NEIGHBORHOOD NOTES

RECORD MEETING HELD AT PORTIS LAST EVENING!

Two Hundred Farmers Here For Meeting of Local. The local Farmers Union men had a meeting here last night in the Angell Hardware building. It was largely attended and we imagine one of the largest attended meetings of farmers ever held in this locality or even Osborne county, or perhaps anywhere except in convention affairs.

FROM MEMBER AT BURNS, KAS.

Dear Brother Cooperators, and Readers of the Kansas Union Farmer: It is not my intention to prolong a seemingly useless discussion nor to quarrel with anyone, but the front page article by our President in the April 9th issue of the Kansas Union Farmer, just naturally stirred up my indignation to the point where I feel like entering a protest.

In the first place, Mr. Vesceky makes the statement that these protest meetings were cut and dried, and worded according to a prepared form. Does he think that the membership which elected him are not capable of thinking for themselves?

Secondly, he says that these resolutions were passed hurriedly and without due consideration. If he will take note of the signatures on these resolutions, he will find the signatures of some of the most prominent and out-standing Business Managers and members of Boards of Directors of our Farmers Union Locals and Business Associations from over the entire State—men who do not exercise so-called "judicial" nor make decisions hastily and with out due consideration.

Plainly it is the opinion of our State President that the Farmers Union membership, and stockholders of the Jobbing Association, are not to express their opinion in this matter. Isn't it to insure democratic control by the membership, that the paragraphs relating to referendum and recall, are inserted in this constitution and by-laws? Yes in this constitution, the membership were only asking for a stockholders meeting of the Jobbing Association to consider a subject of vital importance. Just who are our State officials responsible to?—to the membership of the Kansas Farmers Union?—or to the salaried officials of one of our Business Associations?

As to the statement that the CCA is seeking to develop a "democratic" cooperative, if Mr. Vesceky will refer to the files of the Kansas Union Farmer, he will find that in the report of the annual meeting of the Jobbing Association in February of 1936, is contained a paragraph in which the Jobbing Association seeks to classify itself as a Consumer Cooperative!

In closing I wish to say that any student of cooperation knows that Locals are built only around successful local Business Activities. The need of our local Farmers Union stores for a Cooperative Wholesale establishment has long been apparent, and to that end the Farmers Union attempted to develop a list of Union Local Creamery which we already have and the establishment of new plants to process the farmers products, namely, Meat Packing Plants and Flour and Feed Mills.

ZEPHYR LOCAL NOTES

The members of the Farmers Union held their first regular meeting in April at the Beacon Light school house with 37 members and visitors present. After preliminary business it was decided to have a picnic again this year, about the same time as last year. Vance Clark, R. D. Rhoades and Harvey Staley were named on a committee to make the necessary arrangements.

D. W. Little announced that a group of entertainers from the Wichita Eagle would come down for our first May meeting, and the group voted to invite them down and hold the meeting in the Scout Hut. Lester Hughes gave a discussion of the Japanese leader, Kagawa, and his application of the Cooperative principals to the national life. George Pillsbury spoke briefly concerning the controversy with the Jobbing Ass'n and D. W. Little also made remarks.

The members of the Farmers Union were pleasantly surprised Monday night, March 2, at their regular meeting by the presence of L. J. Alkire, manager of the Farmers Union Livestock Commission of Wichita. Mr. Alkire spoke to the group on the new problems confronting the farmer as a result of the Supreme Court's decision. Those who accompanied Mr. Alkire were his two daughters, Zella and Stella, and Miss Margaret La Doux and John Christ.

The Ladies Auxiliary to Zephyr Farmers Union local met at the home of Mrs. Harvey Staley on April 6. The meeting was called to order by the President, Mrs. B. F. Rice. The meeting opened with the singing of "America, the Beautiful," after which the secretary read the story of the writing of the song.

