THE DAYS GONE BY.

From the Chicago Tribune. O the days gone by! O the days gone by! The apples in the orchard and the pathway through the rye;
The chirrup of the robin, and the whistle of the quail
As he piped, across the meadows sweet as any nightingale;
When the bloom was on the clover, and the blue was in the sky,
And my happy heart brimmed over—in the days gone by!

In the days gone by, when my naked feet were tripped tripped

By the honeysuckle tangles where the water liles dipped, and the ripples of the river lipped the moss along the brink where the placid-eyed and lazy-footed cattle came to drink,

And the tilting snipe stood fearless of the truent's wayward cry,
And the splashing of the swimmer, in the days
gone by!

State News.

October 10th and 11th have been appointed arbor days at Lyons.

Manhattan has just laid the corner-stone of a new grange building.

Kansas has furnished 400,000 head of fat cattle for the market this year.

A large acreage of corn has been cut this season for fodder. Good idea.

Tokeka saloons claim that they sold $20,000 worth of beer during fair week. The Butler county fair offers a premium of $1 for the ugliest thing on earth. A Garden City Cottonwood tree has grown over six feet since the 8th of June. N. B. Wood, Donighan county, has an orchard of 13,000 trees, of which 11,000 are in Nick Schroeder, of Clay Center township, has raised about twelve tons of broom corn this season.

A prairie fire, last week, near Newton, destroyed some three or four thousand black walnut trees.

Wellington, Sumner county, has a creamery just completed, which will undoubtedly do a rich business.

Russian mulberry grows better in Western Kansas than cottonwood. It makes good Salina people shared pretty roughly at the Topeka fair. One citizen was shot, about fifty had their pockets picked, and the balance were skinned by the hotel men.

North, the wheat king of Jewell county, raised 320 acres of wheat this year that averaged twenty-five bushels to the acre, and he is going to put out 600 acres this fall.

An Iowan is agitating the subject of a creamery in Burlington, Coffey county. Should he succeed in its establishment the farmers of that vicinity will never regret it.

Mr. L. P. Walker, of Cheever, sowed one bushel of Johnson's Prolific, or long berry wheat, a year ago, on three-fourths of an acre of ground, and the yield was 36 bushels.— [Abilene Gazette. Longton has a boy fourteen years old who refused for the same corn last spring.

We have had some big yields of wheat in this county, but the best we have heard of is that of Mr. Wm. Foreman, on the Cotton-wood. His crop this spring threshed 46½ bushels and so far as heard from is the biggest yield ever known in the county. Mr. Foreman isn't satisfied with raising a big crop of wheat, but raises a crop of big horses also. Mr. Foreman is one of our best farmers and best citizens.—[Strong City Independent.

Mennonite women work in the fields in Harvev county.

The prairie east of Waterville was set on fire from a smoke stack last Sunday afternoon, and considerable hay was burned up.

Frank Richmond, living north of Waterville raised two hundred and twenty bushels of wheat from a sowing of thirteen bushels.

The corn crop was never better in the vicinity of Colony than it is this year. Frem forty to fifty bushels an acre will be about the average yield.

Mr. J. Thompson, of Natty ranch, three miles west of town, some time ago conceived the idea of manufacturing sugar from sorghum, and immediately act about processing the new mines west of town, some time ago sonceived the idea of manufacturing sugar from sorghum, and immediately set about procuring the necessary machinery. He had just got things in fair running order when during the storm Wednesday night the house in which the machinery was located took fire and burned to the ground. It is thought by some that the fire was occasioned by lightning, though it is not positively known. The main part of the machinery was rescued from the flames and the entire loss, it is thought, will not much exceed $200. Mr. Thompson is not at all discouraged by this loss, but will "try, try again," and in a lew days will have things in running order again.—[Madison News.

During a thunder storm Thursday night lightning struck a large barn belonging to H. W. McClintock, in the western part of Johnson county, which took fire and immediately burned to the ground. Five head of valuable horses perished in the flames. All of Mr. McClintocks farm machinery, including a new corn planter, reaper, wagon, three sets of harness, three saddles, 150 bushels of wheat and 750 bushels of oats, and five tons of hay were a total loss. Mr. McClintock's loss will reach nearly $2,090. The barn was insured for $350 in the Continental of New York.

A common sense Kansas farmer, and who, A common sense Kansas farmer, and who, by the way, has taken a number of first premiums at county and state fairs, says his method is simple and worthy of notice. He commenced ten years ago with an early variety and every year when he cuts his corn he leaves standing a number of stalks with extra nice ears. When this has thoroughly matured, he husks and selects therefrom the best for seed. And he makes it a point to go through' the husks and selects therefrom the best for seed. And he makes it a point to go through the field and mark the hills that mature early. The main point being to have the best seed of the earliest maturing corn. The ground is plowed deep very early in the spring and the seed put in as soon as the frost is well out of the ground. The great trouble in Kansas is the dry weather in August and in order to avoid this the corn must be planted early. He cultivates his crop thoroughly and lays it by clear of weeds, never falling to raise a good crop of corn. If Kansas failing to raise a good crop of corn. If Kansas corn raisers would observe these simple rules it would add millions of bushels to our yearly orn crop.-[Sumner County Press.

During the last week the newspapers have abounded in remarks to the general effect that the "women suffragists of Massachusetts have grown tired of knocking at the door of the Republican convention, and have now applied to the Democrats with better success." The woman suffragists have knocked impartially at the doors of both parties, and will continue to do so. Woman suffrage is not a party issue, nor is it desirable that it should become one. In Nebraska, Oregon, Indiana, and Iowa, whose legislatures have voted to submit woman suffrage amendments, the measure has been carried by the united votes of the best men of both parties. So, it has been in the twelve states where school suffrage has been given; and so it will doubtless be whenever full suffrage is granted. frage is granted.

INVISIBLE POISON.

How it Works Its Way Into the Body and How to Counteract it.

