Computers In Farming Sure To Come

There's little doubt that computers will play a major role in the development of new farm management tools. The question is how fast, and in what manner they will be put into use, a USDA economist said at Kansas State University last week.

Dr. Buel F. Lampher told a workshop in computer technology at Kansas State University that farmers must consider a growing mountain of data and information in their decision making. Computers can and will assist the farmer in his decision-making process.

We are moving into the age of management in commercial agriculture, Lampher said. This is in contrast to the age of production technology which agriculture has gone through in past decades.

"Continued progress in the productivity of American agriculture will hinge increasingly more on bringing improved management tools and skills to bear on individual farm operations," he said.

Dr. Ludwig M. Eisgruber, Purdue University economist, suggested that farmers may one day "call up" a computing center for information on current and future prices of hogs and cattle. They may then instruct the computer to solve problems such as: Should I sell these pigs as feeders or feed them out to market weight? Should I hold a lot of feeder cattle for another month or should I sell now?

Eisgruber said that computers which predict the effects of the weather may permit conclusions regarding the time for spring soil preparation, planting, and fertilization.

"Acreage allotments may in the future be measured with remote sensing devices in an aircraft and transmitted to a computer for processing," he said.

"Automated sensing may someday help determine water needs of plants to set irrigation needs, and meter feed in relation to milk production of individual dairy cows."

"Eisgruber noted that these developments will take time. Adaptation of the computer to farm use has been slow and will continue at a slow pace, he said.

"Computers will not make decisions for the farm manager, but properly used will supply more specific information to help in decision making," he explained.

Trayer predicted that the successful manager will survive in farming with or without computerized record systems. But he can probably do the same job easier and more quickly with computers — he will make fewer mistakes and have more specific information for planning, he added.

Rodger Funk, Garden City farmer, suggested that the computer "might tell us how to squeeze the last bit of profit out of an operation. And it takes the last bit of profit to even stay in business.

"I am hoping that computers may help us tell which parts of the farming operation are carrying the load and which parts can be weeded out or changed."

Can We Sell More Wheat To British?

Dr. Eugene Farrell of Kansas State University (center) shows part of the British wheat mission some stages of U.S. wheat during milling at K-State.

Five English millers were in Kansas last week, stayed long enough to be impressed with the size of the state, but obviously still had some reservations about U.S. wheat.

The British group was in the U.S. at the invitation of Great Britain's Wheat and the Kansas Wheat Commission, who hope to increase English purchases of U.S. grain.

English millers presently import about 2.2 million tons of wheat a year — about half their entire needs — and about 2 million tons of the purchases come from Manitoba, Canada.

But the British delegation agreed it was open-minded about wheat purchases. There are no legal restrictions or political influences affecting the British habits of buying wheat.

John Fairclough, who represents one of the largest milling firms in England, said the reason more U.S. wheat was not used is because the quality is not constant and it cannot always be obtained.

Tightening of the United States grading system has helped sell U.S. wheat of both the hard red winter and the northern springs, but, Fairclough said, "it is not good enough yet."

He pointed out that the dockage from wheat exported from the United States makes a considerable cost differential. Problems arising from dockage include the necessity for extra cleaning because when there is a maximum-minimum grade system exporters try to get to the bottom of the grade by blending down.

"Naturally they will blend down. It's a matter of money," said Fairclough.

What wheat the U.S. has been selling to Britain has mostly gone as chicken feed. This is because of an apparent English housewife preference for chickens which are white-fleshed rather than yellow-tinged. Thus, most poultry raisers use wheat rather than yellow corn for feeding.

The visiting millers added English poultry raisers would like to feed milo, but that England has a duty on milo which makes it noncompetitive with wheat.

In their discussions with Kansas grainmen, the visitors said they were in agreement with the minimum world price on wheat set earlier at the Kennedy round of tariff negotiations at Geneva. They said British millers already were paying prices for wheat above the minimums established at Geneva.

Ire At Politics In ASCS

The American Farm Bureau federation has protested what it said are efforts of the Johnson administration to use Agriculture department appointees to influence political decisions in behalf of big federal farm programs.

The largest of the nation's general farm organizations took exception to a call by Secretary Orville L. Freeman of the Agriculture department for farmer employees of the Agriculture department to "go out and militantly" battle for the preservation of the crop control and subsidy programs. These programs cost about 4 billion dollars a year.

Urged To Fight

Freeman told a conference of more than 200 state agriculture stabilization and conservation committeemen — all farmers appointed by him — to battle in various forums those who seek, the secretary said, to destroy the farm programs.

