CENTENNIAL EXHIBITION, PHILADELPHIA, PA.

THIS GREAT INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION, DESIGNED TO COMMEMORATE THE ONE HUNDREDTH ANNIVERSARY OF AMERICAN INDEPENDENCE, OPENED MAY 10th, AND WILL CLOSE NOVEMBER 10th, 1876. All the Nations of the world and all the States and Territories of the Union are participating in this wonderful demonstration, bringing together the most comprehensive collection of art treasures, mechanical inventions, scientific discoveries, manufacturing achievements, mineral specimens, and agricultural products ever exhibited. The grounds devoted to the Exhibition are situated on the line of the Pennsylvania Railroad and embrace four hundred and fifty acres of Fairmount Park, all highly improved and ornamented, on which are erected the largest buildings ever constructed,—five of these covering an area of fifty acres and costing $5,00,000. The total number of buildings erected for the purposes of the Exhibition is near two hundred. During the thirty days immediately following the opening of the Exhibition a million and a quarter of people visited it.

THE PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD THE GREAT TRUNK LINE

Fast Mail Route of the United States, is the most direct, convenient, and economical way of reaching Philadelphia and this great Exhibition from all sections of the country. Its trains to and from Philadelphia will pass throuh a GRAND CENTENNIAL DEPOT, which the Company have erected at the Main Entrance to the Exhibition Grounds for the accommodation the Exhibition Grounds for the accommodation of passengers who wish to stop at or start from the numerous large hotels contiguous to this station and the Exhibition,—a convenience of the greatest value to visitors, and afforded exclusively by the Penns-Ivania Railroad, which is THE ONLY LINE RUNNING DIRECT TO THE CENTENNIAL BUILDINGS. Excursion trains will also stop at the Encampment of the Patrons of Husbandry, at Elm Station on this road.

The Pennsylvania Railroad is the grandest The Pennsylvania Railroad is the grandest railway organization in the world. It controls seven thousand miles of roadway, forming continuous lines to Philadelphia, New York, Baltimore and Washington, over which luxurious day and night cars are run from Chicago, St. Louis, Louisville, Cincinnati, Indianapolis. Columbus, Toledo, Cleveland and Erie, without change.

Its main line is laid with double and third tracks of heavy steal rails upon a deep had of tracks of heavy steel rails upon a deep bed of broken stone ballast, and its bridges are all of proken stone ballast, and its bridges are all of iron or stone. Its passenger trains are equipped with every known improvement for comfort and safety, and are run at faster speed for greater distances than the trains of any line on the continent. The Company has largely increased its equipment for Centennial travel, and will be prepared to build in its own short becometives. equipment for Centennial travel, and will be prepared to build in its own shops locomotives and passenger cars at short notice sufficient to fully accommodate any extra demand. The un-equaled resources at the command of the Company guarantee the most perfect accommoda-tions for all its patrons during the Centennial Exhibition.

THE MAGNIFICENT SCENERY for which the Pennsylvania Railroad is so justly celebrat-ed presents to the traveler over its perfect road-way an ever-changing panorama of liver, moun-tain, and landscape views unequaled in Amer-

THE EATING-STATIONS on this line are unsurpassed. Meals will be furnished at suitable hours and ample time allowed for enjoying them.

EXCURSION TICKETS, at reduced rates, will be sold at all principal Railroad Ticket Offices in the West, Northwest, and Southwest.

THE OLD FARM-HOUSE.

BY HORACE.

The old farm-house where I was born,
Just underneath the hill,
A quaint, time-honored edifice—
Methinks I see it still.

Just as it stood when I was young, A happy country lad; Happy, though shoeless, and although My hat was "shocking bad."

Though now I am a wealthy man,
I'd give my wealth to be
A happy country lad once more,
Beneath the old roof-tree.

They've torn the old house down, and built An ugly, staring thing,
With bright green windows in the front,
And at one end a wing.

The little streamlet in the rear, A bright and sparkling rill, They dammed it up a while ago, And now it turns a mill.

The noble chestnut tree, that grew Just on the mossy bank, They chopped it down a twelve month since And sawed it into plank.

The garden and the barn-yard, all
Those dear remembered spots,
Are now "improved," and leveled, and
Cut into building-lots.

Ah! would some fairy, as of yore, But grant a wish to me, I'd wish myselt a country lad, Beneath the old oak tree.

THE SHADOWED LIFE.

BY C. P. INGRAHAM.

Claudine, the beautiful wife of Dr. Irving, the distinguished physician, drove through the Park in her handsome carriage, and with her servants in livery. One of the handsomest houses in city was hers, and in society she was a petted belle, for her husband, twenty years her senior, allowed her free rein, and heaped about her every luxury that wealth could pur chase.

But was she happy-this regal looking, beau tiful woman, not yet twenty years of age?

Let the sequel show, and watch her lovely face as she rolls through the Park in her gilded coach, bowing sweetly here and there to those whom she meets who are her friends. Suddenly she starts, and the quick blood leaves her ce and rushes to her heart, her colorless lips quiver, and the dark violet eyes are fixed upon | brought home from the opera, whither she had the form of a man who, mounted upon a handsome horse, is cantering slowly by.

Firmly he sits his horse, but turning slightly he catches the look of Claudine Irving, and his own face pales, and for an instant he seems dizzy; but an effort recovers him, the spurs sink deeply into the flanks of his horse, and soon the man and the woman are lost to sight in the busy throng of carriages.

"He here? Edwin Mountjoy alive, and here God knows I believed him dead!" And as she drove on through the beautiful Park all her thoughts turned far away, and again she roamed a happy girl among the New Hampshire hills; again she romped about the old farm of her father, drove the cows home from pasture, rode the old plough horse, attended the country school-house on the hill, and through all had for her constant companion, her devoted slave, the brave, bright boy, Edward Mountjoy.

But years went on, and brought changes, and the little Claudine grew up to womanhood, and yet the lover of her youth was with her still, sharing her joys and sorrows as in by-gone by all who knew her, and her regal beauty was on every tongue; but yet so beautiful, she was not too good nor too lovely to become the wife of Edwin Mountjoy, who had then been appointed village schoolmaster.

Edwin was as good and noble as he was handsome; and when he asked the old folks at the farm for their daughter Claudine, they gave a ready consent; and, happy in each other's love, the days passed pleasantly.

But a change came. A wealthy physician from New York sought the New Hampshire hills for his health, and engaged rooms at the old farm-house. With his brilliant conversation, his gentlemanly manners, horses and but fickle Claudine; and when Dr. Irving asked | yard. her to become his wife, poor Mountjoy was forgotten, and she consented.

Dazzled by his wealth, the good folks were but too willing to see their daughter marry the "great city doctor," and in their happi-ness, none thought of broken-hearted Edwin, until it was said he had left the village.

Word came that he had sailed from Boston in a vessel bound to China, and then only did desire to be near her seized upon him, and he lose my balance, where would Lgo?"

the friend who had been to her lover and brother from her earliest childhood.

They were married, Claudine and Dr. Irving, and she not yet seventeen, and the lovely bride accompanied her husband on a European

A year after, she settled down, the head of her magnificent establishment in New York. Her husband, though wrapped up in his practice, was devoted to society, and it gave him

A rumor had come to her from New Hampshire that poor Edwin had been lost at sea, and then did she deeply mourn her conduct toward him, and too late find out that no other love could ever cause her to forget him. As years went by she became a contented woman, a good wife; but happiness such as a true woman craves was not hers; there was always that dull, saddening pain at her heart.

Is it a wonder then, that she halted and turned pale when she recognized Edwin Mountoy on horseback, and within a few feet of her?

Though changed greatly from the Edwin of his youthful days, still he was the same to her, and her throbbing heart told her there could be no mistake.

"Drive home, John." And as the beauty gave the order to her coachman her voice sounded strange to her.

Once in her palatial boudoir, Claudine threw herself, robed as she was, upon a divan, and shed bitter, scalding tears, and thus her husband found her when he returned home at midnight. "Frank, take me to Europe again. I wish to eave America, at least for a while," she sobbed to her husband.

"Certainly, my dear. But why his fit of veeping, and sudden desire to go abroad?" asked the kind and indulgent husband. "Oh! I am so sick of New York, and wish to go to Europe for a year or two." "Well, make your preparations, and next week we will start." A month later, and Dr. Irving and his beautiful wife were domiciled in handsome apartments upon the Champs Elysees, in Paris. For a few months all went pleasantly, and dining party to attend his wife, who had been grave. gone with a company of friends, and was supposed to be seriously ill. It proved merely a fainting fit, and though no one knew the cause, it was from discovering, in the box opposite to her own, the wellknown face and form of Edwin Mountjoy, his dark eyes fixed calmly upon her.

