SOME DAY someone will ask you, "What did you learn in college?"

Some of us will say,
"I learned my lifetime occupation;"
Some of us will say,
"I didn't learn a thing;"
While others of us will say,
"I learned to live life."

Each year in August or September, mommies and daddies all over the nation send members of their families off to college with the profound words,
"This is the most important time of your life. Take it seriously."

The most important time of your life.
Why?
This is where you'll prepare yourself for your lifetime occupation,
This is where you'll find your mate,
This is where you'll become an average middle-class American.

PHARMACIST
Progressive hospital needs an alert individual for part time night, weekends, pharmacist position. Previous hospital experience desirable, but not necessary.

WITH feelings of loneliness and desolation, we leave home to attend college.

Like good children we study earnestly, but life becomes a ritual of classes, bland food,
and studying oral communications.
Life is very serious, no play — all work.

We live a reality that is not ours.
Instead it belongs to our parents or to a frustrated society.
Then, after a few days, weeks, or months of this ritual we begin to supplement our lives with dreaded blind dates, television,
X-rated movies, alcohol,
and even dope.

AFTER a short time, academics, for most of us, seem almost idiotic.

Boring professors, rote learning, and a general feeling of “what the hell am I here for,” often lead many of us to believe that this animal called education is worthless. The only thing left to do is live our own lives and laugh in the face of disaster.

Cutting classes, warm friendships, good music, sleeping late, watching the sunrise and midnight diner trips, become an important part of your life. You relax and become yourself; college life agrees with you. Vacations come and go, and then . . . final exams.

Coffee, all nighters, cramming, No-Doz, prayers, crib sheets, exam forms, nail biting, and then it's over. Some of us will have to explain what an F on the computer slip means; while others of us can smile with satisfied arrogance.

THE coming winter brings a new semester and a renewed sense of responsibility that lasts until the first signs of spring. Books and classes are again replaced, but this time with woodsies, sun bathing, Tuttle Creek, spring fever, and weekend trips to Colorado, Galveston, or New Orleans. Predictably, all of this comes to a crashing halt with another round of finals.

For some of us summer vacation is summer vacation, collecting experiences in South Dakota, Europe, California, or Seaside Park, New Jersey.

For others, summer vacation is summer school, getting ahead for next semester, or catching up from last semester.

For the majority of us, summer vacation is work, boring or interesting jobs, collecting backaches, headaches, and paychecks. Yet for the most part, summer is a gas; Wine, surf, old friends, concerts, and bull sessions cause us to loosen up and forget the pressure of the previous nine months. We become human beings again.

INEVITABLY, the grind begins again, as it does year after year.

The human being in you slides into the background and you're part of the rat race again.

Old faces are missing, but new faces fill the empty spaces.

A change of major brightens up your life for about two weeks.

And then you start waiting for a vacation to begin.

Lots of times there are failures:

You lose a friend,

a course turns out to be a bummer,

your roommate moves out,

you're not chosen for a select group, and sometimes you fail a course.

OFFICE OF THE DEAN, COLLEGE OF ARTS AND SCIENCES
EISENHOWER HALL

Dear Karen,

I am pleased to inform you your academic record for the fall semester 1971, was of sufficient distinction that, on behalf of the faculty of the College of Arts and Sciences, I can award you semester honors. This honor signifies that during the semester you were enrolled in 12 hours or more of graded college work and you have earned a grade point average of 3.30 or better. (Points are earned at the rate of 4 for each hour of "A", 3 for each hour of "B", 2 for each hour of "C", 1 for each hour of "D", and 0 for each hour of "F".)

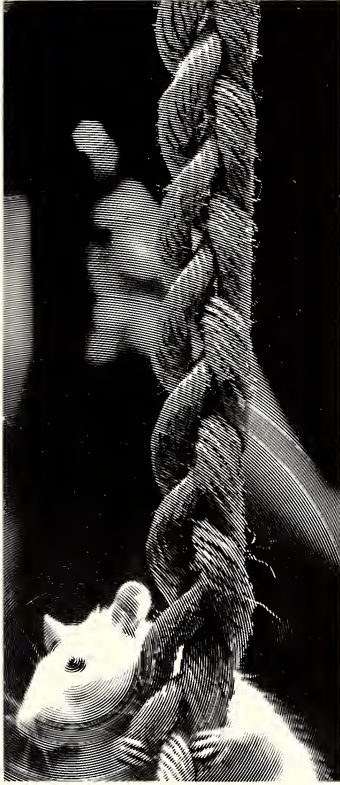

The faculty join me in congratulating you on this recognition of outstanding scholarship. Please accept my own personal congratulations and best wishes.

Sincerely,

William L. Stamey

TIME goes on and so do you.

Mixing joys and failures, dreams and reality,
And then it appears,
the light at the end of the tunnel.
You realize it's almost over, but not quite.
You still feel unsure, that you're not ready,
that you can't survive in a rat race world.

Even if you are scared and unsure, you're happy. Life is very nice.
Yet, as happy as you are,
there are some people who make life into a down.
Everything is worthless, always serious and never smiling.
The weight of the world is upon them:
They are the great stonefaces, who do nothing but live a life that isn't theirs but instead, represents the failure of their society;
the failure to live life.
You realize that maybe that's why so many people are sad and frustrated, because they are living somebody else's reality rather than their own.

YOU think about what a waste four years has been.

You realize you've learned more by listening to a troubled friend, cooking your own food,
by talking to other people,
by laughing and crying,
than any teacher could have taught you.
You realize that education, as defined by others, is bullshit.

Your education has taken place, not in classrooms, but in dorm halls, run-down apartments, or over a joint.

You realize that your life is your own and that it doesn't belong to your parents, your friends, or to society at large.
It's your life,
You'll do what you think is right;
live it the way you think is best.

SUDDENLY, you feel like you're on top of the world.

Even if you have just a two point you realize you're just as smart, if not smarter than the person with the four point.

A sense of confidence flows through you,
you know you can survive.
Life won't be all roses
but at least you can handle it.
You're satisfied, you're happy,
and you smile . . .

It has often been suggested that a culture's pattern of viewing reality is of a cyclical nature, oscillating between idealism and materialism. Many factors indicate when one cycle has ended and another has begun. Ethics, economic practices and art forms are just three of these indicators.

In an effort to provide a means to predict the direction in which our culture may currently be headed, we present seven pages of K-State student artwork which may be used to evaluate these trends.

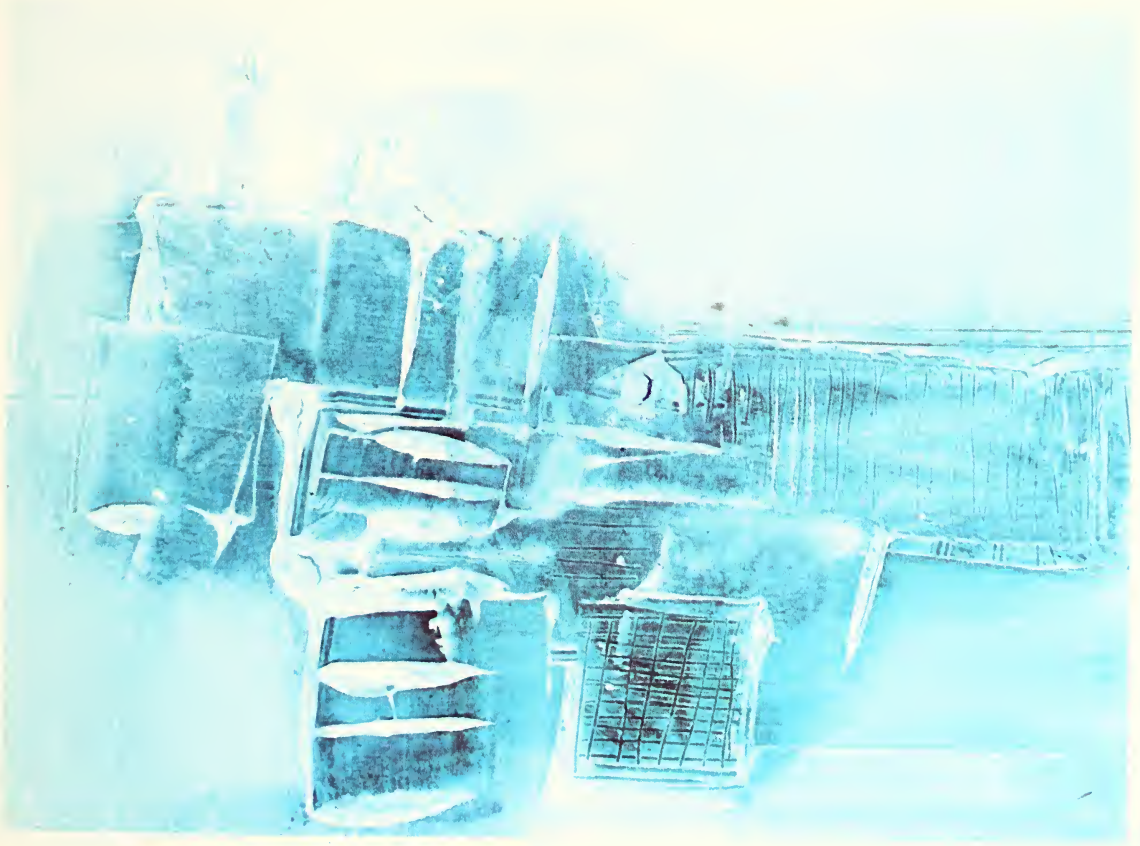

View the following pages with this idea in mind and draw your own conclusions about the direction of our culture. We leave you to be the judge.

To Those who Know

To those who can see,
I say look.
To those who can hear,
I say listen.
to those who have the godly ability of both,
I say nothing.

Oh, time, once I longed for you to possess my body and make me strong and wise.
To lift me from the eternal sun world of shadow and death.
On your infinite length'd wings I could soar & see the gray world as it is and leave it without touching commander's mud.

But this is all of fancy tales given to the young of flesh.
The wings of reality never pick you up — but push you down — farther in the darkness of earth's cold mud.
It makes one look with eyes opened, pried like a halved nut unable to move to its originality.

It hand feeds you with a large wooden spoon, forcing you to swallow the unpalatable facts of life after which your mouth is molded by time's unseeing hands, which folds the fat of your mouth to form a subhuman smile of what you do not like.

Friends

To lose a friend by death is a cold hard blow by predetermined foresight. We display our emotional feelings by outward crying, confessing, & taking on a shocked, neglected physical appearance. With the advance of time our emotions are soothed. Our shock has subsided while respect grows.

Yet only when one loses a friend that still lives on does one feel the full force of rejection, loss, and suffering pain of helplessness. To lose a friend by death's greedy paws is hard enough to stand, but to lose a friend as a result of snobbery, gossip, conflicting opinions, or dislike is beyond full recovery. To lose a friend on such earth-bound bases is so unnatural that only those deceased can be the judges.

One's living lost friend is a mirror to one's past, one's mistakes, and one's short comings. Like a blood-stained knife, the lost friend is a mocking reminder of rejection based on the blade of immature standards.

To have such a mocking reminder is in itself more of a hard sight of death than death itself.

What can be more mocking than an empty chair, an empty bed, or an empty house that could be easily filled by the friend you have disclaimed, but due to your own personal standards you continue to reject — continue to kill.

Empty bodies have empty eyes to convey empty emotion. Emptiness is death itself. Mocking reminders tell no lies.

Jack Freeman

Once

I have travelled by myself for years, looking for an ear that would listen.
I have ventured night and day, looking for a place for my brain.
I have walked down an unknown path leading to a clouded end.

O Lord, how I have ventured, from booze & sex, to acid and pills.
Each time I have searched and have failed.

I have been to Hell and back again too many times.
My empty shell is tired of this useless cycle.

Once there was a way homeward,
Once there was a way home.
Once there was a human,
Once it was a way to be.

Sunny days, late night studies arouse inner fantasy of spring

How do I explain the me behind the Spring? Tingling, goosebumps — skinny dippin' Tuddle Lake? Cruising Petticoat Lane — bikined bodies catching Mr. Sun, me — catching that pretty girl's glance, Spring, when my heart turns on to love? Late night oil, burning my brains out for tomorrow's 7:30 final, burning my endurance, my last pack of cigarettes, and a pot of black coffee? Sandals, grubby feet — tangling toes with blades of new grass? Piggy-back rides to the Union — galloping past my winter-groggy friends? That pitcher of beer I decided was better than my ol' Poli. Sci. book, or my notes on Romanesque Architecture? Frisbee championships at the house, temporarily delayed when some dummy threw it on the roof? Trying to get a date with that cool blonde chick sitting in front of me — Damn! She has a ring — must be the season ... Rappin' — debatin' — intellectual (maybe pseudo-intellectual) discussions on the "Keep off the Grass?" ... May, maybe me ... Maybe that chick ... Maybe an "A" ... Maybe it'll rain ... puddle wonderful!

Union Program Council votes; HQ talent is out of business

Harlequinade died in its 56th year after final 1971 performances. Union Program Council, sponsor of the HQ committee since 1965, voted to discontinue it.

Many reasons were given for the cancellation. UPC explained that HQ had turned into more of a rivalry between groups, and detracted from its intended fun and learning experience. Animosity had arisen in participating living groups, according to Garnet Wilson, HQ executive producer for 1971.

In 1971 HQ lost $1,500. Last year only 1,700 tickets were sold. Most ticket purchasers were connected with the participating groups or involved in the production.

Another reason for ending HQ was that dorm living groups had greater difficulty in getting organized than did Greek groups. The past two executive directors felt the program was difficult to produce and created hard feelings.

However, in view of the good aspects of HQ, a committee was looking into a means of reviving or replacing HQ.

HQ, born "Aggie Pops" in 1916, was a talent show for fraternities and sororities. It became an all-university showcase for talented students to perform student written plays about campus life.

Top honors in 1971 went to Sigma Chi and Gamma Phi Beta, who presented "Success By Degrees" or "Robin Should But He's Not the Marian Kind." The skit was a take-off on Robin Hood and his "gay" men. They came to college to steal and learned they would have to specialize in one area of the art.

"Success By Degrees" was chosen from three other 20-minute skits: "Barnyard Tails" or "Jimmie Crack Corn an' He Don't Care" by Delta Upsilon and Kappa Kappa Gamma, "Once Upon a Pitchfork" by Lambda Chi Alpha and Alpha Xi Delta, and "Beyond the Volley of the Balls" by Tau Kappa Epsilon and Kappa Alpha Theta.

Comedy plays prove to be "spring successes"

A wide-eyed young innocent and a racy German wife were the centers of two K-State comedy theater productions last spring.

Billed as a German theater party, "Underpants" was presented by the K-State players, K-Purrs and the department of speech. Preceding the play, a German dinner was served in the K-State Union.

The play itself is a slapstick German comedy about what happens to the wife of a German bureaucrat when she loses her underpants. Amy Rea, freshman in general, played the wife and George Johnson, graduate in speech, portrayed her husband. Other cast members included Jeff Danielson, Gay Johnson and Frank Siegle. Mike McCarthy, speech instructor, directed the production.

Written in 1915, "Underpants" shows a humorous picture of Germany at that time. When it first appeared early in the century, the play was considered scandalous.

For the K-State performance, a musical score was written by Hanley Jackson, assistant professor of music, and was played entirely on an Arp synthesizer. The electronic musical background was used to add dramatic impact to the play.

Later in the semester, the departments of speech and music presented "Little Mary Sunshine", a comical spoof on pre-1920 musicals.

In typical melodramatic style, the musical featured a pure heroine, Little Mary Sunshine, played by Kay Walbye, freshman in speech, and a fearless hero, Captain Jim played by Ed Preston, sophomore in medicine.

As the owner of a Colorado inn, Little Mary plays hostess to Captain Jim and his Forest Rangers who are searching for an Indian named Yellow Feather, played by Michael Van Dawson.

Also guests at the Inn are six Eastern girls fresh out of finishing school who provide romantic interests for Captain Jim's Forest Rangers.

Carl Hinrichs, assistant professor of speech, directed the musical and Edith Hinrichs was choreographer.

NIRA rodeo and LAR keep contestants busy

One hundred contestants representing 18 colleges and universities met in April for the 24th annual National Intercollegiate Rodeo Association rodeo. Men competed in bareback and saddle bronc riding events, steer wrestling, calf roping and bull riding. Women's events included barrel racing, break-away calf roping and goat tying. Belt buckle trophies were given to the winner of each event and the top four in each event received cash prizes. The All-round Cowboy and All-round Cowgirl were given trophy saddles.

Also in the spring, 120 students groomed and trained animals for the 43rd Little American Royal. Trophies were awarded to two grand champion showmen and winners of the beef cattle, sheep, swine and horse classes. Three $100 scholarships were presented by the LAR Association.

Rollins' case shows Tribunal needs reform

The practical value of Student Tribunal might be questioned in the light of student cases heard first in civil court. The October 1970 incident involving Andrew and Edward Rollins in which Tribunal tried to handle the case, revealed many inadequacies and contradictions within Tribunal's code.

Not until March 1970, however, did Student Senate confront the necessity for reform of the student judicial process. This came as a result of an incident in the Union which again involved the Rollins brothers.

On March 16 Riley County police arrested Andrew Rollins for allegedly striking a coed in the Union. His brother Edward was arrested for aiding escape.

Senate's job was touched-off in a December 11, 1970 letter to President McCain from Student Tribunal. Tribunal requested that they not hear certain types of cases involving violations of University or Regent's Board policies:

— cases of potential dismissal or suspension.

— cases in which the defendants do not acknowledge involvement and plead guilty.

— cases in which a student wishes to request a formal hearing. This request resulted from the procedural problems incurred by Tribunal following the October 1970 incident.

In answer to Tribunal's letter and to the Rollins case, McCain proposed a three-man board to hear their case. His board consisted of the dean of the student's college, the Faculty Senate president, and a representative chosen by the student body president. Senate, however, passed a resolution strongly requesting that the student body president not fill the position.

Senate thus faced the immediate need to either accept an administration policy or draw up an alternative under student process. Some type of judicial ploicy needed to be established as soon as the Rollins brothers were out of jail. At that time the University would hear their case.

So, Senate drew up a tentative proposal before Easter break calling for:

— three faculty members appointed by Faculty Senate chairman.

— four students appointed by a selection committee.

— a non-voting chairman by joint appointment of Faculty Senate chairman and the selection committee.

The proposal also stated that the Interim Hearing Board, as it was called, would not hear cases while charges were pending or being tried in civil court until after a decision had been reached by the courts.

In a later meeting, after Easter break, controversy over selection of members arose; should they be selected by lottery or appointed as was originally proposed?

After considerable discussion, the Interim Hearing Board was approved by Senate with members of the eight-man board being selected by lottery. University attorney Richard Seaton was to serve as a non-voting member on the board.

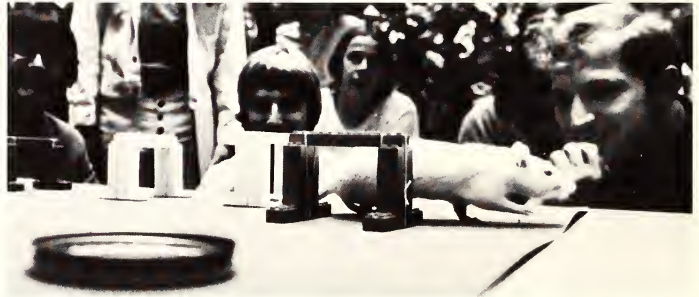

Senate's proposal was then to be sent to McCain for approval. However, the board never reached the legal channels for approval because the Rollins brothers left the University before any established judicial policy became necessary. As a result, both McCain's three-man board and Senate's alternative were dropped.

Speculation arises from this bungled attempt as to the legality of hearing a person's case twice for the same offense. Both Rollins brothers were sentenced to jail in a preliminary hearing in Riley County court. But if a similar incident occurs again, and the University is able to hear the student's case after a court decision, one asks: Is he being placed in double jeopardy?

Open House is a merry-go-round of tours, displays, tents, films

Open House — K-State opens its doors to high school students, junior college students and other visitors to show them what the campus is like ... the visitors hop on the mad merry-go-round ride: architecture — paratents (constructed of old parachute sections and wooden columns) provide rest areas and a space frame in front of the union ... arts and sciences — helicopter rides (aerospace studies in front of Anderson) ... planetarium tours and the Van de Graeff accelerator (physics department) ... Home Economics — “hospitality day” ... a fashion show sponsored in the fieldhouse ... College of Veterinary Medicine — guided tours explaining procedures and treatments used in large and small animal sections ... a film dealing with veterinary education ... the Little American Royal and Rodeo ... a Jazz Festival — in the afternoon Kansas and Missouri High school students performing, and an evening concert by the K-State stage band ... then ... the ride ends ... the helicopters are gone, the films put back in their tins and the paratent's covering torn and flapping in the strong Kansas wind. Only K-State remains.

Scott praises Nixon policy in Spring lecture series

With praise for the Nixon administration, Senator Hugh Scott spoke on the topic, "Implications of Foreign Policy." He was the third speaker in the Landon lecture series last spring.

The Pennsylvania Republican said that the administration has struggled to create a climate in which peace can grow. Scott also praised Nixon's Vietnam policy. He said that peace is a great hope of the Nixon administration but that it can not be achieved "without some dislocation, some discomfort, some disturbances here at home."

Much of the success of the current administration, according to Scott, is due to Nixon's three-part program of revenue-sharing, welfare reform and reorganization of the government.

After his speech, the senator answered questions from the audience. He was asked about the President's open-door policy with China (concerning the ping-pong match). He replied that some of the gains from this policy would help in easing the tensions of the government and would show the Russians that we do have options. He credited Nixon with making a dent in the Bamboo Curtain.

Other questions dealt with the draft and its extension and the possibility of an all-volunteer army. Scott said that he favors a delay of abolishment of college deferments until present college students graduate. He also supports an all-volunteer army, but he says that we might have to wait for two years.

Poise, personality and beauty judged equally in contestants

To those involved in the Miss K-State-Manhattan pageant of 1971, it was more than just a beauty contest. It was thought of by the participants as a great opportunity, a new experience, or just as the fun of entertaining an audience.

Linda Blackburn won the annual pageant franchised by Miss America and sponsored by Manhattan Jaycees. She was chosen from 13 campus finalists by out-of-town businessmen. Linda, who represented Delta Delta Delta sorority, said, "I realized it was a good experience to gain poise and self-confidence."

"It was a chance to really work for something," Linda said to emphasize the competition's importance to experience and scholarship. She received a $300 scholarship and cash prizes.

First runner-up last year, Cathie Physioc, felt the contest was an impressive experience and a chance to do improvisations on stage. "I do not think anyone could really get anything out of it," she said referring to the benefit she might have gained from the pageant. When Boyd Hall put her up for the honor, her intent was to learn about the pageant before either praising or condemning it. Cathie felt the competition's greatest worth was as an audience pleaser.

"Nowadays this is not a beauty pageant," according to K.L. Homolka, last year's director of the pageant. He explained 50 percent of judging was based on talent and 25 percent each on swim suit and formal competition. "I feel being in the Miss K-State-Manhattan pageant is very important to the girls. It's a great opportunity for them, especially if they make it to Miss America in Atlantic City," he said.

The Miss America pageant was begun in 1921 as strictly a beauty contest. Since then it has put more emphasis on talent and personality. Homolka sees a long future for the Miss America pageant where other beauty contests will be short-lived.

Women's lib; another way to look at women

By Laura Scott Divin

Women's liberation has become an ugly term to many persons, men and women alike.

It connotes masculine, man-hating women without bras spewing continuous rhetoric about instant abortions on demand, equality with men and powerful sisterhood.

All of these things are women's liberation, but none of them is representative of the movement which has reached a growing number of women in varied stages of life since its inception in the late 1960s.

The ugly image of women's liberation is not realistic because of the many types of women who comprise the movement. Bra-burners have been joined by teachers and secretaries in sisterhood. The middle class homemaker is supported by her sister, the 21-year-old college coed. The black mother on welfare is as important a part of the movement as the young, married, white woman.

Much of the misunderstanding concerning women's liberation stems from ignorance of its goals. Few women's liberationists despise men; many of them live with a man. Few women's lib followers want to be just like men; they see the male of the species is in a plight, too, and do not want to share it. However, women's liberationists do not necessarily want to stop being mothers, wives, lovers to men.

What do women want? The answer is much like trying "to come up in five short years with the magic remedy cleanser that will wipe clean the unbelievable mess men have created from their position of power during the past five thousand years," one women's liberationist said.

Women are beginning to grope toward certain answers that seem right: equality with men in social, political and sexual contexts; the ability to determine one's own future by one's own capabilities; establishment of identity without being attached to a man.

In short, women's liberation goals focus on the ability of a woman to realize the full extent of her creative capabilities without hinder-ance because of sex.

Women believe they should be treated as equal human beings, and not be relegated to certain roles or identities because they are female. Women's liberation criticisms center around the fact that women are assigned certain niches in life and find it practically impossible to crawl out of them.

Many women do not feel that their "place" is necessarily the kitchen, that their "duty" in life is necessarily to please a husband, that their "creativity" is limited to having children. They believe that they, too, should be able to have careers, to pursue a goal outside of, or without, family and home to the best of their potential. They should be able to become executives, politicians, professional persons if this is their ambition. Moreover, they do not feel this has to be an either-or proposition. Just as men may have family and career, women should be allowed the same if they wish it.

Women's liberation emphasizes the fact that women are human beings, not simply sexual objects whose sole purpose is to please men. The idea should be for sexes to please each other, a give and take understanding between human beings, which cannot develop if one sex is continually put down and shut out from the privileges the other is accorded.

Within the women's liberation movement, not all followers work toward the same goals. Some women believe political gains are important, others, social. For these reasons, women's liberation is actually two movements: "Women's liberation" and "women's rights."

Women's rights purposes to "bring women into full participation in the mainstream of American society now" to quote a statement of the National Organization for Women. It wants to complete the civil rights movement begun by the suffragettes to achieve equal opportunities with men in all areas. Women's liberation considers itself more radical. It cries for a new way of life. Unlike the reformist women's rights groups, women's lib is revolutionary in nature. Present society must be changed for women to benefit from the fruits of their labors.

From these movements have sprung a thousand different organizations and groups, from the college woman's consciousness-raising group to the Women's International Conspiracy from Hell (WITCH). Each group espouses different aspects of women's liberation philosophy. Through her own group, a woman who had been struggling on a one-to-one basis with her man begins to see the solidarity of the group as a method of achieving change.

At K-State, the women's movement has taken on subtle forms. Consciousness-raising groups and classes aimed toward explanation of woman in society have comprised most of the group activity, although women individually here are working toward fairness in hiring and firing practices, change in residency requirements for married women students, job placement, and day care centers for children of married women students.

While at K-State the results have been slow in coming, nationwide signs are encouraging: women faculty at a large midwestern university receive back pay because sex discrimination is proven in promotion; an angry black woman considers running for President; a group of housewives establish day care centers in their community so mothers may work rather than being bound to home; a woman becomes the first female vice-president of a major airlines. The list is endless. Women from all positions in life are challenging the status quo.

This, then, is women's liberation: one woman who admits to herself that she has been victimized because of her sex and infectiously passes her anger and desire for change on to another woman who in turn infects another. This is the direction of women's liberation thus far and it shows little sign of subsiding until womanhood realizes the full potential of her capabilities as equal member of the human race.

Spring Fling events brighten second semester

Water balloons thrown at helpless riders to drench them and the bed they're on as they were raced around the course; a feeling of being suffocated and squashed as countless human bodies pile atop each other to stuff a bathtub; and then people stuffing themselves at leadership and scholarship banquets and tasting new foods at an international dinner served at residence hall food centers; free dances and outdoor movies give students a chance to unwind from studies and just relax — it's a fling! More specifically it's known as K-State's Spring Fling.

Spring Fling, a second semester event, is sponsored by the KSU Association of Residence Halls for dorm members. It's a week for students to forget all their problems and just have a good time.

It's a time when students can get involved with other students and do things they normally wouldn't do. And nobody cares what anybody thinks about anybody else because they're all doing the same wild and crazy things. It's a totally relaxed time for meeting new people and "just being yourself."

No one is pressured into participating in any event, but almost everybody in the residence halls gets involved in some way throughout the week.

It offers banquets, movies and dances and events like the bed race and bathtub stuffing contests, and ends on Saturday with a picnic and games.

Because of last year's new semester arrangement, Spring Fling was scheduled very close to final week. Participation in some events was down from previous years because students were caught in the hassle of finishing last minute papers and studies. But still a great many dorm residents took advantage of Spring Fling activities to vacation from school work.

From fertility rituals to political demonstrations

"May Day, the first day of May, long celebrated with various festivities, as the crowning of the May queen, dancing around the maypole, and, in recent years, often marked by labor parades and political demonstrations." — The Random House Dictionary of the English Language.

In the eighteenth century May Day was a celebration of the opening of a season of new vegetation, a remnant of ancient agricultural and fertility rituals." In the nineteenth century May Day lost its original connotation, and it survived merely as a gala festival until 1889 when it was adopted in much of the western world as an international labour day.

Now, in the twentieth century the term May Day has taken on a political connotation as an occasion for important left-wing group demonstrations.

