

Supplemental Figure 1. Dropped edge analysis of the corn network. A threshold indicates the highest landscape resistance to transmission (LRT; defined in terms of host availability) that still allows dispersal by a particular pest or pathogen. Brown edges between counties meet the threshold criterion and yellow edges between counties have been “dropped” because the LRT is above the threshold being evaluated.