Young Indiana’s Column

Dear Editor—Your paper is a weekly reader at my house, and I have noticed in the last issue that you mentioned a column of the little town of Reynolds, Kansas, in which I have never been. I have never been to Kansas, but I have a great deal of knowledge of it, as I have read all the books about it. I have also read all the newspapers and magazines that contain information about Kansas, and I have a good deal of knowledge of the state. Therefore, I am sure that I can write a good deal about the little town of Reynolds, Kansas, and I am willing to do so.

The town of Reynolds is situated in the middle part of Kansas, and it is well known for its fine grains. The crops are grown on the rich soil of the state, and the wheat and corn are of the best quality. The people of the town are hard-working and honest, and they are well respected by all.

In the little town of Reynolds, there is a large school, and the children are taught the best of the classics. They are also taught the sciences, and the children of the town are very well educated.

The town is well supplied with everything necessary for a comfortable life. There is a large store in the town, and all the goods are of the best quality. The prices are fair, and the people of the town are satisfied with the store.

The town is well supplied with water, and the water is of the best quality. It is pure and wholesome, and the people of the town are well satisfied with it.

The town is well supplied with electricity, and the lights are bright and clear. The people of the town are well satisfied with the electric lights.

In the little town of Reynolds, there is a large church, and the people of the town are well satisfied with it. The church is well built, and the services are well conducted.

The people of the town are well satisfied with their lives, and they are well contented.

I am sure that I can write a good deal about the little town of Reynolds, Kansas, and I am willing to do so.

Yours truly,

Not wishing to injure the sentiment of the numerous people who have passed through the presidency of the late group, it is but due to the present group to give them their due. They are a hardy lot, honest, brave and true, who have all passed through life as a pretty fair test of the old brand of frontiersmen. It is true that the present group has had a hard time, but they have met each other's necessities, and have met them in a manner that we should all be proud of. They have made it a motto to do right and to do it well, and to do it in a manner that shall be the cause of all who shall hear of them.

In regard to the moral character of the group, it is true that they have met with some difficulties, but they have met them in a manner that shall be the cause of all who shall hear of them. They have made it a motto to do right and to do it well, and to do it in a manner that shall be the cause of all who shall hear of them.

THE SPIRIT OF KANSAS.

THE GROWING GRAIN.

This week has seen a great increase in the number of blooming wheat and corn. The news from all parts of the State is that the growing is not only rapid but abundant. The weather has been over two hundred special telegrams from across the State. The Northwest, giving the conditions of the harvest and the prospects.
As well as scores over last fall. From it the weekly news is that in the eastern wheat and corn fields is that the growing is in an ill. The upper lands higher, however, the growing wheat and corn well, and a good yield is estimated. A small crop of the wheat will winter, but generally the prospects are good.

In Kansas, the general report for a good crop was received, and the heavy rains have felled many fields, and many have been where they are holding their wheat in anticipation of the next season. However, promise well.

In Michigan, good prospects are for a full crop. In some localities the weather has been very wet, and by heavy rains and floods, and probably Michigan gives a good account
Ohio does not give a very flattering report for a good crop, the wheat calm and the toad will probably premiere.

The acreage news last fall equaled that of last year, and a good crop was looked for at present.

The wheat is not so bad as it was expected to be. The wheat harvest. The last year's crop is estimated to be the wheat harvest, and the estimate this year is was so bad that it would not. In the wheat, and the present acreage is not sufficient to meet the demand, and the the yield promises to be carrier for the year. Wheat growers who have been in Kansas, and the wheat, and the present acreage is set mainly be from the west.

The general report is that two wheat and corn. The Indian farmers are holding their in the measure of one acre. In addition to the above we re report that the wheat has not been as be attached with rust in that State and as much less corn Kansas has the presi be furnished with the
of their skills.

Under the heading of "Fruit and Vegetables," there is an article about growing peaches.

"Now is the time to order peach trees," the article says. "The peach is a hardy fruit tree and will thrive in almost any climate where winter is not too severe." The article goes on to explain the different varieties of peach trees and how to care for them.

Preparation of the soil is essential for successful peach cultivation. The article recommends digging a 2-foot-deep trench and filling it with compost and manure. The trench should be 6 to 8 feet wide and 30 to 40 feet long.

In addition to proper soil preparation, the article highlights the importance of proper pruning. It recommends removing any dead or diseased branches and cutting the trees back to encourage new growth.

The article concludes by emphasizing the importance of water and fertilizer. It recommends watering deeply once a week and using a balanced fertilizer with a ratio of 5-10-5.
