades and more inside fat than either the purebred Angus or Herefords.

Purebred Angus graded higher and exhibited more marbling but had more fat trim and less bone than either the purebred Herefords or Charolais.

Herefords generally were intermediate to Angus and Charolais for all traits studied.

Crossbreds were, in general, intermediate to the two pure breeds making up the cross for most traits; however, there were some instances where crossbreeding made the carcass more or less desirable.

One example of the former, the specialists said, came when Charolais were crossed with Angus and Herefords with the result that the crossbreds generally had less fat trim than Herefords and Angus and graded higher than the Charolais.

The experiment at the farm at Spickard is continuing. The principal objective is to determine the influence of heterosis on growth and carcass characteristics of beef cattle when purebred cows and purebred bulls are used to produce purebred and crossbred calves during the same season.

There are other factors that determine a breeder's choice of cattle. For instance, how many calves can the cow man expect to sell from each 100 cows in his herd?

About the only obvious conclusion to date is that, as always, plenty of room exists for all breeds. Also, more recognized breeds are thriving than ever before. But they have to be good to get the business of the commercial producers.

For capacity...no other blower can match the Gehl Hi-Throw!

The silo hasn't been built that a Gehl Hi-Throw can't easily fill. It lifts over 60 tons an hour! To any silo height. That's more throw-power and capacity than any other blower on the market.

The fan housing outlet is the same width as the blower pipe — 9 inches. The Gehl Hi-Throw blasts a full 9-inch pipeful of forage to the silo at a ton-a-minute. No other blower can beat it!

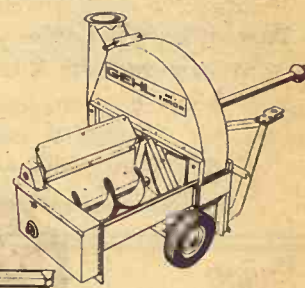

The Hi-Throw blasts hard-to-blow haylage into the tallest silo without even breathing hard. Does it sun up to sun down, without plugging.

Features include: Quick-touch leveling adjustment. Water hose intake. Adjustable rim sheet and fan. Recessed wheels.

Tough Questions, Long Answers On Farm Bureau

How many members has the Farm Bureau? How many of them are not farmers?

What businesses is Farm Bureau in besides insurance? Is Farm Bureau insurance the largest company in the U.S.?

Were the allegations made by Congressman Resnick last year about Farm Bureau true?

How many of these questions can Grass & Grain honestly answer?

Harold Warneke
WICHITA

Does the last question imply that Grass & Grain wouldn't answer the questions honestly? The questions are basically so broad and the answers too elusive for our research abilities.

But most of the ensuing answer is from a Wall Street Journal research done last fall during Congressman Resnick's heckling of the Farm Bureau.

The Farm Bureau's membership is 1.75 million. That includes business memberships, as well as individuals. By its own admission, a fourth of the Farm Bureau's membership are not farmers. Some of its critics say the figure is more like one-half. Part of the answer of course lies in the definition of a farmer. A tenant or landowner who raises livestock or raises crops is obviously a farmer. Is a man who makes his living from owning farmland but does not actually till the soil? How about a chinchilla breeder? The questions from there are obvious. Equally obvious is the fact that large, but unknown, numbers of insurance buyers who must be Farm Bureau members could by no definition be considered farmers.

Obviously the Farm Bureau is more than a farm bureau. The number of businesses attached to it attest to this, as do the range of its political interests. Of 32 major resolutions covered at the last convention at Chicago, few were directly concerned with farm topics.

Farm Bureau leadership doesn't appear to hide its business operations but it does insist that the businesses are primarily for the benefit of the farmer.

Farm Bureau got first into the insurance business, covering risks at a lesser rate than was available at the time from commercial companies. Today, the state Farm Bureaus cooperatively or on their own operate 42 companies that write auto, casualty, fire, crop and other policies. These companies have assets of $380 million.

There are also 12 companies in the life insurance business, with assets of $815 million and $6 billion of insurance in force. Kansas is one of the state bureaus in the life insurance business. The national Farm Bureau runs a company that writes reinsurance for the state affiliates' companies. It has assets of $20 million.

While Farm Bureau's insurance companies are quite large, they are by no means the largest in the country. In life insurance, the FB companies would not compare at all to some of the old-line titans of the field. In auto insurance and fire coverage, Farm Bureau companies would certainly rank right up there with the biggest mutual firms. Even in states where FB is strongest, State Farm is ordinarily a larger writer of auto insurance, but FB would rank in the top three of many states.

Besides insurance, Farm Bureau is in gasoline, fertilizer, auto supply, rent-a-car, trucking, real estate, accounting, and feed and seed businesses in various states. Generally, these are not highly profitable appearing operations.

FB Services Inc. was originally set up to supply farmers with a few basic products—such as tires—that it bought from manufacturers. But now the company makes many of the products it sells. It operates six fertilizer plants, three feed mills and two seed-processing plants.

In addition, it has substantial interests in five other companies that produce fertilizer, refine petroleum, own oil fields and manufacture farm products such as grain bins. It operates a fleet of 200 trucks and two barges to move its wares to the 160 cooperatives that sell them to Farm Bureau members. Its last sales year accounted for $176 million.

Many of these business activities, of course, are limited to just one or two states and many of them are run by one and two-man departments. The Kansas Farm Bureau's efforts with tires, for example, while growing do not require much manpower, and I believe both FB leadership and customers would agree that finding satisfactory outlets and making guarantees good has been a problem.

Kansas and several other states offer computerized book-keeping systems. Illinois has a serum cooperative that buys animal medicines in bulk from pharmaceutical houses.

Underneath the structure of directly-owned businesses, the Farm Bureau has a vast level of investments, capital to be used from the insurance companies, mutual funds, and other operations.

The Illinois Farm Bureau has about $1 million a week to invest in bonds, stocks, mortgages, and real estate. They have interests in residences, office buildings and apartment houses, in some two dozen shopping centers and a couple of country clubs. In Alabama, a Farm Bureau Insurance affiliate owns two hotels and two of the state's largest shopping centers.

Occasionally a Farm Bureau venture gets so big that it all but engulfs the state Bureau that founded it. The Ohio Farm Bureau founded its first insurance affiliate in 1926, and by 1943 it had become such a big operation that Ohio insurance officials encouraged the Farm Bureau and the insurance company to split. They did, and the insurance company became the Nationwide Insurance Cos.

The Ohio Farm Bureau is the one which once talked seriously of trying to purchase the A&P grocery chain when farmers were discussing getting into marketing in a larger way.

About Congressman Resnick's charges; it seems to me he was clearly wide of the mark. To my knowledge no congressman took Resnick seriously, and I doubt that was because Farm Bureau has many friends in Congress. In fact, FB is not known as the most effective group in the capital, particularly considering the size of its 11-lobbyist force.

Attempt To Prevent Encephalitis Epidemic

COLBY — Chickens here are being watched to prevent an epidemic of encephalitis. It's part of a control system for encephalitis which has been set up.

