Shorthorn Sale Prices Higher

Reflecting the growing influence of the shorthorn breed in the cattle industry, demand was excellent at the annual Kansas State Shorthorn Association's sale.

The sale grossed $39,615, and average bull prices were more than $100 higher than last year, said Bill Scott, Ransom, association secretary.

The 36 bulls averaged $699 per head as buyers from Kansas, Nebraska, Oklahoma and Missouri kept fast-moving bids coming to Burdick auctioneer Lee Remey's chant.

Approximately 200 people, believed to be the largest crowd ever drawn to Hutchinson for a Shorthorn sale, watched as 15 females, 10 steers and 36 bulls were sold.

Top selling bull was the reserve champion, a polled Shorthorn owned by Mitchell's Polled Shorthorn ranch at Dennison. It was purchased by Lloyd Ditmars, Washington, for $1,200.

The champion bull, also polled, was second-high selling bull, bid at $1,100 by buyer Marshall Stauffer, Madison. It was consigned by Earl Fieser and Sons, Norwich.

Mitchell's Polled Shorthorns also made their mark as one of their steers hit the top selling list, bringing $415. It was purchased by Arnold Ott.

Kremlin, Okla., breeders Don and Pat Stout had the top selling female. Ralph Stover, Jet, Okla., bid $1,200 for the cow and calf. Average price

International Grain Trade Looks For Information

Rod Turnbull
Kansas City Board of Trade
KANSAS CITY—An indication of a world-wide trend toward the dissemination of more information about grain supplies is seen in a report from the International Wheat Council in London.
The council is the administrative agency of the International Wheat Agreement.
Since the big sales to the Soviet Union, it has become apparent the Department of Agriculture is placing more emphasis on providing information on world supplies of wheat and other grains. This policy is in response to demand from farmers and others who almost daily find themselves far more interested than previously in the wheat trade.
Presumably, the same sort of interest has prompted the International Wheat Council to step up its informational activities on a world-wide basis. In fact, in a letter to the Kansas City Board of Trade, J. H. Parotte, executive secretary of the council, explains that for the present, at least, monthly reviews of the world market will be issued. Later, he advises, when and if things quiet down, the reviews may be issued at 2-monthly and 3-monthly intervals.

The International Wheat Council issued a review September 18. A second, and the one on which Parotte comments, was released October 18. These reviews differ from USDA reports only in that they give additional information on other countries and emphasize cost of imports and in particular ocean freight costs.
One thing that becomes very apparent in reading the council review is that not only is the actual wheat costing the importing countries more, but also it is costing them more to get it delivered. This applies to wheat from any exporting country, not just the United States.

The International Wheat Council's October 18 report on ocean freight rates included the following comments:
"Freight rates on all routes and for every commodity have continued an upward trend. Rates for vessels loading in the Great Lakes (in the US) have been influenced not only by an increased demand for tonnage, but by higher insurance costs and the need to load and sail before the anticipated closure by ice during the winter months, which usually starts about December 10. Since September 20, charterers have had to concede almost daily increases which have been asked by ship owners, and by October 17, most rates were from $3 to $5 a ton higher. Congestion at loading and discharging ports in a number of areas have also tended to harden the rates because of sale commitments and the need to attract suitable tonnage.

"By October 17, rates to Antwerp-Rotterdam-Amsterdam had risen to $6 from the U.S. Gulf, $5.25 from St. Lawrence and nominally 5.50 pounds from Australia, and by comparison with the rates on September 20, showed increases of $1.65, $1.50 and 1.50 pounds per ton respectively—Charterers to the Soviet Union Black Sea ports have had to concede even larger increases, with vessels loading at the Gulf making $9.50 and in the St. Lawrence $8.75, both rates showing a $2.50 increase from September 20 to October 17.
"With the entry of the People's Republic of China into the freight market, there has been more competition for vessels loading in Canadian and United States ports for the Far East. For similar sized vessels loading in St. Lawrence for China, the rates appreciated during one week from four pounds to 4.30 pounds and then to 4.50 pounds. In a number of instances, the terms of voyage charters have been amended to hide an obvious increase in freight rates per ton. An example of this is where the normal fixing discharge term is, say, 1500 tons per day, and terms have been amended to 'days purposes' which could, in certain circumstances, halve the permitted time allowed to discharge before demurrage becomes payable.

"It is also reported that the People's Republic of China has purchased a number of handy-sized vessels as one way of lessening the immediate demand in both the voyage and time-chartering markets. This would at the same time give freight cover for a longer period, with flexibility of movement and usage."
These comments from the International Wheat Council are concrete evidence of how the huge world trade in grain is affecting ocean shipping, and, in face, international economies.
Export prices, the wheat council report states, have continued to be dominated by developments in the United States, which took the important step of removing its export payments (subsidy) Sept. 22. This brought about an immediate increase in the export prices of U.S. wheats. World export prices also increased. Import prices of wheat, the report continues, in recent weeks have tended to follow the movement of prices on US futures markets.
In its Sept. 18 report, the council in London forecast world trade in wheat this marketing year would total between 62 and 64 million tons. In its Oct. 18 report, it raises its prediction to between 63 and 65 million tons. Its estimate of world production at 296 million tons remains the same. This figure excludes production in the People's Republic of China.

It is significant that USDA spokesmen now are estimating US wheat exports at 1.2 billion bushels, which is an increase of about 75 million bushels over mid-September forecasts and compares with the 632 million bushel export total last year. The new export figure suggests a carry-over next July 1 of around 460 million bushels or less. The prospective low carry-over is one obvious reason the current July 1973 futures prices close to the $2 level in Kansas City.

October Wheat Prices

The State's farmers received an average price of $1.92 per bushel for wheat at mid-October, moderately above the previous month and sharply above October last year, according to the Kansas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service.

The October price was 9 cents higher than a month earlier and 60 cents above a year earlier. The Kansas October wheat price was 3 cents above the U.S. average and 8

Wheat prices by grades at mid-October were $1.93 for No. 1, $1.91 for No. 2, $1.90 for No. 3 and an average of $1.86 for No. 4 and lower grades. Country grain buyers in Kansas indicated about 82 percent of the wheat purchased graded No. 1, while 17 percent graded No. 2, and 1 percent graded No. 3 or lower.

Time To Get Landscape Ready For Winter

Recent cold, damp weather has caused many trees to shed their leaves. Our annuals and perennial flowers have been frosted and no longer dress up the landscape.

This is a good time to begin getting your landscape ready for winter.

Young trees should be wrapped with tree tape before the weather stays cold. The wrap should be applied to the trunk of the trees from the soil line to the first or second lateral branch.

Overlap each turn so that the wrap will cover the bark completely. The bottom turn will not need to be secured if done properly.

Secure the top turn with plastic electrical tape. Tree wrap prevents winter damage caused by sunscald and rabbit feeding on the tender tissues.

Do not prune any of your trees or shrubs this fall. Pruning may stimulate new growth that will be frozen later.

Some trees may need to be anchored with wires or ropes to protect them from wind damage. Any trees that have been planted this year will be protected by guying or staking this winter.

Don't forget to continue watering your trees and shrubs this fall. This is particularly important for evergreen plants. Apply water weekly, until the ground is frozen.

Your lawn will also need some water, especially if you have a cool season lawn. Bluegrass and fescue continue to grow during the fall and may be green until Christmas. If you fertilized properly this fall, you can expect the grass to grow for sometime yet.

The pines in your yard may look a little yellow and some of the needles are falling. This is a natural shedding of the two-year needles and will not damage the plants.

Collect the fallen leaves, old plants from the vegetable garden, and the twigs from the yard. Rather than taking these to the dump, you might add this litter to the compost heap.

New trees may be planted this fall as soon as they are dormant. This is when the leaves have fallen from the trees after a hard freeze. Protect all newly planted trees by wrapping the trunks and staking.

