Diseases of Sheep.

We copy the following from a recent issue of the Kansas Agriculturist: At a meeting of the Kansas Central Wool-Growers Association held at the Kansas Agricultural office, Saturday, August 19th, Vice President W. F. Cotton, of Wabunsee county, called the meeting to order; Z. D. Proper, of Wamego, secretary.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE.

WAMEGO, August 15, 1882.

Gentlemen of the Kansas Central Wool Growers Association:

While your committee would be pleased in this report to tell the cause and cure or preventive of this disease, they are compelled to admit their utter inability to account for or explain, and can only approximate to and give their opinion. One point is settled in the minds of your committee, and that is this: The disease is not "liver rot," as described by Youatt and reaffirmed by Randall.

We have found old sheep are more liable to die than younger ones; yet it is not confined to them, as lambs, rams, fat wethers, ewes, young and old, die and are found in same condition as far as regards worms.

Let shepherds throughout the state who lose sheep, if only one or two, look carefully at the ducts of the liver, examine with care and see if they will find this to be general.

Because they have the liver rot in England and Scotland, is no reason dry-aided Kansas must follow suit.

We find that men have written from Dakota, Missouri, south, west and east, in regard to a disease in their flocks, giving generally the symptoms of the ravages of this worm.

A different "Veterinary M. C." gives us an explanation—"flukes in the liver." Now, if these "veas," or one of them, could be employed, either by our sheep men or by some enterprising journal, to go to these flocks, make a thorough investigation and experiment with sheep, we have no fear of the verdict, and believe it would do more to settle this question than all the old writers that ever lived.

These worms are long, flat, mouth the whole width of worm, no eyes in sight. They vary in length from one-half inch to two feet; general length of worms found in ducts or liver, 4 inches.

General symptoms: 1st, Swelling of skin under neck, and at times running under belly. This swelling, when slashed during life of sheep, discharges a yellowish watery substance; after death it shows a jelly-like appearance, at times being over an inch in thickness on belly. 2d, Loss of appetite and strength; frothing at mouth, absence of oil in wool. In some cases no swelling appears, and consequently no appearance of jelly after death.

Your committee now submit this report for your consideration; and while it is incomplete, and we do not claim to have made any discoveries, yet we have collated in this report all the information we could obtain in the limited time at our disposal.

We are of the opinion that all flocks in this state are more or less affected; but we do not consider that it necessarily follows that we will suffer very largely.

We find different modes of summering have not had any effect; nor do we believe sheep affected must necessarily die from the effects. Certain conditions of weather, range, water or care, produce fatal results; and to our association belongs part of the duty of discovering the same.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

COMMITTEE.

Something About Fattening Hogs.

A great deal of feed, and often a great deal of meat and money, may be saved by the practice of some common-sense rules in feeding and care. A late number of the Western Rural contains some thoughts on this subject which so nearly accord with our own that we append them.

There are some essentials in fattening, which are too frequently disregarded, and indifferent success is the result. In the first place, cleanliness should distinguish the enclosure. Hogs will not fatten satisfactorily in a filthy mirage, nor where they are compelled or permitted to drink impure water, which will be most likely the case in an enclosure that is wet and miry.

It is somewhat difficult to determine the space which the enclosure should occupy, but it is enough to say that it should be sufficiently large to promote the comfort of the animal. At this season and until cold weather they should be allowed to run freely on grass, for in the first stages of fattening the muscular system must not be neglected, if we would have healthy hogs, and the fat-producing foods will not make muscle.

When cold weather comes, and the hogs are taken from the pasture, they will not need a very large enclosure, but the pen should be dry and warm, and so arranged that the sleeping apartment is distinct from where the animals leave their droppings.

In the matter of feeding concentrated foods, the animal should be gradually fed up to the amount that it will eat, and then regularly fed all that it will eat up clean and no more.

The animal never should be surfeited, but just given enough. It should come to every meal with a keen appetite. If we will pause to think what surfeiting really means, we will readily see why it should be avoided.

After feeding for fattening has once been begun, there should be a steady increase up to the point of sufficiency, and never a decrease. Corn of course is the principal food, but it is advisable to feed cooked potatoes and pumpkins, mixed with mill stuffs once a day. Plenty of trough room is a necessity, and plenty of pure water should be supplied twice a day. The hog will drink a great deal of water, as the practical hog-raiser well knows. The greatest care should be exercised to see that the animal will not be compelled to eat filth as well as his food. If corn is fed it should be fed upon a dry floor, when possible. Neither good pork or much of it can come from feeding filth. The salting of hogs is a very important matter, and they will not and cannot do well without a regular supply of salt. It should be given them once a day, and can be given in ground oats—which is an excellent fat-producing food—or in the cooked mixture mentioned above.

Important and True.

James D. Beckett, Chicago's largest horse dealer, says of the grade Percheron-Norman horses: "They are more generally bred in the west than all other classes of draft horses, and, as a proof of their popularity, the supply is far short of the demand this year, as we pay $200 and upwards to farmers for three-year-old grade Normans to ship to Ohio and Pennsylvania for feeders."

Gossip About Stock.

