VOL. XII.—NO. 33

LAWRENCE, KANSAS, AUG. 30, 1882.

WHOLE NO. 550.

ALL IS FAIR IN LOVE AND guests like a sensible man? And so you were WAR.

The next day was the most confused, unreal day I ever passed. We breakfasted late, went out shooting, and I suppose we lunched and dined and talked afterward, but I remember little of it, save when now and then I could talk with Julia, which made everything seem afterward still more unreal.

Late in the evening, when the ladies had gone to bed, we (that is, Tower, Butler, Sir, Thomas, Gresham and myself) all repaired to the billiard-room. Tower and Butler had found themselves very evenly matched, and having each won two games out of four were intent upon the conqueror. Sir Thomas marked with grim interest. After watching a few moments Gresham sauntered into the smoking-room, which adjoined the billiardroom, and lighting his pipe, installed himself comfortably in an easy chair by the fire. I followed his example, and we puffed away in silence for some moments. At last Gresham

'Well, it's all settled. I had an interview with the Governor in the study this afternoon. and there seems to be no just cause or impediment-none at least that he is aware of.'

'Of course not,' I said. 'No "of course" in the matter,' returned Gresham, 'as I found out when I saw Lady Merivale in the conservatory after tea. O course Beatrix had told her all about it, and she spoke so kindly that really my heart quite warmed to her, and I felt such a brute for having taken advantage of her, as it were, and played her and her old husband such a trick, that, hang it! if I did not make a clean breast of the whole concern. I could not stand her talking like that, and not knowing. She could not believe it at first, and then when she saw I was really in earnest she quite collapsed for a minute or two, and stood staring at me as if I were some wild animal. Well, I got her a camp-stool out of a corner and sat her down on it, and then, without giving her time to get out a word, I cut in and told her how it was all on account of Beatrix (as it was, you know, in a way), and how I had tried in vain to find other opportunities of meeting her, and, in short, I went on in a way I should never have thought myself capable of and finished up with on the table, his whole face working with supsaying that, after all, it was an inexcusable could regret it as much I felt I ought, but that was impossible.

She is a little bit Irish, is Lady Merivale You can see it. She looked puzzled when I had finished, as if she were not sure whether she ought to be angry or not, and then she said suddenly :

"I do think of all the men in the world Sir Thomas is the most provoking. He's enough to wear out the patience of a saint; and if I who have had mine worn out these two-andtwenty years, don't know, I should like to know who does. If you had seen him, my dear (I knew she would not be very hard on me if she called me her dear), if you had seen him as I saw him the morning the letters came in, fussing and storming round the table, til Beatrix got so frightened she burnt her mouth with her tea, and could hardly eat anything for a week; if you had seen him that morning you would not have forgotten it in a hurry. And since that day,' continued Lady Merivale emphatically, 'when I told him point blank that I would not write round to put everybody off, and I would give the ball, whether he liked it or not, since that day, every morning has his egg been either overdone, or not done at all; every morning has his buttered toast been cut too thick or too thin, or had too much or too little butter on it, and his newspaper not ironed properly, or not folded right, or not put on the right side of his plate. I am not a saint," and Lady Merivale looked as if she meant it "No saint could have stood

She stopped for want of breath, and so I got in edgeways something about fearing after all she had gone through she would never forgive me.

'I think she began to see the whole thing in its ludicrous light, for she laughed, and said, "Forgive you? my dear? Why, of course I do. Not that it was not the most shameful trick, but dear me! I never was so pleased in my life. The times I have wanted to give a ball; and I didn't do it badly, did I?

'First-rate," I said enthusiastically. 'And he,' continued Lady Merivale appeal-the person who did it? How we racked our brains to find out who it was. But don't," she he, is the vulgar, underbred way in which made in sudden alarm, "don't mention this to Sir Thomas for anything in the world. You are in favor at present, and it is most important you should remain so. He is perfectly asking you two, both within easy distance, to rabid on the subject, and if he came to know I would not answer for the consequences. You particularly disagreeable to me. That is why have made your confession to me, and let that he did it. Of the pleasure your visit suffice. And besides all that," added her Gresbam, has given me I need say nothing Ladyship mysteriously, "if once he found and Mostyn, too, has been most welcome. out from what quarters the letters came, I most welcome.' Never had I heard such grashould never be able to keep him up to a ball cious words from the lips of Sir Thomas. every year in future, as I firmly intend to do."

made, and we compared notes, and oh! how she laughed. What amused her most was Lady Di's note, which puzzled her dreadfully at the time, because Lady Di said that, not being much of a marksman, she was not bringif Lady Merivale pleased.

'Dear me !' and Gresham slowly knocked the note.' ashes out of his pipe, 'how strange it all seems. And I never thought of proposing when I came. I thought it would be long enough before I should dare to come to that. Yet, somehow or other, in the billiard-room I was in for it before I knew where I was. I have hardly | their game, tramped wearily upstairs. been able to believe it all day. Ah, Mostyn when I think what a lucky-' His sentence was cut short by the entrance of Sir Thomas.

'They have actually begun another game,' he said, pointing over his shoulder. 'Tower won't own himself beaten. Well, they are welcome to play, but they may mark for themselves. He lit a cigar as he spoke, and drew a chaie to the fire.

'I wonder you young men are not tired,' h said, 'dancing till 5 o'clock this morning.' 'By Jove, sir, we are tired,' said Gresham

Why, sir, if you will insist on having such polished floors, and such a band, dancing is irresistible-at least, to me it is.' Sir Thomas cleared his throat ominously.