It is also legal to use spotlights when capturing rabbits alive for the purpose of training greyhounds. However, those who take rabbits must have written permission of the Hunters using firearms in conjunction with artificial lights must limit their firearms to nothing larger than a .22 caliber rifle, pistol or a shotgun. Only .22 short or .22 long rim fire cartridges are permitted by law in rifles or pistols. Long rifle ammunition is unlawful when used with spotlights.

Road Hunting Illegal Without Owner's OK

PRATT—One frequently asked question about hunting is whether or not it is legal to hunt from a public roadway in Kansas.

The answer is quite clearly stated in the law and the Kansas Forestry, Fish and Game Commission urges all hunters to be aware of the provisions of this statute.

The law simply states it is illegal to hunt from a public roadway or railroad right-of-way without first having obtained permission to do so from the owner or person in control of the adjoining land. This means the bulk of road hunting which normally occurs is illegal and anyone who does so without permission is leaving himself open to prosecution.

"Most hunters are aware it is illegal to hunt or shoot game from a vehicle. Still, some hunters seem unwilling to pass up this chance to take game," said Fred Warders, assistant director of the Commission.

"Even if a hunter gets out of a car before shooting, he is still in violation of the law if he has not obtained permission from the adjoining landowner," he stated.

Warders pointed out it is potentially dangerous to shoot from or across a roadway, especially if there is any traffic. Occasionally, game is available along road ditches, but for the most part, hunting is much better away from roadways.

The assistant director advised hunters to make more effort in changing their hunting habits this year. Rather than hunting from roadways, hunters are encouraged to go afield thereby increasing their enjoyment of the day's hunt.

FARMERS OUTLOOK

Corn Producers Entered In Largest Sweepstakes

Corn producers participate in what may be the world's largest sweepstakes. They do not buy lottery tickets, but they do invest about $5 billion each year to produce corn. The winners are the farmers who sell their crops for the highest prices.

Of course, selling for the highest price is not entirely a matter of chance. Some farmers do a better job of selling than others, often because they learn more about the market for their grain.

The demand side of the market, particularly export sales, has received much publicity during recent weeks. But the sweepstakes winners may be the farmers who keep one eye on the supply side of the market—especially potential sales of old corn by farmers.

In late September, the USDA forecast total disappearance of corn during this marketing year at 5,300 million bushels. Actual usage will differ from this figure, but probably by no more than 100 million bushels either way. The larger figure would top last year's record disappearance by 6 percent.

In early October, the USDA estimated the new corn crop at 5,266 million bushels—only 5 percent less than the record crop harvested a year ago. This amount would provide 97 percent of market needs, if that total is 5,400 million bushels. Some of the new crop will be put under price-support loans, but most of this corn will be redeemed and sold if prices are 10 to 15 cents above the loan rates.

Any market needs that are not supplied from the new crop will be taken care of by using stocks of older grain. The carryover on October 1 was estimated at 1,119 million bushels—69 percent more than last year. The CCC owned about 155 million bushels, and farmers held 515 million bushels under price-support loans. This left about 450 million bushels of "free" corn for pipeline supplies, or working stocks.

The corn held under loan by farmers included 371 million bushels from the 1971 crop, 86 million bushels from 1970, and 57 million from 1969. A key question for farmers who are trying to win a prize in the Great Corn Sweepstakes is, "How much of this grain is likely to be put on the market?"

The Commodity Credit Corporation will not be a big seller of corn this year. The CCC stocks are relatively small, and their asking prices probably will be too high. The minimum sales prices will be 21.5 cents over the county loan rates through January. Then they will be raised 1.5 cents per month until July, when they will be 30.5 cents over the loan rates.

Farmers, however, are expected to sell a substantial amount of old corn during this marketing year. First, they may sell all, or most, of the 81 million bushels of corn that they now hold under loans in warehouses. The CCC may call these loans at any time and they probably will not be extended beyond May 31.

Second, they may sell some of the 57 million bushels of 1969 corn now held under resale loans on farms. These loans also may not be ex-

Hog Production Will Net Over

Hog production will net farmers well over a million dollars, says Wendell Moyer, University Extension specialist.

"Kansas has the potential and the resources to increase the production of hogs," Moyer said. "That would jump hog production from 3 million to 4 million by the period."

As a reason for the increase, Moyer cited the good markets in Wichita with agents increasing facilities in Kansas City, Great Bend, and Lawrence. He also cited the announcement that Oscar Moller is building a plant at Wamego for more than a million hogs a year. The KSU swine specialist says any younger farmers are entering the business, especially in eastern Kansas. "But the big producing area is the central part of Kansas from Nebraska to the Oklahoma line," he said.

ate Hog Production In 1972 Will Net Over Million Bucks

Hog production will net Kansas farmers well over a million dollars in 1972, says Wendell Moyer, Kansas University Extension swine specialist.

Kansas has the potential—the people and the resources—to increase the production of hogs a full million head in the next five to seven years, Moyer said.

That would jump hog production 3 million to 4 million by the end of the period.

A reason for the increase, Moyer cited the good market for hogs in Wichita with additional increasing facilities at Kansas City, Great Bend and Lawrence. He also cited the announcement that Oscar Mayer is building a plant at Wamego to kill more than a million hogs a year.

The KSU swine specialist said that younger farmers are getting into the business, especially in eastern Kansas.

But the big producing area is in the central part of Kansas extending from Nebraska to the Oklahoma border, he said.

"Hogs do well in Kansas. We get a little hot in summer, but we have found that our producers have taken advantage of foggers, sprinklers, coolers and have insulated the farrowing and nursery houses so they do not get as hot."

"Our open-front, slotted-floor finishing houses have given us good efficiency in gains. These have shown an advantage over open feedlots where farmers soon run out of clean ground and go back to feed floors."

Moyer said confinement feeding of hogs has been better in the finishing of the hogs than in the farrowing pens which sometimes do not operate as well because of poor ventilation.

And Kansas is in a good position as far as hog cholera is concerned. "There were a couple of instances of hog cholera in Osborne County this year, but it does not look as if we would lose our cholera-free status."

Moyer gave credit to the board-testing program and efforts of producers to produce a meat-type hog on the farm.

the barrow show in 1951 which has grown since and shown producers the type of hog wanted for the market.

"Our commercial hog producers are sharp today and know a good meat-type hog and what they produce shows well in the carcass."

Moyer saw an increasing trend toward grade and yield sales basis and added that packers are buying more on merit than before. "This is a good trend."

Moyer said that the feeder pig business is getting to be a sizeable business in Kansas. "Feeder Pig Associations are selling well over 50,000 feeder pigs per year at good prices."

Moyer cited the recent Kansas Feeder Pig sale at the Wichita Union Stockyards where prices averaged $33.80 per pig averaging in the 60-to-70-pound range.

At this price, net income per sow could easily be from $150 to $200 if the sow has good litters, he said.

Moyer is conducting district swine schools throughout Kansas, one to be held Thursday, Nov. 9, at the 4-H encampment building at the state fairgrounds in Hutchinson.

OUR DAILY BREAD

Mrs. Colleen Anderson Of Council Grove, Winner

Winner, Mrs. Colleen Anderson, 112 Park Lane, Council Grove: "I found an easy way for me to make pumpkin pies that your readers might find helpful. To shorten my own way of doing it, I use prepared frozen pie shells, especially if I'm in a big hurry to get it cooking. I use my blender to make the entire filling but one is limited to making one filling at a time. Yet it is so fast many can be made at one time without even washing the blender jar."

PUMPKIN PIE

Put the following ingredients into the blender jar with the eggs and liquids first:

- 2 eggs
- 1 1-pound can (1 1/4 cups) pumpkin
- 3/4 cup brown sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon
- 1/2 teaspoon ginger
- 1/4 teaspoon cloves
- 1 two-thirds cups evaporated milk

Blend at medium speed ("Mix" on mine works fine) about one minute until the mixture is all one golden color. Pour into one 9-inch unbaked pie shell. Bake in hot oven at 425 degrees for 15 minutes. Reduce temperature to 350 degrees. Bake 45 minutes more or till knife inserted in center comes out clean. This will save time for Thanksgiving pies!