From Paris, Dr. Irving and his wife sought the court of St. Petersburg, and vet only for a while was Claudine contented there; the same form and figure attended her, for in the gilded halls of Russia's Emperor, she met face to face the playmate of her youth—the man whom she had so cruelly deceived. Distressed at the unaccountable conduct of his wife, Dr. Irving again returned to America, hoping that household cares would divert her mind from the evident trouble that rested upon it; but still the shadow followed her, even in her own home, for picking up a book, just published, from the table, she read the title, "A Woman's Heart, by Edwin Mountjoy." "My God! my God! will my life be ever thus shadowed? And yet I deserve it all, for I wrecked his life, and drove him forth upon days. She, the belle of the county, was loved the world. Oh, Edwin, you know not how I have suffered for giving up your love, and how dearly I have loved you, from the time we were children in the old New Hampshire hills until now. Now, when 'tis too late, there is a fixed gulf between us, which you and I can never pass. This gay life is a mockery to me. I will leave the city, and return to the dear old farm, and cheer the old-age of my good parents."

No entreaties, no threats could make Claudine change her mind; and at last the doctor gave a reluctant consent, and accompanied her to her girlhood's home, where he left her with her parents. Not long did she cheer the old hearth-stone though, for her health failed, and servants, he soon turned the head of the fair in one short year she slept in the village church-

For the Household.

As I seat myself to write for the SPIRIT, so many subjects come thronging into my mind, wanting to be talked about; but having so lit pleasure to see his wife entertain his numerous | the time to write, and feeling so incompetent friends, and thus she became a married belle. to do any of them justice, I am somewhat puzzled to decide upon a topic. Many times when about to decide my scribbling does not amount to anything, isn't worth the time spent, the little poem learned in babyhood,

"Little drops of water," &c .. and the "Widow's mite," come to me, and I think that even I may add a drop in the great ocean that gives expression to thoughts and

How many times this summer while my hands were busy in supplying the wants of my family have I thanked the blessed Author of our being that man was not so organized that the brain must follow the motion of the hands, (or at most that woman was not so organized). For what a weary tread-mill life would be were the mind compelled to follow the motion of the the dishcloth and dusting brush. But, wives, we may truly thank heaven for the emancipation of the mind, for the power given us of thinking of friends or loved ones, or of living (in thought) amid the glorious beauties of nature, trying to unfold and solve her mysteries, and through our love and appreciation of her wondrous works, be led up in reverence and thankfulness to the giver of all, while our hands are performing duties that may be many times unpleasant, yet necessary to be done. But this is not just the branch of household or home affairs I had desired to talk about, and I must hasten.

Having been startled and pained by seeing in every paper the sad intelligence of such terriknowing that as a result so many homes have and so many bright hopes for the future have been blasted in laying these little forms, once then Dr. Irving was summoned home from a so full of life and animation to molder in the Statistics show that fully one-half of all the children born die before reaching the age of five years, a fact terrible and appalling. Parents, we must stare this fact fair in the face, and ask ourselves, why is it? We must not look upon such fearful mortality as natural, for it is not. Far from it. In all the brute creation we find a large percentage of their offspring healthydeath seldom occurring only by accident. This healthfulness and freedom from deformity among brutes is not a matter of chance, but the result of living in entire accordance with the laws of nature. Caroline F. Corbin says, in her "Enlightened Motherhood:"

"God has placed man in the world not under the dominion of chance, or of arbitrary malice, but under the dominion of law and beneficence. When we know the law and obey it, it is well with us; when through ignorance or perverseness, we fail of this simple duty, we merely invoke upon our own heads the natural penders?

Wives and mothers, husbands and fathers if we would retain the bloom of health, and bring back the rosy glow to our pale cheeks, if we would save our children from an early grave, if we would endow them with a health-fulness and vigor sufficient to enable them to battle with the trials and temptations of life, and fill honorably whatever position in life they may be called upon, whether that be among the high or lowly, we must study the laws of our being. 'Physiology and hygene should just as much form a part of our common school education as grammar or arithmetic, and I believe more. I have been greatly aided, and my family benefited, by taking the Health. an ably edited magazine, teaching the science of life and health. There are two others with which I am somewhat acquainted, the Health Reformer, published in Battle Creek, Michigan, and the Laws of Life, published in New York. Either of these contain volumes of good advice and practical knowledge, and I wish every mother in the land could take one or more of them, and I feel confident great good would be the result.

A dog, not far from Troy, N. Y., not long since saved a boy's life by his sagacity. The Troy Press tells the story :

Eddie Gerrold, aged nine years, of Newtonville,—a small hamlet in the interior of Water-vliet.—went into the woods in the rear of his father's house to gather nuts. He obtained a little bag from his mother, at his urgent request, to put the nuts in, and started off for the woods in high class. in high glee.

As evening advanced he did not return, and his parents became anxious and went in search of him, but failed to find him. They continued their search all day Friday, and on the evening of that day returned home, tired and footsore, and almost gave the child up as lost.

About nine o'clock on Saturday morning, as

About nine o'clock on Saturday morning, as most of the residents of the hamlet were in Mr. Gerrold's house sympathizing with the family in the loss of their child, 'Jack,' a large Newioundland dog that has been an attachee of the Gerrold family since he was a month old, entered and seemed uneasy, and kept whining and barking at intervals. He was put outside the door for disturbing the family, and after remaining there for some time, he ran into a Mrs. Scoville's house, next door, and grasped a loaf of bread that the lady of the house had put under the stove, and ran off with it in his mouth in the direction of the wood.

der the stove, and ran off with it in his mouth in the direction of the wood.

When Mr. Scoville returned, his wife related the incident to him, and he felt surprised, as Jack had always maintained a character for strict honesty. He in turn, related the incident to Mr. Gerrold, and that gentleman felt pretty certain that the dog had some idea of where the child was, and new hope was inspired in the family, and they waited impatiently for the dog's return.

THE RIVER OF LIFE.

BY KATE HAROLD.

Over the river of death we glide
To the river of life on the other side;
To the river of life, the better land
Where angels and archangels walk on the strand;
To the river of life, the home of the blest,
Where the children of God are gathered to rest;
To the river of life on the other side
Of the river of death over which we glide.

O the river of death is so dark and deep, And its banks so high, so rugged and steep, That I sometimes fear my bark will be lost, 'Ere its rushing waters are crossed, Or that some loved one its billows will drown And rob them of that immortal crown, The crown all wear on the other side Of the river of death over which we glide.

Over the river are loved ones fair Over the river are loved ones fair Who watch and wait to welcome us there; Loved ones decked in robes of pure white, Living in realms of infinite light—
Of infinite light and infinite love,
Drinking from the rivers of life above;
The river of life on the other side
Of the river of death over which we glide.

EDITOR SPIRIT :- I see nothing from this part of the State. A word from the Patrons of Thayer Grange would perhaps give encouragement to brothers in other parts. Thayer Grange is alive, and the members are waking up to their interest. Their number is increas ing, and there is a determination to make the most of their opportunities. Have purchased of the State agent $122.00 worth of goods within the past six weeks-saving enough to induce us to try again soon. Are going to work in earnest in the co-operative business. Will ship our own corn this winter. We raise no small grain to sell. Flax is almost a failure; will ship what we have.

Politics is quiet; there are symptoms of an awakening. When it comes there will be trembling in the Hard Money carcass. It is time the people took some interest in their own welfare and not allow themselves to be deliberately robbed of their hard earnings; show by their votes that they have intelligence enough to see the undercurrent of fraud running through the farce of repealing the re sumption act. Wake up, sluggards, and think, and not be slaves to the money power any long er. Let no political trickster delude you with his wily speech for his own selfish aggrandisement, or the pay of the bloated monopolist. If you have any documents for distribution, please send some this way. Enough for this time. Yours for Peter Cooper, Hudson and Shannon. THAYER, Kas., Sept. 5, 1876.

From Brother Dumbauld.

EDITOR SPIRIT :- On the second of this month I made a visit by invitation to Industrial Grange, gathered in Wilkinson's Grove, near Ladore, Neosho county. I got there about noon and found a table spread in the leafy grove, with the best of provisions and luxuries prepared as only the sisters know how to prepare. I felt out of humor, as I had a light chill and some fever and could not eat. The table was long and full of the good things every one partook. The table was filled four times, and there was plenty left. After dinner I talked to them about one hour on co-operation in the grange, and education. Feeling tired and sick, my talk was rather dry, but the brothers and sisters seemed to be encouraged and alive; they had subscribed over one hundred dollars to the Second District Commercial Agency and will subscribe more.

Our agency is prospering. We hope to have all the shares taken that is needed to start with Yours Fraternally.

State Lecturer Hanna Married

Worthy Brother W. S. Hanna, Lecturer of the State Grange, who is well and favorably known to Patrons all over the State as an energeticand thorough officer, always completing with entire satisfaction to all concerned that which he may undertake, has crowned the list of his good works by taking unto himself a partner to share his joy and sorrow, prosperity and adversity, during life. The following notice which has just been received by us, is then tions, counties for county associations. Qr, districts may embrace several counties, or even part of a county, as the manifest wishes and needs of our order may demand. For a purpose which meets with great approbation among the advocates of true co-operation on both sides of the Atlantic, namely, the establishment at the earliest practicable date of the most feasible plan for an international co-operation, by which the farmers of America, and the co-operators of Great Britain, and perhaps eventually of other countries, may begin a more direct international trade, to handle at least a portion of the products of their farms and factories, it is proposed to re-district our country, without reference to sectional lines and separate State lines, but in such a manner as may best meet the similar and mutual wants of large masses of our members in neighboring States.