'Gresham,' he said, I have great confidence in you, especially since our-ahem-our interview this afternoon. Mostyn, too, I believe to be perfectly trustworthy." I bowed, wondering what was coming next.'

'Well, then, would you believe-would you believe and Sir Thomas struck his thin hand on the table, his whole face working with suppressed anger, 'that to that ball given in this house last night not one of the people were in supervision of Mr. Adam Forepaugh, Jr., the vited by myself. Not one, I say !'

Gresham's stare of surprise was only equalled by my look of horror, the sole difference being that the one was artificial, the other genuine.

'I say this in the strictest confidence,' con tinued Sir Thomas, 'and to no one else have I breathed a syllable on the subject. The first moment we became aware of the plot-for a plot it certainly was-was when a score of notes of acceptance arrived for the ball here on the 10th.'

'A score! Nine-and-Twenty!' murmured Gresham, under his breath.

'What was I to do ?' said Sir Thomas wrathfully. 'What could I do to baffle the malice of the author of those letters, who evidently wished to put me in a ridiculous position! I the summer of the applause which their peracknowledged the applause which the peracknowledged the applause which the peracknowledged the applause w the author of those letters, who evidently wished to put me in a ridiculous position! I would not gratify that person's malice! I would not appear in a ridiculous light! I immediately insisted on Lady Merivale's giving the ball.'

I thought Gresham was go ng to choke. However, he recovered himself sufficiently to say huskily, 'The very best thing you could do, sir. Knocked their little game flat on the head.

'We gave the ball,' continued Sir Thomas, and now it remains for me to find out the culprit. No means shall remain untried, no stone shall be left unturned, until I have him dragged forth into the light of day, and obtained vengeance for the insult he has put upon me. I beg you will not mention this conversato Lady Merivale, he added uneasily. We both bowed.

'It will not be difficult to trace the culprit; in fact, I think I have my eye upon him now, continued Sir Thomas, sternly, looking Greshhm full in the face. 'I can attribute it to nothing else than the malice of Mr. Tyrrell, who, though he might dare to invite all the neighborhood to my house, takes very good care to be engaged himself to Mrs. Beresford Green, not daring to meet my eye.'

Sir Thomas's eye was still fixed so intently on Gresham's countenance that my heart failed ingly, "now did not he look nice when he me. Gresham slowly uncrossed and recrossed found he must go through with it, sitting at his legs, and then said composedly, 'He might the head of his own table, and entertaining his | well fear the effects of your just indignation.'

'He shall feel them, too,' continued Sir Thomas. 'What makes me doubly sure it was some of these letters seem to have been written, the misdirections, the vulgar joking of Lady Di about her gun, and then the idea of stay in the house. He thought you were both Gresham was very uneasy, and said, 'But how 'And then I told her of all the mistakes I had can you be sure Tyrrell-'

'I am perfectly sure,' said Sir Thomas de cidedly. 'If he had not been the author of the whole thing himself, then the other person, who was, would have written to him among all the other neighbors, and I should have reing a gun, though she was bringing a footman | ceived a note from him to say he was engaged to Mrs. Beresford Green, I received no such

Sir Thomas got up, and repeating once more that he begged this conversation should not be mentioned to Lady Merivale, said he should go to bed. Gresham and I followed his example and, leaving the billiard-players still intent or

'I must drop a hint to Lady Merivale about Tyrrell,' said Gresham thoughtfully; 'but no, she'll put him off the scent somehow, I can trust her for that. Well, it is a wonderful world, and I am a lucky dog, and no mistake ; and when Beatrix and I am married we' shal have Julia staying in the house for weeks together, and you must come and keep her ompany, eh, Mostyn!'—[The London Graphic.

TWENTY-TWO PERFORMING ELE PHANTS.

A Wonderful Sight.

The Toledo Commercial, of a recent issue, thus describes the wonder-moving performance of Forepaugh's great herd of twenty-two trained elephants, which are to be exhibited here Friday September 15, in connection with his great combination of Menagerie, Museum, Circus, etc.:

No feature of Forepaugh's Great Show, which exhibited here last night, is more attractive nor instructive than the marvelous youngest and most successful animal trainer in the world. These immense brutes twenty two in number, were put through a number variety of movements and evolutions that baffle description, and many of which, indeed, even though minutely detailed, would appear almost incredible to the reader who was not so almost incredible to the reader who was not so fortunate as to be one of the large audience that laughed at and applauded their manouvers last night. The susceptibility of these huge specimens of the animal kingdom to human instruction is really marvelous. It is an axiom that man is the master of dumb brutes, but never was more fully exemplified than in the instance under consideration. Obedient to the voice of their instructor, five of the largest of the elephants fell into line and went through a series of military evolutions with the preseries of military evolutions with the pre-cision and bearing of a West Point cadet on dress parade. Another sqad of eleven formed formance elicited. A couldle of specimens from the African wilds amused the spectators with a number of gymnastic feats, standing on their heads and kicking their immense feet in the air with the same air of majestic indifierence that they would reach out their trunks and gather in an apple or a bag of peanuts from the pocket of some luckless youth who venthe pocket of some luckless youth who ventured into too close proximity. The most wonderful of all the thrilling performances, however, was the tight rope act of the delegate from Siam. This intelligent beast mounted a rope stretched across the arena and walked it back and forth with all the grace and coolness of Blordin, while en route performing several interesting feats, such as posturing, balancing on one foot, receiving and eating food, handed him on a long pole from the ground below, turning around on the rope, etc. Other exhibitions of intelligence and susceptibility to instruction were given which were worthy of especial and extended mention did space permit. This is without doubt numerically and, as regards the variety and extent space permit. This is without doubt numerically and, as regards the variety and extent of their performances, the greatest herd of acting elephants ever introduced to the public by any one manager. The importation alone by any one manager. The importation alone is said to have cost over $250,000, and the expense of keeping and training must have swelled these figures to a sum which, if named in round figures, would startle the average spectator, who reaps the benefit thereof. Forepaugh and all his elephants will be here

