In an expanding university world, familiar faces provide the key to unlocking identities in a crowd. It is likely that the student who opens this book will search this crowd for faces familiar to him. Perhaps he will find his roommate, a fraternity brother, the graduate student from his history class, his first blind date. If so, for him, this will no longer be merely a picture of a crowd, but a picture with meaning because of its faces. For this reason, we present the 1967 Royal Purple—a Focus on Faces.

Coming to the campus from all directions, living in housing on all edges of its boundaries, staying through its seasonal changes, the students see many faces of the expanding University. It is a different picture if you are working on a lab project from the one you see leading cheers; a warm late summer date is different from walking alone in the early evening after the first snowfall; but each of these scenes forms a part of a composite memory that is Kansas State University, 1967.

Focus on Faces — — — —

Foreword

Facial expressions convey the thoughts and emotions of the individual to all around him. The twinkle of enjoyment in the eyes of a dancer, the worried glance of a drum major as he begins the march, the blank look of a reminiscing sailor in a campus play or the ever-present happy-go-lucky grin of the Willie the Wildcat say to everyone "This is me."

Focus on Faces of Fun

Happy faces are infectious. Hours spent laughing and having fun seldom are wasted, for they bring the simple enjoyment of sharing good times with fellow students. Half of college learning experiences are outside the classroom, they say. Study breaks at the beach, annual fraternity games, old athletic rivalries and joking conversations with a date or roommate etch themselves in our memories of college days more often than do classes.

Focus on Faces of Development

Continual processes of growth and development produce ever-changing faces for both individuals and the University. The bewildered look of a lost freshman is discarded with the used campus map — the hours of studying pass by unnoticed until the diploma is there to point them up. A quiet moment brings a chance for thoughtful growth for a student, and the campus continues to expand . . .

Focus on Faces of Achievement

Goals, large and small, provide incentives for future progress. Graduation is reached step by step as each day of classes is completed, as each hour of study passes. A finished picture, a royal cape, and a stream of students going home after another day are faces which achievement may assume.

A 30-foot Christmas tree; Harry Belafonte; the return to Homecoming house decorations; a dress-the-pledge contest — these features and others make Kansas State special for 11,000 students.

Fewer class hours carried by summer school students give many of them time to enjoy the beach at Tuttle Creek, five miles outside of Manhattan. Termed "Tuttle Puddle," the lake may be used by those willing to pay the $5 annual state park permit fee.

Eisenhower, Darby attend June graduation exercises

Distinguished guests at the University's 103rd commencement were Gen. Dwight Eisenhower and Kansas industrialist Harry Darby. Both received an honorary Doctor of Law degree during the annual June exercises. Replacing the traditional commencement address, President James A. McCain issued a short charge to the 2,042 graduates.

The 1966 summer session attracted a record 3,872 students. In early June a tornado ripped Manhattan, displacing residents of Jardine Terrace and destroying outlying University buildings.

Lines of students whose class schedules had been rejected by the new IBM 1410 data processing system, stand waiting to resend cards through the computer. Lengthening the lines were 2,000 who had not completed the pre-enrollment process.

Computer enrollment debuts during fall registration

Introduced at the University fall semester, computer enrollment eliminated the former time-consuming registration process for many students but caused confusion and frustration for others. Of the record 11,285 students who enrolled, about 1,800 had to revise schedules rejected by the computer. After re-arranging classes with an adviser, these students stood in line for hours waiting for reprocessing. For those whose schedules were accepted, the procedure required less than 30 minutes.

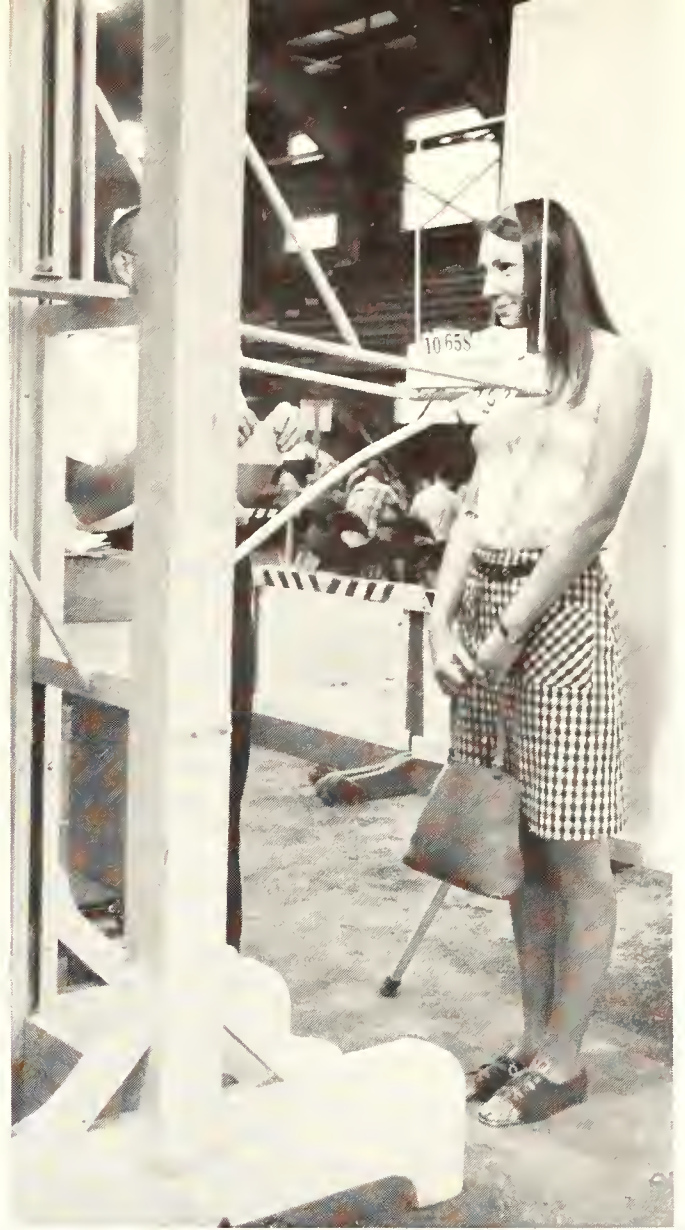

With enrollment figures at 604 more than the previous fall semester, six of the eight colleges registered gains. Arts and sciences showed the largest growth with a 200-student increase. Graduate School gained 120 students; agriculture, 100; commerce, 80; home economics, 80; and veterinary medicine 10. Engineering and architecture enrollment figures remained about the same.

Spring registration was swift and systematic for all but 150 of the 10,446 students who enrolled. After picking up grade cards and class cards, students filled them out, paid fees and received their schedules. Only two percent of the 9,512 who pre-enrolled in December received rejection slips.

Students supply home addresses, parents' names, telephone numbers and information on living accommodations to the University on IBM computer cards.

Mug shots taken during enrollment are filed with students' records in college deans' offices.

Illustrating a point with his own experiences, an orientation leader tells his group about University life. Correspondance during the summer and weekly sessions through the fall semester introduced freshmen and transfer students to the campus life.

Away from classrooms, new students seek out and enjoy the quiet solitude of a secluded campus pool. Places such as this one behind Justin hall are often passed unnoticed by students competing for a niche in the growing university community.

One of ten acts selected from auditions for the Freshman Talent Show, Barbara Mader entertains with a guitar and a song.

Students plan schedules for fall Orientation Week

Freshmen and transfer students planned their own orientation schedules for the first time during fall enrollment. Designed to introduce the new student to the University, the program included talks on campus life by student leaders, professors and administrative officials. A watermelon feed, movies and bands, sponsored by campus groups, entertained new students in the evenings.

Seminars and discussions for freshmen, directed by upperclass leaders, were changed to meet once each week through October instead of remaining part of regular Orientation Week activities.

New and returning students eat watermelon at a fall mixer after joining football players and coaches for a "Wildcat Warmup" Tuesday of Orientation Week.

Kelly the Magician pulls an egg and a chicken from a bag at the Freshman Talent Show.

Orientation activities for freshmen become informal as upper-class leaders shed their jackets to explain the purposes of student government to future campus leaders. Apathy was cited as the major obstacle to gaining effective student leadership.

Before class, students often meet in Farrell library to compare class notes, cram for an exam or research a term paper.

During 10-minute breaks between classes, students exchange hurried bits of conversation before a last minute dash to class.

Classes, meetings, study fill students' average day

Arriving on campus after a brisk walk from his dormitory or off-campus residence, the student begins a hectic day of classes, tests and meetings. Hurrying from Thompson to Physical Science, hunting for a book in the library or cramming for a test, the student has little time to pause in his daily schedule. Hours pass, marked only by the carillon chimes, and the student relaxes for a few minutes in the Union, playing bridge or enjoying a coffee break. As shadows fall across the limestone buildings, the student heads home to eat and talk with roommates before returning for a committee meeting, an evening class or a Union movie.

Relaxing the pace, students meet after class and discuss assignments while walking home to dinner or a meeting.

Popular after a day of classes, the Union Dive offers students jukebox music and vending machine cokes, sandwiches and coffee. During a two-week experiment to determine the need for a late-night student lounge, the area remained open until 2 a.m.

Bonnie Biery captures Homecoming queen title

Homecoming combined the traditional rivalry of a K-State-University of Kansas football game with the excitement of a queen contest and house decoration competitions. Selected from 19 candidates on the basis of Homecoming Preview skit presentations and interviews, five queen finalists competed in a campus election. After balloting, Bonnie Biery from Putnam hall was crowned queen.

In house decoration competitions, Phi Kappa Theta placed first in the fraternity division; Beta Sigma Psi, second; and Sigma Nu, third. Among sororities, Pi Beta Phi won first; Kappa Alpha Theta, second; and Alpha Xi Delta, third. In the independent division, Putnam hall ranked first; Smith Scholarship House, second; and Boyd hall, third.

After the crowning, Marjorie receives a congratulatory kiss from Rich Clarkson and a dozen roses from the yearbook staff.

Photographer picks queen, crowns her on regional TV

Televised over 25 stations in seven states, Marjorie Spear was crowned 1967 Royal Purple queen during pre-game ceremonies at the K-State-University of Kansas basketball game. Miss Spear was selected by Rich Clarkson, photography director of the Topeka Daily Capital, from 25 representatives of women's living organizations. Judged from single black and white formal portraits, Clarkson picked Miss Spear and four attendants solely on the basis of photogenic beauty.

Miss Spear, nicknamed "Sam" by her friends, was social chairman for Ford hall second floor. A freshman in elementary education, she planned to teach or attend graduate school after graduation.

Clarkson, who had been chosen regional photographer of the year for the Midwest by the National Press Photographers Association for four consecutive years, photographed the queen in color and the attendants in black and white for the yearbook.

Stunned by the announcement of the judge's selection, Marjorie Spear is named Royal Purple queen in Ahearn Field House.

University queen contests add to campus traditions

Tiaras, roses and approving applause were part of the tradition which was repeated with the crowning of every queen and fraternity sweetheart. Announcement of royalty was the highlight of many organization-sponsored activities and often climaxed several weeks of campaigning, skits and interviews for the prospective royalty candidates.

Rules set up by the AWS queens committee required a 2.2 over-all grade average for all candidates for major queen contests, who usually were nominated by women's living groups.

Coeds represented the University at conventions and parades and also vied for titles in their home towns, during conferences and at the state fair. Men were crowned Favorite Man on Campus, Spring Fling Wildcat, Greek Week king and St. Pat for Engineers' and Architects' Open House.

Ron Engelken, Phi Kappa Theta candidate, receives the crown and trophy of Favorite Man on Campus. Other finalists are Garry

Smith, Beta Sigma Psi; Bruce Heckman, Alpha Tau Omega; Conrad Nightingale, Beta Theta Pi; and Dave Langford, Marlatt.

Smiles and congratulations await Judy Hysom after judges selected her from 11 Miss K-State-Manhattan finalists.

University coeds compete in state beauty pageants

Nominated by Kappa Alpha Theta, Judy Hysom was crowned 1966 Miss K-State-Manhattan in a May pageant in the City Auditorium. Miss Hysom, who later competed in the Miss Kansas contest, received a $300 scholarship from the Manhattan Junior Chamber of Commerce and gift certificates. Candidates were judged on interviews, talent and appearance in bathing suit and evening gown.

Representing Kansas in the twelfth National College Queen contest in New York was Martha Fly, a member of Gamma Phi Beta sorority. Selected from other state candidates, Miss Fly was judged on scholarship, leadership, activities, essays and beauty. The 10-day pageant, sponsored by Best Foods, the Chrysler Corporation and the city of New York, included competition in music appreciation, fashion and personal grooming, physical fitness, current events and safe driving. The past two Kansas candidates have been University coeds.

Pep groups buy uniforms; cheering squad adds men

Team boosters added a new look at home and away varsity football and basketball games as the cheerleaders, pep band and K-Steppers donned new uniforms. Five men joined the cheerleading squad for the first time and added acrobatics to regular routines. The squad attended nine out-of-town games, including the pre-season Big Eight basketball tournament in Kansas City and the Kentucky Invitational tournament in December.

Special days bring guests to campus to see games

K-State graduates, Mr. and Mrs. Verdes Brown, were Chimes' 1966 Honorary Parents for Parents' Day October 8. Invited to a Union luncheon, living group teas and the K-State-Missouri football game, parents toured Veterinary Medicine Open House and watched the Young Americans' in concert.

Students in 52 Kansas high school bands formed a trumpet 120 yards long at the K-State-New Mexico game. After practicing in the morning, 1,000 high school cheerleaders demonstrated pompon routines at the K-State-Oklahoma State game. On Editor's Day, newspapermen from 200 Kansas papers listened to a discussion by journalism majors before watching the K-State-Iowa State game.

Belafonte concert draws 3,000 field house show

Harry Belafonte and the Young Americans highlighted the big-name talent to appear in University concerts first semester. Belafonte's medleys of ballads and calypso music attracted more than 3,000 students to Ahearn Field House for the November concert. Greek singer Nana Mouskouri and comedian Nipsey Russell appeared with Belafonte. The Parents' Day concert in October featured the Young Americans, a group of college and high school musicians who sang a variety of selections from patriotic to folk rock. Concerts by trumpeter Al Hirt and the Tijuana Brass were planned second semester.

"Barefoot in the Park" was the first presentation in the Manhattan Artist Series. The Chamber Music Series featured cellist Janos Starker, Metropolitan Opera Stars Irene Jordon and Nichilos di Virgilia and the Aeolian String Quartet.

of a lifelong process of self-education in attaining individualism at one of the four all-University convocations in the fieldhouse.

Speakers from all areas bring diversity to campus

Noted individuals, brought to the campus by the administration, the Union news and views committee and the controversial speakers committee, spoke to students at convocations throughout the year.

Among the speakers were Bennett Cerf, vice president of Random House; Robert Hutchins, education critic; Saul Alinsky, Chicago criminologist; George Lincoln Rockwell, commander of the U. S. Nazi party; Supreme Court Justice Byron "Whizzer" White; Baroness Maria von Trapp; British Ambassador Sir Patrick Dean; and U. S. Senator J. William Fulbright.

Initiating a lecture series in his honor, Alfred Landon, former Kansas governor and Republican presidential nominee, spoke on foreign policy. Invited to speak in the series were Michigan Governor George Romney, U. S. Senator Robert Kennedy, historian Arthur Schlesinger Jr., and California Governor Ronald Regan.

With the spirit which inspired the musical "Sound of Music," Baroness Maria von Trapp tells of her escape from Austria.

'Fractured Flickers' debuts in fiftieth HQ production

"Fractured Flickers," a silent film contest, was shown for the first time between the four Harlequinade skit productions. Of the five comic films submitted by living groups, three were selected for showing. Chi Omega won the competition with "The Plan," a spoof on midnight refrigerator raids. Also new were best actor and actress awards won by Rex Garrelts and Michele Clark for performances in the Kappa Kappa Gamma-Sigma Phi Epsilon skit, and awards for stage setting and choreography won by the Phi Beta Phi and Delta Upsilon skit.

Winning HQ skit was Pi Beta Phi and Delta Upsilon's "The Days of Vines and Boulders." The skit interpreted the theme, "The Remedy," as the world's first "tree-tea" called to settle differences between cave men and tree dwellers. Second place winner was the Kappa Kappa Gamma-Sigma Phi Epsilon skit, "The Monk's Tooth, or the Holy Molar." Other skits selected for the production were "Showdown at Fujiyama Flats," Delta Delta Delta and Sigma Chi, and "A Horse of Course," Delta Zeta and Lambda Chi Alpha.

Debate on the Vietnam war, draft laws and other national problems dominated Model Congress sessions March 15 and 16. Representing the 50 states, students prepared bills in committees and discussed them on the floor of both houses before voting.

Compulsory arbitration of labor disputes and the International Brain Drain Act for under-developed nations were chosen by the Model Congress steering committee for presentation as outstanding bills.

As keynote speaker, William Prendergast, minority sergeant at arms for the United States House of Representatives, addressed a joint session. Little American Royal livestock show attracts 3,400

Record numbers of displays, exhibits and spectators characterized the annual Little American Royal and Agricultural Science Day. More than 3,400 persons attended the livestock show and 1,000 toured the Ag Science exhibits in Weber hall.

Theme of Ag Science Day was "Prepare Today to Feed the World Tomorrow." Wheat State

Approximately 5,000 visitors toured the annual Engineers' and Architects' Open House, which depicted the theme "Planning for Mankind." The nine departments in the college displayed exhibits that demonstrated professional training available at the University. Agricultural engineering retired the first place trophy for departmental exhibits. Their displays featured models of air-supported structures and geodesic domes for farm buildings and solutions to feedlot run-off. Steel Ring, professional engineering society, coordinated activities and presented the awards for the winning exhibits.

"Mobilize Your Potential in Home Economics," 1966 Hospitality Day, was attended by 4,500 Kansas high school students and teachers. More than 700 students in the College of Home Economics planned and arranged 11 exhibits, a fashion show featuring current fashion designs, and a luncheon prepared by institutional management students.

The tenth annual Veterinary Medicine Open House, "Advances in Veterinary Medicine," featured continuous tours through Dykstra Veterinary Hospital. More than 9,000 Parents' Day visitors viewed exhibits including displays on horse dentistry, nutrition in swine and electronical care for pets.

Expansion plans for the Union include an addition to the State Room and cafeteria, a bookstore, an arts and crafts studio and a large lecture hall. The construction will extend south into the parking lot area and is to be completed in 1970.