It pays to keep stock always in good condition. Overfed stock of any kind, more particularly hogs, are most liable to disease.

In order to start stock into the winter in good condition, it should be well fed in the fall.

Our readers will be interested in Mr. Gentry's advertisement of Berkshire hogs in the FARMER.

A Boston paper says that horses ought to be fed twice a day only—rested, but not fed at noon.

A. C. Moore, Canton, Ills., one of the most extensive and successful Poland China hog breeders in the country advertises pure bred stock this week.

Jersey cows come from the Island of Jersey, a little spot of earth containing about 45 square miles. About 2,000 head of cattle are exported annually.

In feeding horses, the Dublin Farmer says that in order to secure best results, hay should be fed at first and the concentrated food afterwards; which leaves it to become fully digested, with no danger of being crowded away or out of the performance of its desired purpose.

The owner of a dairy of one cow says: The fourth year, just closed—we, that is, my wife and myself—have made 523 pounds of butter from the milk of our cow, to which should be added the milk and cream used in the family, giving at a moderate estimate, a grand total of 550 pounds of butter for the year.

For horses that have eaten the loco weed, a New Mexican farmer prescribes: As soon as the horse shows symptoms of having tasted the obnoxious herb, give a tablespoonful of ammonia and a pint of luscious oil. In the first stages of the sickness one dose may be sufficient; if not, repeat again in about two or three days, until two or three doses have been administered, which is considered sufficient for the worst cases of locoeing.

Milk fever is common among the largest milkers only. A correspondent of the Minnesota Farmer says shrink the feed. Nearly all cases of milk fever occur on grass, when the cows are loose. My plan is to put the cow in the stable, on dry hay and water and nothing else. I have seen scores of cows die with milk fever, but never one that was taken up in the stable and fed on dry hay that was cut when fully matured (not hay that has been cut very young and is much the same as grass).

Many farmers, for an extra dollar or two sell their best calves to the butcher and raise such as are not so valuable, and think they can gain by the practice; but the few dollars they think they made would in many cases, be worth at the milking age of the stock, if the best had been kept, more than thirty dollars, instead of a dollar two.

Proof Everywhere.

If any invalid or sick person has the least doubt of the power and efficacy of Hop Bitters to cure them, they can find cases exactly like their own. In their own neighborhood, with proof positive that they can be easily and permanently cured at a trifling cost—or ask your druggist or physician.

A mixture of red and white clover with timothy and blue grass, constitutes a very good sheep pasture. Sub-divide the pasture into smaller fields, and give frequent change during the entire grazing season. Provide them with a mixture of salt, sulphur and ashes.

A good Baptist clergyman of Bergen, N. Y., a strong temperance man, suffered with kidney trouble, neuralgia, and dizziness almost to blindness, over two years after he was told that Hop Bitters would cure him because he was afraid of and prejudiced against "Bitters." Since his cure he says none need fear but trust in Hop Bitters.

Some idea can be formed of the magnitude of operations among reaper manufacturers from the fact that a Chicago firm recently paid the owner of patents on an improved binder, the sum of $500,000 for the privilege of manufacturing the machine.

No Back.

In one of Hans Andersen's stories, he speaks of an old elf lady, who, when she went into company, made a very genteel appearance, only she had no back. There are many people who suffer so many aches and pains and weakness in that part of the body, that they almost wish they had no back. But these pains, etc., come from kidney disease, and there is a medicine—Hunt's Remedy, the great kidney and liver medicine—that works to such an extent, that one taking it becomes, like the elf lady, unconscious of a back, though unlike her in having a whole, sound, and perpendicular back. Hunt's Remedy has a back of the stiffest kind, for its mission is to support the weak and heal the ailing, and this it is doing all over the land.

A Georgia correspondent states that the cotton crop promises a large yield, and the corn crop is far beyond any one in a number of years. Sweet potatoes cover every available patch, and the pea has a sure and prolific home in every corn field.

So many human ills can be traced directly to derangement of the liver and kidneys that if these organs could be kept in a healthy state, the sum total of suffering would be greatly reduced. A trial will convince any one that Let's Dandelion Tonic is the best article for this purpose ever prepared.

It pays to have dry and comfortable walks from the house to the barn, to the woodshed and about the yard. At leisure time look to these matters, and your wife will not sigh for the comforts of her old home.

Ladies' Department.

Wives.

Oh, he that gets a good, good wife, Gets gold enough and to spare; And he that gets an ill, ill wife, May make and may still be bare.

But a man who gets an ill, ill wife, Gets trouble of every kind; He's a weary part, and a hopeless heart, And prosperity's hard to find.

Don't marry for beauty, don't marry for gold, And on nobody else depend; For your own life you can choose a wife, And for your own home a friend.

Room Enough For All.

Don't crowd and push on the march of life, Or tread on each other's toes, For the world at best, in its great unrest, Is hard enough as it goes.

If a lagging brother falls behind, And drops from the toiling band, If fear and doubt his soul to rout, Then lend him a helping hand.

If a man with the tread of a pioneer Steps out on your track ahead, Don't grudge his start with an envious heart, For the mightiest once were led.

