Wabaunsee Co. Beef Tour

Cool weather, intermittent showers, and stiff northerly winds failed to stop the Wabaunsee county Beef Tour. This string of cars toured through southern Wabaunsee county and moved into Lyon county.

Featured at the first stop was this herd of Angus cows and their crossbred Charolais calves. Charles and Jack Waugh, Eskridge, explained their cross breeding and pasture program.

The Buster Wheat feed yard facilities was next on the list. An enclosed working chute, pictured, drew special interest along with the high moisture grain storage operation, also pictured. After close examination of the equipment and a look at additional construction on the feedlot the caravan moved into an adjacent pasture for a look at a Red Angus cross, and a half Limousin-Hereford-Charolais cross.

The final stop was at the Walter Porter Ranch near Miller. Additional pictures show part of his silage operation utilizing milo head chop.

Aussies Push Beef And Feed Grain Production

Changes in Australian agriculture eventually may result in more competitive problems for U.S. grain and livestock producers.

The Agriculture Department's Foreign Agricultural Service said beef production in Australia is continuing to soar as many producers shift from sheep to cattle.

Beef production was up more than 10 percent the past season to a record 1,145,000 tons. "Further costs are possible this year (1972-3) due to cattle numbers increasing faster than meat production," the FAS said in a report.

Also, the report showed, Australia produced a record feed grain crop the past year as the government imposed tighter acreage restrictions on wheat.

Barley output rose 32 percent, but sorghum grain production declined. Corn, a relatively minor crop, also increased.

The rise in Australian beef production and the indication that foundation herds are expanding mean that Australia may be looking ahead to an even greater share of the U.S. import market.

Beef imports, low-grade meat used mainly for manufactured food such as hamburger, have been held down until recently under a 1964 quota law. But President Nixon last June 26 suspended "voluntary restraint" arrangements with foreign countries for the remainder of the year in an effort to head off rising retail prices.

Australia and a dozen other countries have increased meat shipments to the U.S. market as a result. By August the total was up 12 percent from a year earlier.

There has been no official word that the suspension will continue into 1973, but cattle producer groups have been led to understand the quota formula will be restored.

But the cattle explosion in Australia may be a signal that the country at least will seek a larger "voluntary restraint" level for the American market when the curbs are reimposed.

Australia and neighboring New Zealand historically provide about 70 percent of the fresh, chilled and frozen beef imported here.

The increase in feed grain production also may be worrisome later on to U.S. producers. Japan is a big buyer of Australian feed grain and also is a major market for U.S. farmers.

Thus, if Australia can maintain its supply, American producers might find some of their dependable exports reduced as the Japanese turn more to the competition.

$46 Million Loaned To Rural Families In Nebraska

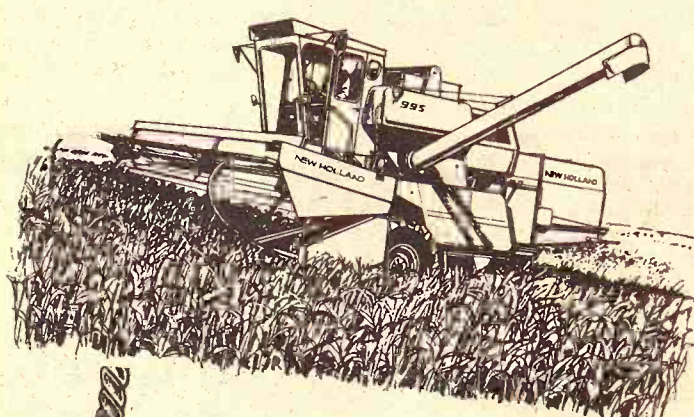

During fiscal year 1972, FHA in Nebraska helped more than 6,500 rural families with credit exceeding $46 million, State Director K. L. Bowen has announced.

Over $25 million in farm loans and approximately $9½ million of other commercial credit served 2,939 farm families and provided the largest joint lending program in Nebraska by Farmers Home Administration. Bowmen said that $7½ million was used for housing, providing credit to 625 families for individual home ownership and organizational rental housing in rural communities.

In addition, Farmers Home Administration helped to finance 14 rural water and sewerage projects in Nebraska during fiscal year 1972, having a total cost of more than $4,800,000.

The eight municipalities, five rural water districts and one watershed had loans and grants for over $3,200,000 which will serve approximately 3,000 rural Nebraska families when in operation.

The IH V-8: Another reason why Red Fever has spread so rapidly.

First of all we built a tractor with all the features of our field-proved '66 Series tractors. Then we added IH V-8 power with the most advanced technology.

(For instance, this 550 cu. in. diesel engine has fuel injected to 4 cylinders under no or partial load conditions. Then to all 8 cylinders under load. This way you receive maximum fuel economy.)

But equally important we offered every modern safety and comfort feature—including one of the quietest cabs ever tested in official tests.

And you can equip this tractor with our most popular '66 Series option—shift-on-the-go Torque Amplifier—for maximum productivity.

Larry Noyes, Osborne, is a senior at Kansas State University, majoring in political science. He's also of the third generation of custom cutters. His family has been in the custom cutting business for years dating back to his Grandfather, L. C. Noyes. Larry is cutting for Glen Wilson, Manhattan, who about 220 acres of milo to cut. "Wilson figures he should have a 120 bushel average on this field," Larry said.

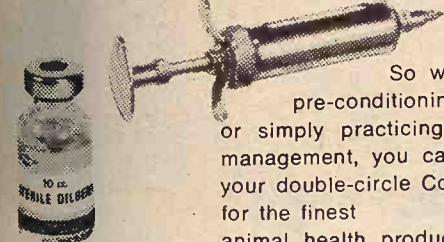

CO-OP animal health products can help make pre-conditioning pay off for you

A certified pre-conditioned calf can be worth as much as an extra three dollars per hundredweight to the profit-conscious feeder. Many knowledgeable feedlot operators are willing to up the ante if they can be sure they are buying pre-treated, trouble-free, ready-to-grow calves.

Does pre-conditioning represent a potential source of additional profit to you, the calf producer? Quite possibly. Careful investigation of the pros and cons and an assessment of your particular production and marketing problems will give you the answer. If pre-conditioning looks like a good bet, you'll be pleased to know that expert assistance is as near as your veterinarian and your local Farmland Industries Co-op.

Here you'll find the quality vaccines, medications and equipment you'll need for complete feeder calf pre-conditioning. CO-OP Animal Health Products are all up-to-date, research-tested and performance-proved. In addition your Co-op has medications and vaccines by Anchor Products, Elanco, Pfizer, Cyanamid and Merck, plus a complete line of dehorners and castrators, syringes, needles, knives, balling guns and other equipment.

So whether you're pre-conditioning feeder calves, or simply practicing smart livestock management, you can depend on your double-circle Co-op for the finest animal health products.

quality of Angus seedstock and continued growth in the demand for high quality beef.

The spread between USDA Good and USDA Choice beef carcasses ranged from $3 to $4 during most of 1972. As a result, Angus cattle brought top prices from 80 percent to 100 percent of the time at Omaha, Sioux City, Kansas City, Peoria and Chicago-Joliet. This brought increased demand for Angus feeder cattle and for top quality Angus bulls.

The auction price average for Angus bulls in 1972 was $740, about $90 higher than the year before. Females sold at auction during the period averaged $525 compared with $465 in 1971. The overall average auction price of $610 was the highest in nearly 20 years.

The supply of growthy, production-tested Angus bulls was the greatest in history, Lloyd Miller said. Participation by Angus breeders in the AHIR and their state BCIA programs is at record levels, which also helps account for the higher bull and heifer prices.

During the year, 23 states reported increases in Angus cattle registrations.

Missouri ranked first in both registrations and transfers of Angus cattle with 35,037 head and 27,297 head respectively, as well as first in new life and junior members. Texas was second with 26,275 registrations and third in transfers with 20,936.

Ban Announced On Live Hogs From Mexico

The Agriculture Department announced that imports of live pigs and uncooked pork, mostly from Mexico, have been banned in an effort to curb hog cholera.

The ban was announced to the general public in a routine news release two days after it was effective.

The decision, however, was passed on two days ago to Rep. H. R. Gross, R-Iowa, who had challenged pork imports as a disease threat to American producers.

Mexico has been the major provider, reportedly shipping one million pounds of uncooked pork into the United States this year, a department official said.

The department's announcement said only Australia, New Zealand, Canada, Northern Ireland and Ireland are now eligible to ship live hogs and fresh pork into the United States.

Imports of cooked, canned and other processed pork are not affected by the ban.

WATERING THE SILAGE

This sprinkler system strung across one of the three trench silos on the Walter Porter Ranch near Miller will bring the milo head chop to about a fifty per cent moisture content. Porter said he didn't have any certain figures on this type feeding operation but felt that the calves he has fed did better and the feed was costing him less. This machine pictured isn't Porter's but works on the same principle, cutting the head off just like a combine, chopping the head, then blowing it into the trailer.

Darold Marlow, county agent and organizer of the Wabaunsee County Beef Tour, takes a look at the milo head chop in Porter's silo.

four new John Deere Tractors featuring Sound-Gard design for the '70s.

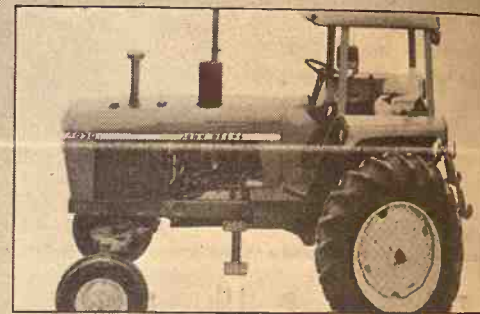

Meet four dynamic new John Deere Tractors—80-hp 4030, 100-hp 4230, 125-hp 4430, and 150-hp 4630—the new Sound-Idea tractors. Exclusive Sound-Gard design is instantly evident in the space-age styling of the enclosure available on all four models. It's properly called a Sound-Gard Body because it's far more than simply a cab "dropped" on top of a tractor. This is an enclosure completely integrated into a vehicle designed expressly for it—and that truly is a Sound Idea!

Sound-Gard design offers many benefits. You'll be operating an exceptionally quiet tractor—85 dB(a) is the maximum level of sound you'll hear. In winter, you'll be kept comfortably warm; in summer, comfortably cool. Within the Sound-Gard, you'll have the total "say" on heating, cooling, dehumidification, and pressurizing. You'll work in the "personalized working environment" of your choice.