Union committee submits addition plans to architect

Expansion plans began in the fall for a $2.7 million addition to the student Union. Recommendations were submitted to the architect in April for additions to the present cafeteria, State Room and facilities for a book store and forum hall. Completion of construction was expected by 1970. $5 of a $7 increase in student fees beginning fall semester was apportioned to the Union for the project.

Recreational facilities, conference and banquet rooms, art displays, a paperback store and a Little Theatre showing movies at reduced rates brought 315,000 people to the Union during the year.

Lack of convenient places to study prompted a student referendum for extending the hours until 2 a.m. in the Union Dive.

Union committies promote campus activities, events

“Ski Breck at Break” was the slogan used by the Union trips and tours committee in its campaign to promote the annual ski trip to Breckinridge, Colorado during spring break. The committee, one of nine which coordinated Union activities, also sponsored a student trip to Kansas City second semester. Tours of the University and information on game days were provided for visitors by the hospitality committee. Recent movies were brought to the Union Little Theater through the movies committee.

Later closing hours for the Union Dive were established on a trial basis after information was obtained by the personnel and research committee. News and Views committee sponsored a convocation series which included speeches by George Lincoln Rockwell and Baroness Maria von Trapp.

Billiards, ping-pong and bowling are available for students in the Union recreation area at special rates on Saturdays.

SGA reorganizes, creates new executive positions

Under the direction of James Geringer, student body president, the Student Governing Association reorganized its executive branch. Reforms included the creation of the offices of director for the budget and administrative vice-president and a president's cabinet to coordinate University affairs.

Resolutions objecting to the Kansas loyalty oath and the campus cigarette sales ban were passed by Student Senate. The Board of Student Organizations was made directly responsible to SGA and student members were appointed to the traffic control board and the committee on academic affairs. Executive committees collected books for Student Health and located voting centers in cafeterias.

Elections committee members organized voting on the football referendum issue and Library and Student Health committees worked jointly on a paperback drive for a Student Health library.

More than 4,800 students voted in a Senate referendum to decide if student fees should be used to back bonds to build a

AWS rules convention approves self-limited hours

Self-limiting hours for juniors, seniors and women 21 and older was a bill passed by delegates to the Associated Women Students' Rules Convention in March. Eight commissions, each for a separate bill under consideration, conducted open hearings before the convention and did research for the bills. Optional daily sign-out, overnights in Manhattan and the extension of evening calling hours for men to closing hours were also passed. The bills then went to Faculty Council for approval.

During spring break, AWS visitation teams went to area high schools to introduce the organization to seniors. All Women's Week in May featured a banquet, exchange dinners and recognition night.

Tribunal assumes new role; BSO changes name

Tribunal members adopted a new system which made the judicial body the final appeals board for all student violators. After four months of debate, Student Senate voted to make Board of Student Organizations (BSO) a part of Student Governing Association. The Board's 11 members decided to change the name to University Activities Board.

BSO approved all campus organizations and fund raising projects sponsored by student groups.

Board of Student Publications revised the system for selecting the major staff members of the Collegian and the Royal Purple. The Board instituted a new pay system and determined the policies of the publications at the advice of staff members.

Cast repeats 'Physicists' for college drama festival

Anxious to grow up and be treated as an adult, a young teen-age girl tried to run away with the bride and groom in the K-State Players production of "The Member of the Wedding." Tennessee Williams' play about a woman's symbolic journey toward desire, death and unreality, "A Streetcar Named Desire," revolved around a visit by Blanche DuBois to her sister and brother-in-law who were living in a squalid New Orleans flat.

Originally staged before sell-out audiences in the summer, the K-State Players' production of "The Physicists" opened the fall season. Directed by Dennis Denning, the play centered on a hunchback woman psychiatrist and three mad physicists in her asylum searching for the secret of world destruction. The cast also presented the production in November at the Marymount College Drama Festival.

Investigator Voss and his assistant examine the body of Moni-Stettler, the third nurse murdered in the play "The Physicists."

Guiding his overturned table, Johann Mobius prepares to make a space flight while his wife and children watch. Fearing that his knowledge will destroy the world, he poses as a madman and admits himself to an asylum in "The Physicists."

Juanita resists an advance made by Alex as the feud between the two neighbor families continues in "The Withered Branch."

Graduate students write, direct one-act productions

Jean Anouilh's three-act comedy, "Ring Round the Moon," veiled the author's pessimistic views about life with a plot of intrigue and schemes.

Written and directed by graduate students in speech, two one-act dramas were produced by the Players. Frank Naccarato's "The Withered Branch," depicted the conflicts and ties between two families, one Mexican and one American, in a California ranchero. To revenge the murder of his family, a young Irishman stabbed a remorseful longshoreman in a San Francisco bar in "Half a Coin, Half a Man," a play by Mike McCarthy.

Maggie O'Toole, while working in her father's bar, is bothered by two English sailors who entered the Irish tavern.

Two sailors plot their advances for barmaid Maggie in "Half-a-Coin, Half-a-Man," written and directed by Mike McCarthy.

Two young men who had been quietly playing dice all evening are suddenly interrupted by two prostitutes as they enter the tavern. Although the bartender yells violently at the girls, they continue their act, then leave with the men following.

Brandishing a knife, Mother Courage wards off officers trying to recruit her sons, but is tricked and one son is kidnapped.

Slides projected on the wall of Danforth Chapel illustrate religious overtones of the Thirty Years War in "Mother Courage."

Angry and discouraged because her canteen wagon has been torn apart by soldiers, Mother Courage complains at headquarters. Singing the epic play's recurring theme song, she laments the futility of all wars as two soldiers from camp listen.

Soldiers prepare to kill Mother Courage's only daughter Katrin. Deaf and mute, she climbed to the rooftop and drummed to warn the neighboring city of a coming surprise attack. Although she is killed, she succeeds in saving the families.

Thespians produce first student operas on campus

Cooperating with students in the music department, the K-State Players introduced a new campus medium, opera, to University audiences. Wallace Dace handled stage directing for the two productions, "Riders to the Sea" and "The Telephone."

For Bertolt Brecht's epic drama, "Mother Courage and her Children," the Players built a supply wagon and designed sets in All Faiths Chapel. The play, illustrating the German playwright's hatred of war and its effects on society, portrayed Mother Courage's travels through Europe during the Thirty Years War and the loss of her three children. Dennis Denning directed the production.

"Higher than Heaven, Deeper than Hell," an original musical satirizing campus life, was written and directed by Frank Siegle, graduate student in speech. For the Players' annual Children's Theatre production, Betty Cleary directed "The Secret Within the Walls," a play written by Mike McCarthy, a graduate assistant in speech.

Collegian staff members take national Hearst firsts

Leroy Towns, former Collegian editor, and Melodie Bowsher, spring editorial page editor, won $500 and first place awards for general news and investigative writing in the William Randolph Hearst writing contest. Total points earned by the journalists placed the department first among 49 accredited journalism schools in the nation eligible for the contest. Stories by Collegian editors, Jean Lange and Ed Chamness, also placed.

The spring 1966 Collegian earned a first class rating from American Collegiate Press. Tom Haas and Wayne Perk, advertising managers, won $1,000 in national advertising competition.

University Edition initiates new Cottrell offset press

Operation of the new Cottrell Vanguard offset press began with the printing of the 176-page University Edition of the Collegian in August. The 1966 UE, edited by journalism students, was the first Collegian issue to use four-color pictures. The summer weekly Collegian printed a campus directory and covered University news, including the June 8 tornado which struck north of the campus.

Spring and fall Collegian advertising staffs, using color ads for the first time, raised advertising sales and added a third assistant manager. First in the nation for business practices in 1966, the staff again competed for the 1967 ACP award.

Using expanded darkroom facilities, staff photographers for the Collegian and Royal Purple supplied pictures for the publications. Head photographer, Robert Graves, coordinated activities.

Yearbook adds sections honoring seniors, faculty

Sections recognizing representative faculty members from each college and 31 outstanding seniors were introduced in the largest book in Royal Purple history. The yearbook was expanded to 672 pages, with 94 color pages. Sales also set records for the Royal Purple. During fall registration and through late receipts, 7,530 books were sold. Class picture sales totaled 6,983. Associated Collegiate Press awarded a record-breaking number of points and presented the 1966 Royal Purple with the 31st consecutive All-American rating given to an RP. Only seven other yearbooks in the nation in the category for universities with enrollments of more than 10,000 students received All-American ratings.

Construction projects net four million dollar budget

More than four million dollars was allotted to major campus construction from state and University funds. King hall, housing chemistry laboratories, and a food services building on the north side of the campus were completed second semester. Haymaker hall, last in a four-dorm complex and the adjoining food center were also finished during the year as security against the expanding enrollment.

Plans were drawn for a new football stadium, auditorium, art center and Union addition. Men nationally recognized in fields of mathematics, physics and biology joined the University faculty.

Pictured with their respective colleges throughout the academics section are 14 Royal Purple "representative teachers." For years, the Royal Purple has worked to picture individually as many students and administrators as possible. Because of space limitations, it could not attempt to picture individual faculty members. The 1967 staff, hoping to remedy the neglect of this aspect of the history of a school year, decided to select faculty members who were representative of many outstanding teachers on the campus to be pictured.

The 14 teachers were chosen by a committee of editors and two advisers from 38 nominations made by respective councils. Selections were based on student opinion and information received from the various departments.

Regents approve dorm fees increase, stadium bonds

Manhattan businessman and University graduate of 1932, Tom Griffith, was named to a four-year term on the Board of Regents. The board approved a raise in dormitory fees from $700 to $775 and also authorized the University to require freshman men to live in dormitories. Both changes were to go into effect in the fall of 1967. Acting on a proposal to pledge student fees against revenue bonds for construction of a new athletic stadium, the board recommended that the plan be presented to the state legislature's 1967 session for approval.

Administrative assistants report University progress

Four administrative assistants, Joseph Hajda, E. M. Gerritz, Daniel D. Beatty and Max Milbourn supervised University activities and were responsible for progress reports to President McCain.

Hajda, director of international affairs, worked with foreign students and coordinated foreign exchange programs. He headed a committee to investigate discrimination in foreign student housing.

Gerritz, dean of admissions and records, coordinated enrollment and initially promoted the use of the University's computer enrollment process.

Beatty, business manager, planned and prepared the University budget and overall fiscal policy.

Milbourn, administrative assistant to the president, headed a committee on general University scholarship and was liason to the state legislature on matters concerning University policies.

Visits to campus in December and March by Peace Corps representatives were coordinated by Joseph Hadja, director of international affairs. Hadja and other University officials arrange student exchange programs with universities in foreign lands.