May Day 1971 was such an occasion. Hundreds of thousands of students throughout the country demonstrated their dislike for this country's Vietnam war policy. They changed the spelling of May Day to "mayday", meaning the international distress signal to indicate their desire for peace.

The K-State involvement began Tuesday, April 27, when Tom Davidson, a member of the Harrisburg 13, a group accused of plotting to kidnap Henry Kissinger and to blow up the U. S. Capitol, spoke to K-State students.

On Wednesday, Igal Roodenko, National Chairman of the War Resistance League urged students to bring the war closer to home and to get out and do "grass roots work", that is, to inform friends and neighbors about the Vietnam situation. He cited veterans' participation in protests throughout the country as proof that the American public is getting more fed up with the country's war policy.

In comparison to many other campus demonstrations throughout the country and to the massive Mayday rally in Washington D.C., K-State participation in the mayday moratorium was nil. Only 3.2 percent of the student body participated in the peace march on the final day of a five day rally.

A group of 400 marchers ended the protest week by parading through the streets of Manhattan chanting their disapproval of Nixon's war policy.

On Mayday protesters listened to several war oriented speeches at the Manhattan City Park. Speeches offered peaceful to violent recommendations to bring about change in U. S. war policy.

Many students felt that K-State's poor turnout of 400 demonstrators on Mayday was indicative of the apathy hovering over this university. Others maintained that the march conflicted with an activity filled weekend at K State. Spring Fling and the Spring Football game lured the greater numbers of K-State students on May 1.

On the national scene, the largest mass arrest in this nation's history occurred in Washington D.C. when 14,000 protesters were arrested during four days of "peaceful" protest. Arrests reached such a magnitude that demonstrators were held captive in a fenced in practice field near Kennedy Stadium and in overflowing Washington D.C. jails.

Wherever the protests occurred throughout the nation, one point was made clear; an increasing amount of people are becoming disillusioned about the nation's war policy.

Finals Frolic; fun and strategy

Football is not the only game K-State can play. There's a fun sport, played for an entire week, that takes place twice a year — it's called Final Frolics.

This is a university game played by students, but in the past, students have suffered a disadvantage in not having a set of rules for playing. To balance that situation, here are the official rules for the unofficial games of Final Frolic . . .

OBJECT: The object of the game is survival. The players (i.e. students) meet seemingly unsurpassable obstacles, and must, to the best of their ability, (whether this be through skill, chance, or cheating) overcome them in order to finish.

(NOTE: Finishing is not necessarily synonymous with winning).

To win, a player must maintain, or still more challenging, improve his classroom status as recorded by letter grades. A letter grade of "A" is worth four points while "F" is worth zero.

RULES:

1. Everyone is a player (or student). All players are issued a plastic card and a number that automatically enters them in Final Frolic.

(NOTE: This card also entitles the player to participate in other university games such as Registration, Go Through The Proper Channels, and Stand In Line. See specific game for details).

If a player chooses not to participate in F. F. (in truth, an impossibility since he is already in the game), he is automatically recorded a loser and will probably not be invited back to play many more times.

2. The week-long game is played (1) during the Christmas party season and (2) in spring, when the player's mind is especially keyed to books.

3. F.F. is essentially composed of test taking. Thus the player is provided with the opportunity to demonstrate how much he has learned during the semester and/or how much he can fake it. Tests are administered by several figures of authority, in this case called professors. (Other variations on this noun are also suitable).

Test taking will make or break, so to speak, a player. One semester of work will not save a player if he fails his tests. Ho, ho!

PREPARATION: Fun and strategy enter here! There are several options open to the player. He can;

A. Keep up with assignments during the semester, before the actual game begins, and devote his time to study so that when playing F. F. his chances of finishing and possibly even winning are increased to as much as 30-40%.

B. Attempt one semester's work in one night — .5% chance of winning; .05% chance of finishing.

C. Smile alot and pray between card games and beers — 100% chance of survival; .5% chance of winning.

ADDED ATTRACTIONS: Added attractions to F. F. include panic, exhaustion, nausea, and hysteria.

(NOTE: Not all players acquire these features, but those who have the real feel of the game do).

FINAL NOTE: Players are reminded that despite the emphasis placed on Final Frolic as a matter of pass or fail, it is only a game and good sportsmanship is appreciated.

Galbraith: not a “purely perfunctory address”

John Kenneth Galbraith concluded the 1970-71 Landon Lecture Series with a critical discussion of the “disaster of our foreign policies in the third-world-Latin America, Africa and Southeast Asia.”

The well-known economist, presidential advisor and former envoy blamed foreign policy bungling in the “third world” during the past decade largely upon the bureaucracy of the Pentagon and called for a withdrawal of military aid programs in these areas.

Galbraith outlined four lessons in foreign policy which the United States has learned during the past decade: 1) the limits of our power in the third world; 2) Capitalism and Communism cannot be issued in a poor society that has yet to experience either; 3) efforts to influence the development of the “third world” creates a very large civilian and military organization and 4) an overseas bureaucracy develops a life and a purpose of its own.

At one point in his lecture Galbraith observed, “I hope you are comfortable because I didn’t come all the way out from Cambridge to give you a purely perfunctory address.”

K-State listeners, who have complained of trivial and indifferent campus speeches, responded with enthusiastic applause.

During the question and answer session following the lecture, Galbraith, who spent several years as an Ambassador in India, said that K-State’s agricultural program in India is effective as long as efforts are concentrated on cereal production, which he termed, “the most important thing to the country.”

More than one way to think about graduation

Pomp and circumstance . . . look at all those people . . . I wonder where mom and dad are . . . wow, there are a lot of seniors . . . there's Joe; I'll probably never see him again . . . Patton, who's he? . . . this is the last time I have to listen to McCain . . . the big moment is here . . . now I've graduated . . . I hope mom doesn't get sentimental about all this . . . Hail, Hail, Hail Alma Mater.

Baseball team finishes with mediocre season

The fifth place Big Eight finish and a 18-15 season left the K-State baseball team disappointed and dissatisfied. "We're a better baseball team than our record shows. We played good ball on our spring trip and then we went to Colorado."

On the trip to the Riverside, California, Tournament the Wildcats played against nationally ranked teams such as Stanford and Arizona State. K-State played these teams right down to the wire and made a very respectable showing.

The team traveled to Oklahoma State and Colorado that same week. The game against Colorado was played in a snowstorm. This series marked the turning point of the season. The pitching staff began to have arm troubles. "Pitching is 80% of the game. We just gave up too many walks as compared to strike outs," Coach Bob Brasher remarked.

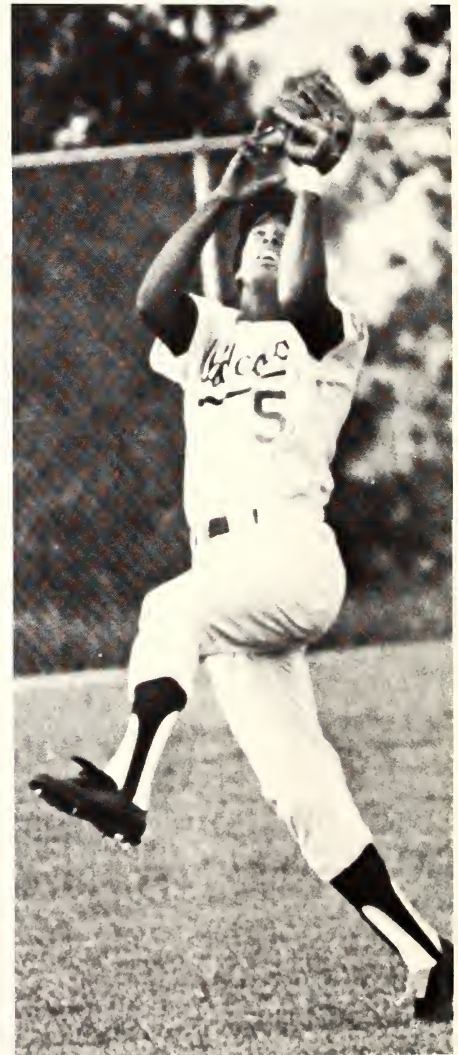

Players seemed to agree that after the Colorado game the season was not what it could have been.

"We just didn't jell." "We weren't consistent, when we had some pitching we couldn't hit, when we hit we did not have the pitching" . . . "The pitching, it didn't come through for us."

The Colorado game was an omen of what the Big Eight season was to be like. The lack of pitching depth and inconsistent hitting were the main reasons for a second division finish. As one player put it, "We just couldn't get it together."

Track team finishes in second at the Big Eight track finale

When Deloss Dodds, head track coach, came to Kansas State in 1963 the track team was a lower division team. In the past five years K-State has progressed to one of the top title contenders in the Big Eight.

Members of the track team sacrifice a lot of time and effort to better themselves in their events. An average distance runner trains year round by running approximately 100-150 miles per week. The short distance and field event men train for 10 months on running and technique.

Coach Dodds' philosophy is the way to have fun in track is to win, although it's not the end of the world to lose. Dedication and training help an individual attain his top performance.

The 1971 Track squad was the best ever at Kansas State. The season was climaxed with a second place finish in the Big Eight and a number of school records were broken. The '71 squad did have some weaknesses but Coach Dodds feels those weaknesses will be strengthened by the upcoming 1972 team. "We'll be in it with a real chance of winning," said Coach Dodds.

Tennis team finishes fifth in Big Eight play

The Kansas State tennis team attempted to come into contention in 1971, led by seniors David Hoover and Randy McGrath. But even with a team full of promising players like Fred Esch, Doug Oxler, Randy Fletchall, and Larry Loomis, it was not as easy as it seems.

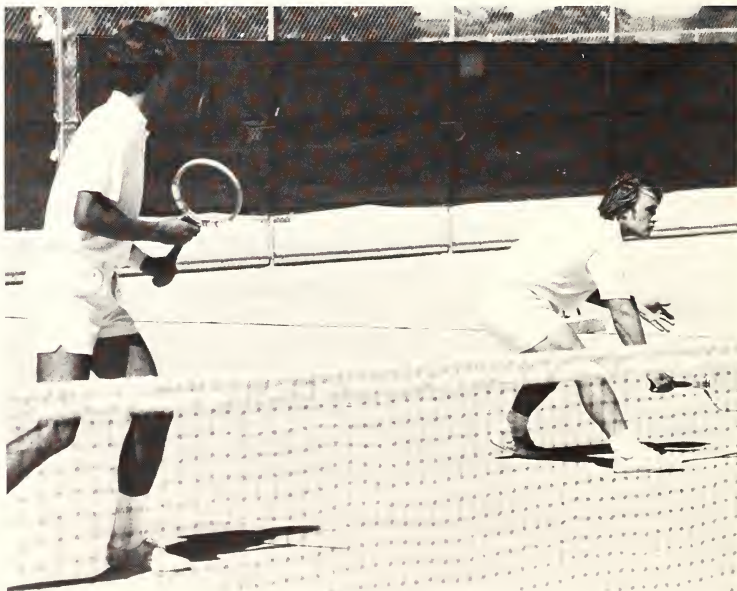

Tennis is a grueling sport. You are always moving, muscles tensed, and unbelievable concentration is a must. The main point is accuracy. The placement of the ball is the most important point of tennis. You must have the ability to put the ball where your opponent is not. Therefore you have to try to make a shot that is difficult if not impossible for your opponent to return.

This problem is compounded when two players team up to play a doubles match. The biggest problem is knowing how your partner will react to different situations. A good doubles pair know exactly what each partner will do thereby eliminating missed or poor shots. It takes teamwork between the two players. As one player put it, "It is important to feel comfortable with your partner".

Somewhere along the way, though, the mistakes caught up with the 'Cats as they finished the year with a 5-10 record. They also had a tough time at the Big Eight Meet finishing in a four-way tie for fifth, after only one player, Randy McGrath, made it to the finals.

'Cat golf team ends with disappointing season

When a team finishes seventh in the Big Eight the only way to go is up. At least that was the way K-State's golf team looked at it as they prepared for the 1971 season.

But it is not as easy to knock that little ball around as it looks, particularly when it takes constant practice every day to be any good at it. Any type of layoff is detrimental.

After three months of inactivity, one player commented, "I was concerned about how my game had suffered."

The future does look a little brighter, though.

"We hope with the addition of Bob Philbrick to the squad along with three returning lettermen, we can make a better showing than last year," Coach Ron Folger commented.

Philbrick, a transfer student from Hutchinson Junior College, who finished in the top 25 in his two years of Juco competition, moved into the top spot for the Wildcats. He, along with two-year returning lettermen Doug Meier, who consistently turned in strong performances for the 'Cats, teamed up as K-States top men. They were joined by Randy Gelwix and Ron Folger, also returning lettermen.

Rowing squad becomes an Olympic competitor

Rowing, the oldest varsity sport in the United States, found its way to K-State in 1963 and has since had a history of continued success and growth. It has come from a single shell donated by Purdue University to a boathouse complete with shells, oars and a motor launch. It has come from inexperienced crewmen to members able to participate on the Olympic level. The 1970-71 crew, consisting of the undefeated freshman crew of 1969, added further strength to the team. In order to be a good team they give quite a bit of themselves. They run long distances and they exercise. They run stadium steps and they lift weights but most of all they row!

Why do they row? "It gets in your blood" ... "I don't know, Just crazy, I guess" ... "Just like running, I just want to be-no, I just want to show-that I'm the fastest." Some shrug their shoulders and others stare in disbelief at the thought of the question being asked. "Why do you go out and row?" There must be some reason because they are rowing and they are winning!

Board of Regents' actions praised; criticized

Campus policies and proposals at K-State and five other Kansas colleges and universities are made by a group of nine men, the Board of Regents.

The Board holds monthly meetings at which they discuss and dictate campus policies. Researched money proposals passed by the Regents go to the state legislature for final approval. Proposals include increased appropriations, the need for new buildings or the acquisition of land.

Since July 1, 1970, Regent actions affecting K-State include; — approving the construction contract for a swimming pool and girl's gymnasium to be located to the rear of the men's gymnasium.

— approving the total contract on a second Veterinary Medical building.

— approving the acquisition of 235 acres of land at Cheney Reservoir for agricultural research purposes.

— approving preliminary plans for an annex wing to be added to the K-State Auditorium.

— waiving the mandatory retirement age for President James A. McCain for one year.

— prohibiting the sale of malt beverages on state property but making it legal for students to consume such beverages on state property if approved by the campus administration.

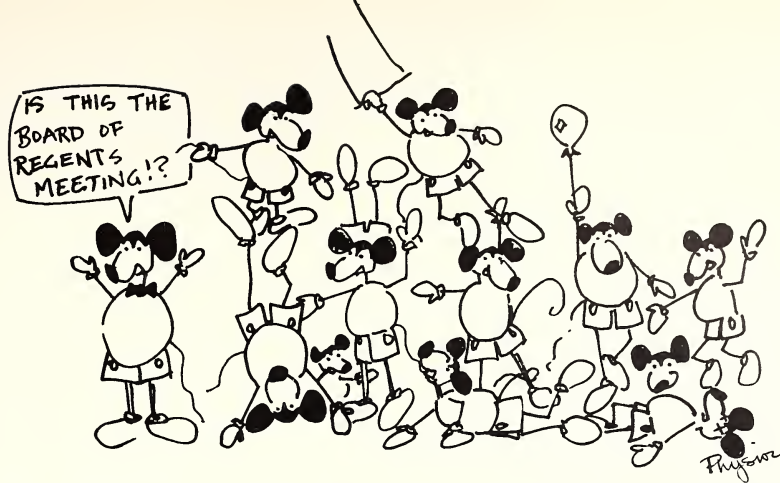

In the past the policies set forth by the Regents were rarely questioned. However, today, possibly because of press concern with Regent actions, K-State students and students from the other state colleges and universities are criticizing as well as praising the actions set forth by the Board.

Some students say the Regents cannot understand that the student's needs simply because Board members are not that closely associated with college life. Also, the fact that the Regents do not favor student representation on the Board supports students claims that the Regents want to keep students out of decision making processes which affect the university community.

Those students who support the Regents retaliate saying that Board members often visit the different university communities and converse with students about their needs and problems. They add that students can, by working through their college president, get an item placed on the Regent's agenda for discussion, thereby having indirect representation at Board meetings.

Whether the average K-Stater is pro or anti-Regent is difficult to determine. An informal survey pointed out that many K-Staters do not even know what the Board of Regents is, while others had strong feelings for and against the policy making body.

Nine men responsible for fates of 50,000 students

By Sandi Reed

A meeting of the Kansas Board of Regents is as interesting as a 7:30 or 4:30 class and as frustrating as being stood up for the third time.

There they sit — nine men who control the future of 50,000 college students in their six state schools — tapping their feet as if to speed up the process of running education. They look as if they are bored with education; as if they don't give a damn.

It's an informal atmosphere. So informal that it's hard to follow what's going on.

Secretaries run in and out with telephone messages; regents bob up and down, leaving the room to get coffee or to go to the john; university presidents come and go.

Amid this clamor once a month (usually on the 15th, but often arranged around football and basketball games), the regents govern the state universities.

Each university or college president is allotted 30 minutes of each monthly meeting to seek board approval of programs at his school.

In October at Pittsburg State College, the board of regents unanimously authorized President James A. McCain of K-State to authorize a biology club to buy a pickup truck with money it received as a gift. And with little more discussion than it took to buy that truck, the regents approved Wichita State University as the site of a branch of the University of Kansas Medical School.

(Granted, committee discussion of the WSU approval preceded this meeting.)

And so it goes. On and on.

Unanimously, the board approves construction of a sidewalk at KU, leave of absence for a professor, out-of-state travel for university faculty, students and administrators, a contractor for the new veterinary medicine building at K-State and the closing of a dorm at Fort Hays.

Six schools in Kansas are governed by the regents: K-State, the University of Kansas, Pittsburg State College, Kansas State Teachers College of Emporia, Fort Hays State College and Wichita State University.

Each month, the day before a formal board meeting is set aside for committee meetings. Each regent is a member of three committees and it is in these small groups that the real work of the regents is done.

Their formal meeting, which is open to the public if the public can guess where and when it is, is to allow them to publicly stamp their unanimous approval on everything they did in committee.

Split votes are rare and few things to go before the board that require debate because they are busy men and it's too time consuming for them to debate at their formal meetings.

Members of the board are men.

All are appointed by the governor for a two-year term, but may be reappointed at any time.

The only requirement of the board's make-up is that five of the nine be of the political party that cast the most votes for Secretary of State in the previous election. The other four must be of the second-place party.

Chairman Paul R. Wunsch is from Kingman, Dr. James J. Bashman is from Fort Scott, Henry A. Bubb from Topeka, Carl L. Courter from Wichita, W. F. Danenbarger from Concordia, T. J. Griffith from Manhattan, Robert W. Helman from Goodland, Elmer C. Jackson, Jr. from Kansas City and Jess Stewart from Wamego.

An executive officer, a facilities officer, a budget officer and an academic officer work full time for the part-time regents.

As originally planned, the board has four specific duties:

- To review university and college budget requests.
- To review proposed and present school curricula to see that programs are not duplicated or financially weak.
- To approve all allocations for building funds.
- To approve each school's overall budget each year.

Most meetings are at the board's office in the State Office Building in Topeka. They try to visit each of the six state schools every other year.

Dr. McCain; host, counselor and president

A slender man wearing an administrator's grey, pin-striped suit greeted me for the interview.

The place — a very comfortable office. The president was at his desk and I was busily taking note of his daily routine.

While he was on the phone, I glanced around the room. A neat stack of books on his desk was topped by a paperback copy of Future Shock. Beside his desk blotter was a Snoopy statue with a plaque which said, "World's Greatest Boss."

As soon as he finished his conversation, I began asking questions.

He explained he has many ceremonial responsibilities which involve meeting with people about such things as potential industry at Fort Riley, issues affecting K-State students, or being present for presentation of scholarships.

"I average about one ceremonial function a day," he said.

"This morning I went to Fort Riley to greet General Westmoreland, then I was back for a luncheon with four men from NATO," he added.

The phone interrupted the conversation. The president rolled his white swivel chair back slightly and picked up the phone receiver.

"Yes, I'm talking to the Kansas Wheat Growers Wednesday afternoon ... OK Max ... Right-o ... Bye."

He hung up and said, "Never a dull moment around here!"

Despite his off-campus obligations, President McCain is deeply interested in the students at K-State, and most of his day is spent visiting with individual students or with student groups.

"Last Wednesday, for example," he said picking up his calendar, "I had a conference with one student, a group of three students, another student, a Collegian reporter, and the student body president."

"I see an average of half a dozen students a day. Not usually serious problems."

He turned to a stack of mail on his desk. As he began to read the first letter of the day, the phone buzzed again.

It was a brief conversation. His letter reading ignored for the moment, he discussed another phase of his job.

"Pressures are put on us to admit students to the Vet school here. There are 19 in the U.S. Vet schools have an unwritten agreement not to admit students from states having their own Vet school. I have one or two problems like this once or twice a month," he said.

Returning to his mail, he remarked, "It's almost a fetish with me to answer letters as soon as they come in. Usually this is done in the first part of the morning."

He read through a letter, flipped off his glasses, pounded his fist on the desk and laughed.

"I get crank letters, too! I never get more than one or two a year and today I got one."

The letter was from an elderly person. The writer seemed to be dissatisfied with the way people sneeze. He suggested that people sneeze the way children do, and asked the president for his advice.

"I'll send it to the Assistant to the President with a note; 'you answer this. I'm too tired!'"

For awhile, it was quiet as I filled in my notes and he read the minutes from the last Faculty Senate meeting.

He turned and faced me. Pushing his glasses down on his nose, he said quietly, "You know, today is my birthday. We had tea and cookies this morning as we do for any staff member."

I wished him a Happy Birthday.

As he turned once more to finish his mail, a student came in to ask him about residency requirements.

After the student left, McCain said, "You have to be a kind of intellectual gymnast. You have to shift gears to meet people about different situations; students, legislative matters, administrators."

Next on the president's agenda was a meeting concerning additional student housing, and the interview was concluded.

After the meeting, the president said he was going home to eat birthday cake and "then off to the basketball game."

Peace on campus — goodwill towards K-State

Is K-State as peaceful as it seems? Absolutely!

Is there anything going on beneath the surface? Nope! At least this seems to be the general consensus around campus.

Are the students here just uninterested? Are they more interested in just getting an education and leaving? Why does this campus seem so quiet? Why has it been pronounced dead by some?

Answers to these questions vary. Most of the students feel there is nothing brewing right now — at least not anything radical.

“Just pretty damn apathetic!” said one student.

Yet, Rowan Conrad, graduate in education, had a more positive view of the situation. He explained that the students have found they can work within the system and still get things accomplished.

He said that there are now students in Student Senate who would never have even given it a second thought two years ago. He said they have found that when legitimate channels are used, more people listen than if radical means were used.

He continued saying students have found they can get something done through campus human interest programs such as the freshman orientation program.

“Students run the program all the way,” he said.

According to President James McCain, the type of change the student wants designates where the student should go to initiate action.

For example, if the student wants change in terms of teaching, then the department level is the place to go. But if one wants to bring about the reduction of fees, he should express his concern at the student body level. (i.e. SGA)

McCain believes that the typical K-State student is not interested in SGA. He added that the majority of students at any university are not that interested in student government.

“K-Staters are not aware of the possibilities there are in student involvement. Real concern can become real action if enough students are interested in change.”

Jane Bacon, senior in sociology, joins those who agree that the typical K-State student does not care what goes on in the decision making processes of this university.

Rodney Bates, senior in agriculture, said the only thing that might be happening here is initiated by the ex-students.

“They aren’t involved in the campus life, so they have the time to do something else. But, even these people aren’t doing much because they’ve realized it’s a futile effort,” Bates said.

A coed said, “No matter what we do, nothing will change. So, why try?”

“After Kent State, students found out exactly what could happen,” another coed said.

“They realized nothing would ever be accomplished by protests so they gave up. Knowing this, students decided to concentrate on their private lives.”

One student commented that many K-Staters are disgusted with the priorities here. They are tired of seeing money spent on the football team.

“It would seem that there are more important things that could be done with the money,” he said.

He added that some students may try working within the system but most have found out that it doesn’t work, so they give up.

It seems that people on campus cannot agree on the answer to the questions posed.

However, “The Underground Guide to the College of Your Choice,” seems to have drawn some conclusions about KSU.

According to this publication, K-State students are “generally straight — jeans, pullover sweaters, and button-down shirts. Plain Janes of the American Gothic paintings . . . the students aren’t even liberal.”

"I'm sorry, but this class has been closed."

By Rosanne Powell

You stood in line at the football games; you stood in line at the movies; you stood in line to buy a Union doughnut . . .

You stood in line at pre-enrollment and saw the guy ahead of you take the last card for the course you wanted — closed class!

Closed classes are one of the biggest hassles students face each time they pre-enroll and register for classes. This fall an increase of approximately 1,000 students at K-State resulted in a large number of closed classes during fall registration. In addition to the classes closed during registration were the classes closed during the '71 spring pre-enrollment. Consequently students griped louder and had sorer feet than during previous semesters.

Classes close when the maximum number of students have enrolled in a class. The maximum number depends on seating capacity in a room, or the instructor's own class limit.

During spring pre-enrollment some of the classes closed first were the sociology and psychology courses. Two popular home economics courses closed early in pre-enrollment were human relations and family relations.

According to a secretary in the sociology department, the sociology classes closed "almost as quickly as they were opened." She said the problem was not having the personnel to handle the overflow of students wanting to get into a particular class.

The story was much the same in the psychology department. A secretary there said "generally the psychology courses close during pre-enrollment." She said that the decision to open a class is made by the department head and the course instructor.

Some problems have arisen as a result of family relations and human relations being closed early in pre-enrollment. These classes are taken by as many home ec majors as by non-majors. Students who need the courses to fill major requirements often must wait a few semesters before they can get into the class.

Another problem arises for incoming freshmen who pre-enroll during summer orientation. Often classes they want have been closed since the spring pre-enrollment.

This fall there was a 10 per cent increase in freshman enrollment, according to Dean Ellsworth Gerritz, director of admissions and records. This increase resulted in many freshman classes closing. During summer orientation english comp. I and II closed, oral communications I closed, and even the large lecture classes man's physical world I closed.

To try to accommodate this "never before" situation, more instructors were hired (many graduate teaching assistants), more sections were opened, and more students were placed in each class.

When a class closes, a student may wait until the next semester to get in, choose another course, or go through the gruelling process of drop-add.

At registration he picks up a drop-add appointment slip at the ULN table. This entitles him to go through drop-add earlier than someone without a slip.

After seeing his advisor for another drop-add slip — he trots over to the Union drop-add room.

Because classes open and close quickly during drop-add, it is left up to chance who will grab the right card at the right time. If, however, a class remains closed through drop-add, a recommendation to open the class may be made to the particular department by the person in charge of drop-add.

According to Kathy Cline, in charge of drop-add and enrollment for the fall semester, it often takes a great deal of time to open a class. The department head must be consulted, he in turn consults the instructor who either agrees or disagrees to open his class, and who conveys the message to Mrs. Cline.

For the student this may mean either selecting a second choice or waiting half an afternoon to get into the class.

However, in some cases the student can get in the class by permission of the instructor. He then has a card made up for him at the drop-add table.

Too many students and not enough instructors increased the number of closed classes in the fall. According to Dean Gerritz, besides the 10 per cent increase in freshman, there was a nine per cent increase in undergraduates, and a 26 per cent increase in transfer students.

K-State received only six new faculty positions last fall to cover the increase. The positions were decided upon in the spring of '71 by the Kansas State Legislature.

Each year the legislature receives recommendations from the Governor for budget increases in Kansas State colleges and universities. The Board of Regents receives a request from K-State, and if this request is approved, it is recommended to the governor.

Last spring K-State requested a ten per cent budget increase for faculty salaries. Governor Docking cut that request to one per cent, and the legislature cut the request to nil. K-State, however, was left with the six new faculty positions. To handle the increase, Gerritz said, "we needed more like 60 to 70 positions."

"The price freeze was in effect in Kansas even before Nixon announced the national wage price freeze," Gerritz said.

So — no money; no teachers; no teachers, closed classes; closed classes; long lines; long lines — sore feet.

I suggest you see your advisor immediately . . .

Vietnam war damages prestige of the uniform

By Dave Schafer

It used to be that there was no surer bait for a fine lookin' woman than a uniform. But my, how the times have changed! Vietnam has done more to ruin the image of the uniform than a sloppy tailor could.

Nowadays, the uniform reminds many of an unwanted war. The past decade has seen the disillusionment spread from a handful of "radicals" to include the people who had labeled them that in the first place.

Since the uniform stands for the military and since the military fights wars and since Vietnam is a war, the uniform and the man who wears it have been blamed for the whole godawful mess.

Early dissatisfaction with the war began on college campuses. And what part of the military is most closely associated with the campus?

Rotsee!!

The Reserve Officer Training Corps (ROTC) is intended to train college men as officers in the Army, Navy, or the Air Force. All maintain ROTC units on various college campus. There are currently over 360 colleges and universities having at least one ROTC unit.