A short business session was held. The president appointed each member as a committee of one to remind each member of the meeting date. Mrs. Fred Orr, who was leader, chose as her subject, "The Constitution of the United States." The hostess served refreshments of ice cream, angel food cake, and coffee.

Committee Meet. The Educational Committee of the Consumers Cooperative Ass'n met Monday at 8 p. m., March 9 in the office of the Farmers Cooperative Ass'n Oil Co. The members of this committee are: John Orr, representative Mutual Insurance Co.; Mark Lewis, shareholder of Cooperative; Edna Baker, youth leader; Gail Hamilton, board member; Pauline Harsha, junior; B. F. Rice, president of Cooperative; Geo. Pillsbury, manager of Co-op.; Walter Taylor, minister; Leo Halsey, employee of Co-op.; M. M. Hughes, representative of Creamery Ass'n; Mrs. Elva Staley, woman member; Neva Orr, woman member.

Don't let our enemies say "I told you so." Show them the Union is strong.

STRIP CROPPING HELPS SAVE SOIL. Salina, Kan., April 18—In the war on soil erosion, strips of erosion-resistance crops alternated with strips of clean cultivated crops across the slope have been found to be effective barriers, point out agronomists of the Soil Conservation Service.

Strip cropping, the agronomists point out, checks and velocity of runoff water, causes more moisture to be absorbed, and filters out soil particles being removed. This greatly reduces erosion dangers. The erosion-resistant strips, which vary in width from 20 to 100 feet, depending upon the slope of the land, may consist of thickly seeded annuals such as Sudan grass, cane, lespedeza, oats, wheat, barley, or soybeans, or they may consist of the more permanent plants, such as alfalfa, and sweet clover. The agronomists explain that if strips consist of annual crops that should be rotated each year with clean cultivated crops. If permanent strips are used, the clean-cultivated crops between the strips should be rotated each year, with only occasional rotation for the strips.

Who will be the first in your Local to report a new member, or an old member brought back into the Union? With a large membership right at the starting of the year, the Farmers Union will be more effective than ever before.

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET LETTER

By P. L. Betts Dairy and Poultry Cooperatives Inc.

Week Ending April 15, 1936 BUTTER MARKET. With firmness prevailing at the opening the market registered advances during the week up to 2 1-4 c in Chicago and 1 1-4 c in New York. Considerable of these advances were, however, lost in declines at the close of the week. The market is very easy and unsettled at the close.

Early in the week some distributors, supplying retail trade, who, as reported in recent weeks, had been keeping supplies closely cleared, apparently did not have supplies to meet demands, but in some instances had real difficulty in finding butter to fill standing orders. For the most part production is showing some increase, but the increase is not heavy. The recent cold spell which spread over much of the producing area appears to have had a marked effect on production. In many instances declines are reported, while in others increase has been checked.

As the week closes, demand is less active and supplies are beginning to accumulate. While there is no great excess quantity of butter in any of the markets, it will not take much of an accumulation of supplies at this time of the year at prevailing prices to force a lower market. The speculative element is interested in getting prices down to storage price levels and thus the minute supplies begin to exceed demand advantage will be taken of the opportunity to push the prices down. That is a customary procedure and this year is no exception, thus a marked decline in prices can be expected in the not distant future.

EGG MARKET

Cooler weather has retarded egg production to some extent. This, coupled with exceptionally good movement into consumptive channels, and a very favorable April 1st cold storage report has resulted in fractional advances in the egg market during the week. Many reports show movement of eggs into consumptive channels the past few weeks one of the best periods of record at this season of the year.

This active consumptive demand for hatching purposes has taken a considerable quantity of eggs that otherwise would have gone into storage. The April 1st U. S. Cold Storage Report shows a shortage of 706,000 cases as compared with April 1st last year and 626,000 cases short of the five year average. The movement into storage, however, can be overcome in the next two months as the season is at least three or four weeks late. Breakers are resisting the recent price advances and in some instances have ceased breaking temporarily, pending further developments. Prices in the next few weeks will be influenced very greatly by receipts.