In such on enterprise, hasty action cannot be taken, nor is such desirable, on the score ner as may best meet the similar and mutual wants of large masses of our members in neighboring States.

In such on enterprise, hasty action cannot be taken, nor is such desirable, on the score of prudence. It requires most deliberate consideration and careful maturing, and its plans should be clearly understood as possible by those members of our order who choose to avail themselves of such an experiment, and its advantages, when made successful. The plan here indicated makes the entire business arm of our order separate and distinct from the grange, as a social, moral, intellectual and benevolent fraternity. Yet the one is indispensable to the other. Both are needed to develop our acknowledged grange principles to their fullest extent. The bond of union and harmony, in our varied agricultural interests, which the granges secure for us, beget the uniformity and harmony necessary for the successful working of our business enterprises. A successful, even though a slow development of such enterprises, will tend to preserve the vitality and strength of the grange as a great agricultural brotherhood. While each will be mutually dependent upon each, and the one can best thrive by the healthy maintenance of the other, the great work of the grange, as an organization for social and agricultural reform, may have a healthy, though not so complete and vigorous an existence, in any given locality, without maintaining any business enterprise within its jurisdiction, and for its especial wants. On the other hand, by this separation of the business arm of the order from its other great and valued features, the occasional failure of any business scheme undertaken by our members need not materially impair the other noble work which it is, the mission of the grange to do.

Fo our individual members it leaves the fullet present independence to aid and build un pair the other noble work which it is the mission of the grange to do.

To our individual members it leaves the fullet personal independence to aid and build up our business enterprises. or not, according to their own free choice. For them it remains to take stock or not, according to their will and ability. Such a separation removes the necessity for any grange to incorporate itself with all its members as a business association, and relieves the executive committee of the National Grange, or of any State grange, or the board of trustees of any subordinate grange, from having to resolve itself into a board of directors for any business enterprise. In this respect as the constituted guardians of the business and other interests of the order, they have but to consider, to mature, to approve and recommend to our members such business plans for their acceptance, or non-acceptance, as they believe may best secure harmony, safeas they believe may best secure harmony, safe-ty and final success in this important branch of work. Then, for our members who have the will, the means and other qualifications to the will, the means and other qualifications to work out such enterprises successfully, it remains to put our business plans into execution and to maintain them.

In the establishment of these grange enterprises, all experience proves that it is best for their membership to be limited to members of our order, for these to select the most competent and acceptable of their own members as directors, to employ well qualified agents or managers of their own choice, to manage the details of business, and to place them under sufficient bonds to strengthen the security and confidence of our members.

Needing many co-operative depots and stores as members of our order eventually will, how can we avoid an excess of boards of di-stores as members of our order eventually will, how can we avoid an excess of boards of directors, or committees, and other business machinery? Let us follow the example of our cooperative friends of the United Kingdom, from whom we are learning.

The Rochdale Equitable Pioneers' Society, with over 8,000 members, has under one management seventeen branches; the Oldham e en; the Manchester and Salford Equitable, with over 15,000 members, thirty-six branches. The Wholesale Society at Manchester has one branch in London, one in Newcastle-on-Tyne, and several in Ireland. In January last, 824 retail societies were trading through it, many of them holding shares of its stock. Scotland has its separate wholesale society at Glasgow. Now, applying such a system to our wants, a country might have a central retail society under one management, its chief store at the county seat, and branches at most convenient trading points throughout the county. Sometimes several counties may prefer to combine in this manner. Also a State association can be formed more like the Wholesale Society at Manchester, with its headquarters at the chief mart of the State, and branches, when necessary, at one or more important trading points in the State. Then the half dozen or more shipping and distributing associations, on a larger scale—proposed to unite the interests of such bodies of States as can work together under one management, and can, if desired, become branches of the Anglo-American company as proposed for future inter-national trademay have their headquarters in some central city, and such branches as are required at other important shipping points in their district.

This net-work of grange association say be so arranged, that each smaller one may, if it chooses, take more or less shares of stock in a larger association; thus, and in other ways, mutually sustaining each other. Hence our wants, in these respects, can eventually be provided for upon a uniform system, for all members of our order, who may choose, sooner or later, to avail themselves of the advantages of co-operative trade in its various forms. agement seventeen of an energy, the Equitable, with some 3,000 members, has seven; the Manchester and Salford Equitable, eleven; and the Industrial Society of Leeds, with over 15,000 members, thirty-six branches. The Wholesale Society at Manchester has one

In these young and thrifty settlements the culture of the soil has so out-stripped other industries that the want of the latter is severely felt. The farmers are already there, building up communities, and doing their appropriate work bravely and well. They are continually accumulating agricultural products which, if they had a near-by market, would be synonimous with agricultural wealth.

When the manufacturer goes into such a community he supplies a vacancy that is anxiously awaiting him, and which none but himself can fill. He finds already there that which he most needs, namely, cheap food and a mar-self can fill. He finds already there that which he most needs, namely, cheap food and a market for his products, and furnishes in return the very commodities most essential to the wants of those around him. Thus the proximity of the two classes result in the highest advantage to each and the interchange of commodities becomes a mutual benefit and reciprocal wealth.

Clearly then the wider the space that separates these industries, the more they are depressed by the expensive intervention of freighting companies, middlemen and speculators. While the closer the contact into which they are brought, the more their independence is asserted, and enduring prosperity made possible. Wherever a manufacturing edifice is reared in the West the tendency is to a wider home market for beef and pork, and a rise in the price of grain. The advent of factory operatives in a new agricultural region assures coming prosperity to the farmer, and the discordant clatter of machinery that shocks the ears of others is to him sweet music; for it starts the dormant corn from the crib, gives new activity and interest to butter and beef, and prognosticates a new top to the Sunday darriage and new additions to the family wardrobe.

Without assuming to determine the true lim-robe.

Without assuming to determine the true limit of government policy in fostering industrial pursuits, it is certainly much to be desired, nay, immeasurably important to the highest good of this nation, that the manufacturing interest should keep pace more nearly with the onward march of agriculture. When these go forward with a uniform and parallel progress, mutually siding and convicting each other, and norward with a uniform and parantel progress, mutually aiding and enriching each other, and scattering their valuable products broadcast through the land, the highest condition of material prosperity for the whole country is then wilfilled.

Price of Grain.

The season, the amount of surplus grain, the home and foreign demrnd, are supposed to influence the price of farm surplus. That such should do so is a natural conclusion, but when facts are stated, a very irrational conclusion. The leading spirits of the roads leading from Chicago and St. Louis to Missouri river points, have recently been in session and have perfected such arrangements as to stop further competition. This, of course, means an increase in freight rates. It is now about the usual time in the year for freights to advance, and as the winter approaches, still other advances will be made. These advances price the grain of the farmer, price his land, and the labor of his hired hand. They do more than this. They price manufactured goods of all kinds and descriptions, and materially lessen the amount consumed, or, in other words, when the farmer realizes good prices and fair profits for his products, all christendom shares with him, and the contrary, vice vera. Railroads, perhaps, have a legal right to charge such rates as they may agree upon; coal miners have the legal right to make a "corner" and divide the slush, yet all agree that when these demands go beyond the bounds of reason, and only look to present spoil, that the best interests of society are endangered, and sooner or later these deleterious influences will recoil upon those originating them. Now and then we find a farmer whose great soul is opposed to the grange on the grounds that it will yet grow to be a great monopoly, and will oppress the balance of mankind. Such philanthropy over-steps the bounds of one of the plainest teachings of nature.

When all other vocations associate for mutual protection, self-preservation demands that the tarmer do likewise. The tendency of this age is tour description and the service assectation and conceration and the

When all other vocations associate for mutual protection, self-preservation demands that the farmer do likewise. The tendency of this age is towards association and co-operation and the individual or body of men who refuse to accept the inevitable, will be left behind in the forward march of the people. Philosophy may speculate, and her votaries deplore these tendencies. Yet the spirit of acquisitiveness is abroad in the land, and while we are no apologist for these tendencies. we must arouse the Grange Notes.

The Patrons of San Francisco have chartered the iron ship Dryad, and will soon dispatch her to Liverpool direct with a cargo of grain.

The grange warehouse at Yuba City, Cal., has, during the past year, shipped 7,000 tons of wheat, and saved to the Patrons $13,000 on this one item alone. This institution reduced freight to San Francisco from $4.50 to $2.50 per ton.

The State agent of Michigan reports the following savings for nine months: On sewing machines, $6,500; harvesters, $6,500; on purchase of clover seed, $1,050; on timothy seed, $1,166; sales of garden seed were made a saving of 40 per cent. to the purchaser, and on lumber wagons 20 per cent., and on clothing 30 per cent. Shipments of wheat were made at a saving of from three to seven cents a bushel.

The secretary of the Dominion Grange says: There has been a very large increase in the past three months, both as regards the number of granges and members. Those farmers outside of the gates, who once laughed with scorn and ridiculed the order as a humbug, are now steadily falling into the ranks. Intelligent men now begin to realize the great benefit the grange has accomplished, and its great possibilities for the future. They begin to comprehend the fact that these numerous schools of thought (subordinate granges) are fit places to investigate the farmer's troubles, and battle for his rights. Canada has 502 subordinate and 29 division granges, with a membership of 16,376.

