VOL. XII.—NO. 17.

LAWRENCE, KANSAS, MAY 3, 1882.

WHOLE NO. 534.

A LITTLE HISTORY.

We find the following in the Kansas Methodist, copied, evidently, with approval from the New York Witness:

We rejoice to know that prohibition is being enforced with such success in Kansas, but we cannot lose sight of the fact that that success is chiefly due to the fortunate circumstance that the champion of the reform at present occupies the executive chair of the State.

It is a matter of no surprise that the Witness, which gets all its information direct from St. John, should make such a statement, but we are surprised that a man so well informed as the editor of the Methodist should repeat it.

On the first of May, when the law went into effect, the saloons closed in nearly every town in the State, and the saloon keepers departed for Missouri, Colorado, etc. At Topeka the sale of whisky went right on. A few prosecutions were made in the interest of the saloons, and when these prosecutions failed the cry went up that the law could not be enforced at the State Capital, and thus far it has not been. This encouraged the departed saloon men, and they returned, saying that if St. John could not enforce the law at the State Capital it was useless for the smaller fry to attempt it, and began the infernal business again. In the meantime, the Governor did nothing, but went through the easy lying about the success of prohibition and glorifying himself. In many portions of the State the prohibitionists began war on the saloons, and in many places have triumphed, but only after desperate struggles. Now, if St. John had possessed a little executive ability, had remained at home and organized the law-abiding element of Shawnee county and made it hot for the saloon keepers of Topeka, the saloons would never have re-opened in many of the smaller towns, and our old saloon keepers would have remained in Missouri and Colorado.

We care very little about who is Governor of the State, but as a prohibitionist we find it very difficult to arouse any great enthusiasm for St. John. If the prohibitionists of the State go to the trouble of making a fight for the Governorship let us select a man who will do something more than talk after he is elected, and one who will not continually stop over. We are willing to do anything and everything in our power for prohibition, but excuse us from saying that St. John is all there is of prohibition in Kansas. He did a great work in carrying the amendment, and if wind work was all we needed, he would be just the man; but to enforce prohibition means business, and we would like to see a business man with a little executive ability at the head of affairs. Other men in the State have worked for prohibition, and many an unassuming man has done ten times the real work that St. John has—men like A. M. Richardson—and we would like to see them ride at the head of the procession a little while.—Abilene Chronicle.

FILES! FILES! FILES!

A Sure Cure Found at Last! No One Need Suffer.

A sure cure for blind, bleeding, itching and ulcerated piles has been discovered by Dr. William (an Indian remedy), called Dr. William's Indian Ointment. A single box has cured the worst chronic cases of 25 or 30 years standing. No one need suffer five minutes after applying this wonderful soothing medicine. Lotions, instruments and electuaries do more harm than good. William's Ointment absorbs the tumors, allays the intense itching (particularly at night after getting warm in bed), acts as a poultice, gives instant and painless relief, and is prepared only for piles, itching of the private parts, and for nothing else.

Read what the Hon. J. M. Coffinberry, of Cleveland, says about Dr. William's Indian Pile Ointment: "I have used scores of pile cures, and it affords me pleasure to say that I have never found anything which gave such immediate and permanent relief as Dr. William's Indian Ointment."

For sale by all druggists or mailed on receipt of price, $1. HENRY & CO., Prop'rs., 62 Vessey street, New York city. Woodward, Faxon & Co., Kansas City, wholesale agents.

Considerable Puns.

A lady friend who attended the spiritualistic seance at Liberty Hall Sunday evening contributes the following, which all who were present will appreciate, and the puns are good enough reading for those who could not be present. We thank the lady for her good opinion of us:

Written for THE SPRIT OF KANSAS.
THE SPRIT OF KANSAS.

BY MRS. S. A. WAKEMAN, 16 WALNUT STREET, CHICAGO, ILLINOIS.

The Spirit of Kansas, tell me of its size; Does it go in a cabinet, and there materialize? Tell me of his ghostship; tell me, if you please, I'm so timid, and bashful, must see a spirit by degrees.

Spirits of Alcohol, I've heard of this kind; Will I, in the Spirit of Kansas, something different find? Introduce me, O! pray you, if his ghostship is at home;

I've not met a spirit since to Kansas I've come. Curiosity is master, dear sir, don't you see? In that cabinet, last evening, could it possibly be? If I looked for a spirit, don't think me to blame, To see the Spirit of Kansas, sir, is why I came.

If the Spirit of Kansas was wrapped in that sheet, Then the Spirit of Kansas is a humbug and a cheat; If feeble and weak, as that ghost was last night, Then the Spirit of Kansas is in a pitiable plight, As I'm the daughter of a Yankee, my question must be right.

The Spirit of Kansas is alive and quite well, A dainty little sheet, and no ghost stories tell; The Spirit of Kansas is earnest and true, And not to be ridiculed by humbugs like you; What you've said about ghostships for the present will do.

The Spirit of Kansas—a volume that's found, With contributors outspoken, not working underground; Our beautiful Kansas, the place of its birth—And its citizens know how to appreciate worth.

The most spirited paper that's seen in the west For the home, and the fireside, one of the best; The Children's Department, I like it so well; May I write for your paper, dear little ones tell? In the Children's Department such rare little gems, These thoughts for the children to appreciate them.

I shall be most happy to add my little mite to your interesting little sheet During my stay in this lovely Eden of the west, Where my eyes have been opened and I made to see How spiritual the Spirit of Kansas can be.

Answers to Correspondents.

C. C. THACHER.—Dear Sir: I have a colt about three years old that has been tied in a stable all winter, and two days ago I noticed a swelling of the jaw-bone on the left side, just where the halter comes around. Please give probable cause and cure through the SPRIT. Yours Respectfully, S. DOUGLASS,

CLIFTON, Kas., April 20, 1882.
Answer—The probable cause is that your colt has had the epizootic or pink eye, though it may come from dusty fodder. It is probably what on a human being would be a boil. Open it with a clean knife, not one you have used to cut tobacco with, for that frequently contains poison. Slip a rope around the colt's neck so that it will draw snug just back of the sore; give the rope one or two sharp jerks, and you will thoroughly empty the tumor. Now take vinegar and salt and make a strong solution, hot as you can bear your hand in comfortably, and wash the wound out thoroughly with it; give the colt a little linseed meal to loosen the bowels, and he will be all right in a few days. This is the treatment recommended by Professor Danforth, the horse-trainer.

Young Folks' Department.

Correspondence "Young Folks' Department."

DEAR EDITOR:—I live one mile from the Des Moines river, and fifteen miles north of Des Moines City. I can see the domes of the capital from here. I am not going to school at present. I like living in the country very much. There are a great many wild flowers in blossom now, but not many tame ones. A steamboat comes up the river every once in a while. I haven't seen it yet. Not long ago there were some Indians camped just a little ways from our house. We children went into their tent. It was the first time I was ever in an Indian tent. This is my first letter to THE SPRIT.

ABBIE BROWN.

POLK CITY, Iowa, April 24.

Correspondence "Young Folks' Department."

DEAR EDITOR:—As my sister is writing I will write, too. I am ten years old; I go to school every day. I like my teacher very much. I study reading, spelling, geography and arithmetic. The answer to May Hendry's charade is London. I am a little girl and write little letters, but I expect to be a big girl some time and write letters worthy of big folks reading.

School Picnic.
The spring term of school taught by Miss Susie D. Martin, in District No. 63, closed yesterday. The friends and patrons of the school had decided that both teacher and scholars deserved a little pleasure and recreation after the hard work which they had done during the term.

Consequently, a "surprise picnic," in which all the neighbors joined, was held for them Saturday afternoon at the residence of Mr. D. G. Watt. Tables, seats, and a platform were arranged in the orchard, and there the scholars recited their declamations, after which Mr. L. Van Voorhis, in a neat little speech and in behalf of the patrons of the school, presented Miss Martin with a large edition of Webster's Unabridged Dictionary.

This surprise added to the other, was too much for Miss Martin, and her feelings completely overcame her.

A motion was made that a vote of thanks be tendered to her for her interest in the advancement of the scholars, and was responded to with three hearty cheers.

Then came the dinner, and we can assure that the table looked very tempting when at last it was ready for the teacher and scholars to sit down to. The long table was filled twice before all were served.

The rest of the afternoon was spent in playing croquet and other games, and the company dispersed, feeling well pleased with the afternoon's enjoyment, and glad to know that Miss Martin had been engaged to teach the next term of school.

Willow Springs.

Correspondence to THE SPRIT OF KANSAS.

EDITOR SPRIT:—As I have not seen anything in THE SPRIT from old Willow Springs, I will try and write a few lines.

Well, money matters are rather close; fine growing weather; wheat prospects were never better, the acreage is not quite so large as last year, but prospects are very good. Flax and potatoes are coming up fine; stock is doing very well. Corn-planting will be pretty well wound up this week, or to a great extent at least, and the acreage is larger than ever was planted in Willow Springs.

A Mr. Darnel, from Iowa, bought one section of land on Chicken Creek, and put a barbed-wire fence around it, and planting 160 acres in corn. It is all bottom land.

Fruit prospects are very good, of all kinds, but the berry crop will be short, as the bushes are nearly all killed.

Yours, &c., W. S.

WILLOW SPRINGS, Kans., April 26, 1882.

Nothing proves the innate folly of human nature so much as the tendency to coddle and cosset a great criminal. Guiteau is the happy recipient of more than fifty letters per day from every section of this glorious country where a fool can be raised, asking him for an autograph, and enclosing money for a photograph. Is it because he is handsome or even picturesque in appearance? On the other hand, he is simply hideous. There is nothing on earth to recommend him except the atrocious fact that he is an unmitigated scoundrel, who deliberately planned and executed a crime at which the world shudders. And yet sweet youths who part their hair in the middle, and sentimental maidens who part their hair on one side, and spinsters of both sexes, and others who cannot be classified because they have nothing characteristic except their lack of common sense, write daily to the mur-derer as though he were a hero. "Tell it not in Gath, let it not be heard in the streets of Askelon," that even the Republican free school system fails to teach some people the ordinary proprieties of life, and perhaps for the reason that the "some people's" heads have been evolved out of the woodpile.

THE Louisville Courier Journal wants to know when a girl has been to school seven years and spells vacinate "vaxinate," whether it is the fault of the school system of the girl's system? We are inclined to think that it is the fault of the virus.

Col. Ingersoll and Dr. Talmage have entered into a deep and diabolical conspiracy. We saw this long ago, but have not cared to express it until now. Their antagonistic attitude toward each other is all a pretence and a sham. On the very face of the matter this is apparent. Just look at the logic of events and judge for yourself. In the first place, Talmage advertises that at such an hour on such a day he is going to cut a man all to pieces, and that the man is Ingersoll. The result is that all Brooklyn is curious to see the operation, or if there is a supreme pleasure it is the sight of an execution. The church is packed, and there are so many people who can't get in that Talmage announces that on the next Sunday he will vivisect Ingersoll and compel him to take back his heresy. Now, then, what follows? Only this, that Ingersoll will put Dr. Talmage on the dissecting table, and cut him into inch pieces, and distribute them among the audience. The Academy is filled, and the Colonel looks upon the sea of upturned faces and smiles to think that each one represents a silver half dollar. And besides that, he is to talk about religion, so that even the church people may go the theatre on Sunday night without any compunctious visitings.