Summer graduate institutes offer credit to educators

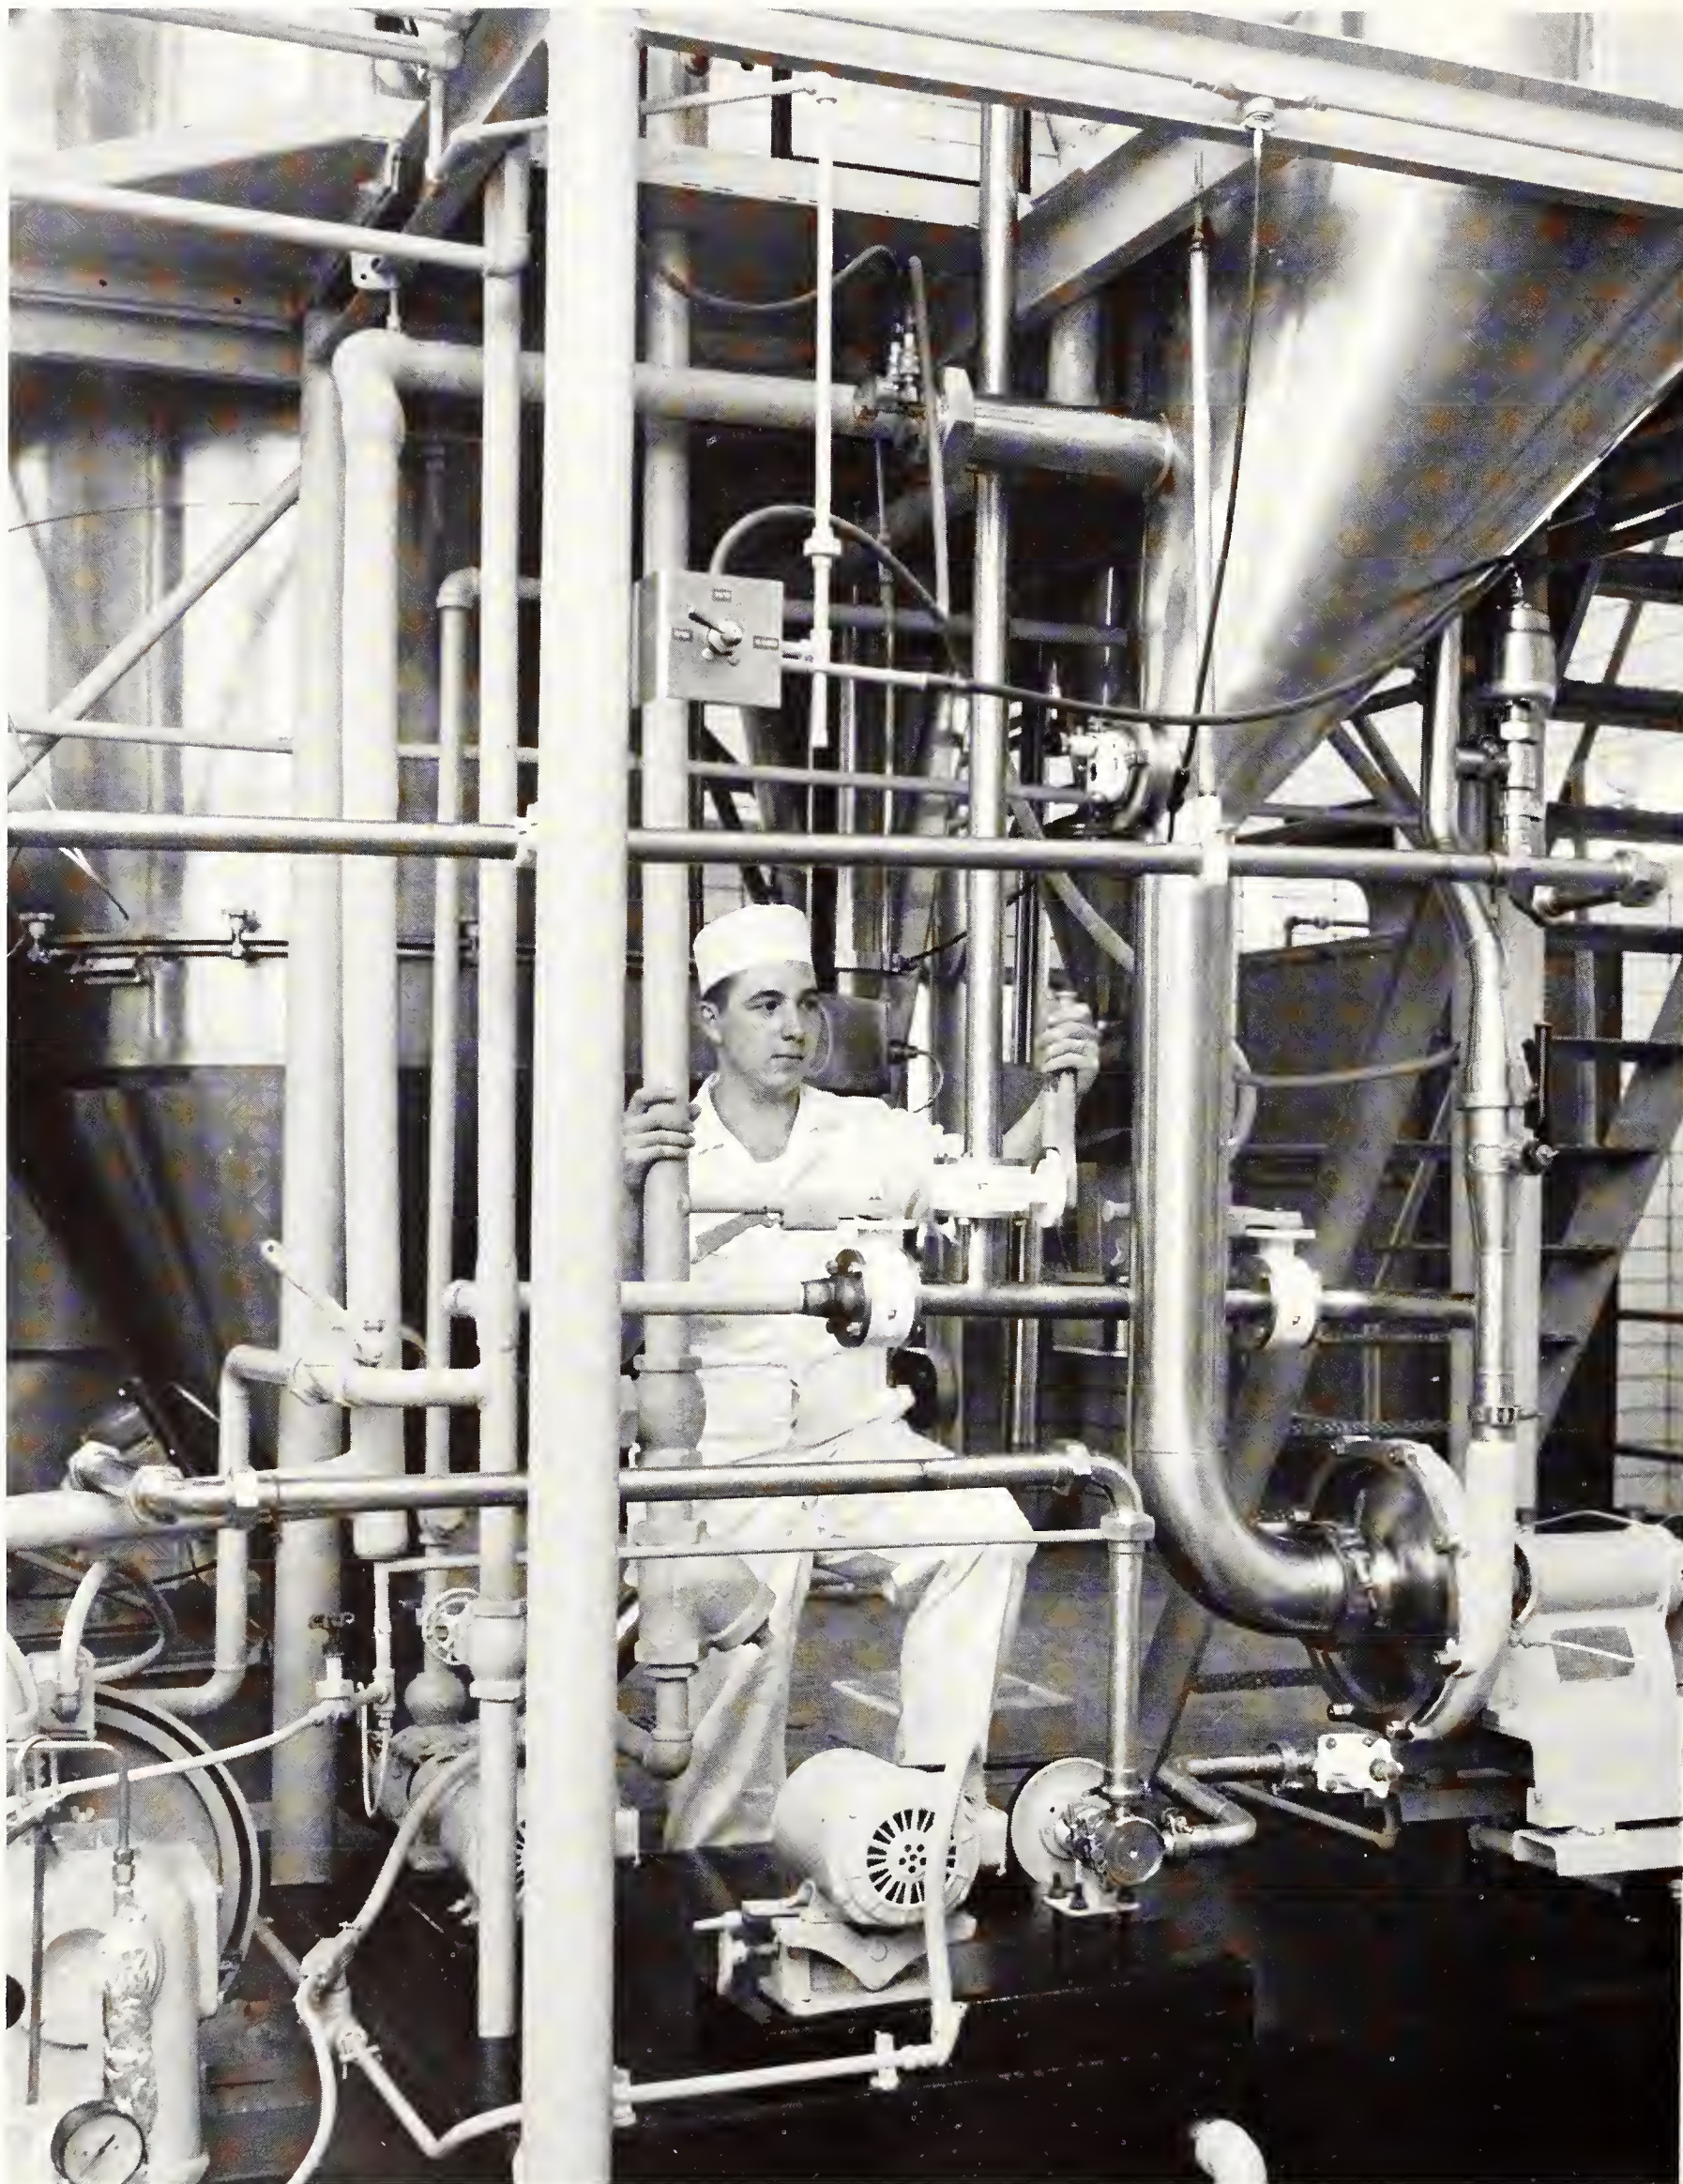

Formerly dean of arts and sciences at Arkansas, Robert F. Kruh was named dean of Graduate School replacing John Lott Brown, who was appointed vice-president for academic affairs.

During the summer, graduate institutes in history, English, mathematics, radiation, chemistry, education, commerce and home economics offered credit to educators working on advanced degrees. Adopted for the first time, a pass-fail grading system was used in a graduate-level geography course.

Minnesota professor becomes new ag college dean

Formerly a professor of agricultural economics at the University of Minnesota, Carroll V. Hess assumed duties as dean of the College of Agriculture from Glenn Beck, who vacated the post to become vice-president for agriculture. In 1965, Hess received the first Distinguished Teacher Award from the American Farm Economic Association.

Agricultural Council, for the first time, published a yearbook including information concerning each graduating senior in the college. The catalog, which was distributed to other universities in January, was to be used as an aid for job placement. In November, the council sponsored the Autumn Festival dance, formerly called the Ag Barnwarmer.

Ag college receives funds for grain market research

Funds for construction of a $3 million Federal Grain Marketing Research Laboratory were appropriated by Congress. The laboratory, expected to be completed by late 1968 on a 12-acre plot north of the campus, would make the University a world center for research on grain problems. John Shellenberger, professor in the grain science and industry department in the College of Agriculture, coordinated plans for the laboratory with U. S. officials.

The Department of Agricultural Economics received an $85,000 grant for a study of cooperative marketing related to the sale of Kansas grain, meat and milk products. A study on protein content in wheat by the Departments of Agronomy and Grain Science and Industry was granted $57,000.

Architecture faculty members visit foreign countries

Visits to foreign countries by two of its faculty highlighted the year for the College of Architecture and Design. While on sabbatical leave, Alden Kridler, professor of architecture and design, visited Europe and Asia photographing architectural monuments. The three-dimensional photographs which he produced by using two cameras were used for instruction. In India, James Miller, associate professor of architecture and design, aided planning of a campus layout for Andhra Pradesh University.

The Architecture and Design Council sponsored six forums for students in the college featuring lectures by outstanding architects and coordinated plans for Engineers' and Architects' Open House.

College council promotes spring International Week

International Week, involving more than 400 students from 55 different countries, was coordinated by Arts and Sciences Council April 2 to 8. The council also studied the possibility of a pass-fail system in the college and recommended the proposal to the college's faculty spring semester. The program will be introduced for junior and senior honor students in all colleges in the fall of 1967. The students will be allowed to take one class without a grade each semester outside their major fields.

In his fourth year as arts and sciences dean, John Chalmers was elected to the executive board of the Council of Colleges of Arts and Sciences.

Arts and Sciences plans new bio-sciences building

To provide a unified approach to the study of biological sciences, the College of Arts and Sciences selected a new director and developed new housing and departmental changes. Plans were completed for a $3.7 million bio-sciences building, expected to be constructed on the ROTC field by late 1969 and to be financed by state and federal appropriations. L. Evans Roth was appointed head of the new Division of Biology, which was designed to consolidate the departments of zoology, botany and bacteriology and the biophysics curriculum. Changes affected disciplines through unified research areas and revised undergraduate curricula.

The college named three new department chairman, John E. Maxfield, mathematics; Robert Leachman, physics; and Benjamin Tilghman, philosophy.

Home economics college enrolls 1,000 undergrads

To instruct leaders and teachers to work with pre-school children in areas of poverty, the Department of Family and Child Development sponsored an eight-week training session in June financed by Project Headstart. Encouraging interest in home economics, representatives from the college visited area high schools informing students of the latest developments in the field. As a result, undergraduate enrollment passed the 1,000 mark. The college also encouraged majors with a 3.0 grade average to continue their education after graduation. These students were invited to attend informative programs on the college's masters degree project.

To familiarize seniors with areas of research, the college conducted seminars on professionalism in home economics. During the year, faculty met to study recent changes in core curriculum requirements to ensure better student advisement.

Library addition proposes 24-hour reading room

Plans for a $2.25 million addition to Farrell Library were researched and sent before the state legislature during Richard Farley's first year as director of libraries. The proposed addition was to double the size of the library and was to include a reading room open 24 hours each day. The book classification system was changed, and electric typewriters, records, slides and five listening and projection rooms were added. A staff of 25 librarians, 32 clerks and 125 students operated the library.

More than 60,000 request forms for medical records were completed by students requiring treatment and hospitalization.

Health center constructs offices, adds psychiatrist

Providing more complete psychiatric care, the Student Health Center in the fall employed a psychiatrist, a psychiatric social service worker and a clinical psychologist for part-time work.

An expanded business office, a new information and telephone center and a new cashier's office were completed before fall classes began. Construction also included psychiatric offices, nurses' lounge, conference rooms and a doctors' library.

Patients in Student Health received five meals daily. A continental breakfast was followed by a regular breakfast, noon snack, dinner, and a late meal. Patients obtained class assignments and Collegians from seven student volunteers. Six portable televisions were donated to the center for use in individual rooms and the waiting lobby.

Experimental living units help counselors at center

Continued study of an experimental living unit for students under particular stress helped train counselors at the Counseling Center to assist students in making the adjustment to campus life. From their observations of experiences, the counselors made plans to restructure college programs.

More than 1,100 commercial representatives conducted interviews with the 1,000 students registered with the Placement Center. Fall group meetings with degree candidates explained the interview system and registration. A daily luncheon program introduced the business recruiters to the University and acquainted professors with industry's needs.

Students joined together in groups keep the traditions of the University alive.

Whitewashing KS-hill, painting store windows for the KU game, presenting an original drama, saluting an honorary officer — through their activities, the organizations continue although their members change.

Mortar Board's Scholarship Dinner activities include short talks by three members on scholarship, leadership and service.

Invitations to the dinner, which annually honors outstanding scholarship by women, are extended to all University coeds.

Blue Key sponsors return to house decoration contest

Planning and coordinating Homecoming activities, Blue Key, senior men's honorary, voted to replace the Homecoming parade with formerly traditional house decorations. In response, 39 organized living groups built displays to the theme "Bye Bye Birdie." Members selected Homecoming queen finalists and served as escorts to the queen and her attendants. The men also sent two delegates to the national Blue Key convention in Kansas City and painted victory signs in Aggieville and downtown store windows during the week preceding the K-State-University of Kansas basketball game.

Mortar Board mum sale finances purchase of TVs

Financed by the sale of mums during Homecoming and Parents' Day, Mortar Board, senior women's honorary, purchased televisions for Student Health. Members served as public relations representatives for the University at a booth at the Hutchinson State Fair and in September spoke to freshmen during orientation week.

In the fall, the women arranged a seminar to inform interested students about graduate school and fellowships available for graduate study. Mortar Board also honored five sophomore women for outstanding grades during their freshman year.

Junior women's honorary gives party for transfers

Parents' Day and a visit with soldiers at Irwin Army Hospital headed a list of service projects planned and carried out by Chimes, junior women's honorary. During orientation week members gave a Coke party for transfer women, ushered at the President's convocation and served as hostesses at the president's tea. Chimes also sponsored a breakfast for Mortar Board and served refreshments at the Homecoming dance. Candidates for membership had to have a 3.0 grade point average, be classified as a junior and be outstanding in leadership.

Val-o-grams, singing valentines, were sold and delivered by members of Sparks, sophomore women's service honorary, for Valentines Day. As a Christmas project, Sparks caroled for residents of Manhattan rest homes. The women ushered for University convocations and assisted incoming freshman women in moving into residence halls.

In cooperation with the SGA library committee, Sparks also conducted a used book drive for Student Health and residence hall libraries and assisted with the second semester Bloodmobile drive.

Honorary's membership includes national president

National president of Phi Kappa Phi, A.M. Guhl, zoology professor, was a member of the all-University scholastic honorary. Members were seniors and graduate students who ranked in the top 10 per cent of their class; juniors who were in the upper five per cent of their class; and faculty, alumni and individuals not connected with the University who had made noteworthy scholarly achievements. The honorary tapped during spring and fall semesters and nominated candidates for national Phi Kappa Phi fellowships. Members attended a banquet in May after spring initiation.

Freshman honoraries conduct study, service projects

Initiated in the spring at a joint banquet, the two freshman scholastic honoraries together decorated the Union ballroom for the Homecoming dance and individually carried out programs on campus promoting scholastic achievement.

Alpha Lambda Delta, women, collected summaries of courses and compiled notebooks which they distributed to freshman women's residence halls and worked closely with Alpha Phi Omega, service honorary, in sponsoring a Christmas party for Manhattan's underprivileged children. Phi Eta Sigma, men, distributed "How To Study Booklets," a national publication of the group, and posted University convocation announcements.

Medical technology group helps in bloodmobile drive

Thanksgiving dinner tray favors for rest home patients and volunteer work for the Red Cross Bloodmobile were among service projects carried out by Alpha Delta Theta, medical technology honorary. As a fund-raising project, the women shined shoes and ROTC boots at men's residence halls.

Social events included a Christmas party with caroling and a taffy pull, participation in Rig-a-Twig ceremonies and a founder's day banquet in February. Members also attended the national convention and heard speakers from hospitals in Wichita, Topeka, and Kansas City explain their medical technology internship programs.

“Cat-o-Grams,” telegrams signed by student boosters and sent to the football and basketball teams at all away games, were solicited as a pledge project of Alpha Kappa Psi, business fraternity. A discussion by staff members from a Kansas City accounting firm entitled “How an Audit Works” was one of several programs sponsored by the group. To get on-the-job training before graduation, members initiated an internship program for all students majoring in business administration.

Milling group gives flour to needy families in area

Alpha Mu, milling honorary, in cooperation with the local Elks club donated sacks of flour milled at the University to needy Manhattan families. Members of the only chapter of its kind in the nation heard a representative of the General Mills Corporation speak on milling research areas and flour use at a banquet in the fall. Membership was open to upperclassmen in milling, feed science and bakery management who had maintained at least a 2.5 cumulative grade point average.

Alpha Tau Alpha chapter receives national approval

Established locally two years ago, Alpha Tau Alpha, agricultural education honorary, was nationally recognized at an October conclave in Kansas City. Members hosted and ushered for the state FFA convention here and assisted crops, dairy, poultry and livestock judging teams at the convention and throughout the state.

Raymond Olson, agronomy department chairman, was one of several faculty speakers to address the honorary. Olson discussed his two years as an exchange professor to Ahmadu Bello University in Nigeria. Honorary awards for service in agricultural education were given at a spring banquet.

Service honorary members escort University mascot

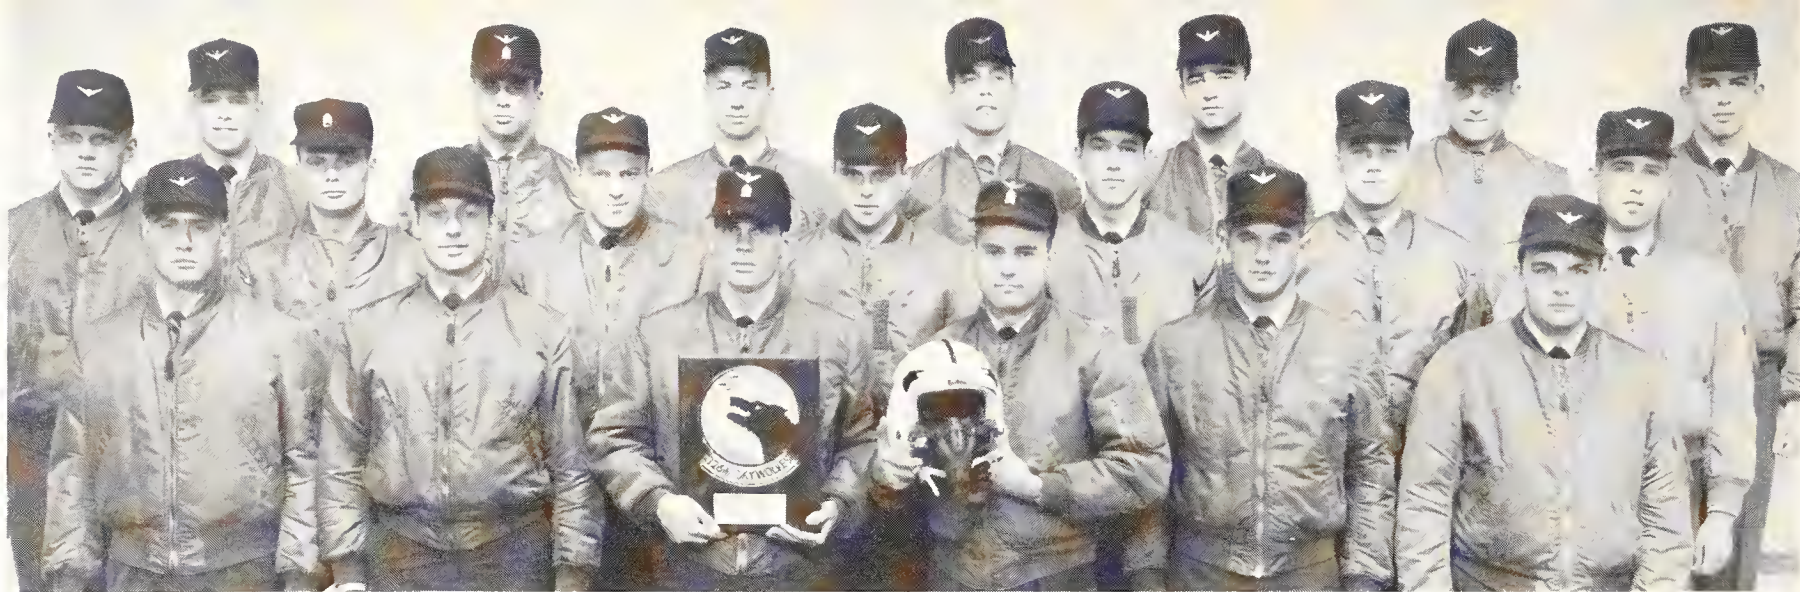

Touchdown VII, the University's wildcat mascot, was displayed at home football and basketball games by members of Alpha Phi Omega, national service honorary. Members were men who were or had been affiliated with the Boy Scouts.

The group maintained the ride bulletin board in the Union and other bulletin boards on campus. They operated coat checks, ushered at musical events and registered slide rules as a service to engineering students. The honorary built the bonfire for the Friday night Homecoming pep rally and continued to sponsor a book exchange in the Union before classes began in the fall and between semesters.

Skywolves initiate cadets during half-time ceremony

Cadets of the AFROTC Flight Instruction Group were formally initiated by the 326th Fighter Interceptor Squadron at half-time ceremonies of the Iowa State University football game. At that time, the Skywolves from Richards-Gebaur AFB in Kansas City presented the group with a formal certificate and plaque. Three fighter jets flew overhead in a salute to the newly initiated cadets.

