CAN YOU SAY

Can you say in parting with the day that's slipping fast,
That you helped a single person of the many you have passed,
Is a single life rejoicing over what you did or said,
Does someone whose hopes were fading now with courage look ahead?
Did you waste the day or lose it?
Was it well or poorly spent?
Did you leave a trail of kindness,
Or a scar of discontent?
As you close your eyes in slumber
Do you think that God would say?
"You have made the world much better
For the life you've lived today."

EVALUATING FFA CHAPTER ACTIVITY PROGRAMS

Each year the state association has the task of evaluating local chapter activity programs and ranking them into broad classification groups. This is an interesting, but difficult task. It is difficult because of the many intangibles involved. However, the state association believes that there are enough factors common to all chapters to enable the evaluating committee to satisfactorily rank the chapters.

In evaluating chapters in Kansas, the local chapter program of work and the achievement report are carefully analyzed by an adult committee. Final rankings are made by a committee comprised of the state FFA officers and members of the state staff.

Following Pearl Harbor, the state association ruled that supplemental materials would not enter into the judging of chapter accomplishment. This rule will hold for the 1946 state FFA chapter contest. However, one will have to admit that supplemental material is of value in substantiating claims of chapters as well as in many cases aiding the judges in forming correct opinions as to achievement standards.

The question is often asked whether all the detail involved in filing a written chapter program and an achievement report is justified. The answer in both cases is yes. In preparing the written chapter program of work the local adviser and chapter members are forced to be definite in their objectives, and the written program avoids misunderstandings because it is always available for reference. The achievement report is a definite check up on failures as well as successes. Both the program of work and the achievement report should be of value in improving the work of the chapter from year to year. The chapter contest offers an excellent means of broadening the perspective of the local FFA adviser and chapter members, and of stimulating a wide range of experience on the part of both. In addition, the participants will develop a sense of community responsibility, will acquire a higher regard for scholarship, and will learn to cooperate by working and playing together.

How Chapter Programs Are Ranked

First, the chapter goals set up in the program of work submitted to the state office before November 1 are checked against the accomplishments listed in the achievement report submitted. Second, the scope of chapter goals and accomplishments are checked against the goals included in the state association program of work. Next in order the chapter entry is scored on each of the eight divisions around which chapter programs are built. The scoring committee checks on a list of fundamental activities that properly fall under the various divisions. After checking the eight divisions, the scoring committee turns its attention to items not included in the eight divisions, such as salvage campaigns, sale of bonds and stamps, whether chapter followed recommendations and rules in compiling reports, etc.

National Score Card Weightings

The National Organization of FFA gives the following weightings to the eight divisions around which the local chapter program is centered. The judging committee scores each division on the basis of A, B, C, D. The weightings are of value only in maintaining perspective. The National chapter score card follows:

	Planned	Execution	Total
1. Supervised Practice	50	150	200
2. Cooperation	40	120	160
3. Community Service	40	120	160

The judges in the state chapter contest in Kansas do not claim to be infallible, and they welcome suggestions and counsel at all times. In addition to the written reports submitted by the local FFA chapters, the judges have first hand information dealing with chapter standards of performance obtained by means of personal visits by members of the state staff. While there is a spirit of friendly rivalry between the local chapters in the state, it is overshadowed by a spirit of cooperation on the part of local chapter advisers and the state staff in an effort to make the chapter contest a means of stimulating individual members to greater all-around development.

WELCOME HOME - HOOSAKU FURUMOTO

"Hoosaku (Howard) Furumoto, one of the finest FFA members it has been the pleasure of your editor to meet, was just in to bid me good-bye. He is leaving for the army." - From the Kansas Future Farmer Newsletter, December 15, 1942. Hoosaku Furumoto was president of the Hawaiian Territorial Association of Future Farmers of America in 1940, represented that association as a delegate at the 1940 national convention, and placed third in the national FFA public speaking contest of that year. At the time of his enlistment in the armed forces he was enrolled in veterinary medicine at Kansas State College.