Now, is it an accident that these two men play into each other's hands so exact? Never. There must be an understanding between them, or if that seems too harsh a statement we will amend it by saying that there must be at least a misunderstanding.

Time and Expense Saved.

Hard workers are subject to bilious attacks which may end in dangerous illness. Parker's Ginger Tonic keeps the kidney and liver active, and by preventing the attack saves sickness, time, and expense.—Detroit Press.

A good and sufficient reason is what every man ought to have for his conduct. If we cannot have quite that then let us have the next thing to it—viz., a reason which is perfectly satisfactory to ourselves. For instance, "Close up, boys; close up," said a Colonel to his regiment. "If the enemy were to fire on you when you are straggling along that way they couldn't kill a single man of you. Close up!"

It is impossible for a woman after a faithful course of treatment with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to continue to suffer with a weakness of the uterus. Enclose a stamp to Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham, 233 Western Avenue, Lynn, Mass., for her pamphlets.

LABOR—No. IV.

It is true that a certain amount of labor must be performed, in order that society be fed and clothed, warmed and comforted, relieved when sick, and buried when dead. If this is wisely distributed, if each performs his just portion, the burthen is light and crushes no one. Here as elsewhere the closer we keep to nature the safer we are. It is not under the burthens of nature that society groans, but the work of caprice, of ostentation, of contemptible vanity, of luxury, which is never satisfied, these oppress the world. If these latter are given up, and each performs what is due from him, and tries to diminish the general burthen and not add to it, then no man is oppressed, there is time enough for each man to cultivate what is noblest in him, and be all his nature allows. It is doubtless right that one man should use the service of another, but only when both parties are benefitted by the relation.

The smith may use the service of the collier, the farmer the grocer, for he does them a service in return. He who heals the body deserves a compensation from the hands of whosoever he serves. If the statesman, the painter, the poet, the preacher, is doing a good and useful work for mankind he has a right to their service in return. His fellow-man may do for him what otherwise he ought to do for himself. Thus is he repaid, and is at liberty to devote the undivided energy of his genius to the work. But on what ground an idle man who does nothing for society, or an active man whose work is wholly selfish, can use the services of others, and call them to feed and comfort him, who repays no equivalent in kind, it remains yet for reason to discover. The only equivalent for service is service in return. If Hercules is stronger, Solon wiser, and Croesus richer than the rest of men, it is not that they may demand more from their fellows, but may do more for them. "We that are strong ought to bear the infirmities of the weak."

In respect, however, to the matter of personal service, this seems to be the rule, that no one, whatever be his station, wants, attainments, or wealth, has any right to receive from another any service which degrades the servant in his own eyes, or the eyes of the public, or the eyes of him who receives the service. No work, useful or ornamental to human life, need be debasing. It is the lasting disgrace to society that the most useful and necessary employments are called "low." There is implied in this very term the tacit confession, on the part of the employer, that he has wronged and subjugated the person who serves him, for when these same offices are performed by the mother for her child, or the son for his father, and are done for love and not money, they are counted not low, but rather ennobling.

The Grange.

The Grange (says W. Saunders, the First Master), is organized upon the very same general principle upon which all other associations and societies are established—that of one common interest binding all the members together. In this it differs from an agricultural club or society as usually organized. It differs, too, in the objects and purposes it has in view. It has a wider sphere of usefulness; it takes a more comprehensive view of the work of the agriculturist. It is not confined to the mere routine work of farm life, nor is it contented with "merely causing two blades of grass to grow where but one grew before," and yet that is a grand and noble work. The question is not simply how to produce more by the application of science to the farmer's profession, but includes also the other important matter, how to save themselves a fair proportion of what they produce.

Grateful Invalids.

Floreston Cologne is grateful to invalids, as it is refreshing without the sickening effect of most perfumes.

ONE of the most beautiful country roads in New England is that which winds in many gentle curves from Malden, in the suburbs of Boston, to Stoneham, and the loveliest point in its sinuous course is where it bends around a grassy knoll in Melrose, over which a noble old buttonwood tree has stood guard for a century. The County Commissioners have lately decided to cut down the tree and level the knoll for the purpose of straightening the road! Against this desecration Mr. Wilson Flag, author of the "Woods and By-roads of New England," has entered an earnest protest. "Let the people of Melrose," he writes to the Boston Transcript, "let all those who from Boston and other cities have journeyed over this old road and admired the noble buttonwood and the picturesque knoll on which it stands, rise and indignantly protest against this unwarrantable act of sordid stupidity. I cannot believe that the public can look tamely on and allow this shameful thing to be done. The destruction of this place would be a perpetual disgrace to the civilization of Eastern Massachusetts, and the County Commissioners should have an injunction laid upon their progress immediately by proper legal action." Mr. Flag is right. In many Massachusetts towns such brutal sacrifices have approached the enormity of murder in the first degree; and any one who has seen a majestic elm laid low in order that a hideous and ill-smelling asphalt pavement might make a lovely village look more like an ugly city will join heart and soul in Mr. Flag's indignant protest.

MR. CHARNEY FINDS THE PHANTOM CITY.

A telegram was received yesterday by the North American Review from Desire Charney, the explorer, announcing that he had succeeded in penetrating the country of the Locandones and had discovered a large city, reports of which had been given to explorers by the natives, and which, on account of its inaccessibility, was called "The Phantom City." To a Tribune reporter who asked him about Mr. Charney's explorations and the significance of his latest reported discovery, L. S. Metcalf, of the North American Review, said:

"Mr. Charney has been making explorations among the ruined cities in Central America for the last year or two. He has been acting under the direction of A. T. Rice, editor of the North American Review, and the expense of the exploration has been jointly paid by the French government and by Pierre Lorillard. Mr. Charney has visited many countries in exploring expeditions. He is a man of indomitable perseverance, is as tough and wiry as steel, and has a powerful physique. He is an enthusiast on the subject of archaeology, and is brave in the extreme in making his explorations. Mr. Rice requested him recently to enter and explore the country of the Locandones, and nothing had been heard from him since then until this dispatch came to-day, announcing complete success. This country has been the piece de resistance to all Central American explorers; Stevens and others have spoken of it as being almost entirely inaccessible. There has always been the belief, arising from the vague reports of natives, that, within this native country, inclosed by its lofty mountains and peopled by a barbarous race that repelled every attempt at exploration, there was one or more large cities similar to those whose ruins exist in the explored part of Central America, but populous and in a very perfect state of preservation. It has always been supposed that the discovery of these phantom cities would throw great light upon American archaeology, and we are waiting anxiously for full accounts of his discoveries from Mr. Charney. One important result of Mr. Charney's previous explorations in Central America is to prove that the cities whose ruins exist there are only a few hundreds instead of many thousands of years old. He says that the surface of the soil does not indicate, as has been supposed, that the land has been submerged since the cities were built. The extreme softness of the building material used is another indication, he thinks, that the towns are not so old as they were formerly supposed to be."

The country of the Locandones is an extremely mountainous region in the northwestern part of Guatemala, through which the river bearing the same name runs northward into Mexico.

A Friend to the Friendless.

Sorrow and sickness is the too common heritage of humanity, and when we see how little is done to alleviate the miseries of the great mass of humanity we are almost out of patience with life. Even where the intentions are best, ignorance is prone to bid the afflicted "suffer and be strong," instead of ministering to the mind diseased, or laying a hand of healing on the poor tortured body.

Ab! when Science and Philanthropy, with love and sympathy and skill, come to the aid of the sufferers, they feel as if the angel of annunciation had drawn near.

Samaritan Nervine really is salvation to thousands. I had spent a fortune in doctoring when I went from Jerusalem to Jerico and fell among thieves, and when robbed and at the point of death, was befriended and restored to health by the Good Samaritan.

"Yes," he continued, "that was exactly my condition. I had spent a fortune in doctoring when I went from Jerusalem to Jerico and fell among thieves, and when robbed and at the point of death, was befriended and restored to health by the Good Samaritan."

"God bless Dr. Richmond," said one of them to me the other day. "I feel as if I know the man mentioned in Scripture must have felt when he went from Jerusalem to Jerico and fell among thieves, and when robbed and at the point of death, was befriended and restored to health by the Good Samaritan."

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE!

It cures Spavins, Splints, Curbs, Ring-bones and all similar blemishes, and removes the bunch without blistering.

For man it is now known to be one of the best, if not the best liniment ever discovered.

We feel positive that every man can have perfect success in every case if he will only use good common sense in applying KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE, and persevere in bad cases of long standing. Read below the experience of others.

FROM COL. L. T. FOSTER.

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio, May, 10th, 1880.
DR. B. J. KENDALL & Co., Gents:—I had a very valuable Hackney Arabian colt which I prized very highly, he had a large bone spavin on one joint and a smaller one on the other which made him very lame; I had him under the charge of two Veterinary Surgeons who failed to cure him. I was one day reading the advertisement of KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE in the Chicago Express, I determined at once to try it, and got our druggists here to send for it. They ordered three bottles; I took them all and thought I would give it a thorough trial. I used it according to directions, and by the fourth day the colt ceased to be lame, and the lumps had entirely disappeared. I used but one bottle and the colts limbs are as free from lumps and as smooth as any horse in the stable. He is entirely cured. The cure was so remarkable that I feel two of my neighbors have the remaining two bottles, who are now using it.
Very Respectfully,
L. T. FOSTER.

PERSEVERANCE WILL

TELL.

STOUGHTON, Mass., March 16th, 1880.
B. J. KENDALL & Co., Gents:—In justice to you and to myself, I think I ought to let you know that I have recovered two bone spavins with Kendall's Spavin Cure, one very large one, don't know how long the spavin had been there. I have owned the horse eight months. It took me four months to take the large one off, and two for the small one. I have used ten bottles. The horse is entirely well, not at all stiff, and no bunch to be seen or felt. This is a wonderful medicine. It is a new thing here, but if it does for all what it has done for me, its sale will be very great.
Respectfully yours,
CHAS. E. PARKER.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE!

Acme, Michigan, December 28th, 1879.
B. J. KENDALL & Co., Gents:—I sent you one dollar for your "Kendall's Spavin Cure," last summer which cured a bone spavin with half a bottle. The best liniment ever used.
Yours Respectfully,
HOMER HOXIE.

FROM REV. P. N. GRANGER.

St. Albans, Vt., Jan. 20th, 1880.
DR. B. J. KENDALL & Co., Gents:—In reply to your letter I will say that my experience with Kendall's Spavin Cure has been very satisfactory indeed. Three or four years ago I procured a bottle of your agent, and with it, cured a horse of lameness caused by a spavin. Last season my horse became very lame and I turned him out for a few weeks, when he became better, but when I put him on the road he grew worse, when I discovered that a ring-bone was forming, I procured a bottle of Kendall's Spavin Cure and with less than a bottle cured him so that he is not lame, neither can the hunch be found.
Respectfully yours,
P. N. GRANGER.