These committeemen help administer the department's far-flung crop-control, price-support, farm payments, conservation and other stabilization activities.

Long a critic of these programs, the Farm Bureau is sponsoring legislation, now pending in Congress, which would repeal programs relating to wheat and feed grains.

In a statement, Charles B. Shuman, president of the Farm Bureau, said the farmer-committeemen are authorized by Congress to help administer farm programs and not "to be used for political purposes, nor to create a smoke-screen to divert attention from the disastrous drop in farm income caused by the administration's repeated action to force farm market prices to low levels."

Slice In Feed Grain Supply Slows Down

It looks as if the stocks of feed grains — corn, sorghum, and the like — are not going to be down as much as experts had earlier predicted.

So, USDA economists are now saying that if crop prospects are good this summer, prices are likely to weaken.

Off to a late start, planting of feed grains got into high gear in late May, and farmers are planting a larger acreage than last year.

Stocks of stored feed grains were reduced less than expected in the past three months, primarily due to a 20 per cent decline in exports. Economists now figure the carryover on October 1 will be around 31-34 million tons. That's 20 to 25 per cent less than a year ago but still more than had been expected.

Corn disappearance in the January-March quarter took a sharp drop, so that total utilization for the first half of the year now is estimated at 2,240 million bushels, 5 per cent below the same period in 1965-66. Domestic disappearance the second quarter, January-March, was 833 million bushels, down sharply from the first quarter, October-December, when it was 1,141 million bushels.

The figures indicate some tapering off in the feeding rate the second quarter of this year as compared to a year ago.

Corn Is Down

Corn exports the first half of this feeding year, October-March, totaled 266 million bushels, about 102 million below the record movement the first half of the 1965-66 year.

The USDA's estimate for corn exports for the current year is around 500 million bushels, which would compare with the record 687 million bushels in 1966-67. Domestic consumption is now expected to be at around 3.7 billion bushels, which would be about the same as the previous feeding year.

If these estimates turn out to be correct, then the corn carryover as of October 1 will be around 700 million bushels, which would be less than last year, yet considerably above the 440 million bushels predicted as late as February.

In contrast to corn, milo utilization was up the second quarter of this year as compared to the first quarter. Total disappearance the first half of the year was 582 million bushels, 68 million bushels more than in the same period a year ago. Domestic use was up 13 per cent in the half year and exports were up 14 per cent, but the largest part of this increase came in the first quarter.

For the whole year, domestic consumption is expected to exceed last year's total of 582 million bushels by 8 to 10 per cent while exports will be just a little over the 1966-67 figure. In that case, the carryover on October 1 will be about 200 million bushels, just about half the quantity on hand October 1, 1966.

Disappearance of oats and barley is about the same as it was a year ago.

Sum It Up

The USDA economists summarize their analysis on feed grains by saying that during the remainder of this marketing year, prices will be influenced to a considerable extent by prospects on the 1967 crops. They expect prices to be more stable because of stocks on hand that are larger than expected.

While actually total stocks on hand as of April 1 this year were less than a year ago, they were larger than had been expected and also nearly all the reduction, as compared to a year ago, has been in government-owned supplies.

"Free stocks" as of April 1 were about 13 per cent larger than a year ago and appear large enough, the USDA says, to take care of expected domestic and export requirements. Therefore the conclusion:

"With an average growing season this year, these large 'free' supplies would tend to limit any seasonal rise in prices this spring and summer."

Here's June Price Forecast

Egg prices, which have been in a downward spiral for several weeks, have apparently hit the bottom of the barrel, say Kansas State University economists in their monthly Market Forecast report. They see eggs holding steady in June as producers reduce laying flocks. Hot weather will also help hold production down.

The situation for other commodities is as follows:

SLAUGHTER STEERS & HEIFERS — Steady to Slightly Higher. The wholesale meat market will improve, but continued heavy receipts figure to prevent a major price advance.

HOGS — Steady to Slightly Higher. Increased receipts and decrease in demand for pork will dampen prices.

CORN, SORGHUMS & SOYBEAN

MEAL — Steady. Prices will remain stable as the feeding season ends.

FEEDER CATTLE — Steady. The upsurge in demand for grass cattle has passed. Feeding losses on fat cattle during the past few months will have buyers pessimistic.

WHEAT & SOYBEANS — Steady to Lower. New crop period is approaching.

LAMBS — Steady to Lower. Decrease in seasonal demand and quantity will hurt prices.

GRADE A & MANUFACTURING MILK — Slightly lower. Sharp seasonal increase in production and lower Class I utilization will weaken prices.