The group, fourth largest of its kind in the nation, toured the Ft. Riley weather station to learn about the weather services used in making up flight plans. Cadets enrolled in the program were members of AFROTC who successfully fulfilled the requirements of an Air Force pilot.

Drill team coeds attend Flight conclave in Miami

Eleven delegates from Angel Flight, honorary drill team of college women, attended a national Arnold Air Society-Angel Flight April conclave in Miami. On campus the women performed precision drills during halftime ceremonies of a basketball game, helped with concessions at football games and assisted with a blood drive. Organized in 1954 as the official hostesses for Air Force ROTC, the chapter in October was selected as area headquarters for all Kansas and Missouri chapters.

Arnold Air group assumes position of area command

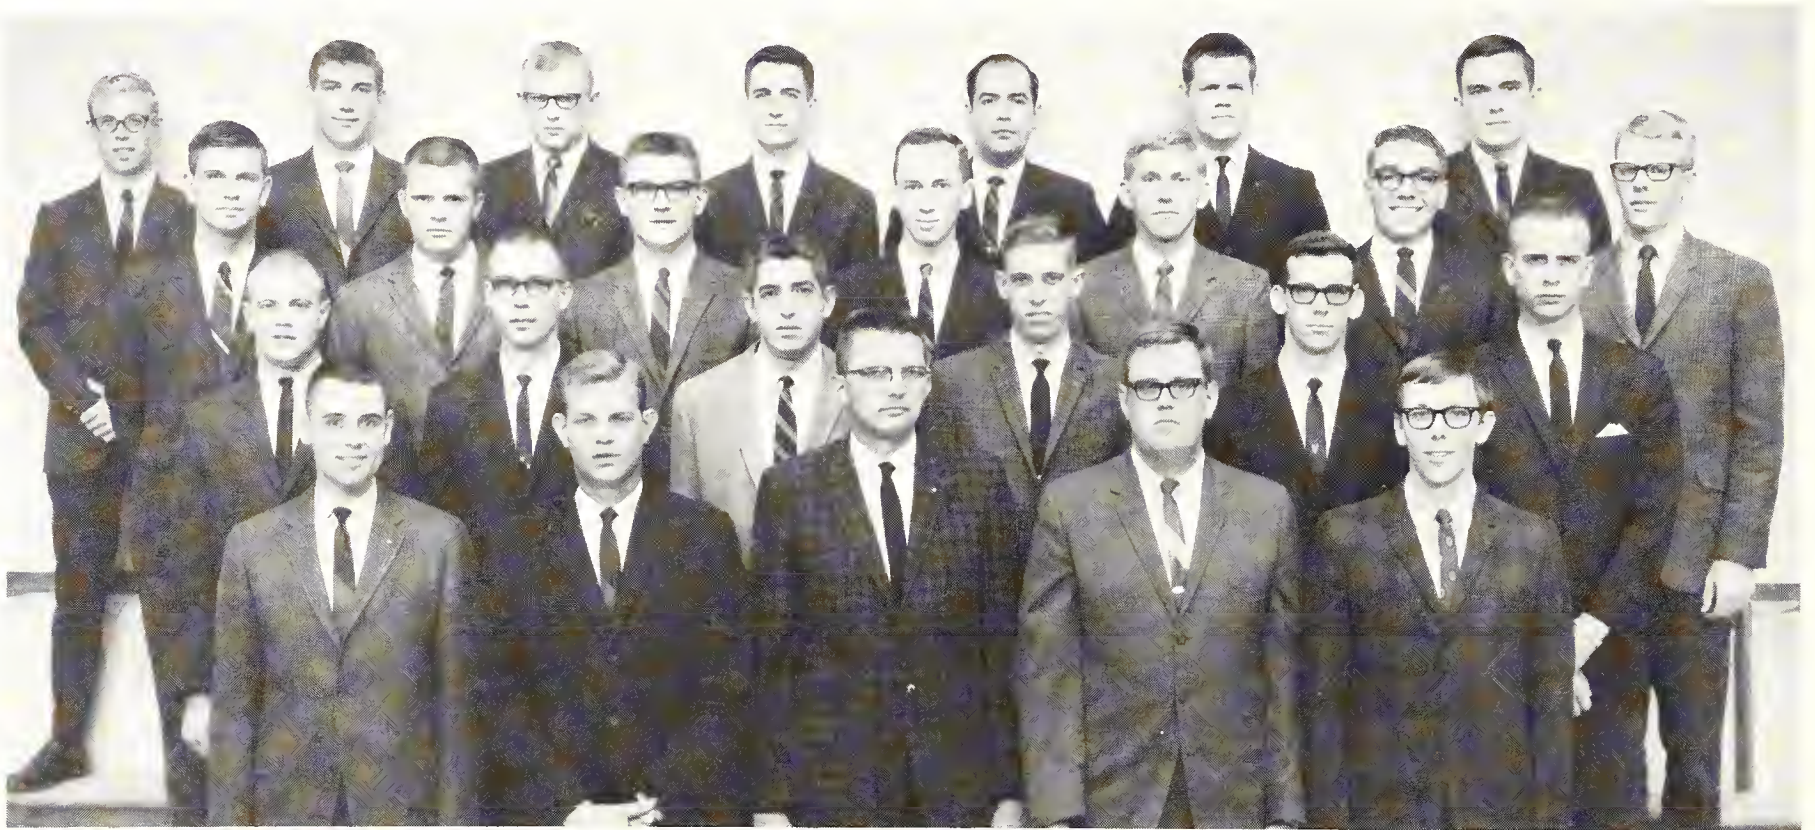

Designated one of 17 area headquarters in the nation, Arnold Air Society assumed command of all Kansas and Missouri squadrons in March. Members of the society ushered at athletic events, handled solicitations for the University blood drive and sponsored an instructor program for the local civilian air patrol squadron. Growing in membership and academic achievement, members received 31 Air Force scholarships and became one of the largest university squadrons in the nation.

Alpha Zeta members travel to Kansas high schools

Agricultural Science Day and Veterinary Medicine Open House displays illustrating advances in research techniques and new products of national commercial firms were sponsored by Alpha Zeta, honorary for upperclassmen in agriculture or veterinary medicine. In cooperation with the College of Agriculture, the group sent seniors with faculty members to high schools throughout the state. During the visitations members spoke on the University's agriculture program and answered questions concerning student life at the University.

At chapter meetings, representatives from business and industry talked about career opportunities, the importance of planning ahead and recent research developments. Members of the group also ushered at the Little American Royal.

Phys ed honorary sponsors Manhattan fishing derby

Donations from Manhattan merchants provided prizes awarded at a spring fishing derby sponsored by Phi Epsilon Kappa, men's physical education honorary. The prizes were presented to men, women and boys catching the largest fish and the most fish within a specified period of time.

The honorary also sponsored an annual free throw contest for Manhattan grade school boys, provided a coat and hat check at basketball games, donated blood for a Red Cross University blood drive and sold eye shades during football games.

Home Economics group tutors probation students

In conjunction with the department's academic advancement program, Phi Upsilon Omicron, home economics honorary, tutored home economics students on academic probation. Senior members of the honorary also participated in the advisement of freshman students. Founded at the University in 1960, the chapter joined with its University of Nebraska affiliate in an exchange meeting.

The 41 members were selected from seniors, juniors and second-semester sophomores who ranked in the upper two-fifths of their class.

Chemists' nominee wins national research award

Awards for outstanding scholarship and research were presented to members of Phi Lambda Upsilon at their spring banquet. Winner of the national Fresenius Award, Ralph Breslow, professor of chemistry at Columbia University, was nominated by Phi Lambda Upsilon. The annual recognition was based on prominence in chemical research.

Members sponsored a fall picnic to acquaint new graduate students and faculty members with the group. Faculty and students who had a high scholastic standing in chemistry or related fields were eligible for membership in the organization.

Musicians plan recitals, arrange Feast of Carols

Colorful costumes and a festive atmosphere characterized the December Feast of Carols, sponsored by members of Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia, national professional musicians' fraternity, in cooperation with Mu Phi Epsilon, women's music honorary. After a banquet, traditional English, German and Spanish carols were sung by language clubs and the two groups jointly enacted a nativity scene.

Phi Mu Alpha members presented a music recital in All Faith Chapel with the women's honorary and, as service projects, ushered at University and community musical recitals and concerts.

Drama honorary presents original campus satire

World news events and campus administrators were satirized by members of Pi Epsilon Delta, drama honorary, in a skit review, "All in a Polyethylene Bag." Proceeds were applied toward the annual $100 scholarship given by the group to an undergraduate drama student. The show also was performed at the Manhattan Community House to raise money for a new theater building.

Pi Tau Sigma sponsors faculty volleyball contest

To promote a better student-faculty relationship, Pi Tau Sigma, mechanical engineering honorary, sponsored a volleyball game for students and faculty in the Department of Mechanical Engineering. Members also arranged course review sessions for seniors preparing for the engineering proficiency exam and cooperated with the department in building a display for Engineers' Open House.

Putnam Scholars honor founder of scholarship fund

Honoring the scholarship fund's founder, Irene Putnam, the Putnam Scholars Association planned a birthday celebration in May and decorated a Christmas tree for her. At an Endowment Association banquet for the group in November, forty freshman scholars were introduced and presented their membership pins by President James A.

McCain. A watermelon feed and a banquet in the fall acquainted the 92 members of the organization.

Putnam Scholars, who were selected from the upper five per cent of their high school graduating class and from special tests scores, were allowed to renew their financial awards each year. Diana Loetel was elected president of the association.

Military group unit forms guard for former President

Twelve members of Scabbard and Blade marched in an honor guard for former President Dwight D. Eisenhower when he was presented an honorary doctor of laws degree during June 1966 graduation ceremonies. Outstanding cadets in advanced Army ROTC with a grade point average of 2.6 or better were eligible for membership in the honorary.

As a training program, pledges worked tactical problems in which actives acted as aggressor forces. During one night attack on enemy objectives, pledges carried M1 rifles and used radio communication to aid in the simulated project.

The highest award given by the organization was a scabbard presented to the outstanding senior cadet. The Scabbard and Blade Military Excellence Award was presented to three underclass cadets at the spring military review.

Scabbard and Blade cadets sponsored the annual Military Ball and selected the Ball queen.

Geology students spend five days in Black Hills

Staging a five-day field trip to the Black Hills during spring break, forty members of the geology honorary, Sigma Gamma Epsilon, studied earth structure and hunted for fossils, rocks and minerals. The group discussed geological theories with guest speakers at monthly seminars and also arranged bulletin board displays for the department. As a service to incoming geology students, they provided free tutoring in introductory courses.

Speech therapists clean, restore departmental aids

Therapeutic aids of the speech department were restored and cleaned by Sigma Alpha Eta, national professional society for prospective speech and hearing therapists. In the fall members had a picnic at Sunset Park to boost membership. At other meetings, Robert F. Brooks, advisor, explained requirements for membership in the American Speech and Hearing Association, and a former member related her experiences as a public school therapist.

Society of civil engineers receives excellence award

For the ninth consecutive year, the American Society of Civil Engineers received the Certificate of Commendation for Excellence in Conduct of Chapter Affairs. The award was based on student participation in chapter activities, programs presented by the chapter and an annual report submitted to the national office for review.

At fall semester programs, speakers from industry and government offices talked about employment opportunities. Programs in the spring semester, planned by the department, included eight lectures on hydraulic engineering. Members attended the Mid-Continent Conference of Civil Engineers at Lincoln, Neb., where chapters from five states were represented. They also met with the society's state section once each semester.

Chemists take field trip, discuss job opportunities

Movies illustrating advanced studies and progress in chemistry were shown at meetings of the American Chemical Society. Organizational meetings also included discussions of available job opportunities in chemistry and related fields.

In December, members took a field trip to the Midwest Research Institute in Kansas City where they toured chemical laboratories and learned of needs and uses of chemistry in industry.

The society also sponsored picnics in the fall and spring to introduce prospective members to the club's purpose and activities. Membership in the organization included students majoring in chemistry, biochemistry and chemical engineering.

Landscape architects develop Quinlan Gardens area

Quinlan Gardens, the area between Petticoat Lane and the home management houses, was developed through the efforts of the American Society of Landscape Architects. The project was financed by contributions of local garden clubs.

L. R. Quinlan, professor emeritus of landscape architecture, was one of several authorities in the field of landscape architecture who addressed the group. He spoke about landscaping in national parks. Robert Ealy, head of the Department of Landscape Architecture, spoke about photography during another meeting. At Engineers' and Architects' Open House, members displayed concepts of landscape architecture in enlarged photographs.

Military engineers travel to Kansas City on field trip

Preparing for jobs in branches of the Army, members of the Society of American Military Engineers toured the Corps of Engineers district in Kansas City on a field trip in April. The group and the student chapter at the University of Kansas attended a regional conference at the Kansas City professional chapter's headquarters. Organized for Army and Air Force cadets majoring in engineering, the society showed films and sponsored speakers who lectured on various areas of the field.

Nuclear society conducts educational film series

Films from the Atomic Energy Commission on topics ranging from reactors to medicine were shown as part of the nuclear education program of the American Nuclear Society. Speakers at other meetings included representatives from the Oakridge Laboratory who spoke on "Radiation Effects in Manned Space Vehicles" and "Present and Future Prospects for Nuclear Desalination." At the Engineers Open House, the society set up a display on food preservation by irradiation.

Auxiliary sponsors panel of state veterinarian wives

Usually dividing into interest groups of bridge, knitting and education, members of the American Veterinary Medical Association Auxiliary met together to watch a veterinarian perform surgery on a small animal. As a group, the wives club also sponsored a discussion panel of veterinarians' wives throughout the state. To raise money for an annual project, the auxiliary sold cookbooks.

In spring, 1966, the women purchased a bulletin board for the posting of job opportunities for students in veterinary medicine. During the Christmas season, the women and their husbands gave a party for their children. They also attended monthly activities with their student husbands and regular dances for veterinary medicine students.

Representatives from bakery corporations talked to the group on advertising problems in the field and speciality breads.

Chinese students celebrate New Year with KU group

To ring in the Chinese New Year, the Chinese Student Association and students learning Chinese at the University of Kansas celebrated with a dinner party at Lawrence in February.

An Oriental meal was prepared by club members for a get-acquainted dinner at the beginning of the fall semester. All new students interested in membership were invited to attend. During the year members frequently met for social activities.

Clinic club members hear dean from medical school

John Chapman, associate dean of the University of Kansas Medical School, talked to members of the Clinic Club in October. He outlined medical school admission requirements and explained standards used by most schools. Freshman medical students from the University of Kansas were invited to visit the campus to discuss problems encountered.

Surgeons, interns, coroners and general practitioners, discussed their professions with the group. They told members, most of whom were interested in medicine or dentistry, what to look for in choosing a medical school and answered questions about their various fields of practice.

Chaparajos club celebrates twentieth year on campus

Celebrating their twentieth anniversary on campus, members of Chaparajos, a horsemen's club, invited charter members to the University's annual National Intercollegiate Rodeo Association Rodeo in April. The rodeo began the spring circuit in the Great Plains region. Team members, who were Chaparajos, took first and second in rodeos at the Universities of Iowa and Wisconsin in the fall.

Besides planning and participating in collegiate rodeos, members also had a fall overnight trail ride to a professor's ranch east of Manhattan and planned a spring steak fry and a queen contest judged on horsemanship, beauty and personality.

Collegiate 4-H club builds bulletin boards on campus

Bulletin boards were erected near Ford hall and the Physical Science building by members of Collegiate 4-H. The group raised funds for club activities by selling concessions at the Hutchinson State Fair in September. Students also helped county agents judge 4-H exhibits at fairs and county club days and planned the program for a freshman mixer during orientation week in the fall.

In the spring, the club organized a clean-up weekend at Rock Springs 4-H Ranch. Cooperating with the Kansas 4-H Foundation and the extension office, members of the group wrote copy, edited and planned page layouts for "4-H in Review," a publication describing county 4-H activities in Kansas. The magazine, which has a circulation of 21,000, is distributed throughout the state.

CYDs, CYRs campaign for governor candidates

Elections in November brought speakers and campaign activity to members of Collegiate Young Republicans and Young Democrats. The clubs provided rides to the polls, mailed campaign literature and called on voters personally.

“Collegiates for Avery” toured the state campaigning for the GOP gubernatorial candidate. The governor and several Congressional candidates, including Rep. Larry Winn and Sen. James Pearson, appeared before the 675-member group. To inform students about the outlook of the 1968 Legislature, CYR in January organized four legislative workshops on liquor by the drink, education, mental health and Medicare. John Conard, speaker of the Kansas house, and Pres. James A. McCain were keynote speakers for the conference.

CYD invited George Docking, the governor’s brother, and Democratic nominees for lieutenant governor and attorney general to speak. Students attended a breakfast for Sen. William Fulbright, who addressed an all-University convocation in the spring. CYD members also carried placards and lobbied during Model Congress sessions.

Home economists donate mitten tree to reservation

Children at an Indian reservation were aided by the Clothing and Textiles Club's "mitten tree" located in Justin hall. Students placed mittens on the tree which were collected and sent to the children. The club's Best Dress Girl contest, in which coeds modeled church, formal and school outfits, was a preliminary to a national contest sponsored by Glamour magazine.

Dairy club serves dinner for breeders' convention

Dinner was served by the Dairy Science Club to members of the Kansas Breeding Association during their annual meeting on campus. Working with Block & Bridle, club members planned the annual Little American Royal. Speakers from Purina and other agri-businesses addressed the club, and Dean Hess, alumni director, was the featured speaker at their tenth annual banquet.

Home Economics club provides babysitter lists

Lists of prospective babysitters were compiled by the Family and Child Development Club to aid Manhattan families. Members caroled at Wharton and Parkview Manors at Christmas and participated in a tutoring program for Manhattan school children. On a special field trip in the spring, members traveled to the Industrial School for Girls in Beloit. Speakers talked about juvenile delinquency and the tutoring program. A fall dinner and a spring picnic were other social activities.

Family Economics group visits Kansas City court

Family Economics Club, one of nine interest groups associated with the College of Home Economics, sponsored a consumer education trip to Kansas City. Among places visited were the Interstate Financial House and a bankruptcy court.

Members of the club also visited a Manhattan rest home, hung Christmas decorations in Justin hall and were guests of the Kansas Power and Light Company at a fall banquet and fashion show in Salina. Barbara Southerland was president.

Flying Club members visit Wichita aircraft industry

Continued expansion ranked high on the list of activities of Flying Club members. The group added a third aircraft to their club's possessions, and frequently spent weekends washing and waxing the planes. During November, the club joined Wildcat Flying Club, another student organization, to tour Cessna Aircraft Corporation in Wichita.