Two women, living on Kill creek, Rooks county, during one of the late heavy rains, found the water rising very rapidly around them, and undertook to wade to the higher ground, each carrying her child. When they had gotten some distance from the house they were struck by some drift wood and both women and children drowned. One of them, we understand, was the wife of Jonas Brighton.

THE Troy Chief says: "A letter has been received at Topeka from Stanley, who assisted Lappin to escape. It was written at sea—they were on the voyage to South America. The route they took from Topeka, was north to Beatrice, Nebraska, thence to Sioux City, Minneapolis, St. Peter, Duluth, Sarnia, Canada, Montreal, and Quebec. From the latter place they went to Portland; from thence by steamer to New York; and sailed from New York for Aspinwall on the 14th of August." A CORRESPONDENT writing to the Olathe Progress from Gardiner, tells the following: "A serious accident happened to some parties from this township while returning from the camp meeting near Spring Hill. It appears that they were driving down the hill west of Spring Hill when the lines became entangled and the horses unmanageable and upset the wagon. The following persons were in the wagon and were all more or less seriously injured: Mart Maxwell, Mr. Elston, Misses Balch, Maxwell and Goslin. Miss Maxwell's shoulder was dislocated. A lady physician, whose name we did not learn, was called and rendered valuable assistance to the irjured persons.

A DISPATCH from Southern Kansas, dated Sept. 6th, is as follows: A terribly tragedy was enacted at Baxter Springs, Cherokee county, vesterday evening. A young man named Geo. Elliott and the daughter of a Mr. Cregg, were married last Sunday evening. The lady's father, it appears, was bitterly opposed to the match, and failing in his efforts to prevent it, the marriage drove him to hesperation, and the result was, he deliberately shot his son-in-law through the heart, two days after his daughter through the heart, two days after his daughter had became a bride. Cregg immediately fled, but was hotly pursued by the sheriff and a number of citizens. They overtook him in a cornfield, and when commanded to surrender he sent a pistol ball in reply. The sheriff and party fired a dozen or more shots, two of which took effect, one in Cregg's head and the other in his breast. He expired shortly afterward. This tragedy has produced the most intense excitement in Baxter Springs.

LINIMENTS.

[Letter from a Postmaster.]

ANTIOCH, ILL., Dec. 1, 1874. Messrs. J. B. Rose & Co.: My wife has, for a long time, been a terrible suf-ferer from Rheumatism. She has tried many phy-sicians and many remedies. The only thing which has given her relief is Centaur Liniment. I am rejoiced to say this has cured her. I am doing what I can to extend its sale. * * * W. H. Ring.

This is a sample of many thousand testimonials received, of wonderful cures effected by the Centaur Liniment. The ingredients of this article are published around each bottle. It contains Witch Hazel, Mentha, Arnica, Rock Oil, Carbolic, and ingredients hitherto little known. It is an indisputable fact that the Centaur Liniment is performing more cures of Swellings, Stiff Joints, Eruptions, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica, Caked Breasts, Lock-jaw, &c., than all other Liniments, Embrocatious Extracts, Salves, Ointments, and Plasters now in use.

For Toothache, Earache, Weak Back, Itch, and Cutaneous Eruptions, it is admirable. It cures burns and scalds without a scar. Extracts poison from bites and stings, and heals frost-bites and chillblains, in a short time. No family can afford to be without the Centaur Liniment, white wrap

The Centaur Liniment, Yellow Wrap per, is adapted to the tough skin, muscles and flesh of the animal creation. Its effects upon se vere cases of Spavin, Sweeny, Wind Gall, Big Head and Poll Evil, are little less than marvel-

Messrs, J. McClure & Co., Druggists, cor. Elm and Front Sts., Cincinnati, O., say:

"In our neighborhood a number of teamsters are using the Centaur Liniment. They pronounce it superior to anything they have ever used. We sell as high as four to five dozen bottles per month to these teamsters."

We have thousands of similar testimonials. For Wounds, Galls, Scratches, Ring-bone, &c. and for Screw Worm in Sheep it has no rival. Farmers, Livery-men, and Stock-raisers, have in this Liniment a remedy which is worth a hundred times its cost.

THE News says that there is a married lady in Hutchinson who has traveled forty-five thousand miles without her husband. She has been around Cape Horn once and crossed the 1sthmus three times.

MISSES FANNIE WHITE and Mamie Dillon will attend the Lawrence University during the ensuing term, which begins next week. They will be missed from the Grove society.' So says the Council Grove Republican.

THE Belleville Telescope contains this want : "Wanted, at this office, a don't care a d-n editor. We have tried to please everybody, and, having failed, we don't care a d---n, but would like some person else to take the position for a while."

A MR. BANFIELD, in Rock Creek township, has corn eighteen feet high. A man five feet ten inches tall could not stand on his tip toes and reach the ears on some of the stalks. So says the Sickle and Sheaf.

JOHN POLK, who left here as a guide to the military and citizens surveying party that passed this place the first week in July, says the Council Grove Republican, returned the other day, having safely piloted the party through to Fort Union, New Mexico.

THE business of the Patrons' elevator at Abilene has opened very satisfactory, having received in the first sixteen days it has been in operation 15,291 bushels of wheat, and shipped, in the same time, fourteen car loads-netting the shippers from 21 to 7 cents per bushel over what could be realized in the home markets.

THE Olathe Progress has this: "We were shown on Monday last a cluster of seven fine seedling peaches, growing from the same branch in a space of five or six inches. Mr. C. M. Ott furnished the sample from his orchard near the mill, and J. M. Hall, commissioner of the Johnson County Horticultural Society, is forward it to the Centennial."

The Minneapolis Sentinel says: "A sixteenyear old son of Capt. Potts, living near Glasgow, returning from a hunt on last Saturday evening, went for a drink, and stood his gun against the well. By some means the gun fell and the contents discharged into the calf of his leg, so mutilating it as to require amputation. The shock was too great for his nervous system and the poor boy soon afterward died.

THE Ottawa Republican says: "Independence has an anti-horse-thief society, and the following is one of their calls:

ATTENTION.—The Anti-Horse Thief Society will meet on Saturday evening, September 9, at 7 o'clock p. m. All are urgently requested to be present, as business of importance is to be transacted.

It is not improbable that the next paper from there will contain an account of some one just strung up to a tree."

THE Olathe Mirror tells of some lively work in grain separating, as follows : "Messrs. Page, Bowman & Co., on Saturday last threshed three hundred bushels of wheat on James A. Moore's farm, in Olathe township, in five hours, in cluding all necessary stoppages. This is one bushel per minute for the whole time, and more than a bushel for the actual running time. The wheat averaged twenty bushels per acre. The machine used was an Aultman & Taylor, bought new this fall.

The Sickle and Sheaf says : "MR. J. H. JONES of Kentucky township informs us that William Cunningham, one of the oldest settlers on Mud Creed, committed suicide on last Sabbath by taking poison. A revival has been in progress in the neighborhood, and all his family had joined the church. He remained at home on the Sabbath, and when the family returned from church he was lying on the bed dead, with a bottle of poison and a glass of water on the table by the bedside. THE Wathens Reporter has the following: "Thursday afternoon, Willie Nehrung, about 15 years old, son of Mr. C. Nehrung, went down to the house of his brother, Charlie Nehrung, half a mile south of town, and got to amusing himself with an old musket. In firing it off the gun kicked with such force as to brake his shoulder. He was brought home and Dr. Carter called in to set the bone. This proves what the soldiers used to say, 'that it is about as safe to stand in front as behind some of the old Government muskets especially if you are far enough in front."

Two women, living on Kill creek, Rooks county, during one of the late heavy rains, found the water rising very rapidly around them, and undertook to wade to the higher ground, each carrying her child. When they had gotten some distance from the house they were struck by some drift wood and both women and children drowned. One of them, we understand, was the wife of Jonas Brighton.

THE Troy Chief says: "A letter has been received at Topeka from Stanley, who assisted Lappin to escape. It was written at sea-they were on the voyage to South America. The route they took from Topeka, was north to Beatrice, Nebraska, thence to Sioux City, Minneapolis, St. Peter, Duluth, Sarnia, Canada, Montreal, and Quebec. From the latter place they went to Portland; from thence by steamer to New York; and sailed from New York for Aspinwall on the 14th of August."

A CORRESPONDENT writing to the Olathe Progress from Gardiner, tells the following: "A serious accident happened to some parties from this township while returning from the camp meeting near Spring Hill. It appears that they were driving down the hill west of Spring Hill when the lines became entangled and the horses unmanageable and upset the wagon. The following persons were in the wagon and were all more or less seriously injured: Mart Maxwell, Mr. Elston, Misses Balch, Maxwell and Goslin. Miss Maxwell's shoulder was dislocated. A lady physician, whose name we did not learn, was called and rendered valuable assistance to the irjured persons."