One of the great scourges of the present year in all parts of America has been malaria. This is a trouble so treacherous in its nature When the sun has set in the valley, and the and so dangerous in its results as to justly cause apprehension wherever it has appeared. But there are so many erroneous ideas upon the subject that a few words are in order at a time when people are subject to malarial in-

Malaria, which means simply bad air, is the common name of a class of diseases which arise from spores of decaying vegetable matter, thrown off from stagnant pools or piles of vegetation undergoing decomposition. These spores when inhaled with the breath or taken their hus, take their Alpine horns, and repeat the same words. This frequently lasts a quarter of an hour, and the call resounds from all the mountains and rocky cliffs around. All the herdsmen kneel and pray with uncovered heads. Meantime it has become quite dark. "Good-night!" at last calls the highest herds-men through his horn. "Good-night!" again spores when inhaled with the breath or taken into the system with water soon enter the blood and germinating there find a foothold, whereby the whole system is poisoned and the various functions disordered. When the germ theory of disease was first advanced it was supposed that these spores were of animal nature, and like the bacteria in diptheria were propagated in the blood, but they are now conceived to be of vegetable origin, like the fungi found on decaying wood or in cellars. The source of this state of the air is generally swamps or stagnant pools, which, partially resounds from all the mountains, the horns of the herdsmen, and the rocky cliffs. The mountaineers then retire to their dwellings and to rest.—[The Watch Tower. The source of this state of the air is generally swamps or stagnant pools, which, partially dried by the hot sun, send forth vapors loaded with this malarial poison. These vapors descend to the earth in the night, cooled by the loss of temperature, and breathed by sleepers are readily inhåled. Hence persons living near stagnant pools or marshes are liable to be afflicted with chills and fever, and such localities are never healthy, though they are more so when the streams flowing into them are pure, and also when the water is high. Again the drainage of houses, slaughter houses, barns, etc., are a fertile source of malaria. One will often notice in coming into the neighborhood of one of these sluggish streams that pass through almost every village a most villainous smell caused by the offensive refuse which communicates its bad odor to the atmosphere, especially on hot days. This abwhich communicates its bad odor to the atmosphere, especially on hot days. This absorbed into the system by the lungs or taken in through water, which also absorbs it from the air, poisons the blood and deranges the whole system. This poison is also devolved in force in wells and springs when they become low, and the result of drinking these is the same as breathing the poisonous air. In a time of drouth the great quantity of vegetation that dries up in the meadows, stubble fields and postures, the corn-fields and forest leaves produces the same effluvia. On the prairies when large tracts of prairie ground are turned over, the decaying vegetation is a widespread cause of malarta.

over, the decaying vegetation is a widespread cau-e of malaria.

The evils which follow malarial poisoning are almost infinite. Disease of a malignant and dangerous nature, accompanied by symptoms the most distressing, are certain to manifest themselves and life is a burden so long as his poison remains in the system. The indications of malarial poisoning are loss of appetite, shortness of breath, pains about the heart, wasting of flesh and strength, despondency, nervousness, chilly sensations, unaccountable lassitude, dull pains in various parts of the body, headaches, dizziness, a coated tongue and dry mouth, night sweats, muscular debility, puffing under the eyes, an unusual coler, ity, puffing under the eyes, an unusual color, ordor or sediment about the fluids passed from the system, etc. Any one of the above symptoms may be an indication of malarial poison in the body which necessitates immediate and careful attention.

But if malarial poison could not find a lodgement in the human body, it would be just as harmless as the oxygen of the air. The great difficulty is that, after being absorbed into the system, it produces obstructions in the stomand thurst stat, and the storact and the storact and lungs, clogs the circulation of the blood, affects the kidneys, liver and other organs, and brings on diseases of a most dangerous character. There is only one known way by which these diseases may be avoided or cured after thay have once made their appearance, and that is by keeping the great purifying organs of the body in perfect nealth. These organs are the kidneys and liver. No one whose kidneys or liver are in a perfect condition was ever afflicted by malarial poison. And when these organs are disordered, they not only permit, but invite, these diseases to make their inroads into the body. It is now admitted by physicians, scientists and the majority of the general public that one medicine, and only one, whose power has been tested and proven, has absolute control of, and keeps the kidneys and liver in constant health and and proven, has absolute control of, and keeps the kidneys and liver in constant health and hence prevents malarial sickness. This remedy is Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure, the most popular medicine before the American people, and sold by every druggist in the land. It fully counteracts the evil effect of malarial poison in the system, and not only banishes it but restores the members which that poison has weakened. How well it does this can be learned from the following:

This great remedy has proven its power in innumerable cases, and is to-day more exten-sively used in malarial districts, whether in cities or in the country, than any or all other remedies for the cure of the same class of dis-ease: No one can afford to trifle with the first symptoms of malaria, but instant care should be taken to check it on the start before its evil influences overshadow the life.

FROM COL. L. T. FOSTER.

FROM COL. L. T. FOSTER.
YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio, May, 10th, 1880.
DR. B. J. KENDALL & CO... GENTS:—I had a very valuable Hambletonian colt which I prized very highly, he had a large bone spavin on one joint and a smaller one on the other which made him very lame; I had him under the charge of two Veterinary Surgeons who failed to cure him. I was one day reading the advertisement of Kendal's Spavin Cure in the Cicago Express, I determined at once to try it, and got our druggists here to smal for it. They ordered three bottes; I took them all and thought I would give it a thorough trial. I used it according to directions, and by the fourth day the colt ceased to be lame, and the lumps had entirely disappeared. I used but one bottle and the colts limbs are as free from lumps and as smooth as any horse in the state. He is entirely cured. The cure was so remarkable that I let two of my neighbors have the remaining two bottles, who are now using it.

Yery Respectfully,
L. T. FOSTER.

B. J. KENDALL & CO., GENTS:—In justice to you and to myself, I think I ought to let you know that I have removed two bone spayins with Kendall's Spavin Cure, one very large one, don't know how long the spavin had been there. I have owned the horse eight months, it took me four months to take the large one off and two for the small one. I have used ten bottles. The horse is entirely well, not at all stiff, and no bunch to be seen or felt. This is a wonderful medicine. It is a new thing here, but if it does for all what it has done for me, its sale will be very great.

Respectfully yours.