THE KANSAS STATE FAIR, inaugurated last year with such splendid success will surpass anything of the kind ever known in the West. The attractions of the week at Topeka include the following and many other features of less importance:

Second annual exhibition of THE KANSAS STATE FAIR ASSOCIATION, which has associated with it the KANSAS STATE HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY. KANSAS WOOL-GROWERS' AND SHEEP-BREEDERS' ASSOCIATION.

KANSAS POULTRY AND PET STOCK SO-ANNUAL MEETING OF THE KANSAS STATE

REUNION OF THE VETERAN SOLDIERS' AND SAILORS TO BE ADDRESSED BY BLAINE, NEAL DOW, AND OTHERS.

REUNION OF THE EX-PRISONERS OF WAR. ANNUAL REVIEW OF THE STATE MILITIA

SECOND ANNUAL CONTEST OF THE KAN-

ANNUAL MERTING OF THE KANSAS STATE TEMPERANCE UNION. TEN GREAT EVENTS IN ONE WEEK.
FORTY THOUSAND DOLLARS in premiums, with Ten THOUSAND DOLLARS set aside for Live Stock. No legitimate feature of a great State Fair neglected, while many attractive novelties have been introduced to add to the interest of the week's programme. Pens and stalls and exhibition space free. No entrance the atthe Kansas State Fair, but a free for all contest with cash patd premiums impartially awarded. The big pumpkin, the patent churn and the red bull will loom up before the astonished visitors in all their majestic grandeur. Let 'em loom! We propose to show that Kansas can raise bigger pumpkins and redder bulls and better sheep and finer wheat and larger apples and more corn and fatter hogs and more of them all to the square mile than any State in the Union. These things are always on hand and always welcome; they are fust what the thousands of eastern visitors who will be here want to see. Bring them along. But the glories of a red wagon will not always satisfy nor are the charms of the green quilt counter perennial and the managers of the State Fair have provided a long list of specialities. Remember the dates, September 11 to 16. TEN GREAT EVENTS IN ONE WEEK.

Letter From Topeka. Correspondence to THE SPIRIT OF KANSAS.

The Capital Publishing Company has purchased of the Commonwealth Publishing Company a half interest in its Western Associated Press franchise for the sum, it is reported, of ten thousand dollars. The franchise cost Mr. Baker, I believe, in the neighborhood of five thousand dollars, so that he is a clean five ahead. There are other features of the transaction which are hard to explain. Why Mr. Baker should have parted with the weapon by which he could have slain his enemy is one of them. The Capital, as the result of its new acquisition, foregoes its Monday edition.

Some time ago Hon. Ross Burns, a prominent lawyer of this city, died and left what little worldly wealth he had to his wife. There now appears upon the scene a fair claimant in dotes and incidents illustrative of army the sister of the notorious Jennie Classin. She affirms that she was never divorced from him, and alleges that she thought he was dead years ago. It is hardly probable, though, that a man like Ross Burns would have neglected the usual formalities in such a case, and it is pretty safe to set the whole thing down as mere Both opera houses will be in full blast during fair week. Emma Abbott and her reorganized troupe with several new operas will open the new opera house at that time, and Emma Abbott is under contract to sing every night. At the other house Fay Templeton's company, one of the most popular combinations traveling, will appear in comic opera. Luken's opera house in North Topeka, will also present an attractive bill.

Everybody will be on hand to see the contest by amateur wheelmen for the championship of the State and a eilver cup. - Captains of New York and New England clubs have also been engaged to give exhbitions of their skill on the bicycle. This will be an attractive novelty-something brand new.

Strenuous efforts are being put forth by the temperance people of Topeka to close the saloons. Last year a city government was elected pledged to support prohibition, but it has deliberately gone back on its promises and in encouraging the breaking of the law in the matter of prohibition has encouraged other forms of crime, until lawlessness has become altogether too frequent. The thing has gone on until it has become an intolerable nuisance. The other evening a mass meeting was held. At that meeting the city council was asked to close the saloons. Last night the council conveniently failed to quorum. They having failed to act the citizens propose to take matters into their own hands and will appoint a constabulary force who can be depended upon to shut up the whisky shops. It this should be unsuccessful fears are entertained that violence will be resorted to and the whisky poured out into the street.

The re-union of the G. A. R. and the ex-prisoners of war, will be features of the re-union. A splendid camp ground has been leased, where 500 hospital tents loaned by the gov ernment and 1,000 hired tents and additional parracks, sufficient to accommodate all who wish to come, will be erected. Tents and barracks free, and rations already contracted for at 23 cents per day for the veterans and their families, make it cheaper to live on the camp grounds than at home. The ration is as follows: Bacon, fresh beef, roasted and ground coffee, soft bread, hard bread, Boston baked beans, rice, granulated sugar, salt, candles and soap. Organizations of old soldiers would do well to send their commissary or quartermaster to Topeka, a few days previous to their arrival there, to arrange for quarters and rations. Bring your blankets and camp cooking utensils. State headquarters will be established, and State registering system adopted, so that the veterans can find their old comrades with the least possible difficulty.