On January 25, 1946, 2nd Lieutenant Hoosaku Furumoto, on terminal leave, called on your editor to pay his respects. We visited at considerable length, and because he volunteered for a dangerous and hazardous mission which contributed much to the cause of freedom, we want to tell you about his service record.

Howard enlisted in army intelligence December 12, 1942, and was sent to Camp Savage, Minnesota for his basic training. After completing the military intelligence school at Savage, he was sent to Camp Shelby, Mississippi, to receive basic infantry training. Upon completion of this training program he was returned to Camp Savage, where he volunteered for Merrill's Marauders.* He embarked for the CBI theatre on September 21, 1943. Merrill's Marauders consisted of a unit composed of volunteers from all over the United States, and of veterans of the SW Pacific. The volunteers sailed from Fort McArthur, California, and stopped by New Caledonia and Brisbane to pick up units of veterans who had volunteered to join the unit. They proceeded to a place approximately 100 miles south of Agra (the cite of the Taj Mahal) for intensive jungle training. Jungle training consisted of learning how to find one's way through tangled forests, how to march silently, how to cover up one's tracks, how to recognize landmarks in the jungle. They learned how to infiltrate, river crossing with full equipment, column development, camouflage, and marching in the dark. In short, the Marauders were trained for jungle fighting which is a matter of quick, close encounters, where a man's life hangs on his cunning and skill.

* - "To the list of World War II specialists in close combat - Edson's and Carlson's Marine Raiders, British Brigadier Orde Charles Wingate's Raiders, Mountbatten's Commandos, U. S. Army Rangers - another was added last week. It was Merrill's Marauders, first U. S. Foot soldiers to fight on the continent of Asia....All joined up after a Presidential call for volunteers 'for a dangerous and hazardous mission'....From Ledo last month they began their 100 mile circle march to the rear of the Japanese concentrations at Maingkwang, averaging 20 miles a day down crude trails Kachin tribes of Burmese had hacked many years ago. To avoid ambush, greatest terror of jungle warfare, intelligence and reconnaissance squads always patrolled the trains ahead of and behind their columns....They slept on the ground, each man under two blankets and a poncho, pestered by continuous rains and leeches. Last week they were repaid for all their discomforts, all their meticulous training: the stunned Japs were completely surprised to find U. S. troops throwing a road block across their only supply line in the Hukawng Valley." - TIME MAGAZINE, March 20, 1944.

The organization of the Merrill's Marauders was unique in that it was composed of 6 combat teams. A combat team was equivalent to approximately one-half of a battalion, or approximately 500 men. This was the plan of organization used in the North Burma area.

The North Burma jungles, according to Howard, are more formidable than those in India. In India you can penetrate the jungle at various places, but in north Burma you are always trail-bound. Most of the rivers are sluggish, but not the Irrawaddy. This river is about 300 yards wide, fairly rapid, cold and treacherous. The terrain of the Burma jungles was mainly mountainous. In such jungle terrain, every line of communication is a life line - rivers, rail, and roads run in a north-south direction. The only lateral communications are trails, footpaths, a few cart tracks, and dirt roads - usable only in dry seasons.

Training for jungle fighting was completed January 29, 1944. In early February, the outfit moved into Burma over the famous Lodo road, by means of forced marches. They moved at night under complete darkness, covering a distance of from 12 to 20 miles each night. The Lodo road was still under construction, so they did not have the best of footing. Equipment of the different units varied in accordance with the function of the unit. Howard, being in intelligence and reconnaissance, had to patrol ahead and behind the columns. He chose the M-1, which is the Girand rifle, for his principal defense weapon. The M-1 is semi-automatic.