Wilton, Minn., Jan. 11th, 1881.
B. J. KENDALL & Co., Gents:—Having got a horse back of you by mail a year ago, the contents of which persuaded me to try Kendall's Spavin Cure on the hind leg of one of my horses which was badly swollen and could not be ridden by any other remedy. I got two bottles of Kendall's Spavin Cure of Preston & Luddith, Druggists of Waseca, which completely cured my horse. About five years ago I had a three-year-old colt swollen very badly. I used your remedy as given in your book without swelling, and I must also to your credit that the colt is entirely cured which is a surprise not only to myself but also to my neighbors. You sent me the book for the trifling sum of 25 cents, and I could not get another like it I would not take twenty-five dollars for it.
Yours truly,
GEO. MATHEWS.

Kendall's Spavin Cure.

Hamilton, Mo., June 14th, 1881.
B. J. KENDALL & Co., Gents:—This is to certify that I have used Kendall's Spavin Cure and have cured the spavin, which other treatments had failed to do. I did not use quite one bottle of your liniment. After the spavin was removed I drove the horse and his mate over 500 miles, from Lincoln county, Iowa, to Hartin county, Nebraska, with a load of about 2,000 pounds, and made the trip in four weeks. Please send me your Treatise on the Horse, price 25 cents.
Respectfully yours,
JAMES YELLENNIC.

Kendall's Spavin Cure.

Chilteburgh, Ky., Feb. 20th, 1879.
B. J. KENDALL & Co., Gents:—I have tried your Spavin Cure on a chronic case of bone spavin, which has been treated by two of the best doctors in the land. The case was dread twice, and I can safely say that Kendall's Spavin Cure did more good than anything I ever tried. I believe it to be a good remedy for a great many difficult cases of Ring-bone and bone spavins. I am sure it will cure if taken in time. It is also good for scratches, grease heel, etc.
Yours respectfully,
T. B. MUIR.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE!

ON HUMAN FLESH it has been ascertained by repeated trials to be the very best liniment ever used for any deep seated pain of long standing, or of short duration. Also for Corns, Bunions, Frost-bites, or any bruise, cut or lameness. Some are afraid to use it on human flesh simply because it is a horse medicine, but you should remember that what is good for Beast is good for Man, and we know from experience that "KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE" can be used on a child 1 year old with perfect safety. Its effects are wonderful on human flesh, and it does not blister or make a sore. Try it and be convinced.

Patten's Mills, Washington Co., N. Y., Feb. 21st, 1879.
B. J. KENDALL, M. D.—Dear Sir: The particular case on which I used your "Kendall's Spavin Cure" was a malignant ankle sprain of six months standing. I had tried many things, but in vain. Your "Kendall's Spavin Cure" put me to the ground again, and for the first time in a natural position. For a family liniment it excels anything we ever used.
Yours truly,
Pastor M. E. Church, Patten's Mills, N. Y.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE.

Kendall's Spavin Cure is sure in its effects, mild in its action as it does not blister, yet it is penetrating and powerful to reach any deep-seated pain, or to remove any bony growth or any other enlargement if used for several days, such as spavins, splints, curbs, callous, sprains, swellings, any lameness and all enlargements of the joints or limbs, or rheumatism in man, and for any purpose for which a liniment is used for man or beast. It is now known to be the best liniment for man ever used, acting mild and yet certain in its effects. It is used full strength with perfect safety at all seasons of the year.

Send address for Illustrated Circular, which we think gives positive proof of its virtues. No remedy has ever met with such unqualified success, to our knowledge, for heat as well as man. Price $1 per bottle, or six bottles for $5. All Druggists have it for you, or it will be sent to any address on receipt of price by the proprietors.

Birthday Verses.

[Written in a Child's Album.]

'Twas sung of old in hut and hall
How once a king in evil hour
Hung musing o'er his castle wall,
And, lost in idle dreams, let fall
Into the sea his ring of power.

Then, let him sorrow as he might,
And pledge his daughter and his throne
To who restored the jewel bright.
The broken spell would ne'er unite;
The grim old ocean held his own.

Those awful powers on man that wait
On man, the beggar or the king,
To hovel bare or hall or state,
A magic ring that masters fate
With each succeeding birthday bring.

Therein are set four jewels rare;
Pearl winter, summer's ruby blaze,
Spring's emerald, and, than all more fair,
Fall's pensive opal, doomed to bear
A heart of fire bedreamed with haze.

To him the simple spell who knows
The spirit of the ring to sway
Fresh power with every sunrise flows,
And royal pursuivants are those
That fly his mandates to obey.

But he that with a slackened will Dreamed of things past or things to be,
From him the charm is slipping still,
And drops ere he suspects the ill,
Into the inexorable sea.

—James Russell Lowell.

Our Blue Blood.

Two centuries and a half ago
Off trudged to work with shouldered hoe
A woman, barefoot, browned and rough,
With pluck of Puritanic stuff.
Six lusty children tagged behind,
All hatless, shoeless, unconfined,
And happy as the bird that flew
About them. Naught of books they knew,
Save one they read at twilight hour,
Brought with them in the staunch Mayflower.

A pretty lady, thin and white,
In a hammock swinging light,
Languishes, and in the shade,
Devours rhyme and lemonade,
While bending near, her lover sighs,
And gently fans away the flies,
She murmurs, "The notice that we
Are neither of low family,
But of old Puritanic stock,
That landed upon Plymouth Rock."

—Harvard Lampoon.

Neighboring Correspondence.

Correspondence to THE SPIRIT OF KANSAS.
From Miami County.

The writer thought a few lines from this part of the State might be of interest to some of your readers at this time.

The most of the farmers here are quite forward with their work.

There will be more corn planted this spring in this county than any other season in the past.

Very little wheat sown last fall, and what was is almost destroyed by the chintz bugs.

Corn is selling at from seventy to eighty cents per bushel, and very hard to get at that.

Prairie hay is worth $7 per ton in town.

A great many cattle are being taken west to be herded.

All the land is fenced up here.

This place is on the improve all the
time.

Some fifteen years ago Amos Moore moved from Wisconsin and settled near Lawrence, and Timothy Moore, a brother, who lives here, has been trying to find out where he is for a long time. He would be pleased if any one could inform him where he could be found. He would be very thankful for the desired information. Any one who should see this, and if they know anything about the above named person, the writer would like them to address him the facts.

There are a few words which will be penned in regard to the flora of our State. There has been considerable work done in the working up of the botany of Kansas, and this has been accomplished almost wholly or through the labor of Rev. J. H. Carruth, of your city. To him is Kansas largely indebted for the many years and miles of travel in collecting specimens from different localities. The State of Kansas should enumerate him for this important work. Yours truly,

Dr. J. H. OYSTER.

PAOLA, Kas., April 26, 1882.

History of the English People.
Green's justly celebrated "Larger History of the English People," ought certainly now to fill a place in every home. The Elzevir edition, in five handy and tasteful volumes, cloth binding, all for $1.50 (by mail $1.80), is certainly a specimen of book-making that will delight the eye of those who rejoice in beautiful books, and is hardly less than a marvel in economy of cost. But the Model Octavo edition, in one volume, utility binding, caps the climax for cheapness—only 50 cents, or by mail 65 cents! These editions are being published by the Useful Knowledge Publishing Company, 162 William street, New York, and are examples of the quality and prices of numerous standard works which they are publishing. At these prices they sell only to buyers direct, discounts to dealers and agents being impossible, and the editions published are limited to the orders which reach them promptly.
Catalogues and specimen pages are sent free
on request.

Scientific, Social, Political and Personal.

The Malley jury are blondes. Counsel for the defense may that such a jury never convicts.

The manuscript of Verdi's opera of "Traviata" brought in Paris the other day 22,000 francs.

Senator Teller was the leading lawyer in Colorado, but was not without rivals in the Senate.

Minister Sargent has refused many entertainments that it would have postponed his departure from Europe.

The Prince of Wales has taken Coworth Park, Sunningdale, for a week. It is the residence of W. Arbuthnot.

The wife of James Horton, N. Y., O. & W. railway engineer, of Oswego, is heir to $50,000
by a relative in England.

Tan-bark, ground, compressed, and put up in half-barrel packages, promises to become an important American export to Europe.

The iron and metal trade of New York city are about to organize an exchange, and application will be made to the legislature for a charter.

The Rev. W. A. Bartlett, D. D., of Chicago, has just received a unanimous call to the New York Avenue Presbyterian church in Washington.

At the funeral of the great tenor, Italo Gar-doni, in Paris, the only two celebrities present were Mme. Albani, to her praise be it said, and Faurer.

Oscar Wilde has secured the refusal of herbs on steamers of both the White Star and Cunard lines for a passage to Europe in the early part of June.

Efforts are being made in Belgium to stimulate the study of astronomy there. A recent speech by M. Foile has done much to further the movement.

At Monte Carlo the administration of the Casino sent a magnificent bouquet to Queen Victoria at Mentone. It was returned at once with the brief answer, "Declined."

Charles Francis Adams, since his adventure with the bunco men, has given the entire control of his business affairs into the hands of his son, John Quincy Adams.

Messrs. Moody and Sankey are now laboring in Glasgow, where, it is said, they are achieving wonderful success. In Glasgow, it appears, their services are much needed.

Oscar Wilde says that he doesn't like Denver, because the young men in the streets called out as he was riding by: "Oscar! Oscar, deah! put your head and let us see you."

Traces of a workshop occupied by a flint manufacturer of prehistoric times has been discovered by M. Carrazo in the Jurd, near Salines. This atelier would appear to belong to the neolithic epoch.

A man who eloped with a Wisconsin wife left a note for the husband: "I have looked your woman up; but you are welcome to my last week's wages, which I didn't draw, and I hope that squares things."

The Baptist Society has been presented by R. Arlington, of Leeds, England, with $5,000 to pay part of the expense of building a steamer to navigate the Upper Congo. He has before distinguished himself in providing the means of support for African missions.

The United States spends $3,000,000 a year in keeping in elegant idleness a naval force in European waters made up of vessels which can neither fight nor sail, at all points behind the lines, and themselves absolutely useless, and their present service valueless.

A deed, signed by President Arthur, Regina
M. Caw, Almada Masten, Malvina A. Hays-worth, Annie E. Arthur, and Mary McElroy, was recorded in Albany on Thursday, and conveyed, for a consideration of $3,000, ten acres of land and the buildings thereon, except a boathouse, in the town of Watervliet, to Elizabeth M. Kinker, of Albany. The place is called the Arthur homestead, and is about three miles from Albany.

A huge whale, harpooned off Provincetown on Monday, was towed into one of the Boston docks on Wednesday. It weighed twenty-seven tons, sixty-two feet long, and fifty-eight feet in girth, and its jaws had a spread of twenty-five feet. The monster is now undergoing the embalming process, and will probably swing around the circle in the wake of some traveling show during the summer.

PUBLISHER'S NOTICE.