The problems of airplane finance and insurance were discussed regularly at club meetings and films on air safety and ground school were shown.

Filipino students present native dances in programs

Programs on folk dances of the Philippines and other countries were presented by the Filipino Students Association for International Week. During one program, "Christmas in the Philippines," members demonstrated parts of a traditional native dance, the "tinikling," by jumping over bamboo sticks. Association members explained caroling and courting customs of the islands at the Christmas program. The dances were also presented at Riley County and Abilene high schools.

German club celebrates native Fasching holiday

Increasing their knowledge of German culture and history, students in the German Club listened to Jurgen Freund, a professor in the language department, recall university life in German Cities. The group practiced proficiency in the language by learning Christmas carols and singing them for families in Manhattan. They also presented numbers in the annual Feast of Carols. In early spring, club members gathered to observe a traditional German holiday, Fasching, by wearing native costumes and attending a festive party.

Hoedowners exhibit dances in Salina and Marysville

Guest callers tapped toes to both the traditional reels and the newer round dances when the Hoedowners Square Dance Club sponsored a dance for other square dance groups in the Manhattan area.

During the year, members gave exhibitions at festivals in Marysville and Salina and participated in exchange dances with university clubs in Hays and Emporia. To promote greater interest in dancing, the club worked for fun badges which were awarded as national recognition of proficiency in stunts, such as dancing barefoot or on the street.

Islamic group is host to district Muslim conference

Hosts to the first Midwest Muslim conference, the Islamic Association entertained 50 out-of-state Muslim delegates. The conference in December was the first University conference organized by a foreign student group. The 52 members from 14 nations published the monthly news-letter "Al-Salam" and planned study chant and daily prayer groups in Danforth All-Faith chapel.

International group edits new monthly publication

To report activities of the 15-member organizations, the International Coordinating Council began publication of a monthly newspaper, "The International Student." Council members wrote features, interviewed campus personalities and edited copy. They also re-evaluated International Week activities scheduled for the spring and adopted an official constitution written by the group.

Players stage two operas with Department of Music

Breaking into another theatrical medium, the K-State Players worked with students in the music department on two one-act operas, "Riders to the Sea" and "The Telephone." The group also staged seven works by noted playwrights and two one-act dramas written by speech graduate students.

Programs of the group centered on creative dramatics and other phases of the performing arts. Internationally-known actors were brought to the campus through efforts of the Players.

Music education majors attend national convention

Noted musicians from throughout the country presented clinics and workshops at the national meeting of the Music Educators National Convention at the University of Kansas. The 80 local music education majors participated in the clinics and heard presentations and critiques of modern music studies by the musicians. Campus meetings of the conference included talks by members of the music department and a faculty-student party at Christmas to promote intra-department relations.

Orchesis members present original dances for concert

Original choreographies were prepared by members of Orchesis, a modern dance group, for a concert in April. In March, the organization demonstrated basic techniques of modern, creative dance at an exhibition for men in physical education.

In the spring, Orchesis members attended seminars at the University of Kansas and Pittsburg State Teachers' College where they observed and learned new methods and techniques of modern dance. The students also traveled to Kansas City to participate in a workshop and attend a concert by Daniel Nagrin, a professional modern dancer. Adviser for the organization, which was established at the University in 1920, was Lynn Piper, an instructor of women's physical education.

Convention names student 'Pakistani of the Year'

Celebrating the independence of Pakistan, members of the Pakistan Association observed the day by attending a dinner and viewing documentary movies and slides tracing the cultural and economic development and history of the nation.

At the convention of the National Pakistan Association in Wisconsin, Intesar Zaidi, a graduate student at the University, was presented the organization's National Pakistani Student of the Year award. The award was based on the student's adaptation and contribution to the University.

During the year, the organization sponsored debates on the India-Pakistan dispute, radio commentaries and speeches to local groups.

People to People sponsors ambassadors to Europe

People-to-People sponsored eight ambassadors to Europe in the organization's annual student-abroad program. Students lived with families in the British Isles, Germany, Greece, Belgium, France and the Scandinavian countries for three weeks of their six-week summer stay and traveled in other European countries during the remainder of their visit.

Participants were chosen from interviews and an essay expressing interest in the program. The club sponsored an orientation program for the University representatives, which included speakers who lectured on international affairs.

Persian group visits town to learn customs and life

To learn more about the United States, members of the Persian Student Association visited the small town of Clifton near Manhattan. After visiting several farms nearby, the group talked to town residents about Persian life and customs.

During the year members sponsored two displays of Persian arts and crafts in the Union. The displays came from the members' own possessions. The group participated in International Week, viewed movies on culture in Persia and listened to an Egyptian student talk about his country.

Wichita, KU, Park College succumb to Soccer Club

After handing the Wichita Soccer Club a 4-3 defeat, downing the University of Kansas 4-1 and beating Park College, Mo., 5-3, the Soccer Club ended the fall season with a 1-6 loss to Ottawa University. In the spring, the club competed with teams from Oklahoma State University and the University of Nebraska and invited other teams to participate in a tournament at the University.

The 20-member club, coached by Edward Quigley, an instructor of English, practiced three times each week during the soccer season on the military drill field. The team sought recognition from the athletic department as a minor University sport—a status necessary to compete with varsity clubs from other universities and to receive funds.

Sports Car Club provides weather information booth

Vacation-bound students were aided by a weather and safety booth in the Union, sponsored by the Sports Car Club. Members posted weather and road conditions on a map of the United States before vacation periods. The club and the University of Kansas Sports Car Club jointly sponsored the annual Rallye-Gymkhana in the spring. Meeting midway between the two universities, members participated in a cross country race and obstacle course.

Sports cars from throughout the state were displayed at the Concours D'Elegance Auto Show, sponsored by the club. Cars were cleaned and polished for the April show in Ahearn Field House. The club conducted two car rallyes each month.

Sport parachutists strive for altitude jump record

Breaking the Kansas night altitude record of 10,000 feet was a goal set by members of the Sport Parachute Club. A series of difficult preliminary altitude chamber tests had to be passed by all members who participated in the attempt.

In April, club members went to Orange, Mass., where they participated in the 1967 Collegiate National for parachuting. They also jumped with members of the Wichita State University Parachute Club in another spring meet.

Of the more than 50 students who had been trained in the sport of skydiving since the club's founding in 1965, ten have since been awarded internationally recognized parachutist licenses.

Pep groups boost spirits at campus athletic events

Wildcat cheers boosted by Statesmates and Statesmen, women's and men's pep clubs, spirited basketball and football team efforts during home contests. Statesmates painted victory signs on downtown and Aggieville store windows preceding K-State-University of Kansas athletic clashes, traveled to Lawrence to attend the annual rival basketball game and sold Wildcat booster hats for the cerebral palsy fund. Statesmates organized noon football rallies and planned, for the first time with the aid of a computer, flashcard shows for football game half-time entertainment presented by K-Block.

Senior Day half-time ceremonies feature an unusual grid tilt as Statesmates divide ranks and don helmets for a scrimmage.

School for the Deaf students provide S.E.A. program

Students and teachers from the Olathe School for the Deaf demonstrated methods of instructing handicapped children at the November meeting of the Student Education Association. Other monthly meetings included talks by guest speakers on specific aspects of the teaching profession such as "Innovations for Education." In April, members attended an awards banquet at which outstanding seniors were recognized. Membership was the largest since the organizations founding in 1951.

Table Tennis club selects team for regional tournament

In its first year on campus, the Wildcat Table Tennis Club sponsored tournaments in which both members and non-members could participate. A major campus tournament in December selected a team of undergraduate players to represent the University at the University of Kansas in the regional table tennis tournament, sponsored second semester by the Association of College Unions.

Meeting twice weekly in either dorm basements or the Union recreation area, members of the newly formed Wildcat Table

Tennis Club learn and develop skills in ping-pong for club-sponsored tournaments for all students and faculty members.

Extension club members present two radio programs

Two radio programs on campus station KSDB-FM were presented by members of University Extension Club in the fall. The reports were "Careers in Extension Work" and "Dimensions of Human Personality of College Students." The group illustrated the functions of extension work at Ag Science Day with a world map pinpointing extension club locations and a closed-circuit television showing the work done in these countries. The group heard Mae Baird, home economics professor, tell of Christmas-time in India at its annual Christmas party. International students who were members of the organization talked about extension work within their countries, and instructors in the extension department discussed career possibilities in extension. Members planned a picnic in the spring.

Agronomists judge crops, hear Nigerian program

Robert Bohannon, University director of international agricultural progress, was one of several featured speakers who addressed the Wheat State Agronomy Club. Bohannon outlined agricultural conditions in Nigeria, where he evaluated progress in the professor exchange program with Ahmadu Bello University. Other guests included Hyde Jacobs, who spoke on water resources, and Raymond Olson, who spoke about job opportunities in agronomy. The organization conducted a crops judging contest for club members. Other events were a faculty-student party in the fall and a banquet in the spring for members and their guests.

Baptist missionaries serve at Appalachian work camp

Chosen to serve as missionaries, two members of the Baptist Student Union assisted at a work camp in the Appalachian region of Kentucky during the summer. Each month the students sponsored full-length religious film showings which included a Billy Graham production, "Shadow of a Boomerang." In the fall, members hosted the State Student Convention for Baptist Student Unions, attended by representatives from Nebraska and Kansas, and met for a retreat. The organization also initiated plans for a new University center.

Lutheran group discusses interpretations of movies

Critical discussions and interpretations followed contemporary movies viewed by the 25 members of Gamma Delta, a Missouri Synod Lutheran student group. Films reviewed included "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf," "Hat Full of Rain," and a series entitled "Quotes of Basis for Sex Morality."

Talks by guest speakers from area churches at weekly Sunday meetings provided basis for conversation among members. The student Lutherans also participated in discussions concerning the Bible and met together each week for an evening meal.

Baptists visit rest homes, sponsor Sunday suppers

Visiting several rest homes in the Manhattan area during the holiday season, members of Grace Baptist Student Fellowship talked to shut-ins and sang Christmas carols. Students met on Sunday evenings at Grace Baptist Church for supper and then divided into groups to discuss topics such as choosing a vocation and marriage. In November, several members presented musical numbers and spoke to the church congregation at an evening worship service. The fellowship also provided posters for "The Restless Ones," a religious movie that was shown in February at a Manhattan theatre.

Christian group sponsors residence hall discussions

Religious issues, including the "Death of God" theory and the "Christian View of Marriage," were discussed by students during residence hall group study sessions sponsored by the Kansas State Christian Fellowship. Members met each day in Danforth Chapel for prayer and attended weekly meetings at which representatives from local and state religious organizations spoke.

Selling Christian Literature and collecting donations, the Fellowship helped to finance a trip for ten members to Bear Trap Ranch, Colo., owned by Inter-Varsity, the organization's national.

Kappa Phi women carol, decorate for army patients

During the Christmas season, Kappa Phi, Methodist women's organization, caroled and helped decorate wards at Irwin Army Hospital at Ft. Riley. For the second year, they conducted a money-making project through which they collected used clothing to be sent to a Korean mission headed by two University graduates. In another charity project, the organization's card sale in the Union raised money for the United Nations Children's Fund. The women discussed a series of lessons entitled "One Witness on One World." Kappa Phi also taught Sunday school and sang in church choirs.

Latter Day Saints attend weekly meetings in homes

Meeting weekly in members' homes, students in Liahona Fellowship participated in group discussions on the Christian role in a modern society and the relationships among religions. Members also viewed movies including "Failsafe" and "The Agony and the Ecstasy" and discussed them critically. The group, which consisted of members of the Reorganized Church of Latter Day Saints, attended services in Danforth Chapel. They celebrated Christmas with a vesper service and a party which included dinner and caroling. In the fall, the group sponsored a chili supper. Roger Hands was president of the six-year-old organization.

Baptists program explores race relations on campus

Race relations at the University was the topic explored in a program presented by Roger Williams Fellowship at the Wesley Foundation and Goodnow hall. The program prompted weekly "Negro—White Dialogues," a series of group discussions on campus racial discrimination. During spring break, several group members observed and studied race relations at Arkansas A&M, a college for Negro students in Pine Bluff, Ark.

Other Baptist students attended the Ecumenical Institute in Chicago or the United Nations Seminar in Washington, D.C. during semester break. The seminar was directed by the National Baptist Student Movement. For a fall retreat, members attended a movie in Kansas City and camped at Lake Shawnee grounds in Topeka.

Methodist student group buys silverware for annex

As a student organization affiliated with the Wesleyan Methodist Church, members of the Wesleyan Campus Fellowship met for the evening meal each Sunday and studied religious topics in several discussion groups. The 120-member fellowship contributed funds to purchase silverware for the new church annex. Members invited guests to a Valentine's Day banquet in February and elected Lester Young president of the organization.

Campus fraternities pledge 130 men during semester

First semester, 130 men pledged the 23 fraternities through informal rush. This represented the largest number of men to pledge during a single semester in the history of the University.

Summer rush resulted in 244 pledges for the fraternities. During formal fall rush, fraternities encouraged informality at rush parties, including informality in dress. Rushees frequently broke away from the traditional suit and tie dress in favor of school clothes for afternoon rush dates.

Sorority pledge classes ranged in size from 10 to 40. The 411 rushees attended formal rush parties during fall rush week and 319 pledged the 11 houses. Under a new rule, rushees visited fewer houses on two days than previously.

Chances of survival for the KU Jayhawk appear slim in the Alpha Xi Delta display which placed third among sororities.

Spurred on with claps and vocal encouragement from sorority members, chickens race to the finish at Greek games.

Amid cries of congratulations, sororities prepare to drive their new sisters back to the house for yell-ins, picnics and pledging.

The bids marked the end of a hectic rush week of skits, parties, and tours and the beginning of a new year as a Greek pledge.

High sorority scholarship leaves time for activities

Competition ran high among sororities during rush week, Interfraternity Sing, Harlequinade, intramurals and Homecoming decorations. During first semester, all sororities joined forces in a house to house campaign for Multiple Sclerosis.

While accumulating a 2.8 all-sorority average, the coeds still made time for functions, parties, informal rushing and pledge-active activities.

Alpha Chi Omega wins award for social program

Cited for an outstanding social development program and record of chapter history, Alpha Chi Omega won two awards at their 1966 national convention. As a Christmas project, Alpha Chis donated a tricycle to the children's physical therapy ward at Memorial Hospital in Manhattan.

Social activities included a Mod Party, Shipwreck Party, a pledge Christmas party, annual Golden Lyre Ball, Depauw Duo with Kappa Alpha Theta, Todd Road Triad and an afternoon get-acquainted tea for fraternity pledges. Alpha Chis were officers in S.E.A., Panhellenic Council, States-mates, Sigma Delta Pi, German Club and Phems.

Alpha Xi Delta captures trophy for house display

With a 48-member pledge class, largest of any sorority, Alpha Xi Delta had 18 more women in the sorority than last year. Alpha Xis places third among sororities for their Homecoming display, "Bye, Bye, Birdie." Members tutored for Project Headstart and collected toys at Christmas. The Pink Rose Formal, and a pledge-active Babydoll Party were other Alpha Xi social activities.

Alpha Xi Delta members were sweethearts of Delta Chi and Alpha Kappa Lambda, secretary to the apportionment board and assistant to the Director of Campus Affairs. A People-to-People exchange student and the Kansas 4-H Style Review Champion belong to the sorority; others were active in Student Senate, K-State Singers, and Sparks.

Chi Omegas capture first in Cinemania competition

Filmed plans to raid the kitchen refrigerator of the Chi Omega house won the chapter first place in the new Cinemania contest, screened in conjunction with 1966 Harlequinade. At Christmas time the women caroled for residents of several Manhattan rest homes and, with Phi Delta Theta, entertained underprivileged children at a party.

Chi Os were members of Student Senate, three served on college councils and four were members of Alpha Lambda Delta. A pledge party, Christmas stocking party and a spring formal were included among the sorority's social events.

Delta Zetas hostess tea to welcome housemother

Teaming efforts with the men of Lambda Chi Alpha, Delta Zeta's 1966 Harlequinade entry, "A Horse of Course," was one of four skits to reach the production finals. With a tea in February, the DZs officially welcomed Mrs. Edith Rosener who assumed duties as housemother after Christmas.

Social events included the annual Joyeaux Noel Party, the Spring Rose Formal, parent and legacy weekends and a surprise breakfast for the Gamma Phi Betas. The DZs also hosted other Kansas chapters at a founder's day meeting in the Union and tea at the house. In campus activities, the president of Putnam Scholars Association, vice-president of AWS and SGA committee chairmen were DZs. The women also were members of Mortar Board, Chimes, Sparks, Kappa Delta Pi, Delta Phi Delta, Angel Flight and Alpha Lambda Delta.

Gamma Phis place first in IF Sing for second year

First among sororities in Interfraternity Sing competition was Gamma Phi Beta. Singing "All the Things You Are" and "Gamma Phi Man," the women won the top trophy for the second consecutive year. In the spring 1966, members recorded a "We're Gamma Phis" song album which they sold at their national convention. During the convention, the chapter received a scholarship plaque and a Havens Award honorable mention for ranking either first or second in campus scholarship among sororities for four consecutive semesters.

At a founder's day dinner in November, Gamma Phis and alumnae celebrated their tenth year on campus. A Christmas party was planned with Sigma Alpha Epsilon for Manhattan's underprivileged children. The Christmas season was also a time for a dinner with dates and the annual tree trimming party with pledges. The Crystal Crescent Ball and a square dance were in the spring.

With charter members as guests, Gamma Phis and alumnae observed their tenth year on campus at a founder's day dinner in November. The women, living at 1807 Todd Road, sent money to underprivileged children at camps in Canada.

Fraternities aim for goals in scholarship, activities

Parties for handicapped children, adoption of needy families at Christmas and work projects at Manhattan hospitals were included in the list of fraternity campus and community projects.

The more than 1,600 members of the 23 fraternities retained a grade average above all men's average while participating in intramurals, Greek Week activities, Interfraternity Sing, Harlequinade, and Model Congress. Seven fraternities also sponsored their own campus-wide events during the year.

Typical of Greek community service projects, Phi Kappa Thetas donate blood during an emergency drive at St. Mary's Hospital.

Farm House men receive fifth consecutive award

National Interfraternity Council awarded the Summa Cum Laude Scholarship Award to the men of FarmHouse for the fifth consecutive year. The award recognized the house for having a grade point 30 per cent above the all men's average.