A DISPATCH from Southern Kansas, dated Sept. 6th, is as follows: A terribly tragedy was enacted at Baxter Springs, Cherokee county, yesterday evening. A young man named Geo. Elliott and the daughter of a Mr. Cregg, were married last Sunday evening. The lady's father, it appears, was bitterly opposed to the match, and failing in his efforts to prevent it, the marriage drove him to hesperation, and the result was, he deliberately shot his son-in-law through the heart, two days after his daughter through the heart, two days after his daughter had became a bride. Cregg immediately fled, but was hotly pursued by the sheriff and a number of citizens. They overtook him in a cornfield, and when commanded to surrender he sent a pistol ball in reply. The sheriff and party fired a dozen or more shots, two of which took effect, one in Cregg's head and the other in his breast. He expired shortly afterward. This tragedy has produced the most intense excitement in Baxter Springs.

Symptoms of a Diseased Liver. PAIN in the right side, under the edge of the ribs, increases on pressure; sometimes the pain is in the left side; the patient is rarely able to lie on the left side; sometimes the pain is felt under the shoulder-blade, and it frequently extends to the top of the shoulder, and is sometimes mistaken for a rheumatism in the arm. The stomach is affected with loss of appetite and sickness; the bowels in general are costive sometimes alternative with lax; the head is troubled with pain, accompanied with a dull, heavy sensation in the back part. There is generally a considerable loss of memory, accompanied with a painful sensation of having left undone something which ought to have been done. A slight, dry cough is sometimes an attendant. The patient complains of weariness and debility; he is easily startled, his feet are cold or burning, and he complains of a prickly sensation of the skin; his spirits are low; and although he is satisfied that exercise would be beneficial to him, yet he can scarcely summon up fortitude enough to try it. In fact, he distrusts every remedy. Several of the above symptoms attend the disease, but cases have occurred where few of them existed, yet examination of the body, after death, has shown the LIVER to have been extensively deranged.

AGUE AND FEVER.

DR. C. MCLANE'S LIVER PILLS, IN CASES OF AGUE AND FEVER, when taken with Quinine, are productive of the most happy results. No better cathartic can be used, preparatory to, or after taking Quinine. We would advise all who are afflicted with this disease to give them a FAIR TRIAL.

CENTAUR

[Letter from a Postmaster.]

ANTIOCH, ILL., Dec. 1, 1874. Messrs. J. B. Rose & Co.: My wife has, for a long time, been a terrible suf-ferer from Rheumatism. She has tried many phy-sicians and many remedies. The only thing which has given her relief is Centaur Liniment. I am rejoiced to say this has cured her. I am doing what I can to extend its sale. * * * W. H. Ring.

This is a sample of many thousand testimonials received, of wonderful cures effected by the Centaur Liniment. The ingredients of this article are published around each bottle. It contains Witch Hazel, Mentha, Arnica, Rock Oil, Carbolic, and ingredients hitherto little known. It is an indisputable fact that the Centaur Liniment is performing more cures of Swellings, Stiff Joints, Eruptions, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica, Caked Breasts, Lock-jaw, &c., than all other Liniments, Embrocatious Extracts, Salves, Ointments, and Plasters now in use.

For Toothache, Earache, Weak Back, Itch, and Cutaneous Eruptions, it is admirable. It cures burns and scalds without a scar. Extracts poison from bites and stings, and heals frost-bites and chillblains, in a short time. No family can afford to be without the Centaur Liniment, white wrap

The Centaur Liniment, Yellow Wrap per, is adapted to the tough skin, muscles and flesh of the animal creation. Its effects upon severe cases of Spavin, Sweeny, Wind Gall, Big Head and Poll Evil, are little less than marvel-

Messrs, J. McClure & Co., Druggists, cor. Elm and Front Sts., Gincinnati, O., say:

"In our neighborhood a number of teamsters are using the Centaur Liniment. They pronounce it superior to anything they have ever used. We sell as high as four to five dozen bottles per month to these teamsters."

We have thousands of similar testimonials. For Wounds, Galls, Scratches, Ring-bone, &c and for Screw Worm in Sheep it has no rival Farmers, Livery-men, and Stock-raisers, have in this Liniment a remedy which is worth a hundred Independent National Platform.

The Independent Party is called into existence by the necessities of the people whose industries are prostrated, whose labor is deprived of its just reward as the result of the serious mismanagement of the national finances, which errors both the Republican and Dem cratic parties neglect to correct. And in view of the failure of these parties to furnish relief to the depressed industries of the country, thereby disappointing the just hopes and expectations of a suffering people, we declare our principles and invite all independent and patriotismen to jon our ranks in this movement for financial reform and industrial emancipation.

First—We demand the immediate and unconditional repeal of the specie resumption act of January 14, 1:76, and the rescue of our industries from the ruin and disaster resulting from its enforcement, and we call upon all patriotic men to organize in every Congressional district of the country, with the view of electing Representatives to Congress who will carry out the wishes of the people in this regard, and stop the present suicidal and destructive policy of contraction.

Second—We believe that the United States note issued directly by the government and convertible on demand into United States obligations, bearing in this regard, and stop the present suicidal and destructive policy of contraction.

Second—We believe that the United States note issued directly by the government and convertible on demand into United States obligations, bearing an equitable rate of interest, not exceeding one cent a day on each one hundred dollars, and interchangeable with United States notes at par will afford the best circulating medum ever devised; such United States notes should be a full legal tender for all purposes, except for the payment of such obligations as are by existing contracts expressly made payable in coin. And we hold that it is the duty of the government to provide such a circulating medium, and insist, in the language of Thomas Jefferson. 'that bank paper must be suppressed and the circulation restored to the nation, to whom it belongs.''

Third—It is the paramount duty of the government in all its legislation to keep in view the full development of all legitimate business, agricultural, mining, manufacturing and commercial.

Fourth—We most earnestly protest against any further issue of gold bonds, for sale in foreign markets, by which we would be made for a long period, hewers of wood and drawers of water to foreign nations, especially as the American people would gladly and promptly take at paral the bonds the government may need to sell, provided they are made payable at the option of the holder and bearing interest at three and sixty-dive one-hundredths per cent. per annum, or a lower rate.

Fifth—We further protest against the sale of government bonds for the purpose of purchasing silver to be used as a substitute for our more convenient and less fluctuating fractional currency, which, although well calculated to enrich the owners of silver mines, yet in operation will still further oppress in taxation an already overburdened people.

Independent State Platform.

The Independent Retorm Party of Kansas makes the following declaration of principles:

1. That we are opposed to all banks of issue, whether chartered by Congress or the State Legislatures, and we desire that banking on the part of corporations or private individuals shall be confined by law exclusively to exchange, discount and deposit.

sined by law exclusively to exchange, discount and deposit.

2. We demand that the act of Congress creating the National Banking system be repealed, that the notes of the National Banks be withdrawn from circulation, and in lieu thereof the paper of the government of the United States be substituted.

3. That as Congress has the sole power to commoney and to regulate the value thereof, that it should also have the sole power to provide a paper currency for the people.

4. That such paper currency be made a legal tender in the payment of debts public and private and that the same be receivable for all demands of the government, including duties on imports, and immediately placed on a specie basis by being made interchangeable at the option of the holder with United States bonds bearing a rate of interest not exceeding three and sixty-five hundredths per cent. per annum.

exceeding three and sixty-five hundredths per cent. per annum.

5. That we regard the act of Gengress requiring the resumption of specie payment in 1879, the retirement of legal tenders and the substitution of the inferior currency of the National Banks in its stead as a fraud and an outrage and we demand that Congress immediately pass a bill for its unconditional repeal.

6. That the legislation of the Republican Congress of 1873 which took away the legal tender power of silver coin, was a gross outrage upon the people, adding at least twenty per cent, to the aggregate of public and private indebtedness, and we demand the immediate restoration of silver as a standard of value and a legal tender.

7. That we demand that Congress shall place a tax upon all incomes of over fifteen hundred dollars per annum.

A. That we definant that Congress shar place a tax upon all incomes of over fifteen hundred dollars per annum.

8. Resolved, That we hereby endorse the platform of the Independent Indianapolis convention and the nominees.

9. We demand reform in the administration of public affairs in the State of Kansas.

10. That the School Fund of our State shall forever be preserved inviolate, and that such legislation be henceforth had as will put it beyond the reach of speculators and preclude the possibility of a precarious investment. We demand also that immediate steps be taken to collect from the School Fund commissioners of the State the money of the State which they with such culpable recklessness invested in fraudulent school bonds.

11. That we deplore the fact that the dominant party has unhappily permitted so many public criminals of our State to go unwhipped of justice.

12. That we urge upon Congress, and especially our representatives in the U. S. Senate, the necessity of immediate legislation to the end of affording relief to the settlers upon the Osage Ceded lands and placing their lands and homes in the market.

A VISIT TO OUR INSANE ASYLUM AT OSAWATOMIE.

At the special request of some of our friends, we visited the Insane Asylum with the view of seeing how it was conducted, and what more should be done by our legislature in this direc- cause of Currency Reform, which, he tion for the benefit of the unfortunate of our State.

On our arrival at that place we were taken in charge by Dr. Knapp, the attending physician and superintendent of the institution, who showed us through every room in the asylum.

Here let us say that when we went we were somewhat prejudiced against the superintendent, we can hardly tell why, as we had never before visited the asylum, but it was nevertheless a fact. When we left for home our views had undergone a material change.

We found everything in complete order, the whole place as clean and neat as busy hands could make it, the food for the patients as good as need be desired; all provisions are carefully inspected by Capt. Smith, the steward of the institution, and the cooking is also done under his care and direction.