Craft Provides Number Of Decorating Possibilities

A craft that has gained popularity with many people is batik, a Japanese word for a method of applying design to fabric. Its possibilities are endless in making clothes or decorating.

It requires the use of wax and fabric dye, material, a brush and a little time.

The first step in batik is to plan the design and color. Select colors that will blend well, since the dyes will mix over each other to form other hues.

Select a white or lightly colored fabric with a close, tight weave that is washable and dyeable. Wash, dry and iron smooth. Place fabric over a layer of foil or waxed paper, stretch taut and secure with thumb tacks to a board.

Making Mobiles Is Fun Pastime For Youngsters

Mobiles are a popular decoration, to make and a creative pastime, especially when cold weather keeps youngsters inside.

To make a paper mobile, you need construction paper, thread, wooden skewers or drinking straws, glue, oil, scissors and a stapler.

Decide what kind of design you want to make. Owls, butterflies, mushrooms, airplanes, cats, and so on make delightful mobiles. For each design, glue two pieces of paper together so sides will be different.

Make five different colored designs and attach thread to the tops to hang on slim, five-inch long wooden skewers. You can also use drinking straws. Suspend the designs at various lengths, making sure they balance the skewers or straws or hang them from a painted wooden embroidery hoop at different lengths.

You can also change materials, using tin can lids, balsa wood, metallic paper, poster board painted and decorated with sequins or make felt figures stuffed with cotton.

Good With Pork

For an interesting accompaniment to pork entrees, make Apple-Potato Scallop.

In a shallow baking pan place a layer of thinly sliced apples. Sprinkle with brown sugar. Top with a layer of frozen French fries. Sprinkle with salt and pepper and drizzle with melted butter or margarine. Bake at 400 degrees for 30 minutes.

Cuticle Care

When drying hands after washing, make it a habit to push back cuticles gently. This helps remove dead skin.

Hide Nicks

Rub small nicks in black wrought iron furniture with a black crayon to camouflage the damaged spot temporarily.

Fish Amuse Shut-In

An aquarium of finny friends is a gift to make a shut-in happy. Watching gaily colored tropical fish or goldfish helps time pass more quickly.

Quick Dry

Use small magnets to hold nylon articles to a shower rod and the garments will dry faster.

Socks Aid In Dusting Blinds

Slip a pair of old socks on your hands when you dust venetian blinds. They allow you to work around the tapes and into the corners of the slats, removing all the dust.

Try To Maintain Appearance During A Cold

Trying to maintain your appearance while you have a cold will help make you feel less miserable.

Forget the old idea that you cannot take a bath when you have a cold. Unless you are running a fever or your doctor advises against it, nothing will do more to raise your spirits, soothe your aching body and clear your head than a long, warm soak.

If you feel it wiser to forego a shampoo, use one of the dry products on the market.

You can even camouflage a cold-nose. Use a blushing powder on your cheeks, chin and forehead to even out your complexion so your nose won't stand out.

LA Finalizes Convention Plans

The Kansas Livestock Association, made up of thousands of Kansas livestock producers and processors, has announced final plans for the group's annual convention to be held Wednesday through Friday, November 29, 30 and December 1 at the Broadview Hotel in Wichita. Jim Per, convention committee chairman from Ashland, said this year's convention will be one of the best. The second annual KLA Industry Trade Show will include twice as many booths this year.

Per said that one of the main reasons for the convention will be to hear Congressman John Melcher, (D) Kansas, who is a veterinarian and is allied with the livestock industry. Congressman Melcher has spent more time on the question of import quotas than nearly any other congressman.

The first day of the convention, Wednesday, will be taken up with committee meetings. As usual, said Per, any KLA member is welcome to attend any of the committee meetings that he desires. The committee meetings will start at 9:30 a.m. and will include the Range and Conservation Committee; Marketing and Transportation; Animal Health; Legislative; Sheep; Tax Committee; the Cattle Promotion Committee. At 1:30 p.m. the committees meeting will be the Tax Committee; the Cattle Promotion Council; Industry Incorporated Council; Beef Cattle Promotion; Resolutions; Pork; and Brand committees.

Grand Opening of the KLA

Industry Trade Show will feature thirty-four firms, manufacturers or distributors. They include everything from scales and waterers, to health products and commodity futures. The trade show will be open during the convention from Wednesday evening until Friday afternoon.

The first general session will be Thursday morning at ten. Kalo A. Hineman, KLA president from Dighton will give the President's Address at this time. Also at this session will be the address by Congressman Melcher. Following the first general session will be the annual luncheon sponsored by the 14 Production Credit Associations of Kansas. This luncheon will be followed by district meetings of all twelve KLA districts.

John Trotman, Montgomery, Alabama, president of the American National Cattlemen's Association, will give the main address at the second general session of the convention at 3:00 p.m. Trotman's talk will concern the growing impact of the consumer as a political reality and its relation to the cattle industry. He calls his talk "THE COWBOY AND THE CONSUMER". The Friday morning general session will begin at 10:00 a.m. and will feature a consumer dialogue. The National Livestock and Meat Board will present a program designed to shed some light on the attitudes of consumers towards beef, meat, food in general, the livestock industry and the price of meat.

The Kansas State University

Alumni and Friends Luncheon will take place at noon. The second general session of the day will start at 1:30 p.m. and will be the open business session of the convention including the election of officers.

The main address on Friday afternoon will be given by Judge Philip Gilliam, Judge of the Juvenile Court in Denver.

The final event on the convention program is the Stockmen's Dinner and Dance Friday evening starting at 6:30 p.m. The dinner will feature remarks by Governor Robert Docking. Jerry Peterson, manager of the Circle E Ranch at Potwin, will be the Master of Ceremonies. Governor Robert Docking will be at the convention to make some remarks, as will Cindy Lee Sikes, Miss Kansas from Wichita.

The evening's entertainment will be Rex Allen, "Mister Cowboy". Allen has made 35 movies, had a number of hit records, and narrated over 80 Walt Disney specials. The Stockmen's Dance will follow at 9:30 with the music of Norman Lee and his orchestra.

In addition, the Kansas CowBelles will be holding their annual convention Thursday and Friday. The Kansas Junior Livestock Association will meet on Friday. The Kansas Sheep and Wool Growers Association will have their annual meeting Wednesday afternoon at 1:30 p.m. Also, the Kansas Livestock Auction Association will have breakfast meetings Thursday and Friday.

ARNOLD WITTORFF, Secretary - Sale Mgr., Inman, Kansas 67546

Dodge City, said a 10 percent increase in the country's wheat acreage, by this year's production standards, would produce an additional 150 million bushels of wheat nationwide.

An increase like that could depress wheat prices regardless of future sales like the 400 million bushels sold to the Russians this year, he said.

"And don't forget," Crane said, "that wheat isn't in Russia yet. There's still a job here to do."

Crane said the wheat increase is due to more factors than just the Russian grain deal.

He said, "In our travels we observe more wheat planting due to good moisture conditions. In some places the ground was too wet to plant milo last spring. Now the acreage is being planted to wheat."

"Some producers in the eastern half of the state, where moisture permits, are planting wheat after milo on the same ground. We strongly disapprove of that."

Creel Brock, administrator of the Kansas Wheat Comm., in Hutchinson, said more farmers might have planted more wheat this fall, but they became aware of the export situation too late.

He said the price situation didn't become an apparent longterm upward trend until late in August. A lot of farmers thought price increases were temporary when the first of the Russian purchases was announced in July, Brock said. It was too late to prepare the ground then, he said.