Bill Jump, Topeka, entomologist for the control division of the Kansas Department of Health is in charge of the project.

Contrary to public opinion, birds are the primary carriers of encephalitis, says Jump.

He said birds can become immune to the virus, but mosquito may pick up the germ from a bird and transmit the disease to humans.

Two flocks of chicken are being observed daily in the Colby area and blood tests are made to determine any appearance of the disease.

Two flocks are cared for by Steve Engelhardt and Liester

July 9, 1968

Haremza in rural Colby.

Jump will check the birds every two weeks.

He said the chickens were hatched this spring and have not yet been infected.

By taking regular blood samples and running tests, Jump said it can be determined if the chickens have developed the antibody, which would indicate the encephalitis virus.

He said the control chickens would probably become infected from mosquitoes which have bitten infected birds in other areas.

Jump said the chickens will be watched closely, and that if a high percentage become infected, he will notify authorities.

A second method is being used to check for the disease. A light trap to snare mosquitoes will keep tabs on the insects and again reveal signs of a high percentage of infection.

He said the best time during a year for such an outbreak is during July and August.

The Colby system is one of five in Kansas where a high rate of infection has been recorded in the last 10 years.

OUR DAILY BREAD

— by G&G Area Cooks

Mrs. Jasper Vincent Of Clay Center Contest Winner

Winner is Mrs. Jasper Vincent, 612 Huntress, Clay Center. She writes, "this recipe was taken from a pioneer cookbook when dried corn and homemade hominy was used. I have found the following works very nicely."

BAKED CORN & HOMINY

1 can yellow hominy
1 can yellow whole grain corn
Drain hominy. Do not save juice. Drain corn and reserve juice. Mix corn and hominy together and place in a shallow baking dish which has been buttered. Add to the corn juice salt and pepper to your taste. Add 1 tablespoon sugar. Bring juice to boil. Remove from burner and add enough milk or coffee cream so sauce will cover hominy and corn. Bring sauce to a slow boil and add enough flour thickening to make a light sauce. When sauce has thickened add 2 tablespoons of oleo or butter. Pour over corn and hominy. Sprinkle with pepper. Bake in a slow oven till sauce bubbles for 15 minutes. Do not over-bake.

Mrs. Orland Stewart, Longford: "I enjoy your page so much am sending a dessert recipe. It is so cool and light for summer."

FRUIT TRIFLE

1 large angel cake
2 boxes strawberry or cherry gelatin
1 box vanilla pudding
2 or 3 bananas
Break cake in clear bowl or oblong pan. (This is a pretty dessert and it will show through clear bowl). Mix 1 package gelatin and pour over angel cake and chill until set. Mix pudding and set aside to cool. Slice bananas over angel cake then pour cooled pudding over top of bananas. Chill one hour. Mix second box gelatin and partly chill. Pour over top of pudding and chill until set. "I like to put nuts in the top layer of gelatin."

Thelma Baldock of Delphos sent the next recipe.

MYSTERY PUDDING

1 cup flour
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon soda
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 cups fruit cocktail with juice
1 egg, beaten
1 teaspoon vanilla

1 cup brown sugar
1/2 cup nuts, chopped
Mix first four ingredients in bowl; add fruit cocktail, egg and vanilla then mix again. Pour into greased 13x9-inch pan and cover with the brown sugar and nuts. Bake one hour in 325-degree oven. This may be served warm or cold with either whipped cream or ice cream. (For extra special taste, replace some of the fruit cocktail with pineapple chunks and maraschino cherries.)

Mrs. James H. Cravens, R 5, Manhattan, submitted the following recipe:

SURPRISE BURGERS

2 pounds hamburger
3 wieners
1/4 cup milk
2 or 3 crackers or 1 slice dried bread
Flour
Milk
Salt
Pepper
Chop wieners into small pieces and mix with hamburger. Crumble crackers or bread and mix with 1/4 cup milk. Add to meat mixture and mix well. Shape into patties. Dip in milk and then flour. Salt and pepper to suit your own taste. Fry in covered skillet until almost done. Remove lid to brown.

Mrs. Evert M. Cowen, R 3, Manhattan: "I enjoy Grass & Grain very much."

LEMON-ORANGE SALAD

1 3-ounce package lemon gelatin
1 3-ounce package orange gelatin
2 1/2 cups boiling water
1 small package cream cheese
1 6-ounce can frozen orange juice
1 flat can crushed pineapple

4. Send it to Woman's Page Editor, Grass & Grain, Box 1009, Manhattan, Kansas.

Pour boiling water over gelatin and let cool. Add Philadelphia cream cheese and whip till smooth. Add thawed orange juice and pineapple and let set.

Mrs. John R. Nelson, R 2, Delphos, sent the following:

SLAW

1 medium head cabbage
1 pepper
1 medium large onion
1 cup sugar

1 teaspoon salt
1 cup vinegar
3/4 cup salad oil
1/4 teaspoon mustard seed

1 teaspoon cloves
1 teaspoon ginger
1 teaspoon vinegar
1 teaspoon baking soda

July 9, 1968

2 eggs, well beaten
In saucepan, cream 1 cup butter or margarine with 1 cup sugar. Add 1/2 cup dark molasses, 1 teaspoon each of ground cinnamon, nutmeg, cloves and ginger; mix well. Stirring constantly, bring to a boil. Remove from heat and allow to cool. When lukewarm, stir in 2 well-beaten eggs and 1 teaspoon vinegar. Sift 5 cups flour with 1 teaspoon baking soda; stir into molasses mixture to form a smooth dough. Chill for several hours or overnight. When ready to bake divide the dough into six portions; roll out 1/8-inch thick on aluminum foil. Cut with rabbit cutter, remove excess dough. Use raisins for eyes. Place foil and rabbits on baking sheet. Bake at 350 degrees for a 8-10 minutes. Makes about 3 1/2 to four dozen cookies depending on size of cutter. "I also use different cutter and have an 'Old McDonald Farm.'"

CORN FLAKE KISSES
2 egg whites, beaten stiff
2 cups corn flakes
1 cup coconut
1 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon vanilla
1/2 cup nuts, if desired
Beat egg whites. Add sugar gradually, beating while adding. Fold in remaining ingredients. Drop by teaspoonful onto oiled pan. Bake in slow oven, 325-350 degrees, for 12-15 minutes. Makes 30 small kisses.

Pop Corn At Patio Parties

Popcorn-popping, a popular pastime at any get-together, will account for much of the snap, crackle and pop at patio parties this summer. Electric aluminum corn poppers offer all the fun of popping corn and eliminate all the mess. Popcorn gets evenly toasted on all sides, thanks to the rapid, even heat distribution properties of aluminum. The aluminum shell has heat-proof legs that won't scratch your table and some units have clear cover bowls that let you watch the action, then flip over to become serving dishes. Up to four quarts of popcorn can be made at a time.

Protects Umbrella

To keep an umbrella dust-free when it will not be used for a long time, cover it with an old nylon stocking.

Good Place For Seedling Thinnings

What do you do with the seedlings of annual flowers that you thin to allow those left the proper spacing? Have you thought of planting these thinnings in front of or between perennial that bloomed earlier in the year?