Sound-Idea tractors blend pleasure and performance: with horsepower ratings spaced logically to fit your requirements... with engine refinements to help ensure reliability and to bring new vigor to your equipment... with a thoughtfully-conceived 16-speed transmission fitted comfortably between the famous Syncro-Range and Power Shift Transmissions... and with a new wet clutch developed for virtually "lifetime" service. Trim, compact profiles and the best expression of a high-horsepower-to-weight ratio spell out speed, agility, and adaptability.

Sound Ideas all the way! Never have tractors made it easier for you to be the boss—the planner who gives his orders to a wide variety of John Deere hydraulic power features: steering, braking, shifting, equipment control, PTO control, differential lock, front-wheel drive, and now, even clutching. A new Sound-Idea tractor can quickly become the "field office" of your farming operation. Drive one and you'll agree: this is the kind of power farming you've been waiting for—the new Sound-Idea tractors from John Deere.

ILL IT UP

With fall harvest underway Don, Bill and Gene Brunin, St. Marys, shouldn't have much trouble getting their corn crop in the bin. They have 1,200 acres of corn to cut, but this machine can cover the ground at a fast pace. Don said that they couldn't even put two combine bin-fulls in this truck. The combine bin will hold about 200 bushels. The Brunin's seemed optimistic about the quality and quantity prospects of their crop.

Production Cow Higher

Kansas milk production during the first eight months of 1972 totaled 143 million pounds, 1 percent above the same month last year, according to the Kansas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service.

Cumulative production during the first eight months this year totaled 1,165 million pounds, 1 percent below the same period a year earlier.

The number of milk cows on farms in Kansas during August totaled 188,000, compared with 194,000 in August 1971.

Milk production per cow in August averaged 760 pounds, the highest average production of record for the month of August.

United States milk production in August is estimated at 10,065 million pounds, 2 percent more than last year.

Total milk production during the first eight months of 1972 is 2 percent more than the comparable period in 1971.

Milk cows on U.S. farms totaled 12,184,000, down 1 percent from August 1971.

National milk production per cow averaged 826 pounds during August, 3 percent more than last year.

The August rate per cow reached a record high level in 28 of the 33 States with monthly estimates.

Plan To Place Control Of Grain Production In Farm Hands Circulating

A new plan for placing ultimate control of grain production in the hands of farmers instead of government is circulating among agricultural policy makers.

Advocates say it would eliminate wild price gyrations and chances for scandals like those resulting from last summer's huge wheat sales to the Soviet Union.

The idea, promoted by Hal Hellebust, executive secretary of the Kansas Cooperative Council, is designed to insure price stability in wheat, rice, feed grain and soybean markets.

If the proposal were in effect this year, Hellebust says, wheat farmers in the early-harvest areas of Texas, Oklahoma and Kansas would not have sold grain for $1.32 or less per bushel in June and been forced to watch helplessly as the price rose to $2 by September.

Hellebust said copies of the council's proposed bill have been circulated among key Nixon administration farm officials and selected members of Congress. Sponsors are being asked to introduce the plan to the House and Senate early next year.

Basically, it would eliminate all acreage-control factors in the present crop program. Annual marketing quotas would be determined on the basis of foreign and domestic demand. Any excess production would be held by the farmer at his own expense for sale under future quota allocations.

The current farm program—the Agricultural Act of 1970—expires after next year's crops are harvested, and Congress is expected to tackle a replacement plan early in 1973.

Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz and other Nixon farm leaders say the 1970 program has worked well, and indications are that the GOP—if returned to office—will seek basically more of the same for farmers after the current program ends next year.

But the Soviet grain sales, amounting to $1 billion this season, have drawn assertions that the Agriculture Department has ineptly represented interests of farmers or had engaged in a "conspiracy of silence" with the private grain traders. The charges are all denied by Butz and grainmen.

Hellebust says many producers believe massive wheat sales to Moscow were initiated and sealed without any participation or knowledge by farm groups whatsoever.

"Can you imagine the U.S. selling Russia pickup trucks, for example, without letting manufacturers in on the deal from start to finish?" Hellebust said. "But that is what happened to farmers in the wheat deal."

The price of wheat paid farmers shot up in late July, the period when the size of the Soviet grain deal was becoming known. Many farmers had sold wheat in June for 75 cents less per bushel than they could have got by holding their grain until September.

Under strictly enforced marketing quotas offered by the co-op play, Hellebust said quotas limiting the amount of grain farmers could sell would be used to eliminate "abnormally excessive and abnormally deficient" supplies.

Farm Conservation Program, REAP, Gets $140 Million

Agriculture Department announced that a popular farm conservation program called REAP will be funded at $140 million next year, far less than Congress has specified. But the department also said it is leaving the door ajar for a possible increase in REAP spending later on if circumstances merit.

Under REAP—Rural Environmental Assistance Program—farmers can have half their costs paid by the government for carrying out approved conservation measures on their land.

Congress specified $225.5 million for 1973 REAP, including a $30-million package of special assistance for curbing pollution.

Administrations for some years have tried unsuccessfully to reduce or eliminate REAP but each time Congress has insisted on keeping the program and usually has put pressure on for more money to be spent.

For this year, as an example, the Nixon administration originally planned REAP at $140 million. But last January, after pressure from Congress and farm groups, the administration changed its mind and announced program spending would be the full $195 million Congress had directed.

"The $140 million level reflects the effort of the administration to hold down federal spending to help control inflation and reduce the need for a tax increase," the department said in announcing the 1973 program.

"A final decision regarding the program will not be made until determinations are made on overall spending targets."

The program, until the Nixon administration changed its name, was called the Agricultural Conservation Program or ACP. It was started in the mid-1930s primarily to help farmers rebuild drought-ravaged land and has remained a favorite of Congress ever since.

Vet Reports Sleeping Sickness In G&G Area

Dr. William Brethour, a veterinarian, reported three confirmed cases of sleeping sickness of horses in this area.

"We have laboratory reports of the animal disease center in confirmed cases of equine cephalomyelitis," Dr. Brethour said. "It is a western strain disease and not the Venezuelan strain that was of concern in Texas."

Mrs. David Pacha Wins With Timely Pork Recipe

Winner, Mrs. David Pacha, Rt. 1, Marysville: "Having read that Governor Docking has declared October Pork Month, I felt that this recipe for Mustard Pork Chops would be very appropriate."

MUSTARD PORK CHOPS

6 to 7 pork chops, 1/2 to 3/4-inch thick
Mustard
Flour
1 can chicken & rice soup
Salt & pepper to taste
Spread chops with prepared mustard then dip in flour and season. Brown in skillet on each side. Turn carefully so as not to lose mustard coating. When brown on each side place chops in baking dish and pour 1 can undiluted chicken rice soup over chops. Add 1/2 can water. Cover and bake at 325 degrees for one hour. For more than 6-7 chops use 2 cans soup and occasionally baste chops with soup mixture while baking. Also, for an easy potato casserole to feed those hungry milo harvesters try this:

OVEN-POTATO BAKE

3 large potatoes
1 large onion
6 slices bacon and bacon drippings
3 eggs
2 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon salt
Pepper to taste

Grate peeled potatoes. Fry bacon crisp. Crumble bacon and add to potatoes along with bacon grease. Beat eggs well, sprinkle in flour, salt and pepper. Blend egg mixture into potatoes and bacon. Bake in greased casserole dish at 350 degrees for one hour uncovered. This makes a 9x11 1/2-inch casserole.

I enjoy the recipes so much that I am sending one of mine. With the holidays creeping up, we'll soon have cranberries. This is well worth the calories."

CRANBERRY SALAD
Mix together and chill overnight:
1 cup raw cranberries (ground)
one-third cup sugar
1 1/2 cups miniature marshmallows
Next day add:
1 cup diced unpeeled apples
1/4 cup seedless grapes (cut up)
1/4 cup broken walnuts
Whip 1/2 cup heavy cream and fold

in. Chill till serving time.

Lettuce Provides Nutrition For Calorie Counters

A very remarkable low calorie food is lettuce. Have you checked its calorie count lately? You can't get a nourishing food that is any lower in calories. A quarter of a 4-3/4-inch head of lettuce provides only 15 calories. Lettuce is one of those "eat freely" foods even when you are trying to lose pounds. What's even more important is that it is a good-for-you food, with a useful amount of vitamins and minerals. It is also desirable because it has cellulose, or roughage, for good digestion.

Many people don't serve salads often enough for best nutrition. It's common knowledge that when fresh vegetables are eaten raw, the full benefit of the vitamins and minerals is obtained. There is no loss, as if often suffered in even the most careful cooking.

In a family where good nutrition is well understood, even the children will ask you to "pass the vitamins" when they want another serving of salad. And it's true. Salads are high vitamin dishes and lettuce leads the salad parade.

Crisphead or Iceberg lettuce is the most popular variety in America and what a lot of ways there are to serve it. The simplest serving is just to cut an Iceberg lettuce in wedges and spoon over it a favorite salad dressing. Russian, Roquerfort and sour cream dressing are just delicious in contrast to the refreshing, crisp lettuce. When you are making a chicken or tuna salad, it's pleasant change to toss small chunks of lettuce with the chicken or fish rather than serve the salad on lettuce leaves.

The Far West has been an innovator in the salad field and many of America's most famous salads have originated there. The internationally known Caesar's Salad started in San Francisco, fruit salads in fabulous variety are commonplace on the West Coast and the sensible habit of eating salad as a first course so that one is sure of getting one's vitamins while hungry, is also a California custom. That way, salad doesn't get left to one side, as is sometimes the case when a person has eaten too much of the main dish.

It may seem exotic but it's a delightfully refreshing idea to garnish soups, especially cream soups, with a little crisp, shredded lettuce just a moment before serving.

Take Guesswork Out Of Buying Paint

The next time you plan an interior painting project, estimate—don't guess. Using a few basic formulas can take all the guesswork out of buying paint. Most walls and ceilings are rectangles. Multiplying the length or height by the width will give you the area of a particular wall. Do so for all walls and add the results together for the total square feet to be covered. Deduct for windows only if they total more than 100 square feet.

Now check the statement on the paint can label for how many square feet a gallon will cover. The answer is how many gallons you will need.