HAY — Lower. New crop is coming on.

Lowest Surplus Cost Since '53

The government's investment in farm surpluses has dipped to the lowest level since September, 1953.

The amount, as reported by the Agriculture department, was $3.95 billion on March 31. This compared with $6.36 billion a year earlier. At times in the past the investment exceeded 9 billion dollars.

But the outlay of the department's price supporting agency — the Commodity Credit corporation — is running at a record high level. Its losses for the first nine months of the fiscal year ending June 30 was $3.28 billion compared with $2.31 billion in the like period last year. This increase in losses reflects a larger volume of payments made to farmers for complying with programs designed to prevent overproduction.

 Quincy, Illinois, 62301

Gentlemen:

Last June, we purchased a supply of your Kalo KO to be used in our underground sewer system and anaerobic lagoons at our swine operation near Salina, Kansas. We have approximately 3,000 swine with a lagoon area of 1 1/2 acres. These lagoons are divided into three 1/2 acre ponds. The first pond fills and drains to the second which fills and drains into the third. The first two ponds are definitely anaerobic and the third pond is becoming aerobic.

Upon receiving the material, we placed a 5 pound charge per cell in the lagoons and then put 1/2 pound per day at the top end of the underground sewage system. We have had excellent results and have had no complaints from odor from a small town 3/4 mile east. We have not had any odor problems working in the immediate area.

Occasionally, we feel it is necessary to put an additional charge of water in the lagoons for the purpose of flushing the system rather than for odor control.

We have sent samples of the material to the various line elevators throughout this general area and have discussed it with several feed yards. They have shown interest and feel that it will be to their advantage to use a material of this nature as long as the costs are within line; however, they wish to watch the results we are having.

Any time you have a representative in this area, we would like to have them call.

Yours very truly,

When Using Mower Remember Machines, Moppets Don't Mix

It could not have happened on this idyllic afternoon — but it

Under the cloudless sky of a sunny day, Dad trundled the rotary power mower out of the garage, started it up and proceeded to cut long, clean swaths of the thick grass while the children lolled on the lawn, intent on the challenge of a coloring book.

Had their father cleared the work area of children before he started mowing, the accident would not have happened. Instead, the mower's blade, whirling at a speed of 2500 rpm, picked up a piece of wire coathanger concealed in the grass and hurled it out the discharge chute at high speed.

The result: A fatality, another needless statistic and all because a father forgot a simple rule advanced by the Outdoor Power Equipment Institute.

The rule to remember is that machines and moppets don't mix!

The Institute wants to keep mowing safe. They want to prevent accidents and injuries resulting from careless handling. Best to heed their warnings!

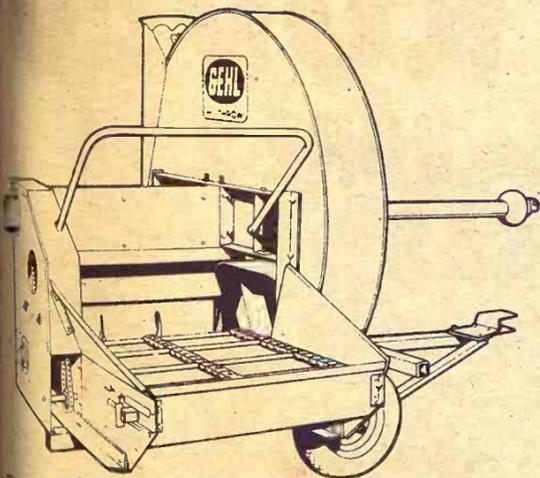

1. When you buy a mower, read the maker's book carefully so you know everything about the mechanics and controls.

2. Wear leather shoes and tight fitting jeans or slacks.

3. Don't keep the power on if you step away.

Above all, look for the triangular seal indicating that the mower has been built to Institute standards. No manufacturer owns the seal. Any mower properly built is entitled to use it.

- 1 envelope Dream Whip

Put in a mixing bowl the eggs. Beat until creamy, add sugar, beat again until creamy. Pour in milk and vanilla and set aside. Mix Dream Whip as directed, add to above mixture, mix well. Pour into freezer trays and freeze until solid. Take out and chop up some so that it can be mixed up good with mixer. Pour back in trays and set in freezer compartment for future use.

Don't Fence Yourself In

if you're feeding cattle

Be sure the money you'll need will BE THERE for each stage of your cattle operations. There are successful cattlemen in the Central Kansas grazing country that will tell you they "feel comfortable" about their association with other stockmen and farmers wrestling with the common problem of financing. The two farmer-owned, farmer-managed Production Credit Associations in an 11-county area have the capacity for unlimited credit. And PCA financing has "built-in" features to safeguard your interests.