Every day this office receives a dozen or more letters which require answers, and in most cases the answering takes time and postage for which we get no remuneration, and our readers can see that in the course of a week, or month, the amount paid for postage alone is not small. We have decided, therefore, to answer no more letters unless a three-cent stamp is enclosed for that purpose. In many cases a postal will answer as where a receipt for a remittance is wished, but the sender must be the judge in the matter.

The Topeka Capital of Sunday was the best number of that really good paper, that we have seen for a long time. They paid attention to telling the news and did not fill half their space with an effort to besmear the character of "a party by the name of Johnson." We congratulate the Capital on this marked improvement.

The Legislature of New York has passed a bill which makes an important change in the criminal code of that State. It changes the law so that on the trial of capital offenses of crimes involving a liability to imprisonment for life, the right to make the closing argument to the jury, immediately before the Judge's charge, shall belong to the counsel for the defendant, instead of to the prosecution, as heretofore.

JEFFERSON county will hold an agricultural fair next fall.—Leavenworth Times.

Jefferson made one of the best displays at Bismarck last fall, and they will do the same again this year. If they hold a county fair we shall all be glad to go over and give them a lift. There is only one thing we have got against the Jefferson boys; those cards "No bonded indebtedness." It brought them hundreds of the very best settlers and we hear it almost every day referred to by home seekers. Jefferson county's exhibit at Bismarck last year has brought them already in new settlers ten times what was expected on the display, and they will feel it for years to come.

THE SENATORIAL BIBLE STOLEN.

A dispatch from Washington says that some thief who had neither the fear of the Almighty nor the sanctity of the Senate in his soul, has stolen the Senatorial Bible. The sacred volume, we are told, has been in the Senate chamber during a period of fifty-three years. In the Twenty-First Congress, John C. Calhoun, as Vice President, handed it to John M. Clayton, of Delaware, on which to swear his oath of office. John Forsyth kissed it as the Senator from Georgia, Edward Livingston from Louisiana, Daniel Webster from Massachusetts, Thomas H. Benton from Missouri, Levi Woodbury from New Hampshire, Theodore Frelinghuysen from New Jersey, Robert Y. Hayne from South Carolina, and John Tyler from Virginia. All these gentlemen, whose names have become historic, were in the Twenty-Third Congress, three and fifty years ago, when the Senate Bible, which has so mysteriously disappeared, was first placed on the desk of the arch-apostle of nullification. Its abstraction would seem to argue pretty hard times at the capital. As a rule, anything worth laying hands on in Congress speedily disappears. Thus far the holy volume, sacred and sanctified in itself, and doubly sanctified and sacred by the Senatorial kisses of unnumbered statesmen, escaped until this unhallowed year of irreverent Ingersollism. Who took it? If the Senate Bible is not safe what chance has the Treasury?

A VISIT TO EUDORA.

How Odd Fellows Celebrate—Improvements—Personals, etc., etc.

On Wednesday of last week the Odd Fellows of this city, with their wives, sweethearts, and sisters, made a trip to Eudora to join with Eudora Lodge No. 42 in a celebration of the sixty-third anniversary of Odd Fellowship.

Being one of the Odd sort we formed one of the one hundred or more who went from here and took a day's recreation. What we saw and heard was so pleasing to us that we think it will also be to others, and so we are going to tell of a few of the pleasures of that day.

The Santa Fe Company furnished one extra car for the excursionists, but as Fellows of the dimensions of E. B. Good would not bear packing more than two in a seat, and the car was not high enough to stack more than two deep such men as Ed. Monroe and Bill Asher, and Crew and Charlton refused to carry double, and Yeager objected to making a seat of his double-bass, some few had to find quarters in the other cars of the train. However, the ride was a short one, and with the brass band as a guide, they managed to arrange themselves in a reasonable sort of line on and about the platform, and showed the utmost respect to a long construction train loaded with colored laborers. In fact, so great was our respect for them that we waited fully five minutes for them to form their line and pass out of the way.

The band then struck up a lively march, and the line moved in good order to the post office corner, perhaps a third of a mile from the depot. Here, every blessed girl went back on the boys and struck a bee-line for the hall, and showed their Odd side by selecting the best seats, while we boys took a tramp around the square, looked at the temperance tabernacle, where we hoped to enjoy a dance in the evening, and saluted with our blandest smiles the fair ladies of Eudora who stood in their doorways to see us pass. The line of march was a short one, and we had but just got the stiffness out of our bones when we arrived in front of Odd Fellow's Hall, a pretty two-story brick building, owned by the Eudora Lodge, the upper story used for a lodge room and the first floor rented for a store.

Into this we all marched, and were soon after called to order by L. Himpy, N. G. of Eudora Lodge.

After an opening ode, prayer was offered by Chaplain Hagenbuch, which in its turn was followed by music by Buch's orchestra.

Bro. Jennings, of Eudora Lodge, then briefly welcomed the Lawrence visitors, referred to the anniversary which we were gathered to celebrate, the prosperity which seemed to be attending the people of Eudora, in which the Odd Fellows had had their full share, and the renewed efforts for future good which should form the main-spring of our efforts for the future.

Bro. John Charlton, of Lawrence, responded on behalf of the Lawrence visitors and their friends. He said he was not surprised at the hospitality and friendly feeling manifested to-day, for Lawrence people had tasted of that hospitality before, and we had all come expecting it. But we were none the less thankful to them because of this expectation. He congratulated the Eudora Lodge on their prosperity, and said this and the prosperity of the people and city of Eudora was due to good citizenship, and the principles of Odd Fellowship contributed largely to good citizenship. Mr. Charlton then gave a brief history of the Order; its origin 63 years ago in Baltimore by five persons; how it had grown and developed. Its greatest stride, he said, was in 1857. "We are told in Holy Writ that after God created Adam, he looked upon all the good and beautiful things that he had made, and he saw that it was not good for man to be alone, so he caused a great sleep to fall upon Adam and took from his side a rib out of which he made woman, the crowning work of loveliness. So the Lodge of Odd Fellows in 1857, saw that it was not good to be alone, and the degree of Rebekah was instituted, by Hon. Schuyler Colfax. The material from which the rib was taken to make this degree, must have been very good indeed, for its results had been a great blessing. Just think for one moment of the idea of making anything beautiful out of one of Brother Asher's ribs.

This brought down the house, and all appreciated the joke. Mr. Charlton traced the history of the Order to the present time, and gave many statistics of great interest.

After Buck had once more enlivened us with a waltz that set every foot to beating time, Asher was called for. W. W. Asher arose and said he had a brother in the hall, but as the brother was handsome and he was not, he should consider the call for himself. He said he felt perfectly at home. Bro. Charlton was there and had already commenced to twit on facts. Said he: "I am a great admirer of the women and lover of Odd Fellowship; if the Rebekah Lodge had not been organized till to-day, and I thought I could contribute as much as a rib towards it I would willingly undergo the operation. But Bro. Charlton, though he is a good Odd Fellow, would not stand such a sacrifice, and if he did all his ribs would not make one good woman." The laugh was on the other side and the applause was loud and long.

To get over our laugh we had to have more music, and then Bro. James Crew was called upon. He was present when the hall we occupied to-day was dedicated. He told something of the inside workings of the Order. At first it was a social meeting, at which the flowing bowl formed a part; gradually this was worked out; higher and better aims took possession of the Order from which not only Odd Fellowship but the whole civilized race had been benefited. To-day we number half a million of members, scattered over the whole globe, all working for the bettering of our fellow man. No man could be a true Odd Fellow, comprehend all its principles, without making himself and his Fellows better. Let the aim of the Order be high, let us all work for the best good that our work may be as much of a pride to future generations as has been the work of the past; let us live fully up to the age.

Bro. Bishop, of Eudora Lodge, made the last address. He pleasingly alluded to those who had preceded him, and thought the Order was on a better road to success than ever before. For himself he thought we had all had speeches enough and needed something for the inner man.

The Noble Grand then told us how we were to get our tickets for supper, and said they were ready. This announcement was received with such applause as showed that there was no doubt that all were hungry, and after getting tickets a general break was made for the dining hall. Such agile youths as James Crew and George Gould managed to get to the first table, but we were left to the second, while still more slothful ones waited for the third. The providence held out like the widow's cruse of oil, and a feast that would have tempted a king was served to even the most laggard.

After supper we all repaired to the Temperance Tabernacle and danced off our enthusiasm till near midnight. Although Odd Fellow's Hall was lighted and plenty of music there, the staid old church members could not resist the temptation of going to the tabernacle and seeing the dance, and not a few walked through a quadrille "to see if they had forgotten the step."

The midnight train was half an hour late and the extra car was filled to overflowing. As the company became tired, Bro. Bunton, Geo. Gould, Joe Parham, and Dr. Evatt led in familiar songs in which the whole company joined, and we reached home about one o'clock.

The officers of Eudora lodge, who so bountifully entertained us are,

L. Hempy, N. G.
S. Prang, V. G.
J. Hammer, Sec'y.
Geo. Hazenbach, Chap.

ITEMS.
A lodge of the Turn Verein has been organized at Eudora, and three lots have been contributed for a Turner Hall, which will be erected at once.

Mine host, Lave and daughter, are visiting friends in Missouri.

Mrs. Chas. Pills is very ill, and great fears are entertained for her recovery. Work on the abutment for the bridge progresses very slowly.

Mrs. John Hammett will visit in California this summer.

Bro. George Gould deserves the thanks of every Odd Fellow for the unrequited labor which he performed to make our visit to Eudora a pleasure.

EMERSON AND DARWIN.

While yet the world was in deepest mourning over the death of Longfellow, and his poems are being read by millions of admirers, comes the announcement of the decease of the great naturalist Charles Darwin, and only a day or two later that of the classical Ralph Waldo Emerson. Darwin's theory of evolution made him a name the world over. He was born in 1809, and graduated from Edinburgh University in 1831. He accompanied Captain Fitzroy in his exploring expedition around the world, 1831 to 1836, the results of which are given in his charming work, "Voyage of a Naturalist Around the World."

Ralph Waldo Emerson was a poet and essayist. He was born in Boston in 1803; graduated at Harvard College in 1821. In 1829 he entered the Unitarian ministry, which he left in 1832. He has achieved a world-wide reputation by his philosophical lectures, and published works, the chief of the latter being his famous "Essays." The New York Herald thus closes an obituary editorial of him:

As the nature of man is a "primitive pagan" is essentially poetic, so are Mr. Emerson's writings, in prose no less than in verse, and to this characteristic much more than to their pretensions to philosophy, we are disposed to ascribe their probable enrollment among classic literature. "The reader to my small contributions to the literature which deals with the overlapping margins of science and theology," says Professor Tyndall, "will have noticed how frequently I quote Mr. Emerson. I do so mainly because in him we have a poet and a profoundly religious man who is really and entirely undaunted by the discoveries of science—past, present or prospective. In his case Poetry, with the joy of a bacchanal, takes her graver brother, Science, by the hand, and cheers him with immortal laughter. By Emerson scientific conceptions are continually transmuted into the finer forms and warmer lines of an ideal world."

City Council.