Buy By The Part

Buying by the part makes good sense if there is a preference for light or dark meat. Breasts and thighs are the meatiest parts of the chicken, providing a 69 percent edible yield, opposed to 51.2 percent for chicken as a whole.

Quick Dessert

Don't leave out dessert just because time is at a premium. Dress up thick slices of pound cake by spreading each slice with butter then covering with a sprinkle of chopped walnuts, brown sugar and finely grated lemon rind. Run under the broiler for one or two minutes.

Special Meat Loaf

For an extra special meat loaf, use condensed tomato or cream of mushroom soup as the liquid in your next meat loaf. If any soup is left, heat with a little milk and serve as sauce.

Really Modernize Home With Electric Heat

Although surveys show that kitchens, bathrooms and bedrooms are the most popular areas in a home for remodeling projects, there are many other areas which can be spruced up for better living. And just as electric heat is ideal for the major rooms in your house, so is it the best way to heat other areas.

Because you open the front door several times a day, your entryway is going to get cold. One way to overcome this discomfort is by installing a fan-driven electric wall heater to provide a large amount of heat from a small source. The unit can be recessed or surface mounted and is thermostatically controlled.

If you feel your attic is valuable space in your house which is being wasted, you might consider turning it into a bedroom, playroom or hobby area. You can heat it easily without running ducts by insulating and then installing baseboard convection heaters. Warmth is then carried up by air currents from enclosed heating elements, which are attractive and quiet and take up little space.

Is your porch a great place in the summer but useless in the winter? Electric baseboard heating units can turn it into an all-year-round living area. Electric fan driven radiant units can be used with success.

This gives you some ideas where electric heating units can make every room in your livable, comfortable and warm through the year. Whatever you want to do over, you should consider electric heat. Electric makes the difference between living and really living. But you step up to the good life and check with your local utility. They'll help you get the benefits available with this modern form of heating.

Note Of Thanks

The following note was received from Mrs. Lottie Morton, recent winner of the "Our Bread" recipe contest:

"I want to thank you for the prize, the corn set.

"I think it is very nice and real useful in 'roasting season'."

Modernize Home Electric Heat

Surveys show that kitchens and bedrooms are the areas in a home for which electric heat is ideal. And just as it is ideal for the major areas, so is it the best for other areas.

When you open the front door a day, your entryway gets cold. One way to keep it warm is by installing electric heat. The unit is small and unobtrusive, and it is easily controlled. Your attic is a valuable space which is being wasted by turning on a space heater in the winter? Baseboard heating units are an all-year-round living area. Electric radiant units can be installed in any room. This gives you a better living. And just as it is ideal for the major areas, so is it the best for other areas.

After each laundering, fold and check with your utility. They'll help you step up to the modern form of electric heat. "I want to thank you for the prize, the corn set. "I think it is very real useful in season."

First Shipment Of Simmental To U.S. Completed

SAN ANTONIO, Tex.—Sixteen purebred Simmental bulls and 10 purebred females, the first reported shipment of live animals of the breed, will soon arrive at the Fitzhugh-Straus Medina Ranch here, according to a recent announcement by H. A. Fitzhugh, partner in the ranching operation.

The cattle are now being held at the Clifton, N. J., quarantine station and will be shipped to the ranch as soon as they are released. The cattle will be sold at auction at the ranch Dec. 18.

According to Fitzhugh, the completion of all health and import requirements has taken more than three years to clear the way to this importation. The Fitzhugh-Straus Medina Ranch and Peder Monson and Albert Fay of Houston are partners in the venture.

Fitzhugh said that he spent several months in Europe evaluating the various breeds of cattle available for export to the U.S., and settled on the Simmental.

He and Dr. Gottfried Averdunk, an internationally known animal scientist from Munich, and Fay, checked more than 200 Simmental herds in France, Switzerland, and Germany before selecting 36 foundation purebred Simmental females and 4 Simmental herd sires from West Germany. These were exported to Norway, where they have been kept at the 100,000-acre Eidsvold Estate, owned by Haaken Mathiesen, a partner in the venture and one of Norway's leading cattlemen.

Biggest Show Ever For Charolais At State Fair

Twenty-Six exhibitors from nine states entered 95 head in the State Fair Charolais event here Saturday in what rated as the biggest show by the breed since Charolais received its own division in the beef pavilion.

The herds came from Colorado, Kansas, Iowa, Illinois, Missouri, Nebraska, Ohio, Oklahoma and South Dakota.

Grand champion bull honors were taken by Spain Charolais Ranch of Richards, Mo., on a bull who earlier had placed as junior champion.

Reserve champion bull ribbon was won by Green Meadows herd of Bonner Springs on its entry which had topped senior bulls.

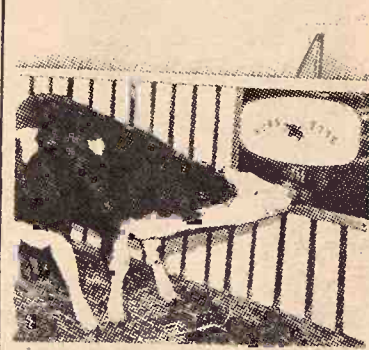

C. Joy Charolais Ranch of Shawnee Mission, Kansas, showed the grand champion female, and Green Meadows of Bonner Springs had reserve grand female.

Eaton Charolais of Louisburg won first in produce of dam class while McGinnis Charolais, Excelsior Springs, Mo., won first in junior get of sire (three animals all by one sire).

In senior get of sire—three animals with both sexes represented and all by one sire—the winner again was C. Joy Charolais Ranch.

Triangle Charolais of Kansas City, Mo., had junior champion female and McGinnis of Excelsior Springs had reserve junior champion female.

Farm Income Higher . . . But It's Already Spent

The Farm Belt is suddenly—and surprisingly—prospering this year, and the boom is sending repercussions through the rest of the economy and into the political arena.

Fueled by high meat prices and by Russians on a grain-buying binge, net farm income is expected to shoot to a record $18.4 billion or so this year, farm economists estimate. That would be an increase of over 14 percent from last year's depressed $16.1 billion, which was down 5 percent from 1970. The previous record of $17.1 billion was set in 1947.

The extra money isn't staying long in overall pockets. Farmers are buying more tractors, more land and other things for their farming operations, and they're treating themselves to new cars, new refrigerators and other extras that they've done without in recent years. Farm spending typically spurts in the fall, when many farmers get their first clear indication of how much money they will make—and this year they obviously expect to make a lot.

Farm equipment sales are skyrocketing. Through July, says the Farm and Industrial Equipment

Institute, a trade group, 31 percent more farm tractors were sold than a year ago, and unit sales of combines, corn-harvesting heads for combines and hay balers climbed 15 percent from the year-earlier period. Land prices are climbing, too, as prosperous farmers seek to expand their operations so they can make more efficient use of labor-saving machinery. Farm land is selling for an average of 8 percent more than a year ago, the Agriculture Department says, and the number of inquiries about buying land has more than doubled.

All of which means much more to the rest of the economy than many people might think. Farmers account for less than 5 percent of the U.S. population, but they comprise up to 20 percent of the domestic markets for steel, rubber, petroleum and other basic industries. Their increased spending and prosperity affects a lot of people in towns and cities—three of every 10 jobs in private business are directly or indirectly related to agriculture, economists estimate.

Farm prosperity is changing some political fortunes across the country, too. A year ago, the Democrats were counting on the slumping farm economy to be an important issue, and Republicans were worried about their prospects in the Farm Belt. But that situation seems to have changed.

The effect is apparent in a number of congressional races in rural states. A year ago, even venerable Republicans were considered possible pick-offs for Democrats. But then, as the brightening farm economy began strengthening the footholds of incumbent Republicans, some prospective Democratic challengers backed off.

In retaliation, Sen. George McGovern and other Democrats are blasting the Nixon administration for failing to alert farmers to the big exports of wheat and other grains to Russia. Instead, the Democrats charge, administration insiders tipped off grain-exporting firms, which bought up wheat from farmers for 30 cents or so a bushel less than they later got from the Russians.

So far, though, the issue doesn't seem to be catching fire, despite the disgruntlement of certain individual farmers who sold wheat at the low price.

The patterns of prosperity are shifting among farmers. In the first half of the year, ranchers and livestock feeders were making a killing as consumer demand for meat—particularly beef—pushed retail prices to record levels; in July, the average retail price of choice beef in the U.S. was a record $1.17 a pound, 13 cents more than a year earlier.

But beef prices have eased in recent weeks, and they aren't expected to rise significantly before the end of the year. "Cattle-feeding profits already are only a third to a fourth of what they were in July," says Dennis B. Sharpe, agricultural economist at the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago, "and cattle feeders can look forward to a very lean fourth quarter." Hog prices have slipped a bit, too, but pork probably will remain relatively high-priced through the winter.

As livestock profits recede, however, grain profits are increasing—primarily because of the surging sales to Russia and other foreign countries. Since the Russia grain-export deal was announced in July, wheat prices have shot up by about 70 cents a bushel—a 45 percent increase—and corn has climbed about 25 cents a bushel, or 15 percent. Most other grains are commanding higher prices than a year ago, too. One farm economist figures that the value of this year's expected crops of wheat, corn and soybeans has jumped by $900 million since August.

Such gains were unforeseen when these crops were planted, partly because price-depressing surpluses of wheat and corn were sitting around unsold. But the export deals have sopped up the wheat surfeit, and grain traders say prices for both wheat and corn should remain strong well into next year—a factor that Farm Belt observers cite in explaining why the Democrats apparently aren't attracting many converts with their Russian grain-deal issue.

Increased exports of other farm products, especially soybeans, dairy products and cattle hides, also are helping to strengthen the U.S. farm economy. In the fiscal year ended June 30, agricultural exports climbed 4 percent from the year before to a record $8 billion, and the Russian grain deal is expected to push fiscal 1973's total even higher. Devaluation of the dollar last December probably helped spur export volume because about two-thirds of exports go to countries where U.S. farm products now are cheaper than they were before devaluation.

"The grain export boom will offset the effect of the lower livestock prices," Mr. Sharpe of the Federal Reserve Bank predicts, "and farm income is likely to continue rising at a record-breaking pace throughout 1972."