A grand camp fire every night, and at last one grand parade, and review. Addresses will be made during the week by the following distinguished soldiers and citizens: James G Blaine, Gen. Neal Dow, of Maine; Gen. J. Warren Keifer, Speaker of the House of Rep. resentatives; Gen. John Coburn, of Indiana Col. A. D. Streight, of Indiana; Col. Harry White, of Pennsylvania; Col. Carr, of Gales burg, Ill.; Gen. Paul Vandervort, Commander-in-chief of the G. A. R. of the United States. The above have said they would cer-REUNION OF THE GRAND ARMY OF THE tainly attend the reunion, while Secretary of War Lincoln, who will be in the West at that time, has written that he hopes to attend. Military History of Kansas. The State Historical Society is endeavoring to collect materials of the military history and biography of Kansas. The object is, to save such materials from being lost; and in order that they may be used by the future historian in the preparation of a correct military history of Kansas-of the history of its regiments; of the separate companies composing its regiments; of neighborhood bands of recruits, and of biographical sketches, as far as may be, of individual officers and privates. It is desired not only to collect the history of the soldiers who were citizens at the time of the war, but also that of those citizens of Kausas who have become such since the war. All alike are interested in saving, for the instruction of future generations, a record of the history of the war, in all its details.

The soldiers in Kansas are requested by the Society to bring into its collections for preservation, whatever materials of the history of the war they may be able to contribute. At this time of soldiers' reunions and of the general revival of interest in respect to war history, this appeal is appropriate. Soldiers are asked by the Society to put in writing their recollections of tionate reductions. the war-narratives of their personal experiences, biographical sketches of soldiers who died in the service or have since died, accounts of marches, campaigns, and of battles, and anecthe person of his first wife, none other than life and experience. Manuscript papers-letters from the army written by pers—letters from the army written by soldiers, diaries and journals kept by them—these are especially desired. War newspapers, pamphlets, pictures, songs, badges—everything printed relating to the war. War relics of every kind are desired. The collections of the State Historical Society are being the State Historical Society are being made up for the State; they are the property of the State, and are carefully kept in the rooms of the Society in the State House. A museum of historical records is being formed, for the instruction of the public; and an ample library of books, pamphlets and manuscripts is being gathered for the use of the public, and to give the historian correct data and ample materials. The war history of Kansas has as yet been very meagerly written. Its materials are rapidly being lost, through the accidents of time. The effort of the Historical Society to save them should be responded to by every one who can in the least aid in this work. The Society will give directly to the newspapers of the State, for immediate publication, many of the papers contributed. Others will be filed for future use. Writers of sketches can, if preferred procure their publication in the local newspapers and send copies containing them to F. G. Adams, Secretary of the Society, Topeka to be catalogued with the collections. The Society has published a circular on this subject, which will be mailed to any one who will apply to

A modern camp-meeting is frequently a huge business speculation, managed solely for the benefit of the stockholders; and the religious exercises are practically only a side-show to attract the masses. While the earnestness and piety of many of the speakers at these meetings are not quistioned. it is asserted by some of the religious papers that their power to do good in camp-meetings is gone never to return again. In the meanwhile the cottages and tents at the various camp-meeting resorts are filled by multitudes of people, who certainly obtain recreation, if not religion.

FROM COL. L. T. FOSTER.

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio, May, 10th, 1880.

DR. B. J. KENDALL & Co., GENTE:—I had a very valuable Hambletonian colt which I prized very highly, he had a large bone spavin on one joint and a smaller one on the other which made him very lame; I had him under the charge of two Veterinary Surgeons who failed to cure him. I was one day reading the advertisement of Kendall's Spavin Cure in the Cicago Express, I determined at once to try it, and got our druggists here to sund for it. They ordered three bottes; I took them all and thought I would give it a thorough trial. I used it according to directions, and by the fourth day the colt ceased to be lame, and the lumps had entirely disappeared. I used but one bottle and the colts limbs are as free from lumps and as smooth as any horse in the state. He is entirely cured. The cure was so remarkable that I let two of my neighbors have the remaining two bottles, who are now using it.

Yery Respectfully,

B. J. KENDALL & Co.. GENTS:—In justice to you and to myself, I think I ought to let you know that I have removed two bone spavins with Kendall's Spavin Cure, one very large one, don't know how long the spavin had been there. I have owned the horse eight months, It took me four months to take the large one off and two for the small one. I have used ten bottles. The horse is entirely well, not at all stiff, and no bunch to be seen or felt. This is a wonderful medicine. It is a new thing here, but if it does for all what it has done for me, its sale will be very great.

Respectfully yours,

Dr. J. B. 'Kendail & Co., Gents:—I have used your ''Kendail's Spavin Cure'' on a bone spavin and am pleased to report that it has taken the enlargement completely off. It took only one bottle to perform the cure. I am confident if it is properly used it will do all you claim for it.

Yours truly, C. M. LINCOLN.

St. Albans, Vt., Jan. 20th, 1880.