Brock said there might be increases in wheat planted on ground normally left for summer fallow. He said western Kansas farmers normally rotate land, leaving part of it in rough cultivation to preserve moisture for next year's crop.

But the summer fallow land can also be quickly prepared for planting, Brock said. He warned that planting the normally fallow land could deplete moisture for next season's wheat. Soil in the eastern half of the state can't be prepared so quickly. When it isn't used for grain, it may be in another crop like alfalfa, he said.

Roy Frederick, extension economist at Kansas State University, said eastern Kansas crops like wheat, soybeans, corn or milo can substitute for each other according to which is more profitable.

He said the wheat may be used as a "hedge" by grazing cattle on it, then growing it out for grain or tearing it up for feed grains next spring.

J. E. Pallesen, state agricultural statistician, said a recent crop survey, compiled from reports of county agents in the 105 counties, indicated the wheat planting in the state was 98 percent complete.

He said his office won't have a report on whether more or less wheat was planted until December.

Hard red winter wheat planted in the fall is raised almost exclusively in Kansas. Other areas of the nation plant some spring wheat, which is planted in the spring.

Most of the wheat left to plant is in eastern Kansas where some fields have been too wet to get to, Pallesen said. He estimated the wheat planting in western Kansas must be

Wheat Commission Speakers To Cover Recent Grain Deal At Annual Meeting

Some of the questions wheat producers have been asking about grain sales to Russia and wheat marketing for several months will be answered by two authorities at an annual meeting of the Kansas Wheat Commission in Hays Nov. 16, Creel Brock, Administrator for the Commission. Brock has announced that two of the speakers for the evening dinner meeting at Hays will be Frank G. Knight, associate general sales manager, Export Marketing Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture; and James Good, representative of Continental Grain Company, one of the exporters involved in the Russian sales.

The two speakers will discuss recent grain trade activities and market development in foreign countries, Brock said. Following their remarks, there will be time for those attending the meeting to ask questions.

Brock emphasized that it is very important for those who wish to attend the dinner meeting to make advance reservations. "We would like to have anyone who wishes to attend the meeting either call us collect or drop us a post card, telling us how many meals to prepare."

The Commission telephone is 316-662-0273, and the mailing address is: Annual Meeting, Kansas Wheat Commission, 1021 North Main Street, Hutchinson, Kansas 67501.

The annual meeting will begin at 1:30 p.m., in the auditorium of the Fort Hays Branch Experiment Station. Those attending will hear reports on Commission activities in research and promoting wheat as feed and food, and in overseas market development. The evening program will begin at 6:30 p.m., in the Student Union at Fort Hays Kansas State College, with dinner. Gov. Robert Docking will be on the program and accept the report of the Commission.

marketing points for farmers—already appear to be 75 to 80 percent filled with wheat in some areas, including Kansas and Missouri, as the fall feed-grain and soybean harvest gets into full swing, the report said.

Thus, unless some wheat is transferred to terminals or to port facilities, the fall harvest could mean some local elevators will have to turn away corn and soybeans.

Also, the report said, congestion at ports—particularly for wheat moving from the Gulf—is the potential threat. Unless ships are loaded and can move out promptly, port storage facilities will become glutted and the pipeline plugged.

"Informed opinion is that the ability of grain elevators at ports to handle increased grain sales—was already strained in October, par-

Grain Exporting Bottleneck Has USDA Worried

The Agriculture Department, citing rail transportation and oceanport problems, said a "potential bottleneck" exists in the export movement of a record $10 billion worth of U.S. farm products this fiscal year.

"The end of October found a mounting sense of urgency over the problem of transporting U.S. grain and soybeans to ports for shipment to markets in foreign countries," the department's Foreign Agricultural Service said.

Back of the situation is the huge sale of $1.2 billion worth of grain and soybeans to the Soviet Union, plus exports increases to traditional foreign markets such as Japan and Western Europe.

For the year ending next June 30, the report said, U.S. farm exports will total 83.4 million metric tons, compared with the previous high of 62.1 million in 1971-72.

Of the 21.3 million additional tons expected this season, Russian purchases of U.S. grain will total about 19 million.

The report was written by John O. Gerald and T. Q. Hutchinson, marketing specialists in the Economic Research Service of USDA. Whether the "potential bottleneck" turns into a full-fledged crisis, they said, depends how efficiently railroads utilize boxcars in moving grain to ports.

"Informed opinion is that, if freight cars are made available expeditiously, country elevators can readily handle both domestic and export needs in 1973," the report said.

But country elevators—initial

Brazil Added To List Of Wheat Crop Disasters

Rains and frost that have wiped out 60 per cent of Brazil's wheat crop, plus Russian purchases that have pushed up world prices, will probably cost Brazil $120 million, say experts here and in Porto Alegre.

Agricultural expert Antonio Carlos Abbot of the Bank of Brazil's office in Porto Alegre, the capital of Brazil's wheatland, says the effects of heavy continual rains have been "calamitous."

The result, he said, is that Brazil will have to go to the world markets looking for 1.5 million tons of wheat more than it expected to have to buy. And it will have to pay prices inflated by Russia's massive purchase of 20 million tons from the United States.

Abbot and a team of specialists have been touring Brazil's wheatlands to prepare a detailed survey of this winter's damage.

The survey just completed shows that instead of the 2.5 million tons Brazil expected to produce "we'll be lucky if production tops one million tons," explained Abbot.

Brazil will need about 3.5 million tons to feed its people, and had been planning to import one million. Now it will have to import 2.5 million at a time when prices have jumped from $60 a ton to $87 a ton.

Wheat experts here feel the price may drop somewhat before Brazil has to make its purchases, but how much it will drop will depend on the Soviet Union's purchases next year.

However, marketing specialists here do not expect the price to fall much below $80 a ton. At this price, the rain and frost and the Russian interest in the market will cost Brazil $120 million.

Brazil will probably look to the United States for wheat to make up this country's shortfall, say marketing experts here.

Only a few years ago, Brazil used to import almost all its wheat, but recently, under government incentives, production has risen rapidly. The government's aim is to encourage Brazilian farmers to make this country self-sufficient in wheat so it will not have to spend valuable foreign exchange on imports. However, despite the gains made by Brazilian farmers, self-sufficiency is not likely to be reached in the near future because of competition with other crops for land in the wheat belt. In the areas where wheat could be grown, much of the land is under rice, corn or beans.

Limiting Beef Imports To Cause Herd Buildup?

Limiting beef imports on a quarterly basis, a plan which has received attention from the cattle industry and some members of Congress, would result in a U.S. buildup of herds and lower prices for producers by 1980, according to the Agriculture Department economists.

The prediction is included in a study by the Economic Research Service of a number of possible alternatives to the existing apparatus for restriction of beef imports.

Current controls, provided under a 1964 quota law, were suspended by President Nixon last June for the remainder of this year. The door is opened to more imports, mainly from Australia, in an effort to curb meat price increases.

No decision has been made, according to USDA officials, on whether the quotas will be suspended in 1973. The basic law, however, is still in effect and can be used at the discretion of the president.

Producer representatives, mainly American National Cattlemen's Association, have objected to the sent quota mechanism which has an annual adjustment of quotas on domestic beef reduction.

recent years, imports have been at around 7 or 8 percent of the cattle output.

onomists set up theoretical models using recent cattle market prices, ran the information through computers and arrived at what they said might happen under several alternative plans.

The such plan involved use of quarterly quotas aimed at setting imports for the entire 12 months at 4 percent of the U.S. domestic output the year before.

The idea, according to supporters, the quarterly plan, is to forestall any seasonal imports which can use U.S. cattle prices to slump. Leading imports evenly over an entire year, goes the argument, will give chances for price breaks.

Cargill Claims Lost Half Million In Grain Deal

A major U.S. grain exporter says it lost about $661,000 on a 2-million-ton wheat sale to the Soviet Union last summer.