Dr. B. J. kendall & Co., Gents:—I think it my duty to render you my thanks for benefits and profits which I have derived from your invaluable and far famed Spavin Cure. My cousin and I had a valuable stallion, worth $4,000, which had a very bad spavin and was pronounaed by four eminent veterinary surgeons beyond any cure, and that the horse was done for ever. As a last resort I advised my ccusin to try a bottle of Kendall's Spavin Cure. It had a magical effect, the third bottle cured it, and the horse is as well as ever. Dr Dick, of Edinburgh, the eminent veterinary surgeon was an uncle of mine, and I take great interesr in assisting his procession.

St. Albans, Vt., Jan. 20th, 1880.

Dr. B. J. Kendall & Co., Gents:—In reply to your letter I will say that my experience with 'Kendal's Spavin Cure' has been very satisfactory indeed. Three or four years ago I procured a bottle of your agent, and with it, cured a horse of lameness caused by a spavin. Last season my horse became very lame and I turned him out for a few weeks, when he became better, but when I put him on the road he grew worse, when I discovered that a ringbone was forming, I procured a bottle of Kendall's Spavin Cure and with less than a bottle cured him so that he is not lame, neither can the bunch be found.

Respectfully yours, P. N. GRANGER. To Whom It May Concern.—In the year 1875 1 spavin of several months' growth, nearly half as large as a hen's egg, and completely stopped the lameness and removed the enlargement. I have never has been very lame, nor could I ever see any difference in the size of the hock joints since I treated him with Kendall's Spavin cure.

Kendall & Co., Gents:—Having got a horse book of you by mail a year ago, the contents of which persuaded me to try Kendall's Spavin Cure on the hind leg of one of my horses which was badly swollen and could not be be reduced by any other remedy. I got two bottles of Kendall's Spavin Cure of Preston & Ludduth, Druggists of Waseca, which completely cured my horse. About five years ago I had a three-year-old colt sweenied very badly. I used your remedy as given in your book without roweling, and I must say to your credit that the colt is entirely cured, which is a surprise not only to myself but also to my neighbors. You sent me the book for the trifling sum of 25 cents, and if could not get another like it I would not take twenty-five dollars for it.

KENDAL'S SPAVIN CURE.

ON HUMAN FLESH it has been ascertained by repeated trials to be the very best liniment ever used for any deep seated pain of long standing, or of short duration. Also for Corns, Bunions, Frost-bites, or any bruise, cut or lameness. Some are afraid to use it on human flesh simply because it is a horse medicine, but you should remember that what is good for Beast is good for Man, and we know from experience that "KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE" can be used on a child I year old with perfect safety. Its effects are wonderful on human flesh, and it does not blister or make a sore. Try it and be convinced.

B. J. Kendall & Co.—Gents: I wish to add my testimony in favor of your invaluable limiment, "Kendall's Spavin Cure." In the spring of 1872 I slipped on the ice and sprained my right limb at the knee joint. I was very lame, and at times suffered the most excraciating pain. I wore a bandage on it for over a year, and tried most everything in my reach, but could find nothing that would give me permanent relief. When I overworked, it would pain me very much. In April, 1878, I began to think I should be a cripple for Mfe, but having some of "Kendall's Spavin Cure" thought I would try it. I used one-third of a bottle and experienced relief at once. The pain lett me and has not troubled me since. I feel very grateful to you, and would recommend "Kendall's Spavin Cure" to all who suffer with sprains or rheumatism.

LEO.

From Harper's Young People.

Ford Bonner may live to be a very old man -he is "going on" fifteen now-but it is likely that he will always recollect what occurred upon a certain dark evening in August two into a light buggy standing without the gate. years ago. Ford's father and mother were traveling in Europe that summer; hence Ford, who was all the rest of the year a boarding-school boy of the first water, spent his vacation at his Uncle Pepper's country place.

Ford's chief companion from day to day, as he scrambled among the rocky spurs, was Leo. Leo was a Scotch grayhound, Major Pepper's particular pet. Now one curious trait of his did equal honor to his head and heart. He had been bought at Black's Hollow, a villageif a store, which also was a postoffice, and six or seven dwellings, can be called a villageabout two miles further up the road, among the mountains. Regularly once or twice a week would Leo slip innocently off in the morning for a whole day's visiting with any four-legged playmates whose society he had formerly relished at Black's Hollow. On such oceasions Ford had to ramble on the heights alone.

Now, Amzi Spinner, Major Pepper's hired man, had a brother who kept the postoffice and store at the Hollow. As soon as Amzi discovered Leo's trick of going so frequently thither of his own will, it seemed good to him to teach the dog to carry a letter there with safety and dispatch whenever told to do so. Amzi would tie his missives securely about the bright-eyed, lithe dog's neck, and say, in his Yankee drawl:

"Naow, Leo, you jest make tracks for the That letter'd ought to git to the store. Be off !"

Leo would leap away, barking joyfully, and in an hour return to seek Amzi in field or barn, collared with an answer from Lot Spinphaeton with me to-day and give this after- dressed man, impatiently directing another noon to picking out those carpets, it'll suit me capitally."

Aunt Pepper laughed. "Why does a man always choose just the wrong day of all others?" she said, merrily. "Amzi and Mira" (Mira was Amzi's wife and Aunt Pepper's cook) "wanted to go to New York to-day to attend that wedding-her sister's you recollect. They started early (at four o'clock) for the station, and I dont expect them back until long after we're in bed to-night. I can't leave the house and Ford to take care of themselves."

"Oh yes, you can," laughed Uncle Pepper. "Ford might go along if it wouldn't be a hot and stupid day in town for him-we shall be so busy. Leave him a good luncheon, and let stream just before the road from town sound him keep house by himself for once. Lee will help him. You wouldn't mind it, eh, Ford?" "I'm sorry, sir," replied Ford, "but they have both driven to town this morning, and will not be back till evening. Be quiet, Leo!" for Leo persisted in showing his teeth, and making sundry impolite noises, not to say growls, while he eyed the polite new comer very much as if he had been a snake.

"A fine dog that," remarked the stranger, carelessly. "Well, since I am unlucky enough to miss your uncle, could I see that excellent man he employs here, Amzi—Amzi -dear me I can not just recall his name." The strange gentleman had a clear, rich voice. He was, by the way, a stout, well-made young man, with a dark blue cravat.