Dr. B. J. Kendall & Co., Gents:—In reply to your letter I will say that my experience with 'Kendal's Spavin Cure' has been very satisfactory indeed. Three or four years ago I procured a bottle of your agent, and with it, cured a horse of lameness caused by a spavin. Last season my horse became very lame and I turned him out for a few weeks, when he became better, but when I put him on the road he grew worse, when I discovered that a ringbone was forming, I procured a bottle of Kendall's Spavin Cure and with less than a bottle cured him so that he is not lame, neither can the bunch be found.

Respectfully yours, P. N. GRANGER. To Whom It May Concern:—In the year 1875 1 treated with 'Kendall's Spavin Cure,' a bone spavin of several months' growth, nearly half as large as a hen's egg, and completely stopped the lameness and removed the enlargement. I have worked the horse ever since very hard, and he never has been very lame, nor could I ever see any difference in the size of the hock joints since I treated him with Kendall's Spavin cure.

I got two bottles of Kendall's Spavin Cure of Preston & Ludduth, Druggists of Waseca, which completely cured my horse. About five years ago I had a three-year-old coltsweenied very badly I used your remedy as given in your book without roweling, and I must say to your credit that the colt is entirely cured, which is a surprise not only to myself but also to my neighbors. You sent me the book for the trilling sum of 25 cents, and it I could not get another like it I would not take twenty-five dollars for it.

B. J. Kendall & Co.—Gents: I have tried your Spavin Cure on a chronic case of bone spavin, which has been treated by two of the best doctors in the land. The case was fired twice, and I can safely say that Kendall's Spavin Cure did more good than anything which I ever tried. I believe it to be a good remedy for a great many difficulties. My cousin and I had a valuable stallion, worth $4,000, which had a very bad spavin and was pronounaed by four eminent yeterinary surgeons beyond any cure, and that the horse was done for ever. As a last resort I advised my cousin to try a bottle of Kendall's Spavin Cure. It had a magical effect, the third bottle cured it, and the horse is as well as ever. KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE.

ON HUMAN FLESH it has been ascertained by repeated trials to be the very best liniment ever used for any deep seated pain of long standing, or of short duration. Also for Corns, Bunions, Frost-bites, or any bruise, cut or lameness. Some are afraid to use it on human flesh simply because it is a horse medicine, but you should remember that what is good for Beast is good for Man, and we know from experience that "KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE" can be used on a child 1 year old with perfect satety. Its effects are wonderful on human flesh, and it does not blister or make a sore. Try it and be convinced.

B. J, Kendall, M. D.—Dear Sir: The particular case on which I used your, "Kendall's Spavin Cure," was a malignant ankle sprain of sixteen months standing, I had tried many things, but in vain. Your "Kendall's Spavin Cure" put the foot to the ground again, and, for the first time since hurt, in a natural position. For a family liniment it excells anything we ever used.

B. J. Kendall & Co.—Gents: I wish to add my testimony in favor of your invaluable liniment.
"Kendall's Spavin Cure." In the spring of 1872 is lipped on the ice and sprained my right limb at the knee joint. I was very lame, and at times suffered the most excruciating pain. I wore a bandage on it for over a year, and tried most everything in my reach, but could find nothing that would give me permanent relief. When I overworked, it would pain me very much. In April, 1878, I began to think I should be a cripple for life, but having some of "Kendall's Spavin Cure" thought I would try it. I used one-third of a bottle and experienced relief at once. The pain left me and has not troubled me since. I feel very grateful to you, and would recommend "Kendall's Spavin Cure" to all who suffer with sprains or rheumatism.

Yours truly, MRS. J. BOUTELL.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE.

Kendall's Spavin Cure is sure in its effects, mild in its action as it does not blister, yet it is penetrating and powerful to reach'any deep-seated pain, or to remove any bony growth or any other enlargement if used for several days, such as spavins, splints, curbs, callous, sprains, swellings, any lameness and all enlargements of the joints or limbs, or rheumatism in man, and for any purpose for which a liniment is used for man orbeast. It is now known to be the best liniment for man ever used, acting mild and yet certain in its effects. It is used full strength with perfect safety at all seasons of the year.

Send address for Illustrated C'rcular, which we think gives positive proof of its virtues. No remedy has ever met with such unqualified success, to our knowledge, for beast as well as man.

To show the abundance of the vines and grapes that should fall to the lot of the tribe of Judah in the partition of the promised land, Jacob in his prophetic benediction says of Judah: "He shall be found binding his colt to the vine, and to the choice vine the fool washing his garments in wine. In those vineyards the planters labored, digging, propping, or pruning, gathering the grapes and making wine. They formed a distinct class among the cultivators of the ground. Some of the missionaries give accounts of seeing clusters of Damascus grapes that weighed about twenty-five pounds. Pliny states that the vines in Italy would climb to the very top of the highest poplars on which the grape gatherers in time of vintage put a clause in their agreement with their employers that in case they should fall and their necks be broken, that their masters would have to bear the funeral expenses. I would plant six by eight feet in rows each way, and train to one and two stakes to the vine; by so training the light and air and sun will have free access through and around the vines. No other crops should be allowed to grow in the young vineyard. The young vines need all the moisture and strength that there is in the soil to give them a good start. The leading point for the vine-dresser to bear in mind is that one or two strong healthy shoots are better and bear more than a dozen weakly, sickly ones. It is almost impossible to convince the freshman in grape culture of this fact. He imagines that every eye was made to bear grapes. The experiment is easily made and nothing could give the novice a clearer understanding of the principals of pruning than to plant two young vines near each other. Let one grow at will saving all the wood and tieing up the branches. The other cut back to one bud the first year, and the second to two or three according to the vigor of the vine, and the first crop of truit the third or fourth year will certainly demonstrate which of the two is the best method of Jim Legate, in his speech at the Leavenworth ratification meeting, announced St. John as a candidate for the United State Senate. They are getting too auxious. Present operations sound very similar to the movement last spring in favor of him for a third for Governor. We understand a number of the supporters of Plumb are becoming alarmed, and there are some indications that they may fight St. John at the polls as a means of saving Plumb. We think St. John's defeat at the polls is the only thing that will save Plumb from defeat or very serious trouble. If St. John is elected Governor Plumb can count on one thing, and that is a very large crowd of people very indifferent as to Senatorial rusults. St. John is a candidate for the U.S. Senate, and we think he is making a mistake in being so bold about it be-fore the vote in November.—[Junction City Union.