At the meeting of the City Council Monday evening, Mayor Bowersock made the following appointments, which were approved by the Council: City Clerk, F. Menet; City Marshal, C. T. K. Prentice; Street Commissioner, Jack Watts; City Physician, Dr. Prentice; Engineer of Fire Department, Thomas Doyle; Weigher and Measurer, A. Mead; Sexton of Maple Grove Cemetery, Charles Hoyt; of Oak Hill, H. M. Winchell; policeman, Ben. C. Ellis and C. Armstrong.

The question of water works was discussed at some length, Messrs. W. F. White and A. E. Alexander being present to make a proposition for such work. It is the same system of works recently constructed at Emporia, and in process of erection at Topeka. It is more than probable that such works will be erected here.

Dry Goods.

Geo. Innes & Co. are now probably doing the largest business of any firm in the State in that line. They have grown up here from a small beginning, until they have the largest and finest retail house in this section. They have advertised extensively over the State, and what is still better made their advertisement good. Whatever they said they would do they always performed. We stood by the counter the other day, and saw the children come in for picture cards. Mr. Innes had invited the children to come and get these cards, and though it was a busy day every child was waited upon as courteously as if they were buying a silk dress pattern. Every child in Lawrence swears by Innes. And the effect goes to older people. A man who regards his word with the children good is pretty apt to be honorable with everybody else, so the people think. Innes & Co. have an advertisement in the SPIRIT this week, and we will vouch that they have not overstated the matter in any particular.

Chat by the Way.

Every one should be charitable in judgment. "She is insupportable," said Talleyrand. Then, fearing he had gone too far, he added, "But it is her only defect."

Shakespeare says, "The hearts of old gave lands," But our new heraldy is, "hands not hearts."

We have heard a great many reasons given for second marriages, but none so irrefutable as this:—"It is a counter irritation."

The religious education of the young is terribly neglected in this country. "Are you a Methodist?" "No sir." "A Presbyterian?" "No, sir." "Well, what are you?" "Why, sir, if anything, I am just a little Episcopalian on the mother's side."

It is a sad astronomical fact that during the terrible thunder storm the other night the milky way became sour.

Many good people find themselves, sometimes to their own surprise, in the condition of the little boy who on being asked whether he would rather have a Bible or a jews' harp, hesitated a moment and then replied: "Well, if it don't make any great difference with God, I would rather have the jews' harp."

Children are sometimes philosophers, and just as able to draw an inference as older people. "Now, Willie," said a coaxing mother, "I don't like to take medicine any more than you do, but I just make up my mind to do it, and then do it." The scion of genius looked up through his tears, and replied: "And, mother, I just made up my mind that I won't and then I don't."

For Wakefulness at night, there is no better remedy. During the change of life no female should be without it. It cures the Nervous System, and gives rest, comfort, and nature's sweet sleep.

SAMARITAN NERVINE.
Cures Alcoholism, Drunkenness and the habit of Opium Eating. These degrading habits are by far the worst evils that have ever befallen suffering humanity. Thousands die annually from these noxious drugs. The drunkard drinks liquor not because he likes it, but for the pleasure of curing and treating his friends, little thinking that he is on his road to ruin. Like the Opium Eater, he first uses the drug in small quantities as a harmless antidote. The soothing influence of the drug takes strong hold upon his system, leading him on to his own destruction. The habit of Opium Eating and Liquor Drinking are precisely what eating is to alimentaries, as over-eating first induces indigestion, which doubles its cravings until it paralyzes both the stomach and appetite. So every drink of liquor or dose of opium, instead of satisfying, only adds to its fierce fires, until it consumes the vital force and then itself. Like the gluttonous tape-worm it cries "Give, give, give!" but never enough until its own capacity devours itself. Samaritan Nerve gives instant relief in all such cases. It produces sleep, quiets the nerves, builds up the nervous system, and restores body and mind to a healthy condition.

SAMARITAN NERVINE
Cures Nervous Dyspepsia, Palpitation of the Heart, Asthma, Bronchitis, Scrophula, Syphilis, diseases of the Kidneys and all diseases of the Urinary Organs. N. vomits Debility, caused by the indiscretions of youth, permanently cured by the use of this invaluable remedy. To you, young, middle-aged, and old men, who are covering your sufferings as with a mantle, sit down, look up, you can be saved by timely efforts, and make ornaments to society and jewels in the crown of your Maker. If you will. Do not keep this a secret longer until it saps your vitality, and destroys both body and soul. If you are thus afflicted, take Dr. Richmond's SAMARITAN NERVINE. It will restore your shattered nerves, arrest premature decay, and impart tone and energy to the whole system.

The Distinguished Charm.

A delightful fragrance of freshly gathered flowers and spices is the distinguishing charm of Floreston Cologne.

It is an old motto, "Be natural." That depends. It is just what most people ought not to be, and if the saving doctrine of total depravity be true, it is very bad advice indeed.

Fast, brilliant, and fashionable are the Diamond Dye colors. One package colors 1 to 4 lbs. of goods. Ten cents for any color.

JUDGE THACHER, of Lawrence, is spoken of as a candidate for Governor, and of all the men yet prominently mentioned he is by far the best. He is a man of brain and would make a No. 1 Governor. Abilene Chronicle.

MAYOR BOWERSOCK has purchased Liberty Hall, and proposes with that building and another to be erected just north, to make an opera house that shall be a credit to the city. Mr. Bowersock is doing more to help build up Lawrence than any other two men in it. He takes hold of every manufacturing enterprise, and best of all makes them successful.

The other day a book agent took refuge under a hay mow during a severe thunder storm. The lightning played round his hiding place for half an hour, and then struck a church a hundred paces off and set it on fire. This shows beyond a doubt that natural forces are blind, and that there is very little intelligence in the operations of nature.

It is with pleasure that we record the re-appointment of Mr. C. T. K. Prentice as Marshal. Charlie has done splendid and efficient work in the past year, and while he has been denounced at times as a little too "brash," a cool after judgment has shown that he has made very few mistakes, and those he did make he was quick to correct. Charlie and his assistants have been very fortunate in ferreting out evil-doers, and our city has been kept so quiet and orderly that we are the envy of our neighbors. Here's to the "old white hat," with a hope that its wearer may feast on yellow-legged chickens to the end of his days.

See the Conquering Hero, etc.

Among the most wonderful articles of the period is St. Jacob's Oil. The Hon. Leonard Sweet of Chicago, pronounced it the most thorough conqueror of pain that he has ever known. Cleveland Penny Press.

Excelsior.

When one gets to the highest pinnacle of fame he has a right to cry Excelsior; if one gets to the top of the ladder in any enterprise in which he may be engaged, he has a right to claim for himself that honor. Steinberg & Bro. have reached the top of the ladder in their line of business. Their two stores in this city are an honor to themselves and to the city. One who goes through either the dry goods or clothing store is struck with the immensity of the stock displayed. The wants of all classes are catered to. We shall never forget standing in front of the clothing house about a year ago. A poorly-dressed man came along and entered. It was about supper time and only one clerk was in attendance. He stood upon the walk talking with a young friend, and glancing toward the customer waited to finish his conversation with his friend. Mr. Steinberg sat at the back end of the store writing. He noticed the man enter, and came to the front and said to the clerk, "Come in and wait on this gentleman." After the customer had gone with the purchase of one or two small articles, Mr. Steinberg scathed that clerk for his inattention to business. The clerk's excuse was, "I knew from his looks that he did not want much, and it would not hurt him much to wait a minute." Mr. Steinberg answered: "That man's money is as good as the richest man's money in the city; he is entitled to as courteous treatment from me as the richest man in the city, and I want him to feel that I want his trade; that I appreciate it, and so long as you are in my employ I want you to treat every man alike." This has been one of the great secrets of Steinberg's success; a courteous, gentlemanly treatment of every customer. They have an immense stock of goods and are always ready to show them.

Beauty Regained.

The beauty and color of the hair may be safely regained by using Parker's Hair Balsam, admired for its perfume and dandruff eradicating properties.

It is very fortunate that no one is conscious of his own faults, however sensitive he may be to those of another. We are very like the Englishman who said that although he was a Cockney he had long ago conquered the habit of dropping 'is hatches.'

HON. AMOS LAWRENCE has written a letter to Prof. Canfield accepting the invitation of the University and the City Council to visit the city in June. The editorial association meets here then, and they will have an opportunity of hearing Wendell Phillips and Amos Lawrence speak.

MR. H. J. DANFORTH is now permanently settled for the summer at Bismarck. He has ten fine thoroughbred horses under his care, which he is training. Some of the horses are unusually promising, and as Danforth knows how to get out all there is in them, some good records can be looked for at the fall races.

The Osborne Twine Binder.

Passing J. Howell's Saturday he called us in to see the new twine binder for 1882. We were one of the doubtful crowd who thought a twine binder could never be made a success. The Osborne binder of 1881 was a success, and so great a success that this year there are dozens of twine binders, all of whom were forced to make such a machine because of the success of the Osborne. The machine for this year, so far as one can judge of a machine without seeing it in the grain, is a perfect success. Great and rapid improvements have been made, the machine has been simplified and strengthened in its weak points, and we cannot see now why a twine binder should not work as well, if not even better, than a wire binder. Twine can do no harm, but broken bits of wire may. If the Osborne machine was a success before, it cannot help but be doubly so this year, with the vast improvement that have been made on it. We had stepped in simply to see the binder, but we could not help but notice the vast array of agricultural implements on every hand, all of the very best and latest pattern. Our advice to any farmer making a purchase of any machine, would be to call upon Justus Howell, at 138 Massachusetts street.

European Nectar.

Nectar was supposed to be the beverage of the gods, which contributed much toward their eternal existence. It was, according to poetic fable, a most delicious liquor, far exceeding anything that the human mind can imagine. It imparted a bloom, a beauty and a vigor which surpassed all conception, and together with ambrosia repaired all the decays or accidental injuries of the divine constitution. European Nectar was not made for the gods but for man. It was called nectar because while it contained those qualities which gave strength and beauty to the partaker, its taste was as agreeable as is the dew-drop to the rose. Dr. Carl Neuman made it in this city for years and built up a large trade in it. It is as agreeable to the taste as soda water, and contains all the good medical qualities of seltzer powders or cathartics, without any of the objectionable features which accompany them. It is utterly impossible for a man to drink freely of European Nectar and be ill. In one word it is the unrivaled Summer Drink, and indispensable invigorator of the nervous system, improving the blood, digestion and circulation and regulating the perspirative and respirative functions of the human body. Being a vegetable compound, it is positively uninjurious. There are five reasons why everybody should drink European Nectar:

- 1st. Because it is not intoxicating.
- 2d. Because it quenches thirst and prevents internal fevers.
- 3d. Because the doctors highly recommend it, both as a wholesome and pleasant drink.
- 4th. Because it is a specific for nervous or sick headache.
- 5th. Because it neutralizes all the foreign acids and gasses of the stomach.