Peonies, for instance, finish blooming by the time petunias start, but furnish excellent foliage for background to the bright petunia blooms.

nobody.

The fat hog is out of favor. And with good reason. The consumer demands lean meat—so the market wants a lean animal. You want to sell a heavy hog. Not a fat one.

You get lean, heavy hogs when three things are right. Breeding. Management. Feeding. Slack up on any one of them and you trim profits.

CO-OP Swine Feeds are formulated to give fast efficient gains. Tylan and Sulfa come in both Complete Feeds and Concentrates now. Get both in Starter and Grower Feeds; Tylan alone in Finisher Feeds.

Your Co-op Feed Man has the information and the products to improve your hog feeding operation. You can put your hogs on a diet — a CO-OP diet — to help get them heavy. Not fat.

Asters Will Provide Pretty Mid-Summer Blooms

It's always a pleasure to have some flowers start to bloom later when one has become accustomed to all the others in the garden. Asters are the most easily grown, most floriferous of the mid-summer bloomers.

The wild ancestors of our asters came from China. That's why you often hear them referred to as "China" asters. But the types and varieties available today are a far cry from the wild aster of old.

Plant breeders have given us so many different forms and colors that a gardener first has to make up his mind what sort of aster he wishes to grow.

There are fluffy-headed asters like Fluffy Ruffles and Crego, asters with perfectly rounded blossoms, as in the Perfection strain and others with "anemone"-type blossoms — a single outer row of loose petals with a yellow, quill-like center disc.

There are also tall asters (to three feet) and dwarf ones, big-flowered asters and those with pompon-like blossoms, early and late-blooming varieties and a range of flower colors from white through pink, rose and red to lavender and purple, with such unusual colors as peach in addition.

The number of flowers to a plant is determined largely by the branching. All asters branch more or less but, as an example, the powderpuff asters, illustrated, are so heavily branched that a whole plant usually is cut and provides a bouquet.

Asters are easy to grow. Sow the seeds where you want the flowers, scattering them sparsely and covering them with only a quarter inch of soil. When seedlings have several pairs of leaves, thin the seedlings so that they stand from eight inches to a foot apart, depending on their final height.

Enjoy their bright blossoms in the garden but be sure, also, to cut plenty of them for use indoors.

Calendulas 'Can Be Sown Twice

Calendulas can be sown twice during the garden season — in spring for flowers during summer and in summer for fall bloom. Where climate is mild, calendulas are considered winter flowers.

No Twist

When you insert elastic in a waistband, prevent it from twisting by adjusting to waist and then running a row of vertical stitching at the center back, center front and at both sides of the article.

Cleaner Shoe Polishing

When polishing shoes, put plastic bags over your hands, fastening them at the wrists with rubber bands. Polish won't rub off on your hands and under your fingernails.

TRY New PURINA RANGE & PASTURE MINERAL

...the high phosphorus supplement

Phosphorus and calcium make up more than 70 percent of the minerals in cattle. For good body condition and maximum performance, cattle require an adequate supply of both at a ratio near 1:1.

Range and pasture grasses are very low in phosphorus content. Grazing cattle may get only 50 to 60 percent of their phosphorus needs in summer, and as little as 40 percent under drought or winter conditions.

Purina Range & Pasture Mineral, with its 16% phosphorus level, is formulated specifically to supplement mineral deficiencies of pastures and range.

Fed free choice, Purina Range & Pasture Mineral supplies all the known mineral requirements for cattle in amounts exceeding the National Research Council's recommendations. Phosphorus is supplied from three sources to insure availability; all trace minerals are present in readily available form.

Purina Range & Pasture Mineral contains organic iodine to help prevent foot rot and soft tissue lumpy jaw, iron in highly available sulfate form giving it a light instead of red color, cobalt, manganese, zinc and copper.

Stop by at the sign of the Checkerboard to find out what this quality mineral supplement can do for your cattle.

Hog, Pig Count Up This Year

The Federal-State Crop and Livestock Reporting Service announced that the number of hogs and pigs on Kansas farms is running well ahead of last year.

The number of hogs and pigs on Kansas farms as of June 1 was placed at 1,737,000 head, up 114,000, or seven percent from a year ago.

In the ten cornbelt states — Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri, South Dakota, Nebraska and Kansas — The June 1 number of hogs and pigs totaled 45,406,000 head, one percent below last year. Breeding hogs, at 6,674,000 head, decreased one percent. Other hogs, at 38,732,000 head, were also down one percent. In Iowa, the leading state in hog production, the number of hogs and pigs on hand totaled 14,719,000 head, down four percent from the same date a year earlier. Other leading states showing decreases were Indiana, four percent; Illinois, three percent; Wisconsin, two percent; and Ohio, one percent. The decreases were partly offset by increases of seven percent in Nebraska and Kansas, six percent in South Dakota, three percent in Minnesota and two percent in Missouri. The ten corn belt states accounted for 77 percent of total U.S. inventory of hogs and pigs on June 1, the same as a year earlier.

Hogs on farms on June 1, 1968 totaled 59,014,000 head, a decrease of one percent from June.

Cuba Will Hold Centennial Celebration

The small rural town of Cuba is going all out to celebrate the town's 100th birthday on July 20-21.

These two days are to be filled with events to interest both young and old. Entertainment on Saturday will include a parade, beard judging event, horse show, old-time threshing bee, pet parade, talent show, band concert and a dance.

On Sunday there will be another parade, a beard parade, threshing bee, Indian dancers from Red Cloud, Nebr., barber-shop chorus and program, style show, band concert and a dance.

In addition, there will be a carnival and bingo games both days. A special display of antiques will be shown, along with an old-time saloon and various stands.

Last but not least, during both days a variety of Czech food will be served. Visitors may stop at a food stand for kolaches or eat a full meal of pork, sauer kraut and dumplings or other Czech foods.

Civil Service Exams Aug. 3 and 24

Kansas civil service examinations to fill clerical positions at Kansas State University in Manhattan and in other state offices and institutions will be held in Manhattan on two Saturday mornings in August — Aug. 3 and Aug. 24.

The examinations are for the classes of clerk — stenographer, clerk-typist and clerk. An examination for radio telephone operator I will also be held in Manhattan on each of these dates. Radio telephone operator positions are in the Kansas Highway Patrol.

Wins Award In Cow Competition

KANSAS CITY, MO. — The American Royal Rodeo's carload show and sale was held recently at the Kansas City Stockyards.

Winning the reserve championship award in Hereford competition at the show was the entry of Turkey Creek Ranch, Hope. These 1136-pound steers were home-raised and led, coming from the reputation Turkey Creek Ranch herd owned by the Sandows. The herd has been using bulls from Moxley Hereford Ranch, Council Grove, exclusively for 36 years. These steers sold at $28 per cwt.

Still Sells Hay Hooks

Yates Center shop man Dale Stoll thinks he may be about the only hay-hook maker left in the Midwest. He started making hay hooks in 1948 and puts out about 3500 a year. He sells hooks to dealers in seven states. Retail price is $1.25. Yates Center advertises itself as the "hay capital of the world."