The men participated in all intramurals and captured first in the 157-pound class of intramural wrestling. Members were pledged by informal rushing throughout the year. The men belong to Blue Key, Student Senate, Board of Student Publications, Apportionment Board and Sigma Tau.

An informal watermelon feed for members and their dates was in the fall. Other FarmHouse activities included a Christmas party, barbecue, Star and Crescent Formal, Sisters' and Parents' Days and rush weekends for high school seniors.

Kappa Sigs plant shrubs for Manhattan police office

New shrubbery in front of the Manhattan police headquarters were planted as a service project of Kappa Sigma. Participating in all intramurals, they took third place in fraternity division football. In April, instead of a spring formal, Kappa Sigs and their dates dressed in prehistoric costumes for a Cave Man party at the fraternity's chapter house.

The annual Red Dog party was given by the pledges in November and the Stardust formal was in December. Kappa Sigs represented Iowa in Model Congress. Editor of the K-State Engineer, president of Collegiate Young Democrats and day editor of the Collegian were Kappa Sigs.

Phi Delta Thetas claim three campus presidencies

Three presidents of campus groups — the senior class, Steel Ring, and Scabbard and Blade — were members of Phi Delta Theta fraternity. Winning the Silver Star Award from the national organization, the fraternity was one of the top 20 chapters nationally in scholarship improvement.

A jungle gym and furniture were built for the handicapped children of Lee school by Phi Delts for their community service project. With the women of Chi Omega, the men entertained underprivileged children in Manhattan at Christmas time.

In intramurals, Phi Delts took first place in their league in football, third in league basketball, fourth overall in golf and second overall in badminton.

Members of the newly formed little sister group, Tri-angels, and the Triangle pledge class combined efforts to sponsor a bridge party at the chapter house in the fall. Funds raised by the project were used to purchase new dining room furniture.

Smurthwaite women, as do students in all co-operative housing, follow work duty schedules to cook, serve, and do all kitchen work. One coed is elected to act as a kitchen manager to co-ordinate meal planning and work with the housemother.

Three years of planning becomes reality as breaking of the sod initiates the construction of a new 62-girl house for Clovia women. It will be owned and operated by the Kansas 4-H Foundation. Residence for the past 30 years has been 303 N. 13th.

Clovia members break ground for new brick home

With completion date set for fall, 1967, members of Clovia 4-H House broke ground in October for a new home at the corner of McCain Lane and Pioneer Street. Partially financed by the sale of cook books, the house was to have a brick exterior.

Social events included a "Bewitched" Halloween party, a Christmas Crystal Ball with dinner and dancing and a Hospitality party for high school students attending Home Economics Hospitality Day. A coke party for prospective members was in April.

President of Collegiate 4-H and the outstanding student in the College of Commerce were members of Clovia. The house also was represented in Alpha Lambda Delta, Sparks and Phi Alpha Theta.

With the theme "Christmas for All," women of Smurthwaite House, 1500 N. Manhattan, collected toys for underprivileged children. Members had a mother's and a father's weekend, spring Scroll and Quill formal and participated in intramurals.

Smurthwaite celebrates fifth anniversary on campus

Celebrating their fifth anniversary, women in Georgiana Smurthwaite Scholarship House invited alumni to the campus in October and organized an alumni association to support the living group.

Smurthwaite coeds collected toys at Christmas and donated them to the city recreation commission for distribution to underprivileged children. Members of Mortar Board and Angel Flight, the Kansas Pork Queen, the K-State Rodeo Queen and the Kansas Angus Queen lived in the house.

Smurthwaite coeds take advantage of melting snow to engage in a snowball fight. Georgiana Smurthwaite, for whom the house is named, performed "burning of the papers" ceremony following final house mortgage payment in February.

Founded in 1957, the Maitland E. Smith Scholarship House, 331 N. 17th, provides co-operative living quarters for 45 men.

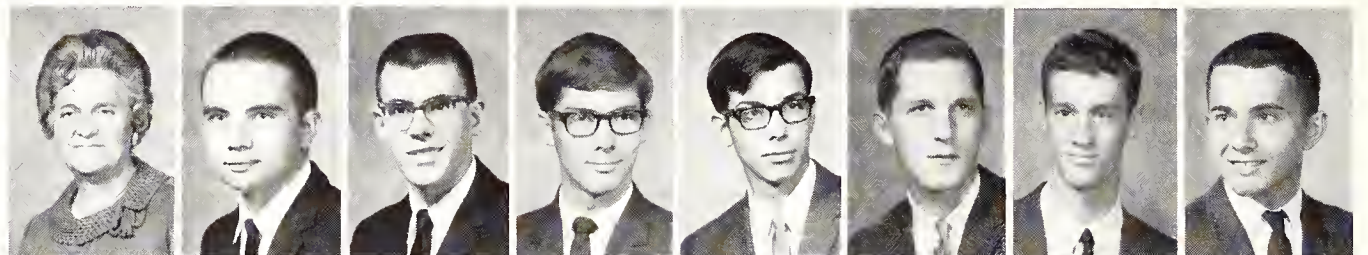

Smith men place second in Homecoming displays

To honor their new housemother, Mrs. Irene Meyers, the men of Maitland E. Smith scholarship house gave a tea in the fall. Participating in Model Congress in March, members represented Alabama, and in the independant division of Homecoming House decorations, the house placed second.

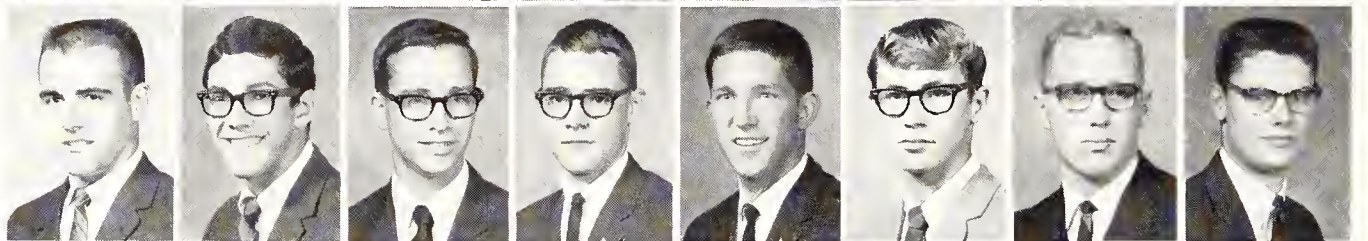

Represented in organizations, the men were members of Phi Kappa Phi, Phi Eta Sigma, Sigma Tau, Scabbard and Blade and Student Senate.

In December, an Old English Christmas Party was attended by members and their dates. Other social events included an indoor picnic. New residents were selected by application when registering for admittance to the University.

During open house in the fall, Ford coeds and visiting men take the opportunity for a quiet game of bridge. The men were permitted to tour the entire nine-story dormitory.

Prepared for a long silence, a coed waits for switchboard to answer.

Relaxing in one of the hall's social and study rooms, a Putnam coed dries her hair while preparing a homework assignment.

Telephone calls for 629 Ford coeds are placed through 20 lines by part-time resident operators in the dormitory's lobby.

Opening of Ford brings change to women's dorms

As enrollment increased, campus growth was reflected in a series of changes in women's residence halls. An overflow of freshman women required the re-opening of Van Zile for the fall semester. With the closing of Waltheim hall and the opening of Ford, the third structure in a four-dorm northeast complex, University housing for 627 women was added. As members of the Kansas State University Association of Residence Halls, the women's dormitories worked with the men's halls in planning and coordinating events such as races, open houses and an informal dance for Spring Fling weekend.

Boyd women decorate floor booths for Halloween party

Boyd hall women celebrated Halloween with a party featuring unusual booths set up by each floor. At Christmas the coeds added a special feature to their annual formal dance — escorts called for dates at room doors. Residents also had an elections party and Valentine parties on each of the four floors.

The hall in March represented Washington in Model Congress, and during Homecoming won second place in residence hall competition for their dorm display, "Join the Jayhawks for Lunch Bunch." The coeds were members of Sparks, Chimes and Alpha Lambda Delta service and scholastic honoraries. During Christmas time residents entertained patients at Winfrey Rest Home.

Boyd Hall women provided residents of Winfrey Rest Home with candy and presents as part of a Christmas service project.

Regularly governed by floors, dorm members united to entertain the patients with songs and the presentation of a short skit.

Ford coeds join Moore residents for service project

Project Unity, a joint-service program with the men of Moore hall, was initiated by Ford hall coeds to entertain children in Project Head Start. Students became "foster parents" for the children for evenings of dinners and parties at Christmas and Easter. During Christmas the fifty-voice dorm chorus sang for Project Unity parties and serenaded patients in Irwin Army Hospital at Ft. Riley. Ford women sponsored Homecoming, Parents' Day and the annual fall open houses. They also attended informal dances with the men's residence halls and a formal Sweetheart Tree Party in February.

Goodnow joins Marlatt for new cultural program

Every two weeks, Goodnow hall coeds met with Marlatt hall men to take part in their new established joint-cultural program. The group heard campus speakers and attended a fashion show and a K-State Players' production of "The Physicist." Discussion topics of the meetings included "Is God Dead?" and "What to do on a Woodsie."

In its first year as a women's dorm, Goodnow residents were part of a Counseling Center project. Floor decorations were judged at Homecoming and the winning decoration, entitled "Bar the Jay-hawks" depicted a discotheque scene.

The spring formal, the Shamrock Ball, was at the Union. Other social activities included mothers' and fathers' weekends and Blue House social hours in the hall recreation room. Accomodations for the two Red Cross bloodmobile drives were also set up in Goodnow's basement during a campus drive.

Goodnow residents ice skate during winter months on flooded tennis courts constructed for the Goodnow-Marlatt complex.

Goodnow hall trick-or-treaters examine their loot of Halloween goodies after their door to door search in nearby Marlatt hall.

The dormitories of the northwest corner of the campus also had joint social functions, serenades and cultural programs.

Located on Petticoat Lane, Putnam hall provides dining facilities for the residents of Van Zile as well as for its own coeds.

Homecoming competitions bring trophies to Putnam

Two firsts in Homecoming contests were won by the coeds of Putnam hall. In a campus-wide election, students voted Bonnie Biery, a resident, as Homecoming queen; and the hall's house decoration entry was judged best in its division. A finalist for Royal Purple queen was also a Putnam coed.

Receiving two traveling residence hall trophies, the women ranked first in scholarship and first in intramural basketball, bowling, and softball competition in the women's independent division. At Christmas time, residents sold candy apples to raise money for gifts, clothing and food which were given to a needy family. For another service project each floor helped to make 300 dinner tray favors for soldiers at Irwin Army Hospital. Hostessing football teas in their living room, Putnam hall coeds entertained dates, families and friends after the games. Other activities were Christmas and spring formals.

Paved lots adjacent to each hall in the four-dormitory complex provide residents space for Saturday afternoon car washings.

Residence hall changes switch men and women

Copying changes in women's housing, the University closed West Stadium dormitory and moved men into West and Moore, two halls in the four-dormitory northeast complex formerly used to house women. More switching created the only co-ed housing on campus in Goodnow and Van Zile. In September, construction began on Haymaker hall, the last dormitory in the northeast complex, scheduled to house 627 men in the fall of 1967.

Marlatt assigns engineers to special corridor in dorm

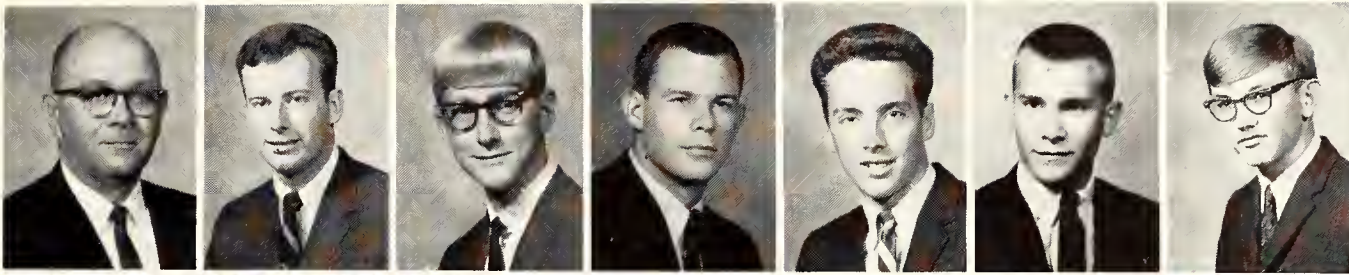

In an experiment to improve study habits, all engineering students in Marlatt hall were assigned to the same corridor. Other changes in the room assignments were necessitated when the dormitory's fourth floor was reserved for athletes in January.

With the women of Goodnow hall, the men participated in a cultural program, "Accent on Living." As part of the program, the students attended musical events, plays, Union art movies and invited speakers to talk at their weekly meetings.

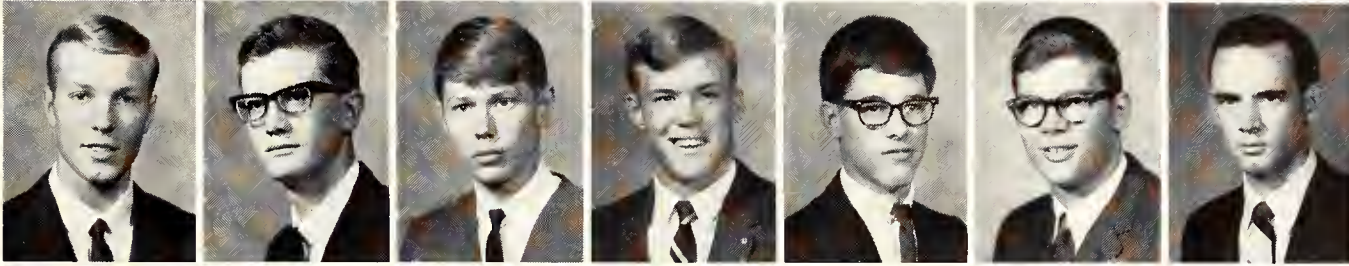

An FMOC finalist and members of Sigma Tau, Steel Ring, Chi Epsilon, and the Union Governing Board lived in Marlatt. In the spring the men began a magazine library in the hall basement.

National president of the Association of Residence Halls and chairman of Spring Fling were residents of Moore. Men were in Arnold Air Society, Scabbard and Blade, Alpha Zeta, Alpha Kappa Psi, Gamma Sigma Delta, Phi Eta Sigma, and varsity track.

Moore residents improve collection in dorm library

To expand the hall library, Moore hall residents transferred books formerly housed in Goodnow hall to their new residence and added volumes to the collection. The project was part of the conversion of Moore from a women's to a men's dormitory.

Three hall parties, a cation party, semi-formal and formal spring parties, and numerous floor athletic events highlighted Moore's list of activities. In December, hall residents furnished presents for 60 children at a Christmas party. The men included the national president of the Association of Residence Halls, chairman of annual Spring Fling and members of Phi Eta Sigma, Arnold Air Society, Scabbard and Blade, and varsity track.

Increased traffic and inadequate parking resulted from the conversion of West hall from a womens' dorm to a mens' dorm.

The 300 men had exchange dances, presented movies, and dined with other students living in the residence hall complex.

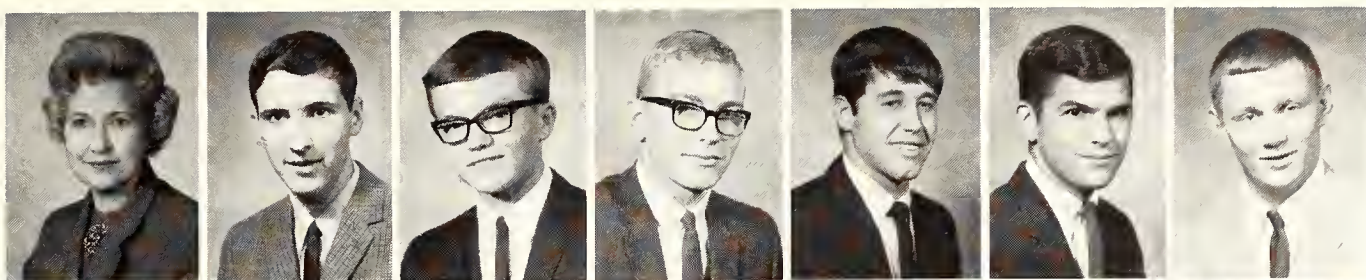

West men provide family with Christmas toys, food

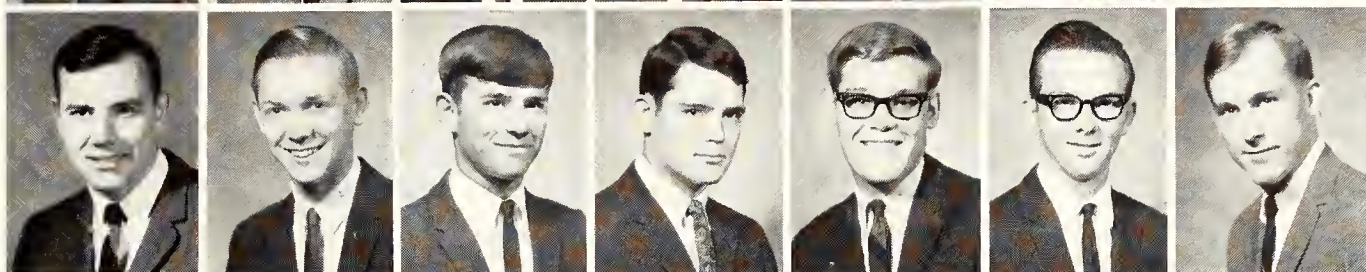

As a Christmas service project, residents of West hall provided an underprivileged family with food and toys. Previously women's housing, the hall was converted during the summer to house 302 men.

With dates the men attended a formal Winter Wonderland Party in February and joined with residents of six other hall in initiating a Groady Ball. The men were active in Student Senate, Pershing Rifles and SGA committees. In intramural competition, swimmers from the residence hall won individual championship titles.

First residence hall at the University, Van Zile, constructed for women in 1926, housed men this year for the first time.

Plumbing problems force Van Zile coeds to move

Coeducational living in Van Zile hall was discontinued in February when the northeast wing housing women was vacated for major plumbing repairs.