"Sorry again, sir," returned Ford, "but Amzi and Mira are away, too, until quite late this evening. It just happened so. Couldn't I take your message for uncle? Leo, be still, I tell you !"

"You're very kind, my dear boy," said the unknown gentleman, looking at his watch, and backing out from the summer-house gracefully, "but I won't trouble you. I should prefer riding over from my place to-morrow evening. Please tell your good uncle that Mr. Alexander Kingbolt—he will remember my name—called on business, and will see him to-morrow evening if possible, at eight. Good-by.". And Mr. Alexander Kirgbolt, whistling sweetly. "There's one more River to Cross," stepped Another gentleman set in it, and the two rode away talking rapidly.

The afternoon shadows grew long; twilight closed in; Ford and Leo sat together, the boy with his hand upon the dog's head. Both did. Why in the world did not the phaeton come toiling up the steep mountain road? dianship together. Halloa! a white owl fluttered across the lawn

Major Pepper and Aunt Helen were back, doubtless much disturbed to know where in the world Ford and Leo had gone, or since what hour of the day.

As he drew nearer the closed shutters, he caught the sound of low strange voices, the faint clink of a hammer. Could it be possible anything was amiss? Ford was frightened; but prudent. "Leo," said he, very softly, but village, double-quick. Do you understand? sternly, to the dog, whose ears were on the alert too, "lie down." Leo obeyed.

Forgetting his painful foot in his breathless excitement, Ford crept down along the back of the house. The strange voices came clearly Ford caught sight of the profile, and the sound of "One more River to Cross," whistled on a heavy subject. We are quite sure tha very gently. The man working at the safe was Mr. Alexander Kingbolt. An exceedingly frightened boy was Ford Bonner.

"So then they can't possibly get over the bridge?" said Mr. Kingbolt, playing his chisel. "All the planks are up, and hid away till we go down, I tell you," replied the other, and a red lantern hung across it."

"The bridge," Ford knew at once, must mean a narrow rough structure across the up the mountain.

"They're likely on their way around by the other one. 1t'l take them till midnight." There was a pause. Then said Mr. Kingbolt out of breath: "Where do you suppose that Leo refused to go. He did rot understand all this mystery. Ford felt for a stick, and shook it at him. Leo bounded away silently up the steep. Ford half fell, half sat down, in the darkness on the grass.

They leaped the garden wall. A few minutes later Ford heard shouts, and the sound of a gun or two, and a struggle en the house piazza.

"The scamps would have got away with a couple of thousand dollars, Ford," exclaimed Major again and again. "It was some money that a man was to call here and get to-morrow morning."

Leo wagged his tail complacently. So much for a brave boy's coolness, and an obedient dog's intelligence.

Cool-headed Boy.

A nine-year-old daughter of Congressman Van Voornis of Rochester, was playing on the lake beach, near Charlotte, Tuesday, with other children. Her dress came in contact with a fire the children had built, and almost instantaneously the little one was enveloped in flames. Quick as thought her little brother, but two years older, seized her in his arms and threw her into the lake. She was completely submerged, and was taken from the water well drenched, but the heroic act unquestionably saved the little one's life. BATES OF SUBSCRIPTION: Tear (if not paid in advance)

TO ADVERTISERS: THE SPIRIT OF KANSAS is the best organ brough which to reach the farmers of the West of any periodical published. It has a larger regulation than any agricultural paper published at of St. Louis. It also has a larger circulation than any two papers published in the country. Its patrons are cash customers. BETISING BATES made known on application

TO CORRESPONDENTS: In sending communications to this paper do not write on both sides of the paper. A departure rom this rule will often withhold the article from publication till next week's issue if not altogether. Do not forget this.

VALEDICTORY.

After an acquaintance of seven months with the readers of THE SPIRIT, we find it to our best interest to bid you good-bye. It is not without a feeling of regret, for we like the work, and we have through its columns formed some very pleasant acquaintanceships. Even for the Liberal who said "we had too much Christianity," control, as it were, return home to their old friends and acquaintances, after a few months of recreation among new scenes and new people. We know they will make you a better paper even than they did before, and one well worthy of your patronage.

For fear this change of ours should be in some way interpreted in a manner that should be detrimental to the proprietors we will say THE SPIRIT has the largest and best paying subacription list of any weekly we know of in Kansas; it has a good advertising patronage and is altogether a good property. If we should have leisure, and the proprietors will permit, we hope in the future to contribute an occasional article to the columns of THE SPIRIT, but our active, every day labors have ceased. We wish you, one and all, success and happiness. May you "live long and prosper."

C. C. THACHER

INTRODUCTION. It is not necessary for us to make any extended remarks upon entering again upon the publication of THE SPIRIT. It is true that when we left the editorial chair we had little intention of again occupying it, but now that we are in the same old sanctum again we are prepared to put in our best efforts for the benefit of our readers and patrons. These certainly have not entirely forgotten us in the past few months, and, we trust, have remembered our days with THE SPIRIT, as days not altogether veid of pleasure. Our principles are perhaps considerably different from those Mr. Thacher has seen fit to profess since our retirement, but we earnestly believe we are right and trust to the good sense of our readers to uphold us in our work. With the brief re-introduction we again take up the familiar pen, paste and scissors and begin our labors in goood faith and hope.

THE Bourbon county fair opened Tuesday with auspicious weather and indications of success. The principal ful week. attractions, however, the first day, was a monster oyster shell exhibited under the Daily Monitor canvas, which weighed 130 pounds. What would the bivalve weigh?

The following story is related by a Boston paper, and when a Boston paper confesses judgment against Boston the accusation may be accepted as true: Not very long ago a lady, in every sense of the word, applied for the position of governess in one of the best families on Beacon Hill. She was thoroughly educated, a good musician, and spoke French as it is rarely heard out of Paris. There are three little children to be instructed, and the mother particularly desired them to be grounded in these specified accomplishments.. After conversing some time on the moral, mental and intellectual capacity of the applicant, and saying she wished her children to have every possible advantage, she added, You understand that I do not take a governess into my family, or receive her at my table. Several Boston ladies (naming them) and myself have determined to begin a new system here, and do like the English nobility, who would not permit an equality with a governess any more than with a lady's maid.' Seeing a look of scornful surprise on her visitor's face, she quickly continued, 'We have had such difficulty with governesses, you know, that really we must protect ourselves. 'I should we have a friendly feeling and hope that in the great hereafter when we shall all be weighed in the balance our own good motives may overbalance the errors of the head.