Kansas State University has two units: Army and Air Force. And while enrollment in their programs has tapered off, probably as a result of this widespread dissatisfaction coupled with the new draft lottery, they have not been forced off the campus as some units at other schools have.

Take Harvard, for instance.

In 1969, after months of debate, ROTC academic credit, faculty appointments and notation in the catalogue were abolished. Since this was incompatible with federal laws governing ROTC, the program was terminated.

Much the same thing happened at three other Ivy League schools: Columbia, Dartmouth and Yale.

At Harvard ROTC came under attack from both liberals and radicals. The liberals, asking that ROTC'S credit be taken away, claimed that it did not measure up to the school's "high intellectual standards."

The radicals, demanding ROTC's expulsion, cited it as a "training ground for leaders of an army engaged in the suppression of just popular movements both at home and abroad."

Proponents of ROTC argued that, since the law required each school to okay the unit commanding officer's appointment, it in effect exercised control over the academic quality of the program.

They further argued that a professional military cadre, without benefit of the college-educated citizen-soldier provided by ROTC programs, would constitute the makings of a real threat to freedom.

So the argument rages on. Those against ROTC claim that it is a detriment to campus life because it trains men to wage war. ROTC's advocates maintain that there will always be a need for a defensive force to be made up of citizen-soldiers than the professional variety reminiscent of Bismarck's Germany.

K-State isn't any Harvard, though.

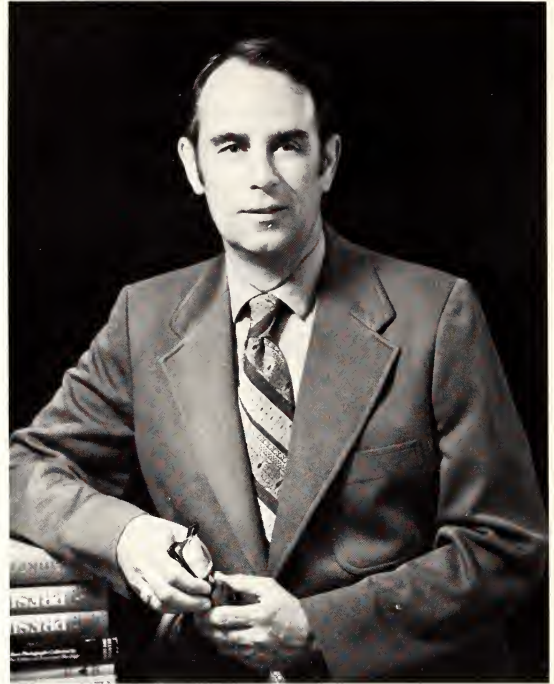

The same arguments have been raised by both sides but the dissatisfaction has never been translated into action. Apathy, conservatism, K-State's Land Grant status — all may be factors contributing to the lack of an organized anti-ROTC movement.

Barring intensified dissatisfaction or a severe drop in enrollment in the programs offered here, the position of ROTC at K-State may be fairly secure. Of course, these factors are dependent upon developments in Vietnam and elsewhere.

The future of ROTC here is up for speculation. Who knows? Ten years from now, when, hopefully, the Vietnam conflict with all its dreadful ramifications is a fading memory, the military uniform and the man who wears it may regain at least some of the prestige that was once theirs. Maybe even on college campuses.

In the beginning was created the earth which had been granted to build a college; and the land was without form.

It was directed that a great hall should be constructed and it was to be called Anderson. And many other halls were built throughout the land and the spirit of Knowledge moved across the face of the students.

And the college begat a university which flourished and multiplied. Now it was in this land that the Wild-cats roamed free; and great was university.

And the followers of R.D. Herrod walked through the shadow of dry grass and gnashed their teeth and banged on the bolted doors of the library and resented the threat of the raising of tuition that might come to pass should this ill fortune continue.

And the students said, "Woe unto us. Is there no salvation from this valley?"

And the heavens moved and the thunder rolled and the regents spat upon them, saying, "There is nothing we can do. Get ye back to your Unions. There is nothing we can do. The evil has been planted by those above us."

And McCain and his low priests trembled and wept and Woe cast its shadow over the land.

But, in time, they hitched up the shashes around their tunics and continued with that which they already had.

Yea verily, and the Board begat the budget their number.

And a Board held council regarding the university. And it was strong, indeed. It spake with the mind in stillness and saw with eyes put out by the Light. And, alas, its ears were made deaf to the bleating of the sheep that served it.

Hence, its bowels were filled with ones called regents, yea, nine of them — each increasing its power thereof.

And in the land of McCainaan, there came a time of accounting. And when the estimates were in, the McCainaanites foresaw the coming of 350 more souls. But, alas, a multitude of 1,000 were to descend into their midst.

And the Board said, "The tax collectors are in great disfavor throughout the land. And a plague of grief would come should more homage be demanded of the people."

Therefore, the regents smote down the colleges and universities of the land saying, "Hence, you shall be allotted only that of which you had before;" in other words, "Baby take what you can get." For blessed be the taxpayers for they shall inherit the bread of the

New priorities play havoc with SGA allocations

By Mike Trulson

"Whack, whack, whack," the parliamentary gavel said.

"Will you please listen to the speaker on the floor? Let's have some quiet so we can hear the speaker on the floor," the Chairman with the parliamentary gavel said.

"Whack, whack, whack, whack," the parliamentary gavel repeated.

"Is there anymore discussion on this amendment?" the Chairman asked.

"Question," a voice from the crowd said.

"Whack," the parliamentary gavel said.

"The question has been called," the Chairman said. "Is there a second?"

"Second," another voice in the crowd said.

"There has been a second," the Chairman said. "Is there any objection to ending debate?"

"Objection! Objection!" more than one voice in the crowd said.

"Whack, whack, whack" the parliamentary gavel cried.

"There has been an objection to ending discussion on the amendment to the amendment to allocate $250 to AWS," the Chairman said.

"Whack, whack, whack," the parliamentary gavel said.

"We'll now come to an immediate vote on ending discussion on the amendment to the amendment to allocate $250 to AWS," the Chairman with the parliamentary gavel said. "Those in favor, please raise your hand . . . , those opposed . . . , are there any abstentions?"

"The motion fails 17-21-2. We will not continue discussion on the amendment to the amendment."

"Whack, whack," the parliamentary gavel declared.

So it goes.

Whack. Whack. This is the sound of student power at work at Kansas State University. Student Senate is a place where there is a lot of power potential that is seldom kinetic. It is a gathering of people who create frustration because of their seeming inadequacy and the games they play. Yet, Senate is not just a bunch of students allocating student activity fees to various organizations. It isn't that simple anymore.

The Humanity Party was a driving force in Student Senate. The party as a group of students who had worked with each other before and had the same basic ideology. They decided to form a political party to acquire a voting bloc in Senate and put across their ideas.

It was the party, with its aims that set the mood of the Senate. They advocated a priority list for the allocation of funds.

Since a large portion of Senate's business is the allocation of student's fees to campus organizations this funding priorities list was implemented. Expediency and morality were often at loggerheads.

"Whack, whack, whack," the parliamentary gavel said.

"Let's have some quiet so we can hear the speaker on the floor," the Chairman said.

"Whack, whack."

" . . . OK, please continue," the Chairman said pointing to a wrinkled sport shirt.

"Now this College Council allocation is set up to give twenty per cent of the total student activity fee to the college council. This is utterly absurd," the wrinkled sport shirt yelled.

"The councils themselves have not even asked for the money. We are allocating money that was never even asked for and by doing this we are shortchanging organizations that will be hurt are the ones we ourselves have decided, on the basis of our priorities, are deserving of the money. This College Council bill will cut into the funds of Senate's own projects. The lawyer, the minority research center, Drug Education and Counseling Center, and the Teacher, Course Evaluation will all be hurt if we insist on giving $32,200 away to people who haven't asked for it and would have little or no idea what to do with it if they had it!"

"Yes, go ahead," the Chairman said indicating the raised hand of a navy blue sport coat.

"I think you are overlooking a few very important facts that should be brought to the attention of the Senate," the navy blue sport coat said in a calm, measured tone. "If we are to look at the philosophy behind the priorities Senate has set up we will find that they were established with the student in mind. We want the needs of the student to be utmost in our minds. So, we drew up the College Council bill. It is designed to take the choice of where the student's money goes one step closer to the student himself ... the college councils.

"Each council will receive a certain amount of money for each student in the respective colleges. This will ensure equal representation for each student. Then the college can allocate that money to organizations that are of direct interest to the student in that college ..."

"Oh, goddamn! What a bunch of shit," the green sweatshirt hissed at the frayed army shirt next to him. "They know damn well that the only reason they're pushing this is so that they can get money for the judging teams that we refuse to fund. It's just one big political move to screw up our priorities. They'll try anything to get at our Senate projects, the bastards!"

"Senate is not just a bunch of students allocating student activity fees to various organizations. It isn't that simple anymore."

"... This bill," the navy blue sport coat was saying, "is designed to give the student a more direct say in just exactly what he wants done with one portion of the money he has paid in tuition. Sure, the councils might decide to fund some of the organizations we have cut. The Arts and Sciences Council might decide to give money to Debate and Oratory which we have tentatively cut or the Ag Council might fund the meat or flower judging teams. But that is up to the councils and the students in that college."

The crowd broke out in loud whispers and exclamations as hands shot up in the air in an effort to be recognized as the next speaker.

"Whack, whack," the parliamentary gavel demanded.

"Quiet please ... OK, go ahead," the Chairman said pointing to a brunette with wire rim glasses.

"You seem to overlook a few pertinent facts," the brunette with the wires began. "The bill is theoretically sound but it lacks in a few practical points.

"First, the college councils are, for all practical purposes, functionally dead. They are, at this point, not able to handle the allocation of any funds we would give them.

"Second, because they are functionally inoperative, they have no legitimate and viable programs to spend the money on. As it stands, we would be giving money away to people who don't know what to do with it at the expense of some tried and true programs that have a definite and beneficial purpose.

"I admitted that the bill was good in theory so I am not about to advocate throwing out the whole bill. What I do suggest is that we allocate a much smaller amount to the councils. In this way we won't hurt our other programs, but will give the councils a little money to work with and develop a program. The next year when the councils have developed programs and oriented themselves sufficiently to handle the money we can allocate a larger percentage of the money then.

"I would also like to point out to the sponsors of this bill that we cut programs such as the judging teams and Debate and Oratory because we felt that the college and departments involved should pay for them since university credit is given for participation in these programs.

"I, therefore, would like to make a motion to amend the bill to read 5 per cent of the student activities fees."

"It's just one big political move to screw up our priorities."

"Whack".

"A motion has been made," the Chairman said. "Is there a second?"

"Second" a voice in the crowd said.

"There has been a second. We will now open the floor for discussion on the amendment to the amendment," the Chairman said.

"Whack," the parliamentary gavel said.

"This is ridiculous. It is absolutely absurd," the beachcomber's hat moaned.

"Oh, god, why don't we get it over with. Let's vote," a blue pullover with blond hair muttered aloud.

"Being the representative of my college council, which was the only one that requested money, I would like to thank Senate for giving us more than double what we asked for," a frayed army shirt announced to the crowd.

"Whack, whack, whack."

"Let's keep it quiet so we can hear the speaker on the floor, please," the Chairman said. "If you wish to say something, indicate that fact to me and you will be put on the list of speakers."

"Whack," the parliamentary gavel said.

"... I think that if members of the Humanity Party would stop and think about the basic underlying philosophy of the college council bill," the overalls with a beard said grandly, "they will see that it agrees completely with the philosophy and the guiding force upon which the Humanity Party was founded. This bill is getting as close to the individual needs of the student as is possible at this time..."

"... the bill is great philosophically," the frayed army shirt drawled, "and if we could just sit back and contemplate all of the philosophical ramifications of it..."

"What's a ramification?" a granny whispered to nobody in particular.

"... that would be just super groovy, really great," the frayed army shirt said. "But ... when we get down to the hard, real life facts, the bill sucks! It defeats our whole purpose because the college councils will, in all likelihood, fund the organizations we cut. Why? Because they have no established programs who want money and are broadly defined as under their jurisdiction. And those organizations will be the ones we have decided should not get any money..."

"But when we get down to the hard, real-life facts, the bill sucks."

"... it's a move toward grassroots governance," side burns and a goatee said. "I cannot in clear conscience vote against this measure..."

"But what about our other priorities and programs. Are they to be sacrificed for ..." the beachcombers hat demanded amid waving arms.

"... I am against this measure for some obvious reasons and some unobvious reasons ..." the green sweatshirt declared.

"It's an ethical question," a voice cried from the melee.

"Whack, whack, whack, whack," the parliamentary gavel said.

So it goes.

Eloquence often runs rampant amid spurts of inarticulation and both are quickly forgotten by the private caucuses of fellow senators.

Everybody is caught in the web of uncertainty and ambivalence that comes when theory is put into practice. The tedious and exacting process of political compromise is often the only way the senators have out of this dilemma.

A primary factor in the breakdown of the Humanity Party as a voting block was the application of its theory. The senators had the same end in mind, to promote such organizations as draft information and pregnancy counseling and to initiate services like free legal aid and a published teacher, course evaluation, but they took different roads to that point. And these different paths to the top, long with the regular opposition, created a stormy session fraught with ethical and mental masturbation.

"Whack, whack," the parliamentary gavel said.

"We will now continue discussion on the amendment," the Chairman said.

But he was interrupted by four people who quickly entered the room with strangely fashioned boxes hung around their necks and dispersed themselves among the crowd.

"Get your orange drink, candy bars, and assorted pastries," they cried in unison, "get them while they last ... hurry, hurry, hurry!"

"Whack, whack, whack, whack," the parliamentary gavel protested.

"It's like a goddamn carnival," a voice shouted as the vendors hawked their wares among the crowd.

"Let's have a party," another voice laughed as he sipped his orange drink.

"Yeh, I dig it!"

"Right on."

"Hey, throw me some animal crackers, will ya."

"Whack, whack,"

"We will now take a five minute break to finish our refreshments," the Chairman declared.

"Whack," the parliamentary gavel agreed.

To a casual spectator, Senate meetings often look like a carnival where all people do is play games of ideological monopoly and parliamentary roulette. That casual observer is basically correct. But don't let the surface triviality fool you. The senators are dead serious about what is accomplished in the end. The Senate can no longer be said to be just a prestige post where actions are already determined by tradition and need only be acted out again for the sake of form.

"Boy, am I tired of all this shit," the frayed army shirt whispered to the green sweatshirt. We ought to have a revolution and do away with all of this bullshit."

"A revolution ..." the green sweatshirt said.

"Yah, a revolution. We could take over SGA. Have a regular, old-fashioned coup d'etat."

"Expudence and morality were often at loggerheads."

"Then what?"

"Well, we could occupy the SGA office and ... and ..."

"And people would say, 'Hey, look at those weirdos locked in the SGA office' and promptly forget about us."

"Well, we could send out revolutionary communiques ..."

"And we'd sit down in the office saying to people, 'See, I took over SGA.' And people couldn't care cause what in the hell can you do with SGA. It hasn't got any power to speak of that the administration couldn't overrule if it felt like it and there's absolutely no PR possibilities."

"Yah, I suppose you're right. If a coup is to come off ya gotta take over something that's worth taking over, something that has some power."

"Exactly, your coup would fail before it began 'cause there'd be nothing to overthrow."

"Jeez, that's really poor, ya know," the frayed army shirt mused.

"Whack, whack."

"Will you please listen to the speaker on the floor. Let's have some quiet on the floor so we can hear the speaker, please," the Chairman said.

"Whack," the parliamentary gavel said.

Intersession; a quiet time for special studies

Something new ... intersession ... a quiet time on campus ... food at the union, but no activities ... only one dorm, Marlatt ... 300 students ... Marine Biology students down on the banks of the Mississippi River ... round table talks at the library for contemporary fiction students ... agronomy students classified range and pasture plants ... teachers, students, and campus employees recognized a different atmosphere.

Instructors commented:

"This was my first intersession class and I liked the experience" ... "The attendance was much more regular and the students very committed" ... "The physical facilities weren't the best. We started in one room but were able to change — the room made the difference" ... "It enabled us to do a lot of things we couldn't do in the regular semester" ...

Students said:

"Campus was really dead except for those 4-H kids up here for a round-up" ... "Well, there was a lot of material crammed into three weeks" ... "You could really get into your class. They were small and that helped and you only had one class to work for" ... "My parents are living in Germany now, so I really didn't have any place else to go, so I just stayed here and took classes" ... People attending conventions and professional meetings sauntered across abandoned campus walks ... some lounged quietly in the union ... Intersession — it's a quiet time.

Emphasis on history in Abilene performances

Once, the Abilene railroad station was a busy place. It was a stopping place for weary travelers on their way across the plains.

It's just as busy today, but its function is different.

Now, it's the Abilene Kansas Opera House, home for the Kansas State Historical Theatre.

The K-State players, 21 actor technicians and theatrical aides together produced summer stock theatre for the third season last summer.

Producing a summer stock season requires long hours, hard work and, because the salary is small, strong spirit. Mary Badger, a K-State player, said, "It's hard work but when you see how much the audience appreciated the show, it's really worthwhile."

Because of the small-sized company, actors must double as technical crew for each performance. Cast members "are responsible for producing, directing, acting and technical production," K-State Player Kris Nevins said.

Besides doubling as technicians, actors found themselves playing two roles in the same productions. While one group presented a show, another group of students rehearsed the next play and helped with the present production.

In addition to learning lines and fitting costumes, each member of the company put in 15 hours of rehearsal each day. Students received up to six hours credit and a salary for their work.

Putting emphasis on history's relevance to present situations, this year's productions involved theatrical comparisons between the past and present. The five plays were presented to dramatize significant periods and people in American history. Director Norman Fedder feels that "when you become aware of, or see the way you behaved in the past you can get insight to how you'll act now."

As opposed to most summer stock programs, the Kansas State Historical Theatre is different because "we try to explore the nature and meaning of American life," Fedder said.

Abilene, an historic town itself, provides atmosphere and it is a well known stop for travelers and tourists. The actors are able to meet all types of people from all over the U.S.

Sponsored by the department of speech and the division of continuing education, the Theatre made its debut three years ago on an experimental basis and ran only three weeks.

Since last year seating arrangements have been improved along with a restructured electrical system. Approximately 100 individual seats on risers replaced the church pews.

Along with the classics "Abe Lincoln in Illinois," "Our Town" and "Life With Father", two of the dramas presented during the summer of '71 were written by K-State faculty members. "John Brown in Kansas" was written by Wallace Dace, professor in the speech department. Director Fedder wrote "Earp!", a musical play which spoofs American materialism. Besides being a subtle commentary on the Vietnam War, "Earp!" dramatizes the true history of the famous Western figure Wyatt Earp.

Fedder stated that the relationships among the actors and with the audience are most important. "Working with summer stock programs is a religious experience giving one a sense of purpose, beauty and art which is not found in most human experiences. There is quite a bit of commitment involved and it gets very intense, but no one has yet complained."

Summer school seems so long yet so short

Summer school ... eight long weeks.

Eight long weeks of small, talkative classes, relaxed instructors, shorts and sandals, steamy classrooms.

Eight long weeks of crammed assignments — only twenty chapters to read for tomorrow.

Eight long weeks of lonely, shaded campus walks, empty union tables, half-filled theaters, occasional parking places.

Eight long weeks of sunny Tuttle afternoons, muggy evenings on the tennis courts, hours in the library, melting ice cream, baseball in the park.

Eight long weeks of separation from HIM or HER, part-time jobs, first apartments, blind dates to fraternity rush parties.

Eight long weeks of books and reading, postcards from vacationers in Mexico, Canada, New York and California.

Eight long weeks of maneuvering around torn up sidewalks, street repair crews, students lounging on steps.

Eight long weeks of dancing in the park, sudden showers, dripping umbrellas, bare feet, bridge parties, hamburger picnics, bugs.

Eight long weeks of University For Man, learning, doing, experiencing, broadening, workshops, seminars, speeches.

Eight long weeks of Art In Situation, creating, designing, making, accomplishing.

Eight long weeks of summer jobs, hours of folding patterns, sweeping floors, pumping gas, typing, selling, working.

Eight long weeks of preparation, rush week, sorority house cleaning, shopping, repairing worn jeans.

Eight long weeks of green grass, studying, sitting, croquet, touch football, mowing, weeding, watering.

Eight long weeks of washing cars, swimming, sailing at Tuttle, flowers, hot steamy cement.

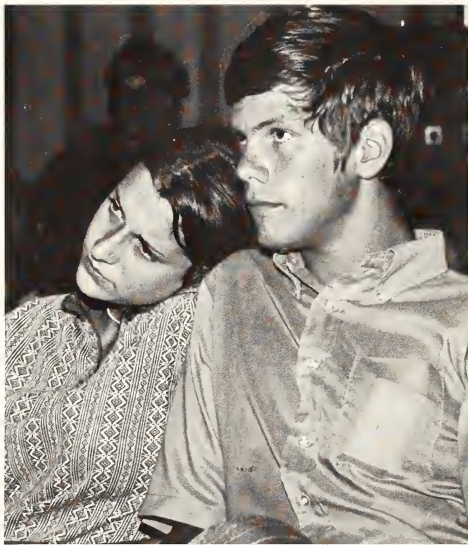

Eight long weeks of TV reruns, frozen dinners, chicken potpies, moving in, moving out.

Eight long weeks of freshman orientation, tours of campus, Dimensions, trip away from home, meeting new friends, dose of purple pride, what to expect, feeling small, feeling young, reassured.

Eight long weeks for beginning freshmen, old married graduate students, finishing seniors.

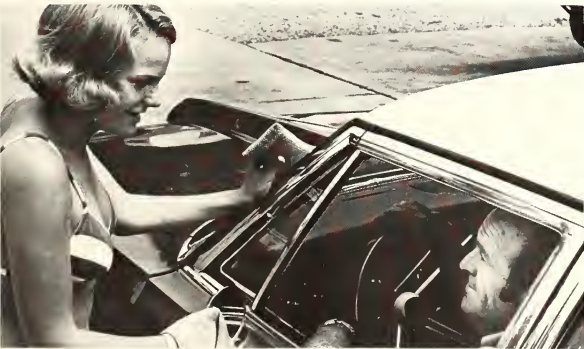

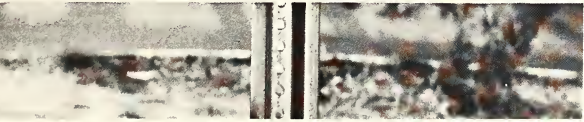

Eight long weeks — a time for adjustment, for finishing up.

Summer school ... eight long weeks which are much too short!

Minutes of local board meeting

Is anybody out there? Doesn't anybody care?

On June 30, 1971, one of Uncle Sam's oldest buddies died, or, more specifically, expired. Consequently, big generous Uncle Sam was forced to quit sending out those delightful invitations to join the sun and fun in his rice paddies.

How did K-State students react? Did they run wild in the streets with ecstasy? Were they quaking at the knees, fearful of the consequences if men were not soon solicited? Or were they unaware of the situation, playing the stereotyped K-Straight role?

Strangely enough, when the selective service ended there was little upsurge of emotion — at least in Manhattan.

Results of a random survey that questioned K-State male reaction to the draft's expiration showed feelings to fall into two main categories — "It didn't affect me, so who cares?" and "It was only a matter of time before the bill was renewed."

"It Didn't Affect Me, So Who Cares?"

"Already completed my service."

"In ROTC."

"Not my year for the lottery."

"Not draftable."

"It Was Only A Matter Of Time . . ."

"It simply meant there would be a short delay before a similar law was conceived."

"I was doubtful — it was too good to be true."

"Only a major change in values of our society would make it possible for lawmakers to follow their own minds and abolish the draft."

In contrast, 22% viewed the bill's expiration as reason for hope and happiness. "I thought it was an indication of de-escalation."

"At least a few Congressmen aren't war mongers."

Only 13% admitted not knowing the law had expired, and 3%, for reasons they chose not to list, indicated they were saddened by the bill's end.

Largely, however, K-State males (about 50% of those questioned) remained unmoved by the draft law's death. Either they felt unaffected or they expected a rapid renewal of the bill.

While they didn't foam at the mouth over a Congressional hassle, 77% of the K-State males did express an intense dislike for the draft system and an overwhelming percentage favored a volunteer army. "Yes, I'm in favor of a volunteer army. I'd never volunteer and hopefully no one else would."

At the other end of the draft shaft, a small group (about 11%) opposed a volunteer defense for two reasons; the quality of volunteers would be lacking and, "a volunteer army would be a professional army. It would promote a self-interest and respond only to itself — two facts that could lead to a rapid military takeover of this country."

One suggested alternative to the draft was simply, "peace."

Now obviously some questions come to mind at this point. Suppose, just suppose, Congress would have continued to battle over Mansfield's amendment to the selective service bill. What would have happened when Viet Nam started to noticeably lose its tourist trade? Could Tricky Dick have zapped out powers and called men into action, or would the war have fallen apart?

Seeking answers to these questions, one could contact his local draft board, right? The Manhattan board, composed of three men, can tell you everything you always wanted to know about the draft except what would happen if there continued to be no draft, how they got appointed to the job, and what their opinion is on the present draft system. They can, however, refer you to the next board member faster than they can classify you 1-A.

Perhaps one K-State student had the solution when he said, "Everyone should throw down their guns, take off their clothes, get stoned, and make love 'til they're too tired to move."

Orientation leaders welcome campus newcomers

They had a tough assignment.

The 18 upperclassmen who served as freshmen orientation leaders last summer were asked to reduce K-State from a sprawling campus to a compact package.

Leaders implemented rap sessions, campus tours and coffee houses to introduce, in segments, college life to more than 3,000 freshmen and transfer students who participated in 2-day orientation sessions.

"Our goal was to make K-State a smaller place," one group leader said. "Instead of being one in 1,000, they were one in 15 and we could give them more personal attention."

"We tried to get a group feeling," the leader continued. Because kids were hesitant to talk at first, creative dramatics were used to help them become acquainted, he added. Students acted out assigned topics such as "double dates" before the group.

The leaders were selected during the previous fall semester and spent second semester preparing for the summer orientation. They met each week to talk about responsibilities and qualities a group leader should have. Each one wrote several papers and chose a subject to research. Each leader served as a resource person on his project.

Formal training for the leaders began two weeks before orientation. They met with representatives from each college to learn more about the University.

One way the leaders conveyed the feeling of being a K-Stater was through a nightly coffeehouse in the Catskeller. Live entertainment was supplemented by W. C. Fields flicks and by skits centered around college life.

Available to parents was a two day session paralleling the student orientation. Administration and faculty members presented information on various aspects of campus life. Every evening the parents were encouraged to meet with their sons' or daughters' group leader to discuss college life.

Discussing the success of the orientation program, a group leader said, "We've had tremendous feedback from the kids. You could tell they really dug it and were enthusiastic about school."

Manhattan freshmen were also incorporated into the orientation program. A leader explained that the Manhattan kids received the same program "because they usually don't know any more about college than other freshmen."

The freshmen weren't the only ones to benefit from the program. One orientation leader summed it up saying, "I learned about people; how to listen and react to them."

Hard-boiled summer competition cracks-up apathetic atmosphere

Writer's Note: During summer school when there aren't many people around, it sometimes becomes necessary to create one's own entertainment to dispel the dull atmosphere. The credit for this escapade goes to Paul Newman. Without his (unwitting) help, there would be no story at all.

The scene was the Pub at 9:30 on a warm summer evening in July; the tenth, to be exact. It was a momentous occasion. Manhattan was about to host its first publicized egg-eating contest.

To destroy an apathetic atmosphere they felt was building up, Mark Steuve and Tom Brown, (better known respectively as "Lousy Luck" and "Bottomless", to their friends,) decided to stage an egg-eating contest at the Pub (owned, incidently, by Tom Brown). Despite what you might infer from their nicknames, Lousy Luck came out ahead, devouring forty-two eggs in one hour compared to Bottomless' inferior record of thirty-six.

The whole thing got started when Lousy Luck began bragging to Bottomless. Naturally, Bottomless, the one with "the supreme ego", couldn't stand for that, so he challenged Mark to a contest. The idea for an egg-eating contest came from the movie, Cool Hand Luke. (In the movie Paul Newman devoured fifty eggs in one hour.) K-State's version provided beer and mustard to help the eggs slide down.