The discipline of the institution is certainly as good as could be desired.

We have visited institutions of this kind in other States, and we feel proud to say that the management of our asylum will compare favorably with any in the country.

If our legislature would appropriate money sufficient to build a west wing to the main building, and finish and furnish complete, that with the asylum already under way at Topeka, it seems to us would furnish the necessary accommodation at least for the present for all the unfortunate of our State.

September being the first fall month, the interest is general to know somehing about the prospects of business. We are glad to be able to record positive signs of improvement. The time has come for moving the crops, and the rates for freights are low beyond precedent. Wheat, too, brings greatly reduced prices. The expectation is that England will require of us a good margin of this, which will tend to harden prices. The crop in this country is not up to to the average, and therefore if England wants the same quantity as for 1875 it will be just so much the better for American agriculture. California ships large quantities on her own account. There is a prospect, too, in the judgment of some people, that gold and paper will come within five per cent. of one another inside of four months. With coal and the ordinary supplies of life cheaper, with bare markets, low rates of transportation, and a good demand for exports, there are certainly good grounds for hope that to conduct us finally out of this dismal name of Mr. Hudson be withdrawn. swamp of industrial stagnation.—Mass. 3d. The committee, now full, ear Ploughman.

In no State in the Union is the grain product so large as in Kansas, and this talk about "demand for exports," "low rates of transportation," &c., is just what suits us. Now if the farmers were ready to co-operate with each other by means of elevators, storehouses, &c., so as to handle their own grain, the profits might be saved to themselves.

THE PROSPECTS OF THE CAUSE.

It would not be at all surprising if Indiana should give a good round majority in October to the candidates of the Independent Greenback Party. The friends of currency reform are better organized in that State than in any other, and they number almost two-thirds of the entire population. Of course many of them will subordinate their affection for the American money system to their attachment to party, but it seems likely that enough of them will remain true to the movement to elect the Greenback candidates. In Illinois we shall elect a Greenback State ticket, and it may confidently be asserted that a majority of the members of Congress to be chosen next fall will be uncompromising friends of currency reform. In Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, Nebraska, Missouri, Kansas, Arkansas, Tennessee, Ohio, Pennsylvania and West Virginia the work goes bravely on, and the Greenback men may feel morally certain of a large vote in all these States, if not in an absolute

His personal influence will be devoted wholly to the says, is the cause of the people, and herefore the cause of Democracy.-New Haven (Conn.) Union.

CLOSE OF PETER COOPER'S LETTER TO THE CHICAGO MEETING.

I here repeat my belief that prosperity will never again bless our glorious country until justice is established by giving back to the people a sufficient volume of currency with which to trans act business. This can only be assured by the use of national paper money in defraying all proper expenses of the

When our government has secured to the people one kind of paper money re-ceivable for all forms of taxes, duties, debts, and interconvertible with na-tional bonds bearing an equitable rate of interest-when such an inestimable blessing has been secured to my beloved country I shall be able to say, with one of old, "Lord, now lettest thou thy servant depart in peace," for I have seen the salvation of my country.

Gen. Cary in his great speech in Chi-ago, last week, said: There is but one way out of the deep trouble in which the country finds it self, and that is for every one who appreciates the dire disaster which the enforcement of the resumption law as it now stands, and continuing the demonetization of silver, should vote direct for Peter Cooper, and throw the election in the house. By this means the Independents will hold the balance of power and can control the election of officers and the action of Congress. Men should be elected who will not go into canvass with either of the old parties. This government can never again be free till both old parties are broken down, and Wall street learned to know ts place.

DECLARATION OF THE STATE CEN-TRAL COMMITTEE.

The State Central Committee of the ndependent Greenback Party of Kansas, called together by resolutions of mass conventions of Independent Cooper voters throughout the State, and in pursuance of its plain duty, declare as the unanimous sense of said Committee:

1st. That the pretended action of John H. McMahan. a former member of this committee, withdrawing the name of M. E. Hudson, the nominee of the Independent Party, in favor of John Martin, the Democratic nominee for the office of Governor, is hereby unequivocally and emphatically repudiat> nestly urge upon the Independent Greenback Party, and all independent thinking men of Kansas, to organize in every county in the State, with full lo-cal tickets composed of strong Peter Cooper men, and make a red hot canvass for State and local tickets, and for Peter Cooper, our gallant and philan-thropic National standard bearer. Let your motto be-Cooper, Hudson, and Greenbacks. No compromise-no entangling alliances with our common political opponents, the Republican and Democratic parties. For the sake of principle and the peoples' rights—we left them; upon the inimitable principles of right and justice we will march to victory in November.

4th. The committee recognize that upon the people, whose direct rights are now in jeopardy, depends the success of the movement now organized. More than this, that opposed to the people in their struggle for life and liberty, is the corruption fund of the Rothchilds in Europe and of Wall street in America; and if the power and influence of the millions at the command of Tilden and Hayes can enslave the people of America and take from them their liberties and their homesteads, those calamities will surely be realized. But, as our forefathers in their struggle for liberty were proof against the gold of George the III., so you, their worthy descend-ants, will be proof against the bribes of those who seek to first betray and then enslave you. With the ballot you can defeat them; and Peter Cooper, like

Some letters require us to run all over town and to all the railroads and implement warhouses. Such letters are apt to be tucked away in following dispatch, dated Madrid, nigeon holes, labeled "Old Unanswered Sept. 11th, gives the particulars of his pigeon holes, labeled "Old Unanswered Letters." In this connection allow us to say, this agency cannot get any better rates from points in our State to this city than those given to merchants and operators along the lines of railroads traversing the State; so, by calling upon the agent of the station where the article is to be shipped, any one may learn the rates, save the trouble of writing this agency, and compelling us to leave our office to run to some depot to find out exactly what the brother might have done at home. We hope no brother will say that the agent is trying to shirk work, or is a lazy fellow. This won't bother us; for those that know us won't say so. Our time can be used much more profitably in attending to those things that the members cannot do themselves. In this way of working-helping each other, and not over-taxing this agency with unnecessary correspondence and useless is undergoing quarantine, and strictly work, will enable us to do more good service, and show the best and largest report, without a dollar's capital, or representative. As there are no direct cent of expense to the State Grange, steamers between Spain and North next winter of any State agency in the America, Tweed will be sent to Cuba United States. This, and to be of the greatest service to the membership, is our present ambition.

Yours fraternally,

A. T. STEWART, State Ag't.

EDITOR SPIRIT:-Will you kindly permit us to say to your numerous readers, who are interested in the matter, that the demand for the friends and workers of the Independent Party for literature treating upon currency reform, for gratuitous distribution, is so much larger than we have the means of supplying, that it has been for some time past necessary to give reference to applications coming from localities which give the best promise of a successful canvass.

A telegram brings the news that Boss Tweed has been arrested. arrest: "Captain General Jonvellar at Havana, received intelligence that Tweed had disembarked at Santiago De Cuba, and notified the authorities there. Before the latter could take action Tweed embarked on the sailing vessel Carmen, bound to Vigo. Jon-vellar telegraphed to the Madrid gov-ernment which, fearing that the Carmen might go to some other port, requested all the authorities at all Spanish ports to examine persons on board all vessels named Carmen. There are twelve Spanish vessels of that name. A portrait of Tweed being indispensable, the Spanish authorities obtained and made copies of a caricature in an American journal, representing him as beating a child, supposed to typify American justice. This caricature led the Spanish authorities and reporters to believe that Tweed had been arrested for kidnapping children, hence in the first official announcement received of his arrest it was stated that he had been arrested for kidnapping American children. Tweed is confined on the island of Saint Simon, in Vigo bay, where he watched by custom house guards. At the expiration of his quarantine he will be surrendered to the United States and from there to New York."

Death of Ethan Allen.

The celebrated trotting and breeding stallion, Ethan Allen, died Sunday noon at the Kansas Stock Farm. He was twenty-seven years old and was styled the periect trotter, as by careful measurement his frame showed almost perfect proportions. His trotting disposition was unparalleled, no running mate at the highest speed being able to excite him to a break, and his action was always regarded by turf-men as the standard of perfection. Ethan Allen will always be classed among the few great horses that have made the history of the American trotters famous all over the globe. Ethan Allen in his palmy days was known as the King of the American furf. With a running mate he once beat the great Dexter with a record of 2:15. His death besides being a large and general loss to the breeders of the country is no small pecuniary loss to his owner, Mr. Akers. He was buried at the gate of the Stock Farm with all due ceremony and solem-

O. G. STOUT, a tried and faithful route agent on the Kansas Pacific, went east yesterday to see the Centennial and re-visit his old home.

J. E. Ross and Anson Slosson started out on their Centennial tour yesterday. They will see the whole show or none before they come

MRS. E. W. HORNSBY and Miss Hattie Veith, who have resided for sometime in Lawrence with Postmaster Worden, left yesterday for their home in Corning, New York.

GEO. V. JONES, of Osage City, came up yesterday to see his many friends. He reports the mining business very good, and, as a consequence, everything else is looking up.