Stoll buys raw steel in 20-foot rods, three eighths of an inch thick. The hooks are made in 12, 14, 16 and 18-inch lengths. He guarantees his hooks. If one breaks, he'll replace it without charge.

Canadians Cut Wheat Acres

Canada has planted about 2.6 percent less acres to wheat this year than last. Canadian farmers seeded about 28.3 million acres this year, compared to 29.5 million in 1967. The tremendous surge to fertilizing, which produced a 75 percent increase in two years, has apparently abated. Canadian farmers have indicated about a 6 percent increase in fertilizer use this year.

The nicest thing about a Mix-Mill® feed processing system...

when you need it,
it doesn't need you!

Your Mix-Mill® feed processing system stores, measures, mixes and grinds your concentrate, grains and other ingredients, and delivers fresh feed to the feeders automatically . . . electrically. It will deliver feed for two hours out of 24, 10 hours out of 24, or 24 hours out of 24 . . . regardless of where you are or what you're doing.

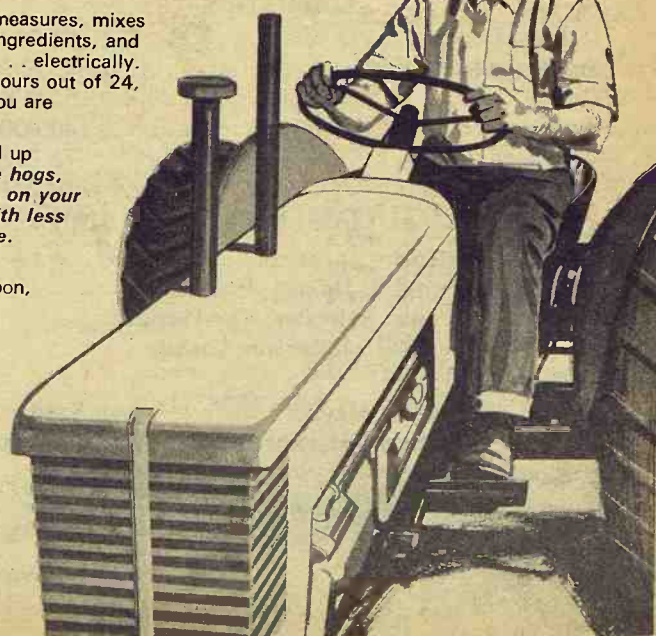

There are dozens of other advantages which add up to this. A Mix-Mill® system will feed all of the hogs, beef cattle, dairy animals, or poultry you have on your farm . . . or plan to have . . . at less cost and with less labor involved than any other method available.

The nicest thing you could do would be to make us prove it. We'll be glad to. Just fill in the coupon, and get it in the mail today.

The Juris Doctor degree replaces the bachelor of law degree formerly awarded by Nebraska U. Kvasnicka was among the first graduates to receive the new degree, now standard, and offered to law graduates of previous years.

Two Marshall Co. Schools 'Unsafe'

TOPEKA — Two school buildings in Marshall County have been found to be hazardous and will be closed, State Fire Marshal Arthur R. Ramey announced.

The schools are Waterville Junior High School which had 143 students in the last school year, and Blue Rapids Elementary School, which had 175 pupils.

Ramey said he had been notified by telephone that the school board in Unified School District 498 would follow his recommendation and close the buildings but he did not know what action the school board would take to provide classroom space for the students.

Inspectors from his office looked over the schools a month ago and found them to be hazardous.

Later the school board hired a Topeka structural engineering firm to inspect the buildings. The firm reported the buildings were so structurally weak there was a possibility they could collapse.

OVERLOAD TICKETS DISMISSED

HUTCHINSON — A half-dozen tickets given area wheat farmers for allegedly overloading farm trucks have been dismissed here in Reno County Magistrate Court.

Assistant Court Attorney Ray Berkley said that one defendant who had pleaded guilty and paid $63.36 in penalties and court costs will receive a refund in an attempt to treat all parties "equal."

The overload complaints were dismissed by Berkley, who said the Kansas Highway Patrolman who wrote the tickets had stopped farmers as they were leaving grain elevators and had made arrests based on the grain receipts slips.

Berkley stated the trooper had not advised the farmers of their constitutional rights when asking to see the grain receipts and, in effect, was forcing the farmer to testify against himself.

Farmland Awards 4 Scholarships

MANHATTAN — Four Kansas State University upperclassmen have been announced as winners of $400 Farmland Industries Inc., scholarships for the 1968-69 school year.

According to Dr. Carroll Hess, dean of the KSU College of Agriculture, the scholarship recipients are Richard E. Bramlage, Frankfort; Larry D. Goerzen, Newton; William David Oswalt,

The Farmland Industries, Inc., $1600 scholarship program calls for four scholarships to be awarded annually to upperclass students in the K-State College of Agriculture. Parents of scholarship winners must be members of an agricultural cooperative and the students must rank in the upper third of their class.

In addition to the K-State scholarships, Farmland Industries Inc. supports an extensive program of scholarships at other land grant universities in the area.

Some Big Gains, Losses In Booming Pork Belly Market

CHICAGO — The most heavily traded commodity on world futures markets this year isn't gold or silver or even the old standbys of corn or wheat. It's pork bellies — unsliced slabs of bacon in the rough.

So far this year, some 668,900 raw bacon futures contracts (for 30,000 pounds each) have changed hands on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange, compared with about 637,600 corn contracts and 557,600 wheat contracts (5000 bushels each) on the Chicago Board of Trade.

The market is attracting hordes of speculators, many of them from the general public who unwittingly find themselves pitted against the professional traders.

The unwary neophyte, perhaps more accustomed to securities trading, can have his initial investment all but wiped out in a single day in the volatile pork belly market.

A savvy trader, on the other hand, could show corresponding quick increases in his money.

Such big profits are being made despite the fact that belly futures prices have been declining for about seven weeks. It is the declining market, perhaps, which is giving some general public traders a little trouble.

"Outsiders don't understand that in commodities they can sell first and buy later," says one professional trader. That's called "going short" in the market.

If a trader went short in the pork product for July delivery at the season high of 40.7 cents a pound set on April 24, and if he stuck with it until last Thursday at the season low of 27 cents, he could pocket a profit of $4.110 on a single 30,000-pound contract.

And that's on an investment — the initial margin required by the exchange — of $700.

On the other hand, a speculator who bought a contract (went "long") with his $700 could last only a day and a half if prices declined at the daily limit of 1.5 cents a pound. Even before he reached that point, his broker would ask for more money or take him out of the market.

The declining market at first caught some professional traders by surprise. In March, a government report placed U.S. hog numbers at only 1% to 2% higher than a year earlier, less than some traders had expected.

But at the end of April, farmers started delivering many more hogs than they had shipped a year before; some receiving stations reported daily receipts 20% or more higher than the year-ago date.

As a result, cold-storage stocks of pork bellies started building. The government reported cold-storage holdings of pork bellies on June 1 totaled 131.7 million pounds, up from 115.6 million pounds a month earlier and 100 million pounds a year ago.