- Sleek modern styling
- Dual 60-bushel capacity, grain tanks
- IH 61 horsepower engine
- 10 and 13-foot grain platforms, 2-row wide and 3-row narrow corn heads
- 42-inch wide threshing, separating, and cleaning
- Fin-and-wire type rotary straw racks
- Opposed-action cleaning
- Big 5x8-inch top-driven elevators

Whether you're talking price, capacity or efficiency, the new 205 is one machine that really invites comparison.

When it comes to platforms, the 205 offers deep-ledge design that cuts cutterbar loss to the bone and eliminates the need for an expensive cutterbar extension for sorghums and soybeans.

Compare corn heads. The 205 offers both 2-row wide and 3-row narrow heads that are field-proven to be the most efficient in the business.

Take horsepower, and you have a big 61 horsepower 6 cylinder 221 cubic inch engine.

Match separators with the 205's wide 42-inch threshing, separating, and cleaning.

Compare straw-racks with IH fin-and-wire rotary design that avoids plugging in even the wettest corn... that in all crops and conditions permits faster ground speeds without losing the crop. Compare the total separating area of 4441.5 square inches, and cleaning area of 3411 square inches. Check the 205's big 60-bushel grain tank capacity... and the dual tanks that provide increased traction in soft going—unmatched stability on slopes. Yes, there's a lot to talk about in the new 205. Ask that any farmer has a right to expect in a moderately-priced family-sized machine. The new 205 was designed to outrank all other machines in its price range. The specifications speak so—performance in the field will prove that specifications don't lie.

Pineapple Sodas Add Festive Touch To Spring Parties

Springtime sodas get a taste of the tropics with canned pineapple juice. Choose your best looking tall glasses to fill with canned pineapple juice, vanilla ice cream and ginger ale. For pink color stir in a little maraschino cherry syrup. Canned pineapple chunks, maraschino cherries and lime slices make pretty swizzle stick garnishes. Canned pineapple juice is a good inexpensive soft drink to have on ice during the festive spring season. For weddings, proms and graduation parties, pineapple juice is the classic punch ingredient.

TROPICAL PINEAPPLE SODAS

- 1 (46-ounce) can pineapple juice
- Maraschino cherry syrup
- 1 quart vanilla ice cream
- Ginger ale or sparkling water
- Canned pineapple chunks

Cherries
Lime slices
Divide chilled pineapple juice among six to eight tall glasses. Add a tablespoon cherry juice to each glass and a double scoop of ice cream. Fill glass with ginger ale or sparkling water. Make swizzle kabobs by stringing pineapple chunks, cherries and lime slices on straws or bamboo picks. Makes six-eight sodas.

Nail Beauty

Do your nails seem dry and dingy? Try this trick. Dip a cotton-tipped stick in lightweight baby cream and apply under the edges. Now, repeat the action with a whitening stick. Notice how much easier it is to stroke on the whitener and how much more pliable your nails seem.

A Substitute For Buttermilk

To substitute sweet milk for buttermilk in a muffin or quick bread recipe, pour a tablespoon of strained lemon juice into a one-cup measure and fill the cup with sweet milk.

Allow the mixture to stand for five minutes before using after stirring it.

Reminder

If you find something that needs sewing, place a piece of tissue paper over the hook of the hanger before you put the article away in the closet. This will remind you that the garment needs to be repaired before it can be worn.

many producers struggling to show a profit.

High egg prices and profit margins brought an increase in the number of laying hens a year ago. This resulted in an expansion in egg production which was greater than the increase in consumption. So prices dropped to a low level.

As low egg prices continue, producers will sell off the older hens from their flocks. A 20 percent reduction in laying hens will help increase egg prices toward more profitable levels.

More pullets are available for replacing laying hens than in years past. This will help hold egg prices at a low level during the next several months. Any increase in the number of new layers will help prolong the recovery period for egg prices.

There is a market for more eggs in Kansas. But development of the industry must be done gradually over a long period of time. The time has passed when an egg producer can build a unit, put in pullets, and then find a market. In fact, this type of management has contributed to some of the current price problems. The poultry industry could not stand the prosperity of 1966, so egg production was overexpanded, the products undersold, and the industry is struggling to maintain itself.

Feed Grain Land Diversion Cut To 21 Million Acres

Farmers have signed up to divert about 21.5 million acres of corn and grain sorghums to soil-conserving uses this year.