Messrs. Moody & Davis again assume control, as it were, return home to were attacked by Anglo-mania a little too hard for comfort."

An Absurd Jury Law.

The absurdity and mischievous tendency of the principle that the verdict of a jury must be unanimous have been illustrated in many recent cases, but in none more forcibly than that just tried at Washington. The star route trial was exceptionally long and expensive. It monopolized the time of one court the trial should be decisive. Yet this result was defeated by one or two men. In the case of J. W. Dorsey and Vaile one juror vetoed the votes of eleven others, while the conviction of Brady was prevented by two and that of S. W. Dorsey by three jurors. In fact it is reasonable to suppose that all the mischief was done by one man. Had Foreman Dickson voted with the majority it is not likely that the colored juror Brown would have stood out alone for the acquittal of Brady, nor that Brown and Holmead would have voted so persistently for clearing S. W. Dorsey. The fact that they had with them the foreman of the jury gave to Brown and Holmead a moral courday. Several important papers were read the first day, and The Spirit Three-fourths of the jurors found S. will endeavor to present the cream of some of them to its readers shortly.

Assets, $3,500; liabilities, $5,900. Will

The principle of unanimity is opposed by every consideration of reason, justice and common sense. It gives one juror an absolute veto power over one juror an absolute veto power over eleven others. It makes it easy for the entire proceedings of long and costly trials to be annulled, and the ends of justice defeated by the stupidity, ob-stinacy or corruption of one man. When nine intelligent, unbiassed men out of twelve find a prisoner guilty it is doubtless true that he is guilty and ought to be convicted; when the same ought to be convicted; when the same number find him not guilty it is but just to hold him innocent and acquit him. The present practice is one of the crude primitive notions of the an-cient common law that is entirely out THE Saline county, Kansas, fair closed Saturday, after a most successful week.

The Utility of Drunkenness

Darwin shows that the onward progress, the development, or what may be described as the collective prosperity of the species, is brought about by over-multiplication, followed by a necessary struggle for existence, in the course of which the inferior or unsuitable individuals are weeded out, and "the survival of the fittest" necessarily follows; these superior or more suitable specimens transmit more or less of their advantages to their offspring, which, still multiplying excessively, are again and again similarly sifted and improved or developed in a boundless course of forward evolution.

In the earlier stages of human existence, the fittest for survival were those whose brutal or physical energies best enabled them to struggle with the physical difficulties of their surroundings, to subjugate the crudities of the primeval plains and forests to human requirements. The perpetual struggles of the different tribes gave the dominion of the earth to those best able to rule it; the strongest and most violent human animal was then the fittest, and he survived accordingly.

Then came another era of human effort gradually culminating in the present period. In this, mere muscular strength, brute physical power, and mere animal energy have become less and less demanded as we have, by the aid of physical science, imprisoned the physical forces of nature in our steamboilers, batteries, etc., and have made them our slaves in lieu of human prisoners of war. The coarse muscular, raving, yelling, fighting human animal that formerly led the war-dance, the hunt, and the battle, is no longer the fittest for survival, but is, on the contrary, daily becoming more and more out of place. His prize-fights, his dog-fights, his cock-pits, and bull-baiting are practically abolished, his foxhunting and bird-shooting are only carried on at great expense by a wealthy residuum, and by damaging interference with civilized agriculture. The unfitness of the remaining representatives of the primeval savage is manifest, and their survival is purely prejudicial to the present interests and future progress of the race.

Such being the case, we now require some means of eliminating these coarser more brutal, or purely animal specimens of humanity, in order that there may be more room for the survival and multiplication of the more intellectual, more refined, and altogether distinctively human specimens. It is desirable that this should be effected by some natural or spontaneous proceeding of self-extinction, performed by the animal specimens themselves. If this selfimmolation can be a process that is enjoyable in their own estimation, all the objections to it that might otherwise be suggested by our feelings of humanity are removed.

Now, these conditions are exactly fulfilled by the alcoholic drinks of the present day when used for the purpose of obtaining intoxication .- [W. Mat-Monthly for October.

The Lutheran Observer strongly urges the expediency of changing Thanksgiving Day from November to the early part of October. "It is then," it says, "that the harvests and fruits of the earth are all-or nearly with a dispute over some trivial matter and all-matured and gathered-in September and early October, and in a large prrt of the country as early as August. As soon as practicable after the harvest freely for some time, but fortunately none is gathered, is the appropriate time for offering to God the gratitude of the heart, and a public and National thanksgiving for the blessings and bounties of the year."

THE alarm of fire was sounded about noon Monday of this week, and flames and smoke in the direction of the straw lumber factory led to the belief that it was about to suffer another destruction by fire. It turned out however, that the flames were caused by the resin in the chemical vat igniting and burning out at the chimney. The factory's own hose was promptly turned on and two streams of water kept the fire from doing any damage outside of the furnace room. Some slight damage was done the machinery of the val which can be repaired with small expense.

The Republicans of Douglas county met in onvention at the court house last Saturday and nominated the following excellent ticket: Probate Judge, A. H. Foote, the present incumbent; county attorney, Geo. J. Barker our leading criminal lawyer; clerk of the district court, M. Summerfield, the present incumbent; county superintendent, Prof. Banta. The latter is well known in the county as a thorough teacher and will doubtless fill the office with entire satisfaction. The whole ticket is one for whom all may vote with perfect safety in the satisfaction of knowing that the portion tieu Williams, in Popular Science of the county business falling to their several lots will be faithfully carried out.

> A TEMPORARY stand erected for visitors to view the veiled propets at St. Louis fell Monday.