The Church and Beer.

Some of the stricter English Churchmen are exercised over the scandal involved in the Church's owning lands on which liquors are sold. The Pall Mall Gazette says: "Canon Wilberforce's letter to the Archbishop of Canterbury, illustrates the connection between beer and Bible in a way that The Church as a whole, being the largest land-owner in the kingdom, is naturally the largest owner of public houses. That is bad ehough, but Mr. Wilberforce avers that public houses Kansas has not goue back on her old record, that she is still a free State, and that her loyal citizens have no use for the demagogue who is trying to possess himself of it.

A system which has taken out of our pockets more than $600,000,000 per annum ever since the war, which is to-day accountable for every trades union and strike known in this country, which makes necessary the very anti-monopoly movements that it so loudly decries, which sends to Washington each year the most cor-rupt and corrupting lobby ever known, and which is the very embodiment of uational short-sighted selffishness and isolation-this system needs a rebuke that shall cause it to wither and die.

Antagonizing especially every interest of this grand commonwealth, it will be a shame if our entire delegation does not enter a united and earnest protest against its further existence.

Some Cider.

The cider-making season havi g fairly opened, curiosity impelled us to pay a visit to the vinegar works of this city and see how cider is made on a large scale. The building occupied by the works is what was formerly Bang's Soap factory, 30x80 feet, three stories high with an offset on the north side 10x80 feet. The front part of the main building is devoted to an office, and receiving and ship ping choice apples. On an average fifty barrels of apples per day are packed and shipped Every small and defective apple is sorted out and thrown in the cider apple heap. J. C Studebaker is shipping clerk and Henry Nuby is the purchasing agent. Along one side of this room is two rows of racks filled with vinegar, or rather cider in process of working. Two large vats, sixteen feet long, six feet square are in process of erection, for what is called the quick process. When completed new cider can be poured in at the top and it will flow out vinegar at the bottom. In the rear of this room is the cider press, 6x14 feet, capable of holding one hundred barrels of ground apples. The apples are received in a large hopper-shaped bin on the south side of this room, and run into an elevator which carries them into the room above, where the grinder is located. From the grinder the apples are run by spouting directly to the press, all the work being done by steam. After the cheese has been pressed, the pumice is thrown into a leach at the west end of the building, thirty-six feet long and ten feet high. This old pumice is sprinkled with water, and yields five to ten barrels per day of half-strength vinegar. Another leach of the same capacity is now in process of erection.

On the third floor of the building are three fifty-barrel tanks, and into these the cider is avail themselves of this invitation, will call at ing a hose to any of these tanks the cider can be drawn off into barrels or other vats. In the whole process there is no lifting or lugging. Everything goes by steam. The engine is ten-horse power and is driven by a 16-horse power boiler. On the south side of the building are large platform scales for weighing in the fruit. The yard at the south side is also filled with barrels of cider and vinegar, and for want of room it is probable several storage tanks will be placed there.

The works, when run to their full capacity, now turn out seventy-five barrels of vinegar per day. In addition to vinegar, in a few days they will have an evaporator capable of drying sixty bushels of fruit per day. No jellies will be made this year, though the company expect to embrace that in their business next

THE MASTODON SHOW.

Twelve Large Shows Combined, Lawrence, Saturday, Sept. 2.

Batchellor & Doris have now not only the largest, but the best show on earth, the result of enterprise, untiring energy and liberality. They have gathered together the best perform ers of the old and new world and wonders from all quarters of the globe. It has been their aim to strengthen one department without weakening or neglecting another and the outcome is a harmonious blending of one complete and perfect show, which in reality is six combined in one. In the circus they present the leading riders of the world including such famous artists as Mile Rosina Dubsky, the great bare back rider; Miss Lizzie Keyes, the handsome scenic and trick equestrienne ; Aber. lado Dowanda, the great bare back rider; Willie Shaules, the champion hurdle rider; Mile Eltie, the great boneless wonder; the famous Russian athletes, three in number; the Mile Brothers, acrobats, and a score of other equally as great in merit. In the menagerie the most novel of wild animals some of which have never been seen before in this country will be presented, the whole forming a charm' ing and fascinating study for students of Natural History. In the Museum which should be remembered is connected with and forms a part of the big show will be presented the greatest wonder of the world, Millie Christine the "Two-Headed Nightingale," who was secured by the managers at the enormous salary of $25,000 for the serson. Millie Christine is two women in one, possessing two heads, four arms and four legs, but one body. Many doubtless will imagine that the unique is asso ciated with repulsive, or will imagine at least that an exceptional freak of nature would mar to some extent, the superficial charms which tend to make human objects attractive; but to such the effect will be astounding as a more attractive and thoroughly interesting being, all things considered, it is impossible to imagine. Millie Christine is a charming vocalist, a grace ful dancer and vivacious conversationalist, and her performance alone is more than worth the price of admission to the entire show. In the Mnseum will also be found a band of Sioux Indians, led by their Chief War Cloud.