Cargill, Inc., said it was breaking a 107-year-old tradition by revealing details of its transactions because of allegations that exporters reaped windfall profits on the grain sales.

Democrats, including George McGovern presidential nominee, claimed that some exporters received advance information from the Agriculture Department before the sales were announced publicly by the Nixon administration.

Fred M. Seed, Cargill president, said there had been "massive and severely damaging distortions of fact" about the sales by six U.S. companies.

Cargill released a 14-page report confirmed by a national auditing firm with tables detailing its wheat deals from June 1 to Oct. 1. They showed that Cargill had lost nine-

Q-A On Cutting Firewood

QUESTION— Could you give me advice as to the best procedure for cutting firewood to be used in my fireplace? I have a small light weight chain saw for this project.

ANSWER— Many homeowners have light-weight saws for cutting firewood, reports Gary Naughton, Extension forester at Kansas State University.

There are several things that one should keep in mind. First, determine in advance your needs, such as how much fuel you wish to cut on each expedition. You should have a suitable vehicle for transportation. Save time and money by gathering as much firewood as possible on each trip.

Request permission of the landowner prior to going onto any property to cut wood. Cut trees that are designated by the landowner.

Grass & Grain

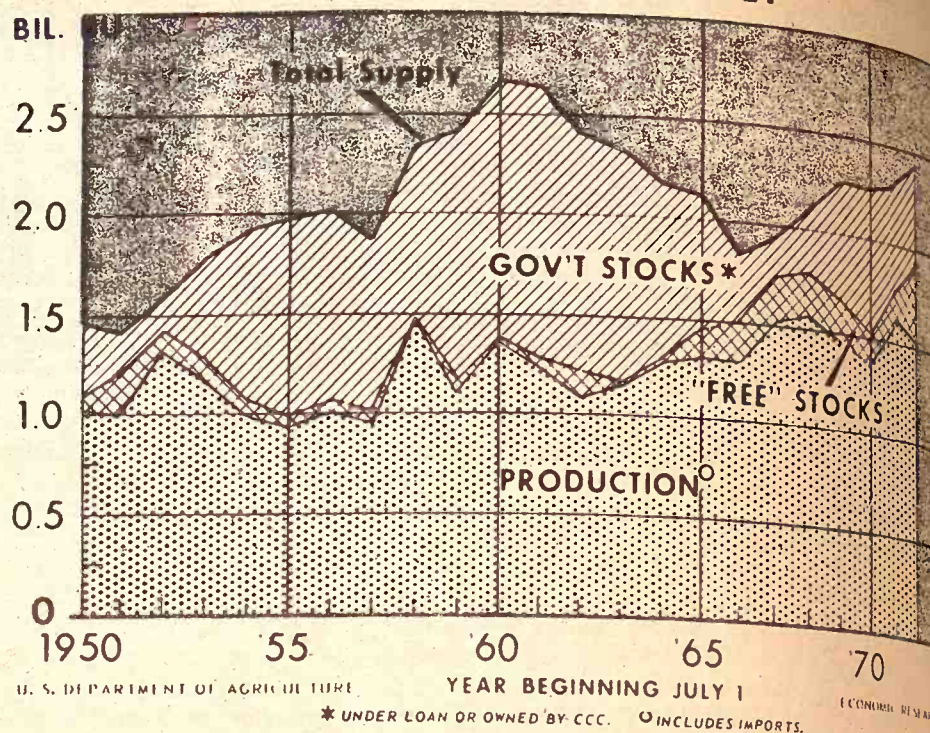

November 14, 1972

You are helping the timber owner by cleaning up his land for him while gathering some of this valuable firewood for yourself.

Cut firewood into links that can be conveniently carried and stored in your vehicle. Firewood initially cut into dimensions of your fireplace will save having to cut it a second time.

Observe a good neighbor practice when cutting firewood and leave the area as neat as possible, advises Naughton. Limbs and branches taken off while trimming the trees make good firewood. High stumps may also be used for firewood by first quartering the standing stump vertically with your saw and then cutting horizontally to the desired length until reaching the ground level. Multiple firewood chunks will result from this process.

GOT SOME OF IT CUT

Fred Rundus, Blue Rapids, was cutting milo last Wednesday even though he had to drive through mudholes. With all the rain we have had in the Grass and Grain area it may take rice combines to get back in the fields. Rundus had the help of his Uncle, Ernest Davis, Frankfort, who was driving the truck. He had about half of his 300 acres of milo cut and what he's got in the elevator has averaged around 90 bushels.

Farm Building Plan Important Dollar Wise

The way to squeeze the last dollar out of a new farm building is to plan its construction wisely and then work your plan.

Leo Wendling, Extension agricultural engineer at Kansas State University, says planning should start with the question: "What do I expect this building to do for me?"

For example, if your goal is to produce a certain number of hogs per year, the size of the farrowing house will depend upon the number of farrowings times the number of sows per farrowing. The management program also affects the size of the growing and finishing facilities.

If the farmer's goal is to reduce labor in feed handling, watering and manure removal, figure in these labor-saving features. Environmental control features also should be considered for maximizing livestock performance.

To meet production needs, a building should be designed for only one or two purposes. The old general purpose barn of yesterday was used to house milk cows, beef cattle, feed storage, horses, and perhaps a few hogs.

Today, the functional requirements of a slotted floor swine finishing house are different than those of a machinery storage building.

Yet, the finishing building can be designed for conversion to allow for an enterprise change on the farm. Do this by building a clear span structure so changes in functional use can be made inexpensively.

Keep abreast of new trends in buildings as they relate to management.

For example, Wendling says, you wouldn't want to build a double corn crib with overhead grain storage if you knew you would eventually go a picker-sheller. With a picker-sheller, you'd want to store the corn in round steel dryer bins. Today's dairyman probably doesn't want to build a barn with a haymow because the extra money would be more wisely spent for a silo to store forage.

Delaying construction can be costly. Waiting another year, hoping prices will go down, could mean higher costs, plus losing the building's productivity for a year.

Stored Pesticides Create Fire, Explosion Hazards

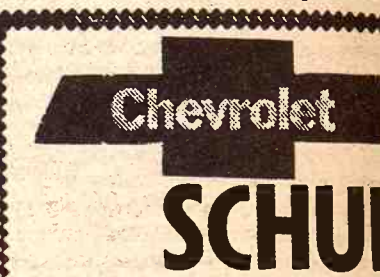

Persons storing pesticides on the farm should be aware of the potential fire and explosion danger.

Three principal hazards are created by pesticides when exposed to high temperatures: explosions, fires, and poisonings. Frank Bieberly, Kansas State University Extension agronomist and Chemical Task Force coordinator, reminded people who store pesticides on farms that:

—dust explosions can occur when pesticides in powdered form become dispersed in air.

—vapor explosions are possible when a flammable powder pesticide is mixed with a combustible solvent and sprayed in atomized form in fogging machines, and especially heated guns.

—cylinder and drum explosions

GRAIN EXPORT Figures

In the short run, American farmers, consumers and so on are likely to lose more than 50 percent of the direct result of the way the heat deal was handled.

In the long run, many implications of the trade—a glaring knowledge about the need for the Russians, even the possibility of a small shortage in the United States—Russians are, reportedly, shipping flour to Hanoi. Questions about the possible overhaul of the U.S. corn export system.

First, the short run. There are more than 30 companies in the wheat industry with pleas for the price commission. They have been arguing since the boom in the price of a bushel, produced in large part that the Russians bought a quarter of our wheat crop at the price of a pound of wheat to go up one cent and more.

According to Richard W. resident of the American Association, the mechanics of the increase are fairly simple. They make approximately 40 more for each 100-pound bushel of bread from the wheat.

Because the Russians bought 10,000,000 bushels of wheat the hard red winter wheat usually used for making bread, the next spring when the market bread shelves are temporarily empty.