A RATHER sanguinary struggle took place at the county jail on Monday last between two of the inmates. One was a white boy in for burglary, the other one of the negro boys recently jailed for robbing Gardner, Hill & Co.'s store at Eudora. The quarrel commenced came on to blows when the colored boy drew a knife which he had concealed about his person and stabbed the other boy several times in the face, arms and body. The blood flowed of the wounds are dangerous, though one stab was only prevented from reaching a vital spot by striking a rib, which retarded the blow. The boy is doing well at present.

For Murder.

The trial of the notorious "Sis" Vinegar was in progress before the district court Wednesday. The day was mostly consumed in taking testimony for both prosecution and defense, some of which pointed strongly to the guilt of the prisoner, who it will be remembered figured conspicuously at the time of the murder of Bausman, and has been confined in jail ever since, narrowly escaping the clutches of the mob that lynched King, Robertson and old man Vinegar. The attorneys on each side occupied a little over an hour in summing up and after being charged by the court on the law in the case the jury retired for consideration. Up to the hour of going to press no report has been received though the belief is that there will either be a disagreement or a verdict of guilty.

A Queer Notion.

The Champion recently sent out postal cards notifying a number of subscribers of the amount of their indebtedness, and politely requesting them to remit the money. Whereupon a collector writes that three men, thus notified. save ordered their papers stopped, taking offense at what they call a "dun."

The world is full of queer notions, but it has always seemed to us that one of the queerest ideas of many of the inhabitants is the notion that a polite request to remit an henest indebtedness embodies some personal offense. Newspaper publishers frequently run across such men. We don't know why it is, but very many people pay any other debt they owe be fore they pay for the paper they have taken and read for years. Many, too, are not offend ed if they are "requested to remit" by their grecers or dry goods merchants, but they esteem it as some sort of a personal indignity te oe asked to pay a debt due a newspaper. Every jobbing merchant sends out to his cusomers, monthly statements of indebtedness, with printed requests for remittance, and many retail merchants have adopted the same custom. No intelligent man regards the reception of such "duns" as offensive. But there are any number of men who will get "on their ear" if a newspaper sends out a similar statement of accounts, with a request or settlement. No man has any right to regard such statements of accounts as offensive. They are ments of accounts as offensive. They are proper respectful, and necessary in the transaction of business. In fact, men ought to be glad to receive statements of their accounts. More than this, they ought, instead of getting angry, to sit down and write to their creditor, remitting the money due, and thanking him for giving them credit. This is the correct view to take of such business transaction.

Lippincott's Magazine.

Lippincott's Magazine for October has a very interesting table of contents. In the opening illustrated article, "Norfolk, Old and New," Charles Burr Todd tells how this city, evidently intended by nature for a great commercial center," is at last beginning to profit by the advantages of its positio, and is full of bustle and enterprise, extending its railroad communications and becoming one of the chief emporiums of the cotton trade and other industries of the South. "My Escape from the Floods," by Annie Porter, gives a vivid description of the overflow of the Mississippi river last spring, and a narrative of the pathetic and amusing incidents which befell the writer and her companions, or which came under their observation, during their flight across the country covered by the deluge. Bark Canoeing in Canada," an illustrated paper by "Kanuck," and "Camping on the Wabash," by M. H. Catherwood, are sufficiently described by their titles. "My College Chums," by Henry A. Beers, is written with quiet humor, and gives some capital anecdotes and suggestive glimpses of student life at Yale. In the way of fiction there is a further installment of the lively and well-constructed serial, "Fairy Gold," and the tull complement of short stories. We hardly know whether "The Shocking Example," by F. C. Baylor, is to be classed with these, as it has the air of being substantially a literal transcript from actual life. There are some very good things in the "Monthly Gossip," and the whole number is eminently readable and among the best of the year.

HURRAH FOR KANSAS.

Wheat 'till you can't rest. Lots and lots of oats. Bushels and bushels of corn. An enormous quantity of wild Tops and tons of millet and Hunguarian. Slathers of big potatoes. Great gobs of sorghum. Garden truck into infinity. This is the record in Kansas this year, and is the biggest "advertising dodge" for Kansas that she has ever indulged in. It's a taking advertisement and thousands of people will come to Kansas, no matter if St. John is Governor, that a colored individual is auditor and woman suffrage and prohibition are the Republican platform. Hurrah for Kansas.—

A Traveling Episode.

The following amusing episode took place recently at the Slathe Fort Scott depot : A gentleman residing in the vicinity was looking for his wife and child from Texas on the train from the south, from whom he had been separated almost a year. When the expected train made its appearance our friend was on the depot platform anxiously scanning every face, but was doomed to disappointment. After thoroughly convincing himself that his wife was not there he went down town to await the next train from the south. In the interim the train from Kansas City, the north, came in with the wife on board. She, too, was doomed to disappointment, for no joyful welcome awaited her, so she took the omnibus for the Gulf House to await her husband. They staid all night within a stone's throw of each other, but none the wiser, for the morning came and with it the train from the south, but again was the gentleman disappointed.

This time his anxiety was thoroughly aroused and he searched the depot to see if he could find anything that would drive away the mystery, and at last came across a trunk that looked familiar. "It my wife was in town I'd say that was her trunk. I am going to look for her any way." And off he started. As he was nearing the Gulf House with his head down in a deep study, he heard some one give a familiar "Ahem," and, looking up, he saw s lady holding a babe in her arms on the balcony She was evidently looking at him and yet was undecided whether she knew him or not. He stared at her and she at him, as he slowly walked down the street. Finally she said something to the baby in her arms and laughed, when he turned and rushed up the steps, for "the lost was found." Instead of taking the Fort Scott & Gulf, she had purchased a through ticket to Kansas City and from there to Olathe, hence the blunder. But "all is well that ends

Storing Potatoes.

As potato harvest will now soon be in order, and as the crop will probably be a fair average one, and operations will probably begin rather earlier than usual, we offer some views upon the best mode of storing them, which may possibly be of advantage to some.