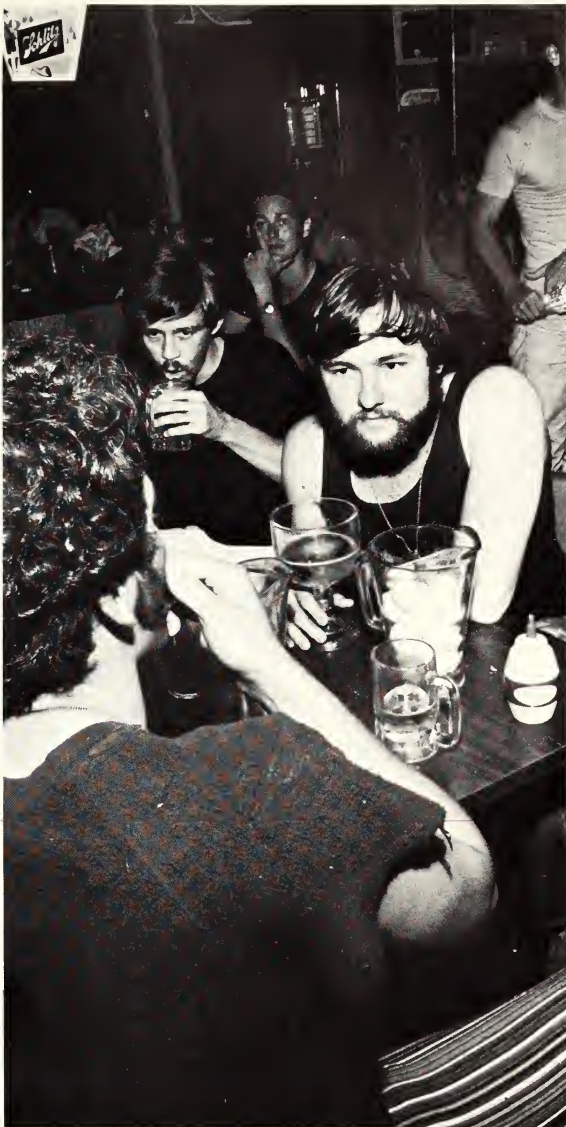

A rigid training program was set up to prepare the men for the contest. Steuve and Brown each ate one large meal a day, usually around nine o'clock in the evening. They also consumed large amounts of liquids to enlarge their stomachs.

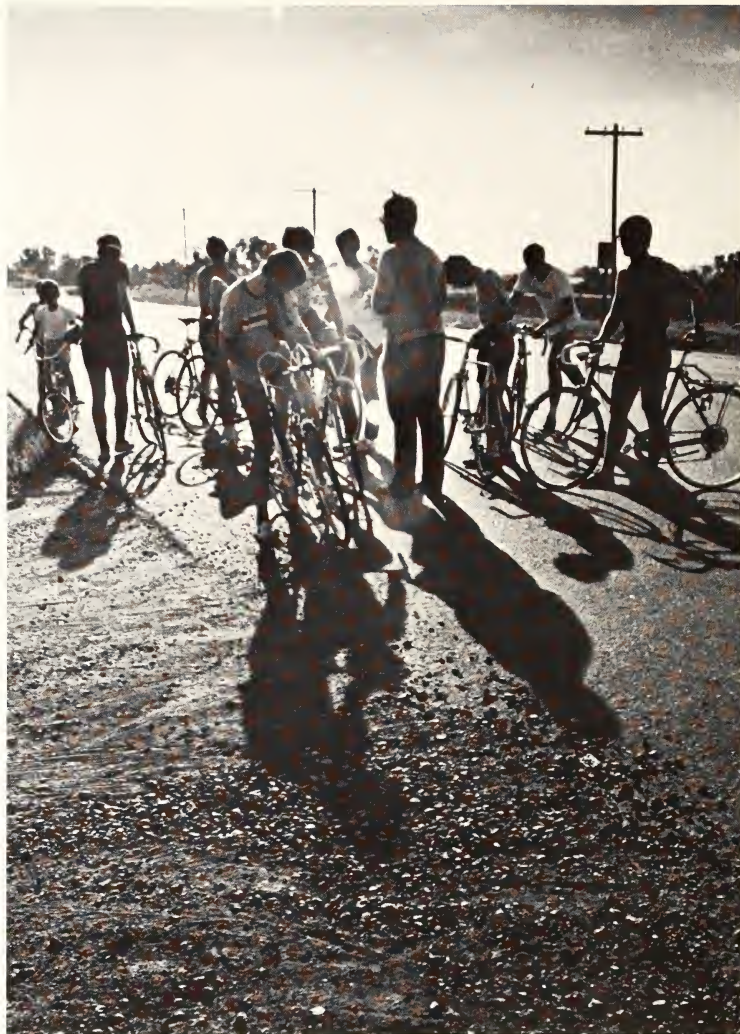

During the contest, a controversy arose between a fan and one of the contestants. The fan accused Brown of putting seven eggs in a bucket and hiding it under the table, Brown denied that, and the last that was heard, was still denying it.

Later on, Steuve jumped up and began doing pushups. It just about cost him the contest, but was worth the effort. He did it to throw Brown off balance; a psychological move that almost backfired.

Before coming to K-State, Mark was in the Marines. He claimed that his marine training gave him the determination and willpower to win . . . Bottomless cracked, "The marines build men, and egg-eaters."

Only time will tell if eating eggs for the honor of winning a bronzed egg trophy will become the rage of the seventies.

Intramurals offer more variety for summer school participants

Intramurals were established to provide athletic competition to others besides varsity athletes and to provide an opportunity for wholesome recreation and physical development. Don Rose, head of the intramural program, feels that intramurals exist for the students so that they might develop their physical beings.

In accordance with this theory a wide variety of sports were offered this summer. These included, softball, handball, horseshoes, tennis, bicycle races, a fishing derby, racketball, canoeing, and an indoor sports night.

The summer intramurals program is more relaxed in their rules as to who can play, with students, faculty, and staff sometimes playing on the same teams. About 500 people participated in the summer program last year.

Say . . . how would you like to write about the K-State image?

*Fighting the lunch line at the Union . . .
 Sliding down an icy side walk . . .
 Meeting your friends in Aggieville .*

To visit another country is one thing, but to become a resident of that country is something else again. Adapting to a different life style, language, climate and diet can cause a certain cultural shock; a certain difficulty in establishing a stable relationship with the new situation.

Out of this shock comes a new awareness of life in the adopted country. If the foreign resident is a student, his impressions and reactions are especially acute.

This fall 480 foreign students attended K-State, and went through the process of acculturation.

The students noticed that Americans seem to share an innate drive which leads to perpetual movement. Some were appalled by this speedy pace, and explained why.

"It makes you into machines, not humans. In my country, we enjoy life rather than just living it," one student said.

Not all the students found fault with the American pace. As one student put it, "The rush-rush is better."

Many Americans realize the "rush-rush is the very thing which makes for strained relations with those of other nationalities.

"(Americans) have many problems. They are preoccupied with their problems and are too busy living their machine lives," a student explained.

The "capitalistic" tendencies of Americans brought criticism from foreign visitors.

"They don't care about money," one said.

"What a pity," another remarked. "They live for the money and money doesn't make happiness."

Sometimes the money image is exaggerated. A South American student said that he'd been totally mistaken about living standards in the U.S. He came here expecting every family to live in a mansion and to drive a Cadillac.

Confronted by a new culture, each student reacted in his own way. Each noticed in American life special things which remained outstanding in his mind. Many are everyday things Americans never think about.

For instance, one student was particularly struck by drinking fountains. Another commented on "endless TV advertisements."

Of particular interest to one student were "women drinking beer in taverns and playing pool in the union."

Not all foreign students are critical of Americans. Many agreed, "the people are tremendous"; "They're easy to approach"; "In general, they're friendly; I like them."

Oftentimes K-Staters are reminded of the fact that we were originally an agriculturally-based college by subtle phrases such as silo tech and hoglog. We are still agriculturally oriented in many areas, but the increasing variety of fields being made available to us is refuting the farmer image. It has also

Come to my attention that several people from neighboring universities, which I will not mention, have commented on the warm and friendly atmosphere of our campus. The students that come here are from both rural and urban societies, which allows one to become acquainted with a vast majority of differentiated people.

The image of Kansas State lies deeply in the natural beauty of the campus surroundings. I love this campus for its harmony of nature and life.

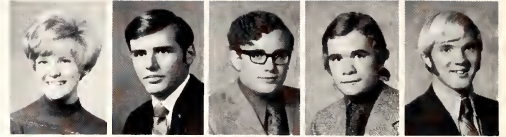

I stroll through the campus and see life every where. The trees lend homes to cheerful birds. And the broad lawns of grass add pleasure to everyone.

If the administrations current policy of concrete escalation continues this harmony will face destruction!

I know I am not alone in my fear of an all but urban campus. If you as the individual do not show concern for this expanding problem, you may find the image of Kansas State blemished by the encroaching concrete.

GRADUATE SCHOOL WALK IN

To everything there is a beginning and an end. When one takes that first step into the college world he starts making decisions that could have a lifetime effect. It is a new beginning whether for better or worse. Whether one continues his education beyond his undergraduate work or not, it is a time to begin college life again. This is the beginning of the graduate student's life.

By definition, graduate life is the life of a person who has a Bachelor's degree or an equivalent and is working for an advanced degree or professional degree. A graduate student's administrative home is the Graduate School office.

Although the graduate student is similar in size, shape and general appearance to an undergraduate student, his age may vary from 22 to 60. Nonetheless, he can still take advantage of most of the undergraduate privileges, including union and library parking, insurance policies, elections, fee cards and others.

Approximately 2,028 students, the majority 25-26 years old, take part in the university life as a graduate at K-State. In 1970, the number of students enrolled increased over 1969 by about ten percent, exceeding 2,000 for the first time with a total of 2,022. The Education department houses the greatest number of students on campus. Mathematics and English departments rank high in their programs also.

About 50 percent of the students receive money for research or teaching. Much help can be found in the Graduate Teaching Assistantship program through which they receive salaries, staff privileges, more liberal library privileges, and study rooms. A few fellowships and traineeships are awarded to students each year to continue their research work.

Even with financial support, graduate students may find that dormitory life just doesn't shake it for most of them. The atmosphere of a dormitory centers around undergraduates. Visitation policies and lack of privacy are two major complaints graduate students have about dorms. It's very hard and impractical for a visitation board to set down a policy for a 30 year-old man.

Consequently, many choose trailer houses, apartments, or homes in the Manhattan residential areas or in nearby cities. Those who are married often choose to live at Jardine Terrace.

Socially, graduate students are not different from any other student. When the books are put aside and the mind slowly unwinds, a graduate student may be found in front of a television set drinking a beer. And there are the stereo buffs, and sports fans; those who enjoy rap sessions or dropping by their Greek house to see all the gang or who get involved in the organizations sponsored by their departments. Also, there are the loners, readers, book worms, hobbyists, extroverted and introverted people, hippies, and yippies.

One seems to find that most graduate students are independent, are mature, sophisticated, selective individuals. They are apt to be married and are expected to prove themselves by fulfilling their commitments. They are expected to continue their work through breaks and vacations until the job is done.

Before I came to KSU, I had a picture of it in my mind that has changed very little since I've been here. It seems to be somewhere in between middle-of-the-road and conservative. an emphasis on the Agriculture College. This point is over-emphasized by other schools that refer to us as a "Cow College." Recently an emphasis has been placed on the football team - purple pride and a new stadium. KSU is also associated with a lot of beer-drinking. This leads to the idea that the drug traffic is light. Out-of-staters lump K-straight with all other midwest colleges and figure that it must be conservative. Sometimes this leads to the assumption that it is not very academic or intellectual.

To me it is ideal! I can relate to people without worry, or fear of hang ups. Dilo Tech is actually down-home folks. People who place their faith and hopes in the little things in life. As long as we relate & associate with others we are beautiful, but when we are close-fisted we are ugly! On campus we are all business, but in Aggieville we are loose. Say . . . how would you like to write about the K-State image?

KSU epitomizes the image that most people have of the state of Kansas. It is blatantly agriculturally and practically-oriented; it is overwhelmingly Republican; it is amazingly apathetic, a la the Silent Majority. To students, parents, and Kansans in general, KSU manifests middle class values: everyone knows about purple pride; getting beer-drunk in Aggieville on weekends is good, clean fun; conservative dress is the rule; thirty hecklers amid 14,000 cheering supporters of the president aren't much to worry about. Surely any Kansan could tell you that KSU is not the place to start a revolution — nor even a protest against the Vietnam war.

Say . . . how would you like to write about the K-State image?

To me K-State is my home away from home - the place I can't wait to get away from on Fridays, and can't wait to get back to on Sundays. The informal and relaxed atmosphere allow people to be themselves - and friendship is the greatest thing you can get out of college.

Say . . . how would you like to write about the K-State image?

I was expecting a big change in my life when I came to college, but it didn't happen. After about a week I began to feel that I was still in high school where the major worries were boys, drinking, and ways of having fun. That seems to be the way it is here. Everyone's world begins and ends at K-State and Aggieville.

One of the things that I like are the buildings, they look so permanent. That's what I need something steady but changing. Something I can close my eyes to and know it'll be here when I open them again.

Say . . . how would you like to write about the K-State image?

I GO TO KANSAS STATE UNIVERSITY OF AGRICULTURE AND APPLIED SCIENCE. YOU KNOW; ONE OF THOSE CONSERVATIVE, INCONSPICUOUS, MIDWESTERN UNIVERSITIES WHERE FINE YOUNG AMERICANS GO TO OBTAIN THE KNOWLEDGE THAT WILL ENABLE THEM TO BECOME USEFUL MEMBERS IN OUR SOCIETY. A PARADISE, WHERE THE ONLY PROBLEMS A PERSON COULD POSSIBLY BE CONCERNED WITH WOULD BE: WHETHER OR NOT THE FOOTBALL TEAM WAS GOING TO WIN, OR WHO THEY SHOULD DATE THAT WEEKEND. YES, THIS PLACE WILL MOLD US INTO CHEMISTS, ENGINEERS, FARMERS, AND TEACHERS . . . IF WE LET IT.

The Forgotten People: married students

She fries two hamburgers, heats frozen french fries, and heaps lettuce in two pottery bowls. After dinner she washes dishes and picks up clothes. Then she settles down to read; not a woman's magazine but a text book on math or English or Horticulture.

What is it like to play the role of both wife and student? What problems does this dual life present?

In many respects there is little difference between married and single students. They both cut classes and forget assignments; they both enjoy an evening out. But a major difference is the lack of money and time which often comes with the wedding ring.

Many married students find that much of the leisure time they had when they were single is now taken up with household chores, and a part-time job.

Couples who work and attend school find that by the time the weekend rolls around the energy and desire to go somewhere has diminished. A nice quiet evening at home without studies and a chance to save money can look like the best choice.

Regardless of the work and financial situation, the glamour and sentimentality which surround a girl's dreams of married life are not entirely unfounded. Inventive married students find ways to cut corners and still have fun. Ice skating and a thermos of hot chocolate are substituted for the more costly dancing and beer. Meals usually include hamburger instead of steak. But the burgers are served on the good china and crystal goblets hold the iced tea.

Rumor has it that these early years of financial struggle and penny-pinching in marriage are the happiest ones in a couple's life. This is disputable, but there are rewards and benefits.

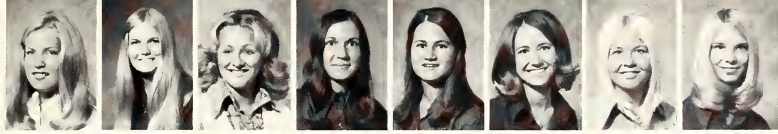

Two part-time checks make it easier to meet one monthly car payment and apartment rent. The strains of living separately during courtship disappear with the newness of life together.

No more driving her home at 12:30 a.m. and then facing the lonely drive home.

Say . . . how would you like to write about the K-State image?

Right now I don't think k-state has a definite image. But one thing is definite, the image is not totally purple. I have nothing against the color, in fact I am an avid purple pride fan. It is just that I believe k-state is changing, as is the whole world. It isn't the same here now as it was when I first started, everything was purple. Now though, many things that are connected with k-state use a different color. The royal purple last year was even done in a green tone for the cover, I wonder what color this one will be (is), k-state is known as an agricultural college, and when it was first started, that definitely must have been its purpose + image. But that too is changing, true it is still a good agriculture school. Now there is a college of fine arts here, which was just brought in as recently as last year, that covers alot. There is also fine architectural + engineering depts., as well as others. There is too much going on to tag a definite image on Kansas State University right now.

Say . . . how would you like to write about the K-State image?

I didn't know anything about KSU before I came, but most comments were along the lines of, "It's a lovely campus, but not much else." My grandmother was convinced that I'd come here and find a rich farmer! Well, I haven't met too many rich farmers, but it is certainly very different from California! The main thing I notice is the individualism and the variety of types and ideas. Everything from the most conservative to the radical. It's more than a lovely campus full of rich farmers - there are also many new experiences - mostly the people!

PART-TIME JOB OPPORTUNITIES

The Forgotten People: working students

Here I am in my purple K-State T-shirt and my faded blue bell bottoms — the classic college student. But wait. I'm not just any college student, I'm a working college student. That makes me unique.

Look for me anywhere. You'll find me operating switchboards in the dorms, checking books in the library, milking cows in the dairy barn, trimming hedges in the rose garden or filing in a dean's office. And that's not all. I'm working in the community grocery stores, behind snack bars, on construction crews, driving taxis, and even folding patterns at McCall's.

I'm the kid everybody pats on the back saying how noble I am for being so dedicated to my education. That's because, unlike many students who work just for the extra spending money, I am paying my own way through school. I really don't consider myself a martyr, but I can always use the moral support. Since the university can usually be persuaded to help me pay the college fees through scholarships, loans, and grants, I can use my working income to buy toothpaste and pencils.

Because of the limited job openings, students like me can't be particular about where they work. The work-study program does offer some choice of on-campus jobs, but even these are hard to get. Not many of these jobs relate directly to our majors even when we work within the department.

Off campus jobs are even less related to college studies, but offer more insight into community life. I can observe family relations at the discount store, learn about mechanics at the gas station, and keep up on politics while serving coffee (plus I get a good tip).

I don't think my job affects my school work that much. I usually end up cramming for tests, but I'd probably do that if I didn't work. My working hours are scheduled around class hours and I try to leave time for studying and recreation.

I participate in only a few campus activities, and seldom have time to help organize those activities. I show my purple at football games and check out the night life in Aggieville, but time consuming clubs and committees don't see me.

One minute I'm a student, the next minute I'm an employee. After the football game, other students flock to the rock concert while I rush off to another evening of delivering pizzas.

It's not hard to work thirty hours a week while going to school, but sometimes I wonder if an education is that important. Maybe I should quit the double role and just work. It seems like I'm missing out on some of the college life, yet I don't feel completely a part of the working world. But, this is my way of life. I wouldn't know how to act any other way.

So, here I remain in my purple K-State T-shirt and my faded blue bell bottoms — the classic college student. But wait. I'm not just any college student. I'm a working college student. That makes me unique.

Say . . . how would you like to write about the K-State image?

It's really great to be able to go to college here at Kansas State and find it exactly as you always thought college should be like. As long as there's friendliness, pride in home, school and country, and PURPLE, K-State will always remain at the top in every way.

Say . . . how would you like to write about the K-State image?

K-State has been nothing more than a series of bad memories for me. I've been lied to, which is what got me here in the first place. I've been used and exploited both mentally & physically, ~~and~~ I've always been misunderstood, but I tried to understand. I was told I had a bad attitude, for having my own views.

They tried to make me a basketball player, instead of ^{letting be} a person - who just happens to play basketball. I tried hard - to get over; I think, but I never did.

Social life, they said is what you make it. Well, it ain't my fault it ain't nothing to do.

When I leave K-State, with or without my degree, it will be like waking up after a bad, bad nightmare. But I will be awake - and ready.

So long "my little purple things."

"I came to K-State because I thought K-State had a good Home Ec. dept. I've found the kids to be super-friendly and open. Also, the kids don't come here for the prestige and it's more personal.

Most of all, I came to get a M.A.S. degree. (Soke)."

Say . . . how would you like to write about the K-State image?

"Since I didn't know anything about the schools in Kansas, being a native of Louisiana, I simply looked in the World Book Encyclopedia and picked out Kansas State University. I then made my final choice to attend this school because they answered my letter so promptly. Since I have been here these four years, I have met many nice people and have made lasting friendships."

Student's life rounded out in Aggie streets

Let's hit Aggie ... Wednesday ... after house meeting ... TGIFing ... other times, just because ... illuminated streets ... packed bars ... Maggie May and The Night They Drove Ole Dixie Down ... over-friendly offerers of 3.2 cheer ... stupor induced by Coors, Bud or Schlitz ... tensions relieved ... friends made ... many a penniless Wildcat regrets the uncounted pitchers ... a headache and a blah Sunday ...

Say . . . how would you like to write about the K-State image?

K-State is people - coming and going freshmen and seniors, even teachers laughing, sometimes crying, helping, caring, wanting, hoping and always dreaming.

Hey, did ya hear who HE'S taking out this weekend?

He called ... goin' to a show or Aggie ... Bluemont, Top of the World ... even watching T.V. is fun ... Vista on Sunday night ... "You'll like her — she makes all her own clothes" ... "All the guys like him" ... liking the same things — fighting/making up ... a break-up ... a new start ... a walk after dark ... That song ... meeting parents ... making plans ... turning up the radio when jewelry store ads come on ... thinking ... talking ... planning ... rid of roommates, alone at last ... a special dinner ... cavalier, pin, ring or an understanding ... learning all about him or her ... flowers for no reason at all ... trying to study together ... discovering ... cherishing ...

Someone told me
It's all happening at the zoo.
I do believe it,
I do believe it's true.

It's a light and tumble journey
From the East Side to the park;
Just a fine and fancy ramble
To the zoo.
But you can take the crosstown bus
If it's raining or it's cold,
And the animals will love it
If you do.

Somethin' tells me
It's all happening at the zoo.
I do believe it,
I do believe it's true.

The monkeys stand for honesty,
Giraffes are insincere,
And the elephants are kindly but They're dumb.
Orangutans are skeptical
Of changes in their cages,
And the zookeeper is very fond of rum.
Zebras are reactionaries,
Antelopes are missionaries,
Pigeons plot in secrecy,
And hamsters turn on frequently.
What a gas! You gotta come and see
At the zoo.

K-State is a formally recognized educational institute. There are institutions that lie within the institution. They are known by almost every K-Stater and are symbolic of K-State. They are a second set of campus landmarks. K-Staters watch for them while visitors just wander by.

Here are a couple of those landmarks that are K-State: The Royal Purple ... Alf Landon and his purple and white tie ... Larry Dixon as mike man ... Mamie Boyd, under the basket, knitting at the K-State basketball games ... Phil Hewitt winding up the band ... Every department's coffee pot ...

Will Frb-Fz; Duh-Eb; Mos-Murp; Oli-Ow line up?

Well, here I go again ... one more semester ... there's the line ... stretching outside ... wait, wait, wait, wait ... hey, it's finally moving ... one inch every 30 minutes ... wait ... wait ... wait ...

There's the door ... finally ... my ID? You mean you have to see my ID? ... hmm ... it's here somewhere ... I think ... there ... I got past the doors ...

Now let's see ... I should be in line over there ... I think ... yes, I'm a Gre-Gol ... boy, it's already 10:30 and I'm still in this stupid line ... getting closer to the table ... what? oh yeh, my ID ... here ... fill out these cards? ... but there's holes punched all over them ... how can I write my name in a bunch of punched holes ... sign here ... sign here ... sign here ... only 20 more places to fill in my name ... now, check for correct facts ... well, the name is right ... the address is right ... but, I am not a freshman ... this is the fifth semester they have me classified as a freshman ... they'll just have to get used to the idea that I'm a second semester sophomore now ...

Questions, questions, questions, questions ... member of minority? ... live in a basement? ... live in a dorm? ... yes, both ... How many roommates? ... Hmm, there are six mice ... once junior ... and 396 crickets ... not bad considering some kids are living in tents ...

Where to go next? ... follow the signs ... pink cards here ... blue cards here ... purple sheets here ... go to next table please ... which one is that? ... gosh, I thought I was finished ... yuk ... it sure's hot in here ... and dusty ... more lines ...

Another table ... car on campus? ... yes ... what's the make? ... gee, I don't know ... a Ford maybe, or a Chevy ... somewhere between 1950 and 1965, I think ... buy an RP? ... ok ... mom likes to see my picture every year ... need to look up blind dates too ... wait ... wait ... wait ...

Finally there's my schedule ... good ole computer ... really outdid itself this time ... I have only six 7:30's on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday ... that's real fine! ... time conflict? ... slightly ... oh, well ... drop-add only takes about the first eight weeks of school ... by then I should be far enough behind to add another semester to my college career ... yuk ...

Looks like only one more line ... fee adjustment! ... I can't figure how 15 hours can cost $678 ... Hope tuition didn't raise that much ... it's only $238? ... Great ... Now let's see that gives me $15.03 to live on 'til next month ...

Now if I can only find my way out of here ... no, I am not a foreign student ... no, I am not a senior ... sure, I'd like a free bowling pass ... Ahh ... free at last ... and in record time, too ... two hours, forty-two minutes and ten seconds ...

Funny thing is, no matter how many times I do this, I'll never get used to it ...

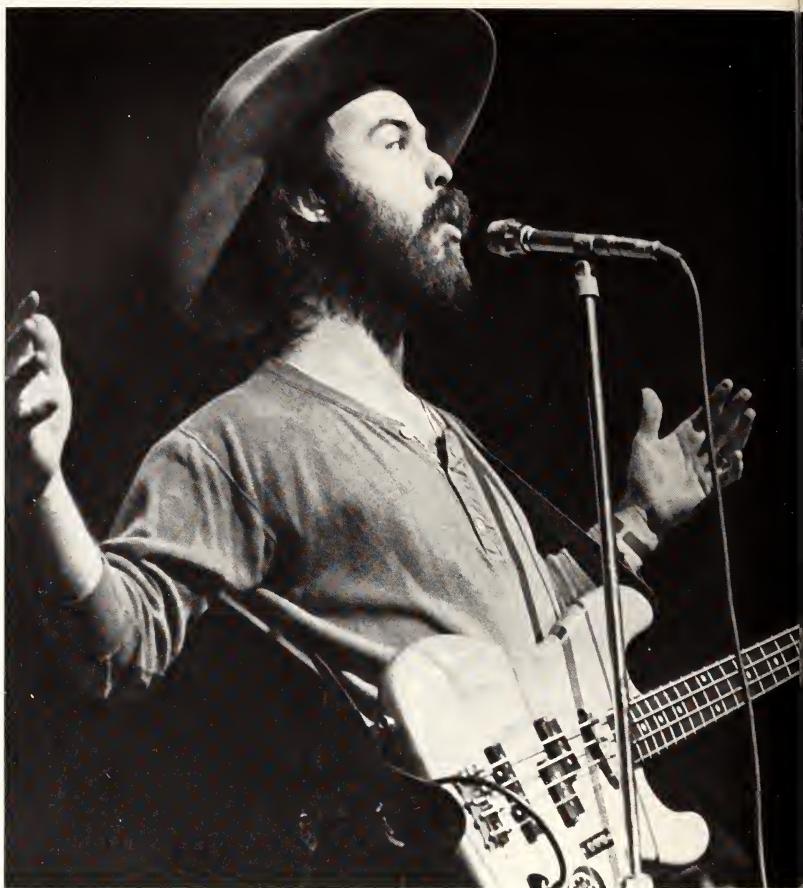

Registration ... frustration ... frugstration ...

Nitty Gritty Dirt Band music foot stompin', hand clappin'

"Hee haw, let's get it on," yelled the Nitty Gritty Dirt Band as they introduced their own style of bluegrass to the sell out audience at the Parents' Day concert, Sept. 25. The audience was in constant laughter, clapping and whistling as the band relived the days of 1956. They were also turned on to some contemporary rock songs, banjo playing, and folk music.

Unlike most groups, the band members emphasized their talent and flexibility. Each member played at least two or more instruments including the banjo, guitar, and harmonica, an electric green fiddle and accordion. One audience member stated, "The band was the most talented I've seen so far. They were versatile musicians, very instrumentally structured."

Mrs. Lucien Barbour of Winfield, a K-State honorary parent stated, "I am horrified to think I'd lived all these years and never seen a green electric fiddle before!"

"Mr. Bojangles", "Some of Shelly's Blues" and "House of Pooh Corner" were familiar songs included in the Nitty Gritty Dirt Band's performance. The group has its own bluegrass style which is a carry over of the jug band days. They were once a jug band, but got tired of it. Besides being a modern band, they are sort of a 'rock-a-billie' band.

Although the band was different in its style of music, and presentation, they made a compact impression and won their audience. "They were good for their style of music. The audience involvement impressed me the most because the band never had to ask for audience participation, reactions or clapping, they just naturally responded," a student said.

Taking the crowd back to 1956 via a parody on the music of that era the group presented "Frankie and his jelly roll hair do", "bumper bullets" and received a standing ovation on the song, "Goodnight My Love". Band member Jim Fadden said, "We love to do the parody on 1956 because of the crowd reactions we usually get. It's also a cheap escapism."

Dressed in jeans, sneakers, slick "greasy kid" hair dos, and sun shades, Frankie and the group, with their "1-2-3" routine steps, screamed and relived the roles of the old 'rock and roll' bands.

Leaving the stage after a few nonverbal comments using their "fingers" (because of a mislocated spotlight), a "peace" sign after a stage black out, and an encore, the band had apples, hamburgers, and cokes while answering questions between shows.

Additional entertainment for the first show was provided by the "Colors", a folk group from Denver, Colo., typically attired in long hair, navy jeans, and bare feet.

Comedian and guitarist Steve Martin opened the second show and kept the audience smiling and applauding.