"Death comes in very strange ways, and with unaccountable caprice sometimes. Mr. John Palmer an actor, while on the stage, has just uttered the line, 'There is another and a better world,' when he fell and immediately expired. And in 1758, Joseph Patterson, another actor, was performing the part of the Duke in 'Measure for Measure,' and had rendered the lines

Reason thus with life;
If I do lose thee, I do lose a thing
That none but fools would keep; a breath
thou art—

when he dropped into Mr. Moody's arms and never spoke again. While it is certainly not necessary to haunt yourself with the thought of the long journey it is just as well to have your trunk at hand and partly packed, because the time table of human life is difficult to read and the train may start at an unexpected hour.

Lightning Rods.

THE SPIRIT has always been careful to warn its readers of the various swindles that flood the country, not the least of which is the lightning-rod men who annually scour the country for victims. There is no doubt that a lightning rod, properly put up, is a great protection to property, but the sharks who go over the country robbing the farmers not only do not do good work, but they frequently get an innocent man's note for a sum that he never intended to contract for, or his signature to a note when he only supposed he was signing an innocent order or certificate. Now, as we have before said, if you want lightning-rods, purchase them of some of our local dealers who live here and who would not stoop to any of the swindling operations. Mr. William Asher of this city, who has put up miles of rods, has resumed the business and will, we are sure, deal honestly and honorably with all who patronize him. He and his brother carried on the business here for years, and it is sufficient evidence of their honorable dealing to say that so popular was Mr. Henry Asher that our people made him sheriff. No man who had ever stooped to any of those low, mean tricks could have successfully passed through a political campaign. If you want lightning rods we can recommend you to Mr. Asher.

Some people are able to give good reasons for their conduct, and some others have no reasons at all. A quick-witted boy who was accused of going in swimming, the proof of which was that his shirt was on wrong side out, told his mother that the shirt must have got turned while he was climbing over a fence.

A Chicago Broker's Investment.

Lewis H. O'Connor, Esq., whose office is located at 98 Washington street, this city, lately related the following in the hearing of one of our reporters as an evidence of special good fortune. I have been suffering, said Mr. O'Connor, for a number of weeks with a very severe pain in my back, believed to be from the effects of a cold contracted while on the lakes. I had been prescribed for by several of our physicians and used various remedies. Three days ago I abandoned them all, and bought a bottle of St. Jacob's Oil, applied it at night before retiring and to-day feel like a new man. I experienced almost an instant relief and now feel no pain whatever. Chicago Journal.

Fine Quarters.

Mr. G. A. Faas has lately removed his piano and music store to the room formerly occupied by Henry Ray. The room has been elegantly repapered and fitted up in the neatest style. Mr. Faas has a very select stock of goods in his line, which will be shown to visitors with pleasure by himself or his charming clerk. The store containing as it now does the attractive stock of Mr. Faas and Mr. G. H. Murdock presents as fine an appearance as any on the street.

The Household.

Correspondence to "The Household."
Some Thoughts About Home by One Who Knows.

DEAR HOUSEHOLD FRIENDS:—I would like to give you the representation of a good and happy home, such as may be built up either in country or city, on a hundred acre farm or on a lot just large enough for a family cottage. It is sometimes counted as a foolish thing to describe an ideal home, a home of the fancy or the imagination, a home which exists only in thought, and has no solid, material, objective reality. But must we not, my friends, have the idea before we have the reality? Did a man ever construct a house before he had the idea of a house? Did an artist ever paint a picture before he had an idea, more or less vivid, of the coloring, the shape, the proportions of the picture? So, methinks, every one must have the idea of a home before he can construct one and make it a reality. It is sometimes, perhaps often, the case that people have idealities alone, that they dream of a beautiful and happy home, and live and move and have their being in that dream, without any attempt to make the dream true and become a reality. This kind of idealism is of little use unless efforts, strenuous efforts, are put forth to embody our ideas in actual life, to realize them in outward, visible form.

My ideal home is in the country, on a farm, on an eighty-acre lot somewhat diversified with rolling prairie, bluff, ravine, clumps of trees, or as we term it, a variegated landscape. Is this mere sentiment, a poetic fancy, an idea of no practical value? Not so. The outward aspect of things, the influence of nature, the clouds, the sunrise and sunset, the stream that glides through the meadow, the gentle slope, the steep rocky bluff, the spreading elm tree, the robust oak, the wild flowers, the red-bud glowing in the ravine, the wild grape clasp and tree, all these things enter through the eye into the very soul of man; they form, fashion, and mould his sensitive and moral nature, sharpen his intellect, quicken his perceptive faculties, widen out his mental vision, and lead him to look upward and outward into the higher and broader realms of spiritual and eternal realities. It is only dense stupidity and blind ignorance that deny or ignore the influence of nature in the moulding of character and the ennobling of life.

Then the house itself, the nest in which to rear the family, to educate the children, to domesticate the affections, this is not of small importance in the economy of life and the making of a home. There is a very wide difference between a house for show and outward splendor and a house for convenience, comfort, repose, and happiness. To plan and to build a house entirely fitting one's purse and taste and family wants, requires no small amount of thought, much steadiness of purpose, and great executive ability. The house should be planned and built, not for the needs of one generation, but for many, to be the home of children and children's children for generations to come. A roving, unsettled people are always a rude, unfinished, incomplete people. We might as well expect to produce a deep-rooted, wide-spreading oak by taking it up and removing it every decade, as to establish a happy and prosperous home by running from place to place, and moving from pillar to post.

The old adage, "A rolling stone gathers no moss," has a very wide application. It not only hints at smallness of material wealth, but at meagreness of moral and spiritual wealth as well. To have the affections grow and mature there must be a fixed and permanent abode. The heart gathers up and treasures things as well as persons. In moving from place to place we may carry our families but not the penates of our homes. In going from the old home we necessarily leave the warm hearth stone. The old cup-board cannot be carried with us. The bed-room in which our first-born said their infant prayers and sweetly slept must be left behind. The table at which we eat our daily meals may be trundled off with the rest of our household goods, but no place will ever be found for it to stand so cozy, home-like, and fitting as the kitchen where it first was laid and where it for years stood. The old fire-place around which we and our children gathered on a winter's evening can never when once forsaken, be made good. No, the longer we live in our first-made homes the more beautiful do they become, and the dearer to our hearts each successive year. We can never leave them without leaving some of the best part of our lives behind us. Abruptly yours,

OLD BACH.

Correspondence to "The Household."

"Perhaps silence would be sense,
But if ignorance is feigned,
Our 'Goddess' will fall and Sweet Liberty be chained."

The above lines seem fitting through my mind as I take up my pen to try and answer some of the questions propounded by our worthy editor, but first, I want to continue that shot about books, authors, etc. I want to say, it was not for lack of appreciation for Whittier that I omitted his name from my list of favorites, and though last best by no means least among them, for I almost feel reverential when reading his poems, there is something so calm and pure and good about them.

With the eyes of our imagination we can see his life-boat, floating calmly along the shores of "Light," catching through sails of purest faith the strengthening breezes of the summer wind, bearing him swiftly on the flower of rest, while songs of thankfulness are springing spontaneously from his lips.

And of books; we wish to say that we too consider them a great moral force in helping to mould the character of the young especially.

But we are told that "example is stronger than precept," and we will not dispute it, for we are just ignorant and old-fashioned enough to think that we owe our moral and religious scruples to the teachings of that much-abused book, called the Bible, taught both by precept and example by our own dear mother from our earliest recollections. She has crossed, long since, the waters of death, but the example of Christian faith and charity remains a statute in the halls of memory.

Now to that new "stand-point." As we were not in favor of using the Bible for a text book in our schools, neither would we be in favor of using Tom Paine's or any other infidel's writings as one. Yet, if a majority should insist upon a passage being read, at the opening of school, so long as those passages were moral, and songs the same, we should insist upon our children being respectful (not reverential) whenever we could not do that much we would simply withdraw from the school; which would be our blessed privilege in this grand country of ours. Do not understand us to say that we are in favor of introducing any creeds in the schools—far from it; but we are in favor of leaving this question, or rather the teachers, unfettered by legal chains, to ask the blessing of God, to read a chapter, or not, according to the Heaven-born principles of Freedom. That would be doing as we would wish to be done by. Upon these principles of toleration we would be equal. St. Paul says: "Let your toleration be known to all men." Upon these principles we cannot see where there is any room for complaint, so long as teachers are required to be of good moral character, and teach good manners and morality in our schools. Aye, we had better even tolerate what we think is an evil than to "fetter" what we know to be good. The glorious principle of liberty:

"The heavy night hung dark,
The hills and waters o'er,
When a band of exiles mood'd their bark
On the wild New England shore.

Amidst the storm they sang;
And the stars heard, and the sea,
And the sounding alarums of the dim woods rang
To the anthem of the free.

What sought they thus a far?
Bright jewels of the mine?
The wealth of seas? the spoils of war?
They sought a faith's pure shrine.

They left unsmothered what there they found,
Freedom to worship God."

CONTRIBUTOR.

HANGINGS have been robbed of many shocking features in late years, but there is still a chance for reform here. The custom (which was followed as usual recently in the case of Sindram), of lowering the body of the poor wretch a moment or so after the trap is sprung in order that the doctors may count the flutterings of the pulse until it goes out to be stopped. All that science can learn by such an investigation was acquired long ago. Why not let the man hang for half an hour and then cut him down once for all?

SERGEANT BALLANTINE'S opinion of Thackeray, as stated in his volume of reminiscences, goes to prove the shallowness of the worthy lawyer's judgment. "Never," he says, "thought him an agreeable companion. He was very egotistical, greedy of flattery, and sensitive of criticism to a ridiculous extent. He may have possessed great powers of conversation, but did not exhibit them upon the occasions when I had an opportunity of judging."

The last time I saw him was about three weeks before his death. He was sitting alone at a table at Evans's, poring over an obscure Irish journal in which some derogatory remarks about himself were published. He attributed them to an individual whom I need not name, and was intensely angry, which I confess I thought at the time was eminently absurd.

Faithful in Little.

"O, mamma!" she said, looking up with flushed face, "there is just the loveliest story in here! It is about a little girl who was only ten years old, and her mother went away to see a sick sister, and was gone for a whole week; and this little girl made tea and toast, and baked potatoes, and washed the dishes, and did every single thing for her father; kept house, you know, mamma. Now, I'm ten years old, and I could keep house for papa. I wish you would go to Aunt Nellie's and stay a whole month and let me keep house. I know how to make toast, mamma, just splendidly! and custard, and Hattie she said she would teach me how to make ginger cake some day. Won't you please to go mamma?"

"I don't think I could be coaxed to do it," said Mrs. Eastman. "The mother of that little girl in the book probably knew that she could trust her little daughter, but I should expect you to leave the bread while it was toasting, and fly to the gate if you heard a sound that interested you, and I should expect the potatoes to burn in the oven while you played in the sand at the door. I couldn't trust you in the least."

"Mamma!" said Emma, with surprise and indignation in her voice. "Why do you say that? You have never tried me at all. Why don't you think I wouldn't do as well as a girl in a book?"

"Haven't I tried you dear? Do you know it is just three-quarters of an hour since I sent you to dust the sitting room, and put everything in nice order for me? Now look at those books, tumbled upside down on the floor, and those papers blowing about the room, and the dust on the chair, and your toys on the table, while my little girl reads a story about another little girl who helped her mother?"