In response to this buildup, traders who held long futures contracts began liquidating and prices started their seven-week drop. Because farmers' hog shipments continued heavy, the traders switched to the short side of the futures market.

Whether prices rise or fall, the pork-belly market has been a boon to the Chicago Mercantile Exchange. As trading has grown, membership prices have soared. A seat on the exchange sold at a record $33,000 May 24, up $16,000 from a year earlier. Since then sales have been made as low as $30,500, but the current lowest offering price is $33,000.

In addition to the great speculation in pork bellies, traders say the market has been successful because much of the meat-packing industry has used it to "hedge" their inventories — that is, protect themselves against price declines by selling futures against their own stocks.

And even with the wide price swings such as occurred this year, futures have made the market more stable than it once was. "Before a futures market existed (bellies were listed in 1961)," says John T. Geldermann, a trader, "prices swung a lot more than they do. A fellow with a large inventory that the trade knew about was more or less at their mercy. Now, hedging provides price insurance. No matter where the market goes, a man is protected."

At least one trader thinks some of the success of pork belly futures will rub off on other livestock contracts, such as live cattle and hogs. "People go to where the action is," says John V. McCarthy Jr., hinting that pork bellies have been almost too successful. Mr. McCarthy says traders have been preoccupied with the pork sides and have neglected the other meat contracts." Cattle futures are traded on the Chicago Board of Trade as well as the Chicago Mercantile Exchange.

Already the cattle-futures market has "stopped the big break and the big rise in cattle prices" says Segel H. Hess, a Mercantile Exchange broker and a cattle buyer. "The packer doesn't have to reach as high as he did before, because he's got a guaranteed supply, and, in times of price weakness, the feeder doesn't have to get panicky and sell all his animals at the same time."

Starting June 18, trading in livestock futures came under supervision of the Agriculture Department's Commodity Exchange Authority. "We don't expect this development to hamper trading, and it may improve it," says Everette B. Harris, president of the Mercantile Exchange. Trading in bellies and other livestock contracts has grown, partly because the Government doesn't have a price-support program for these products. Absence of Government participation in raising and selling livestock, he says, "creates a more flexible market."

MANHATTAN — Professor Louis Douglas, who heads the McCarthy for President committee in Kansas, announced he is withdrawing as a candidate for the Democrat nomination to the State House of Representatives from the 58th district.

THE PRICE IS RIGHT

Are Your Hogs ready for today's all-right Market?

Now's the time to push your pigs to market weight while the price is right . . . and the demand is good. You'll need a proven feeding program designed to make your animals do their best in this hot weather. And KEY has the formula to do just that. There are three steps; follow them and you'll pocket your profits while they're on tap:

KEY PIG GROWER with SP-250 KEY STARTER with SP-250 KEY FINISHER — a complete ration

"Finisher" is the KEY HOG FATTENER, the complete ration that takes your animals from market weight faster. And we promise you that your hogs will put on the weight steadier and with less chance of heat set-back.

ALL KEY SWINE FEEDS ARE HIGH IN ANIMAL PROTEIN

We're thinking particularly of KEY 40% HOG SUPPLEMENT that you use with your own grain. If you are using feed loaded with protein derived from vegetable and not from animal, you just don't know about the time and money you are losing. Look into the KEY program for your own good.

When Milford Meant Doc Brinkley...

To several dozen Geary countians, the name Milford means the hometown.

To more people, the name refers to the federal dam on the Republican river north of Junction City.

But to many Kansans over age 40, the name Milford will be hard to disassociate with Doc Brinkley.

The formal dedication of the reservoir at Milford brought back a spate of memories and newspaper reminiscences of the goat gland specialist who more than four decades ago put Milford on the map.

Brinkley's place in history now seems removed to a paragraph in a chapter on the charlatans in U.S. history, but he was twice a candidate for governor in this state and in the minds of many, arithmetically, if not officially, elected to that position. Certainly he was a pioneer in radio and an innovator in the field of selling via the airwaves.

Brinkley rode to renown on a goat. To the American Medical Association, Brinkley was an out-and-out quack, but to thousands of male senior citizens he had the key to the fountain of youth.

Brinkley's "goat gland" operation was an animal-to-man transplant whereby he implanted goat testes into impotent men. The first operation reportedly was in 1917, on one William Stittsworth, a Milford businessman who for 16 years had been sterile. A year after the operation Mrs. Stittsworth produced a baby boy, named appropriately "Billy."

Pictures of Doc holding Billy were widely circulated and aging Lotharios all over the U.S.

packed a bag and caught the first train for Milford. Brinkley built a small hospital and shifted into high gear.

An aging industrialist called Doc to come to California to perform his miracle. He had no license to practice in California, but he came anyway. His name was in all the papers there, California authorities huffed and puffed, and the publicity didn't hurt business a bit.

It was a profitable business too. When a dollar was a dollar, the operation cost $750 and took only 15 minutes. If the patient looked as if he were good for it, Doc would use the glands of an especially young Toggenberg goat, and the price jumped to $1500.

The radio station was built in 1925. It had 5000 watts of power and could drown out other stations. It was Kansas first station, KFKB "The Sunshine Station in the Heart of the Nation."

The station really got into high gear when Doc started prescribing medicine over the air. Women would write in, describing their symptoms. Doc would read the letter on the air, reminding his listeners that letters asking advice must be accompanied by $2 "which barely covers the cost of stenographic hire and office rent."

Then he might say something like, "Now here is a letter from a dear little mother with a 9-month baby at her breast." He prescribed number 2 and number 7, an aspirin compound and castor oil.

The doctor aroused the ire of druggists because of his radio prescriptions. The only place listeners could buy the prescribed medicine was from Brinkley. He gladly sold it at prices commonly set at $5 and $7, but he sold only by number, not by name of ingredient.

A delegation of druggists visited the doctor with their complaint. He promptly formed the Brinkley Pharmaceutical Assn., which enrolled at least 500 members. Then he could refer his patients to hometown druggists who stocked his remedies.

The American Medical Association wanted no part of a doctor who advertised or prescribed by radio. Doc, in turn, translated AMA to mean "Amateur Meatcutters Association."

The scrap was on, but it was good for business. Doc built a new hospital. Trainloads of customers rolled into Milford. He bought yachts, airplanes, diamonds, went on world tours.

L. R. Brown, Junction City, who tutored Brinkley's son Johnny Boy for 5½ years, said he once heard Brinkley testify that his income was $1.25 million a year.

In September 1930, Brinkley's license to practice medicine was cancelled. He maneuvered in and out of court, hired licensed surgeons to do the work that he was unable to do himself.

Then the Federal Radio Commission rescinded his license to operate KFKB. He got permission to operate the station pending appeal, but it was clear now that Doc was set back on his heels.

Brinkley used this paper weight as a campaign piece in his 1930 write-in quest for the governorship.

Brinkley threw his future "to the people." He decided to run for the governorship of Kansas in the 1930 elections as a write-in candidate.

He ran on a platform that included free text books, lower automobile registration costs, a cal care and attention when in need of it."