On their visits to many college campuses and night clubs, the Nitty Gritty Dirt Band generally plays music which appeals to students and other young adults. From Long Beach, Calif., the five members range in age from 23 to 25. Sponsored by the Campus Entertainment Committee, the band's appearance, as entertainment for the annual Parents' Day, was scheduled because "we felt the band would appeal to both adults and students and they really impressed us," stated Steve Turley, chairman.

Because of membership and music direction changes during their six years together, the group took their only four albums off the market. "They were not a good representation of us. 'Uncle Charlie', a hit album, has re-established us. It also opened the market for us once again."

At first, the group was just called the 'Dirt Band'. Overhearing the statement, "we've got to get down to the real nitty gritty," one band member introduced it to the others and they stuck "nitty gritty" on the front of their name.

Leonard Woodcock first autumn Landon Lecturer

Waving a victory sign and flashing the ritualistic purple tie, Alfred Landon opened the first lecture of the year in the series which bears his name. The initial speaker was Leonard Woodcock, president of United Auto Workers and one of five appointees to the President's Wage and Stabilization Board.

Since the death of Walter Ruther in 1970, Woodcock has been a focal point of power at the head of the largest union in the United States, and exerted this confidently in his speech, "The Economic Game Plan." In this lecture, which President McCain termed "persuasive and impressively documented," Woodcock strongly criticized President Nixon's Wage and Price Control Legislation of August, 1971.

Beginning with a description of the nation as an "economic mess," Woodcock went on to imply that the 90-day wage and price freeze was creating a condition metaphorically taking from the poor and giving to the rich. Woodcock emphasized the fact that "the pay increases for American workers which have been stalled by the 90-day freeze are ending up in the hands of the nation's corporate employers," and that this money must be paid back when the freeze is no longer in effect.

Woodcock recommended an alternative to Nixon's approach to the economic problem saying that federal money should be put into the lower classes of the economy rather than being controlled by the upper classes. He rallied for such low income benefits as a cost of living escalator clause, a stimulus to purchasing power that would give more concessions to smaller incomes, one-year contracts in place of long term ones to provide more mobility, and retroactive wage increases for teachers and government workers.

It was also suggested that more public service jobs be set up to ease the growing unemployment crisis; however, one of the terms for the union leaders of the Teamsters, AFL-CIO and UAW in joining the Pay Board was that they retain their privilege of striking should they find Board actions dissatisfying. The government, unionists said, made no attempt to get a no-strike pledge from union leaders. Now people may go off work according to recent threats circulating concerning raises negotiated in the prefreeze period that may be denied the workers. United Auto Workers, under Woodcock, is expected to produce the earliest confrontation.

Woodcock claims the current economic situation is an "engineered recession" in which the government believed that an increase in unemployment would accompany a drop in inflation. However, the result was a combination of recession and inflation experienced only one other time in our nation's history, "rooted in the 1965 escalation of the Vietnam war."

Woodcock also commented on the adverse trade balance, caused by the large auto companies not producing at full capacity, while importing a "flood of foreign automobiles from overseas."

Other sharp criticisms were aimed at the investment incentive tax, which the speaker tagged "self-defeating" and counter-productive because of the lack of a guarantee that industry will invest the money, as it is now operating at only 73% capacity, and irresponsible government spending.

Woodcock did leave one aspect free from attack; Phase 2 of Nixon's economic plan which involves governmental restricting agencies.

Despite an incredible reproof of Nixon's "game plan," Woodcock concluded with resolution that using measures he had proposed, we could "restore faith in this system, because this system can work."

Politics and world problems brought to podium

Stop and listen — there's someone speaking. And, he seems to know what he's talking about. What brought him to the podiums of K-State?

All-University convocations, sponsored by the convocation committee under the leadership of Joseph Hadja, Director of International Activities, is responsible for a majority of the intellectual stimulation from the outside world. This fall students attended convocations featuring such political speakers as Edwin Reischauer, former American ambassador to Japan; John A. Hannah, Administrator of the Agency for International Development; Samuel Jackson, Assistant Secretary for Community Planning and Management; and Birch Bayh, Senator from Indiana.

Reischauer, calling Nixon's planned trip to Peking "preposterous," warned his audience of Japan's growing animosity toward and distrust of the U.S. He explained that Japan is going through a major transition, and that Nixon's 10 per cent surcharge on imports could set off a destructive trade war. The island's main problems are isolation from the rest of the world, tense relations with China, a tremendous increase in production, and poor living conditions.

Sam Jackson, known as the highest ranking black in the Nixon administration, stressed the need for better city planning in the area of low income housing and present zoning laws. Jackson added that we must plan and channel migration and over-all population if we are to prevent continued erosion of our human and natural resources.

Unable to leave Washington due to a crisis there, John Hannah spoke to K-State students and faculty indirectly through Omer Kelley, a member of his staff. Defending United State's foreign aid, Hannah stated that we must "do our fair share" in helping less developed countries.

With humor and a smile that reflected his optimism for America, Senator Birch Bayh spoke to K-State students on the topic of "The Irresistible Revolution." The Indiana member of the Democratic Party Reform Committee appeared November 16 in the KSU auditorium.

The speaker touched on many of his political beliefs: he is concerned that too much police power used to fight crime could turn the country into a police state; he advocates many program changes, emphasizing funding for the cure for cancer, and also education, housing and environmental changes.

Another group which sponsors speakers is News and Views, a subordinate part of the Union Program Council. John Hofmeister is chairman.

This committee, according to Hofmeister, is "designed to provide the university community with access to the various and diverse viewpoints within socio-political interest areas."

The fall agenda for News and Views was initiated with a panel discussion of "Red China — Political Reality."

On November 8, Dr. Azizur Mallich, President of the East Pakistan Teachers Association and Dr. Ashabul Haq, Chairman of East Pakistan Red Cross, addressed students on the present situation in their home country. Later, Eric Rouleau, the mid-east correspondent for the French magazine "LeMonde," discussed "Is Peace Possible Between Jew and Arab?"

High spirits follow K-State Players off-stage

After winding through the maze in the Union cafeteria we finally arrive at a round table surrounded by K-State Players. I have seen a few of their productions, but I am now seeing the Players as everyday people really excited about their activities.

"Hey everybody, this is Bev. She's here from the Royal Purple to write a story about us and she needs some information."

"Cool. Hi Bev. Find her some room."

It's just like a big happy family. One person leaves the table and another takes his place. Some of the kids are writing, some eating, some studying and some listening to my questions and offering their bit of information.

"Well, like the K-State players is just a club like any other club on campus. But we're not the Continental Theater Company. CTC is something completely different."

"Yeah, our club is open to anyone interested in the theatre. There are about 100 members in the club, but only about 30 active members."

Across the table two other players crack jokes about the non-supporting members. Someone spills a coke and rushes for napkins to keep it from running onto my notes.

"CTC originated from the K-State players but since they have a whole different repertoire of plays and tours, they usually don't participate in the Players productions."

"Yeah, but most of them used to be players. They're kind of a part of us but still they aren't. Hey here's George. Um ... George Gray ... Hey George tell her about CTC."

George casually falls into his chair and picks up the conversation.

"Well, CTC, just as the Summer Theatre, are side kicks of the K-State Players. The Players are active strictly during the school term while the CTC is a professional troupe."

Mary and Kris take over as we discuss the different productions.

"At the Abilene Summer Theatre we did five productions. There was a core of 15 regular members but there were lots of others helping with designing sets and things like that. We design almost all the sets and costumes for our productions. We have two faculty guys, Carl Hendricks and Hal Knowles, that help with the technical directions, but lots of the Players have had regular courses in technical production and lighting classes, so we manage on our own."

"We started the fall semester with a bill of 3 one-act plays. These were "A Nice Touch" by Vickie ... what's Vickie's last name?"

"Soppe."

"Vickie Soppe, "Pubic Hair" by Garra Cohen and "In the Country of the Blind — The One-eyed Man" by Bill Jackson. Well, William R. Jackson if you want to be technical. The one acts are our experimental theatre. These plays are chosen from the plays written by K-State students. The guy who writes the play also directs it, or at least he tries to mesh all the different activities into a single production."

"This fall we alternated our production of "You're a Good Man Charlie Brown" with the CTC's production of "The Fantasticks." "The American Yard" was an original by Jay ... no David ... David Gallamore. We're casting a children's theatre entitled "Two Pails of Water" which we'll also be presenting at Junction City. Our last production for fall is another bill of one-acts: "Pigeons" by Annette Staska, "The Bridge" by Kent Noel (across the table some one begins singing the First Noel) and "The Very First Act" by Stephen Herrington."

Mary received a lot of help from the other kids around the table.

"The rehearsals for different plays overlap alot. One person may be acting in one play and doing technical work on another at the same time. We rehearse in the evenings for usually two or three hours anywhere from four to eight weeks before the presentation." As Kris works on a musical composition and George reads his paperback, Mary describes spring productions.

"During interim we're rehearsing for 'The Happy Prince.' Hey, George, that's your play. Be sure to put George Gray's name on that one. Then we have another bill of one-acts, but we won't know what those are for a while yet. Next is 'Oh Dad, Poor Dad, Mama's Hung You in the Closet and I'm Feeling so Sad.'"

I'm thinking to myself this must be some kind of play or else she's really putting me on.

"It's an absurdest play written as a graduate thesis. Stephen Herrington wrote the 'Carpenters.' Our sponsor, Norman Fedder and Michael McCarthy co-authored the musical, 'Monks', which we'll also be presenting second semester. After that we have one more bill of one-acts."

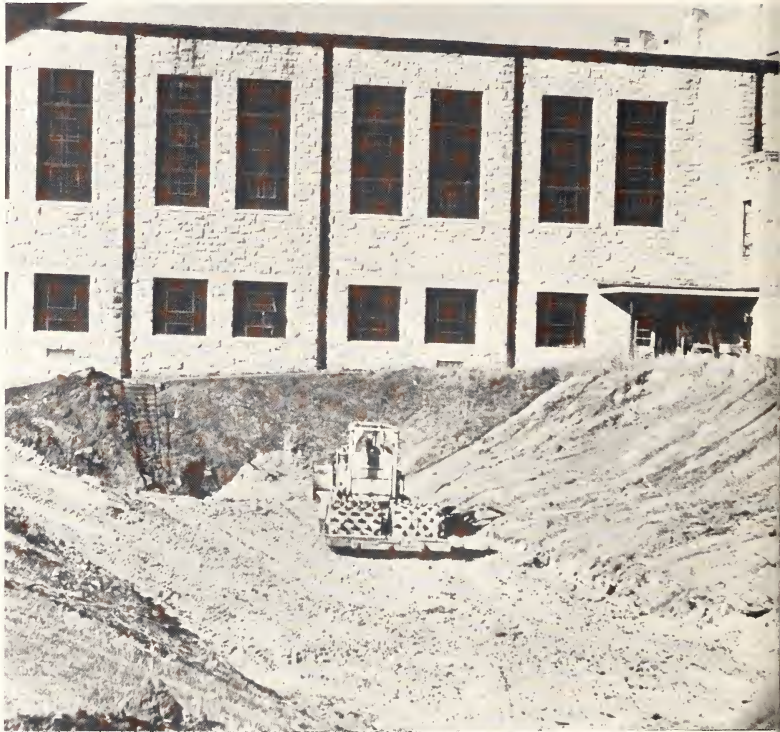

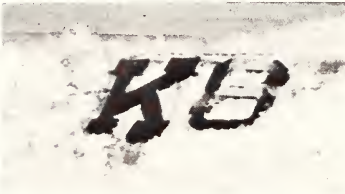

Special awards are presented at the end of each season. Oscars are given for best actor, actress, supporting actor and actress, best technical direction, best playwright, costume design, and children's theatre. A special Troupier Award is given to one K-State player in recognition of special effort throughout the season.

"We have a lot of fun doing this, but it takes a lot of time and effort. Really anyone who is interested in theatre really should join our club. We have some great people working with us."

Variety is the spice of fall Auditorium Series

Entertainment ranging from symphonies to touring theatre companies is scheduled each year by the K-State auditorium Steering Committee.

"We try to get a variety of entertainment and group attractions," Mark Ollington, auditorium manager, said. "Our selections usually include at least one dance group from a foreign country, regional attractions like the Wichita Symphony, Kansas City Lyric Theatre and James Dick, two or three touring theatre attractions if they are available."

Agencies send out releases for the upcoming tour plans in each area and later, representatives visit various campuses to discuss what groups are available. After considering who is available and the costs involved the auditorium committee tries to complete booking by February of each preceding school year.

See How They Run, a modern English comedy, was presented by the Continental Theatre Company, September 9-12. The company is a paid professional group trained on this campus.

"Good singing, a lovely set, and an overall excellent performance" could be accredited to the popular opera, Madame Butterfly. In its fourteenth annual opera season, the Kansas City Lyric Theatre presented the entertaining three act opera before a sell-out audience.

Ballet Aztlan of Mexico under the direction of Silvia Lozano initiated last year's concert series. Described as an exciting colorful group of instrumentalists, singers and dancers of Mexico, The National Dances de Mexico: Folklorico feature some of Mexico's greatest marimba and mariachi musicians in this colorful stage spectacle.

Every facet and aspect of life in Mexico from funerals to weddings has its musical accompaniment, for Mexico's music is meant to be danced to. It is the music of motion, of vitality, of passion. Music and dance are essential parts of Mexican life, in which passion plays a major role.

Skitch Henderson used a different approach to spice up his show starting with centuries old music and covering the present day music from classic to soul in the "Worlds of Skitch Henderson". Presenting an informal concert, he established an instant rapport with the audience. He called his program a kaleidoscope of styles and periods.

"It's not music to weep, sigh or snuffle to. But it's not merely happy-happy music either. It is madly exhilarating, 'mind-blowing' music; a kind of planned, brilliant anarchy"; it was Play Bach produced by the Jacques Loussier Trio, the French recording artists who play an electronic version of "Switched-on Bach."

On the Trio's third national tour, outstanding pianist Loussier reached for a new approach to Bach ... more than just a jazz version, but a true contemporary improvisation of the original music.

Composer, author, lecturer, and educator Aaron Copland conducted the Wichita Symphony Orchestra. The program featured three of his works: "Rodeo," "Our Town," and "Statements." The Wichita Symphony, a metropolitan orchestra, with 86 part-time professional musicians, is in its 28th consecutive season.

Before his concert, Copland took part in the 60th annual Kansas Music Teachers Association convention for four days. While on his visit, he was involved in workshops, rehearsals, seminars and performances.

The American composer also writes motion picture scores. He won an Academy Award in 1949 for his music for the film "The Heiress," and he is probably best known for his "Appalachian Spring" and "Piano Concerto."

Value of Homecoming tradition is questioned

It's common knowledge that it's close to impossible to please everybody.

Still, the university is willing to give it a try at least once a year. It does this by lumping together in one festive occasion a football game, a queen contest, a decorating competition, dramatic productions, a concert and alumni reunions. It also gives this event a name: homecoming.

Perhaps it came about as a means to break the monotony of a dull football season, or to get the alumni and their wallets back to the university, or to keep the students' minds off unsanctioned activities, or maybe just to have something to pass the time. Regardless, homecoming has become an established tradition, one which, in spite of its shortcomings, somehow always manages to come off.

Generally, when one thinks of homecoming one thinks of a sporting event and a queen. The customary football game, coming at a low point of the team's season, was lost to Iowa State, which hasn't happened since Year II of Coach Gibson. The queen contest was won by a senior from Putnam, Pat Papon.

But if football and queens weren't your cup of Purple Pride juice, you were not at a total loss during Homecoming.

For the theatre crowd, two productions, by the K-State players, ran alternately during the week preceding homecoming.

A Mason Proffit-Jimmie Webb concert drew the modern music buffs.

Webb, who is most famous for writing "Up, Up and Away", "Galveston" and "By the Time I Get to Phoenix", performed his own songs as well as those by other writers.

Clearly, homecoming was an event for all students.

And so everybody's happy ...

Well, maybe.

Established as it is, homecoming has caught a lot of flak lately. Those opposed state that it isn't worth the money put out for it, students aren't really involved in it anymore, it isn't relevant (whatever that is), it isn't geared with the student in mind, it isn't essential to anything important, and other uncomplimentary things.

But one of the biggest factors in favor of homecoming is that it is utterly harmless.

It's partly due to the fact that homecoming is so perfectly inoffensive that it has managed to escape the criticism, and the interest of students for so long a time. For, to a few students, homecoming may actually be everything it's supposed to be.

But for many students on campus, homecoming is merely a 10 letter word.

Coffeeshouse part of Catskeller entertainment

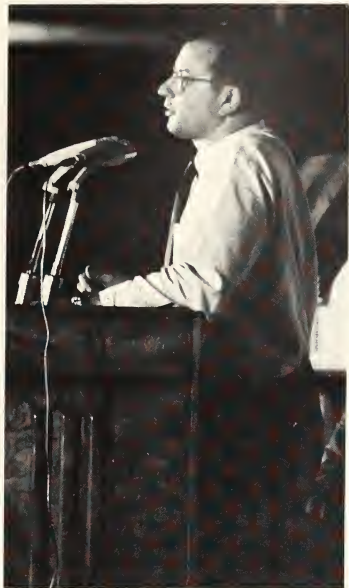

The Catskeller went strong in its second year. It was a great place to study during the week, and on weekends the entertainment ranged from a Jazz Band to Synthesia.

Several groups which performed at the Catskeller last year were back again this year, including the Ewing Street Times, Sand County, and the Dean Davis Company.

Most of the groups that have performed there like the coffeeshouse atmosphere. They enjoy the informality achieved by having the audience partially surrounding them.

Every type of person can be found at the coffeeshouse, from the straights to the long hairs, all enjoying the various kinds of music that are offered.

Countdown '72: voter registration and information

Following legislative approval of the 18-year-old vote in the spring of '71, K-State hosted a statewide voter registration and information conference, Countdown '72, in October.

The purpose of the meeting was to generate interest and action for, and draw attention to the approaching voting year. Of 325 student delegates, 25 per cent were high school students and only 25 delegates KSU students.

Sen. Robert Dole, national Republican chairman, made an unexpected appearance the first day of the conference. Other speakers included Gov. Robert Docking; Allard Lowenstein, chairman of the Americans for Democratic Action; Duane Draper, president of the National Association of Student Governments; representatives Bill Roy, Jack Kemp, Mrs. Elwill Shanahan; Robert Linder, associate professor of history at K-State.

Student body president R. D. Harmon was satisfied with the outcome of the conference. He felt members of Collegiate Young Democrats and Young Republicans and other planners of the conference learned much about politics. He was disappointed though, because politicians did too much campaigning to sell themselves.

Fall . . . time for leaves and reflection . . .

Well, it's late October and I really should hit the books. But the leaves are turning beautiful for Indian summer drives. It's good to just stroll around kicking up mounds of crackling leaves that swirl round campus. It's still warm enough to wear hot pants or grub around in jeans or overalls without a jacket.

The campus displays a few new adornments — curly shag haircuts, added buildings and 1,000 more pedestrians to avoid when driving to class.

The architecture students still dig their trenches and survey land. They are indignant about the fountain that library-goers confront and say it's leaky and top-heavy.

Yikes, bikes are overrunning the place. I lock my childhood relic to a pole away from those ten-speed dudes that fill the racks. My bicycle wouldn't quite hack the Manhattan Cycle Club. Back packin' and hitch-in' seem the only way to get around any more.

I'm surprised they didn't install a purple parking lot light.

Boone's Farm Apple Wine tastes just like cider. At the CU game, strawberry Boone's Farm went down pretty easy, too. Hope KSU approves the policy allowing beer in dorms.

There were Halloween horror flicks seen through ghost viewers in the Union and then trick-or-treating at bars in Aggie.

K-State has some worthwhile convocations and performances by the K-State Players like Charlie Brown. Joy of Cooking. Mason Proffitt and Jimmie Webb, and Nitty Gritty Dirt Band put on fantastic concerts.

Reluctantly I turn to the nitty gritty of classes this fall. Too bad college isn't for drinking beer and rallying instead of the absurdity of writing term papers and studying.

The Joy Wagon performs before half-filled house

On October 30, a three act program labeled The Joy Wagon was scheduled to play in the auditorium. It was to be the first in the Vanguard series, a plan to present good, but not widely recognized groups, representative of various types of music.

Due to the unfamiliarity with the musicians, ticket prices were only $1.50 and $2 for students. Promoters were hoping that for such a nominal fee (the price of a movie), students would be willing to take a chance. They were wrong.

Saturday night, at approximately 8:15 p.m., Joyous Noise opened the show to a half-filled house. Only 800 people showed up and many seats were left vacant. Yet the show went on!

Joyous Noise is a five man group consisting of a lead singer, two guitarists, a bass player, and a drummer. Their music is a blend of rock and blues. The acoustic guitars with electric pickups were featured.

Joyous Noise performed for approximately forty-five minutes and left the audience with mixed reactions. They were not called back for an encore.

Leo Kottke, the next performer sang and played three different twelve string guitars. His music is mostly blues with elements of rock, folk, and country. His virtuosity amazed the crowd. He made the complex compositions look easy.

His off-beat humor, instrumental gymnastics, and strange vocals pleased the audience. They begged for more.

Kottke returned for three encores, on two of which he traded solos with a guitarist from Joyous Noise. The audience reluctantly allowed Kottke to retire.

Soon afterward, Joy of Cooking began their performance. They spotlighted the vocals of Terry Garthwaite and the piano of Toni Brown. Their back-up consisted of a bassist, a conga player, and a drummer.

Joy's music is basically soft-rock which can include country, folk, or blues. Their rhythm section supplied very tight support for their melodies, as well as vocal support.

They performed for nearly 50 minutes and were forced to return by applause. People leaped from their seats and danced, clapped, and yelled in time to the music. Joy was called back again and again until finally the audience reluctantly allowed them to leave as the house lights flooded on.

Children's Zoo purchases sidewalks for a song

Everyone knows that you can talk to the animals so it seems logical that singing can be directed to the animals too. Money from the annual University Sing contest went to support the Manhattan Children's Zoo.

Over $2,000 from the 1971 competition was donated to build sidewalks for the zoo. The names of the groups participating in University Sing were placed in the sidewalk.

Competition was divided into two categories: Glee Club and Mixed Group. Four groups from each category, involving nearly 950 people, reached the semifinals. Singers from Haymaker Hall, won the Glee Club competition. Delta Delta Delta and Sigma Nu paired up to win the Mixed Group award plus the over-all award. Sigma Nu also won the trophy for the largest number of tickets sold. Judges for the contest were Kansas high school music teachers.

Some form of "university sing" has existed since the 1930's when it was a competitive intra-fraternity effort.

In 1966 Greek Sing was cancelled because increasing competition and rivalry between groups had cut down the number of participants. That year, plans were made to use Greek Sing to help support the building of a children's zoo and at the same time unify the groups in one purpose.

It wasn't until 1970 that all independent living groups were included in what is now called University Sing.

To top off the 1971 contest, Manhattan Mayor Robert Linder proclaimed November 12 Children's Zoo-University Sing Day in recognition of K-State's money raising efforts.

Offense poor as Aggies win season opener

The 1971 football season started off on a sour note with a 10-7 loss to Utah State. After last year's 37-0 win by the 'Cats, the Aggies were looking for revenge and found it.

K-State's defense played well the entire game. They forced six fumbles and allowed Utah State to cross the mid-field stripe only twice but both times were good for scores.

K-State's offense was a different story. They just couldn't get started. Morrison completed only five passes for 39 yards. Penalties played a big role in the 'cats' season opener as they committed seven fouls totaling 75 yards.

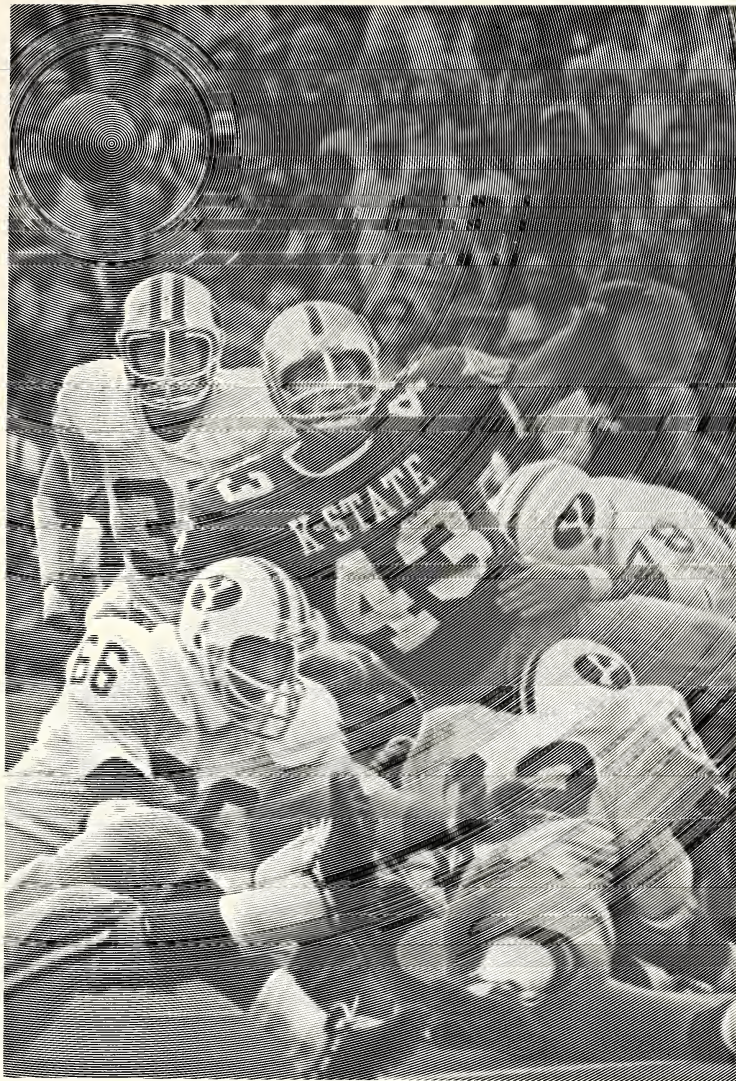

The following week K-State traveled to Tulsa to face the Tulsa Hurricanes. After Tulsa shocked the 'Cats with an opening kickoff return for a touchdown, the 'Cats settled down to play a good overall game and come out the winner, 19-10.

"There were four key points in the game. The first was the early interception. The second was the penalty on the punt, which gave them the ball on our side of the field. Butler's fumble was another critical point. We couldn't make the big play when we had to.

"The offense was very inconsistent, and it couldn't stick it in when it had to. We didn't play well offensively at all. Their defense was tough."

'Cats shut off BYU attack for second win

Kansas State played host to offensive power Brigham Young in their second home game of the season. 37,500 fans came out to watch K-State's defense shut off the BYU attack and down the previously unbeaten Cougar squad by a 23-7 score.

Bill Butler, the 'Cat's premier half-back, rushed for 142 yards to lead the ground attack. K-State continued to have trouble with penalties though, as they were tabbed for 93 yards.

Coach Gibson pretty well summed up the overall feelings of the game with, "Everything they got they had to earn. We can hold up our heads a little more now."

"Our kids were fighting and hitting. I am tremendously proud of the defense. We worked on the pass rush — it was a lot better today. Our passing game was not real good, but we're going to keep throwing. I thought we were better than they — we didn't give up the big play. I have a lot of confidence in the offensive line. People are having time physically whipping us. I'm concerned about touchdowns, not yards. We can hold up our heads a little more now."

— Coach Gibson
September 25, 1971

"Best I've seen KU play since I've been at K-State. Field position killed us. They whipped us in every phase of the game. We couldn't do anything right. We'll just have to come back. We lost to them last year and came back. The wind was such a factor — didn't give the other team any trouble, but it sure gave us trouble. KU took a lot out of us. I just feel sorry for all the K-State people who were counting on us. Got to give them credit, they fought hard and took the fight to us."

Buffs display passing talents on way to win

A sky high Kansas State football team traveled to Colorado the following week to battle the nationally ranked Buffaloes. Colorado turned back the hard fighting 'Cats 31-21, but the game wasn't decided until a fourth quarter touchdown by Colorado.

Kansas State had nothing to be down about following their tremendous showing against Colorado but they certainly appeared down when they traveled to Lawrence to meet arch-rival KU.

Rumors grow after setback by Iowa State

After the KU loss, rumors of dissonance started to fill the air. The loss of 24-0 to Iowa State did nothing to quiet those rumors. There was talk of a sit down strike at football practice and a list of grievances presented to the coaches.

Dennis Morrison was booed at the Iowa State game as nothing was going right for the 'Cats as they suffered their first shutout and fourth loss of the season.

In an effort to quiet those rumors Coach Gibson, in an interview after the game said, "We, the players, my coaches, and myself, are all doing the best we can, but today we just got the hell beat out of us. A lot of people are getting off the bandwagon and saying it's the same old thing. We don't have morale problems. The players think they're closer than ever before. People are cutting us, but we're doing our best.

"Our kids tried hard, but just couldn't execute. Iowa State played an outstanding game. They made the big plays against our pass defense, and we could not put points on the board. We can't win if we don't score, and we aren't controlling the football like we did at the first of the year. Our failure to score after the interception really hurt. Third and four is a good time to call a flanker reverse, but Iowa State was just ready for us."