A recent industry report of the nation's bread wheat netting at 125 million bushels of wheat, we can see only 12 bushels in the pipeline," he said. If the scarcity comes next year, the harvest of next year's crop, it may drive prices up further, he added. Other cent a loaf.

Then there is the matter of the matter. On Oct. 10, General M. on approval from the press for a wholesale release that will, according to the next spring when the market bread shelves are temporarily empty.

The decision outlawing bingo

The court said the state contended that slot machines are not games of chance "with comparable characteristics" under the meaning

The court dismissed the appeal of the appellees who had other arrangements be made cents tax could well be taken on wheat sold. In that case wheat would be taxed on a part or all of the 70 cents however, contemplates payment for the right to play and contemplates award of prizes. This is apparent from the statute provides 'Con- sideration shall not include sums of money paid' to take part in a bingo game and provides the money paid for the benefit of tax exempt organizations.

"As we refer to bingo in this opinion it is labeled in accord with the statutes as a game for which consideration is paid for the right to participate."

"The defendants contend these statutes should be strictly construed against the state and when so construed a slot machine falls within the definition."

The court said the state contended that slot machines are not games of chance "with comparable characteristics" under the meaning of the law and exempt from the anti-gambling law. The court opinion written by Justice Owsley, said whether or not a bingo game is comparable to a slot machine cannot stand on the constitution. In another case, the court upheld a law prohibiting the sale of a slot machine. Blissing, of the Kansas State Bar Association, said that the state is violating a constitutional provision by operating a slot machine. MORE THAN ONE ANGLE IN SELLING WHEAT

In the October 31 edition of Grass and Grain the Farmers Union spoke of lower wheat prices in the 1973 harvest and a KU professor stated that farmers could look forward to more exports which could keep the price of 1973 wheat up.

There is one more thing we can keep in mind under the A.S.C.S. program now. There is a 70 cents a bushel tax on wheat sold in the elevator. This program understand runs out in 1973. Should other arrangements be made this 70 cents tax could well be taken from the wheat sold. In that case wheat might go up a part or all of the 70 cents.

Before a person sells his wheat he should read not only one side but the other side as well, and not get sold short.

Abilene FLB Directors Elected To Another Term

ABILENE—Dean A. Romberger of Solomon and George A. Pomona Reservoir Herbicide Damage Being Blown Out Of Proportion

LYNDON—Don LacKamp, Osage County extension agent, is concerned that herbicide damage to trees at Pomona Reservoir is being blown out of proportion.

He said the aerial spraying of nearby pasture land has developed into a crucifixion of another good herbicide product.

LacKamp said several acres of primarily sumac, hedge and elm trees at the reservoir were defoliated by a drifting mist of 2, 4, 5-T pasture herbicide that settled over the area. The drift of 2, 4, 5-T, used for brush control in grass, came as a result of misapplication of the spray, LacKamp said.

He said charges leave the impression that pesticides are ruining a large part of the Kansas landscape.

Ralph Dennis, resident engineer at Pomona Reservoir, said a report by the Kansas State Forester to the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers on the pesticide damage was made, but nobody knows the actual extent of the damage yet. Dennis said the trees may come back to life next spring or they may be dead.

A pesticide is any chemical substance used in killing a pest—for instance, a herbicide to kill weeds and an insecticide to kill insects.

Dennis said, "There was definitely serious damage done at the lake and up on 110-mile Creek where another damage incident is still under investigation."

"It's difficult to tell the extent of the damage because of the drifting nature of the spray. Two to three trees to the acre may be damaged in one place and 75 trees to the acre damaged in another place."

Dennis said the trees are immediately defoliated by 2, 4, 5-T and it is impossible to confuse the damage with a disease like Dutch Elm disease.

Dennis said significant damage was done to habitat for wild animals.

LacKamp said 2, 4, 5-T wouldn't hurt humans or animals. He pointed out that cattle graze on the same pastures being sprayed. He said in some studies sheep, chickens and cattle were given oral doses of 2, 4, 5-T—as much as 10 doses of 100 milligrams of 2, 4, 5-T per kilogram of animal weight. He said dosages increased from there finally produced some weight loss but that was all.

LacKamp said of the damage at Pomona: "Several acres of an undesirable stand of timber is damaged and environmentalists consider a chemical unsafe for use. I might also clarify that the timber at this time can't be considered dead because it's showing signs of possible recovery next year."

LacKamp said neither he nor anybody else could condone improper use of pesticides. He said the requirement under the Kansas Pesticide Use Law for all pesticide applicators to pass rigid examinations for licensing prior to Jan. 1, 1973 hopefully would eliminate the occurrence of pesticide related damages.

Denver Company To Build Soviet Cattle Feedlots

Ceres International Inc., a Denver subsidiary of Ceres Land Co., Sterling, announced that it has completed final negotiations to supply the materials and supervise the construction of three cattle feedlots in the Soviet Union.

The contract is estimated at several million dollars, said Frank H. Seckler, Ceres president. He could not give the exact amount because the contract is based on man hours and time figures over a period of years.

The three lots, different in size, will handle handle 10,000 head in the first; 20,000 head in the second and 30,000 head in the third.

Each lot will have feed mill and storage facilities, transportation equipment, farm equipment and feedyard equipment plus the necessities for growing and harvesting the needed roughages.

Ceres spokesmen said the firm has agreed to train a group of Russian specialists to operate and maintain the feedyards. The training will take place at the Ceres Colorado facilities.

Joe Mollendor of Greeley and Ken

Barr of Rocky Point named to supervise the first feedlot. The survey work scheduled by Nov. 30, the construction is to start.

Small Milking Pump Results In Lost Production

A common error dairymen is the use of a pump that is too small for the milking system. They feel saving money, but lost production resulting from their vacuum system would more than make up for it, advises Ralph I. Extension dairyman at Kansas State University.

That's what is known in the dairy world as penny wise and pound foolish. A vacuum pump that is too small causes no trouble as long as the vacuum controller is working correctly. The heart of the vacuum system is the vacuum pump.

"In reality, a vacuum pump is nothing more than an air compressor which takes air from the atmosphere, compresses it and forces it into the exhaust pipe," Bonewitz.

Most milking systems operate at a vacuum level of 15 inches of mercury. Converted to pressure, it would be about 7 1/2."

This is a relatively low difference and indicates that parts of a vacuum pump are under any heavy load, as of an air compressor developing 150-200 p.s.i. square inch of pressure.

However, a vacuum pump depends on both pressure and volume and what it takes to make up for that's why it takes a relatively small motor to run the vacuum milking system.

Bonewitz warns against reliance on vacuum pump. The number of milking machines in conditions, techniques, and maintenance will cause disaster.

The only valid comparison is their CFM (cubic feet per minute) rating at inlet pressure (either free air or inch air.) Field observations show that the most common operating milking system have vacuum pump capacity of at least 6 CFM of free air or 15-inch air per milking.

A dairyman should have a milking system in operation when the vacuum fluctuates, drop off, vacuum fluctuates, severe, milk lines flood, excessive, milk enters in spurts, there is a slow operating vacuum level, air leak, milk flows from pipeline unsteadily, or slow.

The system should be with an air flow meter should not be used more than 10 milking, advises dairyman.

Small Milking Pump Results in Lost Production

A common error made by dairymen is the use of a vacuum pump that is too small for their milking system. They feel they are saving money, but lost production resulting from their inadequate vacuum system would pay for a dozen or more adequate pumps each year, advises Ralph Bonewitz, extension dairyman at Kansas State University.

That's what is known in dairying as penny wise and pound foolish. A vacuum pump that is too large causes no trouble as long as the vacuum controller is working correctly. The heart of the power system is the vacuum pump.

"In reality, a vacuum pump is nothing more than an air compressor which takes air from the pipeline, compresses it to atmospheric pressure, and blows it out the exhaust pipe," explains Bonewitz.

Most milking systems operate at a vacuum level of 15 inches of mercury. Converted to pounds per square inch, it would amount to about 7 1/2.