His campaign appearances fit the mold: a cowboy singer for entertainment, the extolling of Doc's virtues by a preacher and local officeholders, finally an address from Doc himself, with a single spotlight trained on him amid darkness.

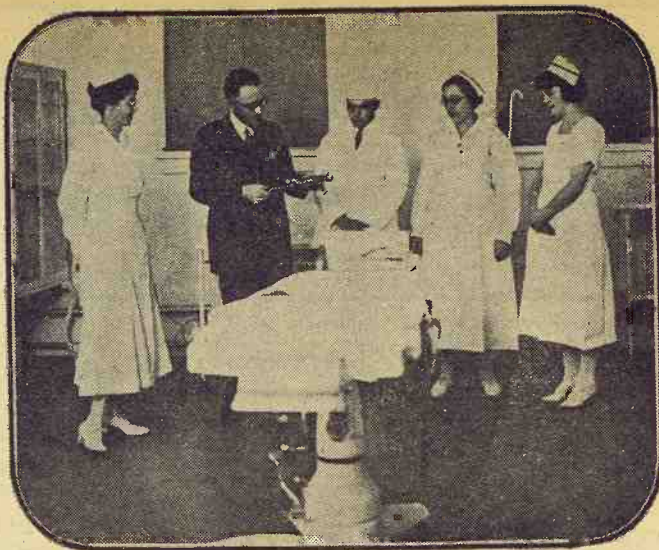

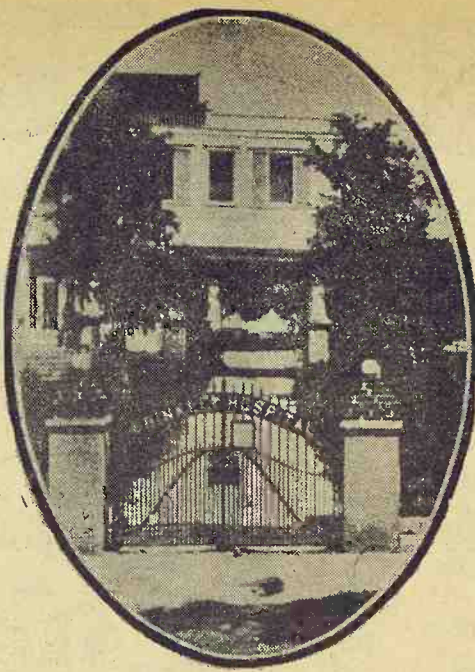

Opponents took notice as some meetings attracted 20,000 persons and a lot of people were inquiring about the correct way to print John R. Brinkley on a write-in ballot.

How many didn't learn the correct way is impossible to determine. Even less determinable is how many valid write-ins were thrown out by election judges who were desperate that he would not win.

Democrat Harry Woodring was the winner with 217,171 official votes. Republican Frank Hauke had only 251 less. Brinkley had 183,278 write-ins. There are widely varying guesses as to how many Brinkley votes were thrown out. Some think that 50,000 is not too high. In any event, Hauke, just 251 votes behind Woodring, did not ask for a recount.

Brinkley ran again in 1932, this time with his name on the ballot. Alf Landon was elected with 278,000 votes. Woodring had 273,000; Brinkley 244,000.

Brinkley even tried again, in 1934, this time as a Republican, but lost to Landon in the primary.

The entrance to the Brinkley hospital at left, and above Dr. Brinkley and some of his staff in the operating room.

When Brinkley lost his radio license, he countered by building a huge station in Villa Acuna, Mexico, just across the river from Del Rio, Texas. XERA, "The Sunshine Station Between the Nations," had a half-million watts of power and could blast the ears off nearly any listener in North America.

"Doc broadcast from Milford over a remote hookup until someone pressured Congress to stop remote broadcasts," Brown remembers.

Brinkley moved to Del Rio in 1933. But his finances never made the dent that his powerful radio transmitter did. In 1938 in a lawsuit against the editor of the AMA publication, he said his income had fallen by a quarter-million dollars in one year because the editor labeled him a charlatan and quack.

The Mexican government took over his radio station and in 1941 he was adjudged a bankrupt. Later in the year he suffered a coronary occlusion and had his left leg amputated in Kansas City. He died in 1942, aged 56.

A reader will doubtless notice that Brinkley's platform when he ran for governor in 1940 was rather prophetic: the county lakes, medical care, consolidation of schools, and so on.

One might even wonder about the medical prophecy to an age in which kidneys and hearts are transplanted. But despite the hundreds of testimonials in his time, it is impossible to deduce other than that Doc Brinkley was a quack. Calling Doc's goat gland operation a transplant stretches the definition. An account of Brinkley's surgery written by John Gunn in 1923 acknowledges that the human glands were not actually removed but the goat glands "are placed in careful juxtaposition to them so they can supply them directly with new life."

The new lake on the Republican river at Milford lake will be sorely pressed to match the color that Dr. John Romulus Brinkley swathed across Milford four decades ago.

Sixteen States Sign Inspection Pact

Agreements with the Department of Agriculture have been signed by sixteen states to establish meat inspection programs under the wholesome meat act of 1967.

The law allows each of the states a period of up to two years — or three if significant progress is made — to set up a meat inspection program at least equal to that of the federal government.

"We expect to have at least 30 signed up by the end of the year," a department spokesman said, "but it's hard to tell if there will be any real hold-outs or which states they might be."

If the states do not establish an inspection program in the time limits specified, the federal government will be permitted by the law to set up its own within the states involved.

States that have signed are New York, California, Illinois, Utah, Missouri, Tennessee, Oklahoma, Michigan, Washington, Vermont, Georgia, Colorado, West Virginia, Oregon, North Carolina and Rhode Island.

AG. DEPARTMENT MOVES OFFICE

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. — The Agriculture department's grain market news service began operations in Independence, Mo., this month. Prior to the move it had been located in Hyattsville, Maryland.

Agriculture Dept. officials also say the grain market regional office in Kansas City will be moved to Independence July 15. Both moves are part of a government decentralization program.

The news service provides current reports on grain trading in addition to periodic publications.

Leave round bales in field?

You'll ruin far less feed with square bales and a PYRAMID BALE STOKER!

Stacks bales of hay, cane, sudan etc., on edge in a pyramid to leave in field until fed (six to a stook, only one edge of three bales touches ground). Pyramid edge-stacking minimizes moisture absorption, permits all-around ventilation for baling greener hay. Sorghums cure out in stook. Protects quality indefinitely. Entire stooks can be picked up with front end loader. Speeds up haying—a real labor-saver! Attach to any 14 x 18" or 16 x 18" bale chamber. Handles short, medium or long bales. Yes, you'll save feed and money with a Stoker.

APPROVAL UNLIKELY

Although there is substantial support on Capitol Hill for President Johnson's proposed constitutional amendment to extend the vote to 18-year-olds, experts expressed doubt that Congress would approve the amendment this year.

A White House spokesman said that the President wanted prompt action because next year all but three of the state legislatures are in session and could act on the amendment.