I have not been a correspondent of the Ladies' Department, but am a reader of the FARMER, and I always read that first: am well pleased with it.

I see in our last paper Farmers' Wife wants to know how to can corn. I have tried but without success, but will tell what I have done with my sweet corn.

These, and many other good things are in the line of positive duty. But they must all run in the way of a robust manly training. Boys must not be raised in a band box.

It is a well authenticated fact that many medicines, especially 'bitters,' are nothing but cheap whiskey vilely concocted for use in local option countries.

is so much interested in children, and will be glad to see the FARMER in its new dress. I am interested in all the topics of farm life, but most of all in raising up the children in the way they should go.

All honor to St. John and the prohibition law. May the temperance cause go on until the liquor traffic will sway and fall, and peace stand upon its ruins.

CULTURE OF BOYS.

We cannot begin too early to instruct ourselves that a boy is a man in miniature, and that he is entitled to precisely the same kind of treatment that a man may properly demand, except that it should be tempered to correspond with the tender age and early development of the boy.

Interesting Scraps.

It is proposed to build an underground railroad in Paris. The cost of its construction is put at $30,000,000.

The New York, Chicago & St. Louis Railroad uses a steam shovel that lifts eighteen tons of gravel at one scoop.

The chamolis is the only antelope found in Europe, and the baboon, on the rocks of Gibraltar, the only quadruman.

A statistician estimates that the people of the United States have to pay $23 a minute for Congress while in session.

A drum manufactory in Massachusetts, established in 1833, has converted during that time 30,000 sheep skins into drum heads.

A Great Northern railroad train, with an eight single driver outside cylinder engine, lately ran from Leeds to London, 186 1/2 miles, in exactly three hours—sixty-two miles an hour.

The electric light is reported to have been tried in France as a lure for sea fish. The brilliant glare of a submerged lamp is found to attract great numbers of fishes, which may be readily captured in nets.

At a recent scientific meeting in San Francisco announcement was made of the discovery in southern Oregon of a large deposit of nickel ore, resembling that discovered in New Caledonia in 1841.

An English chemist, who had been called upon to analyze several socks and stockings of a red color, which had been found to cause great irritation to the skin of the wearers, discovered the cause of the trouble in the tin salt used as a mordant in fixing the dye.

The judgment of American Engineers with respect to the superiority of earthworks over masonry for defense, as demonstrated during our late war, has been confirmed by the bombardment of Alexandria. A council composed of Admiral Seymour and the leading English military authorities at Alexandria, after a careful investigation of the effects of the bombardment, decided that masonry is useless against modern guns, while earthworks turn every shot.

Children living on the Hyde Park side of Englewood, a suburb of Chicago, have to cross sixty-three railroad tracks in going to school.

The first appearance of cotton as an article of commerce was a shipment of seven bales from Charleston in 1737. In 1830—31 the crop was 6,600,000 bales.

A Newark paper says the heretic deeds of a big blue-bottle fly, which, after reconnoitering a spider's web in a house in that city for a while, made a sudden charge upon the under part of the web, and breaking through the filmy netting, seized the occupant, a good sized spider, and soared away with the struggling spider in its grip.

TRUE Temperance

Is not signing a pledge or taking a solemn oath that cannot be kept, because of the non-removal of the cause—liquor. The way to make a man temperate is to kill the desire for those dreadful artificial stimulants that carry so many bright intellects to premature graves, and desolation, strife and unhappiness into so many families.

The Fair at Manhattan.

[From our Special Correspondent.] The Blue and Kansas Valley Agricultural society held their 13th annual fair last week.

The display in Floral hall eclipsed all former efforts and was the admiration and pride of every one.

F. E. Marsh, as usual, was on top with a large number of Light and Dark Brahms, Game Bantams and Plymouth Rocks, some 30 entries in all.

W. H. Stewart, breeder of pure bred games had the next largest display of several different varieties of this breed.

Jno. Bird, of Junction City, had an exhibit of Shropshire Downs. He secured three blue ribbons and sweepstakes on rams of any age.

M. L. Stewart, of Camp Point, Ills., breeder and importer of sheep, had a fine display of five imported South Downs, ten Cotswolds and ten Merinos.

The exhibit of swine was quite large and some very fine animals were shown. Wm. Lewis had a few of the Jersey Reds.

W. T. Allen had some thoroughbreds and grade Berkshires. He was awarded first premium on best sow and five pigs.

The college herd was shown and are looking quite well. A Holstein bull weighing 1840 was shown by Gen. Caseman.

E. Kuse of Ashland herd, had a good exhibit of grade and thoroughbred Short horns and carried off some of the premiums.

The leading herds of cattle were the Glenwood herd by Bill and Burnham and the Blue Valley herd by Wm. P. Higinbotham.

Bill and Burnham have a very fine lot of thoroughbred Short-horn cattle and a large herd of good grades besides some very fine heavy draft horses.

Wm. P. Higinbotham made a good display from his Blue Valley herd of grade and thoroughbred Short-horns.

John Warner was the lucky winner of 1st premium and sweepstakes on horses for all work.

This fair may be considered one of the best The accommodations are first class and the managers hope to make it one of the best in the state.