"O, well," said Emma, her cheeks very red, "that is different; nothing but this old room to dust. If I had something real grand to do, now hard I would work; I wouldn't stop to play, or to read, or anything."

"Emma, dear, perhaps you will be surprised to hear me say so, but the words of Jesus Christ show that you are mistaken."

"Mamma," said Emma again, and her voice showed that she was very much surprised.

"They certainly do," said Mrs. Eastman. "He that is faithful in that which is least, is faithful also in much, and he that is unjust in the least, is unjust also in much."

"And once he said to a man: 'Well done good and faithful servant, thou hast been faithful over a few things; I will make thee ruler over many things.' Can I say that to you this morning?"—Penny.

Farm and Stock.

Subscribers are earnestly requested to send for publication in this department any facts not generally known, but of interest to stock raisers and farmers. "Farmers, write for your paper."

Clover Seedling.

The proper seedling of clover is one of the nicest operations incumbent on the careful farmer. In the most judicious rotation of crops, "clovering" is one of the most important duties—for clover is indispensable as a fertilizer, and convenient and valuable in other respects. In fact, a due estimate has never been set upon trifolium as a preventive of malarial troubles and a promoter of human health. Some persons regard a clover field as equal to a grove of eucalyptus trees, in the correction of malarial tendencies—and justly, we think. However, there is none to dispute the merits of clover, or inclined to depreciate its pre-eminent value among farm plants. Much, however, needs to be inculcated in regard to the proper preparation of the ground and planting the tiny seed of clover to the best advantage. Even when the most approved methods in these respects are observed, it is estimated that not more than 80 per cent of the seed thrown from the hand takes root and grows. In the customary way, probably not half of the usual medium of clover seed appropriated to an acre is properly sown, covered, and fruited. As the safest rule, a thorough pulverization of the ground, an even sowing of the darkest seeds, and a slight covering with the mold, such as washes over the ground with a bunch of light, bristly, leafless limbs would produce, would doubtless work the best results. In the early spring, after the frost is out, leaving the top of the ground slightly disturbed by the winter freezing, it answers tolerably well to sow clover among the young wheat or oats, relying on the next gentle rain to wash the seed well down among the roots of the more mature crops—but is at once seen that the success of this course depends upon many contingencies. Neither clover nor any other plant of its order will take root and grow, unless the seed comes in contact with the mold and imbibes moisture and pabulum from the chemical qualities of the earth about it. Though the germ be infinitesimal—invisible in fact through a strong lens—nature requires a submission to her conditions, that they may live and flourish. Hence, all the clover seed which is not suitably covered—neither too shallow nor too deep—will certainly fail to spring up. We have seen it stated that a large per cent of the grass seed generally, if covered by an inch of earth, will never grow, but that it is necessary to cover most kinds to the depth of one-fourth of an inch in order to insure their vitality. With this fact in view, the importance of properly pulverizing the soil before sowing, and of covering the seed afterwards is plainly apparent. It follows from the above considerations that if due attention be given to securing clean, fresh seed, to the ground, to the evenness in sowing, and to the shallow covering of the seed, the farmer has done all that is possible to secure a good set of clover. The vicissitudes of frost and drought it is impossible to guard against, but each land cultivator may gain much by a close observation of the year upon the effects of meteorological phenomena on all his crops. —Cincinnati Gazette.

Sunflower Seed for Poultry.

The aesthetic craze may not be so productive of practical results as some other ideas that suddenly take hold of the public mind, but the sunflower befall the standard, as it were, of this new idea, may receive the attention it deserves, and become not only a fashionable fable, but also a profitable plant. The Mammoth Russian is one of the most profitable varieties, and should be cultivated in rows six feet apart with the plants four feet in the rows. The result will be a yield of seed at the rate of from fifty to 100 bushels per acre, and for poultry makes the best feed of anything we have ever tried. They should be fed about three times a week during the laying season, and will give the very best results in eggs. During cold weather the oil in the seeds serves the same purpose as in the lamp, and furnishes fuel to keep up the animal heat.

For show birds and exhibition a short diet of sunflower seeds gives the feathers an extra glossy coat, and a clean, bright look to the combs and gills. The advantages of a small plot of sunflowers near the house in warding off malaria is worth all the trouble of cultivating them, as well as the ornament and development of the aesthetic among the young. —Farmers' Advocate.

Sorgho for Fodder.

COL. COLMAN:—In compliance with yours in note at the end of my last, I will give in my evidence concerning sorgho as a forage plant. When intended for that purpose, it may be sown broadcast, or with a common wheat drill, about one bushel per acre, first making the ground well prepared and mellow; after sowing, thoroughly harrow and smooth the surface. As soon as the majority of the stalks are fully headed, cut with a self-raking reaper, allow to lay in one day's hot sun, bind, and set in small round shocks. If you do not wish to range the field with stocks let it remain till needed. The after growth will pay for removing the shocks, but in no case remove in large piles or stacks, reset in long shocks about five feet thick. If sown as early as the middle of April, two crops may be cut from the same seedling in this latitude. Any one who pursues this course, and has such weather for cutting as he would like for hay, will have a quantity of fodder that any kind of stock will greedily eat up clean, and which in my opinion is far superior to fodder prepared from any other plant.

S. S. Dickinson, of Pawnee county, Kansas, claims the rice sorgho for rice corn (Egyptian) as fodder, but verily in the common understanding of the term fodder, you had as well have hazel brush as the entire stalks of rice corn, for cattle and sheep would eat them up about as clean. Nothing will eat the hard, crooked necks of the rice corn or its juiceless stalks, but prepared and served up as he suggests, it would be about the same as feeding the grain, which is excellent for any purpose, but his 75 to 100 bushels per acre was an enormous yield. Sorghum is one of our most valuable plants, in whatever shape or condition you wish to use it—the stalk for hay and sugar, and whether cut young or allowed to mature, whether small or large as fodder, sheep will eat it up clean, the by-product for fuel or paper material, and the seed is as good as corn for any feeding purpose.

Breaking Prairie with Sheep.
Do you hitch them up? No, sir; we fence them up. Five sheep will break an acre in two years, or 500 sheep will break 100 acres in two years, besides manuring the land and keeping themselves during the summer; all they need is a fence to enclose them and water to drink. They do the best kind of work, and can't be beat. Our experience in this business is as follows: My flock consists of about five hundred sheep. Two years ago I fenced in about one hundred and fifty acres of wild pasture and used it for sheep pasture. The pasture was good until last summer. I did not think for one moment but the blue joint grass was all right. (It has immense and numerous roots which are sent down deep in the soil) and was good I supposed for ten or fifteen years' pasturage, but I accidentally discovered last fall that the close pasturage of sheep had killed it, the roots were rotted, and on putting in the plow the mellowest soil a farmer could desire was turned up. My sheep in two years had broke over one hundred acres. I am now (March) having it plowed, and in hiring some done I found the party would prefer plowing in this pasture than "backsetting" last summer's breaking. I estimate the value to the one hundred acres added by the sheep at six hundred dollars; two dollars per acre in killing the prairie grass and four dollars per acre in their manure. I suppose it is of greater value than this, but it is certainly this. Of course, breaking prairie with sheep is another and a new source of profit in these most valuable animals on the farm, and I place it on record to their credit in the Iowa Farmer. I have just pulled down and removed over two miles of six wire (three smooth and three barbed) fence, and just as soon as frost is out shall fence a new pasture on the wild or unbroken prairie for my sheep. On looking it over I find my fencing cost me $250 per mile. In two years I have got back $300 per mile by pasturing my sheep on the land fenced. Looking at it in this light it seems to be quite a profitable thing to fence prairie to pasture sheep. I suppose the wire will last ten years yet. I must confess this adds a new value to sheep and is a new idea to me. My farm is on the "Slope" in western Iowa. —Iowa Farmer.

Grafting Stone Fruit.

To be successful in grafting trees that bear stone fruit, the work should be done quite early in the season. A scion in an apple or pear tree, may be set with success after the buds on the tree are broken open, if the scions be cut in March; but to set scions in a cherry tree, after the buds have commenced to break open, would in very rare instances be followed with success. A cherry tree should be grafted in March or early in April, if the tree be large, or even medium size; very small trees that are grafted just below the surface of the ground, may be grafted later, if the scions be cut in March, and packed in moist earth, and kept in a cool place.

A large peach is more difficult to graft with success than a cherry tree; but small peach trees may be grafted, and the grafts made to live with considerable certainty, if grafted low enough to permit covering the lower part of the scion with earth. Whenever the buds that are set in peach trees fail to grow, and the stock becomes too large to bud again, it is good policy to graft them very near the surface of the ground; but the scions should be set very early in the season.

In cutting peach scions it is important that they should be selected with great care; especially is this true the present season, when so large a proportion of the small twigs have been injured by the autumn and winter. A scion cut from a twig that has received the least injury, will be very likely to die. The buds should be well ripened, and scions with only a few buds selected; the bark should be of a good healthy color, and the wood, when cut off, should show no signs of disease; and the tree should be cut off below where there is any indication of disease, or of being water-killed. The wound made by cutting the tree off should be kept well covered with clay or wax, until nearly healed over, thus preventing the gum from running out. The same precaution is necessary to prevent the gum from running out of the cherry tree. The plum is less difficult to graft, the scions are usually in a thrifty condition, and the stocks are more hardy, and the wounds heal over with more readiness if the black knots are kept cut off. —Massachusetts Ploughman.

A successful dairy farmer of Wisconsin relates his experience as follows: I planted an acre of Imphee (sorghum or Amber) as well. A touch of frost induced me to cut it early, and not succeeding in getting a mill to work it in time, I stacked it the same as corn, and afterwards drew it convenient to the barnyard. In December I fed it to my milch cows, throwing it over to them whole, same as corn stalks. Now the result. Although they had abundance of hay, they were greedy for the one as boys after sugar plums. Every scrap of it was eaten, and so close that nothing was left to indicate what had been fed to them; no food seemed to do them so much good. We could see no material difference in the quantity of the milk, but in the quality our good housewife said she never saw anything like it for was nearly all cream. I believe an acre of cane is worth more for milk cows than many acres of hay. Plant a patch of cane for your cows for cream, and a bed of carrots for the color, and feed; the cow's mouth is the true strainer for a good color; and let dye stuff alone. Try it.

Spring Care of Horses.

In the hurry of the opening of Spring work, many farm horses are injured by being required to change at once from idleness to hard labor. Sometimes, in such cases, additional harm comes from too suddenly increasing the food supply. Colts are certainly often severe sufferers from over-exertion in the process not inaptly called "breaking," or when first set to hard work. Injury from ill-fitting harness is more common than many suppose. Good necks and backs cannot always be prevented, but they ought not to come from bad-fitting collars or bands. There are some farmers who abuse their horses by blows or kicks, or who insufficiently feed them, but there are not so many of those as of the class who have wisdom to be cruel, but who are so either from thoughtlessness or ignorance. —Breeder's Gazette.

Be Careful What You Eat.