The bushel basket containing a colorful collection of three varieties of apples grown in the Emrich orchard was presented to Gov. Roy L. Duncan at the Emrich Bros. Orchard Docking in Agriculture Hall on Tuesday afternoon as a feature of Governor's Day. The presentation was made by Howard Wilson, Sharon Springer, member of the Board of Fair Managers.

Emrich Bros., Orchards, has been represented at the Kansas State Fair yearly for the last 25 years. Their orchard of 50 acres includes apples, peaches, plums and cherries. Their sales are mostly retail at their orchard.

The Emrichs (Bud and Hugh) planted their first trees in 1947. They set some new trees each year to keep their trees young and in good production.

situation this year is that so many importing countries have made early commitments—that is, they bought the bread grain much earlier than is customary. An assumption could be that they bought early because they feared prices would rise later, or even that wheat would be hard to get—not only to buy but to get delivery on later.

Thus, here it is still in September and export sales are far in excess of the total for all of last year or any other year. If export sales each month of the marketing year, which ends next June 30, were to proceed at the same rate as established in July, August and September, this country certainly would sweep its wheat bins clean.

But the fact is, only a small part of the wheat sold actually has been exported. Delivery schedules are spread out over the entire Fall, Winter and Spring, it is reported at the Kansas City Board of Trade.

even higher than are now projected. It also assumes that this country will be able to ship all the grain that has been sold or will be sold. Contrariwise, congestion at some ports, even before the corn, milo and soybean harvests are in full swing, is creating some worries on that score.

But if the carry-over (surplus) is around the current USDA figure of 534 billion bushels next July 1, it won't be the first time this nation's supplies were down to that level.

As recently as 1968, the carry-over stood at 539.4 million bushels; it was only 425 million in 1967, and was 535.2 million in 1966. Those were years when this country was making huge gifts of wheat to India.

In contrast, the carry-overs were well over a billion bushels from 1959 through 1963. Those were years

The U.S. Department of Agriculture, which has issued a revised evaluation of the wheat situation, following release of its usual situation report in August, now is estimating the carry-over next July 1—when the harvest of the new crop should be rolling—at 534 million bushels.

That is just about what this country uses for food each year.

To arrive at the carry-over figure, the USDA estimates exports at 1,125 million bushels, and domestic usage (food, seed and livestock feed) at 767 million bushels. Total starting supply this year was 2,426 million bushels, which included a carry-over of 865 million bushels and this year's crop.

Already, some people in the grain trade are contending the U.S.D.A.'s projected carry-over for July 1, 1973, is too high. This opinion is based on an assumption that exports will be when the world surplus was more commonly used than carry-over to describe stocks on hand as of July 1. Back in 1952, the carry-over was down to 256 million bushels.

Never has there been a year when this country didn't grow some wheat. The crop is produced in virtually every state in the Union. The smallest crop since 1950 was 937 million bushels in 1956, a year of severe drought in the Plains. That year, Kansas produced only 143 million bushels, and the next year that harvest was just over 100 million bushels. This year, Kansas produced 309 million bushels, and last year 313 million. The nation this year harvested 1,560 million bushels, 80 million under the 1971 record.

With current relatively high prices as a stimulus, it is freely predicted the acreage seeded this fall to the winter wheat crop will be increased over a year ago.

1924 Tractor And Owner Find Place In Movie

DORRANCE—A tractor belonging to Elmo Mahoney, Dorrance, in Russell County, became an unscheduled participant in the movie "Paper Moon" being filmed in Kansas.

Mahoney said the production crew found his 12-ton 1924 40-80 Avery gasoline tractor while shooting in the Mahoney family home in Dorrance and promptly wrote a new scene to include the tractor.

Mahoney said it took 6 takes to get the scene because "they weren't used to a tractor that went only 3 miles per hour."

The tractor sported one piece of equipment that wasn't even an optional accessory in 1924—a 2-way radio that allowed Mahoney to hear cues over the chugging of the engine.

The tractor was appropriate for the movie, set in the early 1930's. Mahoney said the machine was last used for farming about that time, when it powered a thresher.

THIS IS A HOMEBRED HERD

All but 22 head of the older cows carry the "Roberts Prefix." Many of the young cows, four years and under, are sired by "Heersche Skyhawk" 1501310, a son of "Netherland Tidy Skyhawk", G.M., and out of a daughter of "Elsie Leader." These are sharp, excellent producers with good, high udders.

The young cattle are sired by A.I. bulls — "Piney Hill Majority," "Puge Sound R. Citation," "St. Croixco Ivanhoe," "Texal Citation Dynamo," "Carnation Pilot Heman," "Paclamar Goliath" and "Paclamar Truene Needle."

The Springer heifers, many fresh by sale day, are cow-size. This dispersal will be a "Heifer Hunter's Paradise." They are big, well grown, and in volume — both registered and grades.

All cattle calfhood vaccinated, with interstate health papers. We extend a cordial invitation to visit the farm and inspect these cattle before the sale.

Newton Finds Workers For Area Jobs

Kansas' economy has made a dramatic turnabout from two years ago when a slumping aerospace industry at Wichita sent unemployment rates soaring, and nowhere in the state is the upswing any more noticeable than in this south-central community of 18,000.

Newton, traditionally a quiet agricultural town 25 miles north of Wichita, is experiencing a boom which has made it something of an economic oasis and the envy of many Midwestern communities.

Early last month, jobs were going begging. Estimated unemployment dipped below 2 percent, and light manufacturing companies new to Newton and Harvey County or those which were expanding, couldn't find workers.

The result was a hastily arranged "job fair" in reverse.

Instead of the usual job fair to try to find jobs for workers, Newton decided to find workers for the vacant jobs.

The Newton industrial area, including Hesston nine miles to the northwest and other outlying Harvey County communities, had 150 immediate job openings, plus more than 200 jobs which would be open by the end of the year.

With Richard Chamberlain, executive vice-president of the Newton Chamber of Commerce, and Eugene Ratzloff, director of the state's job opportunity center in Newton, spearheading the effort, nine employers were lined up to meet job seekers and the state employment security division represented 15 more employers.

The response was almost overwhelming.

There were 242 job applicants registered, and Chamberlain estimated another 75 to 100 didn't get registered.

Of those who registered, 156 were men and 86 were women; 165 were unemployed and 77 underemployed; 72 were under the age of 22 and 52 were over 45, and 59 were military service veterans.

The applicants came mostly from Harvey County, but 74 were from outside the county, including some from Oklahoma, Missouri and Nebraska as well as Kansas.

Twenty-four of the applicants were hired on the spot, 90 more were lined up to go to work within 10 days and 45 were referred to employers who were represented at the job fair but didn't have a representative there authorized to do any immediate hiring.

The only known shortage of workers which became evident at the job fair is in the need for welders.

Chamberlain said four area firms need welders of all kinds. He estimated 30 to 40 welders are needed by Hesston Corporation, which manufactures specialized farm equipment; Full Vision Inc., which makes farm equipment cabs and air conditioning units; Foreman Manufacturing Company, which makes mobile homes, and Excel Industries Inc., which also makes farm equipment.

Reason for the economic boom is an influx of new light manufacturing concerns as well as expansion of existing plants—eight new firms and seven plant expansions in the past year in the county.

Hesston Corporation, one of the nation's biggest independent farm equipment manufacturers, has provided the major industrial growth in the area. It has two new buildings under construction to house new production lines for its unique haying equipment, which is in great demand.

Larry Wilson, employment manager for Hesston Corporation, wanted to fill 40 jobs and said the firm expects to hire about 50 people a month through the next several months.

He was looking for foremen, welders, drill press operators and fabrication machine operators. "We are willing to train them," Wilson said.

Besides the farm equipment manufacturers, the Newton area has three mobile home plants and makers of mobile home parts, a firm which makes aluminum doors and windows, a new metal fabrication plant, a company which processes catfish and a company which turns out foam padding for furniture.

About 1,000 new jobs have been created in Harvey County in the last 12 months, and more are in prospect.

"What's happened is we've got so many jobs and all of a sudden the college students who took up the slack during the summer are gone," said Chamberlain.

"And, construction has gone hog wild. We'll have over $10 million in construction this year. We're building a new high school, a new library and a new 56-acre park. We've built well over 100 housing units in the last year. We're building housing as fast as it can be put together."

Newton's population has mushroomed by 2,000 or more in the last couple of years, in spite of the fact that the number of railroad workers has declined over the years to about 900 now. Newton has been a major east-west terminal of the Santa Fe.

Chamberlain said the present Newton boom dates back 18 months to a meeting of business and community leaders. "Basically, the leadership decided where it was going and got started promoting the area. We also worked hard to get a 5-million-dollar school bond issue through, involving 300 citizens in the effort, and it passed easily."

"I think, basically, it's pride in the community. Citizens see things go right and it gains momentum. They saw what a concerted effort could accomplish on the bond issue."

Harvey County's unemployment rate, which was about 7 percent three years ago and was 4.3 percent in 1971, is now estimated at 1.7 percent to 2 percent. Official figures won't be available until the end of the year.

The state's unemployment rate is 4.9 percent—down from 6 percent not long ago—and Wichita's jobless rate is 5 percent—after climbing over 10 percent two years ago during the height of the aerospace slowdown.

Newton and Harvey county have concentrated on hiring their own people rather than any massive effort to lure commuter workers up from Wichita.

Besides, Wichita aircraft workers have been reluctant to leave their homes and have generally waited out the slowdown. Some were alerted to a possible recall by airplane manufacturers the day of Newton's job fair.

"We don't mind being a bedroom community for Wichita," Chamberlain said, "but we want our own economic base."

"We feel we've got an obligation to provide our own young people a chance to stay home and find employment."

Railroad Requests To Close Depots In Kansas

The Kansas Corporation Commission has rejected a plea by Missouri Pacific Railroad to close a series of communities in the western Kansas by a agency.

The railroad had petitioned the commission in May for permission to close depots at Stockton, Alton, Osborne, Cawker, and Glen Elder.

The communities would be served by a mobile agent headquartered in Downs.

After a series of meetings with affected communities, the KCC said "no."

Federal Milk Marketing Orders Change "Good Ole Days"

Some people yearn for the "good ole days"—when a good hamburger cost about 10 cents and a frosted root beer in an ice cold mug was a nickel. But they would just as soon forget about other problems which accompanied these long-forgotten bargains—like fluctuating milk prices, inferior quality milk and milk shortages.

