Are patrons of cooperative creameries to be forced to pay tle charges, points out Mr. Seamans. the two-cent tax on their cream checks? That is a question which is being debated quite largely right at this time.

There seems to be a possibility that the tax may be avoided, although a definite ruling from the Treasury Department seems not to have been made as yet. A. W. Seamans, manager of the Farmers Union Cooperative Creamery Association with plants at Colony and Wakeeney, has been working on the proposition, and hopes to be able to report favorably on it soon. It is hoped that a system may be worked out whereby a settlement may be made with a farmer upon delivery of his cream, not by check, but by a tax exempt order on the creamery itself, payable through or at a bank. The plan is to lift these orders at the close of the day's business by a single tax-bearing check to the

Mr. Seamans reports that the management of the Farmers Union Coop-MANY CHARGES NOW erative Creamery Association has been making efforts to arrange to have the cream stations pay much of the money for cream in the form of cash, eliminating checks as much as possible. This movement has been under way before the two-cent tax was passed or proposed, as a means of escaping the expense of paying exchange. Even though the two-cent tax should be imposed on all checks or orders for payment, the Association will save considerably anyhow, because of the system which is being worked out whereby local stations will pay cash and then take up the advances from the Association by will be found in cities that there is strong support of the limitation amendment for this reason, but not so much favor for the income tax.

The change that has occurred with egard to the income tax situation is of concern to the farmer. Hereto fore the argument for the income tax has been that it would bring in revehue from now escaping property and taxable ability, particularly as regards incomes from intangible investments and from salaries and professional earnings, and that this revenue would be allocated for the benefit of farm taxpayers to weak school districts. It would in this way reduce the burden of the property tax on land and at the same time tend to equalize school facilities throughout the state.

An entirely new idea is now advanced by proponents of the tax limitation amendment-it is proposed to allocate the revenue from an income tax, if any, to the cities. This is what the limitation amendment has done to the income tax.

The limitation amendment will not greatly affect farm land levies. It proposes to hold them at 15 mills, where they actually now are. So no appreciable relief will be obtained by the farm land owner. But in city districts it proposes to bring levies down from 40 to 50 per cent, or in some instances even to a greater extent. The average total city levy in Except for bonded debt now existing the amendment reduces the levy to 20

How, then, can cities live? The answer of the friends of the limitation amendment is that they can receive the income tax.

It can not be said that this is breakng faith with the farmers if the farmers themselves vote for the limtation amendment. Before any of them do so, however, they should be advised of how they will come out.

Our school ended on May 13. We had a picnic on May 16 for the school chii-dren. I will be in the seventh grade. My birthday is on December 18. I will be 13. Since our school has ended I have to help milk the cows. How do you like the springzweather? I received my book and pin and I was so glad to get it. Please put your picture in the paper. Does Ida get a star for asking me to join? I haven't found my twin. I wish you would help me look for one. We sure had fun had you been there. I thank you for the book and pin. Well, I guess I will have to close for it is getting late—Goodbye—Josephine Urban.

Dear Josephine:

Dear Eileen:

This time, I'll have to congratulate you for two things—for your Bible story, and for having won a star. You could write to Marvin Johnson, Aurora, as his birthday is a week before yours and he's only a year older.—Aunt Patience.

Dear Josephine:

Yes, Ida will have a star for asking you to join the Club. No one has ever explained to me why you all want me to put my picture in the paper—why do you? I'll be glad to try to help you find your twin—if you find one first, be sure to let me know. Yes, I think I should have enjoyed your picnic, too. And I'm glad you liked your book and pin. Aunt Patience.

So far.—Aunt Patience:

One general method of attaching pleasure to a request is by means of our own cheerful attitude both at the time the request is made and in all our dealings with the child. A cheerful voice implies that what we are suggesting for the child will be pleasant. This will have little meaning for him, however, unless we are on good terms with him generally.