The late Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (R-Mich.) proposed the vote for 18-year-olds in 1942. In 1954, President Eisenhower made a similar plea. A Senate majority, but not the required two-thirds majority, favored the amendment.

Two states, Georgia since 1943 and Kentucky since 1955, have allowed 18-year-olds to vote. Alaska permits voting at 19 and Hawaii at 20.

Average Farm In State 551 Acres

Kansas ranks only 15th among the states in number of farms but only Texas and Montana have more land in farms.

The current USDA study of farms and farmlands indicates that the average Kansas farm is now of 551-acre size, an increase of 12 acres from the 1967 study.

The number of farms in Kansas for 1968 is estimated at 91,000, a decline of two percent from the year earlier figure. The decline is at a slightly lower rate than the yearly loss over the previous decade, and is less than the national decrease of three percent.

Farm size has been increasing steadily since 1935 with farms gaining an average of nearly 13 acres per year during the last decade and more than doubling in size in the last one-third century.

Total land in farms for 1968 is estimated at 50.1 million acres, unchanged from 1967. Over a period of years, however, some land has been taken out of agricultural production by highways, reservoirs, and urban development.

In the U.S. the number of operational farm units is expected to decrease by about 3% to 3.06 million farms. The downward trend in farm numbers has been continual since 1935 and during the past decade the decline has averaged about 3%. The preliminary estimate of land in farms in the nation for 1968 is 1.129 billion acres. The average size of farm for 1968 is estimated at 369 acres which is an increase of 9 acres per acre over 1967. The average farm in the U.S. has increased 89 acres in size since 1958.

Frontier Preserved At Old Fort Larned

Six miles west of Larned, close to U.S. Highway 56, is a national historic site, Fort Larned, restored today to almost the same condition as it was when it served as the home protective base for military forces guarding the old Santa Fe Trail on the Indian infested prairies of Kansas.

Fort Larned was established in 1859 by the Federal govern-

Travel down the Santa Fe Trail, from Fort Leavenworth and Fort Riley towards Fort Union, New Mexico, had grown from a trickle to a torrent as would-be settlers, adventurers and gold seekers poured from the east towards New Mexico and towards the Pikes Peak region of Colorado.

The Indians — Kiowas, Coment as a permanent base for troops to cover the white man's intrusions into the red man's west.

manches, Cheyennes, and Arapahoes — seeing their buffalo herds decimated, their beloved lands overrun, reacted, and violent Indian wars resulted. The red man watched, to see, through a five month period, 73 carriages, and more than 2300 white men, 1970 wagons, 1900 tons of freight intrude upon his kingdom. Annually, by 1859, more than ten million dollars worth of merchandise was flowing across the Kansas plains.

Without the slightest concern for the havoc being wrought against the red man's way of life, the white man continued his ruthless conquest. Fort Larned was established and staffed and equipped to protect the white men and it became one of the most important military posts in all the old west.

The Fort itself, originally built of adobe, was replaced by 10 permanent sandstone buildings, of which nine still stand, and are open to the public, with Indian, pioneer and military relics preserved and displayed to lend authenticity to the scene. The old original blockhouse, part of the quadrangle on which the fort was fashioned, is missing. It was razed about 1890 and the stone from it was used in building a residence in Larned.

Major Henry Wessels was given the job of establishing Fort Larned. After the Indian troubles subsided in 1868, development of the west continued and Fort Larned became less important. Thanks to the vision of many alert citizens who appreciated its historic significance, it has been restored, and was first opened to the public in 1957. In its well preserved buildings may be seen the old Colts, Sharps and Springfield guns so important in winning the west. Also on display are horse-drawn vehicles, the old harness shop and display of early day saddles, the old escape tunnel used to obtain water from the river, all the old blacksmith tools, and hundreds of other relics of a great pioneer chapter in the nation's history.

Wild Bill Hickok, General George A. Custer, Kit Carson, and other famous early day plains heroes were frequent visitors to Fort Larned.

The original Santa Fe trail traverses Pawnee County from northeast to southwest, enters the county west of Pawnee Rock the site of many bloody Indian ambushes.

Steer On The Mend

This yearling steer belonging to Herman Regier of Newton will get out of this cast soon, say veterinarians who repaired the broken hind leg. The steer apparently stepped into a badger hole. Shown with the steer are Regier's children Karen and James.

Running For Non-Existent Office

JUNCTION CITY — The office of constable will appear on the primary election ballots in Junction City despite a new state law which eliminated the elective post.

Guy Day, Geary county clerk, said Constable Carl D. Regelman, Junction City, filed for re-election on the Republican ticket last March 15. Mrs. Elwill Shanahan, Topeka, secretary of state, ruled that since the new law didn't go into effect until May 1, Regelman's filing was valid and his name must be on the primary ballot.

Since Junction City has two constable positions to fill, a blank space will be provided for write-ins, Day said.

Inasmuch as Regelman's name will appear on the Republican ballot, the Democrats also will be entitled to nominees for the posts. Blank spaces will be provided on Democratic ballots for write-in candidates.

The situation exists only in Junction City because of Regelman's candidacy. No write-in spaces will be provided on township ballots, Day said.

Critical Time For Cattle Pastures

Summer is a critical time for beef cattle pastures which must be well managed for best returns, notes John N. Williams, II, animal husbandman at the University of Tennessee.

Maturing plants become lower in palatability and should be clipped while drier conditions or over-grazing will make it necessary to rotate cattle to fresh pastures, reminds Williams.

Rotational grazing results in higher quality pasture plants, conserves pastures and reduces the incidence of internal parasites, notes Williams. Plants should reach six to eight inches in height before grazing. Herds of 15 to 30 cows may be rotated between two or three pastures and plants grazed down to two to four inches in Tennessee.

Temporary summer plants such as sudangrass and the hybrids should be 18 inches high before grazing and be grazed down to six to eight inches in height, Williams says.

Junior Angus Field Days July 15-16, 22-23

Kansas Angus youngsters have planned a series of four junior beef cattle field days in July to help young people throughout the state do a better job with their beef cattle projects.

The field days are on July 15, 16, 22, and 23 at the respective fairgrounds in Larned, McPherson, Holton and Winfield. The programs begin at 10:00 a.m. and will include demonstrations on how to recognize correct beef type, and on clipping, grooming, and showmanship.

Each show will also feature a junior steer and heifer show and the field day at Holton will also have a junior and senior showmanship contest. A talk at each event will outline how youngsters can do a better job with their breeding heifer projects by enrolling their animals in the Angus Herd Improvement Record program.

Riley Co. Farm Bureau Awards Nursing Scholarships

The Riley County Farm Bureau awarded two 100-dollar nursing scholarships to Riley County girls, Sandra Boutz and Cynthia Lund.

George Visser, president, made the presentations.

Miss Boutz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Darrel Boutz, Manhattan, is a 1968 graduate of Wamego high school.

Miss Lund, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Waldon Lund, Green, is a 1968 graduate of Blue Valley High.

Both girls have worked as candy strippers in local hospitals and last summer Miss Lund was nurses' aide at St. Mary's hospital in Manhattan. The girls will begin their training in September with Miss Boutz training at Stormont-Vail in Topeka and Miss Lund attendant Marymount in Salina.