The free street pageant given on the morning of the show is declared by the entire press as the most beautiful, gorgeous and elaborate ever seen in this country, and introduces the hand somest lady in the world, the Winner of Messrs Batcheller & Doris' $10,000 prize, being selected from nearly 1,000 applicants. In the parade will be open dens of performing lions, tigers, snakes, etc., together with handsome tableaux cars, chariots, gilded cages, bands, Jubilee sidgers, etc., the whole being most elaborate and complete in detail.

While once passing through the woods I carelessly fired at a bird, caring only to discharge my gun, so as to make my next fire sure. I wounded a bird which sat upon the fence. I felt guilt stricken at once and tried to catch it. Failing in that Lthought it would be humanity to shoot it. Before I could load my rifle it fluttered across the field. where I followed it, and found the panting sufferer at its nest, and the blood dripping upon its young! The Smell of Paint.

To get rid of this most objectionable odor in a chamber or living-room, slice a few onions and put them in a pail of water in the center of the room; clese the door, leave the window open a little, and in a few hours the disagreeable smell will almost have gone. Another method is to plunge a handful of hay into s paliful of water, and let it stand in the newlypainted room over night; this plan is also effectual. The foregoing having the important advantage of being simple remedies, as the necessary materials are easily obtainable. Yet another plan, but it is rather more complicated: Place a grate of lighted charcoal on a pice of flag or a slate in the center of the room and throw on it a handful or two of juniper berries; shut out all ventilation from the room for twenty-four hours; the doors and windows can then be opened, when it will be found that the nasty; sickly smell of paint has entirely gone. The furniture may be left in the room during the process, and none of it will be injured.—[California Architect.

Ladies do not fail to attend the grand opening of "Famous" at 151 Mass. St.

That is what a great many people are doing. They don't know just what is the matter, but they have a combination of pains and aches, and each month they grow worse.

The only sure remedy yet found is Brown's Iron BITTERS, and this by rapid and thorough assimilation with the blood purifies and enriches it, and rich, strong blood flowing to every part of the system repairs the wasted tissues, drives out disease and gives health and strength.

This is why Brown's IRON BITTERS will cure kidney and liver diseases. consumption, rheumatism, neuralgia, dyspepsia, malaria, intermittent fevers, &c.

> Mr. Simon Blanchard, a well-known citizen of Hayesville, Meade county, Kentucky, says: "My wife had been sick for a long time, and her constitution was all broken down and she was unable to work. She was advised to use Brown's Iron Bitters, and found it to work like a charm. We would not now be without it for any consideration, as we consider it the best tonic in the world."

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS is not a drink and does not contain whiskey. It is the only preparation of Iron that causes no injurious effects. Get the genuine. Don't be imposed on with imitations.

Far down in depth of woodland dim, Unheeded sweetest wild flowers lie; Dost deem their fragrant breathings fled Because men pass them unseen by?

Nay, flowers are sweet in woodland deep As ever by the wayside grow, The gem as fair, the music's power No less than in the long ugo.

Sweet opportunities of sowing seed by the way are sometimes given to those who, seeing a work to be done, put their own hands to the plough. It is a little up-country village; the church is weather-beaten and out of repair; and the young people have few incentives to pure living and high thinking. From the city, attracted by the mountain air, has come a colony of gentlemen and ladies, who bring with them an atmosphere of refinement and culture which expresses something better than the people around have yet known. These men and women may go, leaving behind them no trace of good influence; or they may so spend their money, and so let the light of their good example shine, that the place may gain greatly. We have in memory one such place where the sanctuary was in a ruinous state, the roof broken, the walls uusafe, the paint dingy, and-worse than allthe Sabbath services almost deserted Two or three summer visitors used their opportunities, gave their means, stimulated the people to effort by their earnest words, and lo! a change, a transformation!—[Christian Intelligencer.

Are Women Better Dressed Than Men. [From the Boston Journal of Chemistry.]

One of the signs of advanced civilization is discomfort in dress; the fur ther any nation advances in civilization the more she tortures her subjects, and, strangely enough, this infliction falls upon the so-called upper class. The educated class, the members of the liberal professions, the denizens of the city, the merchant and his clerks, suffer more than the poor laborer, from heat guilty of a misdemeanor. if not from cold. As between the sexes there is little difference in this respect. Civilization even extends its cruel hand over the babe in its cradle, and would afflict the dead if they had any feelings left.