The Marauders were to take the enemy by complete surprise, therefore all training and travel into action was held under the strictest secrecy. Theirs was a secret, dangerous adventure, and every man knew that there would be times when anyone sick, wounded, or unable to keep in line, would have to be left behind. At this time, the Chinese 22nd and 38th divisions were pushing the Japs back through Taipaga, and the strategy of the Marauders was to out-flank the enemy on the east and envelope the enemy from the rear.

The first meeting of the Marauders and the Japs occurred at Walawbum, a small native village in north Burma, sometime in early March, 1944. The element of surprise was so great, and the skill of the jungle trained fighters was so formidable, that the Japs lost 800 killed, while the Marauders suffered a casualty of 7 killed and 37 wounded. After this encounter, the Japs always referred to the Marauders as a "phantom division" - because they were striking everywhere. In reality, the Marauders were only a regiment. The strategic airfield at Myitkyina was captured May 7, 1944, and the Marauders were disbanded about two weeks later.

Howard was evacuated to the 14th evacuation hospital near Lodo, where he was treated for malaria and dysentery. He had both dysentery and malaria for more than a month before the capture of the airfield at Myitkyina. He remained in the hospital the month of June during the monsoon season. During this time the thermometer ranged from 95-100 degrees, with a humidity of 100% (this last is the editor's guess). Upon his release from the hospital, Howard was sent back to Myitkyina where he was attached to the Myitkyina task force. On the second day after his arrival, he came down again with malaria, was hospitalized in a local hospital, and released in 5 days. After serving a month here, the interpreters were called to Lodo where they were placed on detached service for temporary duty. Howard was sent to New Delhi early in September, 1944. During four months spent at this station he was hospitalized frequently, due to the recurrence of malaria. At this time, Howard had high hopes of being sent home with a detachment of patients, but orders came through for him to report to the China theatre.

In China he spent two and one-half months with the Chinese combat command in Kunming. He was next transferred to theatre headquarters in Chungking, and there placed on temporary duty with the Office of Strategic Service. At this time, Howard received a field commission of 2nd Lieutenant. He remained with the OSS approximately four months. Next he did a stretch of temporary duty in the Liuchow area, about 140 miles northwest of Canton. From this time until Howard was sent to the mainland, most of his time was spent riding airplanes between various headquarter groups, serving as interpreter. Howard is proficient in the English and Japanese languages, and knows a smattering of Chinese, Burmese, and Hindustani.

Howard's job while with his unit of Merrill's Marauders was to go out on reconnaissance patrols, and to cut in on enemy telephone communications. At nights he would go out on listening posts where he would listen to open conversation of the enemy. He also translated all captured enemy documents on the spot.

The Marauders subsisted on K rations all during the north Burma campaign. There were supplied by air.

The weather was very rainy while they climbed the Kumon range of mountains, and the climbs were very steep. Occasionally one of the sure-footed mules would slip and fall over the mountain side - this was the end of the mule. When a mule got killed or crippled, that meant he would wind up in Mule Steak - a pleasant change from K rations, according to Howard.

Leeches were the most irritating jungle animals encountered, with the sand flea ranking next in order.

While with the OSS, Howard headed the Black propaganda section. Black propaganda as distinguished from White propaganda, means propaganda that is put out by the Americans but is counterfeited so that it appears to be released from enemy headquarters. In order to handle this job, Howard had to train three of the enemy POWs.

Howard never got seasick nor airsick, which was fortunate. He is physically O.K. now, and will be glad to hear from his former FFA friends.

Howard left Shanghai for the states October 23, 1945. At Calcutta he boarded the Marine Devil on November 23, and arrived at Tacoma, Washington on December 20. He was permitted to debark on Christmas Eve.

Howard could hardly wait until he got back to Minnesota. He arrived there January 5, 1946, and on January 15, 1946, he married Miss Viola Ferris, of Minneapolis, Minnesota, a medical technician graduate of the University of Minnesota, whom he had met during his training period at Camp Savage. Mr. and Mrs. Furumoto are living at 1701 Poyntz Avenue, Manhattan, Kansas. Howard has resumed his studies in Veterinary Medicine at Kansas State College.