This is a relatively low pressure difference and indicates that the parts of a vacuum pump are not under any heavy load, as are parts of an air compressor capable of developing 150-200 pounds per square inch of pressure work.

However, a vacuum pump depends on both pressure and volume and what it lacks in pressure, it makes up for in volume. That's why it takes a relatively large motor to run the vacuum pump on a milking system.

Bonewitz warns against total reliance on vacuum pump ratings of the number of milking units a particular pump will handle. Difference in conditions, operating techniques, and maintenance of equipment will cause discrepancies.

The only valid comparison of pumps is their CFM (cubic feet per minute) rating at a specified inlet pressure (either free air or 15-inch air.) Field observations have shown that the most satisfactory operating milking systems usually have vacuum pump capacity of at least 6 CFM of free air or 12 CFM of 15-inch air per milking unit.

A dairyman should suspect his milking system is overloaded or malfunctioning when milking units drop off, vacuum fluctuations are severe, milk lines flood, foaming is excessive, milk enters receiver jar in spurts, there is a slow return to operating vacuum level following an air leak, milk flows from unit to pipeline unsteadily, or milking is slow.

The system should be checked with an air flow meter. Liners should not be used more than 1,500 milkings, advises the KSU dairyman.

Oppenheimer Sale Payday for Kansas, Missouri Ranchers

October 31st, was payday for several Missouri and Kansas ranchers and the investors behind them providing capital for expansion. The event was the third annual "Oppenheimer" auction of choice steer and heifer calves. The calves were owned by clients of Oppenheimer Industries, Inc., a Kansas City management firm.

3,434 head of Hereford, Angus and crossbred calves brought $675,853.14 at the auction center of the Kansas City Stockyards Company, Inc. The average weight per head was 370 lbs. and the average price paid per hundred, $53.14. Lightweight 227 lb. calves from the Taylor Ranch of Lancaster, Missouri brought the sale top of $69.00. They were purchased by Mervin Hawthorne of Wilsey, Kansas. Heavier steers and heifers ranged from $55.88 to $47.75 per hundred, depending on weight, condition and appearance.

There was a capacity audience at the Kansas City Stockyards' auction center and buyers were in attendance from all over the United States.

Record Fall Yields Indicated

Record high yields per acre and very large production of major fall harvested crops in Kansas was indicated on November 1, according to the Kansas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service.

The index of production of all crops in this year is 155 percent of the 1957-59 base, 2 points above last year and a new record high.

new records for the State. Slow drying grain and muddy fields the last several weeks have slowed harvest of crops, with sorghum grain and soybeans well behind usual.

Seeding of the 1973 Kansas wheat crop was virtually complete by November 1. Widespread rains in recent weeks helped growth and average.

Yield per acre is expected to reach a record high 63 bushels per acre, compared with the previous record of 56 bushels in 1969. Freezing rain and snow in western areas at the turn of the month caused some lodging of sorghums.

Only 44 percent of the crop was harvested by November 4, sharply behind the 76 percent harvested by this time last year and the ten-year average of 68 percent.

Production of corn is estimated at 122,715,000 bushels, slightly above last year's 120,612,000 bushels, and nearly double the 1961-70 average of 68,379,000 bushels.

Corn yield per acre in Kansas exceeded 100 bushels for the first time in history, with the expected record 101 bushels per acre well above the previous record of 92 bushels set last year.

Corn picking was about 64 percent complete by November 4, moderately behind last year, but in line with the ten-year average.

Soybean production is estimated at a record high 26,040,000 bushels, compared with last year's 17,856,000 bushels and the previous record of 23,925,000 bushels set in 1968.

Yield per acre on November 1 was estimated at 28 bushels per acre, a record high, compared with the previous best of 25 bushels in 1968. Soybean harvest was about two-thirds complete by November 1, slightly behind average.

Other Crops

Production of sugar beets for Kansas is estimated at 613,000 tons, with an average yield per acre of 17.5 tons. Harvest of the crop is nearing completion.

Pasture

On November 1, pasture and range feed condition was 86 percent of normal, down 3 points from last month but highest for the date since 1965. Fall rains provided generally adequate moisture for growth of grass in pastures and ranges.

United States

Sorghum grain production in the United States was forecast at 896 million bushels, virtually the same as in 1971. Corn grain production was estimated at 5,400 million bushels on November 1, down 3 percent from last year's crop of 5,540 million bushels. Production of soybeans was estimated at 1,351 million bushels, 15 percent above last year's crop.

Soybean production is expected to set a new high record of 26 million bushels, sorghum grain production of 230 million bushels is second largest of record, and corn production of 123 million bushels is the largest since 1928.

Yields per acre of sorghum grain at 63 bushels, corn at 101 bushels, and soybeans at 28 bushels were all rooting of the crop.

Pasture and range feed condition on November 1 was the best for the date in seven years, and wheat was providing some grazing for livestock.

On November 1, production of sorghum grain was estimated at 229,950,000 bushels, 2 percent below last year's record high production, but 63 percent above the 1961-70 made of sorghum and corn stalks. Fields where grain harvest was complete. Many stockmen continued to move cattle off summer pastures, but muddy roads in some areas slowed cattle marketing. The wet, cold weather also was hard on some incoming feeder calves.

Muddy Fields Grass & Grain Area

Fertilizer Demand Signals Need For Application Now

An historic expansion in grain exports, combined with a shortage of rail cars and existing pressures of world demand for phosphate fertilizers, signals farmers to act now providing for next year's fertilizer needs.

Edwin M. Wheeler, president of the Fertilizer Institute, urges farmers to make maximum use of all and early winter fertilizer application opportunities. "Even if a farmer can't get all the fertilizer he needs now, he should be able to make up the difference next spring. To put all the eggs in the spring application basket may lead to disappointment, especially if favorable weather delays the 1973 planting season as it did in 1972." The head of the nation's fertilizer industry association said that there continues to be substantial shortage of phosphate materials for domestic use. A combination of heavy world demand and domestic price controls have led to greater-than-normal export shipments of phosphate fertilizers and some high-analysis nitrogen products such as urea and ammonium phosphate.

Wheeler urged farmers to either order fertilizers for delivery and application now, weather and soil conditions permitting—or, at least place orders for spring delivery now.

Research has shown that early planting adds to corn and soybean yields at harvest, he said. "When fertilizer needs have been applied in the fall, farmers are able to plant just as soon as fields are open in the spring."

Booming Farm Production In U.S.

The nation's corn crop, in large part for expanding cattle and production, will be 5,400,390,000 bushels, down only three per cent from last year's record harvest and three per cent more than forecast in October, the Agriculture Department said.

Corn also is a big export item, part of a $1.2 billion grain and soybean purchase this year by the Soviet Union. In all, USDA predicts, farm exports in the fiscal year ending next June 30 will be a record $10 billion, up about one-fourth from 1971-72.

Grain, including more than 400 million bushels of wheat sold to the Soviet Union, is expected to comprise more than $4.3 billion of this season's total export.

There was no new production estimate for the 1972 wheat crop. It was estimated in September at 1.56 billion bushels, down three per cent from the record output in 1971.

The department's first report on winter wheat planted this fall for harvest next year will be issued Dec. 22. It will show the number of acres seeded and a projection for winter wheat output in 1973.

Meantime, based on current surveys, officials said the 1973 wheat crop was off to a good start in most major growing areas. Rains in October helped improve fall seeding prospects in much of the southern Great Plains area, including western Kansas.

Despite heavy demand for corn, the larger November estimate means production will exceed anticipated requirements of 5.3 billion bushels this season by about 100 million bushels.

Consequently, unless larger usage develops, the corn surplus will be larger a year from now. There was a carryover of 1 billion bushels going into the current harvest.

The department's "all-crops" index, based on field conditions Nov. 1, was a record 114 per cent of a 1967 base used for rating production compared with 112 per cent last month.