NELSON O. STEVENS, of the SPIRIT office, and Frank March left yesterday for the Centennnial. Both the boys are hard workers and deserve their vacation. Nelson has pursued the sensible plan of saying nothing about his intended trip until the last minute, none of his friends having any idea that he meditated going to the Centennial.

An Excuse for Mr. Haskell.

EDITOR SPIRIT :- Having been considerable talk why Mr. Haskell has not accepted the invitation to address the Greenback Club of district 54, we offer an excuse:

The Sunflowers having joined together (knowing that unity makes strength) have grown to such a size that we fear they will be without a speaker unless the school directors join together and attack those Sunflowers, or the club will have to invite a gentleman of "small" dimensions. For it is actually an impossibility for any one to reach the school house without getting seriously hurt. Speakers have been heard to remark that they needed a sythe around here as they were striving to reach the club room, and have not been seen since. We do not blame Mr. Haskell for not wanting to undertake the job.

A Revolution in the Show Business. Old Time Ideas discarded. Instead of which Howes' Great London Circus &c., has inaugurated the Centennial Season with a New Show, New Faces, New Attractions. This Great Show, pronounced by the Press the Leading Exhibition of America.

There is nothing in the range of popular entertainments that appeals so effectually to the popular heart and so arouses popular enthusiasm as the announcement of a circus or a menagerie. When both these are combined in one, asm as the announcement of a circus of a monagerie. When both these are combined in one, it becomes doubly attractive. But a really good entertainment of this kind is emphatically the people's show. All patronize it without regard to age, sex or condition in life. No one ever saw at a circus the warning, "Children in arms not admitted," Such a prohibition would, by common consent, be regarded as a direct blow at the rights and liberties of the people, and would be resented by that large class who deem it the greatest privilege of the whole year to lock up the house and take the entire family out to witness a show of this kind.

The fine street pageant of Howes' Circus, yesterday morning, was witnessed by many thousands of people, and the nearly universal expression was that it was the best ever seen in Chicago. From this it was naturally expected that the performance of the afternoon and evening would be something better than usual, ed that the performance of the afternoon and evening would be something better than usual, too. The consequence was that the Lake Front actually swarmed with humanity all the afternoon and evening. In the evening the immense tent was filled to its utmost capacity. Those who were in season took the opportunity to look over the collection of wild animals before the opening of the performance. This collection proves to be a very full and interesting one, made up of animals from all quarters of the globe. There are five performing elephants, several royal Bengal tigers, African hyenas, lions, and other varieties of rare animals and birds of all sorts and sizes. There are also several baby lions and tigers.

The performance itself, in all its features, is worthy of hearty commendation. To begin with, there is no processes show colors and sizes.

The performance itself, in all its leatures, is worthy of hearty commendation. To begin with, there is no nonsense, sham or clap trap about it. It is just what it purports to be, and does not need to be bolstered up by pictures on the fences, adjectives and printers' ink generally. erally. It has all the features of a genuine, honest, old-fashioned circus, with first-class performers and many new attractions added.— Chicago Journal, June 22d.

HAMPTON & BORGHOLTHAUS,

ACTION OF THE PROPERTY OF THE Horticultural Department.

Kansas Fruits.

In making collections of fruits for the Centennial Exhibition at Philadelphia, the counties of Johnson, Bourbon, Neosho, and Douglas, have worked immediately through their several horticultural societies, and have already made some fine shipments. The fruit sent for exhibition is of a superior quality, and especially that from Douglas county. Kansas will make an admirable showing in this department.

Charles Downing Strawberry.

Mr. Geo. W. Campbell, of Ohio, has the following to say of this variety of the strawberry:

The Charles Downing strawberry, which was produced by the late John S. Downer, of Kentucky, has been ap-S. Downer, of Kentucky, has been apparently increasing in favor in all parts of the country, and perhaps bids fairest to rival or supersede the Wilson, of any variety yet introduced. I have grown it for eight or nine years, and find it, for home use, the most satisfactory of any variety I have ever grown. In grelity it is not quite first rate but quality it is not quite first-rate, but much superior to the Wilson. It is equally vigorous and healthy in growth, and the fruit uniformly of larger size, continuing large throughout the season. I think the Charles Downing is fully as productive as the Wilson on fertile clay soils, and has the advantage of not de-teriorating or "running out" after the first or second year of bearing, like the Wilson. I have found beds that were kept in good condition and reasonably free from weeds, still bearing well and profitably for five or six years after set-ting. While the Wilson bears most heavily the year after planting, I think the Downing and many other kinds give even better crops in succeeding years, than at the first, apparently reaching perfect development more slowly, and also continuing longer in a state of vigorous fruitfulness. The principal faults of the Downing strawberry for a market fruit are, irregulari-ty in coloring, and want of firmness for distant shipment. In reference to the former, I have found that the side ex-posed to the sun does color while the rest of the berry is nearly white; but another day upon the vine remedies this, and a little care and practice in picking, soon renders the difficulty of little moment. As to firmness, though not so solid as Wilson, it is sufficiently so for home use and near by markets, and its larger size and finer quality should command a better price from discriminating customers.—Colman's Rural World.

Buckwheat in Orchards.

The practice of enriching or restor ing the fertility of the soil in orchards by turning under clover has been found by turning under clover has been found to have one serious drawback if the trees are yet young. The clover must grow at least one year in order to be-come strong enough to give a good coat of manure, and this year of clover se-riously checks the young trees. The practice has recently been adopted by some good orchardists of plowing in buckwheat. The seed is cheap, and the seeding is very easily done; the soil is made loose and mellow, and there need be no check to the trees—especially if the buckwheat is sown about midsummer, after the trees have nearly ceased growing, the crop to be turned under before much grain has begun to form. A correspondent of a New York paper in recommending this crop, says that if the buck wheat is sown early, a second crop may be had from the scattered seed of the first, and that it helps to de-stroy the codling moth, as many will hide in the buck wheat, the second crop of which is burned late in autumn.

Herticultural Miscellany.

"If I had to preach a sermon on horticulture," says Downing, "I should take this for my text—stir the soil." Indry weather, it is very essential that the soil should be stirred often. The air waters the fresh dug soil much more effectually than we can do. A man will raise more moisture with a spade and hoe in a day than he can pour on the earth out of a watering-pot in a week. If the ground is suffered to become close and compact, the cool surface exposed to the air for the reception of moisture is smaller, and what is deposited does not enter the earth is deposited does not enter the earth far enough to be appropriated; but if the soil be loose and porous, the air enters more deeply and deposits its moisture beneath the surface. Almost any soil in which a seed will germinate may be made, by continued hoeing, to produce a crop. Above all, cut away every weed that appears. "One year's seeding makes seven years' weeding." The only use of weeds is to make a necessity of tilling the soil more frequently.—Ferry's Catalogue.

Drying Fruit.

Now is the season for putting up fruits for the year, canning, drying, preserving, etc. Sun dried fruit, when rightly done and well prepared, is good enough for anybody. Put up before it is quite hard, in small, tight boxes, press it in firmly, and seal up so that the moths caunot enter. The trouble from moths is not from eggs laid before or during the drying, but after it is packed away. If securely sealed, it keeps fresh and cannot get wormy.—

The Household.

BEE STINGS.—Any absorbent will give relief. But perhaps nothing is more effectual than lean raw meat. The sting of a bee or wasp may be almost instantly relieved by it. It is said to cure the bite of a rattlesnake, and to relieve erysipelas.

To kill plantain, take sulphuric acid (oil of vitriol) and drop a little in the heart of each plant. The plant will die in an hour, effectually and forever destroyed. This is a cheap, simple and quick method. The acid should be handled with care.

STRAMONIUM, known also as James-town (corrupted into jimsou) weed, is an effective remedy for snake bites, and will cure them even some days after they are inflicted. The weed should be applied in the form of a poultice. In the absence of any other remedy, cau-terizing the part with a live coal is good especially for horses and cattle.

LIME-WATER IN BREAD AND MILK. Milk and lime-water are now frequently prescribed by physicians in cases of dyspepsia and weakness of the stomach, and in some cases, to our knowledge, the diet has proved very beneficial. Many persons who think good bread and milk a great luxury frequently hesitate to eat it, for the reason that the milk will not digest readily. Sourness of the stomach will often follow. But the experience of many years testify that lime-water and milk is not only food and medicine at an early period of life, but also at a later, when as in the case of infants, the functions of digestion and assimilation have been seriously impaired. A stomach taxed by gluttony, irritated by improper food, inflamed by alcohol, enfeebled by disease, or otherwise unfitted for its duties, as is shown by the various symptoms attendant upon indigestion, dyspensia, diarrhœa, dysentery and fever, will resume its work and do it energet. ically on an exclusive diet of bread and milk and lime-water. A goblet of cow's milk, to which four tablespoonfuls of lime-water have been added, will agree with almost any person, will be agreeable to the stomach when other food is oppressive, and will be digested when all else fails to afford nourishment.

The way to make lime-water is to procure a few lumps of unslacked lime, put the lime in a stone jar, add water until the lime is slacked and is about the consistence of thick cream. The lime will soon settle and leave a clear and pure liquid at the top, which is lime-water. As the water is taken out more should be added, and the lime should be frequently stirred up and allowed to notice the description. lowed to settle.-Germantown Telegraph.