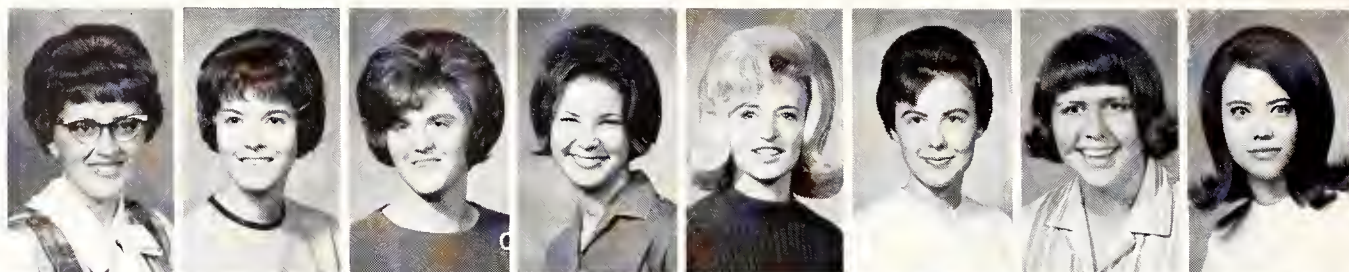

First semester the men and coeds constructed a cardboard wishing well and an antique car included as decorations for the hall's Christmas formal, "Mistletoe Madness." In the fall, residents entertained parents with a weekend open house and for Homecoming built house decorations and a victory float which was paraded at the stadium before the K-State-University of Kansas football game.

In intramural competition, Van Zile men placed second in league football and in basketball won first in their league and third in the division. They also were second in league free throwing.

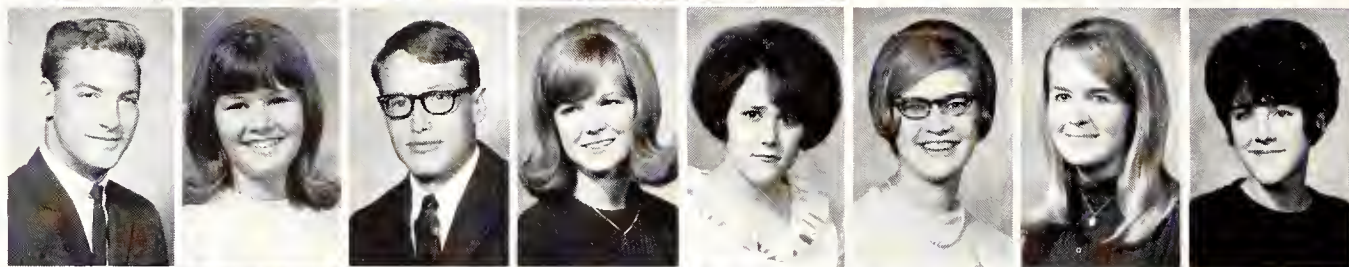

Typical among coeducational living problems, a Van Zile coed rushes from room to telephone unprepared for the unexpected.

Forced to evacuate after a June 8 tornado caused extensive damage to Jardine apartments, married students move to temporary housing provided by the University. Repairs were finished during the summer allowing students to return in the fall.

Jardine begins film series, story sessions for children

Children from Jardine Terrace and Campus Trailer Court were offered story telling sessions twice weekly by students participating in the speech department's story telling lab. Sessions were organized in Jardine wash houses. Other new programs instituted by the married students included a health education series, which featured "Ice Cream Kid," a film dealing with children's emotional problems.

Named for William Jardine, former University president, the apartment complex included 576 apartments in 24 buildings. They were originally subsidized by the government to accomodate veterans who wished to continue their education on the GI Bill. Jardine couples enjoyed reduced rates for cable television in the government-owned housing.

Warm weather to many Jardine residents means cooking out on the covered walks or balconies in front of their apartments.

Before leaving for work or class or to shop, wives of students begin the day by preparing breakfast for their husbands.

Typical of a weekday evening, a wife sews or does housework while her husband completes his homework assignments.

Two-bedroom apartments offer married students with children extra facilities needed for a nursery, playroom or study.

Flights of stairs, typical of many of the large apartment complexes near campus, await students after their daily classes.

Residents of modern off-campus apartments relax during their spare time by playing a favorite game of cards. Several of the new apartment complexes provide free swimming, ice skating and basketball facilities for students weekend recreation.

Off-campus apartments attract increasing numbers

Apartment living appeal was on the uprise with 45 per cent of the male undergraduates and 22 per cent of the women living off campus. Housing ranged from modern apartments in newly constructed complexes to one-room efficiencies.

Campus housing officials listed students living in 1,105 University approved apartments located in 121 buildings scattered throughout Manhattan. Typical of the independents were students who cooked, cleaned and furnished their own apartment.

Making use of every spare minute, students living in bachelor apartments budget their time to include housekeeping chores.

Although the residents enjoy convenient, at-home facilities, cramped quarters often typify off-campus apartment housing.

Coeds find a quiet and relaxed atmosphere for study in a sorority sister's Manhattan home. "Townees" frequently invite friends from campus living groups to their homes for evenings of study, planning house or dorm parties or Sunday dinners.

Living at home presents students unique problems

Combining college classes and activities with living at home, Manhattan students frequently encountered problems unique to their situation. Finding parking on campus, daily Union lunches and detachment from the University atmosphere at home were balanced by home-cooked food, a quiet place to study and closer family ties.

Many "townees" affiliated with Greek groups or an off-campus social organization to gain opportunities for activities normally restricted to campus living groups. Many students had professor fathers or mothers on the University staff. More than 10 per cent of the first semester honor roll were students listing Manhattan as a permanent address.

Townees and students living off-campus are required to purchase three dollar permits in order to park cars on campus.

Engrossed in his work, a Manhattan student studies in his own home without the distractions associated with campus housing.

Bedtime stories and free babysitting with younger brothers and sisters are often included in a townie's daily schedule.

Manhattan students consider home cooked meals with their families one of several obvious advantages of living at home.

The "townees" are able to maintain close family and community ties while being involved in academics and campus activities.

Despair, then excitement, crowded masses of humanity and the thrill of competition and achievement are expressed as different faces of college athletics.

Basketball fever strikes the campus each winter and takes its toll in capacity crowds in the 12,500 seat Ahearn Field House.

Athletic director Bebe Lee discusses plans for the new U-shaped, 34,000 seat stadium with football coach Vince Gibson.

A site northwest of campus has been chosen for the $1.6 million project which includes parking lot with 8,500 capacity.

Council begins fund drive for new football stadium

Athletic council reviewed 70 applications for head football coach before hiring Vince Gibson, former defensive coaching assistant at the University of Tennessee. Plans for the proposed football stadium became part of the accelerated athletic program when a fund raising drive was started for the $1.6 million project. C. Clyde Jones, chairman of the 12-man council, announced that the stadium site eventually was to include a track and a new fieldhouse. September, 1967, was set for completion of an athletic dormitory which was to house all varsity athletes. The athletic operating fund — fees, appropriations, donations, and gate receipts — was budgeted by the athletic council.

All-Big Eight fullback Cornelius Davis grimaces as he smashes into a teammate and an Iowa State defender. Davis picked up 108 yards rushing, but the Cyclones won the game, 30-13. The Wildcat sophomore gained 1,028 yards rushing for the season.

Partisan fans look on in Memorial Stadium as a Wildcat end gathers in a pass in a home opener loss to New Mexico Lobos.

Sophomore play brightens hopes for gridiron future

Only a late-season tie with arch-rival Kansas allowed the Wildcat football team to escape its second successive 0-10 season. The 'Cats finished with an 0-9-1 overall slate, and were 0-6-1 in Big Eight play, tying with the Jayhawks on the bottom rung of the Conference ladder. The squad was young, with only seven seniors included on the roster.

Outstanding play by several sophomores brightened prospects for the future. Rookie fullback Cornelius Davis led the Conference in rushing yardage and was named to the all-Big Eight first team. Sophomore split end Dave Jones broke several school pass-receiving records and made the all-conference second team. Another underclassman, junior linebacker Danny Lankas, was picked on the first team all-Conference defensive unit. Lankas was named National Lineman of the Week for his defensive play against Colorado.

Coach Doug Weaver watches on the sidelines as his club battles an opponent. Weaver was asked to resign at season's close.

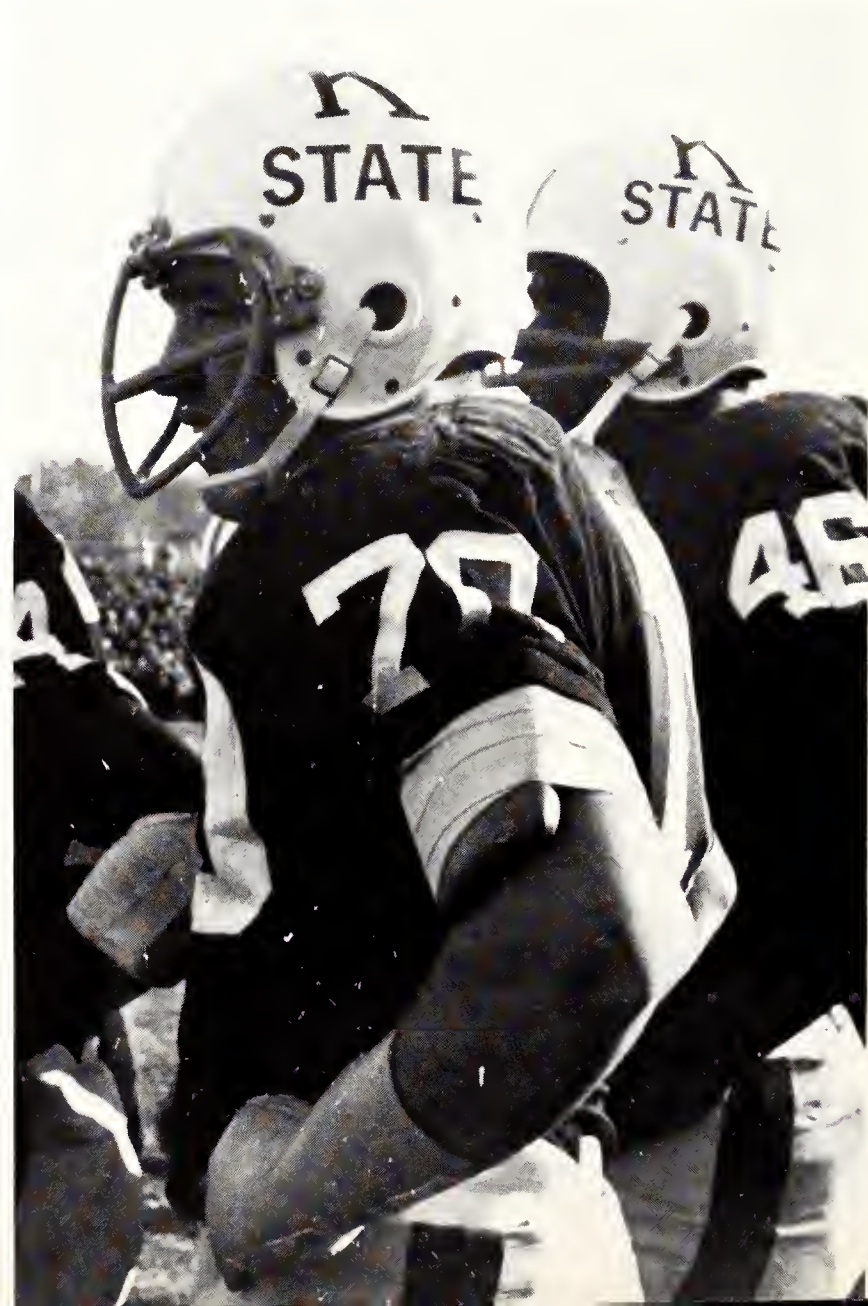

Sophomore quarterback Bill Nossek rolls out and searches for an open receiver as a blocking wall formed by Dave Alexander (62), Cornelius Davis (30), Lodis Rhodes (40), and Ossie Cain attempts to hold out rushing University of Kansas linemen.

Executing the pass-run option, Nossek threatens to throw as Davis forms a one-man convoy to ward off enemy harrassment.

Awaiting return to action, defensive cohorts Dave Langford and Wilbert Shaw watch 'Cats try to move ball against MU.

Davis, Lankas, Jones shine, but 'Cats lose first five

In the season's opener against Army, Cornelius Davis scored an 89-yard touchdown, but Army's John Peduto scored twice and Army won, 21-6. New Mexico middle guard Paul Smith led the Lobos to a 28-8 decision in the home opening tilt.

Danny Lankas' outstanding defensive play wasn't enough to offset the Wildcats' lack of offense as Colorado took a 10-0 shut out at Boulder and Missouri handed the 'Cats a 27-0 defeat at home. Led by Dave Jones' single game school reception record of 188 yards on six catches, the 'Cats gave eventual Big Eight champion Nebraska a scare before succumbing 21-10. In a non-conference game, the 'Cats led Cincinnati 14-0 before losing, 28-14.

Dubbed "Mr. Hands," sophomore end Dave Jones demonstrates a spectacular one-handed catch against Missouri. Jones was selected "Big Eight Sophomore Lineman of the Year" and gained 721 yards receiving to establish a league record.

KU spoils victory hopes with last minute 3-3 tie

Tom Barnes' field goal ended a 26-quarter Wildcat scoring drought against KU, but Jayhawk Thermos Butler tied the Homecoming contest 3-3 on a 38-yard field goal with only eight seconds left on the scoreboard. The deadlock marked the twelfth successive season that the 'Cats failed to defeat arch rival KU on the gridiron.

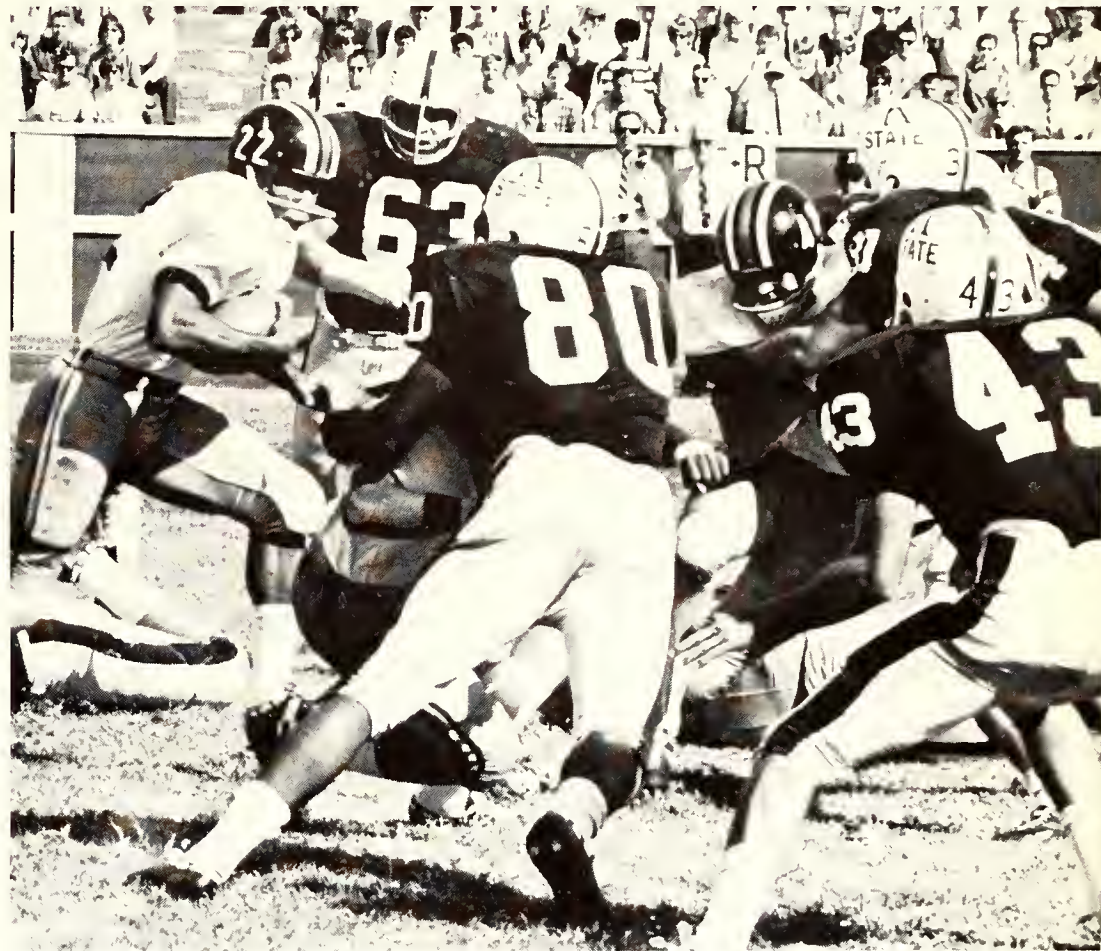

Oklahoma, later a victor over conference champion Nebraska, walloped the Wildcats 37-6 at Norman, Cornelius Davis scored the touchdown, his fifth of the season. Dave Jones broke Ralph McFillen's 1963 school reception record against Iowa State, but quarterback Tim Van Galder spearheaded the Cyclones to a 30-13 victory.

Oklahoma State overcame an early 6-0 Wildcat lead to end the season for the 'Cats on the same note with which it began — a 21-6 setback.

Using sprinter's speed and a crisp stiff-arm, Cornelius Davis goes wide to elude a Missouri tackler and pick up big yardage.

Freshman squad picks up first wins in nine years

Coached by Jerry McGee, the Wildcat freshman grid squad gained victories over KU and Oklahoma for an even split in the four-game season. Oklahoma fell 17-7 in the season opener, marking the first win for a 'Cat yearling football team since 1957. The frosh utilized a staunch defensive effort to stop KU 9-0 and gain a sweep of home games. On the road, the Wildkittens were trounced 40-13 by the Nebraska freshmen and 40-20 by Iowa State.

Basketball team finishes fourth in Big Eight race

For the second consecutive year, the Wildcat basketball team won nine of their 14 Conference games, but tumbled from third to fourth in the final loop standings. The squad compiled a 17-8 overall mark to extend head coach Tex Winter's record to 243 games won against 109 losses.

Pacing the squad in scoring and rebounding was 6-7 junior forward Earl Seyfert. Seyfert averaged 13.8 points per game and hauled in 197 rebounds for an 8.2 carom average. He was named to the all-Big Eight second team for the second straight year.

The season began on a frustrating note when the Wildcats were upset by a young Minnesota team, 60-59 in Ahearn Field House. The 'Cats rallied to edge Oregon 52-45, and thump Baylor, 77-70, and Florida State, 81-58, in the Sunflower Doubleheader Classic at Manhattan and Lawrence.