Producers generally have had more cattle in feedlots this year, reflecting record high peaks in market prices and rising consumer demand for more meat.

Hog farmers, who cut back production this year, are being encouraged by near-record prices and plan to expand this winter and next spring, according to USDA surveys.

In all, the Crop Reporting Board said, total production of livestock feed grains this year—corn, sorghum, oats and barley—is estimated at 198 million tons, down 4 per cent from 1971. The October estimate was 193.5 million tons.

Soybean production, rising in recent years to new records, was put at 1,350,517,000 bushels, up 15 per cent from 1971 and 3 per cent more than in October.

The average corn yield was put at a record 94.5 bushels per acre, compared with 86.8 last year and the October estimate of 92.2 bushels.

Soybean yields were estimated at a record 29.5 bushels per acre, compared with 27.6 last year and 28.7 forecast in October.

Besides wheat, no new production estimates were made for a number

FARM MACHINES & OTHER USED ITEMS & THINGS

Looks like we Americans bought old things last week. We bought ole Dick Nixon. We bought ole Vern Miller again. We bought ole Spiro T. Agnew & ole Pearson again & ole Governor Docking again — so it looks like a good year to be in the used thing business.

See our good ole State Supreme Court judges ruled out bingo. I thought our good ole government was supposed to be providing entertainment for the elderly. Now our black roped rulers in Topeka are taking it away. It would be a good time for the ol folks to go on a protest march. What could be less harmful than bingo. Write your favorite do-gooder & tell him to do good.

Good used rear unloading manure spreader $199. Used 5x12 Blair feed wagon $899. Looks like Dick & his staff should have sent Kissinger in to sign another peace treaty with the Indians at the BIA so it could be broken. Used bureaucratic come-along with cable.

Good used post-election 800 Case combine. Buy now more than ever. Was asking only $995 but due to tax increases forced to raise to $1195.

Don't forget to buy something used this week since we are buying a whole set of used do-dads.

930 Case RC tractor, real fine tractor, priced right $4750. Still have several used 930's, 1030's & 830's left. If our present county system of taxation continues we may soon be out of business so in case watch for our close-out ads.

There are many people in government who seem to think they are there solely to operate the office for the benefit of their prestige & the governmental function. They forget they are there to serve the interests of the people. When they forget this I suggest they be run out, dragged out or pushed out in the same manner federal troops & federal marshals do people in Washington, D.C.

Good ole Farm Hand pusher-stacker, may work or may not, has hyd. pump, $89. Used No. 1000 Case combine in fair to good condition, runs OK & looks pretty good, $999. Good ole Johnson vintage 600 Case combine, bout same shape as LBJ, might have belonged to him at one time. Needs some repairs, $999 we furnish parts, you put 'em on.

I understand reason the Russian wheat deal went so smooth Kissinger has 10,000 acres of wheat in California a Washington, so he is really a farmer at heart.

Used Miller type bingo sets, going for free. With all the old things coming back in, we had better get ready for used market & start building up our stock. With Spiro already planning for '76 we could be in real trouble. So plan to buy something new this week, may be your last chance for several years since we are starting to build old things again.

970 Case tractor, 1200 hours use $6495

Postal Dept. is now a hit & miss proposition. This Saturday I had a phone call from Washington D.C. from a Steve Miller, Postal Dept., explaining the horse & buggy postal dept. to me. He says they are doing away with the buggies but keeping the horses.

Corn Growers Get Commercial Storage Break

Farmers who cannot find local commercial warehouse storage for newly harvested corn this fall will be able to get price-support loans and have their grain moved to more distant terminals at government expense, says the Agriculture Department.

The procedure is aimed at easing the tight storage situation without penalizing farmers for having their grain moved out of the local area, officials said. Price-support loans will be available at prevailing county rates.

"Under this procedure, a grower could obtain a loan at his own county loan rate even though the corn will be promptly moved by Commodity Credit Corp. to normal terminals destinations for storage," according to Assistant Secretary Carroll G. Brunthaver.

"The producer will not be liable for the cost of shipping the corn," he said. "If a producer wishes to redeem, it will be by cash settlement base on the local market price."

Butz Looks To Extend Subsidy Program

Encouraged by a thumping farm vote, the Nixon administration plans to ask Congress next year for an extension of current crop-subsidy programs and for more leeway in administering them.

Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz, in an interview Wednesday, said he will seek an extension of the acreage "set-aside" concept incorporated in the Agricultural Act of 1970. The law expires next year.

Butz, who said he will stay in Nixon's cabinet if the President wants him to, did not spell out specific details of new farm proposals. But he indicated he wants more authority to make "quick decisions" for adjusting production of cotton, wheat and feed grains to market demand.

When the current farm law was under consideration, the administration sought a freer hand in setting program details, including some levels of payment and acreage guidelines.

Congress, however, insisted that minimum guidelines be written explicitly into the law. Butz said such rigidity hampers adjustments when needs arise for more or less production.

Butz said White House analysts interpreted Tuesday's election results to indicate between 67 and 70 per cent of the nation's farm vote went to Nixon.

That, he said, was proof farmers approve of administration policies. The farm vote, Butz said, was six to nine percentage points higher than Nixon received from the nation overall.

Under the acreage set-aside plan, farmers can plant as much as they want of a particular crop after diverting a required portion of their land from production.

In exchange for keeping some land idle, farmers are guaranteed basic price supports on all they produce and additional direct subsidies on part of what they grow.

More than 50 million acres of potential cotton, feed grain and wheat land are idle under the programs. Government farm payments, mostly for those crops, are expected to total about $4.2 billion this year.

Butz said the cost of farm programs disturbs him, although the payments have been needed to boost farmers' incomes. But now, he said, exports are thriving and cash market prices are much stronger. "I want some of those idled acres back in production as fast as we can get them without endangering the level of farm income," Butz said. "In a dynamic agriculture like this, I don't want to be bound by obsolete patterns of production," he said.

"We ought to have a farm program that will move increasingly toward the market place and away from government control," Butz said. "But I want to move these idled acres back into production progressively, not precipitously."

may be attributed partially to increased clinical services at the maximum security facility, the penal director said.

He said social workers and psychologists have been added to the staff and are working closely with classification officers and the inmates themselves.

"They are using group therapy and other techniques and the inmates are coming out with better attitudes," he said.

Despite the decrease in the number of inmates—a decline that appears to be continuous—Woodson is cautious.

"We're still not satisfied we're turning out 100 per cent law abiding citizens but we're sure big inroads are being made."

"I'm not going to get real excited about it yet. I want to see how those 300 are going to make it. Sometimes it takes a year for them to get caught and a year to get them sentenced."

Woodson said the increased training of penal personnel also must be counted as one of the factors in the population decrease.

Continuing declines in the prison population are giving Woodson budgeting headaches.

Last year, he said, increases were expected at the Kansas State Industrial Reformatory at Hutchinson and were written into the budget. But they never materialized.

"It's difficult to project," Woodson said, "but the budget people have been real good. I think they'll leave us enough latitude."

Neosho Waterfowl Area Filled By Recent Rains

PARSONS—Neosho Waterfowl Management Area north of here is back to producing some excellent waterfowl hunting, thanks to recent rains.

About three weeks ago the Kansas Forestry, Fish and Game Commission said the 2,000-acre Neosho area would be too short of water to provide its usual good waterfowl hunting. Two of the Commission's main pumps had broken down and the water supply had become critically short.

Since that time, an auxiliary pump has been in operation 24 hours a day but the biggest blessing came in a recent four-inch rain and a few smaller showers.

John Lingg, state game protector of Neosho County, reports an estimated 25,000 ducks, mostly pintail, mallard and the larger species, have taken up residency at Neosho. He said the food supply is ample and water is almost at normal levels. Lingg added very few of the federally protected redhead and canvasback ducks have shown up at Neosho.