INTERESTING ITEMS FROM THE NEBRASKA FFA NEWSLETTER

Columbus: The last FFA meeting of the school year is much looked forward to in our chapter. It is our annual FFA Award Night.

Neligh: A required shop project for each FFA member is an individual sign board with the boy's name and his special project as "purebred Jerseys" or "Certified Pawnee Wheat." These signs are used at the Junior Fair and on their home farms....Our chapter sponsored an FFA chorus last year. The twelve members wore FFA jackets, and blue trousers.

Auburn: Three FFA members put on a demonstration on "how to handle livestock." It was put on at the local community sale barn on the day of a large sale....All project record books that are neat and accurate are autographed by the town's leading banker....The retiring FFA officers assist in training and assisting the newly elected officers for a period of two weeks.

Nebraska City: One of our annual recreational activities is a hay rack ride. Real horses, not tractors, are used. The girl friends are invited.

Crete: We have a downtown window display all during the school year. This display is changed every two weeks.

DeWitt: On our FFA project tour we select the four outstanding projects. Our News Reporter, in cooperation with the local editor, writes up the story of these projects, and it then is published in the local paper.

Elkhorn: Our chapter spends one day of the Christmas vacation working in the ag. shop. We build feed bunks, hog houses, and such articles for farmers. They pay us for this work. The money is put into the FFA Treasury.

Fairbury: Each year we have one FFA meeting to which the public is especially invited. This helps to keep the public informed about the FFA. Last year over 500 attended this meeting.

Gothenburg: Our chapter has a revolving project loan fund. Any member recommended by the loan committee may borrow from this fund.

Seward: We give every member an FFA manual. We encourage him to build an FFA file in his "Ag" Library.

NATIONAL FFA OFFICERS EXTEND INVITATION TO PRESIDENT TRUMAN

The National Officers of the Future Farmers of America were highly honored while they were in Washington for the spring meeting of the National Board of Trustees and the Leadership Training Conference. Perhaps the most significant honor was their meeting with the President of the United States. An invitation was extended President Truman to attend the Victory Convention of the FFA which will be held at Kansas City, Missouri, October 20 to 24, 1946. President Truman stated that he hoped that he would have the privilege of accepting the invitation.

A dinner was given the officers by the editors of the Farm Journal. The dinner was followed by a round-table discussion of rural problems....The American Institute of Cooperation gave a dinner for the boys. Emphasis at this dinner was placed on the relationship between the FFA and farm cooperatives....The officers were invited to the offices of the National Grange for a discussion of current problems. A banquet by Grange leaders followed. ...The Boy Scouts of America invited the National FFA Officers to New York for a get-together with the national officials of the Scouts. Many questions were asked by the Scout officials concerning the FFA, and it was agreed that there were many ways in which Boy Scouts and Future Farmers can work together in rural America. At a recognition dinner at the Biltmore Hotel given in honor of youth organizations that were active in the production of Victory Gardens, a medal was presented to Eugene Starkey, representing the Future Farmers of America, in honor of the thousands of Victory Gardens that were grown by members of the organization....The National FFA Camp will open June 1 and will close September 10. A charge of 50¢ per night for FFA members will be made. George Washington's Old Grist Mill will be open to the public during the month of April and will be kept open as long as demand justifies keeping a guide on duty.

In addition to the regular business, the National Officers devoted much time to certain phases of leadership training. The week proved to be very interesting and inspirational for the National Officers of the Future Farmers of America.