As early as 1900, erratic and widely fluctuating milk prices had become a serious and characteristic problem of fluid milk markets. Following World War I, many farmers formed cooperatives in an effort to stabilize milk prices through collective bargaining with handlers.

But these collective organizations were frequently disrupted by a minority of dairy farmers and dealers who continued to trade in milk without regard to the bargaining agreements. When the depression of the early 1930's broke down most bargaining arrangements and caused farm milk prices to collapse, farmers turned to the U.S. Department of Agriculture for help.

Under the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, the Secretary of Agriculture was empowered to help stabilize market conditions by issuing Federal orders (regulations enforceable by law) which apply to handlers of milk and milk products.

"Federal milk marketing orders establish minimum prices paid to dairy farmers supplying the market area according to the way or form in which the milk is utilized," said U.

Grant Grayson, Milk Marketing Administrator, USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service, Overland Park, Kansas.

The milk marketing office in Overland Park administers the Kansas City Milk Marketing order and provides various services to milk producers to assure thirsty consumers an adequate supply of clean, wholesome milk, at all times.

There are currently 62 federal milk marketing orders being administered in the U.S. "Most milk marketing orders are found in large metro areas where milk handlers and processors are located," Grayson said.

About 80 percent of the Grade A milk produced in the U.S. is marketed under federal milk marketing orders.

"The Kansas City Milk Marketing order plays an important role in Eastern Kansas and Western Missouri markets because of the constant demand for milk and milk products by consumers in this area," Grayson said.

As for the good ole days, Grayson said there have been tremendous changes in the dairy industry since the first milk marketing order was issued in the 1930's.

"There are fewer dairy farms and fewer processing plants but the size of each operation has increased tremendously," Grayson said. "Technology has increased the farmer's ability to handle larger herds and also increased the productivity of milk cows, he explained.

Grayson said one of the greatest changes to occur in milk marketing in the past 20 years has been technological advancements which allow milk, a highly perishable commodity, to be moved greater distances.

"This increased ability to haul milk over greater distances has resulted in a more dependable milk supply for consumers and has allowed processors to consolidate processing facilities while still serving a large market area," Grayson said.

Thirty years ago, some milk processing plants just bottled milk while others made milk by-products such as ice cream, cottage cheese, butter, and heavy cream. "Now there are 'full service' processing plants which can process most milk products as well as bottle milk at one central plant," Grayson said.

Consumers are most interested in the availability, quality and prices of milk and milk products. "Federal milk marketing orders create an environment where quality milk standards can be maintained and where adequate supplies of milk and milk products will be available," Grayson said. "So you see—it's the consumer who ultimately benefits from federal milk marketing orders."

October 10, 1972
SALE EVERY Thursday

We sold over 2,500 head of cattle at our sale last Thursday, Oct. 5. While our market was very strong to active throughout our sale, we are still needing more 400-700 pound yearling and feeder cattle, as we have strong demand for these cattle.
If you have cattle you figure on selling, give us a call or just bring them in. You can always depend on good market with plenty of buyers at Manhattan.
Following is a partial listing of the sale last Thursday:

SHOWING FITTING KING

Randy Bass, a 15-year-old Dickinson county youth, was grand champion showing and fitting entrant in the 4-H swine show at the Kansas State Fair. Randy also showed the champion Yorkshire gilt. A member of the Holland Sunflowers 4-H Club, he is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Beetch of Carlton.

If It's Not DES, It's Antibiotics

The U. S. Department of Agriculture today warned livestock and poultry producers—particularly veal calf producers—against administering excessive doses of antibiotics to their stock before marketing.

Officials emphasized that livestock and poultry producers should be especially careful to observe prescribed dosage levels and withdrawal requirements for these drugs, particularly during the approaching winter weather when the health of livestock and poultry—particularly young stock like veal calves—is of greater concern.

USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (APHIS) issued the warning after laboratory analyses of livestock tissue samples run by the Federal Meat and Poultry Inspection Program revealed residues of Streptomycin ranging from 3.5 parts-per-million to 26.3 parts-per-million in 13 samples. The residues were found in kidney tissue of 11 calves; kidney, liver, and muscle tissue of 1 calf; and kidney tissue of one chicken. The tolerance level for this drug is zero.

APHIS said the 13 above-tolerance samples were among a total of 430 calf and sheep samples and 423 chicken and turkey samples collected during the period from Jan. 1 through Aug. 31 of this year. The tests are part of a continuing statistical sampling and monitoring program for seven antibiotics: Penicillin; Streptomycin; Erythromycin; Neomycin; Tetracycline; Oxytetracycline; and Chlortetracycline. Low-level tolerances exist for each of these except Streptomycin. The tolerance levels vary with the species of animal and specific type of tissue involved.

USDA explained that dosages, withdrawal requirements, and tolerance levels for antibiotics for livestock and poultry are set by the Federal Food and Drug Administration. The 13 violations discovered have been turned over to the FDA for appropriate action, USDA reported.

"SOIL SAVER"

A NEW TWIST TO TILLAGE! A totally new and different approach to soil management! The Glencoe "SOIL SAVER" creates a non-compacted, "ridged" field that just naturally protects against erosion by wind and water! Instead of simply turning over the soil and leaving it bared to the elements the "SOIL SAVER" opens up the land down deep to catch and hold available moisture. Controls runoff, holds and stores rainwater for thirsty crops — soil surface is left open and blended with crop residues that protect precious topsoil! Cutting "slicers" cut up heavy stalks, leaves and root crowns and leave the soil ready to be turned under by the helical blades following. Designed so you can work your stubble immediately after harvest, generally without chopping or shredding. See our display today!

Butz Describes Pluses in Agricultural Exports is more or less official now. That possible dream of exporting $10 ion a year from U.S. farms and ches is being targeted by the partment of Agriculture, though al 1972-73 may not be the year in ich the bull's eye is scored.

Farm exports of $10 billion are thin reach," Earl Butz, griculture Secretary, asserted.
he market is there—and we have farmers to produce for it."

Butz cautioned, however, the goal not be attained "without a standing of what such an historic ievement would mean for United tes farmers, workers, taxpayers citizens."

Butz zeroed in on four reasons
ered as factors in the recovery:
mand for soybeans, the 1970
m Bill, easing of U.S. shipping ments and the current series of es to the Soviet Union.

Never in my experience in public vice, in farm policy, in politics in government have I seen such olid farm accomplishment, which arly benefits so many, be so fairly and inaccurately distorted people who don't know any ter, as well as by many who do," tz declared.

describing himself as the "far-rs' hired man on the Potomac," Z, said he was compelled to set record straight so that the farr would not become an innocent pegoat in either political fishness or public misunstanding. The U.S.S.R. sales, he d, accomplished these ob-ives:

Increased the value of farmers'
ps by nearly $1 billion.
Reduced stocks of grain in the to eliminate the alternatives of ger surpluses, lower farm prices tighter controls on farmers.
Reduced the cost to taxpayers so t the cost of the export payments the sale to Russia are offset by lar savings of about four to one.
those facts could overcome the sent controversy, Butz added, n the nation could get on with the
of sighting in the $10 billion goal, some $2 billion from the current el.

"Without a doubt," he said, "food duction is one of the great areas ere the United States has a clear comparative advantage over other ntries. We can produce food, sell and transport it to other countries less than it would cost for them to duce it. Most other countries clearly are at a comparative disadvantage in food production."

The secretary emphasized that our $8 billion farm export level provided a $2 billion net contribution to the U.S. balance of payments.
Reaching a plateau of $10 billion approximately would double that contribution.

"Consumers-taxpayers would benefit from a $10 billion achievement because it would mean lower farm program costs and lower surplus storage costs," he continued. "Labor would benefit because added trade means more jobs and more work. The economy would benefit because it would be strengthened by an increase in business activity."

The higher trade also would be appreciated by farmers, who like situations in which they can produce more. Among other benefits, Butz
would reduce the exodus from the farm countryside.

"In fact," he said, "in the last four years as export markets have expanded, we have cut back drastically the decline in farm numbers. I'm really talking about an expanding agriculture rather than a shrinking agriculture—an agriculture that will provide economic vitality for farm communities, the most important factor in sound rural development."

KANSAS TIMBER

These railroad cars on a siding in Belvue prove that there is a lot of Kansas Timber heading for saw mills. The question is, did the man who owned this lumber get a fair price? Extension Foresters at Kansas State seem to think that the farmer will let persons have the trees for clearing his land.

Kansas Reports First Screwworm Case In A Decade

Officials of the National Screwworm Eradication Center report the present outbreak of screwworm infection has spread into Kansas.

The report was the first in this state since 1962.

The center said fertile screwworm flies have moved northward 750 miles since they crossed the U.S.-Mexico border in January and began their worst seige on the Southwest in a decade.

The latest case was diagnosed in Seward County, just north of the Oklahoma border.

Some 4,468 cases of the flesh-eating pest were reported this week making the 1972 total 70,583.

Irrigation Water Usage Expected To Increase

By the turn of the century, more than 85 percent of the total projected water requirement for Kansas will be used for irrigation, according to the State Water Resources Board.

A 118-page study compiled by the board's staff over the last eight years shows that by the year 2000, Kansas will be using about five trillion gallons of water a year.

Of that amount, irrigation will account for 85 percent, livestock 2 percent, industry 9 percent, and people will use the remaining 2 percent.

In 1965, the base year for the study, agriculture in Kansas took about 70 percent of the one trillion gallons of water used in the state.

"The tremendous demand for irrigation water occurs and will continue to occur in the northwest, southwest and south-central parts of Kansas," said Keith S. Krause, board executive director.

Krause said that in 1965, 13 counties in southwest Kansas accounted for 46 percent of the total water used within the state. That percentage is expected to drop to 36 percent by the turn of the century with the northwest part of the state expected to require 18 percent of the total state requirements. By the year 2000, water use in agriculture is expected to increase 4.6 times over 1965 levels. Water use for all other purposes is expected to increase only about 1.6 times.

AUCTION

67 ACRES AND HOUSE

Northwest Edge Of The City Of

ALMA, KANSAS

The following described property will be sold by auction to the highest and best bidder, with no reserve whatsoever, on premises located 3 blocks west of the north main street blinker in Alma, Kansas, and then 2 blocks north, on

Monday, October 23

Starting At 2:30 p.m.