This is well below the 36.2 million acres signed for diversion in 1966, which included nearly four million acres diverted from barley.

While the number of farms signed up for participation in the program was about the same as in 1966, the diversion per farm was much lower.

The lower diversion this year resulted from the change in the program which eliminated voluntary acreage diversion for payment, except on small farms. Barley also was eliminated from the 1967 program.

The number of farms participating in the 1966 feed grain program and the acreage diverted was about the same as in 1965.

Advance's High-Tonnage Champion

ADVANCE 14

ADVANCE 14 is one of the most important developments in hybrid sorghum in recent years. Yields of from 15 to 31% over RS-608 and RS-610 are not uncommon. Although Advance 14 was first introduced only three years ago, consistently high yields in all sorghum-producing areas have pushed it to the forefront faster than any sorghum in our experience. Highest yields will be obtained on good soil where rainfall is ample, or under irrigation, but it also produces excellent yields under dry-land farming.

Auctioneer Wayne Cook raised his hand to start the dispersal sale of the Ernest Medders showplace Colonial Acres Farm near Muenster, Texas. The auction, held in the famed 'party barn,' included land, cattle, horses, and equipment.

10,000 Attend Auction Of Bizarre Bankrupts Of Texas, The Medders

MUENSTER, Texas — Auctioneers chanted on and on and toward dawn wearily ended the dream of Ernest and Margaret Medders, admitted bankrupts.

The auction, gripped by a fantasy atmosphere, drew an estimated 10,000 persons, some of them hard-headed businessmen looking for investments and others hunting a conversation piece for the living room.

The businessmen paid sound prices for land, cattle, cars and the like. The souvenir hunters went wild, paying fabulous prices.

Half Claims Paid

The 18-hour sale brought an estimated $500,000 to the creditors of the family noted for its quick financial rise and wild spending habits.

This is about half the official claims by banks, retail stores and service firms.

Outside the bankruptcy action is about $1.94 million loaned by the Poor Sisters of St. Francis of Mishawaka, Ind.

Francis Jones, a South Bend, Ind., lawyer for the religious order, said it "would take no steps whatsoever" to recover the money, saying "The sisters said they feel the Medders acted in good faith."

Inheritance Expected

Medders, 55, and his wife, 48, built up the $3 million debt, Mrs. Medders said in court, because they believed Medders would inherit from the incredibly rich Spindletop Oil Field at Beaumont. Thousands have sought to claim the field by inheritance and have got nowhere.

The Medders still seek to retain their Colonial Acres Farms center of 185 acres with its mansion containing three dens and a room for a hairdresser so Mrs. Medders and her daughters need not go to the beauty parlor. They claim it is a home-stead, untouchable by creditors, and the matter is in court.

This land also contains the "party barn" where the auction was held. It seats 5000 and was the scene of lavish parties in the six years of the Medders' rags-to-riches climb.

Medders was a sick, unemployed assistant mechanic when he began his claim on borrowed money. He is illiterate and can barely sign his name.

The big items were two parcels of land of the 1400-acre ranch. One parcel of 330 acres with 18 oil wells brought $300 an acre. Oil royalties are $909.34 a month. Another of 439 acres brought $175 an acre.

The prize-winning herd of red Angus cattle of 104 head brought $55,465. A Dallas residence went for $31,750.

K-State Vet School Problems Ironing Out

Kansas State University veterinary school officials say they are making progress with problems which had drawn warnings from the American Veterinary Medicine Association that the college was on the brink of losing its accredited standing.

Dr. Charles Cornelius said plans are going on schedule now, so that a AVMA team scheduled for a return inspection next spring will likely approve continued accreditation.

The first wing of a $14 million veterinary installation will likely have construction started in late 1968 or early 1969.

The start of the plan is a $24 million structure for basic science instruction, offices and laboratories. Also planned is an addition to the current veterinary hospital, built in 1952, and a new animal housing unit for the hospital.

Cornelius, who took the top job at the K-State veterinary college last year, said there will be six steps in completing a master plan, extending over several years.

With a $1.2 million state appropriation annually, matching funds from the federal government and hard work, steps toward refurbishing the veterinary college likely would be these, not necessarily in this order:

- Construction of a multi-disciplinary teaching wing.
 - A second wing to the basic science section, plus more animal housing units.
 - Construction of a metabolic diseases section with additional hospital facilities.
 - A third basic science section with expanded units for animal handling and research.
- Basic science wing and additions to the hospital, already mentioned.

