Address of W. C. Lansdon Before the Annual Meeting of the Jobbing Association at Salina January 21st---Mr. Lansdon Has Been a Director Since 1914.

Credential Committee reports; and therefore, as no real business can be placed before you at this time, they think it might be just as well to introduce me.

In the first place, I want to say that while I agree almost entirely with what Mr. Tromble has said about the farmers having confidence or no contact and the same and the s what Mr. Tromble has said about the farmers having confidence or no confidence in each other, that the members of the Board of Directors of the Jobbing Association certainly have no complaint to make about the share-bolders of this organization. If there complaint to make about the shareholders of this organization. If there ever was a body of men that enjoyed the full and complete confidence of the people they represented thruout these number of years it is this Board. This has been proven by the acts of the stockholders of the Jobbing Association. This association has come as near having the samemen in control continuously in its organization. I guess, than any other ganization, I guess, than any other body ever organized in Kansas. It was organized in June, 1914, and of the six directors, about three of them are now in office and have been continuously re-elected.

The Jobbing Association has passed thru some trying times. I expect twenty-five years ago, the legislature of the State of Kansas, aroused to actual that were present at the Wishits Con that were present at the Wichita Convention when it looked like things were all over. In Washington, I have at the present time the responsibility of being a member of the Board that passes on the town of certain records of being a member of the Board that passes on the taxes of certain people thruout the United States and the other day we had a question up involving the responsibility of the breweries of Chicago on the payment of taxes and one of my friends remarked that the hearing might occupy several hours. I said—"I expect that is true, but why do you call it a hearing; it occurs to me that it is an inquest." It looked very much like the annual meeting at Wichita seven years ago was an inquest to determine what had happened to the corps and what had happened to the corps and the same price as that from the International Harvester and Cooper the remains; but they decided that the some new life and they have been sociation has been able to function in some new life and they have been sociation has been able to realize the State has been able time the stock of the Jobbing Assocition was not very valuable. A few years ago, a certain County in this State that is reputed by those in this State that is reputed by the state of ute not only annually but every day in the year, a great body of invisible or intangible dividends that result in penerits for the membership and for agriculture in general. I have told of various cases in which this association has distributed intangible dividends so often, that I don't know whether years but one day some fellow offerso often, that I don't know whether it is safe to repeat any of them or not. You all know that in 1918, for example, at a time when this country was engaged in the greatest war in the history of humanity and when every patriotic citizen of the Republic ed out to pay for that elevator and they sold it. The other day I asked one of the Farmers Union men in that Country how things were going and he said—"We have already started out to pay for that elevator as ery patriotic citizen of the Republic ed out to pay for that elevator a erything called upon to do for the interest of the public, among other things the farmers of this country were asked to sow more wheat than ever before and they responded to duty. George Washington, Founder

When Congress, sitting for the last time in Philadelphia, received the news of the death of George Washington, the senate in a letter addressed to President John Adams said: "With patriotic pride we review the life of our Washington and compare him with those of other countries who have been prominent in fame. Greatness and guilt have too often been allied; but his fame is writer than it was brilliant"

Such was the estimate of George Washington in that day, now more than a century and a quarter past; when the men who knew the Founder of the Republic best were still alive to testify to the purity of his character and the unselfishness of his career which, almost from childhood was devoted to the service of his country and his fellowmen. Such is still the estimate of men who have voted to the service of his country and his fellowmen. Americans and have seen and enjoyed the full studied the life and work of the most illustrious of all Americans and have seen and enjoyed the full

Often in the history of humanity it has been granted in times of stress and danger that one man, rising superior to circumstances, should prove himself indispensible to the public safety and the security and perpetuity of his country. Once only in all the ages has it been given to one man to be the estated agents and the security and perpetuity of his country. Once only in all the ages has it been given to one man to be the estated agents and the security and t ity and perpetuity of his country. Once only in all the ages has it been given to one man to be the essential agent charged on three separate occasions with the duty of preserving his country. Washington was the only man in the whole of the thirt een colonies who could have led the armies of the revolution to victory over the British. The war of liberation over, he was the only man with character, and ability who could have reconcilled, the clashing and jangling differences of the states into the harmonious group of sovereignties that merged their separate powers into the new republic and formed harmonious group of sovereignties that merged their separate powers into the new republic and formed harmonious group of sovereignties that merged their separate powers into the new republic and formed harmonious group of sovereignties that merged to give strength and stability to the new government. He who united in himself all the qualities required to give strength and stability to the new government. Three great moments stand out beyond all other events in his unparallelled career. He assumed command of the revolutionary armies at Boston, Massachusetts on the third day of July, 1775; he ed command of the revolutionary armies at Boston, Massachusetts on the third day of July, 1775; he took the chair as presiding officer o the Constitutional Convention on May 14, 1789; he was inaugurated.

The know history of the family of Washington begins in England about the middle of the thirteenth century. Two hundred years later the estate of Sulgrave Manor was granted to Lawrence Washington. Before and after that event men of the family were scholars, soldiers, preachers, lawyers and farmers. The journey across the mountains was made in the early winter. All told there were eight persons in the party. The horses became so weak from having no grain or forage that Washington was forced to make most of the return trip on foot, carrying his baggage and records on his back. The journey required eleven weeks and had no results except to train and harden Washington for the work that he was to do in later years.

Before Washington went on his western trip he suffered the loss of his brother Lawrence and was designated as one of the executors of the estate which included Mt. In that case the purpose was good and in time will prevail but for a generation or more those who believe in the federal prohibition of the liquor traffic must fight for enforcement through education.

It may be that centralization has reached its peak. When the president of the United States goes out of its way to warn the people against the results of federal aid it is certain he has been influenced by menaces against which he would alarm the people and that many other people will follow his lead. Perhaps the average citizen has made up his mind that he can manage his own affairs.

Notice to Members

In the January 29th issue of this paper the first of the HISTORY OF THE TEN GREATEST MEN elected by the members and readers of this paper appeared. We have not been able to these in the paper as fast as we would like to, for the reason that the State Convention News filled the paper with other things. But now we are going to begin with the next issue and we hope to finish the series without standard.

WHAT WE ARE CURIOUS TO KNOW IS HOW MANY WOULD BE INTERESTED in a neat little book containing the ten biographies. It will be necessary for us to know if enough will buy before we have these books printed. They will cost you 50 or 75

If 100 people will write us letters in the next two weeks saying they will buy the books we will have them printed.

Dependable Peppard Seed for members

Kansas Farmers' Union

As was announced, the Farmers' Union Jobbing Association has officially approved PEPPARD seeds and recommends them to Kansas farmers.

PEPPARD seeds are carefully selected by us from the best seed crops. They are thoroughly cleaned by modern machinery in our modern plant, and are carefully and scientifically tested in our up-to-date laboratories. Due to years of successful performance for thousands of Kansas farmers, PEPPARD seeds are of recognized quality. Ask any farmer who has used PEPPARD seeds.

Even with perfect weather conditions, good crops cannot be produced unless good seeds have been planted. Your crops cannot be better than the seeds. Unknown, questionable seeds should be avoided. PEP-PARD seeds cost you no more than other seeds, but they reduce the chance of failure and make Bigger Crops more certain. "As ye sow, so shall ye reap."