Dr. Bergeron reports to us of having a genuine case of trichinosis on his hands this week. Three members of the family of Mr. Ingenuance Belanger, who live three miles south of Ames, this county, were attacked with the disease one day last week after eating some sausage made of the raw meat of a hog they had slaughtered a few days previously. On Saturday, the youngest of the three sick persons, a boy about eleven years of age, died. The other two, a young man about nineteen years of age, and a young lady seventeen or eighteen years old, are in a very precarious condition.

It seems that the hog that caused the trouble was sick about a month ago, but having apparently got over its illness and not fattening any, it was killed and eaten with the above mentioned results. Mrs. Belanger says she tasted a little of the uncooked meat as she was making the sausage, but says she did not feel any ill effects until Monday, when she was taken sick in the same manner as her children, though not as grievously as they, and from present indications she of the sick ones is the only one likely to recover. The other members of the family did not eat any of the pork, at least not in its uncooked state, and are in their usual health.

We looked at some of the deceased meat through a microscope and could plainly see the trichinae coiled spirally in their cells or cysts. The light of the unguinally parasit strongly inclined us to believe that the hog had been the life of a strict vegetarian. —Clyde Democrat.

The Clergyman's Annoyance.

Nothing can be more annoying or unpleasant to our clergyman than the constant coughing of some of his congregation; yet how easily can this be avoided, by using Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption. There can be no cough or cold, however severe, but what this remedy will relieve instantly. It is a positive cure for asthma, bronchitis, phthisis, quinsy, hoarseness, sore throat, dry hacking cough, croup, whooping cough, difficulty of breathing, or any affection of the throat and lungs. To prove this, I asked to call on Barber Bros., druggists, and get a trial bottle free of cost, which will show you what a regular one dollar size bottle will do.

How Watches Are Made.

It will be apparent to any one who will examine a SOLID GOLD WATCH, that aside from the necessary thickness for engraving and polishing, a large proportion of the precious metal used is needed only to stiffen and hold the engraved portions in place, and supply the necessary solidity and strength. The surplus gold is actually needless so far as UTILITY and beauty are concerned. In JAS. BOSS' PATENT GOLD WATCH CASES, this waste of precious metal is overcome, and the SAME SOLIDITY AND STRENGTH produced at from one-third to one-half of the usual cost of solid cases. This process is of the most simple nature, as follows: a plate of nickel composition metal especially adapted to the purpose, has two plates of SOLID GOLD soldered one on each side. The three are then passed between polished steel rollers, and the result is a strip of heavy plated composition, from which the cases, backs, centres, bezels, etc., are cut and shaped by suitable dies and formers. The gold in these cases is sufficiently thick to admit of all kinds of chasing, engraving and enameling; the engraved cases have been carried until worn perfectly smooth by time and use without removing the gold.

THIS IS THE ONLY CASE MADE WITH TWO PLATES OF SOLID GOLD AND WARRANTED BY SPECIAL CERTIFICATE. For sale by all jewelers. Ask for Illustrated Catalogue, and to see warrant.

Dr. Frazier's Root Bitters.

Frazier's Root Bitters are not a draw-shop whisky beverage, but are strictly medicinal in every sense. They act strongly upon the liver and kidneys, keep the bowels open and regular, make the weak strong, heal the lungs, build up the nerves and cleanse the blood and system of every impurity.

For dizziness, rush of blood to the head, tendency to apoplexy, dyspepsia, fever and ague, dropsy, pimples and blotches, scrofulous humors and sores, tetter and ring worm, white swelling, erysipelas, sore eyes, and for young men suffering from weakness or debility caused from imprudence, and to females in delicate health, Frazier's Root Bitters are especially recommended.

Dr. Frazier says: "I have used two bottles of your Root Bitters for dyspepsia, dizziness, weakness and kidney disease, and they did me more good than the doctors and all the medicine I ever used. From the first dose I took I began to mend, and I am now in perfect health, and feel as well as I ever did. I consider your medicine one of the greatest of blessings."

The Fort Scott Monitor is in favor of allowing the Republican County Committee to name delegates to the Congressional Convention at Ottawa, as was done at Atchison recently. It says:

We publish the above from the Atchison Champion as a precedent, which in our opinion the Republican Central Committee of this county may safely follow at their meeting of May 6. So far as we are informed there is no opposition whatever in this county to Mr. Haskell. The committees of a great many counties in the State have adopted a similar course. If the committee can agree unanimously upon the question, delegates may be selected as satisfactorily in that way as to call a county convention. There will be no opposition to Mr. Haskell in the convention at Ottawa.

COW FEEDING.

The Result of an Interesting Experiment on the Farm of the Ohio State University.

Chicago Breeders' Gazette.

At the farm of the Ohio State University, in the winter of 1881, an experiment was made to test the value of slight fermentation of meal, before feeding, to milk cows. Four cows were selected, two being fed on dry corn meal and wheat shorts, six pounds daily to each cow and two fed equal quantity of like food, mixed with warm water, and allowed to stand until fermentation had commenced. After two weeks the conditions of feeding were reversed, and so alternately for ten weeks. All the cows had as much timothy hay as they could eat.

The average results were in favor of the fermented meal. The average gain in flesh per week for each cow so fed was 4 1/2 lbs., the average decrease in milk per week being 6 1/2 lbs. When fed dry meal the average gain in weight per week was about two-thirds of a pound, and the average decrease in milk per week nearly nine pounds.

As is usual in carefully conducted experiments, marked differences were found in the different cows. One gained in weight on the dry meal, and made no gain on the fermented, the other three lost flesh on dry meal and gained on the fermented. The cow thus differing from the others was the largest cow, was to calve the soonest, gave less milk than either of the others, and gained 69 pounds during the ten weeks. One other cow gave much more milk and gained 55 lbs in weight. A third lost 5 lbs. in weight.

The average weight of the cows during the whole period was almost exactly 1,100 lbs., and the average quantity of hay eaten each week per cow was 146 lbs., or nearly 21 lbs. each per week. This is about 19 lbs. per week for each 1,000 lbs. live weight.

Mr. C. E. Thorne, by whom the experiment was conducted, thinks it probable that greater advantage would have resulted from fermenting the hay as well as the meal.

Weather Report for April 1882, From observations taken at Lawrence, Kansas, by Prof. F. H. Snow, of the State University.

During this month the temperature and cloudiness were above the average, while the rainfall and wind velocity were nearly normal. The cold week, from 9th to 16th, produced only harmless "white frost," so that the immense fruit crops have escaped entirely uninjured. There was a brilliant auroral display on the night of the 18th, and a curious storm of almost impalpable dust on the 18th, from 5 to 6:30 p. m.

Mean Temperature, 56.83 degrees, which is 3.32 deg. above the average April temperature of the 14 preceding years. The highest temperature was 88 deg., on the 1st and 21st; the lowest was 35 deg., on the 11th; monthly range 53 deg. Mean at 7 a. m., 52.23 deg.; at 2 p. m., 65.88 deg.; at 9 p. m., 54.88 deg.

Rainfall, 3.20 inches, which is 0.17 inches above the April average. Rain fell on 9 days. There was no snow. There were five thunder showers, of which four were accompanied by hail. The entire rainfall for the four months of 1882, now completed, has been 7.18 inches, which is 0.62 inches below the average for the same period in the 14 preceding years.

Mean Cloudiness, 51.77 per cent. of the sky, the month being 3.06 per cent. cloudier than the average. Number of clear days 12 (entirely clear 4); half clear 6; cloudy 12 (entirely cloudy 6). Mean cloudiness at 7 a. m., 57.33 per cent.; at 2 p. m., 55.33 per cent.; at 9 p. m., 42.66 per cent.

Wind—S. W. 21 times; S. E. 17 times; N. E. 15 times; S. 9 times; N. 9 times; N. W. 8 times; W. 6 times; E. 5 times. The entire distance traveled by the wind was 14,226 miles, which gives a mean daily velocity of 474.20 miles, and a mean hourly velocity of 19.76 miles. The highest velocity was 40 miles an hour, from 2 to 4 p. m., on the 17th.

Mean height of barometer, 29.032 inches; at 7 a. m. 29.065 inches; at 2 p. m., 29.006 inches; at 9 p. m. 29.027 inches; maximum 29.449 inches, on the 29th; minimum 28.541 inches, on the 21st; monthly range 0.908 inches.

Relative humidity—Mean for month 61.7; at 7 a. m. 69.8; at 2 p. m. 48.7; at 9 p. m., 66.8; greatest 100, on the 22d; least 21.3, on the 30th. There was no fog during the month.

SOLID GOLD WATCHES!

THE OPPORTUNITY OF A LIFE-TIME.

We have lately purchased a bankrupt stock of Watches and Jewelry, which we shall offer in our catalogue at about half the usual prices. As the stock is very large, and we wish to turn it into money quickly, we have determined, in order to rouse public interest and secure applications for our catalogue of fine goods, to make an offer of a SOLID GOLD HUNTING CASE WATCH at a price much below the cost of production. Our offer is to send by registered mail (carefully packed in a wooden box), a Solid Gold Hunting Case Patent Lever Full Jeweled Watch on receipt of $19.65. We warrant the massive cases to be solid gold and beautifully engraved, as shown in cut. We warrant the movement to be a Swiss Patent Lever (which is the best movement known in the world) and full jeweled. These watches are not only the best time-keepers to be found now, but, being full jeweled, will remain so, and will be found as accurate 20 and 25 years hence as now, provided they have had fair usage.

This is a startling offer, and one that cannot be made by any other firm, as the actual cost of the watches in Switzerland is about twice the price at once, if at all. We make it only to secure customers for our other goods, catalogue of which will be sent to each purchaser. If any one on receiving the watch is dissatisfied, it can be returned at once and the money refunded. We sell all goods on this condition, and have the largest jewelry trade of any house in America. To those who wish to see the watch before buying we offer to send C. O. D., if $1.00 is sent in advance as a guarantee of the express charges. Privilege of examination is given before paying the bill. If ordered C. O. D., however, the customer must pay all express, including return of money. We do not make a penny on this watch, and cannot incur any expense beyond that of postage, which is provided for in the price named ($19.65). If you want a watch for actual wear order this one. Watch speculators will readily see that such a watch as this, which can be fully warranted, can be sold or traded and immense profits made. The watch is really just as good as any $150 gold watch, and can be so represented. Do not buy brass or composition watches, (really the same thing) with worthless movements, when by paying a little more you can have a solid gold watch which will be "a thing of beauty and joy forever."

LADIES' WATCHES.
Solid Gold Hunting Case, beautifully engraved, nickel movement, warranted good time-keepers, sent by registered mail to any address on receipt of $13.57. If not satisfied on its receipt, send it right back and get your money. C. O. D. on the same terms as the Solid Gold Patent Lever Full Jeweled Watch.

REMEMBER, we warrant these watches to be exactly as represented, and that they will give more than satisfaction, and that we deliver them to you free of charge, in good order, on receipt of price—or C. O. D., subject to charges, with privilege of examination if desired. Remit by post-office order, registered letter, bank check on New York, or send greenbacks by express.