TRACT 1 - 14 acres - Fronts approximately 387 feet along the west side of Nebraska Street (which is the west city limits of Alma) and extends one quarter mile to the west. Includes a 15 ton livestock scale with 20' platform and scale pen, cattle sorting working alleys, pens, fence line feed bunks, 12' stock water and underground water lines.

TRACT 2 - 39 Acres - Fronts approximately one quarter mile along the west side of Nebraska Street and extends one quarter mile west. Joins tracts 1 and 3 on the north side. Includes 20x70 frame hay barn, old livestock barn, loading chute, pens, alley, fence-line feed bunks, trench silo, pond, and underground water lines.

TRACT 3 - Two bedroom home - Full basement, kitchen, living room, dining room, front and back porches, forced air heat. On city sewer. City water available across street. Faces east and fronts on west side of Nebraska Street for 150'. One story, good repair.

TRACT 4 - 13 Acres - Lays 10 rods north of Tract 2. 30 rods by 78 rods long on the north side and 60 rods long on the south side.

SELLING ORDER - The tracts will be sold in the order listed above. They will not be offered together as one unit.

TERMS - 20 percent of the purchase price to be paid down day of sale, balance upon delivery of merchantable Abstract of Title and Warranty Deed.

POSSESSION - November 24, 1972.

TAXES - 1972 taxes and prior taxes to be paid by seller.

INSPECTION - The house on Tract 3 will be open for inspection Sunday, October 15 from 3 to 5 p.m. Shown at other times by appointment only by contacting Jim Kirkemine, auctioneer, broker, Topeka, phone 357-7161.

ATTRactions - These acreages represent typical Flint Hills beauty and a scenic setting for residential building. They also represent the choice direction for expansion of much needed and desired home building sites for the City of Alma.

CITY UTILITIES - Alma has a recently constructed sewage treatment plant as well as a new water supply reservoir up in the hills. Natural gas is also available.

IDEAL AREA CENTER - Alma is on US 99 and 3 miles south of 70 and within easy driving distance of Manhattan with KSU and several small industries, Wamego with a new packing plant in near future, and Topeka with the state capital and large and small industries. These make Alma the ideal place to live. In the trend of the past few years continues in the years just ahead it appears that these acres will have a very strong increase in demand.

Drive out and see for yourself. We think you will agree that these acres at Alma are ideal for homes and for your investment as well.

Supermarkets Widen Beef Price Gap Between Producers & Consumers

A recent government report pointed out that supermarkets widened the beef-price gap between producers and consumers to a record margin in August, thus passing along to housewives the declines in cattle prices.

The USDA report said, the average retail price of beef dropped 5 cents per pound from a record high in July of more than $1.17 per pound to just under $1.16.

While cattle producers saw their share slide down 8.5 percent in August, middlemen, representing packing plants and retail stores, reaped some complex figures. In August, they show a pound of choice beef (a major meter of family food buying) had a "farm value" in just of 71 cents a pound when sold to supermarkets. That compared with 77.5 cents in July.

Even that figure is not what cattle producers got for live animals since they nearly 2.3 pounds of on-the-farm beef to make one pound of supermarket beef. But the figure represents a producer's share of the housewife spends at meat markets.

The report showed that the total cost of the theoretical amount of food an average family will eat in a year declined slightly in August from the record $1,322 peak in July.

The decline was one dollar and was attributed mainly to the lower retail prices for beef and poultry. Slightly higher prices were shown for some items, including pork, which has been at record highs both on the producer's end and at the meat counter.

The food-for-a-year cost index was 4.5 percent higher than a year ago. Looking at the August price spread between the farm value and the retail price of beef, the report shows a 5 cents per pound increase from July.

Broken down further, the producer-to-housewife beef spread showed the retailer's margin was another record of 37.3 cents per pound in August, compared with 33 cents in July.

The producer-to-wholesaler share in August was 7.15 cents, up from 6.8 cents in July. Earlier this year, however, the carcass spread was higher—reported at 8.1 cents last May.

Donald Rumsfeld, director of the Cost of Living Council, told food retailers in August that the wholesale price of beef began to decline in July and that the council "expected to see a corresponding reduction" in supermarkets.

Rumsfeld repeated the expectation on Sept. 7 and said government reviews would be started to monitor beef prices in major food chains. Although this most recent USDA report showed that food costs dropped slightly in August, late September reports from the Bureau of Labor Statistics showed retail grocery prices during the month rose 0.2 percent.

The USDA report indicated that the difference between the two indexes is due mainly to lower prices for beef during the latter part of August.

"Market-basket prices—are for the entire month while BLS prices are for the first week of the month," the report said.

rainfall. The process is used commonly in SCS watershed programs which are designed to reduce soil erosion on farm land.

Critics say SCS too often applies channelization ruthlessly, thus causing damage to plant and wildlife ecology. Some groups, including the Natural Resources Defense Council, Inc., have gone to court in an effort to force SCS to tone down its channelization policy.

But Kenneth E. Grant, administrator of the Agriculture Department agency, says in the current issue of "Soil Conservation" magazine that channelization has been overplayed.

"Too often, channelization has been treated by its critics as if it were a total program," Grant said. "It isn't."

Grant said channel work is "just one ingredient" of water management in a small watershed project, and not every one at that.

Some critics have said that SCS plans to channelize some 150,000 miles of natural, fulltime streams in the United States. Grant said "that figure has no basis in fact" and that the public has heard little about the benefits of channelization.

"One benefit is that you get excess water off agricultural land—and other lands, for that matter," Grant said. "If you kept three feet of water out of your living room during Hurricane Agnes, I'd call that a benefit."

Grant's comments were published as a question-answer interview with Hubert Kelly, information director of SCS.

Hog Price Trend Down f Numbers Increase

Farmers are planning to increase hog production substantially in 1973. This fact was shown in the recent USDA report, Hogs and Pigs, which was based on a survey of hog producers at the first of September. The report was based on information obtained from most of the larger hog producers and a representative group of other farmers.

If hog producers do increase hog production about as they reported, hog prices will be trending downward by this time next year. Even so, we expect hog production to be a profitable business for at least another 12 months.

Here are the most important facts shown in the report, together with their expected consequences in hog slaughter and prices:

HOGS AND PIGS ON HAND

The number of market hogs and pigs on farms in 10 leading states September 1 was estimated at nearly 39.9 million head, down 2 percent from one year earlier. The number kept for breeding was listed at 6.6 million—up 5 percent.

The number of market hogs weighing over 180 pounds was listed at 5.6 million—8 percent less than last year. Most of those hogs have already been marketed, or will be shipped by October 10.

Hogs weighing 120 to 180 pounds numbered 8.4 million—down 6 percent from 1971. They will provide most of the market supply during October and November.

Hogs weighing 60 to 120 pounds were estimated at 10.2 million, the same as a year ago. They will supply the market from late November to early January.

Pigs weighing less than 60 pounds numbered 15.6 million—up 2 percent. They will reach the market in January, February, and March.

Hog prices—barrows and gilts at the seven markets—averaged about $22.40 from October through March last year. Judging from recent market conditions, prices will average considerably higher during the same months this year.

FARROWING INTENTIONS

When the USDA survey was made at the first of September, hog producers reported that they planned to have about 2.5 million sows to farrow during this fall quarter (September-October-November). This number would be 2 percent more than the number farrowed a year ago. Pigs from these litters will be marketed mostly in April-May-June next spring. The farrowings now planned for this fall quarter are 4 percent more than farmers reported at the first of June.

Hog producers also indicated that they intended to farrow nearly 2.0 million sows during the coming winter quarter (December-January-February). That would be 7 percent more than the number farrowed during those months last winter. If farmers carry out these plans, there will be a corresponding increase in market receipts next summer, and hog prices would probably fluctuate in the middle 20's.

LOOKING BEYOND THE REPORT

The USDA did not ask farmers about their plans for sow farrowings after March 1. But it seems to be reasonable to expect that farrowings in the March-April-May quarter will also be up about 8 percent. Such an increase in farrowings would make market supplies close to the heavy volumes of 1971 and 1970. Prices, however, should hold up better than in either of those years, because of the improvement in the consumer demand for meats.

The biggest uncertainty in the hog outlook may be the retail pricing of meats. During the past year some unusual restraints (public opinion and government regulations) stimulated the sales of pork and thus strengthened the demand for hogs. A return to more traditional retail pricing policies would tend to weaken the demand for hogs.

Illegal Residues Of Streptomycin Found In Calves

Government meat inspectors have found illegal residues of streptomycin in some veal calf carcasses tested for antibiotics this year.

The Agriculture Department said the drug, commonly used in livestock feed as a growth stimulant, showed up in 12 of 264 calves slaughtered for the consumer veal market.

In 11 animals, streptomycin residues were found only in kidney tissue. It was in the liver and red meat as well as in the kidneys of the other, officials said.

The department started on Jan. 1 to keep track of antibiotics found in specific animals and poultry slaughtered for the consumer market.

No drug residues were found among 166 sheep and 193 turkeys that were checked, officials said. One chicken among 228 was found to contain streptomycin.

The department said tests on other beef cattle and hogs will be run next year.

Streptomycin is among a group of antibiotics used as feed additives in livestock, dairy and poultry production. It helps prevent bacterial and disease development.

Although the Food and Drug Administration allows "tolerance" amounts of residues in food products for some antibiotics, there is none allowed for streptomycin. The department said the findings will be turned over the FDA for "appropriate action" against producers.

The FDA has proposed banning animal feed antibiotics unless manufacturers can show evidence humans do not develop resistance to drugs used to treat human ills.

They said there may be evidence that animals which are treated with antibiotics develop resistant bacteria which then may be passed along to humans.

and the breed associations came to $1,927. All entries were farrowed after Feb. 1.

The performance ribbon and prize money were won by the Thiele Pig Ranch of Norton. Second place went to John Weir Jr., of Geuda Springs, third to Ralph Palmer, Arkansas City.

Alfred Friesen of Meade had his placing in the carcass division with Huey Grey of Greensburg second and Galen Harms of Whitewater third.

John Weir topped live placing division. Sleicher Duroc farm, Abilene was second, Warren Wendor of Peabody third.

Wilson Asford of Bronson scored best gain placing with Phil Rogers, Maple City second, and Melvin Geisler of Alma third.