Mildren heads Sooner attack in 75-28 victory

Kansas State played host to number two ranked Oklahoma the following weekend. The Sooners came to town remembering the two upset victories by the Wildcats in recent years.

K-State started off with a touchdown in their three plays to take an early 7-0 lead, but Oklahoma struck back hard and buried the 'Cats in their lopsided 75-28 win.

Although there wasn't a lot of defensive effort by either team, the offensive show was exciting. Oklahoma rushed for around 700 yards and Kansas State showed some offensive consistency for one of the few times all season.

Those rumors that had been floating around were silenced during this game. Everyone was back on the bandwagon and cheering every move we made.

"The number one thing is we've got pride. We must control the football. You have to block downfield. Pursue and tackle. Backs, run with pride. Defense, intimidate Mildren. I want him to have his worst football memories of K-State. Make your own breaks. Play the kicking game. I believe in you more than any other team I've coached. I'm tired of people making fun of us. When your backs are to the wall, true character comes out. We've got pride!"

'Cat losing string ends at four with a 28-12 romp over Mizzou

The 'Cats traveled to Missouri with hopes of ending a four game losing streak. Missouri had been having offensive troubles all season and the presence of the Wildcats did nothing to ease their problems. A stingy K-State defense held the Tigers to only 12 points, while a Morrison led offense tallied four T.D.'s.

Morrison posted some impressive statistics as he kept the MU secondary in a frenzy passing for 264 yards including one touchdown.

Team consistency was displayed throughout the game as a powerful running and passing attack kept the Tiger defense off-balance. On defense the 'Cats held MU time after time with the secondary allowing only 12 completions in 27 tries.

"Our kids really fought hard. I thought our pass protection was super. I would say Henry Childs really had a great day, the best of any of the players. I think the big play of the game was at the start of the second half, Morrison hit Childs with a long pass on third down. I thought Dennis really stood in there, he had as good a day against Missouri as you can have. This team needed a good win because it is a young team. 28 points looks a whole lot better this week than last week."

Cowboys victim of a K-State offensive surge

Playing on the road for the second consecutive week, K-State journeyed to Stillwater to face the O-State Cowboys. The 'Cats spotted the Pokes a 17 point lead before intermission only to come back in the second half to record a 35-23 win.

After stopping the Cowboy offense on the 'Cat one yard line in the third quarter, the Wildcat offense came to life scoring 35 points in a 13 minute time span.

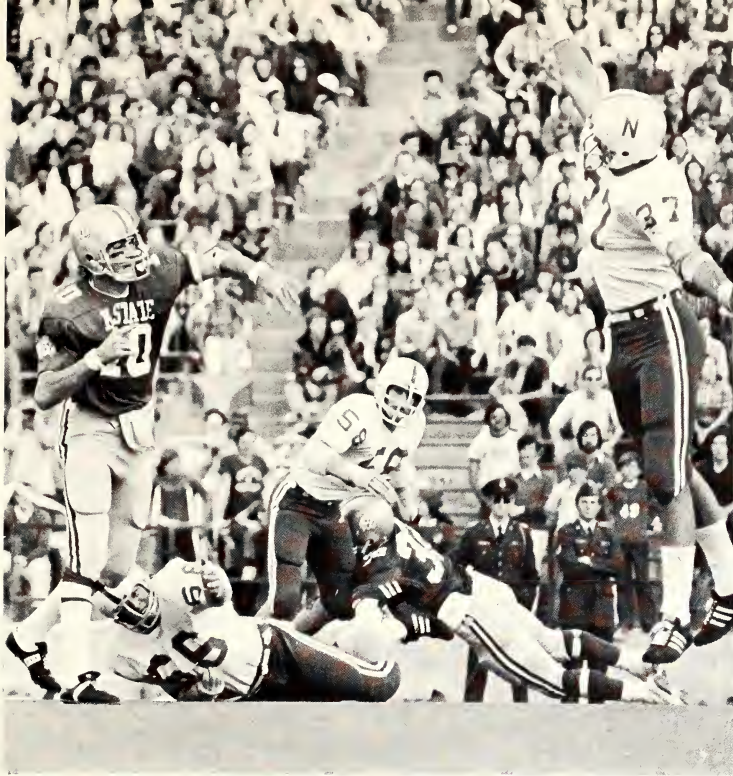

Oklahoma State tried to make a comeback but the K-State defense shut off their attack, as the secondary picked off three O.S.U. aerials.

NU trips 'Cats but season ends with 28-21 win

Number one Nebraska Cornhuskers invaded Manhattan to face the Wildcats the following week. The Cornhuskers showed the fans why they entered the game as the number one team in the nation by handing the 'Cats a 44-17 defeat.

The 'Cat offense showed poise in scoring their 17 points, the most points scored on the first team Nebraska defense in their previous nine games. Morrison was throwing well and directing the rushing attack with authority.

The Wildcats completed their season with a 28-21 win over Memphis State, the Missouri Valley Conference champions. The 'Cats took an early lead on the hard running of Bill Butler who scored two T.D.'s and gained over 100 yards rushing in his collegiate finale.

K-State finished the season in a fifth place conference tie and 5-6 overall, but promised they would be back.

Kansas State's freshmen football squad opened its 1971 season with the most promising squad in many years. Led by new head coach R. C. Slocum, the frosh were out to better last season's record of 1-3. The Wildcats boasted an offensive backfield of which all the starters were high school all-state players, and one who was all-state and all-american.

K-State opened the season with a 7-6 victory over arch-rival Kansas University in a hard fought defensive battle. The 'Cats tried to get their offense rolling all afternoon, but they could only manage one touchdown. But that was more than the 'Hawks could accomplish as a stingy Wildcat defense held them scoreless until the fourth quarter. With 26 seconds left in the game, the 'Hawks scored on a three yard run. Instead of going for the tie, they went for the two point conversion and failed. After the game coach Slocum was already looking toward the upcoming game with Wichita State remarking, "We're looking forward to playing Wichita State for the unofficial Kansas championship."

K-State didn't waste any time in claiming that championship as they rolled over Wichita State, 27-10. The win brought their season record to 2-0, the best freshmen record in five years. However, in the process the 'Cats lost the services of linebackers Larry Cantrell and Steve Crabaugh, both with knee injuries. The Wildcats used balanced running and the passing of quarterback Steve Grogan to roll up 292 yards of total offense. Meanwhile, the defense limited Wichita State to 138 yards of total offense. Due to the losses on defense, the freshman had to do some shuffling before they took on the Missouri Tigers.

In the Wildcat's next encounter, Missouri handed the K-State freshmen their first loss in three games by the score of, 49-32. The 'Cat offense really rolled, but the inability of the crippled defense to keep the Tigers from scoring cost the Wildcats the game. The majority of defensive mistakes came from people playing positions they were not accustomed to playing. The defense loomed as the biggest concern, as the Wildcats headed into their final game of the season with Nebraska.

The freshmen closed out the season on a sour note, dropping their last game to Nebraska, 44-0. The 'Cats were hurt physically and it showed, as the Cornhuskers moved the ball with ease. Defensively, the Cornhusker freshmen never let the K-State offense get started. The loss dropped the Wildcats season record to 2-2.

Frosh end season with best record since 1966

Wildcats win Big Eight after undefeated season

The 1971 cross country season arrived for K-State with all the 1970 lettermen returning from a team that finished third in the Big-Eight the previous year. Determined to better their third place finish, when they were considered the team to beat in 1970, the 'Cats trained heavily, running an average of 120 miles a week.

During the pre-season they concentrated on two things, having an undefeated regular season and winning first in the Big Eight. However, it would be no easy task as their schedule contained meets with such teams as North Texas State, Nebraska, Drake, Wichita, Missouri and the remaining Big Eight teams.

In the 'Cats' first outing of the season against North Texas State, they obtained a near perfect score. A perfect score being 15 points, the Wildcats finished the four mile run with 18 points, compared to 45 by North Texas State. The top runners for K-State were : Frank Rodriguez, first with a time of 20:07; Jerome Howe, second with a 20:07 time; Rick Hitchcock, 20:57; John Corman, 21:11; Chuck Copp, 21:23; John Feltner, 21:35; Don Akin, 21:45. The victory for the Wildcats was the first near perfect meet in quite a while, but they did not have long to savor it, as the Nebraska meet loomed on the horizon.

K-State eased to its second straight victory of the season the following weekend, defeating Nebraska 21-38. The Wildcats continued to show strength as they placed seven runners in the top ten. The outstanding runner of the meet was senior Jerome Howe, who set a course record of 19:26.8, winning first place. The remaining seven runners who placed in the top 10 were: Hitchcock, third; Rodriguez, fourth; Copp, sixth; Corman, seventh; Akin, ninth; and Jim Graham, tenth. Finally the 'Cats had a little more time to enjoy their victory as they had a week's layoff before tackling Drake and Wichita State in a triangular meet.

Against Drake and Wichita State, K-State bolstered their unbeaten mark as they grabbed first in the triangular meet. Again it was Howe who led the way as the Wildcats captured first, second, and fourth places. The senior runner won the four mile race in a time of 19:32.6. He was followed by teammates Rick Hitchcock, second; and Frank Rodriguez who finished fourth. The 'Cats, who combined for a low score of 20 points, were followed by Wichita State with 42 points, and Drake with 68, Their biggest test to date out of the way, K-State looked ahead to the dual with Missouri.

Missouri was the final regular season foe to fall victim to the undefeated Wildcats. K-State finished the season in style, running away with the meet by a score of, 19-40. The first three places were won by Wildcat runners. First was Rick Hitchcock; second, Frank Rodriguez; and third, Jerome Howe. Each of the runners were clocked at 19:53. K-State team members also finished sixth, seventh, eighth and eleventh. This left the 'Cats with a 4-0 regular season mark as they prepared for the State Federation meet the following weekend.

Rain washed out the State Federation meet in Wichita. This was a blessing in disguise, since it gave the team some time off before the Big Eight meet which followed the next Saturday.

Finally the time had arrived that the 'Cats had pointed toward all season: the Big Eight meet. Their unbeaten streak was not stopped here as the Wildcats captured the Big Eight crown for the third time in seven years. Individual honors for the meet was won by Jerome Howe, who finished in first place with a record setting time of 19:21.9. This eclipsed the old record of 20:08. Rick Hitchcock and Frank Rodriguez placed seventh and eighth and John Feltner and Chuck Copp finished in the top twenty. After the big win, head coach Deloss Dodds contemplated the ideas of not sending a team to the District Federation Meet in Wichita the following weekend.

"We might send some kids," Dodds remarked, "but we won't go in a pack. I think we'll take the weekend off and rest up for the NCAA on the 22nd at Knoxville, Tennessee."

As it turned out, the Wildcats did not participate in the meet as they prepared for the NCAA meet. But before the big meet arrived, K-State lost the services of their fifth best runner, Chuck Copp, who was sidelined with a broken foot.

Despite the loss of Copp, the Wildcats made a respectable showing at the NCAA. K-State finished the meet in sixth place, the highest a Wildcat team had finished since a second place finish in 1966.

Soccer team captures Big Eight, loses funds for '71 fall season

K-State opened its 1971 spring season on an optimistic note. Ahmed Kadoum, head coach, fielded a young team made up of practically all new players.

Kadoum did not have to wait long to see how good his young team performed as they demolished their first two opponents of the season. The victims were Oklahoma State and Oklahoma by the scores of 4-2 and 2-1, respectively.

The soccer squad raised its undefeated mark to 3-0 with a 7-2 triumph over Wichita State. Regis Leal and Ron Cook led K-State with three goals each, while Rudy Sauerwein scored the 'cats other goal. Defensively, middle men Karl Frank and Steve Ball were mainly responsible for holding Wichita to two goals. Even with three victories to their credit, the 'Cats still faced the biggest test of the season, Nebraska. If the Wildcats defeated the Cornhuskers, they would take over the Big Eight soccer lead.

Nebraska turned out to be no contest for K-State as they blanked the 'Huskers, 8-0. By virtue of this win the Wildcats took over undisputed first place in the Big Eight. Standout players for the second time in a row were Frank and Sauerwein. Extending their winning streak, the 'Cats picked up two more big wins over Kansas University, and Fort Hays State as they tuned up for the Big Eight Tournament at Oklahoma State University.

K-State showed that it was no longer a young team, as they captured the Big Eight Championship. This was coach Kadoum's first championship in his three years of coaching at K-State. The 'Cats displayed awesome power in capturing the crown.

When the soccer team returned to school in the fall, they found that Student Senate had cut all their funds. The move by Senate came just four days before the 'Cats opened the 1971 season against North Texas State. Kadoum initially requested $4,000, then cut his request to $2,425 after senate refused to fund the original request. But it was to no avail, as senate refused to fund them.

This lack of funds did not seem to affect the playing of the team as they trounced North Texas State, 4-1, for their first victory of the fall season. However, they did not have much time to relax as they faced their first Big Eight opponent, Missouri.

K-State played tough defense and utilized excellent teamwork as they clinched victory number two, by the score of 3-0. The same combination netted the 'Cats their next three wins over Kansas University, Friends Bible College and Fort Riley Soccer Club. It also allowed the Wildcats to take a 5-0 record into a contest against Kansas State Teachers College of Emporia.

The Wildcats finished out the season on a winning note, burying KSTC, 6-0. The 'Cats left no doubt in anyone's mind that they were the best in the state. Bill Ehmann, an 80-year-old man from Peoria, Ill., gave the team a present after the game. His present was some words of advice; "This is a good team, don't give up," and a badly needed donation of $200.

Ehmann's advice was taken to heart as the team defeated Wichita State 5-0 in their season finale. This win boosted the teams record to 6-2. It also gave them the distinction of finishing the season with the best record in the state of Kansas.

Lack of space for intramurals prompts study

Growing interest in intramurals at K-State was reflected by the intense participation fall intramurals generated. There was a significant 20 per cent increase in participation for the fall intramurals over previous years.

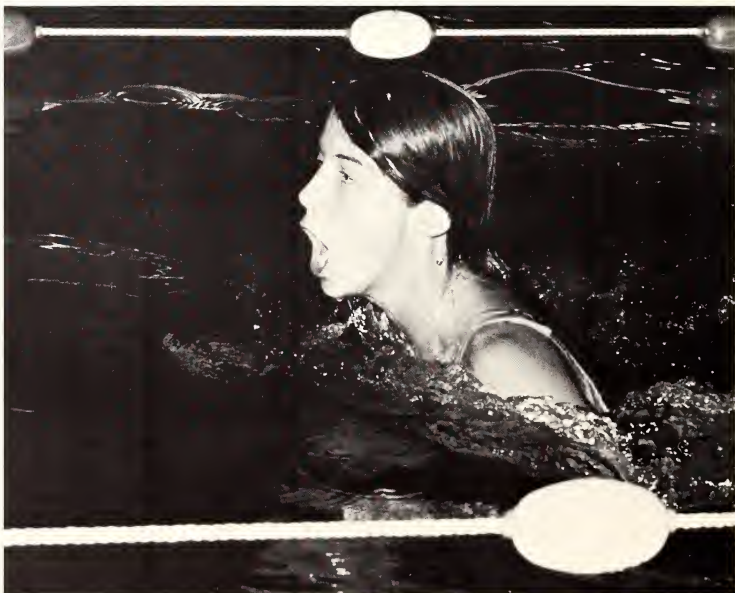

The largest increases came in the two biggest fall sports, flag football and volleyball. One-hundred teams participated in football, compared to 85 the year before. However, volleyball enjoyed the most growth with 138 teams competing in comparison to 110 in 1970.

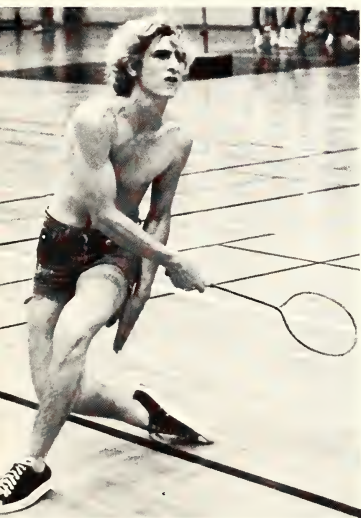

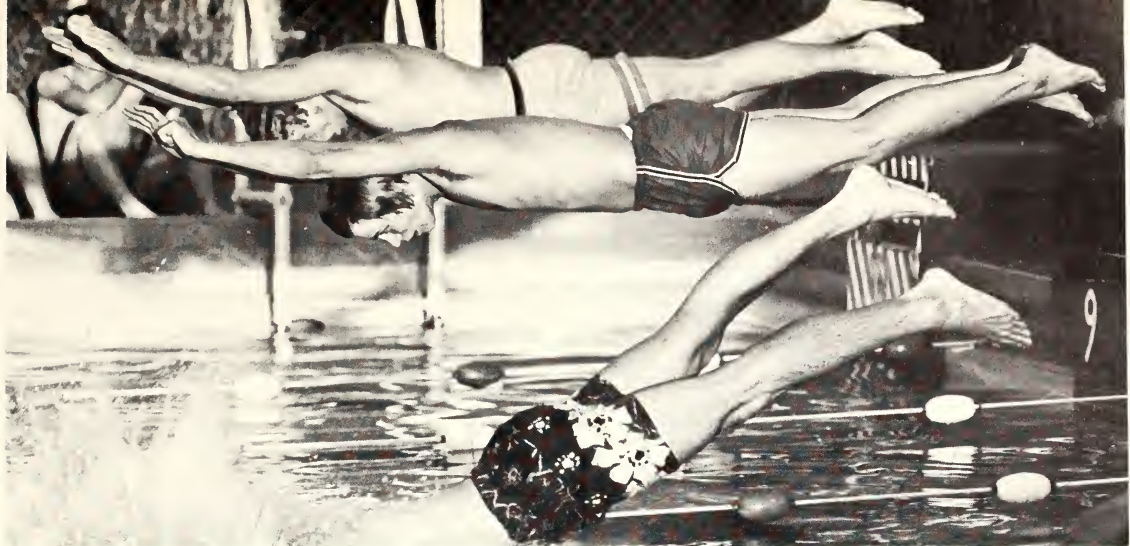

The other fall sports offered for men included swimming, golf, bowling, handball, tennis, wrestling, canoeing, badminton and cross country. Women's sports included kickball, bowling, swimming, canoeing and badminton.

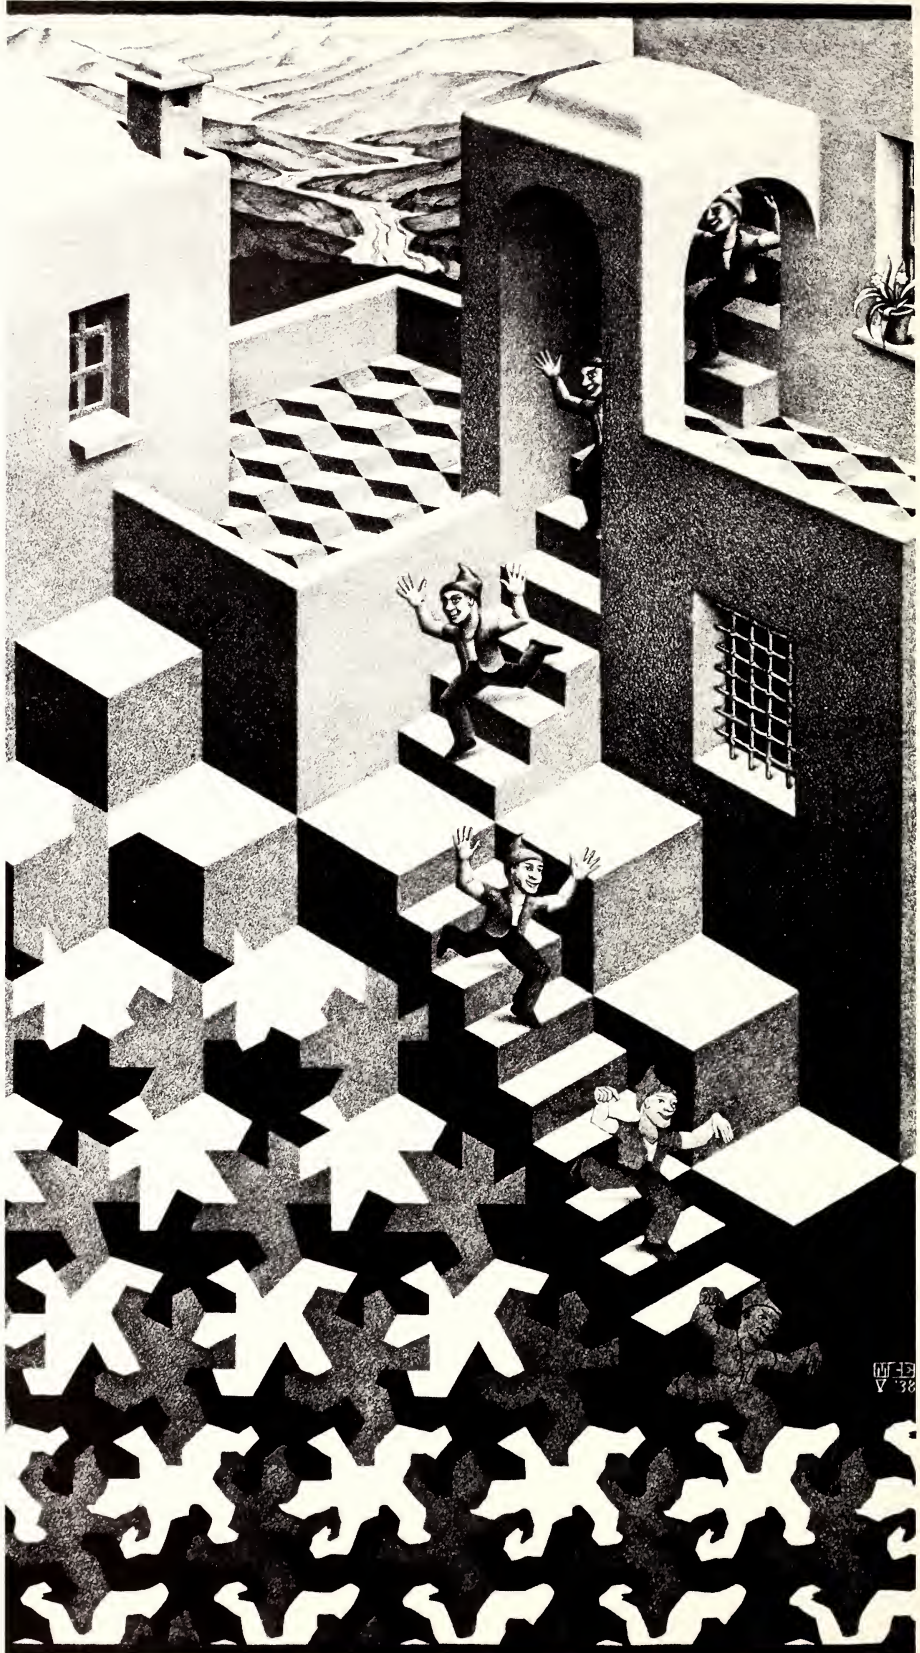

Despite the increase in participation in intramurals, there was no lack of officials. However, one large problem did arise — intramurals ran out of space and time to have the games. The situation was so critical that during volleyball season games had to be played as late as 10:30 at night. This brought on a task force study headed up by student body president R. D. Harmon and assistant intramural head Raydon Robel. This task force was to study the possibility of erecting a new intramural complex to house all intramural sports.

This complex would be financed entirely by student fees at the rate of 15-20 dollars per student per semester. This would mean a 15-20 dollar activity fee increase for each semester. Per day, this would cost each student about 20 cents. The cost of the complex would be paid for over a period of 25-30 years.

The original idea stemmed from a project that was assigned to 35 architecture students during summer school. They came up with four possible sites and five different building designs, ranging in price from 4.7 million to 6.5 million dollars. However, the final decision will be left in the hands of the students as the intramural complex will be presented in a student referendum in the spring.

Caught a dragonfly inside a jar
Fearful when the sky was full of thunder
And tearful at the falling of a star
Then the child moved ten times round the seasons
Skated over ten clear frozen streams
Words like, when you're older, must appease him
 And the seasons they go round and round
 And the painted ponies go up and down
 We're captives on the carousel of time
 We can't return we can only look behind
 From where we came
 And go round and round and round
 In the circle game
Sixteen springs and sixteen summers gone now
Cartwheels turn to car wheels thru the town
And they tell him, take your time, it won't be long now
Till you drag your feet to slow the circles down
 And the seasons they go round and round
 And the painted ponies go up and down
 We're captives on the carousel of time
 We can't return we can only look behind
 From where we came
 And go round and round and round
 In the circle game
So the years spin by and now the boy is twenty Though his dreams have lost some grandeur coming true
There'll be new dreams, maybe better dreams and plenty Before the last revolving year is through
 And the seasons they go round and round
 And the painted ponies go up and down
 We're captives on the carousel of time
 We can't return we can only look behind
 From where we came
 And go round and round and round
 In the circle game

Who's to say there isn't anybody OUT THERE?

They came. Before the sun set on yet another cold January day, they came. Students, faculty, townspeople — to see a funny little man with a beard talk about funny little UFO's. Laughing, talking, doubting, wondering, they came. Perhaps, they wanted to see a three-legged green man levitate plates and people around the Forum, or to see a real flying saucer with "Made in Alpha Centauri" written on the side, or to see a dilithium crystal in action and hear how-are-the-after-burners-holding-up — Mr. Spock? Whatever the reason, few people in the over-capacity crowd who stayed until the end of the speech were disappointed.

Stanton Friedman, nuclear physicist, is no novice in UFO research. He knows his stuff; he believes it; and now the KSU News and Views committee was giving him a chance to convince Manhattan.

"We have been deceived," he said. "The Condon Report, Air Force Project Blue Book, the press releases have attempted to lead us astray." And he gave figures to back his claims. His presentation was practiced, precise. He countered existing rumors and superstition with logic and facts . . . In Farrell Library, students were looking up their own facts and finishing papers on abortion and the Common Market

Then Friedman explained how it was technologically possible from solar system to solar system. Advanced in our own scientific know-how will soon produce power sources undreamed of before. Who's to say that there isn't someone else Out There with their own more advanced scientific knowledge? "It's possible that we're the johnny-come-lately in stellar travel," he said. He was beginning to get through to people . . . Upstairs in the State Room, Stanton Friedman was getting through to no one. Students were blissfully playing cards, the juke-box, joe college.

After carefully emphasizing the why-nots of unidentified phenomenon, Friedman showed his slides. One of the first pictures was an artist's conception of an extraterrestrial being . . . small body, long arms, slant eyes; yes, even pointy ears. "A Vulcan no doubt," the people thought and they laughed. There were more slides: Saturn-shaped ships with "hood ornaments", ships of different shapes and sizes.

They all had one thing in common; they flew like nothing else on this planet. Then he told stories. No one was laughing now. No one could account for the pictures or for the stories of numerous sightings . . . It was a good night for a sighting, quiet and clear. But the lovers of the evening had things other than astronomy on their minds.

After two and a half hours of mind boggling oration, we mortals were allowed to leave and ponder the possibilities. Certainly there were suspicions. If these sightings cannot be explained as natural events, What has caused them? What are those objects on the film if they aren't clouds or balloons or one thousand pigeons flying in tight formation? Inevitably, we must consider our place in the universe. Are we alone? Is someone out there watching, laughing at us? Are we safe at all from THEM? Who knows the answers anyway?

The doubts still with me, I stepped outside. The first wave of a bitter wind blasted my face and hastened the mechanical buttoning of my coat. I turned the collar up and headed home. "It'll probably snow tomorrow," I thought as I hurried into the darkness.

Richardson discusses growing 'expectation' gap

Elliot Richardson, Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, and first Landon Lecturer of the spring semester, discussed the gap between what people expect from their government and the ability of the government to meet those expectations.

U.S. progress has taught Americans dissatisfaction; the growth of resources has caused the increase in expectations, Richardson said.

Growing population, big government and mass communications have all added to the creation of a "homogenized humanity" and the loss of the individual, Richardson said. "We yearn for a voice in the processes that affect our lives ... The fact that we have this concern is evidence that our ideals are still strong."

Richardson stressed that the people must understand that the solution to all problems is not immediate; there are not resources to attack all the problems at once. The government must be open and honest, look at both sides and eliminate where possible, the "red tape" that hinders our efforts.

Black Awareness Week a tribute to Black culture

At the crossroads, "Which Way Black America" ... Blackness ... One Week ... Gospel music ... Speakers ... Black art ... Poetry and drama ... Fashion and styles ... Soul food ... Rhythm and music ... The week that was: February 6-12.

Each day of Black Awareness Week (BAW) was named for and paid tribute to those persons who had made significant contributions to Black history and the making of America. The activities were intended to provide an awareness of the Black culture to all ethnic groups on campus and in the Manhattan community.

"A Festival of Songs" honoring Mahalia Jackson, highlighted the religious aspect of BAW. Groups from Kansas City shared their gospel singing in their distinct and contemporary style.