To store potatoes properly we have to guard against heating, for although the potato will not absolutely ferment ture, united at the edges of selvages of by heat as so much vegetable matter, a heap becomes warm enough to excite any germ fungus there may be in the tuber, and this exhalation may be sufficient to cause a decay, which can be the ground color of the design, then communicated to roots in which no the green will be the figure color; and symptom of rot exists. Moisture is favorable to heating, and hence it is best pears over the ground ply, that is into have the potato thoroughly dry be- graining. The more general this infore storing, if any considerable quanti- graining or mixing up of the two webs ty is to be put away in bulk. Thus, if or plies, the better the fabric is inthey are spread on a barn floor or other grained, and the longer it will wear. cool place out of the sun, before put. The three-ply ingrain is made and inting into the root cellar, they will be safe against rotting. When potatoes are perfectly healthy there is not so much necessity for this care in drying. Hundreds of bushels are often taken at once from the field to the cellar, with-out any damage whatever resulting; and it is only in view of the possibility of rot that we think it advisable to take the extra precaution in drying. It is well to note that a cool shed is best to dry them in, as the tubers will otherwise absorb more heat than when they come out of the ground, and this is just what we try to avoid.

There is one disadvantage in drying potatoes in this way which is always more or less connected with dry cellars, namely, the great loss from shrinkage which results. In an average dry celtwenty per cent. in bulk from shrink-age. Thus, one hundred bushels stored much, and sometimes more, than the advance spring over fall prices, and is an argument often used to induce growers to sell their crop as soon as taken up instead of keeping them for the spring rise. But this loss can be wholly avoided and the roots kept in excellent condition by carefully storing in the open ground. A dry place is to be selected, where the water can easily run away, and the potatoes laid up in long narrow ridges, say about four feet wide and as long as the quantity to be protected demands. After the whole has been collected together, a thin layer of straw, only thick enough to keep the earth from falling in among the potatoes, is to be put along the sides and an argument often used to induce growearth from falling in among the pota-toes, is to be put along the sides and over the tubers, and a thin layer of soil, just enough to keep the straw in place is thrown over. It is best not to throw more earth than this over at first, as the natural heat of the potatoes will it pass rapidly away. As soon as there is danger of frost then the potatoes The Clergyman's Annoyance.

Nothing can be more annoying or unpleasant to our clergyman than the constant coughing of some of his congregation; yet how easily one and this be avoided, by using Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption. There can be no cough or cold, however severe, but what this remedy will relieve instantly. It is a positive ture for asthma, bronchitis, puthistic, quinsy, hoarseness, sore throat, dry hacking cough, croup, whooping cough, difficulty of breathing, or any affection of the throat and lungs. Cook county, Ill., contains a very large number of early Richmond cherry trees. There are several orchards containing from 300 to 800 trees. There are also many trees planted in rows on the sides of farms and in gardens and lawns. This year there was a good crop of fruit on the trees that are outside orchards, but scarcely any cherries on the trees that are in the large orchards. In the orchards most of the fruit is found on the trees in the outside rows. A like state of things existed last year. Trees that stood by themselves were loaded with fine fruit, but those that were in orchards were nearly destitute of any. The writer of this article, who has a large cherry orchard, has observed that the trees in an orchard bear well while they are quite small, but generally fail to produce good crops as soon as they become large. Large trees, however, standing in isolated positions in separate rows, produce good crops, year after year, notwithstanding there is a failure of fruit in orchards that are well taken care of. He has also observed that the trees that are scattered about the premises remain in good condition after producing twenty crops of fruit, while those in the interior of large orchards die or exhibit marks of decline. The observations of others who are interested in the growing of cherries are in harmony with his own. One grower states that fifty trees standing in separate rows or scattered about in containing the growing the theologians so much trouble. venient places will produce more fruit during a series of years than five hundred planted in an orchard. Most have

If the red ply represents the ground color of the design, then the green will be the figure color; and whenever the green figuring ply appears over the ground ply, that is ingraining. The more general this ingraining. The more general this ingrained after the same manner. A two-ply carpet woven on the same loom and "mounted" in the same manner as a two-ply ingrain, if woven plain. without any design or pattern, would be a seamless bag, or two bags joined together by one side of each.

A bitter war against church rates is going on in some parts of England. At coventry there is a regular conflict going on between the people and the vicar. The local acts give power to the vicars of St. Michael's and Holy lar there is often as much as a loss of Trinity to levy church rates for their own maintenance. These acts are reaway in a place like this in winter will christian, and they refuse to pay them. The vicars naturally regard them as sale in the spring. This is as often as very proper acts and have proceeded garded by the people as illegal and unfor redress to the secular courts.

Another judicial and judicious decision against unnecessary expense in burying the dead is recorded. An executor who spent $500 for black horses and nodding plumes at the funeral of a bankrupt who died in a tenement house, will have to pay $375 of the bill out of his own pocket. When no creditor is defrauded a costly funeral is uncalled for; and when there is not mon-oy enough to pay the dead man's debts, it is dishonest.

Curiosities of Evidence.

From the Leisure Hour.

Some of the more 'ignorant of the Roman Catholic church have a curious idea of the sanctity of an oath, We re- has used for the past twenty years member an old Irish woman being with good effect a wash of lime and called as a witness at a recent assize at Liverpool to prove ou the part of the trees. The wash is prepared by placdefense an alibi as to the prisoners. ing half a bushel of fresh lime and She was duly sworn and gave evidence eight pounds of powdered sulphur in utterly irreconcilable with the statements of other witnesses of undoubted nearly boiling water, the top of the veracity. It was quietly suggested by barrel being covered with a cloth. a clergyman in court that the Testament used in administering the oath use, not only as a wash for trees, but had no cross upon the cover. On this an ordinary whitewash, to be applied representation another book was sent for which bore the sacred symbol; and ures used for sheltering cattle, henbeing somewhat reluctantly re-sworn houses and the like. It is claimed that on the new volume, she did not hesitate to say, on being questioned, that all her testimony just given was false, of the diseases of both vegetables and quietly remarked, in answer to a remonstrance from the counsel, that she supposed she might say what she thinks that occasional coatings of this pleased as long as she was not "sworn on the blessed crucifix."

The custom of kissing the thumb instead of the book was considered by many an evasion of the moral obligation attached to an oath, while to others, holding the testament upside down was deemed an equally efficacious release. These and other disreputable plenty of surplus frames or boxes or artifices are, however, very little indulged in at the present day.