HELPING EACH OTHER

Newton Jennings, pictured above, and Harold Harrison, have been bucking bales. These bales belong to Harrison. That morning they were filling a silo that belongs to Jennings. "When you have two men on jobs like this, things get done faster," Jennings said. They both farm east of Manhattan.

Kansas Farm Index Up Moderately

Prices received by Kansas farmers at mid-September 1972 were up a little from August this year and moderately above September last year, according to the Kansas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service.

The index of prices received for all farm products was 313 percent of the 1910-14 base period, compared with 299 in August and 254 in September 1971. Principal increases from August were in wheat, corn, sorghum grain, and eggs.

On the other hand, prices of beef cattle, hogs, and soybeans were down slightly from the previous month. Compared with a year ago, prices for wheat, beef cattle, hogs and wool were up sharply, and those for sorghum grain, corn, soybeans, and lambs up moderately, but egg prices were down slightly.

The crop price index was 212 percent of the 1910-14 base period at mid-September, 28 points above August this year and 59 points above September 1971.

Wheat at mid-September averaged $1.83 per bushel, 27 cents above August and 57 cents above September 1971.

Corn was worth $1.25 per bushel, 5 cents above a month earlier and 14 cents above a year ago.

Barley at 93 cents per bushel was 1 cent above August but 3 cents below a year earlier.

Sorghum grain brought $1.93 per cwt., compared with $1.85 the previous month and $1.76 the previous year.

Soybeans averaged $3.15 per bushel, 15 cents below August this year, but 33 cents above September 1971.

The livestock and livestock products price index at mid-September was 428 percent of the 1910-14 base period, compared with 431 a month ago and 369 a year ago.

The meat animal price index was 532 percent in September, down 8 points from August, but 87 points above September last year.

Beef cattle brought $33.90 per cwt., 50 cents below a month ago but $4.30 above a year ago.

Hog prices averaged $27.40 per cwt., 30 cents below a month earlier but $9.30 above September 1971.

The dairy price index was 350 in September, compared with 344 both last month and a year ago.

A preliminary wholesale milk price of $5.90 was 20 cents above the previous month and 10 cents above the previous year.

Eggs averaged 22 cents per dozen, 2 cents above a month ago but 1 cent below a year ago.

Prices paid by farmers for protein supplements and mixed feeds were up from September 1971.

The index of prices received by the Nation's farmers for farm products at mid-September was 326 percent of the 1910-14 base period, up 1 point from mid-August and up 44 points from September 1971.

Price increases from August were noted for all small grains, corn, sorghum grain, cloves, milk, and eggs. Prices were lower for soybeans, beef cattle, and lambs. The index of prices paid by farmers for commodities and services (including interest, taxes, and wages) was 437 percent, up 4 points from mid-August and 24 points above a year ago.

The parity ratio in September was 75, unchanged from August, but 11 points from September 1971.

HAULING THE MILO

Fred Kilian, Wamego, right, and Francis Wiley, Lawrence, were cutting milo. Kilian met Wiley through NFO and hired him to cut his milo this fall while he put it in the bin. Kilian is farming 285 acres and Wiley has over 700 acres.

October Dates Mark Start Of Duck Season

PRATT—Ducks and geese are winging their way to Kansas about a week and a half earlier than normal this year, building chances for an outstanding waterfowl season.

The split goose season runs from Oct. 14 through Dec. 10 and Dec. 18 through Dec. 31. The split duck season, in which Kansas hunters will use the 100-point bag limit system for the first time, gets underway Oct. 21 and continues to Dec. 10, then re-opens Dec. 13, continuing through Dec. 31 east of U.S. 283 and to Jan. 20 west of U.S. 283.

Marvin Schwilling, Great Bend, waterfowl biologist for the Kansas Forestry, Fish and Game Commission, has received reports from several other states that waterfowl are coming from Canada in larger numbers earlier than for the last several years.

"Early bad weather in Canada is triggering the migration," said Schwilling. "And that could mean pretty good news for Kansas hunters."

Schwilling explained if the birds arrive before the hunting seasons and are given the opportunity to settle down, chances are better that hunting pressure will not force them out as early as in the past.

"Adding to chances that the birds will stay around longer, Kansas has a substantial to excellent water and food supply over much of the state," he said.

Still, Schwilling speaks in cautious optimism about the coming waterfowl seasons. He is reserved because an abnormally early winter in Kansas could drive waterfowl further south ahead of normal, just as they are coming early to Kansas from Canada. He mentioned also the Marais des Cygnes Waterfowl Management Area in eastern Kansas could use some good rains to better hold the coming flocks.

The overall duck population appears to be about the same high level as last year's record breaker, according to Schwilling. He said goose numbers have remained at the same stable level as they have for several years.

Kansas waterfowl hunters will have two firsts to reckon with this year.

One is that redheads and canvasbacks are closed to hunting.

The other is the 100-point bag limit system. Under this system, point values are assigned to different species and sexes of ducks, including: 90 pointers, mallard hen, wood duck and hooded mergansers; 20 pointers, mallard drake, black duck, pintail hen and ring-necked duck; and 10 pointers, all other ducks.

When the point value of the last bird shot is added to the point value of previously taken ducks and the total reaches or exceeds 100 points, the bag limit is reached and the hunter is through for the day. The possession limit of ducks is what legally could have been taken in two days.

It is possible, for example, for a hunter to have a total daily bag of 180 points if he takes two 90 pointers. Or, a bag could total just 100 points with a take of one 90 pointer and a 10 pointer, or five 20 pointers, and so on.

"There is an astronomical number of combinations of different species and sexes of ducks that could

Grass & Grain
October 10, 1972

comprise a legal bag limit," said Schwilling. "It all hinges on the bird shot, reaching or exceeding points."

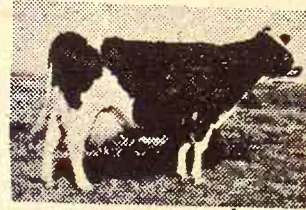

The Kansas Forestry, Fish and Game Commission has published publications which will provide hunters with excellent duck identification guides and a point system discussion. They are available upon request by contacting Commission headquarters at P. O. Box 100, Pratt, Kansas 67124.

The daily bag and possession limit of geese is four and four, but can include more than two Canadian geese, one white-fronted goose, or one white front and one Canadian together; and one Ross' goose. Dec. 3 the daily bag limit of Canada is one with a possession of two.

CORPORATE FARM GROWTH NIL IN 12-MONTH REPORT

Net acquisition of farmland acreage by public corporations in the latest 12-month report was nil. They purchased about 200,000 acres of farmland—less than 1 percent of the total transferred acreage—also sold the same amount in the year ending March 1972. No alarm in those statistics.

Sterile Flies Combat Screwworm

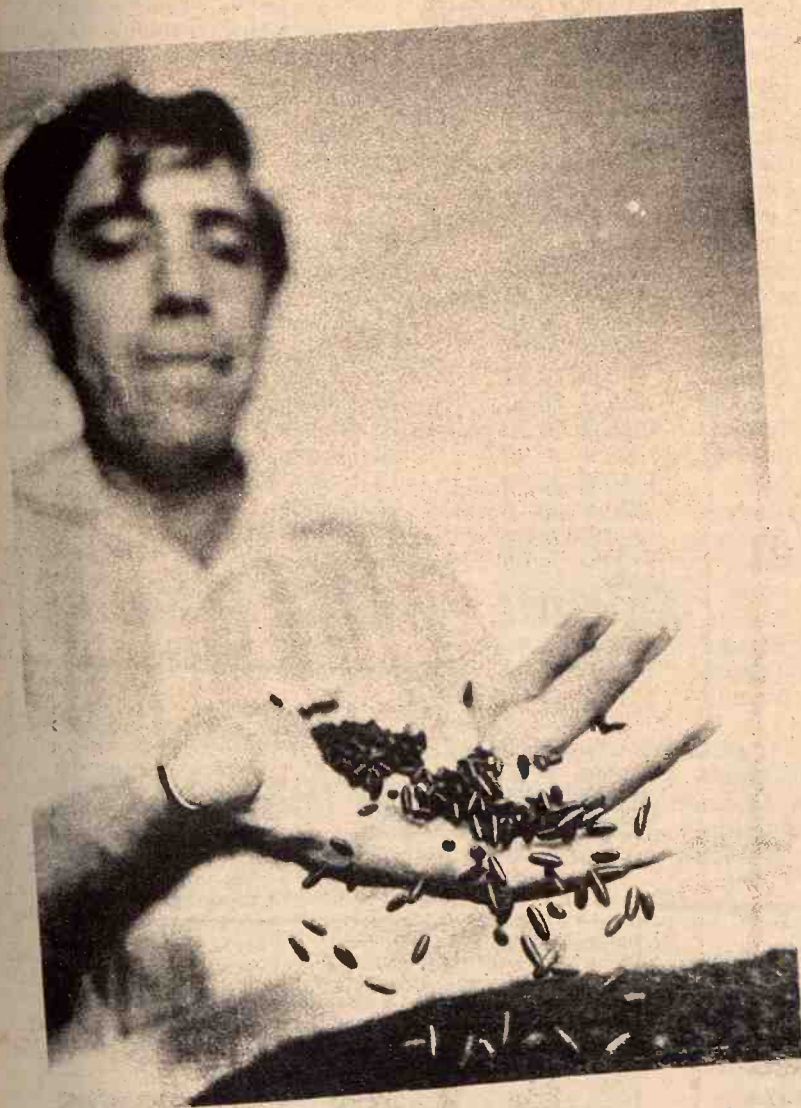

Screwworm has seldom been a problem for G&G area live-stockmen, except for the possibility that the voracious pest could be brought in from imports from the southwest.

The worst outbreak since a federal program was started in 1962, however, has put a wing of USDA working overtime in controlling screwworm from driving northward from Mexico. USDA regulations affect livestock shipments in the screwworm-infested areas of Texas, Oklahoma, Puerto Rico, Arizona, New Mexico and California. They require that all livestock moving from these infested areas into or thru the southeast portion of the U. S. be inspected, treated and certified free of screwworms within 72 hours of shipment.

Evidence of screwworm has been found in Kansas this fall, with cases being reported around Liberal. Cold weather will eventually push screwworm back to the Mexican border. Along the border sterile screwworm flies will be dropped throughout the winter. It is this program of releasing sterile flies that USDA uses to control screwworm in the infested areas.