Iowa Creameries.

lowa is taking high rank as a butter producing State. The managers of the creameries say that they cannot fill all the orders for their butter. The cream gathering system of Iowa is now attracting attention in Illinois and Wisconsin, where farmers have been obliged to deliver the milk at the factory. This not only devolves loss of time to the farmers, but the selling of the calves when but a few days old to the butcher, and consequently a large expenditure for cows which, by the Iowa plan might have been raised much more cheaply than they can be bought. It is stated on good authorities that the dairy farmers within twenty miles of Elgin, Ill., expended $250,000 in the year 1881, not to increase but to replenish their herds.-[Boone Co. Republi-

A Small Breed of Pigs,

An English contemporary speaking of a breed of pigmy porkers, three sows and a boar from Nepaul, on exhibition at the Zoological Gardens, London, says: "This species is so rare, that since Hodson described these animals, fifty years ago, there has not been a single specimen 'attainable in Europe, and even the museums have been unable to get more than a single skin. They are very small in size, scarcely bigger than a large wild rabbit; or probably a better idea of their size may be formed by giving their weight at seven or eight pounds each. They are very active on their legs, running very swiftly, and they are very shy. Their skins are well covered with short, reddish-brown hair, or rather bristles; they are very clean feeders, and also very cleanly in their habits. Their flesh is esteemed very good for eating; and thus these interestvery good for eating; and thus these theresing little porcines are naturally the subjects of other contemplations than their zoological rarity. If they can be bred in the Gardens the Society will find profitable results repay the price given for them, by disposing of the first offspring to other menageries; and the acclimatization of the subsequent progeny would seem to be well worthy of attempt, as they matization of the subsequent progeny would seem to be well worthy of attempt, as they might be kept seemingly without offensiveness in the yards and gardens of domestic houses, and be fed upon potato parings, vegetables, and debris of food. They are very fond of rice, and will eat small portions of meat; but they will not touch the wash or gressy matters commonly given to ordinary pigs.

Eggs as Food.

The Boston Journal of Chemistry says that eggs, at average prices, are among the cheapest and most nutricious articles of diet. Like milk, an egg is a complete food in itself, con_ taining everything necessary for the development of a perfect animal, as is manifest that a chick is formed from it. It seems a mystery how muscles, bones, feathers, and everything that a chicken requires for its perfect development are made from the yolk and white of an egg, but such is the fact and it shows how complete food an egg is. It is also easily digested, if not damaged in cooking. Indeed, there is no more concentrated and nourishing food than eggs. The albumen, oil, and saline matter, are as in milk, in the right proportions for sustaining animal life. Two or three boiled eggs, with the addition of a slice or two of toast, will make a breakfast sufficient for any man, and good enough for a king.

According to Dr. Edward Smith, in his treatise on "Food" an egg weighing an ounce and three-quareers contains 120 grains of carbon, and seventeen and three-quarter grains of nitrogen; or 15.25 per cent. of carbon and 2 per cent. nitrogen. The value of one pound of egßs, as food for sustaining the active forces of the body, is to the value of one pound of lean meat as 1584 to 900. As a flesh producer, one 1584 to 900. As a flesh producer, one pound of egg is about equal to about one pound of beef.

value of one pound of lean meat as 1584 to 900. As a flesh producer, one pound of egg is about equal to about one pound of beef.

A hen may be calculated to consume one bushel of corn yearly, and to lay ten dozen or fifteen pounds of eggs.

This is equivalent to saying that three and one-tenth pounds of corn will produce, when fed to a hen, five-sixth of a pound; a pound of pork requires about five pounds of corn for its production.

Taking into account the nutriment of duce, when fed to a hen, five-sixth of a pound; a pound of pork requires about Taking into account the nutriment of each, and the comparative prices of the two on an average, the pork is about three times as costly a food as the eggs, while it is certainly less healthful.

Mr. H. C. Burnett, one of the editors of the Leavenworth Daily Standard, writes that on three different occasions Leis' Dandelion Tonic cured him of malarial attacks against which other medicines were ineffectual. He considers it a most excellent remedy for that sluggish unhealthy condition of the system occasioned by a malarious atmosphere.

A number of ruffians, of which Troy pessesses a large and varied assortment, made a raid upon a garden in the suburbs of that city on Sunday. The lady of the house twice ordered them off the premises and twice they refused to go, with the coarse insolence which cowards generally employ toward women. In this case, however, they had mistaken the person whom they tried to bully. After the second warning she calmly said: "Very well; I have a big dog and a brace of revolvers in the house. The dog is not afraid to bite and I am not afraid to shoot. I will show them to you." When she returned the rowdies were not there.-N. Y. Tribune.

A Reply to That Challenge. the Editor of the Commonwealth:

I note your article from the Leavenworth Standard relating to the prize drill at the State Fair. The statement that "it looks at this distance as though the Major-General had made a mistake in ruling out independent companies, and that he must in fairness reconsider his action" is groundless. I have nothing to do with independent companies. I command the State Militia. Do you recollect what the Indian said to Fishback? The State Fair offered $1,000 in premiums to the militia this year, and as I understand it proposes to offer the same to independent companies next year and bar the militia. Last year's experience demonstrated the impracticability of attempting to make the military and "independent troops coalesce." We "fighting" men don't "hang together," so to speak. There is no "hang together," so to speak. There is no disposition "to force these companies into the St. John militia." The extravagant sum of $300, appropriated by the last legislature as a contingent fund to be expended upon the militia by the adjutant-general, has been already exhausted on the two full regiments now organized, and besides there is very little inducement for any one to join the militia, pay for his own uniform, armory rent, and incidental expenses, and hold himself subject to the call of the commander-in-chief at any time and have his legitimate claims repudiated by the Barry Cadets, "that is business," and if the militia don't wake up and accept during the soldiers' reunion at Topeka, I'll devil the "stuffin" out of them during the State Fair week. Wake up, Col. Patrick, charge,! Woodcock, charge! and capture that $100; or you will be retired in everlasting and eternal disgrace. T. Jefferson Anderson.