When the celebrated Serjeant Hill conducted a defence at the bar of the and use the same in extracting your tion to a witness which the cousel on the other side objected to. After much | and squeezing out the honey as used to had been said on either side, the Law Lords themselves disagreed, and the Bar and all strangers were ordered to hours they were readmitted, and the at an early age, he was without a doubt Lord Chancellor informed Mr. Hill that the House decided the question might be put. "Please, you, my lords," said the serjeant, "it is so long since I asked the question that I forget what it was, but with your lordships' permission I will put another !"

A witness was lately called on a trial at the Old Bailey to prove an alibi. He solemnly swore that the prisoner on the night, and at the hour in question (11:25 p. m.) was at home and in bed at a distant part of the parish. Nothing could shake his testimony, for Oriental localities. Much interest has he said he had looked at the clock just | been elicited. as the prisoner went up-stairs, and he had set the clock right with the church clock himself the same day, and it was sively improved during the last sumcertainly 11:25 p. m., etc. "Pray what mer, and is now thrown open again for do you make the time now?" blaudly worship. asked the counsel who cross-examined, pointing to a great white dial over the dock. No answer was given. "Don't be confused-take your time. I ask you again-what is the time by that clock now?" The question was repeated several times and the witness was eventually bound to confess that he could not tell the time by a clock at all. Singularly enough the clock in the court was standing at 11:25 when he made this avowal.

We remember a country witness being called at the assizes to prove that at a particular hour on a certain night the moon was shining and at the full. There happened to be no almanac in court, but the evidence seemed to be satisfactory, for he had obtained his information from "a regular good London stationer's almanac." The question was asked in cross-examination, "How did you obtain this London stationer's almanac? Did you buy it! "Buy it! No; my father pasted it behind my kitchen door nine years agothe day I was married?" It need hardly be said that information as to the moon's age during a day in the current year was of little value from an almanac nine years old.

We may remark that all evidence of a "circumstantial" character is received with great caution, and no doubt rightly so, on a trial. Take, as au illustra-tion of this, the evidence offered against a prisoner, of foot-marks. Nothing is more commonly found than the impression of boots or shoes near to a murdered body, or to premises which have been broken into. A policeman is called as a witness on the trial, who deposes that he took the boots off the prisoner upon his arrest, that he compared them with the foot-marks near the place of the alleged crime, and that they corresponded in every particular. "You compared them, I suppose," usually asks the judge, "by placing the boots in the impressions, and found that they corresponded?" "Yes, my lord." The answer is fatal to that branch of the evidence, for the placing the boot in the impression found, very possibly caused the similarity relied upon; the prudent officer places the prisoner's boot beside the foot-print, presses it into the earth, and then removing it, compares the impression made with the one discovered

Effects of Odors on Milk.

Upon this question Professor Arnold, in the work "American Dairying," says: "The London Milk Journal cites instances where milk that has stood a short time in the presence of persons sick with typhoid fever, or handled by persons not fully recovered from the small pox, has spread these diseases as effectually as if the persons themselves had been present. Scarlatina, measles and other contageous diseases have been spread in the same way. The peculiar smell of a cellar is indefinitely impressed upon all the butter made from milk standing in it. A few puffs from a pipe or a cigar will scent all the milk in a room, and a smoking lamp will soon do the same. A pail of milk standing ten minutes where it will take the scent of a strong-smelling, stale or any other offensive odor, will imbibe a taint that will never leave it. A maker of gilt-edge d butter objects to cooling warm milk in the room where his milk stands for the cream to rise, because he says the odor escaping from the new milk while cooling is taken in by the other milk and retained to the injuay of his butter. This may seem like descending to little things, but it must be remembered that it is the sum of such little things that determines whether the products of the dairy are to be sold at cost or below, or as a high-priced luxury. If milk is to be converted into an article of the latter class, it must be handled and kept in crean and sweet vessels, and must stand in pure fresh air, such as would be desirable and healthy for people to breathe."

Nervous debility, the curse of the American people, immediately yields to the action of Brown's Iron Bitters.

A Temperance General.

It was recently reported that Sir Garnet Wolseley is a total abstainer from intoxicating beverages. A man who sat by the side of him at dinner found that he left his wine glass un touched, and that that was his habit.

Of course, the temperance people will make much of that alleged fact. The greatest, or at least the most successful, English general of this day is a teetotaller. His success they will attribute to his abstemiousness, which is all the more remarkable in a soldier; or, at any rate, they will claim that the triumph of the English arms in Egypt has been greatly helped by the sobriety of the general in command.

And they will have good reason for the claim. Undoubtedly a sober General is far more trustworthy than one who relies on stimulants to bolster him up when the occasion is trying.

No man can be trusted to do work which requires good judgment if he is much addicted to drink. Alcohol very soon affects the balance of the faculties, and therefore the less people who need to have their heads about them take of it the better they are off. Drinking is the great vice of armies, and yet nowhere else does a man require that all his faculties shall be normal more than when in the charge of troops in the field, especially when he is in high

If Sir Garnet Wolseley is a teetetaler he is a wise man. He is in better phys ical condition to stand the different climates to which military service may call him, and intellectually he keeps himself far better poised than if he followed the drinking customs of the run of army officers. His mind is clearer and he can trust his judgment. How many thousands of lives would have been saved in our war, for instance, if the generals had all been as sober as Wolseley is said to be. We observe that among Englishmen of education and ability, and who carry the load of extensive affairs, the tendency is toward increasing abstemiousness, and that even total abstainers are growing pietty numerons. It is a tendency which we commend to the thoughtful attention of our men in public life, our professional and business men.—[N. Y. Sun.

Just before going to press we received through the postoffice the entire Burlington list which was returned because misdirected. We trust this has not been the case with any other of the many lists, and hope our Burlington friends will this time excuse the lateness of their copies. We shall endeavor to hereafter regain the good name for prompt arrival in good shape that THE SPIRIT OF KANSAS has for so many years sustained.

A General Stampede.

Probably nothing has caused such a general stampede in the direction of any one of our business houses as that produced by the announcement that all sufferers could obtain a trial bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery free of cost, by calling at Barber Bro's. drug store. This is the great remedy that is producing such astonishing cures everywhere, curing where everything else has failed.