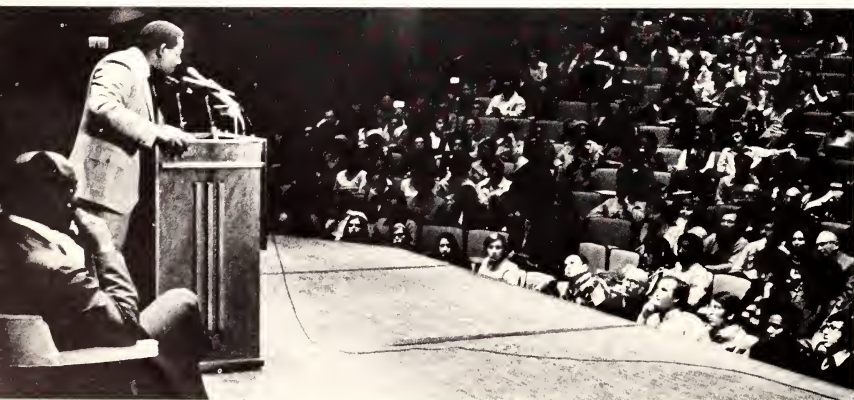

Since both men worked for the same causes, Martin Luther King, Jr. was recognized the day of Mayor Charles Evers' appearance. King, known for his policy of non-violence, attained worldwide acclaim during the Montgomery boycott. Mayor Evers of Fayette, Mississippi, the first Black candidate ever to run for governor of Mississippi, presented an all-university convocation.

"Mayor Evers was a very together 'down to earth' Black man with a dynamic message," said Sharon K. Johnson. "He told it like it was and expressed himself to the nth degree. I believe everyone could relate to his speech because he tried to make everyone aware and understand about the racist cancer in our society."

Honoring Louis Armstrong, noted jazz musician, The Friends of Distinction presented a soulful concert. With their band, they kept the enthusiastic audience involved.

Bernard Franklin, BAW entertainment chairman, said, "With Charlene's French rap, soulful outfit, sexy disposition, and suave voice, I couldn't help but go in circles grooving to the sounds of the Friends of Distinction."

"It all goes to show that when Black people want to have something they can 'get it together and get down.' It's a site where you really want 'to deck.' The atmosphere produced is friendly, sociable, mellow, and "light." It is definitely together because of the elegance of being Black and enjoying Black music."

Other activities during the week included Black art displays in the union — Henry Ossawa Tanner day; a fashion show in Union ballroom and speaker Rodney Wead, Omaha's Man of the Year in Union forum hall — Madame J.C. Walker day; an educational workshop, featuring films and a panel discussion — Booker T. Washington day; the Soul Food banquet — George Washington Carver day. Also, "A Night in Black Art", two original one-act plays, produced and written by Frank "Klorox" Kleveland, was presented two nights.

Terri Henderson, said, "BAW is a cultural learning experience that expresses the Black man — who he is, why he is, where he is. For those who participated I'm sure it was a pleasant experience. For those who failed to participate (both Black and white) I think it expresses the reason such a week is necessary, for you have expressed, in your apathy to participate, the apathy of a nation to face up to a problem it has created."

Participation seemed to be the greatest problem, Julia Boddie, BAW advisor, said, "however, we will continue to work and plan future Black Awareness programs because it is only through these efforts that the true value and awareness of the Black culture can be recognized and understood."

During the Delta Sigma Theta Ball, the kick-off for BAW, nine outstanding Black men on campus were honored. These men were chosen by the sorority on the basis of their scholarship, fellowship, and service to the community and university. Those recognized were: Arthur Dehart, Larry Dixon, Ernie Downs, Clayton Ferguson, Bernard Franklin, David Hall, David Lawrence, Veryl Switzer, and Orlando Yates.

Proceeds from the ball went to raise money for scholarships to incoming freshmen. The over-all proceeds from BAW, approximately $200, went to the Sickle Cell Anemia Fund.

How to get out of the rut: Alternatives Conference

The students of Kansas State University were in the midst of another placid semester. Spring was in the air, the basketball team was in first place (all's right with the world), and something called an Alternatives Conference slipped into town, nearly unnoticed, settled itself into a corner in the Union, and disappeared just as suddenly, silently by the end of the week. Alternatives Conference? Uh-huh.

The Alternatives Conference — a group of people's answers to a lot of little problems that no one worries about until they're big problems: ecology, population, education, other people, other ideas. It bears some resemblance to last year's event of the same name, but not necessarily. By no means is it being passed off as the second annual anything. It just evolved from a feeling that it was time to rattle the skeletons once more. do some shouting, draw some attention to the numerous good causes that all men can get involved with.

The week is divided into five rather general areas of interest covering a broad range of topics. Paper recycling, ZPG, free schools, birth control, role reversal, gay liberation, NORML, Vista — these are just a few of the activities handled by the conference. Billed as a market place for ideas and opportunities for involvement, the only goals as such seem to be the increase of personal awareness and individual insight. But why aren't you listening people?

Oh, I think they are. They read about it in the paper. Some even come to see what it's all about. They'll sign the petitions; they'll even agree to spend the necessary time to clean up a park that's wasting away, and they'll do it. People do care about these things. But perhaps, for the time being, they just care about something else a little more. Like making a grade, or running a dorm, or getting a date with the blonde in French I. Uninformed? Probably. Wasted? Most likely. But everyone knows that you shouldn't change ruts in the middle of the semester, maybe not even in the middle of a life.

The Alternatives Conference — a time to consider the different answers offered by a few different people. It couldn't hurt. It could help.

Special interest groups lend an ear to students

Holtz Hall and 1101 Bluemont are homes for you.

The comfortable always-welcome atmosphere is characteristic of the special interest groups located in these buildings; FONE, Draft Counseling, Drug Education, ULN, and Pregnancy Council. These groups lend an ear to listen to student problems involving anything from recipes to sex education.

The building at 1101 Bluemont houses FONE, Draft Counseling, and the Drug Education-resource center. By dialing 539-2311, FONE, from 5 p.m. to 7 a.m. any day of the week you'll find someone to talk to. This is the main purpose of FONE — a place for students to call when they need someone to talk to.

FONE hours are set during the evening hours because volunteers are students, who are busy with classes during the day. The same holds true for callers who are also usually students. When the life pace slows down at night, that's when annoying thoughts and loneliness creep in. This is when the FONE starts ringing.

The 45 FONE volunteers are in a constant training session for handling calls. In preparation for dealing with all situations, a reference file is on hand with information to answer callers' questions or with names of people to refer the callers to. The volunteers must be ready to cope with calls about boy-girl relationships or pregnancy or the draft.

If a FONE answerer can't answer a question about information he refers the caller to the draft council.

The draft counseling service was first started as part of the University Ministry project in the fall of 1968. As the need for draft advising grew the Ministry found it could not handle the demand. Keith Spare, graduate in social science, and present coordinator of the service, took it over.

Spare describes the council as being "an independent, reliable, unbiased, source of information about the draft selecting system for college men."

The council is run on an open-door, walk-in basis. A telephone service also operates for the council from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. five days a week.

The remaining interest group housed on Bluemont is the Drug Education-Resource Center (DERC).

Getting under full operation this spring semester DERC offers a different part of their service each day Tuesday through Friday.

Tuesdays at 3:30 open rap sessions are sponsored by Nick Edwards, Master graduate in psychology, and Kathy Johrbaugh, graduate in psychology. Participating Students discuss anything from their drug experiences to alternative ways of exploring consciousness. Wednesdays DERC moves to the Union to set up a drug resource table. "Joy" or "TGIF without drugs" meets Fridays at 3 p.m. This session involves discovering joy within oneself.

In Holtz Hall, ULN (University Learning Network) is equipped with a cook book, dictionary, and an edition of the 92nd Congress to answer questions.

"ULN is an information referral service," explained Vicky George, ULN coordinator, "It is here to make the university less impossible and more human."

Types of questions asked of ULN can include dates of campus functions, names of presidents of campus clubs or times of radio broadcasts of games. ULN is more than an answering service. It has played a large part in organizing the People's Resource Directory, a list of townsmen, faculty, and students wanting to share something like their skill and the Alternatives Conference.

The pregnancy council at Holtz Hall gives information to pregnant women, as well as advice to men and women about their sex attitudes. The council, founded on demand of FONE callers, has four students helping Ms. Hunt counsel.

Musical productions range from artificial turf to European stages

Topped off by a seven-country European tour by the Concert Choir, Kansas State's vocal and instrumental music groups engaged in a heavy schedule of activities this year.

Concert Choir, under the direction of Rod Walker, made its 23 day tour of Europe giving eight concerts and visiting eleven cities abroad. The Choir, with Collegiate Chorale and the Symphony Orchestra, presented the "Tenderland Suite" written and directed by composer Aaron Copeland.

Collegiate Chorale, also directed by Rod Walker, presented its annual Christmas Concert in the Chapel auditorium. Men's Glee Club, directed by Walker, made a record of Sigma Chi fraternity songs to promote nationally.

The Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Paul Roby, made a tour of the Kansas City area November 28-30 and presented their annual winter concert February 13 featuring James Dick as guest pianist.

The K-State Concert Band, directed by Paul Shull opened its season by performing "Outdoor Overture" by Aaron Copeland. The band also acted as a host band for the College Band Directors National Association and toured Kansas high schools February 22-24.

K-State's Marching Band under the direction of Phil Hewitt, kept its reputation as the pride of Wildcat Land. The band played for all home football games and added pep to the K-State — KU game at Lawrence and the K-State — Oklahoma State game at Stillwater also had the honor of playing for the Kansas City Chiefs vs. San Diego game at Kansas City.

Pep Band, also directed by Hewitt performed at all home basketball games and at the Big Eight Tournament held at Kansas City.

K-State's Stage Band, under Hewitt's direction, held several concerts during the year. One of the high points was the Fall Jazz Fit held November 11. November 18 the band attended the Nebraska Music Educators Convention in Lincoln, Nebraska. Other performances include the Stage Bands concerts in the Union and for the Alumni Association.

A Saturday night with Chicago: good vibes, a rumor come true

Lights flare. Yells. Hope. Doors open. Pushing. Shoving. Frenzy. Indignation.

Crowd channeled through two doors. Then one. Emerge under seats. Scrambling. Hurrying. Confusion.

Everyone seated. Frisbee slices air. Laughter. Good vibes. Near misses.

Eight o'clock. Lights dim. Shadows to right of stage. Shadows on stage. Tension. Applause.

"Ladies and gentlemen, Kansas State University presents an evening with CHICAGO!"

Hysteria. Roars of approval. Whistles. First song. New. Surprise. Very good. Jazz elements.

More new songs. Surprisingly good. Kath keeps solos to a minimum. Thank God!

"Loneliness Is Just A Word". "Only the Beginning". "I Don't Need Your Money". Little variation from recorded version. Full sound. Good equipment.

End of first set. Good crowd reaction. Everybody stands up to stretch.

Patient expectation. Satisfaction. More good vibes.

Chicago returns. No more new songs except "Richard". Not together. Rough. Ragged.

Play all their hits. "Does Anybody Really Know What Time It Is?" "Questions 67 & 68". "Sing A Mean Tune Kid". "Free".

Kath has several short solos. Lamm does extended piano solo. Seraphine executes fine drum solo.

Chicago leave stage.

Thunderous applause. Screams of "MORE!!" Stomping of feet. Whistles. Hysteria. Joy. Glee. Happiness.

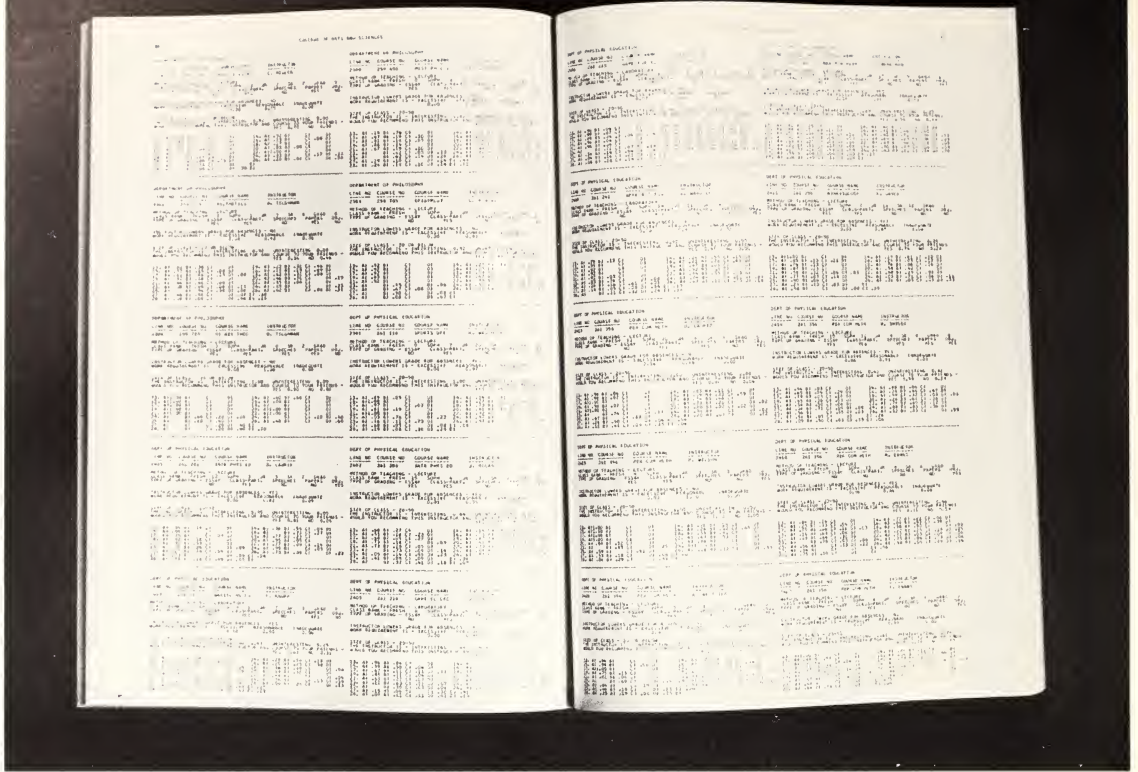

Fifteen minutes of desperate shouting and clapping. Chicago return. "25 or 6 to 4." Roaring excitement. Really together.

Everybody on their feet. Dancing. Clapping. Pounding feet to rhythm. Long solo by Kath. Genuine excitement.

Chicago leaves for last time. People return home. Happiness. Satisfaction.

A memorable concert?
Yes!

Teacher-Course Evaluation no longer just an idea

Could you tell me again what started you on the idea of a teacher-course evaluation?

"I just got tired of people sitting around," said Mike Crosby, chairman of the first KSU all-university teacher-course evaluation.

Crosby's idea goes back to freshman summer orientation. Sitting with his father in the advisor's office Crosby was deciding what courses to take. Crosby now classifies the advisor as typical because he knew little about courses outside his own department. As a cure for Crosby's curiosity his advisor would simply read aloud the two lines of course description about these classes from the university catalog. Crosby wanted more than this.

After his election to student government the second semester of his freshman year Crosby started sorting through two file drawers full of information about other 'universities' evaluations. He started breaking in the administrators to the idea and getting SGA funds.

The result of two and one half years' work was published in time for spring registration this year. In three days the books were sold out. Union book store employees estimated one out of every ten customers bought one. It would seem this alone would prove the book was accepted.

Not so. Actually the issue of teacher-course evaluation brought much criticism from students and professors.

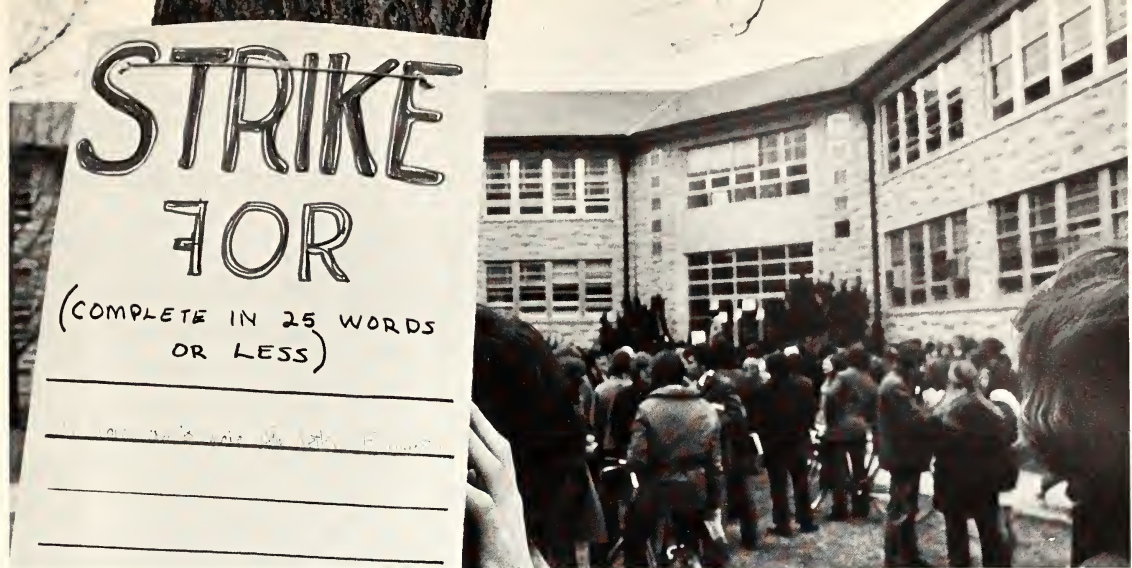

In general, teachers approved the idea but not the form, Samuel Keys, dean of the College of Education, feels that students and faculty expect different results from an evaluation. Students want to know what courses to take and possibly have an answer to the question, "What course can I take to get a few easy hours?" The faculty, on the other hand wants to know how to improve, teaching. By having this evaluation sponsored by students Crosby feels the student's purpose has had more emphasis.

Another criticism of the valuation voiced by both students and faculty concerns the quality of the evaluation form questions. Many thought the questions were not applicable to all classes and were too general.

Crosby himself admits it wasn't good enough. But it was a start, he says. It was a step taken to take KSU off the list of a few large universities not having any such type of evaluation. He goes on to say that now there is something concrete to improve because the evaluation is no longer just an idea.

To make the evaluation more relevant Crosby hopes to have each college make up its own evaluation forms next year.

Crosby is open to suggestions in hopes of improving the book. Yet he dreads the thought of too many criticisms which could kill the concept of a teacher-course evaluation completely.

Indecision hampers student strike effectiveness

Students strike at Kansas State University —

The news could have headlined "Believe It or Not" columns across the nation. It could have made the novelty section of the news, "Stranger than fiction!"

But regardless of the unlikelihood of it all, a boycott of classes (of sorts), a strike (of sorts) occurred on this campus March 3, 1972.

"This is truly K-Straight. Even when we protest, we protest conservatively," a disappointed striker said.

True, There was no riot squad called out, no tear gas, not even a campus cop drawn away from giving parking tickets. No building taken over, no records burned, no administrator held at gunpoint. Only one 9 x 12 protest sign, "Students Want Their Rights," and hours of discussion.

So it must have been something big that got enough Kansas State students together to overflow the Cat's Pause in the Union. It must have been some cause to assemble over 100 Kansas State students in front of Eisenhower Hall for a rally.

The cause was student voice in education.

It started when someone noticed a history professor had been dismissed ...

Unfair! ... Illogical! ... A letter to the Collegian ... "left-wing-type" teachers are rarely kept at K-Straight ... show that you care ... boycott classes Friday ...

Levi Strauss legislation ... student voice in education ... all-university strike, March 3! ...

Student Senate ... February 24 ... We can't make this a personal crusade ... We haven't exhausted the channels ... Let's set up a committee ... Let's table it ... The time is now! ... senate supports strike!

Union tables ... banners ... faculty speakers ... fliers ... strike ... think ... strike ...

I have a test ... I don't care ... I like my Friday classes ... I don't even know the guy ... It's dumb ... There will always be rules ... What the hell's going on? ...

March 3 ... Strike ...

It was a minority that participated in the K-Straight uprising. It didn't draw as many people as Aggieville on game night, but someone observed it was the biggest movement since the Kent State demonstrations two years ago. "A good showing for around here." Over 100 people gathered around Eisenhower Hall that Friday morning for student comments and some guitar music. After that, more gathered for two and one-half hours in the Union to discuss action that could be taken. They established requests for a proposal to be served to the administration; — Required student evaluation in consideration of tenure candidate.

— A written criteria defining on what basis tenure is given.

— A continuing publication of a list of faculty members up for tenure.

— Teaching methods made equal to research in tenure decisions.

— Open faculty senate meetings.

Coldness and warmness loneliness and closeness

It finally came last night.
I was dreaming surrounded with the smells of the evening before.
Smells of drink, smoke and you.

It sneaked in last night.
My guard was down.
With every stranger's warning that It was coming
I had begun to dread It and hate It.
I wanted to stop It.

But It came last night anyway.
I didn't have a chance to fight It.
Yes, It's here.
That dreaded winter
All the coldness and loneliness is here.

the naked black trees
the lifeless brown grass
the closed doors and windows the bleak silence
the gritted, smileless faces.

I turned over to sleep again
To shut out the ugliness.
But when I awoke again
The sun had cracked open the grey sky.
And I remembered the other half of It.

the hilarious feeling of having my once runny nose freeze up.
the warm popcorn and stereophonic music surrounding me as I lie contented on my rug.
the fresh, clean, newness that fills my head as I step outside and breathe in deeply.
the anticipating of the season's white delight.
the beautiful sound of your brilliant laughter breaking through the cold quiet air.
the red rosiness in children's cheeks as they run home from school bundled up, looking twice as fat.
And the safe, closeness of having the walls and closed windows shut the coldness out and you in.

The coldness and warmness
The loneliness and closeness.
It came when I was sleeping.

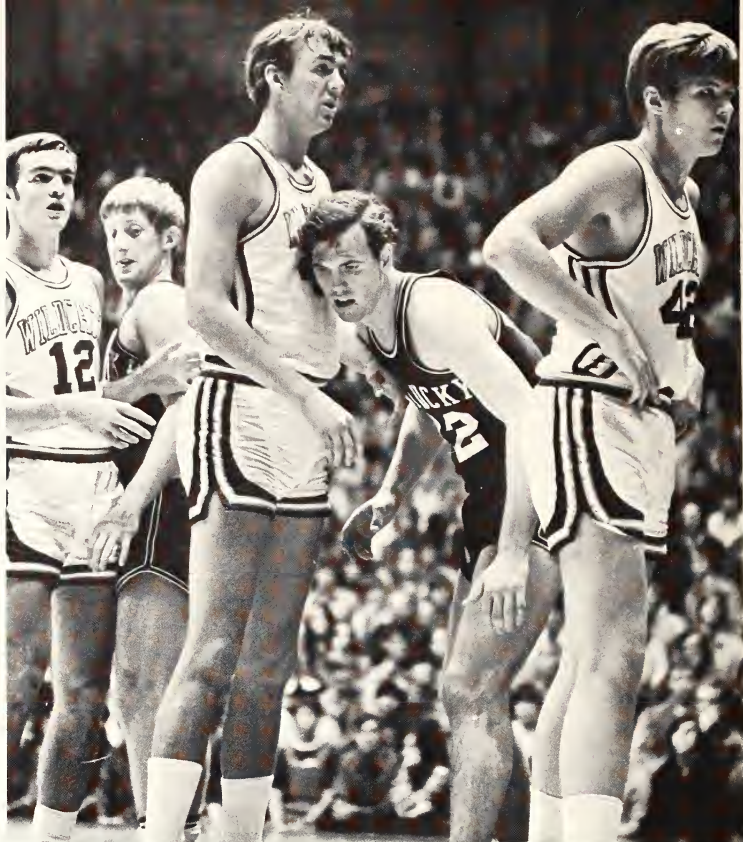

K-State picked as team to beat for cage title

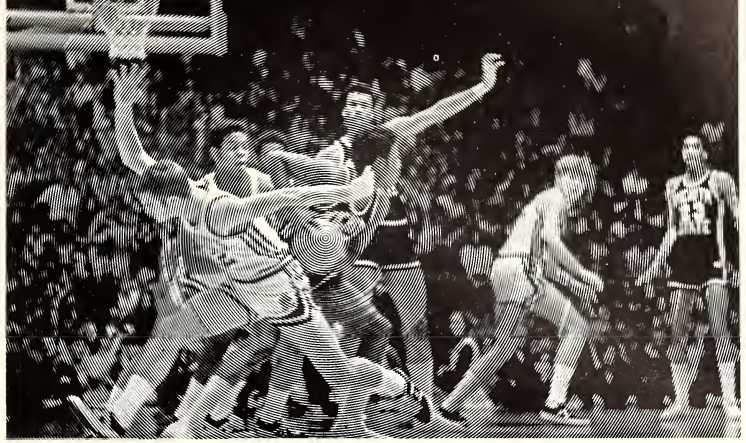

K-State, considered by most Big Eight basketball coaches to be the team to beat for the championship, opened its 1971-72 season against Brigham Young University, in the Brigham Young Classic. BYU proved to be too tough for the Wildcats as they handed them their first loss, 78-72. Poor free throw shooting, and foul trouble were the downfall for the roundballers in their opener. The loss sent the 'Cats into the consolation game the following night against University of Pacific.

Sparked by the 27 point performance of sophomore guard Danny Beard, K-State squeaked by University of Pacific, 80-75. The win, highlighted by good overall team effort, enabled the Wildcats to grab third in the Classic.

After their third place finish in the BYU Classic, the 'Cats returned home to face University of Kentucky. Deadly free throw shooting in the last two minutes of the game held off a late K-State rally, as they went on to win, 71-64. The loss dropped the Wildcat's record to 1-2.

Although they were denied a win in their home opener, the 'Cats won their second home game, 87-60, over University of Texas. Again it was Danny Beard who led the devastating K-State attack, with 23 points. The win evened the Wildcats' record at 2-2 as they headed into a game with Wichita State.

K-State has rough time on road, record drops below .500 to 4-5

In their next contest, the Wildcats faced the Wichita State Wheat Shockers who came in sporting a 3-0 record. This was victory number two in a row for the 'Cats, as they rolled over the Shockers, 89-73. High scorer for K-State was David Hall with 22 points. In the return match, K-State was not so lucky as Wichita State won, 69-66 in overtime.

Creighton University became victim number three as the 'Cats returned home for a one game home stand. Hall again led the scoring for K-State with 19 points. He was followed closely by senior Bob Zender, who played his best game of the season, scoring 17 points and pulling down seven rebounds. Three other 'Cats tallied in double figures as they clinched their win. The win set the stage for the next clash, against unbeaten Washington University.

Washington succeeded in stopping K-State's winning streak, as they downed them, 96-90, and 75-66 to capture back to back victories. In the first contest, Ernie Kusnyer was high scorer for the 'Cats with 23 points. The second game was highlighted by David Hall's career high scoring of 28 points.

Wildcats place second in Pre-Season tourney

Heading into the 26th annual Big Eight Pre-Season Tournament, K-State owned a tournament record of 53 victories and 22 defeats. This was good enough to rank the Wildcats second in total number of wins and best winning percentage in the history of the December classic.

K-State's first round opponent was Oklahoma. The Sooners entered the contest with a 3-3 record as opposed to the 'Cats 4-5 mark. Ernie Kusnyer proved to be the spark for the Wildcats as they pulled it out 62-60. The game was by no means an example of either team's ability, as both teams were plagued by poor shooting, bad ball handling and sporadic defense. Kusnyer grabbed high point honors scoring 14.

Advancing into the semi-finals of the tournament, K-State faced Iowa State. The Cyclones with new coach Maury John, looked to better its 5-4 record against the Wildcats in the classic. They were surprised though, as the 'Cats played a brilliant game, whipping them 92-75. K-State played up to its potential with junior Steve Mitchell leading the scoring with 29 points.

After that resounding win over Iowa State, the 'Cats tangled with Missouri for the championship. The Tigers good shooting and all-around team play were too much for K-State and they succumbed, 67-58. Mitchell tallied 18 points to lead the Wildcats.

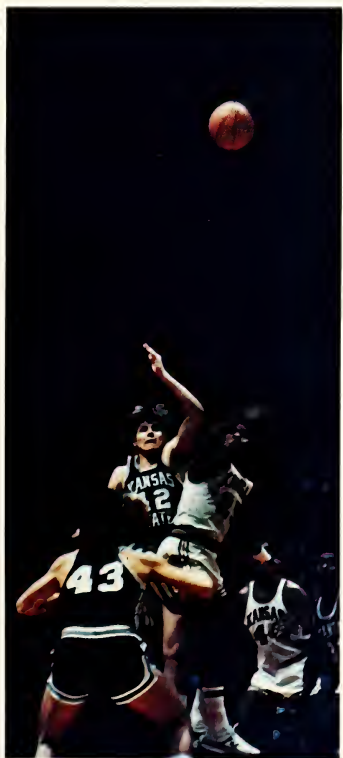

Wildcats lose in overtime game to Kansas on controversial move

K-State opened Big Eight play at home against the Iowa State Cyclones. This was a rematch for the two teams, who had clashed in the Big Eight Pre-Season Tournament just two weeks before. After being humiliated by the Wildcats at the tournament, the Cyclones were out for revenge. However, the Cyclones were out of luck, as the 'Cats combined a tough man-to-man defense with a well rounded offense to win their Big Eight opener. High point man for the Wildcats was David Hall with 20 points. K-State travelled to Kansas University next for the first meeting of the season with the 'Hawks.