Dr. Cornelius

The veterinary school dean pointed out Kansas stockmen lose $191 million annually through animal diseases, and the long-range program for building up the veterinary school will aid in cutting this tremendous loss.

Current research at the school has to do with pink eye, parasitology and reproductive diseases. K-State last year came up with the big break-through in guarding cattle from bloat, a high loss condition.

The brightening outlook has been responsible in part for attracting new faculty members, Cornelius said.

"They are looking forward to being able to work in better teaching and research facilities, which will come with the building program," he said.

A "faculty enrichment" program begun in 1964 was ordered by the regents to assist in keeping faculty members for the de-terminating veterinary school. Current Needs call for another dozen or so instructors to fill a quota of 85.

Federal research grants already have started arriving since Cornelius' appearance. A $1 million grant for five years in studies of liver functions has been obtained along with five other smaller grants, he said.

Within five years, Cornelius said he believes grants for research will be nearing $1 million annually.

"We hope to remain much the same as we traditionally have been here," Cornelius said. "We will concentrate on undergraduate training and continuing to accept mostly Kansans who seriously want to become top veterinarians."

"We're not going to try to be one of these schools that wants to be everything to everybody," he said. "We want to remain a small-college turning out high-quality professionals," Cornelius said.

FARM BUREAU HIRES NEW INFORMATION MAN

The Kansas Farm Bureau has hired John G. White, who will graduate from the University of Missouri next month, to become assistant director of the department of information. He'll replace Don Wilson, who has been promoted to assistant secretary of the entire organization.

Angus Group To Test At Fredonia

FREDONIA — The feedlot owned by Max Deets will be the site of an evaluation program by the American Angus Association designed to test the ability of herd bulls to sire efficient steers that produce higher quality carcasses. Nine major cattle producing states including Kansas are in the program.

The first group will go on feed July 1 and another will be started August 1. Breeders should have at least three head by one bull.

Two other groups will be started on feed on October 1 and November 1.

Nominations for the testing program are being accepted now by the American Angus Association.

$46 An Acre For Pasture Near Tuttle Lake

MANHATTAN — A quarter-section of Riley county pasture land brought $46 an acre at an auction here May 27.

The land, owned by Vernon Berggren of Clay Center, joins the west side of University Park at Tuttle Creek Lake for three-quarters of a mile. The high bidder was Fran KMiller Jr., a livestock farmer of Manhattan.

The land was about half brush and small timber, with some grass sod in the brush and timber area. It has not been grazed either this year or last, and Miller took immediate possession.

Sale of the land was subject to a flowage easment for Tuttle Creek Reservoir of 23.8 acres for occasional flooding and an additional easment on 8.74 acres for permanent flooding.

Jim Kirkemide, Topeka auctioneer-broker, handled the sale.

Notch Up For Food Purchases

Per capita food consumption is increasing about one percent this year on top of a similar rise in 1966.

Both livestock and crop products are contributing to the 1967 increase.

Year-to-year prospective increases are particularly large for pork, poultry, eggs, and citrus fruit.

Consumption is running especially large early in the year.

Mize Asks Curb On Meat Imports

Legislation to limit the imports of beef, mutton and other meat products has been introduced by Congressman Chester Mize, R-Kan. The bill would limit the total imports in any calendar year after Dec. 31, 1967 to 585.5 million pounds. This is a cutback from the present quota of 725.4 million pounds, which because of the law passed in the 88th Congress, has jumped to some 995 million pounds.

The Mize bill has been referred to the Ways and Means Committee for consideration.

More Help Than Hinder To Tariff

The recent international agreement to reduce tariffs has brought on much discussion and many questions. We have been asked for information about the agreements. Farmers, for example, have asked how they will gain or lose from the tariff cuts.

Tariffs are similar to sales taxes, but tariffs apply only to products being shipped into a country. Tariffs are sometimes called duties. The government of the country that receives the product sets the tariff rates and collects the money. The importing dealer pays the tariffs, then adds corresponding amounts to his selling prices. The tariff charges are included in the prices that the users of imported products must pay.

Sales taxes usually are the same rate, say 4 percent, for every product. But tariffs vary widely. Many items are admitted free. Some rates are so much a pound, others are prescribed percentages of value.

For example, agricultural implements and breeding cattle are free. The rate on frozen beef is 3 cents a pound, while the rate for canned beef is 15 percent. More than 100 different rates apply to steel of various grades, sizes, and shapes. In all, we have more than 15,000 different classes of products for which tariff rates are specified. Most other nations have equally complex systems of import duties.

Before about 1933, Congress set each of the thousands of different rates. Now, most rates are established by an international trade agreement known as the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT).