Over the past years, the Riley County Farm Bureau has presented approximately eleven other such scholarships to persons desiring to become practical or trained nurses. Due to the past success of the scholarship program, the bureau decided to award two scholarships this year.

Helping In Pens

Lottie Wolfe and Ira Guipre of Glasco helped herd cattle out of pens at area auction before summer cut into cattle runs in the G&G area.

PROMOTION STRESSES COOKOUTS

Outdoor chefs, always on the lookout for new cook-out ideas, are being advised to "Season With Summer" by the Beef Industry Council of the National Livestock and Meat Board.

"Summer used to be a slack period for fresh beef," states Donald E. Walker, secretary of the council. "Then came the outdoor cookery boom. Now summer has become a season of strong consumer demand of enthusiastic interest in new ideas for meals from the grill." Special promotions for beef in the summer are certainly worth the effort. They represent a sure-fire opportunity to convert that enthusiasm into increased beef sales and a better market for beef cattle.

PLAN THRESHING BEE

SABETHA — The Second Annual Threshing Bee is being planned for July 27-28. It is to be held at the Albany Museum. Special displays are planned as well as two afternoons of threshing. Wheat will be cut from the Lee White field located south of the Albany Museum on the Albany Road.

The threshing machine will be set up on the Albany Museum grounds located two miles north of Sabetha. Teams of horses will again pull the bundle wagons to the machine just as was done when threshing was the way to harvest. The machine will be powered by steam engines.

Buffalo dinners and burgers will be served both days by Jim Markley of Fort Markley of Seneca.

We had a fair run of cattle and hogs last Saturday, showing that most of our trade were finished with their harvest. We had a good cow market, with the better grade selling $18.00 to $20.00; heiferettes $20.00 to $23.00; and the thinner grade @ $16.00 to $18.00.

700-850 lb. steers sold on a strong market @ $26.00 to $27.40. Heifers weighing 650 to 750 lbs. went through the ring @ $25.50 to $26.00. We had a few bulls. They sold $22.00 to $23.00.

Somewhere around 500 head of fat hogs reached us, with prices running steady @ $21.75 to $22.10. There was a good run of shoats, selling @ $16.00 to $18.50 the head; and the small pigs $11.00 to $15.00.

With the harvest part of summer work pretty well over, we can expect a good sale this coming Saturday. Most of our regular buyers will be back.

Study Of Irrigated Land Value Made

MANHATTAN — A lot of farm land in southwestern Kansas may be worth as much as $100 an acre more if it has an irrigation well and an adequate supply of ground water, according to a study by Kansas State University economists.

Sam Lee, graduate student from Monticello, Utah, and Dr. E. S. Bagley, professor of economics, compared per-acre sales prices of 18 tracts of land with underground water and 18 tracts without underground water in Grant, Stanton, Mar-tan and Stevens counties.

Land sales over a five year period — 1962 to 1967 — were included. Tracts considered were matched on such factors as soil types, topography, size, wheat allotments and mineral rights.

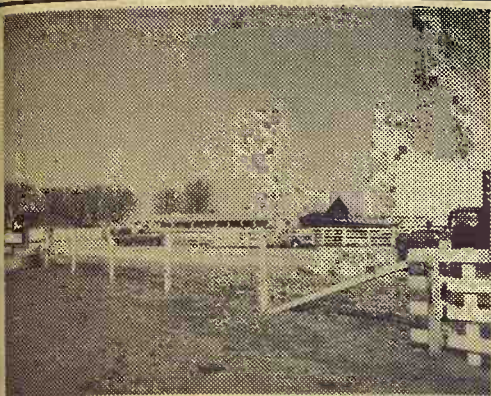

The study shows that the difference in prices of farm land with water and those without water averaged $93 an acre. This difference varied with the amount of water available, as measured by well capacity.

Such factors as the farmer's ability to bargain, his ability as a farm manager, and the financial condition of the buyer and seller were not considered in the survey.

The method of comparing market value of land used in this study was also used in a federal court case in Texas in which an irrigator was permitted a water depletion allowance on his income tax return.

FAVOR ADDING WOODBINE TO STATE WATER PLAN

TOPEKA — The Water Resources Council of the Kansas Chamber of Commerce said last week it supports proposals by the Army Corps of Engineers to relocate the planned Grove Reservoir and to include the proposed Woodbine Reservoir in the state water plan. The council also endorsed state action toward setting water quality standards.

Tomato Factory

An experimental "tomato factory" is using empty grain storage space owned by Garvey Grain Co. at Wichita. Here, W. L. Clifford, supervisor of the plant, looks over a plant in the hydroponic growing operation which is aimed at producing fresh tomatoes on a year-around basis in Kansas.

A 5000-square-foot space in one of the elevators is used and light for growing the plants is furnished from special fluorescent lights. The vines grew from small plants to 24 inches high in three weeks.

A water solution containing minerals and phosphates is pumped into the trays daily. As the plants grow additional feeding will be necessary thru pipes buried in surrounding gravel. The plants require a great amount of carbon dioxide furnished by natural gas burners and pumped into the enclosure. The plants are kept at a constant 80 degrees in the controlled environment.

'Cattlemen Need More Information'

NORTH PLATTE, NEBR. — Cattlemen must have as much, "or more," information about beef demand, cattle movements and market trends as do livestock buyers, the head of the American National Cattlemen's Association declared here.

In a talk prepared for delivery to the annual convention of the Nebraska Stock Grower's Association, Bill House, Cedar Vale, Kans., rancher declared:

"Feeders and ranchers too long have been at the mercy of buyers who have access to vast electronic networks giving them private knowledge of conditions and trends. There is nothing illegal about it; the buyers just show up better equipped with information than we sellers have.

"Through ANCA's new Cattle-Fax and other informational programs we intend to give cattle sellers the same muscle in the market place the buyers have had," House said. "It will help to equalize the odds in this ten billion dollar a year industry."

House described ANCA's unique Cattle-Fax project as a two-way teletype system linking the association's Denver office with more than 100 major feedlots and ranch operators in a daily exchange of information. "Each operator will be free to make his own decisions, but he'll have better basic knowledge upon which to act," House said.

He pointed out that a significant percent of the cattle on feed nationally are represented by the stockmen among the charter members already signed up for the network. The service, delayed by the strike in the telephone industry, is due to start by Sept. 1.

Schwab Heads GOP Committee

PHILLIPSBURG — Merle Schwab of Manhattan was named chairman of the communications committee to help coordinate the work of the Kansas delegation to the Republican National Convention at Miami Beach Aug. 5.

"We must organize the Kansas delegation better than before," said McDill. "Huck Boyd, GOP national commit- man and chairman of the gation, 'in order to properly vance the name of Senator Frank Carlson as our favor- son candidate."

Boyd said the work of communications committee particularly important because it is essential for the deleg- and alternates to remain in- stant touch with developments and a daily agenda of events of particular interest to the Kansas delegation will be main- tained and distributed.