Thanks to KU guard Aubrey Nash's sudden arm ailment, (either his left or right arm, no one seemed to know — including Aubrey) the Jayhawks managed to come away with a 66-63 double overtime victory. The 'Cats inability to hit free throws coupled with poor defensive play, ruined the Wildcats in the second half. High scorer for the Wildcats was David Hall for the second game in a row, with 17 points. K-State's record stood at 1-1 as they travelled to Stillwater for a game against Oklahoma State.

Despite a comeback by Oklahoma State, the Wildcats held on to win 66-64, and raised their record to 2-1. The 'Cats showed superior offensive balance and outstanding rebounding power on the way to the win. Hall make it three in a row as he tallied 14 points to lead the scoring.

K-State defeats league leading Missouri, 69-67

Escaping with a close win against Oklahoma State, the Wildcats returned home to face the University of Oklahoma. A surge early in the second half by the Wildcats gave them a 70-58 triumph. After holding a slim 35-33 halftime lead the 'Cats began the second half by grabbing every rebound for the first seven minutes. During this time they increased their lead to 50-41, and the Wildcats led the rest of the way. David Hall took high point honors with 19.

After their big win against the Oklahoma Sooners, which left the 'Cats only half a game out of first place, they travelled to Lincoln for a game against Nebraska. This game put the damper on K-State's title hopes for the time being, as the Nebraska Cornhuskers came away with a 61-60 victory. Plagued by poor foul shooting the 'Cats were unable to keep their lead in the game's waning moments. A 20-foot jump shot by Nebraska's Tony Riehl at the 11 second mark was the crowning blow. Ernie Kusnyer led the Wildcats in scoring with 18 points.

K-State returned to Ahearn Field House with a 3-2 Big Eight record to face the league leading Missouri Tigers. A capacity crowd of 12,500 saw the 'Cats dump Mizzou, 69-67. Three free throws by Larry Williams and two by Lon Kruger in the final minute and a half, gave the 'Cats the win. High point man for the 'Cats was Bob Zender with 17.

Wildcats avenge earlier loss to Jayhawks by the score of 78-66

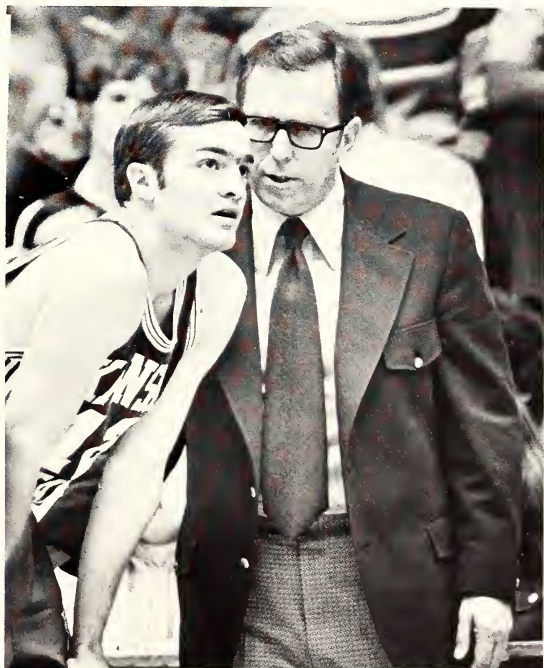

Colorado became victim number two in a row for the Wildcats by the score of 89-71. Steve Mitchell led the K-State onslaught tallying 27 points. Helped by sustained good all around play, the 'Cats left no doubt in anyone's mind that they were after a first place berth in the Big Eight race. On the way to the win, K-State shot an outstanding 81 per cent from the free throw line, which netted them 29 points. The win pushed the Wildcats' record to 5-2 in conference play only half a game out of first place.

After the Colorado win, the 'Cats returned home for a rematch with the Kansas Jayhawks. K-State was out to avenge their earlier controversial loss to the "Hawks, and they did just that, winning 78-66. Defense proved to be the key for the Wildcats as they showed a stiff man-to-man most of the night.

The 'Cats took control of the game at the seven minute mark when they increased their slim one point lead to ten. Four K-State players scored in double figures with senior David Hall leading the way with 20 points.

Iowa State fell to the Wildcats next by the score of 68-54. 'Cat guards Lon Kruger and Danny Beard exploded for a total of 34 points. Kruger scored a career high of 20 points while Beard hit 14 tallies. The victory left K-State with a 7-2 Big Eight record still half a game behind Missouri.

Wildcats take over first place in Big Eight race

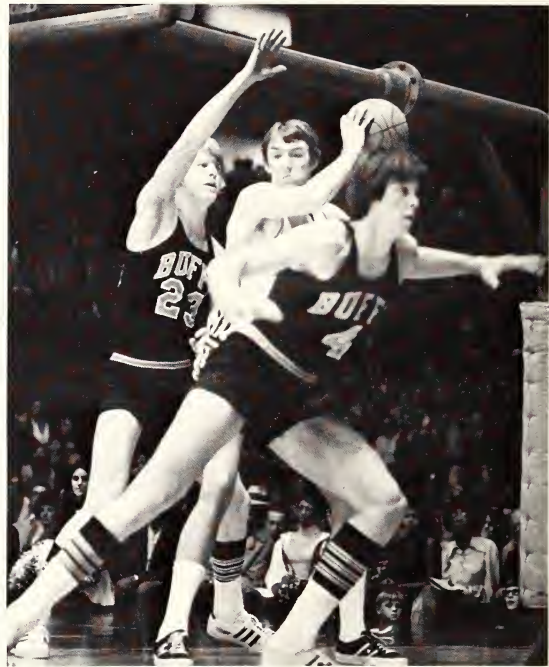

K-State's 74-52 victory over the Oklahoma State Cowboys boosted the Wildcats title hopes. With the win, the second in four days, the 'Cats moved into a first place tie with the Missouri Tigers. K-State was in complete control from the start as all 12 team members combined for the points in the runaway victory. Bob Zender led the scoring with 16 points. Lon Kruger and Steve Mitchell were close behind with 12 apiece. The 'Cats hit 46 per cent from the field and a hot 79 per cent from the free throw line, on the way to the triumph.

The Wildcats travelled to Norman, Oklahoma next, for a game against the Oklahoma Sooners. This game was a must for the K-State team if they were going to keep their title hopes alive. The 'Cats rose to the occasion whipping the Sooners, 80-71. The win was not an easy one though, as the Wildcats lead dwindled to one, two and three points often. Lon Kruger was the leading scorer for the 'Cats with 18 points. The K-State win coupled with a Kansas win over Missouri, left the Wildcats in first place all alone.

Colorado became the seventh team in a row to lose to the 'Cats. K-State lead by sophomore guard Danny Beard's 17 point showing, buried the Buffalo's, 73-55. The Wildcats were in command from the start, with as much as a 20 point lead during the game. That win set the state for a showdown with Missouri.

'Cats defeat MU by three to win Big Eight crown

K-State brought home the second conference crown in three years as they downed the Missouri Tigers, 79-76. The 'Cats showed real championship form, capitalizing on late free throw accuracy and tough defensive play to grab the win. This win was especially satisfying for the Wildcats as it proved without a doubt they were of championship caliber. After only leading 41-39 at the half, K-State's Steve Mitchell went to work and put the game away. Guard Lon Kruger led the 'Cats in scoring with 20 points. The victory left the Wildcats record at 11-2.

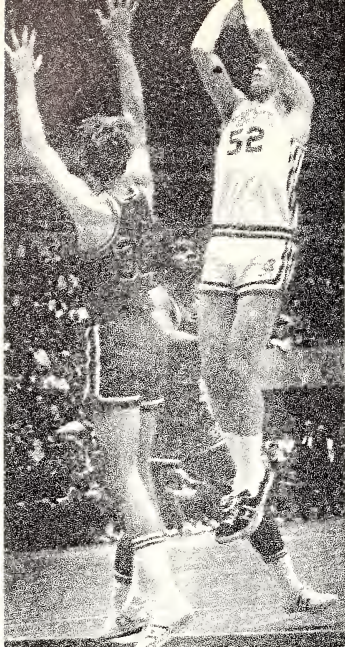

The Wildcats ended their 1971-72 regular season with a 81-76 overtime victory against Nebraska. After being deadlocked 24 times, in a seesaw affair, K-State iced the win with free throw shooting, in the first overtime. David Hall led the 'Cats with 16 points, and was followed closely by Bob Zender with 14. The game marked the final home appearance for Hall, Zender, Jack Thomas, and Dennis Lull, all seniors. It was not their very last game though, as they faced Texas next.

Wildcats end season with second in regionals

With an overall record of 18-8 K-State advanced to the NCAA regionals for the second time in three years. Coming into the contest, the Wildcats owned a 11-11 tournament record. In regional play, the 'Cats had captured three crowns and had advanced to the national finals in 1951, where they finished second. To come this far was quite an accomplishment for K-State, who had finished the 1970-71 season with a 11-15 record, fifth in the Big Eight.

Texas was the first round opponent for the Wildcats. This was only the second meeting in history between the two schools. The 'Cats won the first game earlier in December, 87-60. This contest was no different as the K-State roundballers handled Texas with minimal difficulty winning, 66-55. It was senior David Hall who led the 'Cats to victory. Hall entered the game with four minutes left and within thirty seconds had scored five points to give the Wildcats the lead for good. Seconds later, he grabbed a rebound that resulted in a three point play for Danny Beard. Ernie Kusnyer added a point and Hall came back making both ends of a one-and-one free throw opportunity.

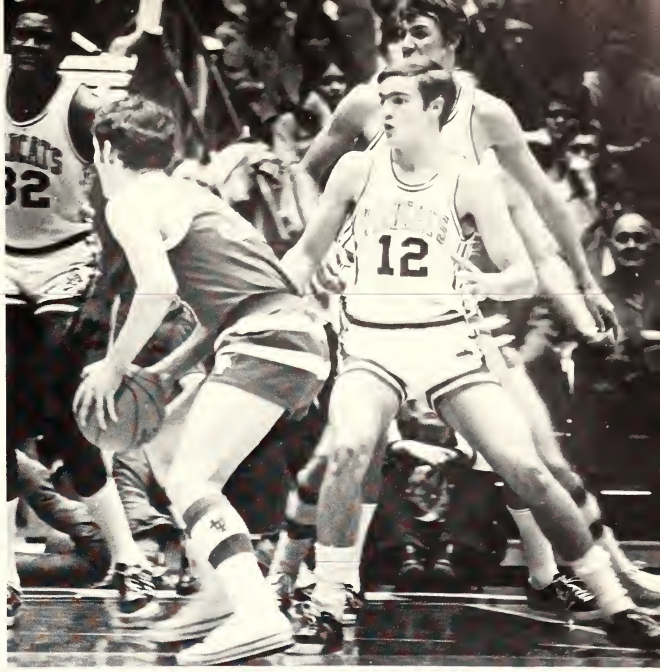

Lon Kruger sank two free throws and again Hall added a three point play, making it 59-50, K-State. From then on it was the Wildcats game.

After getting off to a slow start, the 'Cats came storming back to hold a decisive 36-25 halftime edge over the Longhorns. Sophomore Danny Beard led the Wildcats scoring in the first half with 12 points, hitting six of 12 from the field. He was followed by Ernie Kusnyer with six points. Even after the slow start, K-State still shot 52 per cent as opposed to Texas's 43 per cent. Beard ended up leading scorer for the 'Cats with 20 points. He was followed by Hall with 13, which left him one short of 1,000 for his career total. The victory sent the Wildcats into the title game against the Louisville Cardinals.

Inconsistent team play, poor ball handling and poor shooting in the first half, killed the 'Cats title hopes as they lost to Louisville, 72-65. The first half was all Louisville's as they whipped K-State in every phase of the game. But the Wildcats came back in the second half to give the Cardinals a taste of their own medicine. With a 42-26 halftime edge, Louisville came out in the second half playing like they already had it won. However, the 'Cats had a surprise for them as they came storming back to cut the Cardinals lead to 52-49 with 9:51 left. The man who was the big factor in K-State's comeback was sophomore Larry Williams, who came on, in the second half to play an outstanding game. He scored 12 points, grabbed three rebounds and played excellent defense. His play along with center David Hall's, enabled the Wildcats to close the gap.

In the loss, Lon Kruger paced the 'Cats with 14 points, followed by Ernie Kusnyer with 13 and Williams with 12. K-State's second place finish was nothing to be ashamed of and the Wildcat fans showed it, as they gave coach Hartman a standing ovation, when he received the medal for the second place finish. Another bright spot was the naming of the 'Cats Danny Beard to the all-tournament team. The 6-3 sophomore led K-State past Texas with 20 tallies and did a fantastic defensive job on Louisville's Jim Price, who was named most valuable player of the tournament.

Wildcat freshmen end season with 6-6 record

The K-State freshmen opened the 1971-72 season at home against Pratt Junior College. Sparked by forward Mike Johnson's 23 point performance, the Wildcats buried Pratt, 80-67. After leading only 33-30 at half-time, the 'Cats came back to outscore Pratt 24-10 in the first seven minutes of the second half. After that, it was all downhill for the frosh as they coasted to victory number one.

Victory number two for the freshmen was by even a wider margin. The victim this time was Kansas City Kansas Junior College by the score of 76-59. The Wildcats held a narrow 35-31 halftime lead, but a 14 point performance by guard Bernard Robinson in the second half gave the 'Cats the lead for good. Riding a two game winning streak, the frosh went 1-1 in their next two games, beating Wichita State 79-78 and losing to Northern Oklahoma Junior College 77-72.

K-States's freshmen cagers knocked off Highland Junior College for their fourth win against one loss, 80-64. Forwards Doug Snider and Chris Stone paced the Wildcats with 19 points apiece. Guards Bernard Robinson and Andy Kusnyer were not far behind with 13 and 14 tallies respectively. Their scoring, coupled with outstanding defensive play by Duane Barrett, gave the frosh to win. The 'Cats compiled a record of 1-2 as they headed into a game against Kansas.

Marshall Rogers of Kansas sank both ends of a one-and one conversion with 20 seconds left to give the Jayhawks a 65-64 win. K-State, despite a brilliant 32 point performance by Doug Snider, was unable to upend the 'Hawks. The loss left the frosh's record at 5-4. The loss seemed to affect the Wildcats as they dropped their next two games against Wichita State and Nebraska, 70-56 and 67-66, respectively.

K-State's freshmen squad finished out their 1971-72 season just as they had started, with a win. The victim was Allen County Community College, by the score of 81-56. The Wildcats paced by Doug Snider's 25 point play, took the lead from the start and never surrendered it. They finished the season with a 6-6 record.

'Cat track squad goes undefeated in dual meets

K-State opened its 1972 indoor track season on the road at the Oklahoma City Invitational. Thanks to Jerome Howe's first in the mile and Tom Brosius' third in the shot put, the 'Cats were able to finish a respectable third. This served as a warmup though, for the meet that followed against Wichita State.

Seven meet records fell as the Wildcats returned home to face Wichita State. K-State recorded their first dual victory of the season, 100-29. The 'Cats won every event, snaring 15 first places, eight second places and four third places. Among some of the records that fell were Jerome Howe's 4:07.4 clocking in the mile and Jim Graham's 9:02.7 clocking in the two mile.

Next up for K-State's track team was the National Federation Indoor Meet in Houston, Texas. The highlight of the meet was 'Cat Jerome Howe's 3:56.5 mile that he ran to anchor the Wildcat distance medley team to a first place finish. His time was the fastest time recorded in the mile so far in 1972. Howe shared his glory with two miler Jim Graham who posted a career best 8:50.0 in the event.

The 'Cats ended the regular season with a dual against Missouri. Again it was Howe capturing two firsts to lead K-State to a 64-58 victory. He won the mile with a 4:10.7 clocking and then came back to win the 1,000 yard run in 2:13. Other 'Cat winners included Dean Williams, Jim Heggie, Bill Kehmeier and Don Marrs. Next on the agenda for K-State was the Big Eight Championships in Kansas City, Missouri.

With their hopes high, the 'Cats travelled to the Big Eight Meet. However, the Wildcats were disappointed as they finished the meet in sixth place. K-State recorded only one first place finish, in Jerome Howe's 4:09.1, performance in the mile. The lone second place finish, was Tom Brosius in the shot put. The 'Cats scored a total of 21 1/3 points in the contest.

Ten lettermen bolster 1971-72 gymnastics squad

Depth characterized the 1971-72 version of the K-State gymnastics team coached by Dave Wardell. The 'Cats were not just thinking of a good season, they were after the Big Eight title. As Coach Wardell put it, "This is the best team I've had in nine years of coaching. I think we have the depth and experience to give Iowa State a real run for the title." Wardell returned 10 lettermen, including senior Ken Snow, who was in competition after a year's layoff.

K-State came on strong in their first meet of the season, the Kansas University Invitational. The gymnasts came on strong, scoring 280.10 points for a second place finish in the contest. The Wildcats then travelled on to Chicago, Illinois, where they made a fine individual showing in the Midwest Open.

Next on the schedule for the K-State team was the Rocky Mountain Open in Denver, Colorado. Here again the Wildcats made another good team showing, finishing fifth out of 16 teams. Defending national champion Iowa State placed first with 158.95 points and was followed by New Mexico, Arizona State and Oklahoma. K-State posted a 149.90 mark. The 'Cats placed two performers in finals competition, Ronnie Dugger on parallel bars and Jerry Simmons on the still rings.

The first triangular meet of the year for K-State was their first home meet of the year also. The gymnasts hosted Nebraska and Illinois State. A lot of small mistakes cost the Wildcats their first win at home as Illinois State took top honors. However, all was not lost as the 'Cats edged Nebraska 146.80 to 144.65 for second place in the meet. After this performance the K-State team dropped the next two meets in a row before meeting Oklahoma and Mankato State in two days of competition.

In the contest against Oklahoma, the 'Cats lost a close one, 151.25 to 152.95. K-State standouts were Larry Estes on the side horse and Tom Yother on the high bar. Senior Ken Snow came on strong to capture the all-around title.

The Wildcats were luckier the following day against Mankato State as they posted a 148.25 to 115.40 victory. Tom Carrier took the floor exercise, Estes the side horse, Jerry Simmons the rings, Snow the long horse and Mike Thomas the high bar.

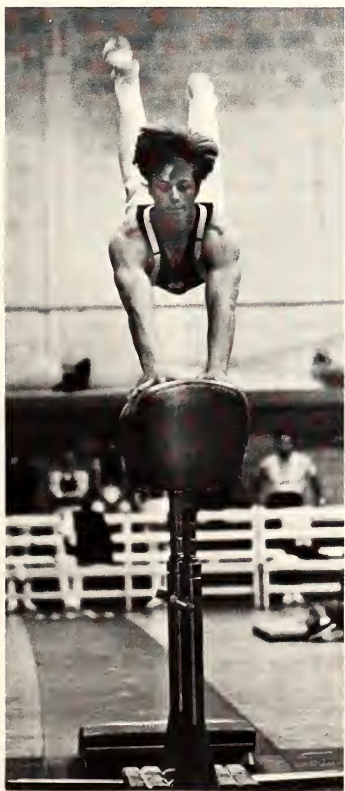

The University of Colorado was the next opponent for the Wildcats. This meet was marked by several outstanding individual performances, rather than a team effort. The injury, in practice, of the team's top gymnast Ken Snow seemed to be the main factor in the 'Cats poor overall performance. Even though they were not up to par, they still did well enough to defeat the Buffalos, 146.25 to 131.50. Top point men for the Wildcats were Tom Carrier, Mike Thomas and Larry Estes.

In their last meet of the regular season, K-State soundly defeated their arch-rival Kansas University, 154.00 to 148.45. The 'Cats swept both the floor exercises and the side horse. Ken Snow placed first in floor exercise, high bar, and long horse to lead the Wildcats to victory.

In the Big Eight meet Ken Snow placed second in vaulting and fifth in floor exercise, enabling him to take fifth in all-around competition while Tom Yother finished second in the horizontal bar. The Wildcats finished in third place behind Iowa State and Oklahoma.

Injuries and lack of depth plague wrestling team

K-State's 1971-72 wrestling squad opened its season with an overall depth problem. Coach Fritz Knorr started the season with only 18 matmen available. He also faced the task of replacing Alan Maestas, Ron Tacha and Dwight Hemmerling who had combined for a 67-18-4 record the year before. However, he felt that if everyone could stay healthy the 'Cats could have another good season.

In their first appearance of the season, the Wildcats impressively defeated South Dakota State and Wayne State in a triangular meet. In the matches against South Dakota State Steve Ferguson, Wayne Jackson, Dale Samuelson, Gary Walter and Rick Kepler recorded victories. Winning against Wayne State were Roger Risher, Ferguson, Jackson, Samuelson and Gary Reinert.

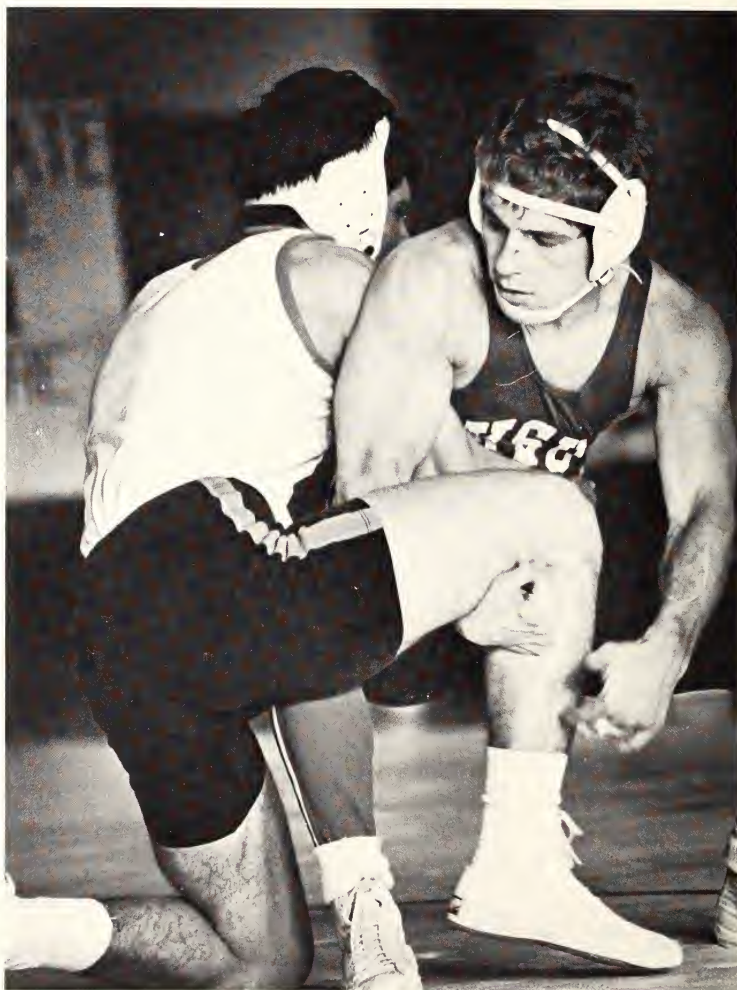

Following their first place showing in their first meet of the season, K-State travelled to Boulder, Colorado for a triangular meet at Colorado University. In this meeting, the 'Cats went against University of Wyoming, University of Colorado, and defending national champions, Oklahoma State University. All of the Wildcats' opponents scored victories over them, the Oklahoma State Cowboys winning by the most impressive score, crushing the Wildcats 41-5. After that meet the matmen went on to record second and third place finishes in tournaments at Southwest Missouri State and Northwest Missouri State, in that order. They also won meets against Drake University and Fort Hays State College.

K-State's wrestlers made it two victories in a row as they posted a home win over the Air Force Academy. Tim Tuerk's 8-7 decision was the deciding factor in the Wildcats' win. The rest of the season leading up to the Big Eight Tournament turned out to be a disaster for the K-State wrestlers. Out of the remaining five meets, the best the 'Cats could do was to gain a tie in a dual meet against Central Missouri State.

As the Big Eight Tournament grew nearer, things did not look good for the Wildcats. Hampered by injuries, the matmen made a poor seventh place showing. Wayne Jackson and Dale Samuelson both finished fourth in the Big Eight Tournament and earned the right to advance to the national finals.

Co-educational sports increase in popularity

For the third year in a row, K-State women participated in tennis, field hockey, volleyball, basketball, gymnastics, and softball, on an intercollegiate level. Gymnastics and basketball seemed to draw the most interest of the group.

As in 1970-71, the K-State Wildkittens basketball squad enjoyed a winning season. Coached by Judy Akers, the team posted an overall record of 14-4. After finishing 9-1 in league play, the 'Kittens went on to win state, beating Fort Hays State College. Colleen Larsen and Donita Davenport, with 11 and 9.4 point averages per game respectively, ended the regular season as top scorers.

Gymnastics enjoyed an increase in participation for the year. The team composed of nine members, gained valuable experience as they worked closely with the men's gymnastics squad. The team competed in two duals, and one triangular during the year. Mary Sue Bell won the all-around competition in the first meet against Washburn University. Diane Vulgamore also turned in an outstanding performance in keeping with her season's consistency.

Even though they cannot be classified as big team sports, the riflery and the bowling teams still represent K-State. These two teams round out the variety of collegiate sports offered by the university.

The Wildcat riflery team composed of four women and five men, compete in several meets during the year. These include meets sponsored by the National Rifle Association. The team uses both Winchester 40X's, small bore 22's, in their competition. Members of the Central Kansas League, the team sponsored the K-State "Turkey Shoot", an annual rifle meet that attracted 60 teams. Included in this meet were some of the best marksmen in the country.

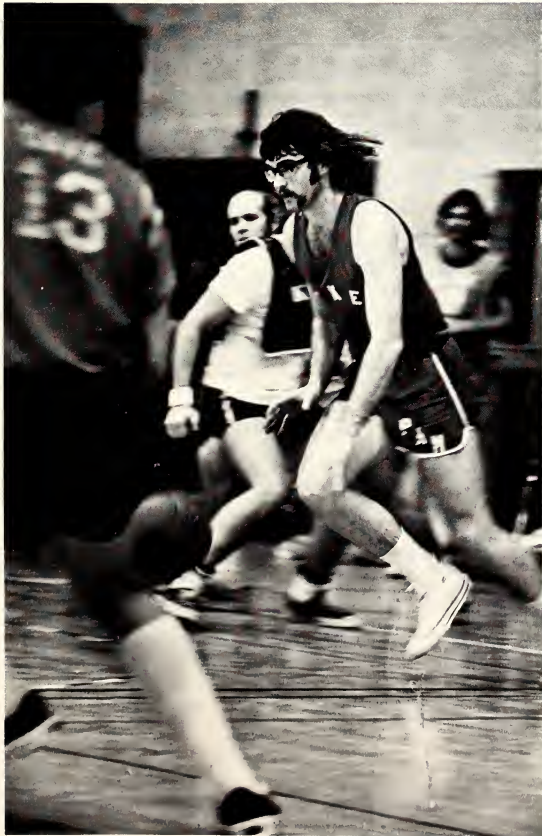

The 'Cat bowling team kept busy during the year, competing in two different leagues. Besides belonging to a postal league, the Wildcats are members of the Kansas-Oklahoma Bowling Conference. In this conference, K-State competed against Kansas, Oklahoma State, and Wichita State. The men's team finished the season third in the conference, while the women finished fourth. In the region 11 tournament, the K-State team finished ninth out of 14 teams.

Intramurals aid in relieving the winter doldrums

With the advent of winter, intramurals moved indoors and basketball became the dominant sport.

Proof of this was the record number of teams participating in basketball. There was approximately a 20 per cent increase over the year before, with 194 teams entered as opposed to 163 in 1971. This number was also the largest number of teams ever to participate in intramural basketball in its history. The 1972 squads were composed of fraternities, residence halls, independents, women and faculty members. Independent teams showed the largest increase in the teams with 98 as compared to 39 the year before.

Five years ago I came to Kansas and I admit that it was a change from the urban life I was used to. Since then I have learned a lot especially about myself, people and life.

College hasn't given me or taught me all I should know about life. It has never done this for anyone. Instead it has been a means to an end. It has shown me where my interests lie. Maybe this should be an example for everyone else. College education isn't an end in itself as some people see it. Instead it is only a beginning — the beginning of our lives. What you and I make of our lives can't be told in one or two years and perhaps it can never be told. You'll get out of life exactly what you put into it.

This is definitely the last page. After one year and one week it is all over. A lot of wild things have happened to this book in the last year.

I'd like to say

- thank you to my staff for their dedication and hard work,
- thank you to my roommates and others for helping me keep my brains together for the last year, — thank you to Freddie, Faunty, Jeff, Ray, Gary, Dave, and Richie for giving me a place to live in the summer of '71 and for showing me what true friendship is, — thank you to Phil Althoff for opening my eyes, — thank you to Janet for her patience, understanding, and love.

This yearbook has opened for me an area of interest which I plan to pursue for an occupation. With this in mind my last thank you goes to you the people who bought and will someday read this book, because without you there would be no Royal Purple.

Thanks,

Chris Cutro