Five years ago, the late President Kennedy signed the Trade Expansion Act of 1962. This Act provided authority for the United States to negotiate with other nations to reduce or increase tariffs. With this authority, the United States has been conducting "Kennedy Round" negotiations with the other members of GATT. On May 15, representatives of the various nations reached an agreement.

The agreement is expected to affect about one-third of the $50-billion annual U.S. export-import trade. The tariff reductions by the United States and the other nations will be made gradually over the next five years; so there will be no sudden changes.

The reduction of tariffs will injure a few, but benefit many. Some industries in the United States and in other countries will have stiffer competition. Others will get bigger and better markets. Industrial users and consumers will both benefit from increased competition for their business. The lower tariffs (taxes) will enable them to buy at lower prices than would prevail without the tariff reductions.

Farmers may gain principally as buyers — buyers of steel, equipment, chemicals, etc. Farmers may also gain from increased sales of canned goods and other processed foods.

This agreement did not cover the nontariff restrictions on sales of our farm products to other countries. The U. S. government hopes to get such barriers reduced in later negotiations.

Less Land Lending In Early 1967

The volume of farm mortgage lending declined sharply in the first quarter of 1967, according to data furnished by life insurance companies, federal land banks, and the Farmers Home Administration.

New farm mortgage loans made by the three lending groups amounted to $447 million in the first quarter of this year. This was 30 percent below the volume during the like period of 1966.

Lending by the reporting life insurance companies was at the lowest first quarter level since 1963 and by land banks the lowest since 1965. Interest rates on new farm mortgage loans have been higher than in 1966.

Some Big Area Highway Projects At Bid Time

Bids will be taken for major construction on Kansas highways by the State Highway Commission at Salina on June 22, according to John D. Montgomery, highway director. Low bids at the Salina letting are expected to total in excess of $9 million to make it one of the largest ever conducted by the Commission, the director said. Projects include construction of the substructure for twin viaducts on I-635 at Kansas City, and two projects on I-35W: grading and bridges on a 19.5 mile section in McPherson County, and resurfacing of 2.8 miles of the Canal Route in Wichita.

The I-35W project in McPherson County will extend the 18-mile segment of the superhighway completed south from I-70 at Salina to the Salina-McPherson line, on south of the city of McPherson. There are 31 bridges to be built on new section. Interchanges will be located at FAS 429 (Roxbury Road) south of Lindsborg; at FAS 448, six miles northeast of McPherson and at US 56 east of McPherson.

Paving on the Canal Route (I-35W) will begin near the intersection of 47th Street and Washington Avenue in south Wichita and extend north 2.8 miles to Stafford Street. The entire route will extend 10 miles north to south through the center of Wichita when completed. Initial construction on I-635, the west Kansas City bypass, will be building of the substructure for twin bridges extending from Swartz Road .7 mile over the Santa Fe Railroad freight yard, to the Kaw River. It is anticipated that bids for fabrication and erection of the bridge steel will be taken next fall with bids for the concrete work and other finishing details coming next year. Also scheduled on I-635 this fall will be bids for grading and bridges from near 42nd Street and Minnesota Avenue north to 38th Street near Leavenworth Road. An additional project scheduled for bids at Salina will be clearing, grubbing, and fencing of I-635 rights-of-way from the Johnson-Wyandotte County line north 2.6 miles to the Santa Fe yards.

Up for construction on the primary system in Sedgwick County is a new two-lane section of K-96 which will diagonal from Mt. Hope, southeast 11 miles to Maize. The diagonal is in the corridor considered during the 1967 legislative session for a turnpike route from Wichita to Hutchinson and northwest. A project in Reno County also on K-96 calls for .2 mile of grading at the intersection of K-96 with US-50 south of Hutchinson.

At McPherson bids will be taken for a four-lane divided facility on US-56 to connect with I-35W east of the city. The project will begin on present US-56 (Kansas Avenue) at Eshelman Street in south McPherson and extend east to Eby where the route will divide to travel east to the Interstate, then continue on FAS 319. The extreme east end of the project will be two-lane construction. Twin bridges will carry traffic over the Rock Island Railroad tracks located at the east McPherson city limits.

Maintenance-type work will include painting of 14 bridges in Chase, Jewell, McPherson, Mitchell, Ottawa, Republic, Washington, Coffey, Miami, and Neosho Counties.