FUTURE HOMEMAKERS OF AMERICA

During the past year a new youth organization has come into being - the Future Homemakers of America. The FHA is a national organization for high school students in homemaking. The plan of organization is patterned very closely after that of the Future Farmers of America. More than 100,000 members have enrolled in the 44 states and Hawaii. Approximately 2,500 chapters have been chartered. Myrtle Hilton, a high school student of home economics of Tiptonville, Tennessee is president of the national organization. Deania Burnworth, a high school student of home economics of Independence, Kansas, is one of the 11 vice-presidents of the Future Homemakers of America. The Kansas Association of Future Farmers of America extends greetings and best wishes to this new youth organization.

FRANKFORT: We have 48 members in the FFA organization. The following are the officers for this year: President - Gabriel Gunther; Vice President - John David Fansher; Secretary - Willard Tilley; Treasurer - William Gose; Reporter - Fred Morton, Jr.; Sentinel - Bob Jones....Our first meeting after school started was an invitation to a watermelon feed for the Green Hands. After the feed and business was finished, the gym was used for basketball and games....The pest eradication contest which was just completed, ran for a period of 30 days. The following pests were turned in: 1,250 cotton tail rabbits; 94 jack rabbits; 3 crows; 13 coyotes; 21 starlings; 694 sparrows; 247 mice; 162 rats. Our high point boy was Bob Griffith. As a prize he was awarded a box of shotgun shells. The losing side puts on a feed next meeting....Frankfort is putting on the northwest district poultry judging contest on February 23....More interest is being shown this year in our farmers' night school. The shop is filled to capacity almost every night. Some 30 members are paying a two dollar fee for a twenty night course. Seven tumble bugs, post hole augers, mowing machines and many other articles are being made or repaired.

Fred Morton, Jr., Reporter

ATCHISON COUNTY: Friday, January 11, the FFA boys, under the leadership of our adviser, Mr. Jensen, presented our annual assembly program in the high school auditorium. It was a short one-act play entitled, "Let The Wedding Bells Ring." This same play was presented at the annual meeting of the Farmers Union Elevator at Lancaster, Kansas, Saturday, January 26....The FFA Public Speaking Contest of the northeast Kansas district will be held at Effingham on April 12. We have 3 boys entering this contest, and we hope to have one represent our chapter at the state contest....Our annual Green Hand initiation was held in December. Chili was served, and entertainment consisted of several basketball games between the members and their dads....We plan to have our Parent and Son Banquet February 27....The Texas feeder lambs purchased cooperatively by the chapter last fall have been doing nicely and several of the members have marketed their lambs to a good advantage. Some of our members are holding until after February 1, in order to take advantage of the higher subsidy.

HORTON: To aid the sale of Victory Bonds, the Horton Chapter conducted a successful Bond Drive, according to Dale Ellingson and James Gaskell, who were on the committee appointed to handle the sales. $1350 worth of bonds have been sold, $200 of these to FFA members. The members set a goal of one bond per member....The chapter is holding a pest eradication contest....At an all school party sponsored by the FHA, the chapter gave two short stunts which were appreciated by those present....The chapter has ordered 100 pounds of cattle grub control dust. We plan to sell this to members in desired smaller quantities and to any farmer who wishes to purchase it....The chapter gave a $3.00 gift to the American Legion's "Gifts for Disabled Serviceman." Dale Ellingson, James Gaskell, Leonard Schesser, Keith Campbell selected the gift....On November 26 we had our first annual project tour in which we visited 17 projects....The tour lasted all day and consisted of hog and beef cattle judging in which Leonard Schesser, James Gaskell, Eugene Winterscheidt, Dale Ellingson, Donald Higley and Keith Campbell ranked highest. In a weight guessing contest, Leonard Schesser and Dale Ellingson did the best scoring.

He was a peculiarly unpleasant person, and when visiting the local cattle show made himself unpopular by his loudly expressed claims to superior knowledge. He was especially insulting to old Sam Potts.

"Pah," he said, sneeringly, "you know nothing about pigs, you don't. Why, my father raised the biggest pig ever raised in these 'ere parts."

"Aye," retorted old Sam, quietly, "and the noisiest."