Every Farmer a 'I Stock Raiser is convinced that an impure state of the blood originates the variety of diseases that afflict at Imals, such as Founder, Distamper, Fistule, Foll-Evil, Hide-Bound, Inward Strains, Scratchies, Mangs, Kallow Water, Heaves, Loss of Appetite, Inflammation of the Eyes, Swelled Legs, Fatigue from Hard Labor, and Rheumatism (by some called Stiff Complaint), proving fatal to so many valuable Horses. The blood is the foundant of life itself, and if you wish to restore health, you must first purify the blood; and to insure health, must keep it pure. In doing this you infuse into the debilitated, broken-down animal, action and spirit, also promoting digention, &c. Crushed Oats of England.

The crushed oats of England are certainly the most admirable feed for horses that can be. With us this article is practically unknown. They use, in New York and vicinity, what purports to be one-third sound corn and two-thirds sound oats ground together. Were it truly this, it would be excel-lent feed, but it is notorious that, not only is second quality of corn used, but of dirt and grit from having been lodged while growing, or from lying too long in the swath before binding up. From whatever cause oats become unmarketable, it does not prevent their being used for "ground feed."

In England oats are crushed by hand in machines not larger than a root slicer. One large, smooth-faced wheel, with a face about three inches wide, revolves in close proximity to a smaller one, six inches in diameter, and about the same face as the larger one. A hop-per permits the discharge of the oats between these two wheels, which, rolling together, crush each grain as flat as a wafer. As they drop from the crusher, the plump oats are nearly circular; those less plump eliptical, and the few false kernels in the samples I examined were flattened and broken, but showed no white flour, and no definite form. In one ordinary sample, which weighed 44 pounds to the bushel, almost every oat was flattened into a white, floury disk, nearly or quite as large as an old-fashioned silver three-cent piece. Oats thus crushed may be fed as they are, thus crushed may be fed as they are, and not one will pass the digestive organs unacted upon, as so often happens with whole oats; they may by mixed with cut or chafed hay, wet, or with steamed fodder of any kind. They go decidedly further. Those who figure most closely, are the most positive in their expression of the squatter to partake of their wild freedom. At the approach of a mounttheir approval of them from motives of economy solely, and uniformly assert their superiority to ground oats, even and nothing but a South Amercan cor-

Europe can be obtained—oats weighing 40 to 47 pounds to the bushel are not uncommon there, while here 32 pounds is a legal bushel by weight, and the measured bushel oftener falls below then it goes above that weight. meat, between this country and Europe would assume very large proportions, and enhance the price of beef. It seems destined to consume all the surplus beef we can spare, and will tend to keep prices at a more uniform

About a year since some parties in New York commenced the shipment of dressed beef in carcass to England. Jessels were fitted up with refrigerator compartments, on the same principle as cars that are used for a similar service. The experiment has been a most complete success, the beef shipped from New York was landed in perfect grains rhubarb, 30 grains Cayenne peporder at Liverpool and from the result of the control of t from New York was landed in perfect order at Liverpool, and from there sent to London and other large cities in the kingdom, where it met with prompt sale at good prices. The introduction of dressed beef into England during the past year has been a most perfect success, and promises to be permanent. Some weeks since 600 carcasses of beef Some weeks since 600 carcasses of beef were put on board one vessel at New York, 400 of these being destined for Glasgow, this being the first shipment of the kind that has been made to Scotland.

The expenses of shipping meat in refrigerator compartments is not so great as one would naturally suppose. ice that is required for keeping a cargo of meat cool while crossing the ocean or meat cool while crossing the ocean makes good ballast, it melts little in transit, and can be sold in England on arrival there, for enough money to pay the first cost in New York. There is no doubt that carcasses of pork and mutton can be shipped across the ocean just as well as beef, and a few years must clapse before this becomes not only a large, but a very lucrative trade between America, the great producer, and Europe.

Farm Labor.

If there is one thing more than another which proves the falsity of a prevailing impression that capital is heartless, it is the condition of the wages of labor as paid to-day. It is a general impression with the workingman that there is an antagonism between capital and labor, and it is the theme of many a demagogue who wishes the workingman to think him his friend. It is no uncommon thing to have men pointed at as lazy idlers, "living on the sweat of the poor man's brow," and whose only crime is that they worked while others slept; saved what others spent; and with those savings, built up a business in which hundreds of hands are employed that never would have had the genius to build up a business to employ themselves, or even have used brains enough to run a business successfully if one were made wishes the workingman to think him business successfully if one were made stock, Vt., report the potato crop a business successfully if one were made ready to hand and given to them. sensible workingman understands this well enough. He can see that capital is his friend; not only by what it does for him, but by the continual inducements it holds out to him to be industrious, to save, and be an employer also. But if anything was wanting to show how capital sympathizes with labor, we see it in the general indisposition to reduce wages the last couple of years.

When the war was at its height, the paper dollar would purchase but little more than fifty cents worth of goods. It was a splendid chance for the debtthe siftings of corn-meal, consisting of the bran, and often of bits of cob, with some good meal, coarsely ground, are used instead of mixing the grain and grinding it, as should be done. Then, too, the oats are the lightest and poortoo, the coats are the lightest and poortoo. grinding it, as should be done. Then, too, the oats are the lightest and poorest that come to market, and often full activity was kept up. But the laborate and only and only form the light and often full activity was kept up. ing man was not benefited. The rate of laborers' wages that averaged at $1 per day, to make his case fair he was given from $1.50 to $2. But from that time since, the paper dollar has appreciated. It will now buy very nearly a real dollar's worth as it did before. Indeed, when the extremely low price of everything is considered, the paper dollar of to-day is worth as much as in the ante-bellum times.

These things have been apparent to capitalists for a year or two. It has been the one great thing that has crippled business operations, and the agriculturist in his dealings with labor has suffered from it perhaps more than all. In scores of cases that we know of, employers could have had all the labor they needed at much less rates than they were paying; but they have paid on at the old figures, rather than be suspected of oppressing workingmen.

Wild Horses in Autralia.

In some of the northern districts of Victoria troops of wild horses greatly infest some of the runs. The produce of some escaped animals, they have their superiority to ground oats, even though they were to grind them themselves.

Oat-crushers will certainly find their way to popularity among us, for with our light weight oats they are more important than where the heavy oats of Europe can be obtained—out weighing. are precisely similar to their South American relatives, a stallion being in command of each troop, and at the first appearance of danger actively rounding up his mares and foals and leading them off. It the Australian bushman was as It looks as if the trade for dressed heat, between this country and Eucat, between this country and Eucat, between this country and Eucather the stock-whip, the beasts might be captured, but he would require to be well mounted, and some hard riding would have to be done before he could claim the victory.—Chicago Field.

Cure of Chicken Cholera. For the first attack or mild case, for adult fowl, I will give one tablespoonful of castor oil, with from ten to fitteen drops of laudanum. If it does not relieve the patient in a few hours, then I repeat the dose, and give it from one to these pills made of the following in to three pills made of the following inthe oil and laudanum for a day or two after the patient has recovered. For their drink I give a decoction of white oak bark, and find it does well, as it acts as an astringent and the oil regu-lates and heals the intestines. For extremely severe cases, add more laudanum and powder, and give as often as needed. After the patient has recover-ed I find that it is the best to cook the food, such as corn or oatmeal, for a few days, until the system has become restored. Keep in warm, dry quarters for a few days. If the foregoing direc-tions are carried out, there will be but few fowls that will die with cholera.— Exchange.

Dry Sowing.

Dry sowing coes well enough in soil which has never been plowed when too wet, so that it lays in clods. The soil should crumble nicely, or lay till it can be pulverized when moist. Very weedy land should be allowed to lay till the weeds start, then be plowed under be-fore sowing. Dry sowed land should be rolled as soon as the rains soak the surface to crush all clods, then harrowed with a slanting-tooth harrow to loosen the surface before the grain gets six inches high.—Cal. THE BEST IS THE CHEAPEST. ROTARY HARROW! MONROE

It being a Self-Cleaner Obviates the Necessity of Lifting to Clean

It is better than a Stalk Cutter.

THE BEST FARM IMPLEMENT EVER INVENTED

For Pulverizing, Mixing and Leveling the Soil.

It is the only Implement that perfectly covers and equalizes grains and seeds in newly plowed sod, among cornstalks or on stubble-

BETTER THAN ANY WHEAT DRILL

It is, in fact, the only Machine or Implement that thoroughly pulverizes newly broken sod. It will accomplish as much in going over the ground three times as any drag harrow will in twelve times.

By the thorough mixing of soils and fineness of tilth a much larger yield of crops is secured. The cost may be saved by its use in a single season on an ordinary sized farm.

AULTMAN & TAYLOR THRESHER,

The only Thresher any farmer will employ after learning of its merits. It will clean your grain better, will make it worth three to five cents more per bushel in market; will save, over and above the endless apron machines, enough to pay your threshing bills.

It is the only Thresher any thresherman will buy if they buy the one the farmers want. Send for haudsome illustrated lithograph of comic thresher scene and pamphlet, containing testimonials of hundreds of farmers who have used it. We are also general agents for Taylor Hay Rakes, Superior Grain Drills, etc. Address,