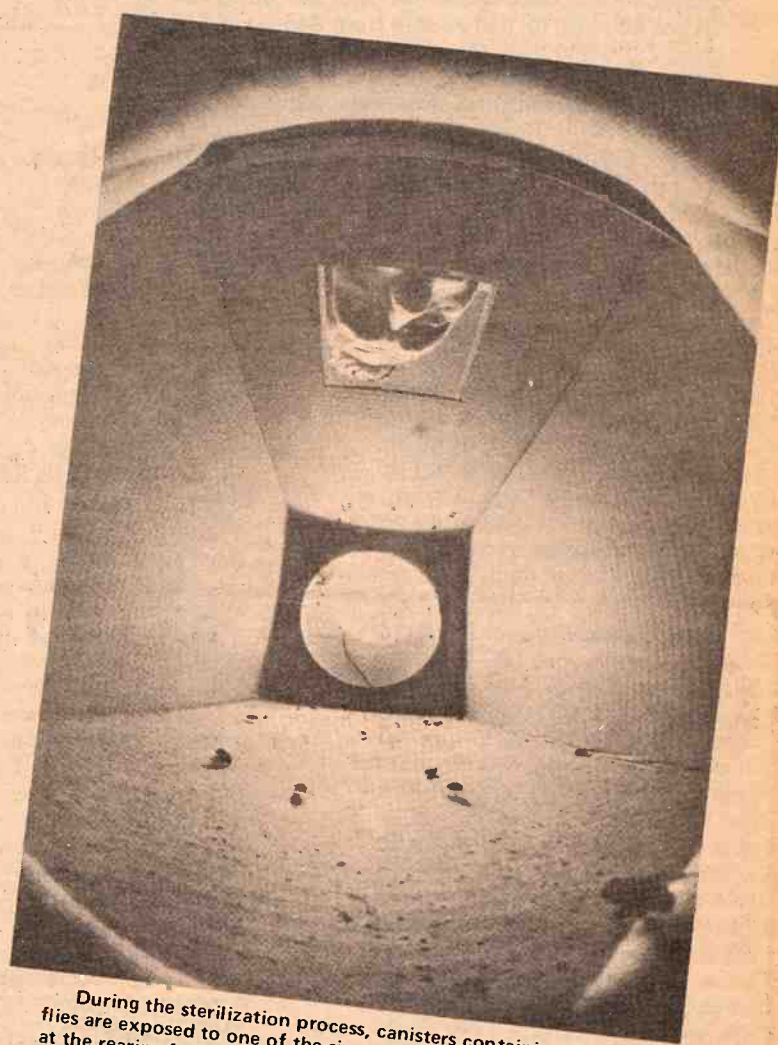

Each day of the week planes are loaded with sterile flies which are released over infested areas. The station at Mission, Texas, has been producing about 200 million flies a week. The boxes of sterile flies are carried in C-47s, which can handle about eight million per mission, or in smaller C-45s, which carry about two million.

The Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service sterile screwworm rearing facility at Mission, Texas, has been rearing over 200 million sterile flies a week—a full production capability. USDA regulations on screwworm control are in effect from April 15 to November 30 each year.

Out fly 2000 sterile flies from a box as part of the USDA shipment into the area infested with screwworm. A USDA scientist James Novy has opened the box. The flies are raised at a USDA station at Mission, Texas, and sexually sterilized by exposure to cobalt radiation. Released into an infested area, the males mate with native fertile female flies, which then lay eggs that do not hatch, preventing new generations of screwworms.

During the sterilization process, canisters containing 30,000 flies are exposed to one of the six cobalt 60 radiation sources at the rearing facility. From each canister, 15 pupae are moved, hatched and mated with fertile females. The resulting eggs are checked for fertility. This test guarantees the effectiveness of the process.

When isolated infestations occur, a large target is prepared to help aircraft spot the proper ranch. These "hot spot" infestations receive at least 100,000 flies once a week for a 3-week period. The established heavily infested areas receive regular releases in a pre-determined pattern.

Kansas Future Farmers Represented National Convention This Week

October 10

The Kansas Association of Future Farmers of America will be represented in Kansas City, Mo., next week for the 45th National FFA Convention.

The convention, which opens Wednesday, October 11, and ends Friday, October 13, is one of the largest annual youth events in the activities calendar.

More than 13,000 FFA members and guests from 50 States and Puerto Rico are expected to attend this year's convention. The purpose of the convention is to conduct national business of the organization and to recognize accomplishments of FFA members.

The Kansas delegation will be led by Brad Trexler, Hill City, State president, and Rod Nulik, Kansas City, State FFA vice president. The two will serve as the state's "official delegates." Approximately two delegates from each state form the convention's voting body.

Seven Kansas FFA members expect to receive the American Farmer Degree, highest degree of achievement given by the FFA. The degree, which is limited to about one member in a thousand, is given for outstanding achievement and leadership in farming or agribusiness. Each American Farmer receives a gold key, a certificate, and a $75 check from the National FFA Foundation.

The Kansas candidates already have been approved by the National FFA Board of Directors and national officers. While they must be elected by the delegate body, recommendation by the governing Boards usually is accepted. The Kansas candidates are: Doug Deets, Arkansas City FFA Chapter; Ted Odle, Stockton FFA Chapter; Frank Buchman, Council Grove FFA Chapter; Gary Worcester, Hill City FFA Chapter; Paul Westerman, Ellsworth FFA Chapter; Elmer Donley, Jr., Ellsworth FFA Chapter; and Ernie Goering, Jr., Moundridge FFA Chapter.

Three Kansas FFA members will participate in the FFA's 119-piece National Band. Don Bedore of Stockton will play the baritone, Earl Rice of Lebo will play the tuba, and Noel Sylvester of Wamego will play the trombone. They will remain until October 14 to participate in the opening parade of the 1972 American Royal Livestock and Horse Show.

A similarly organized chorus of 107 voices will include five Kansans. They are Richard Friesen, Anthony; Bob Garlow, Ames; Barry Siefert, Marion; and Steve Suther and Lynn Spencer, both of Blaine. Dennis Good of Paola will be the chorus pianist.

Three Kansas FFA chapters have entries in the National Chapter Award Program, and will send representatives to Kansas City to hear the results of their efforts. The three chapters are the Hill City FFA Chapter, Arkansas City FFA Chapter, and Atchison County Community High School Chapter of Ellingham.

Two Kansas chapters will be recognized with gold emblem awards in the FFA "Building Our American Communities" program. This is the second year awards have been presented in the BOAC program, a community action activity designed to get FFA chapters involved in improving their community. The Fowler FFA Chapter and the Moundridge FFA Chapter will receive the recognition.

Ellsworth County Angus Breeder Tops At State Fair

Three of the four most coveted ribbons in the 1972 Kansas State Fair Angus show were awarded to Ellsworth County breeders.

Green Garden Farms and Arrowhead Angus of Ellsworth grabbed off both the bull and female grand championships and another Ellsworth breeder exhibited the reserve champion bull.

Only other animal to make it into the purple circle was the reserve champion bull shown by McCurry Brothers of Sedgwick.

Grand champion bull was from the Ellsworth herd which earlier had won junior championship honors. A bull belonging to the McCurry Brothers herd had been the reserve junior champ. Both are junior yearlings.

In the Female division Arrowhead Angus Farms won the grand champion ribbon. Ranking next in the reserve championship spot was the Nick Steffen herd at Ellsworth.

Thirty eight herds were represented in the big show of beef blacks. The actual animal count came to 120 head even after some 40 entries were scratched.

Green Gardens and Arrowhead won junior get of sire award on four animals by one sire. Curry Brothers won the class of three bulls by a single exhibitor.

KU Tightens Financial Belt As Enrollment Drops

The University of Kansas has cinched up its financial waistband as the result of a drop in enrollment, Acting Chancellor Raymond Nichols announced.

Enrollment at the KU Medical Center at Kansas City, Kan., is 1,529 — up four from last fall — but the 18,246 students who registered for the fall semester on the campus here represents a decline of 272, Nichols said.

He said the decline, reflecting the national trend, has caused a freeze on the filling of faculty and staff vacancies and a 10 per cent cut on departments' supplies and expenses.

If additional funds are received later in the year, Nichols said, the freeze will be lifted where possible.

Part of the deficiency resulting from the lower enrollment can be corrected with equipment reserves and fee balances from the previous year, he said.

He attributed the national trend of declining enrollemnts to changes in the selective service systems, economic regulations and "a desire by many young people to stay out of school for a year to travel and rethink their goals and life plans."

Feeder Cattle Numbers In Kansas Unchanged

September 1 there were 225,000 cattle and calves on grain for slaughter market in Kansas, unchanged from a month earlier, according to the Kansas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service.

Kansas cattle feeders marketed 225,000 grainfed cattle during the month of August, compared with 170,000 in July 1972.

There were 225,000 cattle and calves placed on full grain feed during August, compared with 170,000 in July.

The number of cattle and calves on grain feed for slaughter market on September 1 in the seven monthly cattle on feed States was 8,681,000, 3 percent less than on August 1.

In the six States with comparable data last year (excludes Kansas) the number of cattle on feed on September 1 was 17 percent above a year earlier, compared with 18 percent on August 1.

The number of grain-fed cattle marketed in August in the six States was 9 percent more than a year earlier.

The number of cattle and calves placed on feed in the six States during August was 2 percent more than the August 1971 placements.

Eastern Kansas Duroc Herds Lead Fair Competition

A couple of eastern Kansas herds led the pack in the 1972 Duroc Swine show at the Kansas State Fair.

Wayne L. Davis of Mahaska showed the grand champion boar while Messner Farms of Caney had the grand champion gilt. Messner Farms had the reserve grand champion boar. The reserve grand champion gilt placing went out of state to Earl Martin of DeKalb, Mo.

Messner, Wayne Davis and Earl Martin finished in that order in the young herd show. Messner had three of the eight class firsts along with three second placings, and took home 14 ribbons.

Largest class of the show was in early February gilts with 18 animals. Early February boar class was a close second with 17 head.

Sell Or Buy Cattle & Hogs By Auction Tuesdays

It rained Tuesday morning and some cattle never got in, but we still sold 1686 head on a good active market. Stocker and feeder steers and heifers were selling fully steady. Killing cows were 50¢ to $1 lower.