'Cats miss championship in Kentucky Invitational

After an 83-59 lacing of Penn State in the first round of the Kentucky Invitational at Lexington, the Wildcats dropped the championship game, 83-79, to Kentucky. In the Big Eight Tournament, the 'Cats blasted Nebraska, 98-81, but fell, 67-78, to Iowa State in the second round. The Wildcats overwhelmed Oklahoma, 102-76, for third place.

Victories over Missouri, Iowa State, Oklahoma State and Oklahoma followed a conference-opening loss to Colorado at Boulder. Nebraska rode a fast-break attack to a 67-59 victory. The 'Cats couldn't cope with Big Eight Champion KU's defense, losing 55-60, before a sell-out crowd and television audience in Ahearn Field House. The 'Cats regrouped to shell Missouri, 82-67, at Columbia.

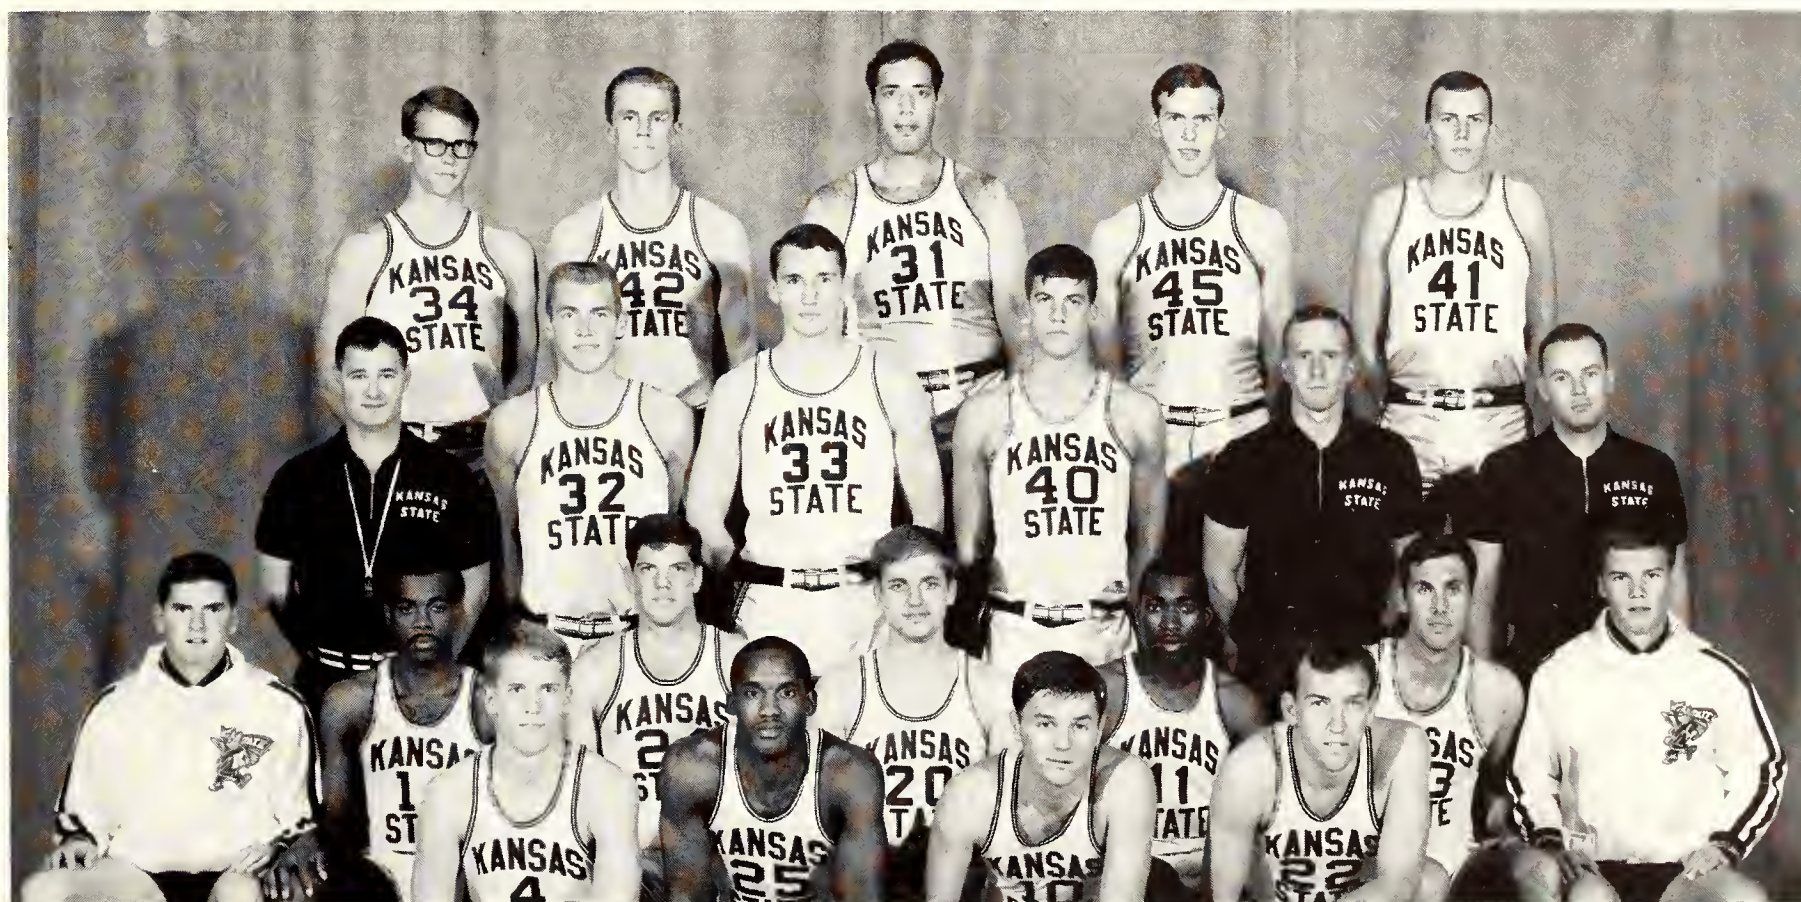

Gaining revenge, the 'Cats edged Colorado, 55-53. After losing to Nebraska at Lincoln, 79-71, the Wildcats flogged Oklahoma, 84-71. Seniors Bob George, Dennis Berkholtz, Larry Weigel, Roy Smith, John Olson and Galen Frick played their final game in Ahearn Field House as the Wildcats edged Oklahoma State, 51-49. Freshman cagers end season with unusual tie game

With a Big Eight Conference ruling ending the final Wildcat frosh game with the Washburn Junior Varsity in a 92-all tie, the 'Cat freshmen finished the campaign with a 3-4-1 record. 6-3 guard-forward Jeff Webb led the yearlings with a scoring average of 20.3 points per game. Webb also was the club's top rebounder, with an 8.6 average. Dennis Weinhold, a 6-8 forward-center, led in field-goal accuracy, shooting 63 per cent from the field.

After thrashing Dodge City Juco, 87-54, and beating Ft. Scott Juco, 86-79, the frosh fell, 76-100, to the University of Kansas freshmen at Lawrence. In the rematch at home, the Wildkittens took KU into two overtimes before bowing, 86-84. The young 'Cats upset a powerful University of Nebraska freshman squad, 83-70, but lost, 91-103, to the Cornhuskers at Lincoln. Webb collected 22 points in a 74-88 loss to Missouri.

Wildcats earn fourth place in baseball for conference

Improved hitting and pitching vaulted the Wildcat baseball team to a fourth-place tie in Big Eight Conference play. The team won 10 of 20 games on the league circuit, to bring their season record to 19 wins and 14 losses. It was the first winning season for a 'Cat baseball club since 1947.

The Wildcats gave the best representation of any conference school in the hitting charts. Outfielder Ernie Recob was third in batting averages with a .356 mark and collected the most hits in the loop with 26. He was named to the all-Big Eight team. Shortstop Gary Holland led the league in runs-batted-in, with 17, and in doubles, with seven.

Wildcat pitchers finished with a 2.93 composite earned-run-average. Wade Johnson was the most effective hurler, winning six games against two losses and finishing second in the league with a 2.08 e.r.a. The 'Cats dropped out of second place when southpaw Steve Wood was hit by a line drive midway through the season. Wood finished with a 3-5 record and a 2.52 e.r.a., third best in the loop.

Brasher leads young team to first season above .500

Leading his baseballers to continued improvement was former professional scout Bob Brasher, in his second year at the 'Cat helm. Brasher saw his club gain series decisions over Texas Christian and Arkansas, to post a 7-4 record prior to Big Eight play. In league warfare, the 'Cats dropped two of three to Oklahoma, but rebounded to take two of three from KU and sweep a series with Colorado.

After splitting a two-game series with Iowa State, the Wildcats met Nebraska in a disappointing series, as starter Steve Wood sustained a line-drive injury to his cheekbone. The Cornhuskers took the series, two to one. The 'Cats dumped Emporia State twice, but lost four of their last six Conference games, as Wood lost each of his last three starts.

Tennis team finishes 9-5 in dual meet competition

With only two seniors, the 1966 Wildcat tennis team compiled a 9-5 dual meet record, and tied with KU for second in the Big Eight Tournament. Non-conference dual victories were over Oklahoma Baptist, Air Force and Washburn twice. The netmen lost twice to Oklahoma City, for a 4-2 record on the non-conference slate. Gaining conference decisions over Iowa State, Nebraska, Oklahoma State and Missouri, the 'Cats split with KU and lost twice to Oklahoma for a 5-3 Big Eight dual record.

Oklahoma won the tennis tournament. Kansas and Kansas State tied for second; Missouri placed fourth; Oklahoma State was fifth; Iowa State sixth; Nebraska seventh; and Colorado eighth.

Rowers head for the lake and practice after unloading shells from the rowing team bus, used to transport shells locally. The bus was the first piece of equipment purchased for the Wildcat rowing team, which now is owner of four eight-oar shells.

Low depth of Tuttle Creek Reservoir water leaves the boat dock "high and dry," forcing the rowers to wade out to the shell.

University rowing squad competes in five contests

For the second consecutive year, the 1966 Wildcat rowers placed fourth in a field of eight in the second Mid-America Championship Regatta at Purdue. Coach Don Rose's crewmen, in their third season of competition, rowed an expanded schedule, competing in five races. The varsity crew defeated Michigan State and the 'Cat freshmen rowers bested the Notre Dame frosh in the Heart of America Regatta in Kansas City. In the lone home competition, the varsity crew lost by one and one-half lengths to Purdue, while the Jay Vees and freshmen came in behind the Purdue lightweight varsity.

In a triangular at St. Paul, the Wildcats came in last behind Minnesota and St. Thomas, while the 'Cat frosh defeated the St. Thomas freshmen. In the last race of the season, the Wildcats finished last behind Wisconsin and Wayne State, at Madison.

Crew members carry 12-foot oars into the shells, which are 60 feet long — roughly the height of a five-story building.

Huddled against nippy early March weather, coach Don Rose selects the crews and boats before a practice session.

Women's rifle team sets records at Oklahoma State

Setting records at the OSU Tournament at Stillwater and at the K-State Eighth Annual Invitational International Small Bore Rifle Tournament, the Wildcat women's rifle team became champions for the half-and full-international rifle courses.

The K-State Invitational, formerly named the Turkey Shoot, attracted more than 60 teams from 34 colleges and eight high schools. Top teams in the country participated, including West Virginia, which won for the second straight year with 2181 points. The Wildcat men's rifle team placed fifth in the tournament, with 2129 points. Spender Linderman recorded the second-best score of the 200 men who entered. In other meets, the men finished first in the Missouri Valley Meet at St. Louis, and defeated Missouri in a dual at Columbia, 1044-948.

Coed bowlers take first in Mid-States Tournament

With Larry Cornwell's tourney-high 204 average spurring the way, the Wildcat men's bowling team placed third in the annual Mid-States Tournament in the Union. The Wildcat women's team, in their second year of competition, took first place in the women's event. Liz Gilmore paced the ladies with a 169 tourney average. Eight schools were represented, with seven men's teams and six women's teams participating in the Union tournament.

In the Kansas-Oklahoma Conference, Wildcat men bowlers placed fourth in the six-team league, while the 'Cat women bowlers finished last in their four-team league. Cornwell had the best traveling league average on the team at 189, followed by Bill Feldman's 183 mark. Judy Cunningham averaged 142 pins in the traveling league, to lead the women.

Putnam coeds win trophy for intramural competition

Putnam hall captured the 1966 Women's Athletic Association trophy. The women from Putnam tied for first in participation points, but claimed the trophy on the basis of first-place finishes in basketball, softball and bowling. Team sports in women's intramurals are played in the form of tournaments, with losers eliminated from competition.

Kappa Kappa Gamma continued its domination in swimming competition, winning the title for the fourth consecutive year. West hall ended Boyd hall's two-year winning streak with a perfect record in kickball. The Moore hall ladies walked off with the tennis title. Coeducational volleyball was organized as an intramural sport for the first time. Sandra Hick coordinated the eight-sport coed schedule as women's intramural director for the fourth year.

Named Favorite Woman Teacher by Associated Women Students, Sandra Hick displays equipment used for eight sports.

Coeds practice kickball on an off-campus area. Transformation into parking lots of several campus fields caused cancellation of softball competition during the spring 1967 semester, and forced crowded kickball schedules on the remaining fields.

Betas, Marlatt one, PEM lead intramural divisions

With 11 intramural sports completed, Beta Theta Pi, Marlatt one and the Phys Ed Majors (PEM) led their divisions in 1966-67 competition. Betas captured firsts in the fraternity division in touch football, handball, horseshoes, free throwing and badminton to total 573 points. Sigma Chi, with a championship in basketball, totaled 420 1/2 points, to edge out Delta Tau Delta, with 417, for second.

PEM, with titles in swimming, handball, and horseshoes, accumulated 468 points to hold a slim lead in the independent division over AVMA, which gained championships in touch football, tennis and free throwing to score 467 points.

Marlatt 1 was dormitory champion in basketball, swimming, golf, handball, bowling and free throwing, to total 518 points and lead the division. Moore 1 Terrace took titles in touch football and wrestling, and added seconds in tennis, bowling and free throwing, to total 454 points and hold down second spot. Moore 6 was third with 320 points.

The Delts won to capture third place while Beta Sigma Psi defeated the Delta Chi's for first in the fraternity league.

Intramurals submits plans for field, building complex

Intramural director Al Sheriff prepared and submitted plans to Apportionment Board for a new intramural complex to be located adjacent to the new football stadium. The proposed plans provided for six softball diamonds and 10 football fields in addition to utility courts for badminton, volleyball, handball, horseshoes and tennis. A dual purpose building was proposed to serve as an intramural office and dressing room on the site.

Students — visiting, studying, celebrating the end of finals and reaching the final goal — in these faces one finds the meaning of the University.

vice-president; try on senior sweatshirts, purple derbies and TGIS buttons which were sold with activity cards for a $5 fee.

Activity card fees provide senior scholarship funds

Money raised by the senior class by selling activity cards provided $500 for the senior scholarship fund of the Endowment Association. More than 800 cards were sold to the 1,836 member class. Included with the card were the traditional derbies, TGIS buttons and sweatshirts and admission to the senior section of the last home football and basketball games. A keg party at Tuttle Creek and two "senior nights" at a local pizza parlor were special social functions of the year.

For the first time since 1950, the Royal Purple recognized outstanding seniors for their contributions to the University. A committee of four RP editors and two advisers selected 31 students from the 100 nominated by the college councils and 13 nominated at large. Selection was based on applications submitted by nominees. Criteria included service to the University and departmental field, campus leadership, and scholarship demonstrated by the overall grade point average. The 31 "outstanding seniors" are pictured informally throughout this section.

Cars crowding the Union parking area are indicative of the increasing number of underclass students enrolling each year. University officials developed and discussed several alternative plans for improving the parking situation on campus.

In the shadow of the tornado-damaged Anderson tower, students walk briskly to class. Only traces of the June 8 storm which caused approximately $8 million damage to the University remained when classes resumed in September.

Undergraduates total 7,569, represent 17 nationalities

Students from all 50 states and 16 foreign countries comprised the 7,569 underclass members of the student body. The freshman class led in enrollment with 3,007 students; sophomores totaled 2,693; and juniors registered 1,869. There was almost a two to one ratio of men to women—4,747 to 2,822.

Cost for nine months of University education averaged $1,500 for in-state students. Out-of-state students usually spent $2,000 with the added expenses of higher fees and cost of transportation.

When not supported by their parents, undergraduates financed their educations by summer jobs, scholarships, loans or part-time employment.

Rock 'n roll resounds through the Union recreation deck as freshmen dance to live-band music during fall orientation week.

Graduate enrollment grows with 10 per cent increase

Graduate School enrollment climbed to 1,377, an increase of 120. China and India respectively claimed the largest number of the 331 foreign students. Other countries represented totaled 53.

Approximately 100 students studied with fellowships under either the National Defense Education Act, National Aeronautics and Space Administration, National Science Foundation or National Institute of Health. Of the 1,054 men and 323 women enrolled in the Graduate School, 645 participated in the graduate teacher assistant program. Graduate students also belonged to the Graduate Students Association, a social organization.

COLLEGE OF EDUCATION
Holton Hall
CAMPUS

Closing a yearbook is always hard for an editor; this year is no exception. It is impossible to work closely with a major project like the Royal Purple without forming sentimental attachments to it and to the people with whom I have worked. To thank them appropriately would take several pages. These are the faces that have made this book possible:

First, my sincere thanks to C. J. (Chief) Medlin, my lifetime friend and adviser, who although now retired, was always there when needed. Thank you also to Del Brinkman and Jack Backer, 1967 RP advisers, and to Carole Fry Owen, 1966 RP editor, who spent many hours breaking me in last year. My appreciation to Ruth Foster and Carol McCoy, Student Publications secretaries.

The book's production depended upon Frank Wright, John Allen and the staff of American Yearbook Company, and Ed Kase and the S. K. Smith Cover Company. Special thanks to David Von Riesen, Laurence Blaker, Don Richards, the Studio Royal and the student photographers for the photography in the RP, and to Margo Miller and her staff for indexing and business work.

My greatest thanks go to an excellent editorial staff to whom this book really owes its existence, with special mention to JoAnn Goetz and Mike Lowe, assistant editors. Finally, my special appreciation to my parents and friends, whose patience and understanding have made this year much easier for me.

Sue Brandner, Editor