The Mess We Are In
I am quite amused by the letters pro and con in Grass & Grain since May 2. May I ask how come the farmers and farm organizations cannot get along? How come no one wants to admit that agriculture and our country are in trouble? I do not belong to any farm organization but I can tell you we don't look out (it's too late now) we will find ourselves with emess my grandparents away from in the old coun-

from the G&G Area
try 85 years ago. One of my grandparents came from Germany and the other three grandparents came from Czechoslovakia. I still remember why they left the old country and now we are having the same thing rubbed under our noses. I attended a meeting in Abilene two months ago and the speaker said, "I don't care if you are a Democrat or a Republican, or if you are a Catholic, Lutheran, Hebrew, you are still a bunch of idiots for not realizing the situation we are in."

Dim Look In Wheat Country

The area south and west of Wichita contains many of the state's counties with largest wheat acreages — Sumner, Harper, and Reno — and these are among the parts of the state with the worst wheat prospects. Here, a 40-man crops tour in Sedgwick County finds little to cheer about. County agent Harold Fogleman (right) shows earth cracks, a result of the drouth which may cut yields to less than 10 bushels per acre in an area which normally expects 25 to 30 bushel yields.

Shawnee Milk Group To Vote On Another Alliance

TOPEKA — Shawnee Milk Producers Assn. members will meet Wednesday, May 31, to vote whether to join in a proposed intrastate cooperative marketing association.

William J. Rankin, manager of the 275-member association, declined comment on the reasons for establishing the proposed Mid-America Dairyman Inc.,

until the membership votes.

Similar associations which already have elected to join the cooperative are the Nemaha Cooperative Creamery Assn. and the Pure Milk Producers Assn. of Greater Kansas City, Inc.

The St. Joseph (Mo.) Milk Producers Assn. would join in the co-op if their members, and Shawnee association members, elect to join the organization.

Kansas operations have been at Newton but that plant is being discontinued.

Manhattan Tech School To Open

General Farm Favor For Trade Agreement

May 30, 1967

The nation's leading farm organizations responded to the Kennedy Round tariff cuts with praise and scattered reservations.

The most exuberant reception came from the National Grange and its president, Herschel D. Newsom, who participated in steering committee and general session meetings in Geneva. Mr. Newsom predicted that the new world trade agreement will raise U. S. exports of agricultural products to $10 billion a year over the next three years.

from current annual levels of $7 billion. Mr. Newsom called the final package "the greatest collection of trade expansion agreements ever assembled."

The National Farmers Union said the tariff cuts would prove "helpful" to American agriculture and praised the separate agreement on world grain prices as "providing substantial guarantees against low prices." The grain agreement would raise the minimum price of hard red winter wheat on the world market to $1.73 a bushel from the current floor price of $1.50 a bushel. Tony T. Dechant, president of the Farmers Union, said the union would have preferred a 40-cent increase in the floor price for wheat, but added that the union "supports the compromise in the belief that it is a step forward promoting international trade and strengthening the domestic wheat market."

The American Farm Bureau Federation complained that the U. S. "wasn't successful in obtaining meaningful concessions" on major agricultural products now hampered in export by variable duties levied on them by Common Market nations. These products include wheat, feed grains, rice, red meats, dairy products, and some fruits, the Farm Bureau said. The bureau added that "significant increases in industrial imports" would benefit farmers and ranchers by reducing their equipment costs.

Although few details of what agricultural products will be affected by the new agreements have been announced, the Farm Bureau said reductions averaging 25% have been agreed on for such U. S. exports at tallow, tobacco, soybeans, turkeys and certain fruits and vegetables.

The Farm Journal, an independent trade magazine published in Washington, denounced the trade agreement in its June issue and warned that tariffs levied on U. S. exports by Common Market nations would go up, not down, as a result of the Geneva accord. In an editorial, the magazine said the nation's farmers "were abandoned by their government in Geneva."

Once an Indian mission, a boys boarding school, a 4-year liberal arts college, and since 1931 the graduate theological seminary for St. Louis University, the school at St. Marys, Ks., will be no more, and about 200 graduates came back last week to see the campus. One of the familiar sights: the Immaculata Chapel.

Come in and find out for yourself.

USED CARS

Because of the unusually enthusiastic response to this New Oldsmobile volume sales push, we can offer one of the nicest selections we've ever had of late model trade-ins. Next to owning a new Olds, is driving a Ronald Rice used car.

Cattle were steady to higher on all classes, and we sold more cattle than we expected. Regardless of the fall-off during the harvest season, YOU CAN DEPEND ON THIS BARN OPERATING WITHOUT INTERRUPTION EVERY SATURDAY. This is a service to our patrons, and we mean to keep our service best for you.
